"You are doubtless familiar with all the works which have been written upon this subject from the time of Sœmmering, Sue, Sedillyt and Bichat to our own days?"

"Yes; I have, moreover, attended one of your classes of dissection, when you lectured upon the remains of an executed criminal."

"Ah! Then to the point! Have you any precise knowledge from the surgical point of view concerning the guillotine?"

"No, sir."

"I have scrupulously studied the apparatus myself to-day," continued Velpeau, with superlative coolness, "and I can bear witness that it is a perfect instrument. The knife-blade, acting at once like a wedge, a scythe and a weight, intersects the patient's neck bevel-wise in one-third of a second. The decapited man can feel no more pain from this lightning shock than a soldier can feel for the moment in battle when his arm is carried away by a round shot. Sensation is dull and obscure by reason of lack of time to feel."

"But perhaps there is the after-pain—the quick of the two wounds! Was it not Julia Fontenelle who asked if this very rapidity of decapitation has not more painful consequences than beheading with a sword or ax?"

"Berard did summary justice to the qhestion," replied Velpeau. "As for me, I have the firm conviction—based upon a hundred experiences and upon general observations—that instaneous ablation of the head as instantly produces the most absolute anæstheside insensibility. Even the syncope itself, produced by the loss of four or five liters of blood which bursts from the vessels (often with a force of circular projection of a meter in diameter), ought sufficiently to convince the most timid person of the fact. As for the unconscious movements of the fleshy mechanism, too suddenly checked in its processes, these no more constitute an indication than the quivering of an amputated leg of which the muscles and nerves still contact, although there is no more pain from it. I say that the nervous fever of uncertainty, the solemnity of the last preparations and the start of the morning awakening are the only positive sufferings endured. The amputation must be impreceptible; therefore, the pain is only imaginary. What when a violent blow on the head is not only unfelt, but leaves no memory of its shock, when a simple lesion of the vertebræ produces ataxic insensibility, are we to believe that the very severing of the head, the scision of the spinal column, the interruption of all organic relations between the brain and the heart, are not enough to effect total paralysis in the deepest life-centers of sensation of pain, however vague? Impossible! Inadmissible! And you know it as well as I."

"I hope it, at least, even more than you, sir," replied La Pommerais. "But it is not, after all, any violent or rapid physical pain (any pain momentarily experienced in the general panic of senses, and soon stifled by the irresistible advent of death), it is nothing of that sort which I fear. It is—something else."

"Will you try to try to specify it?" said Velpeau.

"Listen," answered La Pommerais, after a moment's silence. "The organs of memory and of will, if they are, in man, circumscribed within the same lobes in which we have found them to exist in—the dog, for instance, these organs, I say, are untouched by the knife in its passage. We have too many ambiguous cases on record—cases as disquieting as they are incomprehensi- [illegible] traditions which, when called by name, have turned their eyes toward the caller? It is vain to call these cases mere cases of nerve memory, reflex movements, &c. Do you remember the head of that sailor which, during a clinical lecture, one hour and a quarter after decollation, actually bit in two a pencil placed between its jaws, by a movement which may have been in voluntary? To select only this one case out of a thousand, what remains to be known is whether it was or was not the Ego of that man which gave impulse to the muscles of the bloodless head. Who can reveal it? Before eight days more have passed I shall have learned it and——forgotten it."

"It depends, perhaps, upon you," said Velpeau, fixing his eyes upon those of his interlocutor, "whether humanity will be positively enlightened upon this subject. And now, to be frank, it is upon this very matter that I have come to converse with you. I have been commissioned to visit you by our most eminent colleagues of the Faculty of Paris; here is my passport signed by the emperor. It empowers me even, in case of necessity, to postpone the time of your execution. In the name of that science which is dear to both of us, and the number of whose magnanimous martyrs is now beyond reckoning I come to demand of you the greatest sum of energy and intrepidity of which your being is capable. I am aware that whatever might be your good will in the man, everything so far known teaches us to expect a negative result; but nevertheless, your case affords us one chance in ten thousand of enlightening modern physiology. The occasion ought, therefore, be made the most of. In the event that you are able after the execution to exchange with me one triumphant sign of intelligence you will leave a name whose scientific glory will forever efface the remembrance of your failings toward society."

"Ah!" murmured La Pommerais, suddenly becoming wan, but with a resolute smile—"ah! I begin to understand. It is true that executions have already revealed the phenomena or digestion, as Michelot says. And what sort of experiment do you propose to make? Galvanic shocks?—incitations of the cillary?—injections of arterial blood? None of these will be very conclusive."

"No! but at the moment the knife falls I shall be there, before you, standing by the machine. As soon as possible your head will pass from the hands of the executioner into mine. And then (for the experience can only be seriously conclusive by every reason of its simplicity)—then I will call very distinctly in your ears: "Monsieur County de la Pommerais, in remembrance of our compact during life, can you close the lid of your right eye three times in succession, keeping the other open!' If at that moment, whatever be the other contraction of the fancies, you can give me to understand by that triple wink that you have heard and understood me—proving the fact by the act of perfect memory and the control you will have to exercise over your palpebral muscles, zygomatic nerve, and conjunctive—thus denominating all the horror, all the surging of all other new and strange impressions of your being—that fact will suffice to illuminate science and to revolutionize our beliefs. And do not doubt but that I shall be able to record the fact in such a manner that you will leave behind you the memory of a hero, rather than that of a criminal.

M. de la Pommerais rose up without a word, paced to and fro for a moment with a very thoughtful air, and finally, with a sad shake of the head, replied:

"The horrible violence of the blow will destroy my self-possession. To realize such a project seems to me something above all human powers of will to accomplish. Besides, it is said that the chances of viability are not the same for all victims of the guillotine. Nevertheless, sir, come on the morning of the execution. I shall then tell you whether I will lend myself as a project so frightful, revolting and illusive as this is. If I say no—then I may rely upon you, doubtless, to let my head bleed all its life away in the tin bucket which will receive it?"

* * * * * * *

Four days later, at half-past 5 o'clock in the morning, M. de la Pommerais was awakened for execution. Dr. Velpau had come, the company with M. Potter, the imperial sheriff, M. Claude, and M. Beauquesne. On seeing the surgeon, the prisoner exclaimed:—

"I have been practicing, See!"

And while the writ was being read, he kept his right eye closed and the left wide open.

Velpeau bowed gratefully, then turning to Hendreich, who had entered with his assistants, he exchanged a quick sign with the executioner.

The toilet was soon over. It was noticed that the phenomenon of the hair visibly whitening under the scissors did not take place. La Pommerais refused the customary glass of brandy, and the escort took the way through the corridor. On reaching the gate the prisoner, meeting his medical colleague upon the threshold, whispered: "In a little while we shall see. Good-bye!"

Suddenly the vast iron folding-doors opened and rolled back before him. The morning wind entered the prison; it was already dawn; far off extended the great square, surrounded by a double line of cavalry; in front only ten paces off, toward the scaffold, surrounded by a semicircle of gendarmes whose sabers were drawn with a simultaneous clash as the prisoner appeared. Further behind the trees could be heard the stormy murmuring of the crowd. Swallows were flying in the early morning over the square . . . . The guillotine seemed to fling to the very horizon the shadow of its two uplifted arms, between which, very far away, high up in the blueness of dawn, were visible the last scintillations of the last star.

The five persons present appeared in silhouette upon the scaffold; at that instant, so profound was the silence, that the sound of a branch breaking far away under the weight of a curious spectator, came clearly to the ears of the tragical group, together with the outcry of the falling man and some hideous laughter. D. de le Pommerais observed on the other side his strange experimenter, who was watching him fixedly as he stood with one hand upon the platform. La Pommerais collected himself a moment and closed his eyes.

* * * * * *

Suddenly the weight moved—the carcan was lowered—the bottom yielded—the flash of the knife passed. A terrible shock shook the platform, the horses reared at the electric odor of [illegible] with eyes wide open as in a trance, knitted brows, a death-grin frozen on the lips, teeth clenched; the chin, at the extremity of the lower maxillary, had been touched.

Velpeau bent down and whispered into the right ear of the head the question agreed upon. Firm as were the surgeons nerves, the result caused him to start with a sort of chilly fear; the lid of the right eye closed, the left eye, widely open, stared at him.

"In the name of God and humanity, repeat that sign twice," cried Velpeau, almost wildly.

The eyelids parted, as under the impulse of a supreme internal effort; but the lid did not rise again. Second by second the face became more rigid, more icy—motionless. All was over. Dr. Velpeau gave back the dead head to Mr. Hendreich, who according to custom, placed it between the already stiffening egs of the corpse in the basket.

The great surgeon washed his hands in one of the buckets filled for the scrubbing if the scaffold. All about him the crowd was ebbing away, thoughtfully—none had recognized him. He wiped his hands in silence. Then with slow step and pensive brow, he regained the carriage in waiting for him at the corner of the prison. As he got into it he perceived the executioner's wagon moving at a rapid trot in the direction of Montparrasse.

German Legends.

From the Saturday Review.

Though Germany has been more fully explored in this direction than almost any other country, it still possesses peculiar attractions for the collector. The peasantry in the center and south are more easily accessable than English farm laborers, and their minds are more richly stored with the wisdom and foolishness of the past. Not that they are more superstitious; the ancient rite has become a mere game and the charm is a jest; the old story is told oftener than not with an incredulous smile; but even the middle-aged are not afraid that you will laugh at them for talking about such matters, and the aged love to dwell upon them, together with the other memories of their youth. Every district too, has its own peculiar character. In East Friesland the legends are dark, stern, at times tragic; even when heathen in their origin, they have been remodeled by the spirit of a firm Protestant faith. In Central Germany they are brighter and more humorous, occasionally more grotesque; the deepest note they touch is a certain pensive tenderness, and hardly a trace of Christianity is to be found among them, though here and there the memory of a saint now forgotten in the district may be found a strange combination with other materials. In the Austrian Alps, again, they are more graceful, imaginative, pathetic, and almost invariably strongly colored by Catholicism. Thus the Frau Berchta or Frau Hohle of other districts here becomes the Wife of Pilate, to whom the popular fancy has assigned a sad but not ignoble fate in the world. As she confessed the truth and yet was not baptized, her spirit is doomed to wander through the earth till the Judgment Day, and to her the souls of all unbaptized children are gathered. Of Summer nights she leads them through the corn and flax fields, where they pluck off the mildewed ears and the harmful insects and bear them away in their little pitchers; but in winter, particularly about Christmas time, the strange procession will sometimes pass through a village where an inconsolate mother dwells, and then a little hand will tap at the window, and when the mourner looks out she will see her child no longer the baby they carried to the church-yard six months ago, but a little bright-eyed thing who, if it had a living body, one would take it to be three or four years old. Yet she knows at once that it is her own, and it says, "Mother, you must stop crying; all your tears fall into my pitcher; it has grown so heavy that I can scarcely carry it, and they drip down on my clothes and make them so cold and cumbersome that I can't keep up with the rest." If the mother glances down the street she will see a form so bright "that you might have taken it for Our Lady's," with a throng of little children crowding around her, "as if they loved her."

THE NILE CRIER.

A Queer occupation and its perfunctory performances.

From Harper's Monthly.

When the inundation approaches the capital—usually at the end of June or the beginning of July—the Nile criers (Muna-di-en-Nil) begin their work. These criers are men, whose business it is to call out, or rather to recite, before the houses of those who wish it, how much the Nile has risen during the last twenty-four hours. The Oriental does everything, no matter what it is, gravely, slowly, with much dignity and verbosity, and is never chary of his time or breath. Even the form of his greeting in the street is a complicated ceremony of words and motions which usually takes some minutes to perform. And in the same way this announcement of the river's rise, which seems to us such a simple matter, is a most serious affair.

The day before the crier begins his talk he goes through the streets accompanied by a boy, whose part it is to act as chorus and to sing the responses at the proper moment. The crier sings:

"God has looked graciously upon the fields."
Response: "Oh! day of glad tidings."
"To-morrow begins the announcement."
Response: "May it be followed by success."

Before the crier proceeds to give the information so much desired, he intones with the boy a lengthy, alternating chant, in which he praises God, implores blessings on the Prophet and all his believers, and on the master of the house and all his children. Not until all this has been carefully gone through does he proceed to say the Nile has risen so many inches.

This ceremony is carried on until the month of September, when the river has reached its culminating point, and the crier, as bringer of such good news, never fails to claim his "baksheesh"—sometimes humbly, and sometimes, too, very imperiously.

The late Paul Morphy played several games of chess with the great monarchs [illegible]

Solomon's Stables.

A correspondent thus describes one of the most famous of the ruined monuments of the greatness of Jerusalem:

Descending a flight of stone steps, we found ourselves in a most wonderful series of underground vaults. These vaults evidently boasted of antiquity of centuries anterior to the Christian era, and yet were marvelously well preserved. In some places the rubbish was so deep that we were within ten feet of the arched roofs, and again it was at least forty feet to the roof, showing the real altitude of the supporting piers. We wandered hither and thither by the aid of candles, sometimes in stygian darkness on the brows of greedy chasms, and then again in broad daylight. I suppose these magnificent vaults reach over acres of ground, and perhaps honeycomb the whole mountain. Doubtless, further investigation would bring to light discoveries of great interest. I measured one of the stones, and found it to be just sixty feet long and perhaps four feet square.

Without much thought, I incline to the belief that these really were Solomon's stables, and therefore among the wonders which this queen of Sheba inspected. I reason this out on very simple grounds. Solomon certainly had some magnificent establishment of this sort, for we read in the twenty-sixth verse of the fourth chapter of First Kings that he "had 40,000 stalls of horses for his chariots and 12,000 horsemen." The Jewish bevels on the stones throw these vaults back to a very remote past. These two facts dovetail together well. Besides that, Josephus speaks of vast subterranean vaults of the temple, in which people hid themselves at the time of the investment of the city by Titus.

The Art of Early Rising.

From the Popular Science Monthly for August.

The proper time to rise, says the Lancet, is when sleep ends. Dozing should not be allowed. True sleep is the aggregate of sleeps, or is a state consisting in the sleeping or rest of all the several parts of the organism. Sometimes one and other times another part of the body, as a whole, may be the least fatigued, and so the first to awake, are the most exhausted, and therefore the most difficult to arouse. The secret of good sleep is, the physiological conditions of rest being established, so to work and weary the several parts of the organism as to give them a proportionally equal need of rest at the same moment; and, to wake early and feel ready to rise, a fair and equal start of the sleepers should be secured; and the wise self-manager should not allow a drowsy feeling of the consciousness or weary senses, or an exhausted muscular system, to beguile him into the folly of going to sleep again when once he has been aroused. After a very few days of self-discipline, the man who resolves not to doze, that is, not to allow some sleepy part of his body to keep him in bed after his brain has once awakened, will find himself, without knowing why, an early riser.

The Noted American Beauty.

Few people know anything of the antecedents of Miss Chamberlain, the American beauty who has been so much admired abroad, and the following respecting her from the Buffalo Courier will be read with interest.

Miss Chamberlain is the grand-daughter of a certain Judge Wilson, one of the pioneer settlers of Cleveland, who had a large farm near what is now Euclid avenue. His only daughter was a beautiful girl, who is said to have much resembled the wellknown picture Evangeline gazing pensively into the distance. She married Selah Chamberlain, Jr., a young lawyer, the namesake and nephew of the old man who years ago built a railroad in Minnesota which the state dodged paying for until about five years since, when he returned to Cleveland with a special car containing a million or so of hard cash. Mrs. Chamberlain inherited her father's farm which has been cut up into building lots, and upon the revenues of which she now lives in England, having after the fashion of many American women of less patriotism than money, imbibed a taste for European life while traveling abroad—possibly because the manners of the "peasantry" are less offensive in the Old than in the New World. Her husband divides his time between the two countries. The children are three in number—Mary, who married a Cleveland iron merchant, and did not inherit her mother's ambition or beauty; Jennie, the young woman who has attracted so much attention abroad, and a son of 16, who is studying for college at Exeter, N. H.

In Evelyn's Diary the following occurs, referring to a Dutchwoman who lived in the seventeenth century: "Toward the end of August I returned to Haarlem. They showed us a cottage where they told us dwelt a woman who had been married to her twenty-fifth husband, and being now a widow, was prohibited to marry in future, yet it could not be proved that she had ever made away with any of her husbands, though the suspicion had brought her divers times to trouble."—Every Saturday.

Given Up to Die.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 2, 1883.

I had for 2 years been troubled with terrible sick headaches and a horrible cough. My skin turned to a yellowish hue. I suffered the most excruciating pain of the bowels; small, dry, irritating humors broke out over my face; my stomach would not retain the simplest food; vomited great quantities of offensive, greenish mucus.

The Doctor Said I Could Not Live.

In April I commenced taking Burdock Blood Bitters, and in July was cured by this medicine alone. The stomach and bowels seemed the first acted upon, after which I rapidly improved. My appetite returned, the terrible sick headache left me, the hacking cough gradually abated, and from the first bottle I could sleep well at night.

I do not think there is a case of sick headache Burdock's Blood Bitters will not cure, (they cured my sister, Mrs. Thos. J. Haley, of this city). Those who saw me six months ago [illegible]

A cowboy named Joseph Dempsey was fatally shot in the abdomen, nine miles from Miles City, by a colored herder named Abner Austin, alias Joe the Goat. They had quarreled over a dissolute woman.

Milwaukee's mayor is angry at his chief of police for raiding bawdy houses without previous notification.

Throw Away Trusses

when our new method is guaranteed to permanently cure the worst cases of rupture without the use of the knife. Send two letter stamps for pamphlet and references. World's Dispensary Medical Association, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

During a heavy thunder storm at Fort Wayne, Ind., Henry Gerke was struck and instantly killed by lightning.

"It Knocks the Spots," and everything in the nature of eruptions, blotches, pimples, ulcers, scrofulous humors, and incipient consumption, which is nothing more nor less than scrofula of the lungs, completely out of the system. It stimulates and invigorates the liver, tones up the stomach, regulates the bowels, purifies the blood, and builds up the weak places of the body. It is purely vegetable compound; and will do more than is claimed for it. We refer to DR. PIERCE'S "GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY."

Gen. O. A. Babcock's wines and furniture were sold at auction in Washington the other day.

"As Good as New,"

are the words used by a lady, who was at one time given up by the most eminent physicians, and left to die. Reduced to a mere skeleton pale and haggard, not able to leave her bed, from all those distressing diseases peculiar to suffering females, such as displacement, leucorrhœa, inflammation, etc., etc. She began taking Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," and also using the local treatments recommended by him, and is now, she says, "as good as new." Price reduced to one dollar. By druggists.

Judge Zane will resign the circuit judgeship and enter upon his duties as chief justice of Utah about the 26th of August.

"Rough on Corns." 15c. Ask for it. Complete cure, hard or soft corns, warts, bunions.

Skin Cancer.

Mr. H. W. Gilbert of Albany, Ga. under date of May 8, 1884, says: Mr. Brooks near here has an eating cancer on his face which had nearly killed him—everyone thought he would be dead in a short time as nothing seemed to stop the ravages of the cancer. He commenced taking Swift's Specific two months ago, and it has had a wonderful effect on him. He was yesterday so far recovered as to be out at his work, and seems in a fair way to get entirely well.

Treatise on Blood and Skin diseases mailed free.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Drawer 3, Atlanta Ga., 159 W. 23d St., N. Y., and 1205 Chestnut St. Phila.

"Nothing Like it for Rheumatism."

Mrs. Rilla Stevens, No. 3032 South Dearborn St. says that she used Papillon Skin Cure for Inflammatory Rheumatism, with the happiest results. It reduced the inflammation and swelling, and relieved the intense pain in less than two hours; she cordially recommends it to all rheumatic sufferers. It is applied by rubbing the joints and affected parts with the remedy for some moments, the pain ceased instantly.

Lieut. J. C. Fremont, the general's son, is on the war steamer Lackawanna.

"Rough on Rats." Clears out rats, mice, flies, roaches, bed-bugs, ants, vermin, chipmunks. 15c.

Maid of Athens.

What is the difference between this noted Lady and Carboline the great Hair Renewer? Ans.—One is Maid of Athens and the other is Made of Petroleum and both come from Grease.

ALLEN'S IRON TONIC BITTERS strengthens and fortifies the system against disease. All genuine bear the signature of J. P. Allen, Druggist St. Paul, Minn.

Piles! Piles! Piles!

Sure cure for Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles. Single box has cured worst chronic case of twenty years standing. No one need suffer five minutes after applying. William's Indian Pile ointment. It absorbs the tumors, allays the itching (praticularly after getting warm in bed). Prepared only for piles and itching for the private parts. Noyes Bros. & Cutler, St Paul. Wholesale Agents.

Thomas Calhoun, a relation of John C. suicided recently at Beach Island, S. I.

An Invaluable Remedy.—None except those who have suffered all the horrors of Dyspepsia, can fully appreciate the value and efficacy of Perry Davis' Pain Killer, a sovereign remedy for this distressing disease in all its forms is used internally and externally, test its virtues.

For adoption—a fair healthy girl infant 17 months old—apply to Dr. Wharton Windsor hotel St. Paul, Minn.

Piso's cure for consumption is not only pleasant to take but it is sure to cure.

THE BEST IS THE CHEAPEST—therefore use Frazer Axle Grease.

Joel Law, Jr. went home drunk at Marrietta, Ind., and abused his family. Charles Wright, his stepson, shot and fatally wounded him.

"Buchu-Paiba." Quick, complete cure, all annoying kidney and urinary diseases. $1.

A Clay county, Miss., farmer has 120 acres of peppermint.

"Rough on Itch" cures humors, eruptions, ringworms, tetter, salt rheum, frosted feet, chilblains.

Pure Cod-Liver Oil made from selected livers, on the sea-shore, by CASWELL, HAZARD & CO., New York. It is absolutely pure and sweet. Patients who have once taken it prefer it to all others. Physicians have decided it superior to any of the other oils in market.

Chapped Hands, Face, Pimples, and rough Skin cured by using JUNIPER TAR SOAP, made by CASWELL, HAZARD & CO., New York.

PILES Itching or Bleeding, relieved and permanently cured by Cole's Carbolisalve. Get the Genuine. 25 cents and 75 cents at druggists or by mail. J. W. COLE & CO., Prop's, Black River Falls, Wis.

ST. JACOBS OIL TRADE MARK

20

THE GREAT GERMAN REMEDY FOR PAIN.

CURES Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Backache, Headache, Toothache, Sore Throat, Swellings, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites, AND ALL OTHER BODILY PAINS AND ACHES.

Sold by Druggists and Dealers everywhere. Fifty Cents a bottle. Directions in 11 Languages.

THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO. (Successors to A. VOGELER & CO.) Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

MORPHINE and CHLORAL HABITS EASILY CURED. BOOK FREE. Dr. J. C. Hoffman, Jefferson, Wisconsin. OPIUM

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

The feeble grow strong when Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is used to promote assimilation of the food and enrich the blood. Indigestion, the chief obstacle to an acquisition of strength by the weak, is an ailment which infallibly succumbs to the action of this peerless corrective. Loss of flesh and appetite, failure to sleep, and growing evidence of [illegible]

CUTICURA

"See What Cuticura Does for Me!"

INFANTILE and Birth Humors, Milk Crust, Scalled Head, Eczemas, and every form of Itching, Scaly, Pimply, Scrofulous and Inherited Diseases of the Blood, Skin, and Scalp, with Loss of Hair, cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES. Absolutely pure and safe. Cuticura the great Skin Cure, 50 cts.; Cuticura Soap, an exquisite Skin Beautifier and only Medicinal Baby Soap, 25 cts. and Cuticura Resolvent, the new Blood Purifier, $1, are sold by druggists. Potter Drug and Chemical Co., Boston. Send for "How to Cure Skin Diseases."

Thirty Years Record.

HUNT'S KIDNEY & LIVER REMEDY NEVER KNOWN TO FAIL

Endorsed by Physicians.

IT IS A SPECIFIC FOR Kidney & Liver Troubles, Bladder, Urinary and Liver Diseases, Dropsy, Gravel and Diabetes.

IT IS RELIABLE in curing Bright's Disease, Pains in the Back, Loins or Sides, Retention or Non-Retention of Urine.

HIGHLY RECOMMENDED,

It cures Biliousness, Headache, Jaundice, Sour Stomach, Dyspepsia, Constipation and Piles.

IT WORKS PROMPTLY

and cures Intemperance, Nervous Diseases, General Debility, Excesses and Female Weakness.

USE IT AT ONCE.

It restores the KIDNEYS, LIVER and BOWELS, to a healthy action and CURES when all other medicines fail. Hundreds have been saved who have been given up to die by friends and physicians.

Price $1.25. Send for Illustrated Pamphlet to

HUNT'S REMEDY CO., Providence, R. I.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS. 9

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

Sold everywhere, 25c. Office, 44 Murray St., N.Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed instantly to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.

Office, 44 Murray Street, New York.

TUTT'S MANUAL OF USEFUL RECEIPTS FREE.

STOCKS of goods wanted in exchange for Minneapolis Real Estate. E. H. Steele, Minneapolis.

PAIN!

Pain is supposed to be the lot of us poor mortals, as inevitable as death, and liable at any time to come upon us. Therefore it is important that remedial agents should be at hand to be used in an emergency, when we are made to feel the excruciating agonies of pain, or the depressing influence of disease.

Such a remedial agent exists in that old Reliable Family Remedy,

PERRY DAVIS'

Pain-Killer

It was the first and is the Only Permanent Pain Reliever.

ITS MERITS ARE UNSURPASSED.

There is nothing to equal it for curing

Colic, Cramps, Spasms, Heartburn, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Flux, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache.

CURES CHOLERA!

When Cholera prevailed in the years 1849 and 1850,

"PAIN-KILLER"

Was used with such wonderful success, that it is considered an unfailing cure for all Bowel Complaints. It has stood the test of Forty Years' Constant Use in all Countries.

WHEN USED EXTERNALLY AS A LINIMENT, nothing gives quicker ease in Burns, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Stings from Insects and Scalds. Those suffering with Rheumatism, Gout or Neuralgia, if not a positive cure, they find the PAIN-KILLER gives them relief when no other remedy will. In sections of the country where

FEVER AND AGUE

Prevails, there is no remedy held in greater esteem. Persons traveling should keep it by them.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

WHITE BEAVER'S COUGH CREAM Heals Diseased Lungs.

CHEAP DRESS Fine Black Silks 75c to $2 per yd. Send for samples. Box 194, Northwest Purcha'ng Co.

"St. Paul Chemical Oil." A Wonderful Discovery in chemical manufacture.

P WITH P

May mean "Poisoned with Potash." This is the case with hundreds who have been unwise enough to take Sarsaparillas, Potash mixtures, etc., until digestion is almost fatally impaired. Swift's Specific is a vegetable remedy, and restores the system to health and builds up the waste made by these poisons.

"I was suffering with Blood Poison, and treated several months with Mercury and Potash, only to make me worse. The Potash took away my appetite and gave me dyspepsia, and both gave me rheumatism. I then took Sarsaparillas, etc. All these Sarsaparilla mixtures have Potash in them. This made me still worse, as it drove the poison farther into my system. A friend insisted I should take Swift's Specific, and it cured me of the Blood Poison, drove the Mercury and Potash out of my system, and to-day I am as well as I ever was.

GEO. O. WELLMAN, JR., Salem, Mass.

John A. Smith, the largest merchant in Gainesville, Ga., says, "I suffered for years from the combined effects of Erysipelas and Eczema. I continued to grow worse under medical treatment and by taking medicine containing Potash. S. S. S. cured me thoroughly and absolutely. My appetite, strength and flesh returned as I was cured with it."

Treatise on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed free to applicants. SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.

N. Y. Office, 159 W. 23d St., bet. 6th and 7th Avs. Philadelphia Office, 1205 Chestnut St.

Ripe Old Age.

Civiale Remedial Agency, 166 Fulton St., N. Y.

In these days of over-civilization, Hot-house Development of the Passions, the Race for Wealth, Strain, Overwork, Indiscretions, Excesses and the like, MEN GROW OLD TOO FAST.

Young men, instead of being robust, vigorous and ambitious, are weak, nervous and debilitated. Men in the very prime of Life find themselves practically exhausted and devoid of all manly vigor and strength.

There is a CERTAIN CURE for this and any man prematurely weakened can satisfy himself of this fact by trying a course of the CIVIALE SOLUBLE CRAYONS.

Painless, Absolutely Harmless, Prompt and Permanent. VARICOCELE is promptly cured. ILLUSTRATED PAMPHLET, 3 stamps.

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD

[illegible] I. S. JOHNSON & CO., BOSTON, MASS.

Advertising Cheats!!!

"It has become so common to begin an article, in an elegant, interesting style.

"Then run it into some advertisement that we avoid all such.

"And simply call attention to the merits of Hop Bitters in as plain, honest terms as possible.

"To induce people

"To give them one trial, which so proves their value that they will never use anything else."

"THE REMEDY so favorably noticed in all the papers,

Religious and secular, is

"Having a large sale, and is supplanting all other medicines.

"There is no denying the virtues of the Hop plant, and the proprietors of Hop Bitters have shown great shrewdness and ability * * *

"In compounding a medicine whose virtues are so palable to every one's observation."

Did She Die.

"No!

"She lingered and suffered along, pining away all the time for years,"

"The doctors doing her no good;"

"And at last was cured by this Hop Bitters the papers say so much about."

"Indeed! Indeed!"

"How thankful we should be for that medicine."

A Daughter's Misery.

"Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery.

"From a complication of kidney, liver, rheumatic trouble and Nervous debility,

"Under the care of the best physicians,

"Who gave her disease various names,

"But no relief,

"And now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters, that we had shunned for years before using it."—THE PARENTS.

Father is Getting Well.

"My daughters say:

"How much better father is since he used Hop Bitters."

"He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurable."

"And we are so glad that he used your Bitters."—A LADY of Utica, N. Y.

None genuine without a bunch of green Hops on the white label. Shun all the vile, poisonous with "Hop" or "Hops" in their name.

RULES For self-measurement and price list sent free by BIG BOSTON, Minneapolis.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

PATENTS! Thos. P. Simpson, Washington, D. C. No pay asked for patent until obtained. Write for Inventor's Guide.

LEARN TELEGRAPHY, or SHORT-HAND and TYPE WRITING HERE. Situations furnished. Address Valentine Bros., Janesville, Wis.

GUNS Shot Guns Revolvers, Rifles, Etc. Large Ill. Catalogue free. Address Great Western Gun Works, Pittsburgh, Pa.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION. CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. 25 CTS.

NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC.

MUSIC. Vocal and Instrumental and Tuning.
ART. Drawing, Painting, Modeling and Portraiture.
ORATORY. Literature and Languages.
HOME. Elegant accommodations for 500 lady students.
FALL TERM begins Sept. 11th. Beautifully Ill'd Calendar free. Address E. TOURJEE, Director.
FRANKLIN SQUARE, BOSTON, MASS.

Dr. Bunce's Infirmary

EYE, EAR, THROAT, LUNGS, CATARRH, ASTHMA, and RHEUMATISM treated with great success. All diseases of a private nature treated with delicacy, with a warrantee of speedy reliefs or permanent cure. Good rooms and board at reasonable rates furnished patients at the Infirmary. Patients treated at a distance. Correspondence solicited. Send stamp for reply. Infirmary 505 Second Avenue South, Minneapolis, Minn.

ASTHMA GERMAN ASTHMA CURE never fails to instantly relieve the most violent attack and insure comfortable sleep. Used by inhalation, thus reaching the disease direct, relaxes the spasm, facilitates free expectoration and effects CURES where all other remedies fail. A trial will convince the most skeptical of its immediate, direct and never failing effect. Price: 50c. and $1.00. Trial package free. Of druggists or by mail for stamp. Cut this out. DR. R. SCHIFFMANN, St. Paul, Minn.

DON'T BUY AN ENGINE

Until you have seen our Circulars and Prices. $250 for 15 Horse Power, to $550 for 60 Horse Power. Engines complete with Governor, Pump, Heater, and Throttle Valve, and Sight Feed Cylinder Lubricator. More than 1,000 in use. Send for circular giving testimonials from every State in the Union. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed.

HERALD & MORRIS,
[Mention this paper.] Baldwinsville, N. Y.

U. S. STANDARD. JONES OF BINGHAMTON. 5 TON WAGON SCALES, Iron Levers, Steel Bearings, Brass Tare Beam and Beam Box, $60 and JONES he pays the freight—for free Price List mention this paper and address JONES OF BINGHAMTON, Binghamton, N. Y.

PAPILLON SKIN CURE

ABSOLUTELY CURES

SALT RHEUM, ECZEMA, SCROFULA, SCALD Head, Erysipelas, Tetter, Hives, Dandruff, Barber's Itch, Pimples, Stings, Carbuncles, Plant Poisoning and Poisoned Wounds, Ringworm, Sunburn, and all diseases of the Skin.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND IS A POSITIVE CURE FOR All those painful Complaints and Weaknesses so common to our best FEMALE POPULATION.

Price $1 in liquid, pill or lozenge form.

Its purpose is solely for the legitimate healing of disease and the relief of pain; and that it does all it claims to do, thousands of ladies can gladly testify.

It will cure entirely all Ovarian troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Falling and Displacements, and consequent Spinal Weakness, and is particularly adapted to the change of life.

It removes Faintness, Flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves Weakness of the Stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. Send stamp to Lynn, Mass., for pamphlet. Letters of inquiry confidentially answered. For sale at druggists.

Dr. Spinney & Co.

Treat all Chronic and Nervous Diseases. Young men who may be suffering with Weakness, Nervous Debility, Despondency, Aversion to Society, Kidney troubles, or any similar diseases, can here find a safe and speedy cure. There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are often troubled with uncomfortable symptoms, accompanied by weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. Examination reveals the fact that the patient's system is undergoing a depletion which rapidly exhausts every vital function. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause. The doctor will guarantee a cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration. Pamphlet, with full particulars, sent free to any address. Call on or address DR. SPINNEY & CO., 37 S. Third st., Minneapolis, Minn.

A FADED LEAF.

I can hardly believe it even now. If there was one person in this world whom I should have thought safe from the remotest chance of matrimony, that person was Aunt Hetty—dear, placid, middle-aged Aunt Hetty. And yet I have just seen her drive away from the door hand-in-hand with her handsome husband, and looking as sweet and bonny as any young bride of 19, notwithstanding her silver hair. It has all happened so quickly and in such a wonderful, fairy-tale kind of fashion, that I feel as if it had taken my breath away, and as if I must really sit down and rest a bit and think the matter over.

I have lived with Aunt Hetty ever since mother died. When I came to her I was quite a little tot, and now I am six-and-twenty, so you may imagine it is a good many years ago. Auntie must have been a young woman then, but somehow she has always seemed middle-aged to me. She was always so calm and gentle and did everything in such a quiet, business-like way that I regarded her as a different kind of being from my restless, excitable self. I have had my little flirtations now and then, but Aunt Hetty seemed too grave, too wise, too good altogether ever to have been mixed up in anything so frivolous as a love affair. It only shows how we may live with people in the same house, almost in the same room, for years together and yet know little or nothing of their feelings. I remember, almost as if it were yesterday, fancying one day, about a year ago, that auntie was dressed more carefully than usual. I don't know what the difference was—only an extra bit of lace or ribbon or something of that sort, but I said to her in fun:

"Why auntie dear, how smart you are! One would think you were going to a wedding!"

"No dear," she said, "I am not going to a wedding, but this should have been my own silver wedding day." And the dear lip quivered for a moment and a tear came into the soft gray eyes.

"Your silver wedding, auntie! Forgive me; I did not know."——

"No dear," she said, "of course, you could not. It is a very old story now."

"But, how was it then, that you were not married after all, auntie?" I inquired. "But perhaps I ought not to ask. Don't tell me if it pains you."

"No dear," she said; "it was a painful story once, but the pain has gone out of it now. And I think I should like to tell it to you. Perhaps it may save you from making such a mistake as I did. It is a very simple story just a lovers' quarrel, a few hasty words all said and over in five minutes; but they altered my whole life."

A lovers quarrel, auntie! Then I am sure the fault was not on your side!"

"You are wrong, dear. The fault was on my side. I was proud and angry and obstinate; a word would have given me back my lover, but I would not say it. We parted in anger and we have never met again!"

"You, auntie!—the most patient of living beings, you proud and angry and obstinate! I can't believe it!"

"Yes, Ruth, it is true, nevertheless. Sit here on the hassock at my feet and I will tell you my story. It won't take long."

I sat down accordingly and with her hand resting on my shoulder and now and then wandering lovingly over my hair, she began:

"It happened when I was only 18—younger then you, Ruth, and full of life and spirit—very different from the faded old maid you have always known me. I was engaged to be married. My lover was four years older than myself; he was a mate of a ship and a fine dashing young fellow named Edward Blake. We had been engaged six months, and were to be married a month later. The day was fixed and Edward had arranged to give up the sea, and take a situation on land. We were as happy as two young people could possibly be; but, unluckily, just a month before the time fixed for our wedding-day, a picnic was got up by some of our friends, and Edward and I were of the party. There was a handsome young fellow there named Percy Sandys, the son of a neighboring clergyman. He was fresh from college, and full of fun and frolic. I chanced to be placed next to him at luncheon, and not knowing, as I afterwards discovered, that I was engaged, he was specially attentive to me, I did not care for his attentions in the least, but I was in high spirits and only bent on the enjoyment of the moment, and I did not check him as, perhaps, I ought to have done. Presently I caught sight of Edward's face, and saw that he was looking terribly cross and angry. Foolishly, I thought it rather good fun to make him jealous, and on purpose to tease him, I pretended to take all the more notice of Mr. Sandys. When we had finished luncheon the party scattered and strolled about the woods in various directions. I naturally expected Edward to accompany me, he rather rudely, as I thought, held aloof and, to punish him, I paired off with Mr. Sandys. When the party got together again Edward looked so savage that I thought it better not to provoke him any further.

"I shook off Sandys and, walking away with Edward, began to scold him for his unreasonable jealousy. Of course I did not think myself was in fault; nobody ever does. A loving word would have made me penitent directly. Unfortunately, he was white hot with anger and began to reproach me in a way that roused my temper, too, for I was quick enough to take offense in those days, Ruth, though I have learned better since. I can remember as if it were yesterday the nook in the woods where we stood, the sun shone brightly through the trees and lighting up Edward's flushed face and angry eyes. He reproached me bitterly—more bitterly I think than I deserved. He called me a heartless coquette and I called him little-minded and told him he had made himself ridiculous by his unreasonable jealousy. We got hotter and hotter and [illegible] he demanded that I should [illegible] been wrong and promise [illegible] differently for the future. it must be over between us. I did not care a straw for Mr. Sandys and would 50 times sooner have had Edward with me, but I would have died sooner than have told him so there. So I gave him a bitter answer and we both grew angrier still. His last words, uttered with all the intensity of passion, ring still in my ears. I can tell you them word for word 'Hetty, if you let me go now, understand clearly you will never see my face again.' I did not quite believe him. Perhaps if I had, I should still have let him go. At any rate, I was far too angry to give way then. 'Go, by all means, if you wish it,' I said and in another moment he was gone. I had been tearing to pieces, in my passion, a little spray of hawthorn he had given me earlier in the day. I had pulled off the leaves one by one, and when he left me, the bare stem was left in my hand, with one leaf only remaining. See, here it is, the last relic of my first and last love. God grant that in your whole life, my Ruth, you may never weep such tears as I have wept over that one faded leaf."

Aunt Hetty took from her desk the little prayer book she always carried, a quaint little red covered book, with a gilt clasp, and showed me just within it a tissue-paper pocket attached to the cover. This she opened and showed me the faded leaf.

"This little book," she said, "was Edward's first gift to me; and this old dry leaf is my only relic of the day when we parted in anger in the wood, never to meet again in this world. Stay, I have one more treasure; see!"

She drew from her bosom a quaint old locket and put it in my hand. It was a miniature painting, representing a young man in an old-fashioned naval costume. It was a handsome face, but stern and proud-looking; and I could well believe that the original would have behaved as Aunt Hetty had described.

"But did you really part like that, auntie?" I said. "Did you never see him again?"

"Never. He did not go back to the picnic party, but joined an outward-bound ship the very next day, leaving a brief note for my mother stating that we had fortunately found out in time that we were unsuited to each other, and had therefore by mutual consent put an end to our engagement."

"But this was very cruel, auntie."

"I thought so then. Perhaps it was, a little; but afterwards I blamed myself, far more than him. I had given the provocation; and I knew in my heart of hearts that one word of regret an my part would have made all right between us. But I was too proud to say it. I let him go with my eyes open and I have been justly punished."

"But have you never heard of him since, auntie?"

"Once or twice, in early years; but only indirectly. He had no relatives in our part of the country. I know that he gave up the sea, and obtained a commission in some Indian regiment. When last I heard of him he was captain, but that was many years ago and I do not know whether he is alive or dead. So ends my poor little romance. There is one thing I should like to ask, Ruth, and that is partly why I told you my story. You have seen my relics. They have been my greatest treasures in life and I should like them put in my coffin when I die. Will you remember this, dear?"

I could not answer for tears, but I kissed her hand and she was content.

Two month ago, tired of our humdrum country life, auntie and I resolved, for once, to visit foreign parts. Accordingly, we went to Boulogne and took up our abode in a quiet boarding house in the Rue des Vicillards. Our domicile was a quaint old house, said to have been originally a nunnery and afterwards to have been occupied for a short time by the great Napoleon when meditating a decent upon England. A broad gateway, flanked on either side by disused field-guns, planted upright in the ground by way of gate-posts, led into a pleasant courtyard, with seats under the shade of a spreading tree and made musical by the splash of a modest fountain. There were a good many visitors staying in the house, but they were mostly in families or parties and we did not amalgamate much with them. Our vis-a-vis at table was a tall, elderly gentleman of soldierly appearance, who was always spoken of as the major. He had evidently been a very handsome man—indeed, he was handsome still. His hair and mustache were perfectly white, forming a marked contrast with his complexion, which was extremely dark, as if tanned by a long residence under a tropical sun. I think I was first attracted to him by noticing that his French was even worse than our own. When he ventured, as he occasionally did, to address an order to the white-capped waiting maids in their own language, the difficulties he got into were dreadful, and he generally ended by getting rather angry with himself and them. Once or twice I ventured very timidly to help him out of a difficulty of this kind, and in this manner a slight acquaintance had sprung up between us. It had, however, proceeded no further than a friendly good morning or a casual remark across the dinner-table. With other visitors the major fraternized even less. After breakfast he regularly smoked one cigar under the tree in the court-yard, after which he started off for a solitary ramble and did not reappear till dinner time. So matters stood until the first Sunday evening after our arrival, when he went, as in duty bound to the little English church in an adjoining street. We were ushered into one of the pews appropriated for strangers; and a minute or two later the major was shown into the same pew, and sat down silently beside us. The service proceeded in the usual course, and the sermon was nearly over, when the major by an accidental movement of his elbow, knocked down auntie's little red prayerbook, which was on the sloping edge before her. He stooped to pick it up, and was about to replace it, but as it came in view in the full glare of the gaslight his eye chanced to fall upon it, and he started as though he had seen a ghost. He laid down the book on the desk before him, but it seemed to fascinate him. He looked from the book to aunt Hetty, and from aunt Hetty to the book, as if trying to satisfy himself on the same point, but without success. The sermon came to an end at last, and the benediction followed, but I fear the major had little share in it. He took advantage of the moment when all heads were bowed to do a very unmannerly thing. He slyly put up his eyeglass and opening auntie's prayer-book took a rapid peep at the name inside. It was very quickly done and might have escaped notice, but I was watching him closely. I could even read the name myself. It was in a bold manly handwriting. "To Hester; June 28, 18—." I stared aghast at such an act of impertinence, and glanced at Aunt Hetty, to see whether she would resent it; but she had probably not noticed the offense, for she made no sign.

The congregation began to disperse, and we passed out in our turn, the major close behind us. We were scarcely fairly in the street when he spoke to auntie.

"Madam, I am going to ask you a very singular question; but let me assure you that I have a deep personal interest in asking it. Will you tell me how you came by that red prayer-book that you use?"

I shall never forget auntie's answer, given as quickly as if it was the most commonplace matter, though I could tell by the faint rose-flush on her usually pale cheek how deeply she was moved.

"You gave it to me yourself, Major Blake, six-and-twenty years ago."

The major's face was a study. Surprise, delight and incredulity seemed struggling for the mastery. He took off his hat and stood bare-headed. I hardly know why, but that one little gesture seemed to tell me, better than most passionate protections would have done, that the old love had kept a treasure and a sacred thing. And I think, from the faint sweet smile that gathered round her mouth as she looked up at him, that the same thought came to auntie.

"And you are Hetty?" he said. "Yes, I know you now."

"You had forgotten the six-and-twenty years, Major Blake. I knew you from the first."

"And would you really have let me go without a word or a sigh?" he asked.

"Why not?" she replied. "How could I know you would wish to be reminded of old times?"

"Reminded! I have never forgotten. I tried my hardest to forget, and couldn't. Although you preferred another"——

"Another! What other?"

"Young Sandys. Did you not marry him?"

"I have never seen him since."

At this stage of conversation it struck me that I was decidedly de trop. Major Blake had replaced his hat, and, side by side with auntie, was walking slowly homeward. I had hitherto been following behind; but, reaching a convenient street corner, I let them proceed alone, and went off, without beat of drum, for a stroll in an opposite direction. When I reached the boarding-house, half an hour later, I found auntie and the major sitting in the courtyard, under the shade of the great tree. The major courteously lifted his hat at my approach and said:

"Miss Danvers, your aunt and I are very old friends; indeed, many years ago, we were engaged to be married, but an unfortunate misunderstanding separated us. We have lost many happy years of life together, but I hope some may still remain to us. I trust we shall have your good wishes."

I looked from one to the other.

"You dear, darling auntie, then you really are going to be married after all! Of course I wish you joy, and Major Blake too, from the very bottom of my heart!"

"I don't know," said auntie, shaking her head doubtfully. "I'm a little afraid we are two old fools."

"Nay, dear," said the major, raising her hand gallantly to his lips. "Perhaps we were young fools, but that is six-and-twenty years ago. Let us hope we have learned true wisdom now."

I don't know how the secret oozed out, but before 24 hours were over every one in the boarding-house, even to white-capped Adele and her assistant maidens, knew that the handsome English major had met an old love in the person of the gentle little lady with the sweet smile and the soft gray hair, and that after a separation of six-and-twenty years they were again engaged to be married; and were promoted to the rights and privileges of engaged lovers accordingly. And lovers they unmistakably were, though in a very quiet way. No lover of 20 could have been more devoted than this weather-beaten warrior to his faded bride; no girl of eighteen more proud and happy in her lover's devotion than dear old auntie. They ought, by every rule, to have been ridiculous, but somehow nobody seemed to think them so; and I really believe they had the heartiest sympathy of every one in the house.

I must pass over the homeward journey, and the astonishment of our friends at Fairfield, when auntie returned, engaged to be married. Some few of them had known Major Blake as a young man, but to most of them he was a stranger. Many were the questions, and long the explanations, before everything was accounted for to everybody's satisfaction; but it was done at last. And then came the preparation of the trousseau; and at last, this very morning, the happy pair have been made one, and auntie is off to the Isle of Wight to spend her honeymoon. And last night, just before we went to bed, she called me into her own room, and taking out the little red prayer-book, said:

"Ruth dear, I am going to give you this little book as a parting remembrance. You know how I have treasured it; and you won't value it the less, I'm sure, for having been so dear to me. And if when Mr. Right comes, Ruth, you are ever tempted to the wilful or wayward, or pain a heart that loves you truly, think of your old Aunt Hetty, and don't forget the moral of the faded leaf."

A "popular scientific lecture" is nothing if not sensational. C. A. Johnson, who is designated as "the editor of the American Eagle, and the British Lion," delivered a lecture on electricity in St. Louis, the other night. In the course of it he announced that "he had discovered from personal investigation that the earth was composed one half of electricity and the other half of fire, and he said there was no doubt in his mind that within fifty years the union of the fire and electricity would result in the destruction of the earth."

We are all the victims of vices. The average man is older at 50 than he should be at 70. This crippled condition comes of vices. The margin left for high purposes and achievement is pitifully small. This wretched slavery consumes nearly all the fine forces of being, and is the one great waste of human life. If there were no other reason why we cannot punish vices by law, it is sufficient that we are all the victims of vice.—Dio Lewis.

ROMANCE.

From the Spanish of Gustavo Becquer.

Before thou diest I shall die,
For in my heart I bear,
Bleeding to death, the cruel steel
Thy hand hath planted there.

Before thou diest I shall die,
But faithful still shall be,
For seated at the gate of death,
My soul will wait for thee.

Day after day, year after year,
Until thy life be past,
And at that portal thou shalt knock
Where all shalt knock at last!

Then, when the earth is lying soft
On thee—thy lips and eyes,
When plunged in death's baptismal stream
Washed pure, thou shalt arise.

There, where the tumult of mankind
Is heard but seen no more—
Gone, like the wind that raised the wave,
The spent wave on the shore.

There, where to live is not to die,
To live is not to fear—
We shall know all; for we shall speak
All that we spake not here!

—Richard Henry Stoddard, in The Manhattan.

ON THE FLYING TRAPEZE.

BY MRS. M. P. HANDY.

Signor Francesco,—the World-Renowned Gymnast,—as the posters had it, in letters two feet long, was one of the chief attractions of the Grecian Gardens, and his daring performances upon cross-bar and trapeze nightly drew a crowd to the popular place of amusement. As to the "world-wide renown," that was an advertising license; in point of fact, he had never been beyond the limits of the United States, and his first and only laurels in the gymnastic line had been won upon the stage of the Grecian Gardens.

To tell the carefully-concealed truth, Signor Francesco led a dual existence. For one hour every evening, Sundays excepted, he was the hero of the ring, —the idol of the gallery,—the rest of the time he was Frank Beverly, reporter on The Evening Message.

The reason of the riddle was not far to seek. Poverty as a common form of misery, makes a man acquainted with strange bedfellows. His family were Virginians, dwelling on the Rappahannock River, and for four years the tide of battle surged back and forth over their home. When at last the bloody contest was ended, and they returned after three years of life as refugees, scarcely anything was left save the land, and the very face of that was altered, piled into redoubts and seamed with rifle-pits, which gaped like raw wounds on its surface.

Not a tree remained of all their stately forests; the house had been burned to the ground, and only the dwelling of the overseer, who had elected to stay at home when his employers fled, was left standing. In this they took up their abode, and went to work to piece their broken fortunes as best they might. Slowly the fertile soil repaid their labors; vineyards and orchards grew to replace those which had vanished; a comfortable, though far less pretentious house rose on the site of the old home, and the wounds of the war were outwardly healed.

Still, money was scarce, and when Frank, the youngest and only remaining son, was old enough to go to college, the plantation was mortgaged to supply the necessary funds. The traditions of the family must be observed at any cost.

Coming home with his dearly-bought diploma, Frank had no thought but to open the world's oyster as speedily as possible. Casting about for the fitting point at which to attack that obstinate bivalve, he bethought him of a cousin of his mother's, who, emigrating to the West before the war, and taking the right side of the conflict, was now the prosperous editor of a Northern journal. To him Frank wrote, asking for a position, receiving in reply permission to begin at the bottom and work his way up, if he could. The process of climbing was, however, by no means so rapid as he had supposed it would be. Economize as he might, it was not possible to save much on a salary of ten dollars a week, and months passed without hope of increase. He did his work fairly well, but he was no genius, and his university degree, much to his surprise, counted nothing in his favor.

Thus matters stood, when one evening he went with his fellow-journalists to see the performance at The Grecian Gardens. Herr Krawisky, or some other man with an unspellable nom d'etage, was the star performer, and his efforts were greeted with great applause, in which Frank's companions joined.

"Why don't you clap?" they asked him at length.

"I don't think he is doing anything remarkable," he replied. "Do you?"

Come, now, don't put on. Why he is one of the best gymnasts in the country!"

"Is he? Well, I mean what I say. I don't see that he is doing anything wonderful. I believe I could do almost everything we have seen him do to-night."

"Tell that to the marines," said Will Harris of The Hue and Cry, and "Bet you ten dollars you couldn't," said George Wharton of The Daily Gong.

Frank flushed angerly. "I mean just what I say," he repeated doggedly. "You may believe me or not, just as you choose! I was thought one of the best gymnasts at college, and we had some pretty good ones, too."

"Well, you needn't get up on your ear about it,—it's easy enough to show us what you can do, if you like," said Will Harris, good-humoredly. "Legget will let us have the use of the stage after the performance is over."

So, when the curtain fell for the last time that evening, the party adjourned to the green-room, where Harris laid the case before the proprietor of "The Gardens," who readily accorded the privilege which they asked.

Although somewhat out of practice, Frank was on his mettle, and went through the trial triumphantly, to the astonishment of his comrades, and the delight of Mr. Legget, who shook hands with him enthusiastically, and offered him an engagement on the spot.

"Thank you," Frank replied; a little stiffly, although he knew that only a compliment was intended. "I am not a professional."

"But you ought to be," said Legget, "and if you ever want to go into the gymnastic line come to me."

"Thank you, but I don't think that at all likely," the young man replied with dignity.

Shortly after this, Herr Krawisky met with an accident, which, as the newspapers put it, "necessitated his temporary withdrawal from the stage," and Mr. Legget, remembering Frank's skill, sent him an offer through Harris, of the vacant situation, with a salary of fifty dollars a week.

"I wouldn't do it for a hundred!" was the indignant answer, duly repeated to Legget.

Gymnasts were at a premium just then, and it was difficult to secure a star performer. "Very well, then," said Mr. Legget, "Tell him I will make it a hundred and ten."

When this offer reached him, Frank was shaken. A hundred and ten dollars a week! It seemed like a fortune to him. Given that for six months he could pay the mortage,—for a year, and he might go home, marry Janie, and settle down on the old place.

For there is a woman in the case,—a pretty Virginia girl to whom he was engaged, and who had been his sweetheart ever since they were children. He could not remember the time when he was not in love with Janie. But matrimony seemed hopelessly far off; how could they marry on ten dollars a week and a heiratage of debt?

This offer, however, seemed to open the door to hope. Still, such a door! A Beverly, a circus-actor! That was what it was in plain language,—neither more nor less. Angels and ministers of grace defend us! What would his lady-mother say? And his father? Not to speak of the howl of horror which would surely be raised by all his friends and relatives to the remotest degree. But a hundred and ten dollars a week for an hour's work every night! The bare thought made his head swim.

"Give me untill to-morrow to think it over," he said. And since "the man," no less than the woman, "who hesitates is lost," the next day he signed the contract with Leonidas Legget for the season. He made but one stipulation, viz., that his incognito should be strictly preserved; a condition which his employer was perfectly willing to grant. Signor Francesco was a much better figure for a programme than Frank Beverly, Esq. First families in Virginia meant nothing to him nor to the people who patronized his show.

The rest of the matter was easily managed, since, being on an afternoon paper, his evenings were his own.

A curly black wig over his closely-cropped blonde hair, a heavy black moustache, and an olive stain on face and hands formed a disguise so complete that his own mother would not have recognized him,—the more that she would never have expected to find him on the stage of a variety theater.

As already stated, he was a success in his new calling. He ascended dangling ropes hand over hand, hung head downward from giddy heights, turned somersaults almost in air; and, crowning feat of all, made a flying leap through the air from one trapeze to another twenty feet away, without even the poor protection of a net spread underneath to catch him in case of an accident, a piece of fool-hardiness which added fifteen dollars a week to his salary.

At this point, Will Harris who regarded him somewhat in the light of a protege, was moved to remonstrate at the reckless risk to life and limb, but Frank laughed at the well-meant remonstrance.

"You are very good to care about it," he said, "but really there is no danger; it is only the height that makes it seem so. If the trapeze were five feet from the ground instead of forty, you would not think it anything at all. It is the apparent danger, the chance of seeing me killed, that alarms you, and pleases the people; but, in fact, it does not exist. It is all a matter of nerve and coolness, and I have both, I think."

"Yes, yes," said Harris, "but for all that you ought to be careful!"

"Careful? So I am. I diet myself like a prize-fighter, take no stimulants, except one glass of beer after the performance, and sleep my eight hours every night, regularly!"

So Will Harris yielded the point, silenced but not convinced.

Weeks passed on, growing into months, with nothing to mark them save the steadily increasing bank account which Signor Francesco placed to Frank Beverly's credit. As before, he lived on his reporter's salary, and the gymnast's wages were sacredly set apart for the future. When it should reach a fixed amount, he promised himself he would joyfully turn his face homeward, and the episode of The Grecian Gardens should be as though it had never been.

Late in August, a cousin of Frank's who had married an aunt of Janie's came north on his yearly trip to buy good for his flourishing store in a country town. The fiscal year just ended had been a prosperous one for him, and he decided to bring his wife with him, and combine pleasure with business by taking a peep at some of the great watering-places. Moreover, in a burst of generosity, he insisted that Janie, who was visiting her aunt at the time, should accompany them.

"Addie" (his wife) "will be lonesome at the hotels by herself," he urged. "I can't take her round everywhere with me, you know; so you can go for company. Then, besides, you'll see Frank. Isn't that enough inducement? Hey, Miss, what do you say to that? Ha, ha, ha!" And Janie blushing like a rose, answered that the trip would be a charming one, and that he and Aunt Addie were as good as they could be.

Reaching the city, the country merchant's first deed was to seek Frank at the office of the Evening Message, which he had no difficulty in finding. It was late in the afternoon, however, and the newsboys were crying the sixth edition on the streets; the local rooms were deserted, and the clerk in the counting room was unable to give Mr. Beverly's address. "The city editor had it, no doubt, but he unfortunately happened to be out." Therefore all that he could do was to leave a note for Frank, a note which there was no hope would reach him until the next morning, and go back to his hotel. Janie had purposely not written a word of the projected trip, intending to take her lover by surprise, so there was nothing to do but wait. There were tickets for The Grecian Gardens on sale in the office of the hotel; it kept open all summer, and indeed was even better attended then than during the winter season when all the theaters were open. Thither, then, Mr. Venable decided to take his wife and niece-in-law, neither of whom had ever seen anything of the sort. Mrs. Venable ventured a faint protest which her husband pooh-poohed.

"The place is perfectly respectable," he told her, "you will see plenty of nice people there. Besides, nobody will know you, and I am with you; so what are you afraid of?"

Thus it chanced that evening, that among the spectators who witnessed Signor Francesco's performance, was the person of whom he thought most yet whom he least expected to see.

The trapeze act came last, after his other feats had been executed amid the plaudits of the delighted audience. Cool and clear-headed he had started for the flying leap, when,—was it fate or chance?—his eyes, looking beyond the trapeze at the multitude which he was wont to say affected him no more than if they had been so many cabbage-heads, encountered the gaze of a pair of soft, brown eyes which he knew—ah, too well. Half in terror at his daring, half in puzzled effort to trace a faint resemblance, they were fixed full on him with a magnetism which drew his to them. For one instant, the blood surged madly to his brain, the steady nerves trembled; only an instant —but the harm was done. He struck out blindly for the swinging bar, missed it, and fell with a sickening thud on the stage below. Strong men groaned and turned their faces away shuddering; women shrieked, and some fainted. The two or three physicians in the audience promptly made their way behind the scenes, and for a few moments all was excitement and horror. Then the proprietor of the Gardens came forward and announced that Signor Francesco had met with a serious but not dangerous accident, the band struck up "Marching Through Georgia," and the performance went on, while behind the scenes, with his head in the lap of a kind-hearted ballet-dancer, Frank Beverly lay senseless. Will Harris bent over him anxiously, his eyes wet with manly tears. There was a slow lifting of the closed eyelids, and the sufferer said faintly, "Janie!" But she sat in the audience all unconsious that the injured gymnast was the lover, of whom at that same moment, her head and heart were full. Then recognizing his friend, "Don't let them know," he murmured feebly, and fainted from intense pain.

That a man should live after such an accident seemed impossible. Still, the creed of the Mohammedan holds that every man bears a charmed life until his hour comes, Frank's hour was not yet. His skull was fractured and his leg broken, but it chanced that the most famous surgeon of the day was in the audience, and was one of those who had rushed indistinctively to help the evening's favorite. The sufferer was taken to the hospital, and with infinite skill the broken bones were set. Youth and nature, assisted by a magnificent constitution, did the rest. For days he was unable to see any one, and Will Harris warded off Mr. Venable's inquiries with all a reporter's ingenuity.

When Frank recovered, a slight lameness was the only trace left of his terrible accident, a lameness which ended the gymnast's career, but in no way interfered with the journalist's. Eight months at the Grecian Gardens had, allowing a premium for cash, raised money enough to pay off the mortgage, and a little later Frank was promoted to a desk in the news-room. He and Janie were married and managed to live very comfortably in a modest little home in the suburbs of the city.

Signor Francesco has never been heard of by the Beverly's and Venables except as "the gymnast who fell the night Janie was at the circus." But no earthly power can induce her ever to attend such an exhibition, although she is full of tender pity for the actors.

"Poor fellows?" she says, "unfortunate victims to the depraved taste of the public, which, through their poverty, tempts them to risk their lives."

ILLUSIONS OF THE STAGE.

From the New York Star.

With the increase of the realism on the stage there is also an increase of illusions which tax the ingenuity of clever men behind the scenes, and often bewilder the most intelligent of the authors. Some of these effects that occasion an uproar of applause, and necessitate the raising of the curtain repeatedly on a fovorite tableau, are ridiculously simple. For instance, when the young hero of the modern melodrama plunges into the canvas river from the set dock in the left fourth entrance, his disappearance is marked by a dash of spray uprising in foamy drops that glitter in the glaring calcuim light the effect of this from the front is thrillingly real. If you stood at the side scene, however, and saw a rough carpenter crouching in the trap behind the set water with a handful of salt, ready to throw it up after the hero has landed on the mattress placed to receive him, you wouldn't feel so enthusiastic. The inclination would be rather to laugh than to cheer.

For some time even old stagers were puzzled by an allusion in one of the French operas as played by Aimee last season. In one of the comic scenes while the comedienne, disguised as a waitress, was pouring out tea at table on the scene, she poured it inadvertently down the neck of the dignified comedy character of the play. It seemed a boiling liquid that came from the vessel—even the steam seemed to issue from it—and yet the actor submitted to the scalding every night and showed no evil effects the next day. At last it transpired that the French property man filled the teapot with a very fine saw dust, which ran out smoothly like a liquid, a dust of its finer particles at the same time rising from the spout like steam. With the footlights between, the illusion was complete.

In nothing has the property man improved so much of late years as in the quality and effectiveness of stage lightning. Only three or four years ago the old method was adhered to. A torch with a flame surrounded by a tin box perforated with fine openings, and the box filled with powdered risin, did duty for this effect. The prompter gave a shake of this torch, the powdered resin escaped in small quantity and flared up. This was the nearest the stage could come to counterfeiting the artillery of Jove. Now a calcuim (or better, an electric) light is completely masked in the wings. When the cue is given for the lightning the light is unmasked for a second and the rays allowed to flash on to the stage through a lens of greenish glass. The effect of a blinding flash of lightning is perfect. And yet so simple? Yes; and it is the simplest things on the stage that gain the greatest success.

A favorite scenic effect is an illuminated city in the distance by night. The audience will always go wild over this—yet the effect is produced by merely cutting holes in a dark drop and keep the gas at the back of it at full head, while the burners in front of the scene are reduced to a blue glimmer. The illusion was taken out of this scene for the writer, who one evening at 6 o'clock called at a city theatre to have an interview with the manager, and finding him on the stage hacking holes with his pen-knife in a black daubed canvass hanging near the rear wall of the theatre.

"I'm making more lights in Liverpool," said he. "This scene is the biggest success of the whole piece."

The moon was a long time a puzzle to the stage folk. The best they could do was to slice a piece out of a drop diagonally and set in another movable strip on a part of which was a moon of greased muslin, with a bright light behind it. This could be hauled up or lowered, according as Luna got a cue to rise or set, but the illusion was nothing. It was too often positively ridiculous to make the device popular with either manager or actor. All cursed the moon. Lately, however, the property man has worked it on principle of the stereopticon. He throws an illuminated disc on a transparent flat from behind the scene, and thus by moving the lens can establish Luna in any quarter of the stage-firmament and make her take any course without betraying her prospective orbit to the keen-eyed critics on the other side of the footlights.

A Bowery actor travelled over the country for several years playing a drama which had no attraction but the effect of the hero being hanged by a mob. The noose was put around his neck and he was actually strung up in the sight of the audience. He even remained kicking, and submitted to three encores a night. Every one marvelled. Yet he simply wore a harness of leather and iron bands under his clothes; there was a hook at the back of the neck which was attached to the rope above the noose, and the hanged man was simply kicking astride of a cushioned seat—an iron bar which was connected with the harness by an iron band, which followed the spinal column up to the neck, terminating in the hook, which brought all the strain in the proper place for comfort.

In old times, when "Mazeppa" was the rage, the writer joined the mob in howls of wonder and delight at the spectacle of the hero's "fiery, untamed Ukraine steed" thrusting his nose to his insensible master's face and caressing him labially after his terrible ride. At a later day, when this deponent, from a coin of vantage in the second entrance, O. P., detected that Mazeppa held a carrot under his arm, and that it was not love of the hero but a taste of vegetables that actuated the noble steed, he felt sick at heart at the rude dispelling of the poetry of his boyhood.

Juliet's balcony looks real, and you imagine the lovely maid peering, indeed from a rich boudoir to moan to "the inconstant moon" for her prowling lover. But viewed from the side-scenes, with Juliet standing on a tottering ladder and growling at the grimy carpenter, who is steadying it, it is quite another thing.

The railroad train rushing by was for a long time a thrilling sensation. Yet it is simply several sections of painted canvas on framework, run across the stage in a greased groove by carpenters, and telescoping on itself when it touches the sidewall of the theatre.

The effect of scudding clouds in a storm at sea is only the dragging across the dark flat a net with guaze patches sewed on it, and touched up by the painter to resemble clouds under the uncertain light of the stage.

A fog of mist has always puzzled machinists, and puzzles them yet. The best they can do is to hang successively curtains of tarletau or mosquito netting (gauzes they call these curtains on the stage) across the stage at the different entrances, and raising them successively as the fog is supposed to disappear There is no illusion at all. It is never used except when absolutely necessary, as in "Midsummer Night's Dream," and even then is often cut out after the first night's trial.

Another great stage effect is the engulfing of a steamer at sea. Its disjointed parts roll off at the wings and sink down traps, and the surging waves, in the form of a dusty piece of canvas, called a sea-cloth, flow or are hauled down to the first entrance, and agitated in wild billows until the curtain falls to uproarious applause. The lumpy nature of the waves and their wild rolling fill the audience with wonder. The explanation, though, is ridiculous. Each wave is a super. Under this cloth are from ten to twenty (according to the extent of the ocean) of these wretched aspirants for dramatic fame, just humping themselves. According as they hump or loaf the sea is wild and tempestuous or smooth and billowy. As this scene is sure to be encored two or three times, there is no use in asking at the prompter's desk: "What are the wild waves saying?" They are swearing all the time.

The Pop-Corn Trade.

From the New York Mail and Express.

The high price of corn has somewhat discouraged the manufacturers of pop-corn, who are compelled to pay increased money for their product while disposing of their goods at almost the same figures as obtained when corn was low. One manufacturer in New York manufactures as high as 60,000 pounds of pop-corn a year. He has now on hand a single contract for shipping 1,000 to barrels London. Shipments are made regularly to Hayti, France, Breslau, Berlin, Japan, China and Italy. The Italians prefer it to macaroni, and are heavy consumers of pop-corn. "Many physicians," said the pop-corn man, "are recommending their patients to use pop-corn as a cure for dyspepsia. Several parties who are passing the summer in the Catskills have shipped a quantity by direction of their medical adviser, and now about munching it at all hours of the day. It is easy to carry about. Ladies can carry it in their dress pockets, and gentlemen can put it in their coat tail pockets. No danger of soiling anything, you knew. Children all like it and cry for more. It is far preferable to molasses and other candy."

All the manufacturers of pop-corn have grown rich. There are but nine in New York. Newark, Jersey City, San Francisco and Chicago all have one. There is one in Quebec, Montreal and Toronto. Two men in Lowell, Mass., made independent fortunes in the business. One in Springfield, Mass., distinguished himself in the same manner. Pop corn was first made in this country in 1849.

THE

DUTCH FRIESIAN

OR

HOLSTEIN!

The Best Breed of Cattle in the World.

The Dutch Friesian, or Holstein is without doubt constitutionally the most robust and vigorous race of cattle in America. It has never been pampered by over-feeding, nor weakened by direct in-breeding, and it possesses wonderful capabilities of still greater improvement at the hands of skillful breeders.

FRIESIAN'S FOR MILK.

It is generally conceded that the Dutch Friesians excel all other breeds in quantity of milk. Records of 40 to 60 pounds per day, and 7,000 to 11,000 per year for heifers with their first calves, and 60 to 90 pounds per day, and 12,000 to 18'000 pounds per year for mature cows, being quite common. No such records have been shown by other breeds.

But it is not necessary to show that Friesians, with high feeding and milking three times a day, will give from 76 to 80 pounds of milk per day. If they give from 40 to 50 pounds per day for three months, and then from 20 to 40 pounds per day for the next three months, and from 20 to 25 pounds per day for the next three months, or an average of about four gallons per day for nine months, and then gradually become dry, they are by far the most valuable milch cows in the world; and this they will do without any forcing.

FRIESIANS FOR BUTTER.

It is the opinion of those who have thoroughly tested them in comparison with others, that the Friesans will AVERAGE MORE BUTTER PER COW FOR A YEAR THAN THE AVERAGE OF ANY OTHER BREED. THE GENERAL AVERAGE of whole herds is remarkably good, as these cows hold out longer than most others. There are well authenticated records of thirteen mature cows ranging from two to three pounds per day for one to ten days. Whole number of cows tested, 13. Average time, 6 8-13 days. Average per day, per cow, over two lbs. ten oz. The highest average, twenty lbs. for seven days. Ten heifers—four three years old, and six two years—averaged two lbs., three-quarter oz. per day for a week. Thos. B. Wales' cow "Mercedes," (723) produced recently ninety-nine lbs. six oz. in thirty days—the largest yield for the time ever reported.

FRIESIANS FOR BEEF.

The Dutch cattle are large. Calves frequently weigh 100 to 130 lbs. at birth and gain nearly 100 lbs. per month till six or eight months old, and weigh from 700 to 1000, or more, at a year old. They come in early. It is the rule in Holland to have heifers come at from twenty to thirty months old. At this age they usually make a growth of from 1,100 to 1,350 pounds, and at maturity range from 1,400 to 1,800. It is no uncommon thing to see whole herds of cows, in Holland, ranging from 1,500 to 1,800 pounds. The readiness with which they take on flesh when dry is not excelled by any other breed. Bulls and steers equal short-horns in weight at same ages. Dutch Friesian steers have proved very profitable for feeding. J. S. Lang, writing from N. Vassalboro, Maine, says: "My experiments with half-bloods have been very gratifying; they outstripped all others in growth on the same feed, steers averaging in girth, at eighteen months, 6 feet 7 inches. My experiments have been conducted with care, and my conviction is, that to institute an impartial test of Holsteins and Short-horns, it would be found that the Holstein stock would cost the least per pound." As Holsteins have but recently been introduced into the West, but little has been done in testing their value strictly for beef, as the best grade bulls have been kept for breeding; but as far as they have been tried, have given good satisfaction. Half-blood steers in Illinois have attained a weight of over 1,300 pounds at two years old, and 1,900 pounds at four years old. Gray & Van Waters, West Salem, Wis., report in 1881 as follows: "We sold one yoke of half-blood Holsteins, two years and three months old, weighing 2,650. Andy McEldowny sold thirteen head of half-bloods, average age two years and three months, average weight 1,345 lbs. The man who bought them said he had bought and shipped cattle for twenty years, and they were the best lot he had ever shipped. The oldest of the thirteen was two years and four months old and weighed 1,600 pounds. They were sold to Daniel Cargle, of Sparta, and brought in Milwaukee $5.50 per 100 pounds."

TO CROSS WITH NATIVES.

The great value of the Friesian cattle as a cross on native cows is one great point in their favor. The purity of the blood, established by centuries of careful breeding gives the Friesian bull a prepotency—a power to transmit their qualites—far superior to that of any other known race. A Friesian, placed at the head of a herd of common cows, all colors, shapes, sizes and all degrees of coarseness, will reproduce his own form, color, disposition and peculiarities with such certainty that the owner may be perfectly sure beforehand that all his half-blood calves will have the marked characteristics of the Friesian cattle. The farmers of Polk County have now for the first time an opportunity to secure grade Holsteins as the thoroughbred bull has been purchased of the Northwestern Importers and Breeders Association of Minneapolis, and brought to Crookston, where he may be seen on the old Jacobus farm (south half section 8, Crookston township). As the season is considerably advanced only a limited number of cows will be allowed this year.

EVERETT

Pedigree of Everett.

Calved Jan. 9th, 1883; sire, Angus, (907, Holstein Herd Book, Imported.) EVERETT, in color is evenly variegated; head fine; neck and horns fine; shoulders low and well formed; body round and long; chine medium; hips broad; rump broad; quarters heavy; limbs fine; handling good; escutcheon best; dam, Beth, No. 1,743, H. H. B. Beth was bred by P. S. de Boer, Ostorierum, Friesland. Calved April 9th, 1880. Imported May 20th, 1881, by Wm. Koch, of New York City.

DESCRIPTION: Black predominating, shield and rumps; horns fair; head medium; neck medium; shoulders good; chin straight; hips medium; rump best; handling good; escutcheon best; milk form.

Farmers and all who are interested in getting good stock into the county are invited to call at the farm and see EVERETT.

A. N. HOPKINS,
[15-tf] Manager.

STATE TGACHERS' INSTITUTE.

An Institute for the County of Polk will be held at Crookston, during the week commencing Monday, August 18th, 1884. This institute is appointed upon the application of the State Superintendant. The law which makes generous provision for the expenses of this institute, also provides for the closing of all schools during the week and the prompt attendance of all the teachers. The plan of the institute will be to give the best instruction in the grading and discipline of the school, and in methods of teaching the branches of the common school course. The instructors will be supplied with such professional books, papers and apparatus as are needed by progressive teachers. Lectures and discussions will be appointed for several of the evenings, and no pains will be spared to fill the time with valuable exercises. A new and very full syllabus of work will be ready in time for the institutes of the season. The Superintendent will make all necessary provision for board at the most reasonable rates. Give him timely notice if you intend to be present. Work will begin promptly Monday afternoon and close Friday evening. Be on hand at the beginning. Plan to stay the entire week and let nothing prevent giving your undivided attention to its duties.

D. L. KIEHLE,
Supt. Public Instruction.
V. D. CARRUTH, County Supt.

Stewart & Lawrence are selling lumber at the following prices for cash:

1st Com. Dimensions..........$18 per M.
2d " " .... 16 "
3d " " .... 15 "
Sized $1 per M extra.
1st Com. Boards..................$18 per M.
2d " " .... 16 "
3d " " .... 15 "
Surficed side $1 per M extra.
D. stock ship-lap.................$25 per M.
E. " " .... 22 "
Common " .... 17 "
Flooring,.........................$21@$26 per M.
Siding, ...$18, $22 and $25 "
Lath.............................. 3 "
Shingles.........$2, $2.50, $3.50, $4 "

We have on hand a full stock of sash, doors, mouldings and building paper.

[15-16] STEWART & LAWRENCE.

I would say to the people of Polk County that I have on sale some of the most desirable lots in the city of Crookston.

H. W. LEWIS.
Office in JOURNAL building.

$100,000

To Loan on improved claims in sums of $250 to $2,000. Cash paid for school bonds. Call on or address,

JOHN McLEAN, Att'y at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

Mrs. I. U. Jennings has just received a large stock of Spring and Summer Millinery Goods and guarantees to sell at prices 25 per cent lower than the same goods can be purchased at any other place in the Northwest. [51-tf]

Just received a large lot of rubber, hemp and soap stone packing, for threshing machines and engines, also lace leather belting and cotton waste.

[13-15] E. M. WALSH.

Send Money by American Express or Money Orders. Receipts given. Money refunded if Orders are lost. Sold at all offices of the Company. Payable at 6,500 places. RATES: To $5-5c.: $10-8c.: $20-10c.: $30-12.: $40-15.: $50-20c. [2-27]

A good farm for sale two miles from Euclid. Seventy acres in crop. Will sell at a low figure. H. W. LEWIS.

NOTICE.

Any man investing in property at Red Lake Falls or vicinity who loses by the investment, I will pay five dollars where he looses five cents.

[3-28] ALFRED GERVAIS.

The best five cent cigars is at the Red Star Grocery, Broadway. [51-tf]

LIST OF LETTERS.

(Remaining uncalled for in the Crookston Post Office, for the week ending August 4th, 1884. Persons calling for these letters will please say "advertised."

Arton, Chas
Aaleson, Halvor
Barnes, W J
Bengtson, John
Bird, Nellie
Carlsson, Nely
Carrier, David
Delorme, Ambroise
Donohue, Patrick H
Eppenstein, S O
Engelbrektson, Ole
Elmgreen, Frank J
Flag, Jorgen Tomsen
Gauthier, Leger
Huseby, Ingebor A
Hanson, Charles
Halverson, N H
Jackson, John
Johnson, John
Johnson, Belle
Kalhan, Gunda O
Kinder, Edward
[illegible], Phillmon
Lachance, Joseph
Lescoold, Ambjor K
Larson, Ed
Lullo, Mrs Rachel
Massback, J B
McPherson, Kittie
Murphy, M F
Nilson, O N
Nygard, Ivan
Olson, Jens Martin
Oleson, Ole A
Omoth, H H
Page, Wilfred
Patterson, W H
[illegible], Ensebn
Schambourg, F
Sandolk, Johans H
Thorsgaard, Christine A
[illegible], Syen
[illegible], Mary
[illegible], Lewis
Whaley, G W

D. JACOBUS, P. M.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication August 7th, 1884.]

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Alex Allerdyce, mortgagor, to Paul C. Sletten and John Cromb, mortgagees, dated the first day of August A. D. 1882, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 25th day of August A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "H" of mortgages on page 218, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of four hundred and eighty-four 90-100 dollars, according to the terms and conditions of one promissory note of even date therewith, and whereas Paul C. Sletten one of the mortgagees above named, on the 8th day of July A. D. 1884, at the City of Crookston, in said County, died testate, and the last will and testament of said deceased, which was by the Probate Court of said County duly admitted to probate and allowed as such on July 30th A. D. 1884, appointed and constituted Olaus H. Lucken the sole executor thereof, who accepted the trust and duly qualified as such and letters testamentary under said will was then by said Court to him duly issued, and whereas an attested copy of said will was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for said Polk County on July 31st, 1884, in book "P" of deeds on pages 257 and 258, and no action or proceedings has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by the sale of the mortgaged premises, therein described, at public auction, at the front door of the Court-House, in the City of Crookston, in said County of Polk, on Saturday the twentieth day of September A. D. 1884, at 3 o'clock p. m., to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, and the costs and expenses of sale together with $25.00 attorneys fees as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure. The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold, are the pieces and parcels of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota known and described as follows, to-wit: Lots one (1.) two (2) and three (3) of block six (6) in Sletten & Cromb's subdivision of Hurlbut's addition to the townsite of Crookston according to the recorded plat thereof now on file in the office of Register of Deeds for said Polk County.

Dated August 5th A. D. 1884.

JOHN CROMB, Surviving Mortgagee.
OLAUS H. LUCKEN, Sole executor of Paul C. Sletten, deceased, mortgagee.
H. STEENERSON, Attorney for surviving and for executor of deceased mortgagee.
[15-21]

EIKEN BROS.,

Corner of Fletcher and Main Street,
Crookston, Minn.

Dealers in

HARDWARE, TIWARE,
STOVES,
—AND—
SHELFWARE.

WE KEEP A
FULL & COMPLETE
STOCK,
—AND—
Invite the Patronage
OF ALL.

THE

St. Paul, Minneapolis

—AND—

Manitoba

RAILWAY,

WITH ITS

1,400 Miles of Road

Is the only line extending through the
Park Region of Minnesota,
To all principal points in
Red River Valley,
Northern Minnesota,
Northern Dakota,
And to Devil's Lake and Turtle Mountain Districts.

—CONTAINING OVER—

9,000,000 Acres

GOVERNMENT LANDS!

The Land department of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has exclusive charge of the Company's Lands in Minnesota, and all correspondence relative to the purchase of lands, terms, description or price of any particular tract should be addressed to that department.

Maps and pamphlets describing the country and giving rates of fare to settlers, etc., mailed FREE on application.

JAS. B. POWER,
Land and Immigration Commissioner
C. H. WARREN,
General Passenger Agent,
St. P., M. & M. R'y., St. Paul, Minn.

FURNITURE STORE,

BROADWAY, CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.
P. BATAGLIA, Prop.

Keeps constantly on hand a well selected stock of Wardrobes, Bureaus, Sofas, Lounges, Bedsteads, Bed Springs, Tables, Chairs, Rocking Chairs, Stands, Ornaments, Picture Mouldings and Picture Frames. REPAIRING DONE TO ORDER. Coffins of all kinds kept constantly on hand.

A. H. DUNLOP, M. D.,

Graduate McGill University, Montreal.
LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON, QUEBEC [illegible]
Office on Robert Street, Crookston.

I have a good Hotel for sale located right in the business part of the city.
H. W. [illegible]

The Old Brick Block

IS THE PLACE
To Buy Dry Goods, Groceries. Clothing, Boots and Shoe Hats and Caps, or anything you want.

Fontaine & Anglim

IS THE FIRM

Who are ready, with a corps of affable clerks to show you their NEW FALL and WINTER STOCK and quote prices to astonish the natives.

Great Bargains

Don't forget to visit Fontaine & Anglim's Emporium, in the Old Brick Block,

MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

THE

J. I. CASE

THRESHING MACHINE COMPANY
The Dennet or Beloit
HARVESTING MACHINE COMPANY
And the Van Brunt & Davis
SEEDER COMPANY,
Are Represented
BY
STEENERSON BROS.,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

MONEY TO GIVE AWAY
IN BARGAINS AT

MARKHAM'S

THE LEADING GROCERY HOUSE
AND THE LARGEST BOOT AND SHOE STORE
IN CROOKSTON.
Goods Delivered to any Part of the City
FREE OF CHARGE

FARMERS, FARMERS,

WE ARE

Selling Lower Than Ever!

You will always find it to your advantage to

Trade with Us!

We Sell the Best for the LOWEST LIVING PRICES. Remember the place,

Broadway, bet. 2d and Robert Sts.

D. BUCHANAN.

THE NEW ERA MANUFACTURING CO.,

Exclusive manufacturers of the

NEW ERA

Wagon Road Grader!

AND DITCHING MACHINE

Manufactory 625 to 631 south Halsted street, Chicago, Illinois.

Having established our headquarters for the Red River Valley at CROOKSTON, MINN, all inquiries addressed to us will receive our personal attention. All machines fully warranted and references given upon application. All Red River Valley correspondence to the [illegible] NEW ERA MANUFACTURING CO., [illegible] Crookston, Minn.

McKINNON BROS.,

Carriage Works

Robert Street,
Crookston, - Minn.

AGENTS FOR THE
J. I. CASE THRESHING MACHINES!

And Manufacturers of Carriages, Wagons,
BUGGIES,
Cutters, Sleds, &c.
Axles, Springs, and all Repairs kept in stock,

DEALERS IN
FARM MACHINERY.

In Farm Machinery we have the Champion Seeder, Fargo Diamond Tooth Harrow, Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow, Davenport and Grand Detour Sulky and Walking Plows, Buford Gang Plows, Field Rollers of all sizes, Warrior Mowers, the leading Hay Rake and first-class Harvesters and Binders, the Webber Wagon and McKinnon Bros. Wagon, In fact we have everything in machinery, from

A Wheelbarrow to a Threshing Machine!

—EXTRAS—

For all Machines constantly on hand

E. M. Walsh,

DEALER IN

Hardware, Tinware
BAR IRON, STEEL,
BLACKSMITHS SUPPLIES,
BUILDING PAPER,
&c., &c. Also Agent
For the Celebrated Monitor Plows.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

A Big Bonanza!

JOSEPH BARRETT

Has decided to Put on the Market his

ADDITION

TO THE

City of Crookston,

Next adjoining the Crookston Driving Park. Parties desiring to purchase

—CHOICE LOST—

NOW IS YOUR TIME!

LOTS

For Sale Separately, or in
BLOCKS.

TERMS EASY!

Apply to the undersigned or at the office of C. B. Palmer, U. S. Land Office Building. Both English and French spoken.

JOSEPH BARRETT.

Polk County Journal.

Crookston, Minn., Thursday, August 7.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

GOING NORTH.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 1 Passenger	10:45 p. m.	10:55 p. m.
3 Passenger	10:10 a. m.
19 Freight	12:30 a. m.
21 Freight	4:00 p. m.
23 Freight		10:30 a. m.

GOING SOUTH.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 2 Passenger	4:00 a. m.	4:15 a. m.
4 Passenger		5:25 p. m.
20 Freight		7:00 a. m.
22 Freight		6:15 p. m.
24 Freight	5:00 p. m.

DEVIL'S LAKE LINE.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 9 Passenger		10:30 a. m.
10 Passenger	4:30 p. m.
25 Freight		6:00 a. m.
26 Freight	7:30 p. m.

ST. HILAIRE BRANCH.

Trains leave Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 10:15 a. m., and arrive same days at 4:00 p. m.

☞ Passenger Trains No's 1 and 2, Main Line, run daily except Sunday. No's 3 and 4 run daily. Devil's Lake Passenger runs daily. Freights No's 19, 20 and 24 run daily. Freights No's 13 and 22, and Freights on Devil's Lake Line run daily except Sunday.

'ROUND HOME.

H. Phelps, of Ada, registered at the Linton last Friday.

John Darco had wheat cut and in the shock last Thursday.

O. A. Ulen, of St. Hilaire, registered at the Commercial House last Thursday.

A. L. Mitchell's dog, Jim, has arrived. He is said to be one of the best broke dogs in the State.

S. W. Ritchie, formerly of this city, now of Minneapolis, is in the city this week on a business trip.

We notice among the patents granted to citizens of Minnesota for the week ending July 23d, one granted to Louis Barrette, of Crookston, for a wagon jack.

Wm. Near, of Fergus Falls, who was so badly hurt about two months ago by falling off the passenger train at Glyndon, was in the city this week. As yet he is not fully recovered.

Mr. Henry Burkhardt, of the firm of Burkhardt & Co., brewers, of this city, who resides at Wabasha, accompanied by his daughter, arrived in the city this week, and will remain here about two weeks.

Mr. Chris Anderson has recently sunk a well on the farm of Peter Noesen, nine miles southeast of the city which flows 150 barrels of water per day. The well is 113 feet deep and was put down in eight days.

On Saturday Mr. Joseph Gouche brought in a fine sample of corn, raised from seed purchased in Canada. The corn was planted during the latter part of May and now stands over nine feet high with a nicely formed ear on each stalk. Who can beat that?

Mr. Mitton, who used to run the Box Hotel, has returned to Crookston and will take charge of the Central House. Mr. Mitton is an old hotel man and knows how to treat his guests. His son, Robert, will probably have the management and there is no doubt but that they will do a good business.

We are sorry to say that the ameteur base ball club of our city, who went to Red Lake Falls last week to play a match game were beaten. The score was 31 to 21 in favor of Red Lake Falls. The score would naturally tend to make people believe that neither club have practiced very much this season.

P. Shiras, W. M. Shiras and A. T. Sharpe, of Ottawa, Kansas, who have been making a tour through the Northwest, were in our city last week. These gentlemen are old friends of Wm. Box, who showed them around the city. They are very much pleased with this Northwestern country and of Crookston and vicinity in particular, and say that we have the finest city and the finest country back of it that they have seen anywhere on their trip.

A man by the name of Millette was drowned about one and one-half miles northwest of this city last Saturday evening, about 7 o'clock. It seems that he has been at work for James Westover most of the time for the past four or five years. Last Saturday evening he, accompanied by Westover and another man, went down to the river a short distance from the house to set out a fish line. When they reached the river, Millette and the other man went out in a boat to take the line, Westover remaining on shore. While on their way out the boat commenced to sink and they both jumped into the river, but the water was not very deep. Millette had an ax with him with which he intended to drive a stake out in the river where they had got out as far as the line would reach in order to tie it. After they jumped out the boat came to the top of the water and Millette handed the ax to the other man and started after the boat. It seems that they told him to come back, but he would not and kept on until he got away about [illegible] down the river and the [illegible] drive the stake [illegible] boat and [illegible] but instead of [illegible] channel where [illegible]

The young folks party given at Ericsson's Hall last Friday evening was one of the pleasantest parties we have ever had the pleasure of attending. There were about thirty-five couple present and everybody seemed to enjoy themselves. The managers deserve a great deal of credit for the way in which everything was managed.

Maple Lake.

Ada Index: On Saturday morning last a party of nine visited Maple Lake, Polk County, on a fishing excursion returning the following evening. The party consisted of Mesdames S. B. and O. E. Cragin, Miss Emma Cragin, and Messrs. S. B. Cragin, O. E. Cragin, Frank Taylor, James A. Cragin, and C. W. Foote. Upon arriving at the lake they repaired at once to the residence of W. N. Godfrey, where everything was done by that gentleman to make their stay there a pleasant one. Maple Lake is without doubt one of the finest places in northern Minnesota for spending a few days in camping, fishing and hunting. Boats can easily be procured at a trifling cost and at almost any point on the lake a suitable place for camping may be found. The scenery in the vicinity is of the finest kind, the country being rolling and well supplied with timber of all kinds. The fishing is good as is also the hunting. Two years ago Mr. Godfrey received 2,400 salmon which he placed in the lake but has allowed no one to fish for them as yet. Next year persons visiting the lake will be allowed the privilege of fishing for these fish. A good-sized hotel will be erected upon the bank of the lake this winter and preparations made to accommodate all who may visit the lake hereafter. We predict for this place a brilliant future as a resort for parties wishing to spend a few days in enjoying the novelty of camping.

SAVED THE SHEEP.

But Lost His Own Life in Doing so—A Farmer Killed by a Manitoba Train Near St. Albans—The Remains Identified.

Evening Journal: The 8:30 Minnetonka train over the Manitoba road this morning, brought to Minneapolis the mangled remains of an unknown man who was run over by the cars at a point this side of St. Albans station, some ten miles out. The train was in charge of Conductor Woodnough, and driven by engineer Kelly, on locomotive No. 49. It appears that at the point where the accident occurred there is a curve in the double track. Here the unfortunate victim, who was apparently 70 years of age, was endeavoring to get a drove of sheep away from in front of the rapidly approaching train. He was seen to stop, and the engine ran him down, nearly severing both legs from his body, and crushing off the entire back of his head, death resulting instantly. It is claimed that all due caution was taken by the engineer, and that it was plain the victim came to his death by his own carelessness. Several of the sheep were killed. The coroner took charge of the remains upon their arrival in the city and caused them to be removed to the morgue, where an inquest will be held as soon as witnesses can be secured. The remains were identified by A. O. Butler, a farmer living on the Cedar Lake road. He says the dead man's name was Rowland, and that he came to this country in May, from Buffalo, N. Y. to visit his son, Herman Rowland, who has a slaughter house out near St. Albans. Rowland, Sr., was very deaf, and probably did not hear the approaching train.

Fargo Argus: As the canvass progresses the fact that the bourbons have a genius for blundering that never forsakes them, becomes more apparent. A few years ago it was conceded in all intelligent quarters the only chronic fatuity of the party in kicking over the lacteal fluid as that bucket filled could cause its defeat at the autumnal assizes of '84. Republicans freely admitted that the popular current was against them and could be reversed by the stupidity of the Democrats alone. At the same time they taunted them with the assertion that they would not fail to blunder, to the relief of the Republicans. This the Democrats commenced to do at the late session of congress. They insisted on bringing the tariff question to the front in the most obnoxious way, and throwing their forces into the heat of a most furious wrangle. This was chronic stupidity number one. Passing minor evidences of lack of capacity and wise policy, they came to Chicago in July and consumated the crowning blunder by an arbitrary and tyrannical enforcement of the unit rule, thereby forcing upon the party a political non-enity, an accident, a man of the narrowest guage, without general experience, unknown to the country, who had never done the party service. In the face of the most vehement protests of the shrewdest men who realized and declared the enormity of the stupidity being perpetrated at the syren voice of a little faction of Republican dudes and soreheads, all the deserving veteran statesmen leaders who had for long, weary years borne the brunt of the adverse contest, and had laboriously earned whatever honors the party could bestow, were pushed to the rear, and this man Cleveland nominated. The experience of 1872 should have been to them an ineffaceable lesson of the folly of bidding for the support of the disaffected in other parties at the expense of the integrity of their own lines. Cleveland was nominated because he was not a representative Democrat, was least of all the names before the convention identified with the policies and history of the party, and was demanded by the too-good sentimentalists who had not been allowed to emasculate the Republican party. The Republican party at the June convention shows itself a party of courage and is true to itself. It disregarded the threats of the namby pamby that hung upon the outskirts with their little snappers. It bravely responded to the demands of the masses and placed the party ensign in the hands of men who were the choice of [illegible] deserting by the wholesale, and a repetion of 1872 promises to overtake the party. Had they taken one of the sturdy old war horses like Thurman, they might not have carried the election, but they would have kept their ranks solid and had a reasonable hope of success. Had they been beaten they would at least have escaped the imputation of having failed through their own assinine blunder.

To The Public.

We wish to state to the people of Crookston and vicinity, that we have purchased the stock of groceries owned by J. L. Bailey, on Broadway, opposite the post office. We purpose to carry on the trade at the old stand, and will keep on hand, at all times, a fresh stock of groceries, provisions, etc., and we ask a share of the patronage of the generous public.

[5-tf.] BAUSCHMAN & MILETTE.

NOTICE.

As I still own my share of Crookston Nurseries, and purpose to continue the business, I will announce to our former customers and all that are desirous of obtaining trees and Plants the coming spring that I will sell said stock at prices below any competition. Call and see me before making purchase elsewhere. Residence on second block north of Court House, or address P. O. Box 754.

Most Respectfully,

[88-tf] E. W. HASELTINE.

To Rent.

Ready for grain in the spring 100 acres on Section 12 Township 148 Range 46 and 250 acres on Section 11 Township 148 Range 46. Both track have a good house and barn. Apply to

PETER CORNELIUS,
Crookston, Minn.

[88-tf]

PIANO TUNING.

Any parties having pianos or organs that need tuning or repairing can have their work satisfactorily done by leaving orders at the Linton House. Satisfaction guaranteed.

[9-tf] E. F. WHEELDEN.

John Knuppe.

General Agent in the Red River Valley of the Netherlands American Land Company of Amsterdam, Holland.

Money to loan on good real estate security, on time to suit the borrower. Office over Merchant's Bank. [1-tf]

Money to Loan.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS to loan on improved farms from THREE to FIVE years time at very reasonable rates. Apply at my office on Broadway, in U. S. Land Office building.

[14tf] H. STEENERSON.

Just received. A car-load of Buggies selected by an experienced carriage-builder all warranted. Call early and select one. McKinnon Bros.

The United States Internal Revenue Special Tax is due May 1st. Any information and a full line of blanks can be had by calling on or addressing.

JOHN McLEAN,
Attorney at Law,
Crookston, Minn.

[47-tf]

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication July 31st, 1884.]

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Joseph Piquette, a married man, and Mary Piquette, his wife mortgagors, to John Cromb, mortgagee, dated the 27th day of October A. D. 1882, and recorded as a morgage, together with the power of sale therein contained in the office of the Register of Deeds, of the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on the 31st day of October A. D. 1882, at ten o'clock and twenty-five minutes a. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 350, which said mortgage authorized the holder thereof in case of such default to declare due and foreclose the same for the whole amount secured to be paid thereby, and whereas there is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the amount of five hundred ninety-one and 25-100 dollars ($591.25-100) being the whole amount secured to be paid thereby and still unpaid, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof and whereas by such default the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become and is operative.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of such power of sale contained in and recorded with said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises herein described, which sale will be made at the west front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county or by his Deputy, on Saturday the 13th day of September A. D. 1884, at ten o'clock in the forenoon to satisfy the amount that shall then be due on said mortgage with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold are all that tract or parcel of land lying and being in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and described as follows, to-wit: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section twenty-one (21,) in Township number one hundred and fifty (150) north of Range number forty-four (44) west, of the fifth principal meridian, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres, according to the United States government survey thereof.

Dated Crookston July 31st 1884.

JOHN CROMB,
Mortgagee.

JOHN LEO,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [14-20]

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Polk. } ss. In Probate Court.

In the matter of the estate of Paul C. Sletten deceased.

Notice is hereby given to all persons having claims and demands against the estate of Paul C. Sletten late of the County of Polk deceased, that the Judge of the Probate Court of said County will hear, examine, and adjust claims and demands against said estate, at his office in the City of Crookston, in said County, on the first Monday of each month, and that six months from the 11th day of August 1884, have been limited and allowed by said Probate Court for creditors to present their claims.

Dated this 30th day of July A. D. 1884.

OLAUS H. LUCKEN,
Executor of the estate of Paul C. Sletten deceased.

ROBERT J. MONTAGUE,
Judge of Probate. [15-18]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., July 5th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given, that the following-named settler has filed notice of her intention to make final proof in support of her claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Aug. 15th, 1884, viz: JOHAN GUDMUNDSEN, Pre. D. S., No. 8664, for the ne¼ S. 20, T. 148, R. 44. She names the following witnesses to prove her continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Andrew Anderson, Hulbert Anderson, Richard Olson, Even Brindleson, all of Fertile, Polk Co., Minn.

[11-15] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., July 7th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given, that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston [illegible]

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Arthur Perras, mortgagor, to John Cromb, mortgagee, dated the 31st day of October A. D. 1882, and recorded as a mortgage together with the power of sale therein contained in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 31st day of October A. D. 1882 at 3 o'clock and 40 minutes p. m., in book "H" of mortgages on page 352 which said mortgage authorized the holder thereof in case of such default to declare due and foreclose the same for the whole amount secured to be paid thereby, and whereas, there is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice, the amount of four hundred and sixty-six and 66-100 dollars, being the whole amount secured to be paid thereby, and still unpaid and seven and 85-100 dollars taxes paid by mortgagee, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, and whereas by such default the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become and is operative.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of such power of sale contained in, and recorded with said mortgage and of the statute in such case made and provided the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the west front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said County or by his Deputy of said County, on Saturday the 16th day of August A. D. 1884, at ten o'clock in the forenoon to satisfy the amount that shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon and costs and expenses of sale and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure. The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold, are the lot piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The east half (e½,) of the northwest quarter (nw¼,) and the west half (w½,) of the northeast quarter (ne¼,) of Section number fourteen (14,) in Township number one hundred and fifty (150) north, of Range number forty-two (42) west, of the fifth principal meridian, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less according to the United States government survey thereof.

Dated Crookston July 3d, 1884.

JOHN CROMB,
Mortgagee.

JOHN LEO,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [10-16]

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication July 3d, 1884.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of ninety-two and 75-100 dollars ($92.75-100,) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by James Ryan, a single man, to James Barton, bearing date the 11th day of December A. D. 1883, and, with a power of sale therein contained duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on the 11th day of December A. D. 1883, at 6:25 o'clock p. m., in book "N" of mortgages, on page 319, that an action at law in which said James Barton was plaintiff, and said James Ryan was defendant, was instituted in the District Court, in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on March 14th, 1884, to recover said debt and that on June 26th, 1884, a judgment was duly rendered in said action for the sum of $102.81 in favor of the plaintiff therein, and against the defendant therein, which said judgment was on the 26th day of June 1884 duly entered in the office of the Clerk of said Court, and that on the 26th day of June 1884 an execution was duly issued from said court in said action and that on June 28th 1884, said execution was returned wholly unsatisfied, and that said sum of $102.81 is now justly due and owing from the defendant in said action to the plaintiff therein.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: Lot number nine (9,) in block number two (2,) in Hurlbut's addition to the townsite of Crookston, according to the recorded plat thereof now on file in the office of the Register of Deeds of Polk County, Minnesota, also an undivided one-half (½) of lot ten (10) in block twelve (12) in Davis Addition to the townsite of Crookston, according to the recorded plat thereof now on file in the office of the Register of Deeds, of Polk County, Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 16th day of August A. D. 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated Crookston, June 28th, 1884.

JAMES BARTON,
Mortgagee.

JOHN McLEAN,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [10-16]

Notice of Mortgage Sale by Advertisement.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Theophile Patnode and Cordelia Patnode, his wife, mortgagors, to John Cromb, mortgagee, dated the fourth day of September A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of September A. D. 1882, at 1:45 o'clock p. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 248 on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of fifty-six and 17-100 dollars, and there is yet to become due thereon four hundred and twenty-five dollars and no action or proceeding, has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction by the Sheriff of said County, on Saturday the 30th day of August A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold, are the lots, pieces or parcels of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: Lots number four (4) eleven (11) and twelve (12,) and the southeast quarter (se¼) of the southeast quarter (se¼,) all in Section number eighteen (18,) in Township number one hundred and fifty-one (151) north, of Range number forty-three west, of fifth principal meridian, containing one hundred and seventeen (117) acres more or less according to the United States survey thereof.

Dated July 2d, 1884.

JOHN CROMB.
Mortgagee.

MONTAGUE & WIGHT,
Attorney's of Mortgagee. [10-18]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., June 26th, 1884.

Complaint having been entered at this office by George Wellington against George W. Lewis for abandoning his Homestead Entry No. 7338, dated May 26th, 1882, upon the se¼ S. 22, T. 154, R. 46 in Polk County, Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry; the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 21st day of August 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged abandonment.

JOHN CROMB, Register.
P. C. SLETTEN, Receiver.

[10-15]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., July 1st, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Aug. 20th, 1884, viz: WILLIAM CUNNINGHAM, H'd Nos. 878, 2555, for the ne¼ S. 26, T. 151, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon, and cultivation of said land, viz: Elias Phillips, James Westover, D. F. McDonald and Christ Nelson, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[10-15] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., July 3d, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on August 26th, 1884, viz: MATHIAS TOLEFSON DAHL, D. S., No. 6851, for the n½ se¼ and lots 6 and 7, S. 7, T. 147, R. 43. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Peter Riskoll, Jorgen Flaten, Mars Jenson and Frank Mogul, all of Aldal, Polk Co., Minn.

[10-15] JOHN CROMB, Register.

W. L. Sargeant
Veterinary Surgeon.
CROOKSTON, MINN.
[illegible]

N. F. CHINIQUY'S

Chicago Dry Goods House.

JUST RECEIVED,

Full Lines Of

Dress Sstins, Lawns, Organdies.
Percales, Cambrics, Buntings, Piques
Marsailles, Prints, Embroideries.
Gloves, Hosiery, Handkerchiefs.
Hoop Skirts, Bustles, Corsets.
Parasols, Collars, Cuffs, Ruchings.
Lacesand Lace Goods, Gauze.
Underwear, Etc., Etc., Etc.
Cretonnes and Fringes.
Gent's Furnishing Goods.

The above goods were bought late in the season at very Low Prices and I will make it an aim to sell those goods very cheap,

No Trouble TO Show Goods

At N. F. CHINIQUY'S

Chicago Dry Goods Store.

JEROME'S ADDITION

TO THE

CITY OF CROOKSTON

IS NOW

Offered for Sale

This is the finest Residence Property in the City. High and dry, good cellars, water, and well sheltered. Enclosed on three sides by the river, and only three blocks from the heart of the city and Post Office.

Pure Drugs, Reliable Medicines,

LOWEST LIVING PRICES,

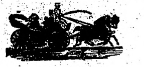
AT

Medical Hall,

CROOKSTON,

Beecher & George, Prop's.

E. D. Schreader



LIVERY,

Feed and Sale Stable.

BEST TURNOUTS
IN THE CITY.

Single or Double Rigs, with or without driver or

SADDLE HORSES

Always ready at a moments notice by day or night. If you want a Nobby Turnout call at the Red Barn, Corner Main and Third Streets,

CROOKSTON, - - - MINNESOTA.

BROADWAY

Meat Market.

FRANK JEROME & CO.,
Fresh and Salt Meats
OF ALL KINDS
VEGETABLES
In their season. All goods delivered if requested.

Crookston Tonsorial
PARLORS.
PROF. THOMPSON, Proprietor.
Robert Street, - - - - - Crookston, Minn.

Shaving, hair dressing and all work in my line promptly attended to the latest style of the art. Give me a call.

Christening and Wedding Cakes Made upon Shortest Notice in the Best Style.

A Choice and Well Selected Stock of Confectionery Always on hand.

John Crawford & Son,
Proprietors of

Crawford's Bakery,

SECOND STREET,
Crookston, Minn.

CONFECTIONERY
Fresh Bread, Buns, Cakes and Biscuits. All Articles in the Fancy Baking Line.

NEW
DRUG STORE
IN GARFIELD
DR. A NELSON, Prop.

The citizens of this town and vicinity are respectfully invited to call at my new Drug Store in the town of Garfield and examine my stock of

DRUGS, MEDICINES, PAINTS, OILS AND YANKEE NOTIONS.

It is no longer necessary to go 40 or 55 miles for anything in this line, as I have a full supply at prices as reasonable as any town in the Northwest. Call and see

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON

I am also ready to answer all calls by day or night, for the practice of my profession. Call, or leave orders at my Drug Store in Garfield, Polk Co., Minn.

DR. A. NELSON.

NEW LIVERY,
Feed and Sale
STABLES.,
CORNER MAIN AND FOURTH STS.,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINNESOTA.
TERRY & COLLINS, Prop's.

☞ Good Turnouts at all times a reasonable prices. Good Hearse and careful driver when needed.

Fortier's Place,

Corner Broadway and Robert Street

EVERYTHING — NEW, NEAT
—AND NOBBY.—

Billiards, Pool, and the Choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars. The purest High Proof Whiskies at wholesale prices
PURE IMPORTED GOODS ON DROUGHT.

A BARGAIN.

A choice business location on Broadway 100x140 feet, for sale at a bargain. For particulars address the JOURNAL.

The Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Proprietor. DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. TERMS---$1.50 Per Annum.

VOL. VIII. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, AUGUST 7, 1884. NO. 15

Polk County Journal.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance, to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

ADVERTISING RATES.

SPACE.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	2 m	6 m.	1 year
½ inch	50	$1 00	$1 15	$1 50	$3 00	4 50	$ 6 00
1 inch	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	5 50	6 00	10 00
2 inches	1 50	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 50	9 50	15 00
3 inches	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	9 50	13 50	20 00
4 inches	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 50	10 00	10 00	25 00
5 inches	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 50	20 00	30 00
¼ column	3 50	5 50	5 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	35 00
½ column	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	20 00	35 00	50 00
1 column	9 50	12 50	15 00	18 00	35 00	60 00	100 00

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

Republican Ticket.

For President,
JAMES G. BLAINE,
of Maine.
For Vice President,
JOHN A. LOGAN,
of Illinois.
For Representative in Congress,
HON. KNUTE NELSON,
of Alexandria.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS' MEETING.

At a regular session of the Board of County Commissioners, commencing on the 28th day of July 1884. All members being present, on motion the meeting was declared open and the following business transacted.

Minutes of last session were read and on motion approved.

Petition for changing the boundaries of school district No. 55, was presented and on motion a hearing was ordered to be given the parties in interest at the next session of the Board.

The petition for changing the boundaries of school district No. 83 was rejected on account illegality, it appearing from the affidavit of Geo. Goodrich, Esq., that a majority of the freeholders who are legal voters residing in said district failed to sign said petition.

A hearing having been given in the matter of the petition of J. O. Sargent, asking that his farm, to-wit: nw¼ section 6, township 148, range 47, be detached from school district No. 74 and attached to school district No. 68, on motion the same was granted, and said territory ordered detached from district No. 74 and attached to No. 68.

The petition of K. K. Knutsen, asking that his farm be detached from school district No. 4 and attached to school district No. 93 was received and a hearing set at next session of the Board.

School district No. 27 was organized, comprising the following territory, south half of sections 7, 8, 9 and all of sections 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32 and 33, in township 154, range 44.

The north half of sections 7, 8 and 9, in township 154, range 44, were attached to school district No. 127.

School district No. 128 was organized comprising the following territory, all of township of Knute except sections 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 which were attached to said district for taxable purposes.

School district No. 129 was organized, comprising sections 19, 20, 21, 28, 29 and 30, in township 151, range 48.

Township 149, range 41 was organized and named "Wergeland." First town meeting to be held at the house of J. O. Manger on the 19th day of August 1884, O. Harneman, Albert A. Eide and Ole Peterson were appointed judges and J. O. Manger and S. M. Turner clerks of said election.

Township 148, range 40 was organized and named "Brandsvold." First town meeting to be held at the house of N. Lewis on the 19th day of August 1884. Ole E. Sallire, E. Love and John V. N[illegible]on were appointed judges and K. N. [illegible]andsvold and John Evensen clerks [illegible] election.

[illegible] motion the auditor was directed [illegible] a refunding order in favor of [illegible]ausdell for $22.00, being the [illegible] of personal taxes paid in error [illegible]ansdell in Brislot township for [illegible] 1882.

[illegible] county treasurer was directed to [illegible] the amount due the State of [illegible]sota for text books, being the [illegible] of $1,305.63, which amount is hereby appropriated out of the county revenue fund.

The application of Geo. Brunelle for abatement of taxes was granted.

The county attorney was directed to enforce collection of all amounts due the county by ex-justice Leo and justice Shephard and Hazen.

The petition for changing the boundaries of school distict No. 2 was rejected on account of illegallity.

On motion the sum of $100 was appropriated out of the poor fund for the purpose of defraying expenses in [illegible] Mrs. LaPlante and five children ([illegible] family) out of [illegible] county to Montreal, Canada.

Petition for abatement of taxes on ne¼ ne¼ section 13, township 151, range 50, was granted.

On motion the contract for building a vault was awarded to August Keoppe at $984, said vault to be completed on before Oct. 1st 1884. Mr. A. Keoppe was requested to furnish a good and approved bond in the penal sum of $2,000 conditional on the faithful performance of said contract.

The following liquor bonds were approved and liquor license granted until May 1st 1885, to-wit:

John Jarvis, Grand Forks township.
John McLean, Mallory.
Phil Fountain, Carman.
Telisphore Robellard, Lake Pleasant.
Charles Rauch, Euclid.
Peter Gilly, Grand Forks.
Wm. H. Peninger, Grand Forks.

The petition of H. Tharaldson and others for building a road on the west line of the county was rejected.

On petition of H. C. Rhenchart and others for aid to build a bridge in Higdem township, the sum of $500 was appropriated and the chairman authorized to issue his order for said amount when the committee, Messrs. Sullivan and Bradish, report to said chairman that said bridge is fully completed.

On motion the sum of $500 was appropriated for the purpose of building roads and culverts in the 13 townships under the supervision of commissioner Nelson.

The county treasurer presented a report of delinquent taxes which was accepted.

The application of S. L. Farnsworth was referred back for correction.

The Board visited the office of O H. Lucken, Esq., county treasurer and counted and ascertained the amount of monies and etc., on hand and found the following correct, to-wit:

Deposited in Merchants' Bank	$ 13,917 38
" in First National Bank	13,269 98
Left on hand State Remittance	9,056 21
Town and school orders	907 49
Polk County orders	21 75
Currency, silver, pennies and nickels	12 60
Total	$ 37,195 41

The auditor was instructed to advertise for bids for services as county overseer of the poor for one year. Also to advertise for bids from physicians treating the poor of the third commissioner district.

The chairman and auditor were appointed a committee to purchase fuel for the coming winter. The claims of J. Sullivan, M. Sullivan, J. D. Peasley, H. N. Massey and Miss Augusta A. Johnson were rejected.

The claim of Charles Hollinger was referred back for correction.

An itemized estimate of county expenses having been made and duly filed with the county auditor the following levy of taxes on each dollar of taxable property in the county, was made for the current year, to-wit:

For county revenue purposes	5 mills.
" county poor	2 "
" bond interest and sinking fund	3 "
" general school purposes	1 "

The following bills were audited and allowed:

John Morris delinquent tax list blanks	$33 00
Thompson & Johnson, mdse for a pauper	12 89
Walker & Wetzer, blank case for Probate offic	30 00
W. A. Franklin, assessors wages	5 00
Hick & Gallasch, mdse court house and jail	12 45
C. L. Brainerd, surveyor's fees	20 00
D. O. Terry, work at jail	3 00
O. M. Holmes, printing and stationery	820 18
V. D. Carruth, postage and express charges
Stewart & Lawrence, lumber	74 47
M. P. Losey, assessing	48 00
H. Helgeson, "	86 00
O. Olson, at. on paupers	26 00
Peter Lorge, ice for court room	6 30
M. Van Dyke, witness fees	1 12
F. W. Peasley, constable fees	6 90
Mrs. A. J. Smith, witness fees	8 16
G. W. Lewis, justice fees	1 25
Henry Sheppard, constable fees	5 30
John Ross, monies paid to ass't janitor	7 50
P. LeMay, assessing	66 00
C. B. Rookwood, services as viewer	27 00
John N. Estle, witness fees	4 04
Ira Brengeman, " "	1 24
O. M. Ohle, juror fees, jus. court	50
J. D. Peasley, " "	50
B. Murphy, witness fees	1 24
Willie Price, " "	1 00
O. J. Lingwood, juror fees	50
J. Chandler, witness fees	1 00
D. C. Hallock, justice fees	3 45
John Waterstront, services assisting jailor	45 00
O. Christianson, jurors fees in justice court	50
Ole Hoghwich, brd'g a pauper	85 46
H. R. Nolan, use of pile ham'r	20 00
Ole S. Omdale, witness fees	2 24
W. F. Zwickey, sheriff's fees	56 50
" " "	174 90
" " "	25 70
" " "	69 81
" " "	38 40
" " "	73 20
D. Dwyer, Sheriff's fees, claim of $12, allowed at	7 45
D. Dwyer, Sheriff's fees, claim $14.40, allowed at	9 20
D. Dwyer, Sheriff's fees, claim of $9.90, allowed at	4 55
Ed Charbonneau, Sheriff's fees	22 00
" witness "	1 12
Dr. A. Nelson, med services	79 75
J. LeMieux, charges on books	1 25
" boarding a pauper	5 00
Thompson & Johnson, mdse to paupers	45 00
O. H. Lucken, postage and stationery	80 60
O. M. Holmes, printing	6 60
Lewis & Durand, labor at jail	28 00
H. E. Cooke, stationery	23 50
G. W. Lewis, justice fees	4 50
John Alderman, constable fees	67 60
W. R. Dunn, stationery	71 00
Pioneer Press Co., books and stationery	319 66
Catharine Larson, witness fees	5 60
W. S. Booth, books	24 30
Chas Haman, brd'ng prisoners	88 77
J. W. Lilly, justice fees	59 80
John A. Dowling, work on county bridge	11 50
Andrew Halvorson, wit. fees	1 12
Thos Patterson, justice fece	7 70
Wm. Cunningham, wit. fees	6 00
Daniel Patterson, constable fees	10 85
Ingebret Ness, boarding pauper	30 25
M. R. Brown, 4 days com work	12 00
" team hire	3 00
" cash paid to paupers	2 00
" 5 days serv's Co. Board	15 00
E. A. Bradish, " "	17 40
K. Nelson, " "	18 60
T. Sullivan, " "	20 70
P. J. McGuire 1 day's "	3 00
T. Sullivan, Committee work	13 20
M. R. Brown, 5 days services attending paupers	15 00
E. A. Bradish, 3 days services attending paupers	9 00
E. A. Bradish, committee work	14 00
P. J. McGuire, postage and express chargee	31 95

The Board selected the following names for grand and petit jurors to add to the present list in compliance with Sec 98, Chap. 8, Revised Statutes to-wit:

GRAND JURORS.

F. T. Haseltine,	L. S. Stone,
S. F. Markham,	T. G. Olson,
Andrew Eiken,	T. Bowman,
A. C. Rhinehart,	F. J. Detling,
Thos. Kelley,	John Moser,
K. D. Opheim,	John Hack,
Geo. Goodrich,	J. T. Sullivan,
J. W. Howe,	A. Henning,
Tollef Nelson,	E. Cryderman,
C. J. Tolves,	S. Ormiston,
A. J. Sprague,	Thos. Erwin,
Geo. H. Erwin,	Henry Nesbit.

PETIT JURORS.

Thos. Hunter,	J. Johnson,
Dan Brady,	G. Evans,
F. Dangerfield,	Wm. Carleton,
John G. Tenny,	H. A. Gullickson,
A. Finlayson,	John Scott,
S. A. Ofstedahl,	John Peterson,
K. Sohler,	J. McDonald,
Chas. Halverson,	John Coultier,
E. Steenerson,	W. H. Franklin,
O. A. Thoreson,	Chas. Robbeke,
Z. M. Hunt,	Edward LeBree.

On motion the two rooms situate in the northwest corner of court room were designated for the use of the Register of Deeds after the vault is completed, and the room now occupied by the Register to be used thereafter by the clerk of the District Court.

The Chairman was directed to superintend the placing of cells in the county jail.

Board adjourned till Oct. 1st, 1884, at 9 o'clock a. m.

P. J. McGuire, Clerk.

We clip the following from the Wahpeton (D. T.) Mercury: "Landlord Mitton, one of the most popular hotel proprietors Wahpeton has ever had, has decided to locate at Crookston, Minn. Friend Mitton, when not running a hotel is like a fish out of water, and we knew it would not be long before he again entered into the business. He is now the proprietor of the Grand Central at the above place, one of the finest hotels there. Our loss is the people of Crookston's gain, and we are not selfish enough to refrain from congratulating them on having an acquisition to their army of landlords, which they will never regret. We wish Mr. Mitton every success."

Mr. A. F. Sharpe, editor and proprietor of the Ottawa Daily Republican, of Ottawa, Kansas, made us a very pleasant call last Friday. Mr. Sharpe has made quite an extended trip through the Northwest during the past thirty days, and is particularly pleased with Crookston, and claims that it has the best prospects of any city in the Red River Valley.

Saved by Swallowing.

Cause of the Convalescence and Cure of a Bad Case.

Rochester Post-Express: It was midnight.

Outside the storm sped its fury in the awful darkness, which was relieved at intervals by fitfull and startling streaks of lightning.

Inside the chateau all was excitement. Servants were hurrying to and fro and light-footed attendants sped noiselessly from room to room.

The master of the house lay on the sickbed, his frame racked with fever. At intervals he would rise from the bed, clutch his throat as if in great agony, and fall back exhausted into the pillows.

There were physicians gathered about him, but their skill was of no avail. The fever was at its height. It was left to nature to cure or kill.

Hours passed on.

It was still midnight.

The sufferer showed signs of sinking into the sleep that precedes death. As a last resort the doctors administered a powerful medicine.

The sick man rallied, clutched his throat again and again, and with a sigh of relief sank back once more.

From that moment the doctors knew the patient's life was saved.

John Kelly had swallowed the nomination.

The Democratic Platform.

By newspaper reports the platform is an oracle that talks with stammering lips and a double tonuge, especially on the one active issue—the tariff.

It is a "horizontal' platform, with a sloping jump off on one side to appease protectionists. In other words, plain English—it is DAMNABLE NONSENSE.

We are puzzled Straightforward talk we know The talk we hear around us we do not know.

As at present advised we do not see how Mr. Cleveland, with his record, can hope to carry the vote of the State of New York. Except the presentation of things change, we will have to deplore the nomination of Mr. Cleveland.—[Freemans Journal (New York.)

The World's Exposition.

The World's Exposition that is to be opened at New Orleans, is so far perfected in all its departments that it is now in order to state that it will be the largest world's fair ever held. The buildings are larger than those erected for the Philadelpeia centennial. The exhibits out-number those of any previous exposition. Each of the States, except, possibly, one or two, will be represented by an exhibit. Congress has made a loan of $1,000,000 in favor of this centennial exposition. The United States government will make a special exhibit, the largest it has ever attempted, costing hundreds of thousands of dollars, and to that end a mammoth building is being erected in the group of exposition buildings. The Mexican government has appropriated $200,000, and will erect a special building for its unique display. The Central American republics have at last been aroused from their long slumber and will be fully represented for the first time among the great nations of the earth. At the exposition one may learn more about the natural resources of those regions than by an ordinary visit to Mexico or Central America. To lovers of music a visit to the exposition will be highly gratifying as there is a music hall capable of seating 11,000 persons and a stage large enough to hold 600 musicians. Grand concerts will be given during the season. Beside this the fact ought to be known that New Orleans is the only city in the Union that has had an established opera during half a century. Nor is this all. Strangers think themselves well paid by making a visit of pleasure to the quaint old city at any time. During the carnival season tens of thousands of visitors flock to the Crescent city to see the gorgeous pageants prepared annually at an expense to the citizens of from $100,000 to $200,000. This lavish expenditure of money is for the gratification of strangers and home folks, and the displays are absolutely free. The citizens of the southern metropolis who do such large things, in such a large way, have pledged their word to make their World's Fair the crowning event of the century, and they will do it.

One More Unfortunate.

Ada Index: It is with pleasure that the Index this week chronicles the marriage of Dr. F. T. Koyl and Mrs. Emma Hardy. The ceremony took place on Saturday evening last at the Ada House, and was witnessed by a small circle of intimate friends, Rev. J. A. Wells officiating. The newly married couple will at once occupy the dwelling of M. J. Dunlap. We extend our hearty congratulations and wish the happy couple a pleasant journey through the remainder of their lives.

NEW YORK STORE!

DON'T OVERLOOK THIS!

IT WILL PAY YOU TO CALL AND SEE THE STOCK OF DRY GOODS!

AT THE NEW YORK STORE.

Prices Way Down!

☞ Our stock of Boots and Shoes is Complets,

Bargains will bc the order of the day. The nimble sixpence will fly around quickly. Profits we are not after, but our stock must and shall be reduced,

☞ e shall offer Speial Inducements in Black Silks. We have a drive in Corsets that we wish to close at 60c. Good value at 75c,

We have Every Kind in

DRY GOODS, NOTIONS,
BOOTS AND SHOES, SHIRTS,
FURNISHINGS, &c., &c,. &c.

Which we offer at the Lowest Prices. A call solicited.

PROUD & MACDONELL.

Johnson & Stevens,

FISHER AND CROOKSTON,

WILL NEGOTIATE LOANS

Through the Corbin Banking Co., New York,

SELL MINNESOTA CHIEF

Threshers and Engines,

Deering and Esterly Binders,
Studebaker Wagons,

and a variety of Rakes, Mowers, Plows, Etc., Etc.

KEEP A MORE

COMPLETE LINE OF REPAIRS

than any agency in the County.

Twine and Wire In Season.

Stewart & Lawrence,

DEALERS IN

PINE LUMBER, WINDOWS, DOORS, MOULDINGS,

BUILDING PAPER, ETC.,

Yard on Broadway, Crookston

HOW TO BE HEALTHY!

Drink LePage's

35c Tea and 35c pure Java Coffee,

AND SMOKE MY NICKEL PILGRIM CIGAR.

HOW TO BE WEALTHY!

COME TO THE RED STAR GROCERY

And Save Money on everything you buy.

AND IF YOU ARE WISE

You will buy only Pure and Fresh Groceries. THE RED STAR GROCERY is the place to get them and there you will find Prices the Lowest. Farmers and others bring in your Butter and Eggs and get highest prices for them. Remember the RED STAR, one door south of Montreal House,

E. LEPAGE, Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

ELLIS & JOHNSON,

AGENTS FOR THE

WALTER A. WOOD

Mowing and Reaping

MACHINE COMPANY.

A Full Line of Repairs and Twine constantly on Hand.

Robert Street.
Opposite Old Mill. CROOKSTON, MINN.

JOHN N. IVES,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

Collection and Land Office Business made a specialty. Money secured for final proofs on short notice.

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

P. A. DUFOUR,

Attorney and Counselor at Law,

MAIN STREET,

CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

WM. WATTS,

ATTORNEY AT LAW,

AND DEALER IN

REAL ESTATE:

OFFICE OVER MERCHANTS' BANK.

MERCHANTS HOTEL

J. E. MITTON, Prop.,

WAHPETON, - - - DAKOTA.

AIME GABOURY,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Graduate Doctor in Medicine Laval University Canada. Licensed Coll. Phy. Surg., Quebec Late of Michigan University, U. S.

Office over the "Arcade" Clothing Store,

CROOKSTON - - - - MINN

M. M. VAN DYKE,

Physician and Surgeon,

Corner of Main and Second Streets,

ROOKSTON, - - - MINN

Will attend to all professional calls promptly.

DENTISTRY.

J. H. THOMAS, D. D. S.,

ROBERT STREET, - CROOKSTON, MINN.

Artificial Teeth from one to an entire set inserted. Gold, Silver or Artificial Filling used as desired. Regulating Children's Teeth a specialty. ALL WORK WARRANTED.

DR. M. WATTS,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.

OFFICE ON ROBERT SREET.

Professional calls by day or night attended o with promptness.

First National Bank

OF CROOKSTON.

PAID IN CAPITAL, - - - $100,000
SURPLUS, - - - - 1,400

Money to loan on long or short time on approved security

Interest on time deposits. Faithfu attention to Collections and prompt remittance.

GEO. O. ERSKINE, President.
K. D. CHASE, Vice President.
ANSEL BATES, Cashier.

MERCHANTS'

Bank of Crookston.

H. B. MONTGOMERY.........President,
St. Paul, Minn.
M. R. BROWN,............Vice President,
Crookston, Minn.
J. KELSO.........Second Vice President,
Bellevue, Iowa.
Wm. ROSS.............................Cashier,
Crookston, Minn.

CASH CAPITAL, $32,000

SURPLUS, $16,533.82.

Will receive deposits and allow interest by special contract.

Buy and Sell Foreign and Domestic Exchange, make collections, and do a strictly legitimate business.

Agents for foreign passage tickets.

De Skandinaviske Sprog tales her.

WM. ROSS, Cashier.

ATTENTION

Now is the Time to Build

While you can buy

Cream Brick

at Very Low Figures. The Best Brick ever made in the Red River Valley. Manufactured by

SWANSON & KOEPPE,

[11-18] Crookston, Minn.

SECOND STREET

MEAT MARKET

STANTON & CO., Proprietors.

Choice meats of every description. Fish and game in their season. Everything of the very best quality and lowest prices. Call and see us.

STANTON & CO.,

Dobson's Block, Second Street.

Polk County Journal.

Crookston, Minn., Thursday, August 7.

'ROUND HOME.

T. B. Walker left for below last Saturday evening.

Tom Ratchford has commenced excavating for the sewer under the railroad at the foot of Third Street.

Henry Nolan has got his building on Robert street about completed and it will be ready for occupancy soon.

Services in the Norwegian Lutheran church Sunday August 10th at 11 o'clock a. m., and 8 o'clock p. m., by Rev. A. C. Anderson.

Proud & Mcdonnell have just received the finest line of boots and shoes ever brought to the Red River Valley. Ladies fine shoes a specialty.

Jack Thompson, son of Prof. Thompson, of this city, has gone to Ada to open a shop. He is a good artist and will probably do a good business in that city.

Mitchell & Co. have moved into their store building on the corner of Broadway and Robert street, so look out for a fine new stock of goods about September 1st.

S. P. Norton will probably take charge of some other hotel in our city. He is a very popular hotel man, and will do a good business in any house he may take charge of.

W. H. Topping's little daughters, Miss Allie and Nelle, left on the train last Saturday evening, accompanied by T. B. Walker, to visit in Minneapolis for about two weeks.

Eugene Terry, one of W. H. Topping's popular hotel clerks, took a trip to the Thirteen Towns last week. He returned Saturday evening and Monday morning was at his post as usual.

The boys are having a great deal of sport now-a-days, shooting plover. These birds seem to be quite numerous and the boys are bagging a great many of them. Chicken shooting commences August 15th.

Machinery is going out of our city at a lively rate. Nearly every farmer that comes into our city takes out with him some kind of a machine. The great crop soon to be harvested demands much machinery.

Charles Westerberg has rented and is now running a hotel in the new building on Main street, built by Mr. Mossifin. Charlie has furnished this hotel in good shape and no doubt will have a good run of custom.

H. F. Brown, of Red Wing, Minn., is in our city this week looking for a location to go into business of some kind. Mr. Brown seems to be well pleased with Crookston and in all probability will remain with us.

The Republican rally at the city hall Wednesday evening was quite well attended. They organized a Blaine and Logan club and got 42 members which is good for a start as there are a gret many who did not know that the meeting was to be held.

We understand that the Red Lake Falls base ball club are coming to Crookston soon to give our boys a chance to redeem themselves. If the amateur club of our city cannot beat them, there will be a scrub nine picked up that, at least, will give them a real good practice game.

J. E. Baker and family left for the southern part of the State to visit friends and relatives for about a month. Mr. Baker is employed at Lee & Herrick's mill as head miller, and is universally liked in this city. He will return in time to start the mill again when the new crop is harvested.

"Uncle Boston" the State Sunday School Missionary, will be here Sunday morning and wants to meet all his nephews and nieces on Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Special sermon from "Uncle Boston" to the children, and in the evening he will preach to our young people. Don't forget to meet him on Sunday for he is one of the most successful Sunday school workers of this country.

Owing to the rain the races advertised to come off at the old fair ground on Saturday last were postponed until Tuesday afternoon. In the meantime some of the horses having left town, only the 2:40 race took place. The horses entered were Star Bashaw, Prioress and Paw Paw. Heats, best two in three. The first heat was won by Star Bashaw; time 2:51. Prioress second. In twenty minutes the horses were again called, Star Bashaw winning this heat and the race; time 2:47. Prioress again second. The judges were E. W. Wile, Tom Morris and H. W. Lewis.

The excursion party that went out to Maple Lake, returned last Saturday evening. They had been there since Tuesday. There were eighteen people in the party. They went there, pitched their tents on the banks of the lake and had an in-tents time. The following are the names of those who who comprised the party, all Crookstonites: Judge Reynolds and wife, Mrs. Wm. Box, Miss Allie Box, Miss Grace Page, Miss Hattie Brown, Miss Emma Fisk, Miss Perry, Wm. Walls and wife, Miss Elsie Jennings, Gardner Stevens, Tom Box, Eugene Terry, C. J. McManus, Albert McManus and Mrs. Williams. They had some rainy weather which interfered somewhat with their plans, but on the whole they all agree that a pleasant time was had and the trip an [illegible]

Capt. Soule, of the Russia farm, was in the city last Wednesday. He reports crops looking fine in his district.

Moser & Moeckel are building a road from the bridge to the fair grounds with the Pennock ditcher and grader and are doing good work.

Spencer's drug store at Red Lake Falls is a thing of the past. Sheriff Zwickey got there in time to stop any sudden departure.

Mrs. W. A. Maurer, who has been visiting relatives here, G. W. Lewis and family, left for her home in Council Bluffs, last Thursday evening.

We notice that quite a number of our citizens are wearing Cleveland hats. The hats are quite handsome now, but they will look very old fashioned after election.

Messrs. Bennett and Edwards, the popular New Era Grader men, are still in the county laboring with the farmers. Their headquarters are at the Commercial.

Mr. Eddie Chiniquy, brother of Q. A. Chiniquy of this city, will start for Chicago next Tuesday and will probably remain there. Eddie has become quite popular in this city and his many friends will regret his departure.

We understand that there will be races at the Park Garden next Saturday afternoon providing the weather be favorable. We do not know the exact programe as yet, but from what we can hear there will be some good races. The track is in good shape and no doubt they will have a good afternoon's sport.

As very many are inquiring when the Land Office will re-open, Hon. H. Steenerson wrote to Mr. Rasmussen, at Moorhead, inquiring if Storla had accepted the position of Receiver. Mr. R. replies that Storla has accepted but that he was now sick with typhoid fever and could not come until he recovered—probably two or three weeks yet.

A. N. Hopkins arrived at 12:30 a. m. Thursday with a fine lot of thoroughbred and grade Dutch Friesian cattle which he took out to the farm on Section 8, Crookston township. We believe this is the first lot of these cattle ever brought into the county and we believe it renders the list of good cattle complete as we have already representatives of almost every known breed in existence. There is no reason why Polk County should not rank among the best stock growing counties in the State shortly.

We have spoken of the Jobber's Union and we wish to speak of one of the members in particular, Mr. Gebhart Bohn, of the firm of the Bohn Manufacturing Company, of sash, doors, mouldings, etc. Their factories are at Winona, Minn., but they have warehouses and an office in St. Paul, which is the place from whence they ship goods throughout the Northwest. Their factories are located in a place where they can obtain the choicest timber in the world, and they have facilities for drying and seasoning so when their goods are ready for market they are the best in the market. Their goods are called for all over the country. Their sash, blinds, mouldings, etc., cannot be beaten and their No. 2 doors are about as good as most any No. 1 manufactured by any other company. Their traveling salesmen are all good natured and always in good humor for they say that it is no trouble to sell Bohn & Co.'s goods.

The train bearing the Jobbers Union Club, of St. Paul, arrived at Crookston about 1:20 Wednesday, and were met at the depot by the business men of our city with carriages and taken around the city. Both of Crookston's brass bands were in attendance. They were in our city about an hour and a half and then went north. The business houses in our city were decorated with flags and bunting, and a large banner on which was the word "welcome" was stretched across the street from the Merchants' Bank to the Star Drug Store, in full view from the depot. Many were the words of astonishment uttered by the St. Paul business men on their return from the drive through our city. Instead of a village they found a wide-awake city of about 5,000 inhabitants, with nearly all kinds of business represented. They found good streets and side-walks; they found a water power that cannot be excelled; they found good mills, and they found a better class of buildings than in any other city north of St. Paul and Minneapolis, and they went away satisfied that Crookston will be before many years the largest city in the Red River Valley. Several of our business men accompanied them on their northern trip, Mr. Anglim and Mr. Gallasch being among the number. The train was beautifully decorated. After their drive through our city, Gen. Baker was introduced and made a few remarks. He thanked the people for the reception given them and spoke of the business interests of our country in an able manner. When speaking of our city he was loudly applauded. At the conclusion of his remarks the Conductor shouted "all aboard" and they went on their way rejoicing.

A fine residence on Broadway for sale enquire of H. W. Lewis. Office in JOURNAL building.

MARRIED.

SIMMONS—HUNTER.—In Mallory, at the residence of the bride's parents, July 1st, 1884, by Rev. [illegible] Roberts, Mr. Edwin Simmons to Miss [illegible] Hunter, all of Mallory, Polk Co. Minn.

Crookston City Bakery,
Earnest Miller, Prop.,
Keeps constantly on hand a full line of all goods usually found in a
First-Class Bakery.
Cigars and Tobacco, Nuts, Fruits, Candies; Pies, Cakes, Bread,
And everything to fill out a hungry man, constantly on hand.

MONEY! LAND!
$100,000 To Loan. 20,000 Acres of Land for Sale.
BRING IN YOUR PROPERTY AND IT WILL BE SOLD.
Law and Insurance, Collections Made,
CITY LOTS FOR SALE!
Houses, Rooms and Farms to Rent.
U. S. LAND OFFICE
Business promptly attended to.
CONTEST CASES A SPECIALTY.
Office Corner Broadway and Robert Street,
PALMER & BOND.

E. D. CHILDS & CO.,
Proprietors of
CARMAN TOWNSITE,
AND
Dealers in Real Estate!

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON.
PAID IN CAPITAL, $100,000
SURPLUS, 1,400
Money to loan on long or short time on approved security
Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.
GEO. O. ERSKINE, President.
K. D. CHASE, Vice President.
ANSEL BATES, Cashier.

Christening and Wedding Cakes Made upon Shortest Notice in the Best Style.
A Choice and Well Selected Stock of Confectionery Always on hand.
John Crawford & Son,
Proprietors of
Crawford's Bakery,
SECOND STREET,
Crookston, Minn.
CONFECTIONERY.
Fresh Bread, Buns, Cakes and Biscuits. All Articles in the Fancy Baking Line.

BROADWAY
Meat Market.
FRANK JEROME & CO.,
Fresh and Salt Meats
OF ALL KINDS
VEGETABLES
In their season. All goods delivered if requested.

Crookston Tonsorial
PARLORS.
PROF. THOMPSON, Proprietor.
Robert Street, Crookston, Minn.
Shaving, hair dressing and all work in my line promptly attended to the latest style of the art. Give me a call.

MERCHANTS HOTEL
J. E. MILTON, Prop.,
WAHPETON, DAKOTA.

The Red Lake Falls
FLOURING
MILL
Has lately been enlarged and is now prepared to do custom work without delay. Stable room free.
BUSE & COLBENTSON,
Proprietors, Red Lake Falls, Minn.

Groceries, Provisions,
Flour, Feed
SMOKED, DRIED AND SALT
MEATS,
TEAS,
COFFEES,
SUGARS,
SPICES,
ETC.
Highest Market Price Paid for
FARM PRODUCE.
Bauchman & Millette.
Broadway, Opposite the Post Office,
Crookston, Minn.

BERG & OLSON,
PRACTICAL WATCHMAKERS,
AND DEALERS IN CLOCKS,
WATCHES,
JEWELRY,
ROBERT STREET,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon.
Rooms corner Main street and Fletcher Avenue, over Eiken Bros. Hardware Store,
CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINN.

Wentzel & Rauch,
Sample Rooms.
MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.
For a fine mixed or straight drink call on the boys. The choicest liquors and cigars in stock. [9-tf]

JOHN N. IVES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
Collection and Land Office Business made a specialty. Money secured for final proofs on short notice.
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

P. A. DUFOUR,
Attorney and Counselor at Law,
MAIN STREET
CROOKSTON, MINN.

Bigham & Olafson
(Successors to Juve & Bergland.)
THE POPULAR MERCHANTS ON
MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON,
Have on hand and are constantly receiving full lines of
DRY GOODS, GROCERIES,
CROCKERY,
CLOTHING,
BOOTS AND SHOES,
HATS AND CAPS
In fact everything usually found in a first-class general store.
☞ Our goods are bought with great care and will be sold at
LOW PRICES
☞ FOR CASH. ☜

DENTISTRY.
J. H. THOMAS, D. D. S.,
ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.
Artificial Teeth from one to an entire set inserted. Gold, Silver or Artificial Filling used as desired. Regulating Children's Teeth a specialty. ALL WORK WARRANTED.

DR. M. WATTS,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
OFFICE ON ROBERT STREET.
Professional calls by day or night attended to with promptness.

Commercial Hotel,
W. H. TOPPING, Proprietor
SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN
First-class in all respects. Terms reasonable. A share of the public patronage solicited.

I have some of the best located residence and business lots in the city that I will sell on easy terms.
H. W. LEWIS.

A. Allen,
AGENT FOR THE HOWE
SCALE
COMPANY.

Fortier's Place,
Corner Broadway and Robert Street
EVERYTHING NEW, NEAT
AND NOBBY.
Billiards, Pool, and the Choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars. The purest High Proof Whiskies at wholesale prices
PURE IMPORTED GOODS ON DROUGHT.

CITY ICE HOUSE!
E. D. SCHRAEDER & CO., Proprietors,
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Having purchased the ice house business of Ruedy & Kindler, and put up during the past winter from 75,000 to 100,000 tons of ice, we are now prepared to supply the trade the coming summer at reasonable figures.
E. D. SCHRAEDER & Co.

Why Don't You wait?
Wait till Crookston has ten thousand people. Three years!
Wait till Crookston is the largest and most important manufacturing town in the Northwest. Two years!
Wait till Crookston has two more large saw mills, and is cutting 75,000,000 feet a season. One year!
Wait till lots in SOUTH CROOKSTON are selling for twice their present valuation (six months) and THEN purchase
South Crookston Property.
But if you have time, just drop in and have a chat with
STEENERSON & McMANUS, Broadway.
JOHN IVES & SON, Broadway.
PALMER & BOND, Robert Street.
CROOKSTON IMPROVEMENT CO., Main Street.

THE KIMBALL ORGANS
Have attained a standard of excellence which admits of no superior. They contain every improvement that inventive genius, skill and money can produce. These excellent
ORGANS
are celebrated for volume, quality of tone, quick response, variety of combination, artistic design, beauty of finish, perfect construction, making them the
MOST ATTRACTIVE, ORNAMENTAL AND DESIRABLE
ORGANS
For Homes, Schools, Churches,
Lodges, Societies, Etc.
ESTABLISHED REPUTATION,
Unequalled facilities, skilled workmen, best material and aim to excel, combined, make this THE POPULAR ORGAN. Every Organ Warranted for Five Years.
INSTRUCTION BOOKS AND PIANO STOOLS.
Catalogue and Price Lists on application, FREE. Address
C. J. KOPS, Crookston, Minn.
GENERAL AGENT W. W. KIMBALL CO.

MERCHANTS'
BILLIARD HALL,
FRED ANDERSON, Proprietor.
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.
The choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP.
M. BAUENBUEHLER, Proprietor,
CORNER OAK AND THIRD STS., CROOKSTON MINN
Is ready for the Spring trade with a full supply of Work and Light Harness, Single and Double, Saddles, Bridles, Whips, Blankets, etc. Give me a call before you purchase.

Tom Morris,
THE CITY
JEWELER
Represents the
CELEBRATED
Rockford Quick Train
WATCH
THE ONLY
Railroad
Watch
IN EXISTENCE.

Crookston Nurseries
ESTABLISHED IN 1879.
Tree Claim Stock.
I desire to inform my customers and others that I shall make a great reduction from former prices on forest trees and seeds for tree-claims. I have good thrifty two year old trees, such as Box Elder, Ash and Cottonwood to sell by the thousand. I also furnish the hardier varieties of
SMALL FRUITS,
Such as Currants, Gooseberries, Raspberries and Strawberry plants, and young, thrifty Transcendent and Hislop Crab Apple trees. The firm of Heseltine Bros. having dissolved, I still continue business on the
OLD NURSERY GROUNDS
in Crookston. Hoping by fair dealing and promptness with my customers to merit their patronage.
Don't fail to write for Catalogue and Prices.
☞ ALL COMMUNICATIONS PROMPTLY ANSWERED.
F. T. HASELTINE,
Proprietor of the Crookston Nurseries, Crookston, Minn.

A. YVERNAULT,
Dealer in General
Merchandise,
MAIN STREET.
Crookston, Minn.
All of my friends, both old and new, are cordially invited to call and examine my stock and get prices.

JOHN LEO. H. STEENERSON.
LEO & STEENERSON.
ATTORNEYS AT LAW
Room 3., U. S. Land Office Building,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

WANTED!
5,000 Men, Women and Children
TO VISIT
HACK & GALLASCH'
General Store, where you can buy
13 lbs. Pure Sugar for....$1.00
12 lbs. Turkish Prunes for.... 1.00
5 three lb. cans Table Peaches for.. 1.00
Japan Tea from....20 to 60 cts per lb
1 long bar of soap and 1 towel, all for....25c
Our stock of
DRY GOODS, NOTIONS, AND DRESS GOODS IS COMPLETE.
Don't fail to visit our Shoe and Slipper department before buying elsewhere. New and complete stock of Groceries Crockery, Glassware, Flour and Feed.
☞ We pay the highest market price for Butter, Eggs, Snake Root, Etc.
Call and see us. NO TROUBLE TO SHOW GOODS.
Cor. Main and Second Street,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

Mr. H. G. Palmer was in attendance at the Farmers' Convention last week. It is the general feeling among farmers in this district that a tried and true man from their ranks should be selected to represent the district in the Legislature next term, a man who, while he is fully alive to the interests of the farmers and business men of his district, yet has enough good common sense not to go to the other extreme. Such a man is Mr. Palmer; and not only so, but the record of his long and active business life proves him to be a man fully capable of discharging well, all of the arduous duties of that position of trust and honor. His record in the past few months shows him to be deeply interested in that which most clearly concerns every other farmer in the land—an open market. A number of his friends in Marshall County have urged him to become a candidate and we have it on good authority that he can carry a majority of Marshall County delegates should he decide to accept and run. This is a matter in which farmers can afford to make no mistakes when there are so many schemers watching for chances to gull, defraud and cheat. We all know that in the one item alone, of securing the new and independent line of elevators, Mr. Palmer has done a great and good thing for every farmer and business man doing business in the Northwest, and this is only one item in the count. He has other plans of equal benefit. If any man more than another deserves recognition in the matter, that man is H. G. Palmer, of Warren.

HOW THEY MET.

One of the Many Incidents of the Reunion.

We find the following incident recorded in the Minneapolis Evening Journal showing one of the many instances of reunion that took place at the great reunion at Minneapolis last week. This was one of the hundreds that took place during that long to be remembered week:

"At the New York headquarters, Wednesday, a man wearing a Geo. N. Morgan badge and a New York badge side by side, stood looking at the visitors as they came up to register. All at once he fixed his eyes on a man who was looking at the register, and finally touched his elbow to attract his attention and said:

"Did you belong to the Twenty-fourth New York Cavalry?"

"Yes," said the other, a thick-set man, about forty, with black hair in which there was a slight sprinkling of gray, and who carried a heavy scar beginning near the center of his forhead and terminating at the center of his nose—in fact the latter organ had been "built on" with flesh from other parts of the person. "Yes, I belonged to Co. H. Twenty-fourth! New York Cavalry, and how are you Chandler? you haven't grown old a particle as I can see, at least you haven't changed in looks," and the two men got off to one side of the room and had a re-union by themselves.

"Let's see, your name is?"—

"Dunlava."

"Oh, yes! I recollect; you got that scratch at "South Mountain' when you were in the Twenty-seventh New York infantry, did you not?"

"Yes, I was down on one knee, taking aim at the Johnnies when the ball struck me in the forehead, glanced, then hit me on the bridge of the nose, passing through, coming out beneath my lower jaw, then entered my right breast, passing through my body, coming out to the right of my backbone near the lower rib. I was left on the mountain to die, as no one had any idea I would live but a few hours; but finally I was taken back to Middletown, Md., to one of the churches that was being used for a hospital, here I lay for three days longer without my wounds being attended to, during which time the flies were terrible, and my wounds were swarming with vermin, the boys who were near me keeping them "thinned down" on my face as best they could. I could not get a surgeon to do anything for me, because it wasn't worth while as I couldn't live, and the time was too valuable to waste. Finally, the third day after my arrival, the major of my regiment came along and I recognized him and told him who I was, for it was impossible for him to recognize me as I was then. If ever a lot of surgeons got an army cussing those surgeons got it then. They got at me with a broom, swept off the vermin, got my blood soaked clothes off and fixed me up, but I owe them no thanks; if it had not been for my determination not to die, and pure grit and pluck, I would have been sleeping 'neath the sod on South Mountain in place of attending this national encampment to-day."

"I heard you tell that same story 20 years ago," said Chandler, "and I have told it to many of my friends, but little did I think I should ever see you again. Where have you been since the war?"

"All over. I was in the oil regions of Pennsylvania and George Raulstan was there. George, you know was the colonel's brother. I did not strike oil very solid, so came west; am now in the hardware business at Fisher, Minn. and you, how has it been with you, since the day Lee surrendered. Let's see, you carried the colors of the Twenty-fourth cavalry that day, Sunday, April 9th, '65."

"Yes, I had that honor and when the aid from brigade headquarters came riding down the line, waving his white handkercheif, howling, 'Cease firing, for Lee has surrendered,' I thought it the sweetest music I ever heard; but the Johnnies did not get the order till about five minutes after we did, and the colors were hit three times before they stopped firing. You remember we were on the extreme left of our cavalry line between Lee's cavalry and his main army, and were the last regiment to cease firing so I think the colors of the Twenty-fourth New York cavalry were the last ones pierced by the lead of the southern confederacy in the army of the Potomac. O yes, you wished to know how it had been with me during the last nineteen years. I "came west" to Ohio, where I railroaded for seven years, then came to Washington, Minn., where I worked at the carpenter's trade for eight years, when I came to this city, where I have been engaged in building for the past four years."

Political Notes.

Providence Journal: The Independent-Democratic Republicans are so independent of humanity and of Republican principles that they are willing to aid in the deprivation of the Republican citizens of the entire South of their po[illegible] rights, and they are so Democratic that they are ready to annul one of the vital principles of Democracy—the right of the people, by a majority, to govern in a lawful manner the political affairs of the State. The independence of the Independents is exercised in behalf of the most flagrant, violent, wicked, unconstitutional and barbarous policy of the most unRepublican and un-Democratic party that ever made the shot gun the moderator of a town meeting.

New York Sun: Lapham, Republican, who occupies the chair from which Roscoe Conkling retired, is one of the twenty-five that go out in March. The next legislature will select his successor. How will it probably stand? The State Senate holds over, and will participate in the election. It consists of 19 Republicans and 13 Democrats, leaving to the former a majority of 6. The whole 128 members of the assembly are to be chosen in November. A majority of the legislature is 81. To enable the Democrats to elect the senator in congress they must carry at least 68 members of the assembly, while for the same purpose the Republicans need carry but 72. In such a trial of strength between the two parties the chances probably lie with the Republicans, and the Democrats will have hard work, as the figures now stand, to win the senator.

IRISHMEN FOR BLAINE.

Enthusiastic Meeting Of Irish Americans in New York—Strange Language to be Heard in an Assemblage of Milesian Voters.

New York, Special Telegram to the Pioneer Press, July 28.—The meeting this evening in Chickering hall of the Irish American independents was a thorough Blaine and Logan rally and must be regarded as one of the most pronounced demonstrations, so far, of the Republican campaign. The building was crowded to overflowing, and the assemblage, which numbered three thousand, enthusiastic as it was unanimous. Merchant, middleman and laborer sat side by side, and applauded every sentiment of the speakers, and the whole proceedings were thoroughly dignified and orderly. Austin E. Ford, who presided, called the meeting to order and introduced Rev. Dr. Pepper, of Wooster, O. He said they had come together to defeat the candidate supported by the London Times. The Republican party had always been opposed by the British government, whose sympathies had always been with the Democrats. It was a party of personal liberty and protection of labor. Free trade crippled every country into which it had been introduced. He predicted that in November next Gov. Cleveland would be buried so deeply that the sound of Gabriel's trumpet would never reach him. Not one in ten Irishmen in Ohio would vote for Cleveland. Catholics there were all opposed to him. Henry Cary Baird was the next speaker. He said the only way to down England, was to cripple her industries, and this could be done by keeping the Republican party in power.

EX-JUDGE BRENNAN OF SIOUX CITY, followed. He played on every chord in the hearts of his hearers, and many of his remarks were received with cheers, which for a while threatened pandemonium. His allusion to the British disapproved of Blaine brought forth storm of hisses, and so did the mention of the New York Times, "Bennett and the Herald," the English Telegram, George William Curtis, the "Apostate," "Puck," and Henry Ward Beecher. He said he had come fourteen hundred miles to be present at the meeting. The Democrats had said for forty years because they were Irish they must vote the Democratic ticket. It was now time to say they would vote the Republican ticket for the same reason. When Judge Brennan had concluded the band of the Sixty-ninth regiment played "Yankee Doodle," this national air being almost drowned in a salvo of handclapping. The other speakers were P. T. Barry of Illinois and Capt. O'Meagher Condon of Washington. A circular was distributed setting forth reasons why Cleveland should not be supported by working men. The meeting closed with the passing of resolutions pledging those present to support the Blaine and Logan canvass by every means in their power.

COWS.

A milkless cow, says Professor Sheldon, is an anomaly when she has the faculty of maternity, and she is an absurdity in domestication when she only gives a small quantity of milk which is poor. Such a cow is a fraud and a humbug, and the farmer is feeble who keeps her. Milk is the chief end and aim of a cow's existence, and beef at the last. What we want of a cow is that she will give us a calf and 600 gallons of good milk in a year; commencing when she is three years old and going on till she is 8 or 9, and then a good carcass of beef for the butcher.

Lots for sale. Farms for sale. Houses for rent.

H. W. Lewis.

Christening and Wedding Cakes Made upon Shortest Notice in the Best Style.

A Choice and Well Selected Stock of Confectionery Always on hand.

John Crawford & Son,

Proprietors of

Crawford's Bakery,

SECOND STREET,

Crookston, Minn.

CONFECTIONERY

Fresh Bread, Buns, Cakes and Biscuits. All Articles in the Fancy Baking Line.

NEW DRUG STORE IN GARFIELD

DR. A NELSON, Prop.

The citizens of this town and vicinity are respectfully invited to call at my new Drug Store in the town of Garfield and examine my stock of

DRUGS, MEDICINES, PAINTS, OILS AND YANKEE NOTIONS.

It is no longer necessary to go 40 or 55 miles for anything in this line, as I have a full supply at prices as reasonable as any town in the Northwest. Call and see

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON

I am also ready to answer all calls by day or night, for the practice of my profession. Call, or leave orders at my Drug Store in Garfield, Polk Co., Minn.

Dr. A. Nelson.

NEW LIVERY, Feed and Sale STABLES.,

Corner Main and Fourth Sts., CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

TERRY & COLLINS, Prop's.

☞ Good Turnouts at all times a reasonable prices. Good Hearse and careful driver when needed.

THE St. Paul, Minneapolis —AND— Manitoba RAILWAY,

WITH ITS 1,400 Miles of Road

Is the only line extending through the Park Region of Minnesota,

To all principal points in Red River Valley, Northern Minnesota, Northern Dakota, And to Devil's Lake and Turtle Mour Districts.

—CONTAINING OVER— 9,000,000 Acres GOVERNMENT LANDS!

The Land department of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has exclusive charge of the Company's Lands in Minnesota, and all correspondence relative to the purchase of lands, terms, description or price of any particular tract should be addressed to that department.

Maps and pamphlets describing the country and giving rates of fare to settlers, etc., mailed FREE on application.

JAS. B. POWER, Land and Immigration Commissioner

C. H. WARREN, General Passenger Agent

St. P., M. & M. R'y, St. Paul, Minn.

FURNITURE STORE,

BROADWAY, CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

P. BATAGLIA, Prop.

Keeps constantly on hand a well selected stock of Wardrobes, Bureaus, Sofas, Lounges, Bed-steads, Bed Springs, Tables, Chairs, Rocking Chairs, Stands, Ornaments, Picture Moulding, and Picture Frames. REPAIRING DONE TO ORDER [illegible]

The Old Brick Block

IS THE PLACE

To Buy Dry Goods, Groceries. Clothing, Boots and Shoe Hats and Caps, or anything you want.

Fontaine & Anglim

IS THE FIRM

Who are ready, with a corps of affable clerks to show you their NEW FALL and WINTER STOCK and quote prices to astonish the natives.

Great Bargains

Don't forget to visit Fontaine & Anglim's Emporium, in the Old Brick Block,

Main Street, Crookston, Minn.

THE J. I. CASE THRESHING MACHINE COMPANY

The Dennet or Beloit HARVESTING MACHINE COMPANY.

And the Van Brunt & Davis SEEDER COMPANY,

Are Represented BY STEENERSON BROS., CROOKSTON, MINN.

MONEY TO GIVE AWAY IN BARGAINS AT

MARKHAM'S

THE LEADING GROCERY HOUSE

AND THE LARGEST BOOT AND SHOE STORE IN CROOKSTON.

Goods Delivered to any Part of the City FREE OF CHARGE

EIKEN BROS.,

Corner of Fletcher and Main Street, Crookston, Minn.

Dealers in HARDWARE, TIWARE, STOVES, —AND— SHELFWARE.

WE KEEP A FULL AND COMPLETE STOCK, —AND— Invite the Patronage OF ALL.

Grass on R. R. Lands.

Crookston, June 21, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the Cutting of Grass on Unsold Railroad Lands IS STRICTLY PROHIBITED, and that no permits will be given or grass sold under any circumstances. Parties found cutting grass on Railroad Land will be dealt with according to law. Applications to buy land may be made at the General Agency at Crookston, where prices and terms will be furnished.

JOHN KRUPEE, General Agent. Office over Merchants Bank at Crookston. [9-12]

☞ I have a good Hotel for sale, located right in the business part of the city. [illegible] H. W. Lewis.

Groceries, Provisions, Flour, Feed SMOKED, DRIED AND SALT MEATS, TEAS, COFFEES, SUGARS, SPICES, ETC.

Highest Market Price Paid for FARM PRODUCE.

Bauchman & Millette.

Broadway, Opposite the Post Office, Crookston, Minn.

The Red Lake Falls FLOURING MILL

Has lately been enlarged and is now prepared to do curtom work without delay. Stable room free.

BUSE & COLBENTSON, Proprietors, Red Lake Falls, Minn.

BERG & OLSON, PRACTICAL WATCHMAKERS, AND DEALERS IN CLOCKS, WATCHES, JEWELRY,

—ROBERT STREET—

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

☞ A fine residence on Broadway for sale, enquire of H. W. Lewis, Office in Journal building.

McKINNON BROS.,

Carriage Works

Robert Street,

Crookston, - Minn.

AGENTS FOR THE J. I. CASE THRESHING MACHINES!

And Manufacturers of Carriages, Wagons, BUGGIES, Cutters, Sleds, &c.

Axles, Springs, and all Repairs kept in stock,

DEALERS IN FARM MACHINERY.

In Farm Machinery we have the Champion Seeder, Fargo Diamond Tooth Harrow, Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow, Davenport and Grand Detour Sulky and Walking Plows, Buford Gang Plows, Field Rollers of all sizes, Warrior Mowers, the leading Hay Rake and first-class Harvesters and Binders, the Webber Wagon and McKinnon Bros. Wagon, In fact we have everything in machinery, from

A Wheelbarrow to a Threshing Machine!

—EXTRAS—

For all Machines constautly on hand

E. M. Walsh,

DEALER IN

Hardware, Tinware BAR IRON, STEEL, BLACKSMITHS SUPPLIES, BUILDING PAPER, &c., &c. Also Agent For the Celebrated Monitor Plows.

CROOKSTON, MINN.

A Big Bonanza!

JOSEPH BARRETT

Has decided to Put on the Market his

÷ADDITION÷

TO THE City of Crookston,

Next adjoining the Crookston Driving Park. Parties desiring to purchase

—CHOICE LOST—

NOW IS YOUR TIME!

LOTS For Sale Separately, or in BLOCKS.

TERMS EASY!

Apply to the undersigned or at the office of C. B. Palmer, U. S. Land Office Building. Both English and French spoken.

JOSEPH BARRETT.

Polk County Journal.

Crookston, Thursday, July 31.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

GOING NORTH.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
1 Passenger	10:45 p. m.	10:55 p. m
9 Passenger	10:10 a. m.
" 19 Freight	12:30 a. m.
" 15 Freight	4:00 p. m.
" 23 Freight		10:30 a. m.

GOING SOUTH.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 2 Passenger	4:00 a. m.	4:15 a. m.
" 10 Passenger		5:35 p. m.
" 20 Freight		7:00 a. m.
" 22 Freight		6:15 p. m.
" 24 Freight	5:00 p. m.

DEVIL'S LAKE LINE.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 9 Passenger		10:20 a. m.
" 10 Passenger	5:30 p. m.
" 45 Freight		6:00 a. m.
" 46 Freight	7:00 p. m.

ST. HILAIRE BRANCH.

Trains leave Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 10:15 a. m., and arrive same days at 4:00 p. m.

☞ Passenger Trains No's 1 and 2, Main Line, run daily except Sunday. No's 3 and 4 run daily. Devil's Lake Passenger runs daily. Freights No's 23, 20 and 24 run daily. Freights No's 15 and 22, and Freights on Devil's Lake Line run daily except Sunday.

'ROUND HOME.

T. B. Walker arrived in this city last Monday.

Paul Bataglia is selling furniture lower than ever.

A. J. Hayes, of Red Lake Falls, was at the Linton last Tuesday.

W. P. Davis, of Angus, was at the Commercial last Tuesday.

J. B. Titus and G. C. Winchester, of Warren, were at the Linton last Tuesday.

Carl Kretschmar and Fred Buse, of Red Lake Lalls, were in the city this week.

P. A. Dufour left for St. Paul last Monday evening and will be gone about

DeMers, of Fisher, arrived on from the south last Monday n.

mber that the best spring bed
arket is manufactured and sold at Paul Bataglia's.

Proud & Mcdonnell's store is crowded nearly every afternoon. They are live dry goods men and are selling at living prices.

Mr. Kidder returned from below last Monday, being one of the last to return from the great soldiers' meeting at Minneapolis.

Good work is being done on our streets. Ditching and grading seems to be the order of the day, and it is being done in fine shape.

Mrs. M. P. Leach who has been in this city visiting her daughter, Mrs. Chas. Seely, left last Tuesday for her home in Minneapolis.

A carload of furniture of all kinds just received at Bataglia's.

I. M. DeCamp, who is quite popular as a hotel manager, is now with the Linton House. Mr. Kops is fortunate in securing so good an assistant.

Dick Cooper, and H. M. Youckey, C. H. Jefferson's head masons, started for Warren last Monday morning to work on the new bank building now being erected in that city.

Mr. Mitton, formerly proprietor of the Crookston House, with his son Robert, were in the city this week. Mr. Mitton has a fine farm near Crookston and he is here looking after it.

Rev. Mr. Page being out of the city, the Methodists being without a pastor and Rev. Mr. House being somewhat indisposed, there were no services at either the Congregationalist, Methodist or Baptist churches last Sunday evening.

The young folks party to be given at Ericsson's Hall next Friday evening, August 1st, will be a grand affair. Quite a large number of invitations have been sent out and everybody is expecting a good time.

Mr. Dawley, formerly employed at Fontaine & Anglim's as their head clerk, was in the city last Monday interviewing the merchants of our city in the interest of Aurbaugh, Finch & Van Slyck. From here he goes north, then returns and goes into Montana.

Mr. and Mrs. Conant, who have been in this city visiting G. W. Lewis and others, left for their home in Coldwater, Michigan, on Monday. They were called away suddenly on account of the dangerous illness of Mrs. Conant's brother, Mr. H. C. Lewis.

The ladies of the Baptist society of Carman will hold an ice cream festival in their church parlors, in Baptist block, Friday evening, August 1st. They invite their Crookston friends, and all others to be present on the occasion, and promise them a good dish of ice cream as well as a pleasant time generally.

Parlor setts, bedroom setts, tables, chairs of all kinds at very low figures for cash, at Bataglia's.

Last Saturday afternoon there was a row across the bridge near Anderson's blacksmith shop, in which a man by the name of Draper was quite seriously hurt. It seems that Draper and one Louis Anderson had made a trade of some kind and finally got into a row [illegible] and Anderson struck Draper [illegible] head with a bar of iron. The injured man was taken to Dr. Watts [illegible] and his wound dressed. Anderson [illegible] subsequently [illegible] giving bail in the sum of [illegible]. The particulars [illegible]

The roller rink was crowded with skaters last Friday evening.

Jack Kivel, of Warren, was in Crookston last Friday.

Messrs. F. and D. McLennan, of Angus, were in the city last Friday.

John M. Boyle, of Red Lake Falls, registered at the Commercial last Friday.

D. Huggard, of Angus, was in the city last Friday and Saturday attending the farmers' convention.

There is lots of machinery going out in the country. The immense crop about to be harvested demands lots of machinery.

Frank Goodin bought a fine new outfit of silverware for his new restaurant of Morris Bro's. He commenced business Monday last.

We are told by a number of our farmers that they will be right into the wheat next week. Several near here will commence cutting Monday.

Last year C. H. Bruce procured two ounces of the Burpee Welcome oat and from it raised one bushel and one peck of fine plump oats by measure. These he last spring sowed on one and one-half acres of land. He brought us a sample on Tuesday which stands five feet and nine inches high. He says it is sufficiently thick on the ground and stooled magnificently.

Quite a large crowd assembled at the Park Garden last Saturday afternoon to witness the races. The first trotting race was between Prioress and Paupau, the first heat was won by Paupau, time 2:52¼, the second heat and race was won by Paupau, time 2:59¾. Last week Prioress won. The second race trotting, there were three horses entered, Sorrel Dan, Pokahontas and Garibaldi. The first heat was won by Garibaldi, time 3:08¾, Sorrel Dan, second. The second heat and race was also won by Gariboldi, time 2:59¾, Sorrel Dan second. The next races two horses entered, P. J. LaChapelle and Bush. The first was won by P. J. LaChapelle, time 3:32¾, the second heat and race was won by P. J. LaChapelle, time 3:31¼, after these races there was a running race gotten up by private parties on the ground for a purse of $10, they were to run 300 yards. One horse was owned by Mr. Pepin, called Mollie, the other was owned by a stranger and was called baldy. Baldy won the race. The judges were W. C. Lee, J. E. Baker and Ben. McKinney. There will probably be more races there next Saturday the weather permitting. They did not have the regular ball game that day. They will have a good game this week.

Farmers Take Notice.

No More Danger of Fire.

I have invented a smoke-stack that I will guarantee not to throw out any sparks, and that is perfectly safe to use around stacks of grain. All farmers should see it used, and may see it work by calling at D. Cameron's place Carman. There is no screen about it, still it is perfectly safe, and the draught is better than any other. I have been engaged in repairing engines and boilers in Crookston this summer.

[11-14] JOHN WALLACE.

To The Public.

We wish to state to the people of Crookston and vicinity, that we have purchased the stock of greecries owned by J. L. Bailey, on Broadway, opposite the post office. We purpose to carry on the trade at the old stand, and will keep on hand, at all times, a fresh stock of groceries, provisions, etc., and we ask a share of the patronage of the generous public.

[5-tf] BAUSCHMAN & MILETTE.

NOTICE.

As I still own my share of Crookston Nurseries, and purpose to continue the business, I will annouce to our former customers and all that are desirous of obtaining trees and Plants the coming spring that I will sell said stock at prices below any competition. Call and see me before making purchase elsewhere. Residence on second block north of Court House, or address P. O. Box 754.

Most Respectfully,

[38-tf] E. W. HASELTINE.

To Rent.

Ready for grain in the spring 100 acres on Section 12 Township 148 Range 46 and 250 acres on Section 11 Township 148 Range 46. Both track have a good house and barn. Apply to

PETER CORNELIUS,
[38-tf] Crookston, Minn.

PIANO TUNING.

Any parties having pianos or organs that need tuning or repairing can have their work satisfactorily done by leaving orders at the Linton House. Satisfaction guaranteed.

[9-tf] E. F. WHEELDEN.

John Knappe.

General Agent in the Red River Valley of the Netherlands American Land Company of Amsterdam, Holland.

Money to loan on good real estate security, on time to suit the borrower. Office over Merchant's Bank. [1-tf]

Money to Loan.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS to loan on improved farms from THREE to FIVE years time at very reasonable rates. Apply at my office on Broadway in U. S. Land Office building. [14-tf] H. STEENERSON.

Just received A carload of Buggies selected by an experienced carriage builder all warranted. Call early and select one. [illegible]

Christening and Wedding Cakes Made upon Shortest Notice in the Best Style.

A Choice and Well Selected Stock of Confectionery Always on hand.

John Crawford & Son,

Proprietors of

Crawford's Bakery,

SECOND STREET,

Crookston, Minn.

CONFECTIONERY

Fresh Bread, Buns, Cakes and Biscuits. All Articles in the Fancy Baking Line.

BROADWAY Meat Market.

FRANK JEROME & CO.,

Fresh and Salt Meats

OF ALL KINDS

VEGETABLES

In their season. All goods delivered if requested.

FURNITURE STORE,

BROADWAY, CROOKSTON MINNESOTA.

P. BATAGLIA, Prop.

Keeps constantly on hand a well selected stock of Wardrobes, Bureaus, Sofas, Lounges, Bedsteads, Bed Springs, Tables, Chairs, Rocking Chairs, Stands, Ornaments, Picture Mouldings, and Picture Frames, REPAIRING DONE TO ORDER. Coffins of all kinds kept constantly on hand.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication July 31st, 1884.]

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Joseph Piquette, a married man, and Mary Piquette, his wife mortgagors, to John Cromb, mortgagee, dated the 27th day of October A. D. 1882, and recorded as a mortgage, together with the power of sale therein contained in the office of the Register of Deeds, of the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on the 31st day of October A. D. 1882, at ten o'clock and twenty-five minutes a. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 350, which said mortgage authorized the holder thereof in case of such default to declare due and foreclose the same for the whole amount secured to be paid thereby, and whereas there is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the amount of five hundred ninety-one and 25-100 dollars ($591.25-10) being the whole amount secured to be paid thereby and still unpaid, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof and whereas by such default the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become and is operative.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of such power of sale contained in and recorded with said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises herein described, which sale will be made at the west front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county or by his Deputy, on Saturday the 13th day September A. D. 1884, at ten o'clock in the forenoon to satisfy the amount that shall then be due on said mortgage with the interest thereon and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold are all that tract or parcel of land lying and being in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and described as follows, to-wit: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section twenty-one (21,) in Township number one hundred and fifty (150) north of Range number forty-four (44) west, of the fifth principal meridian, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres, according to the United States government survey thereof.

Dated Crookston July 31st 1884.

JOHN CROMB,
Mortgagee.

JOHN LEO,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [14-20]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., June 26th, 1884.

Complaint having been entered at this office by George Wellington against George W. Lewis for abandoning his Homestead Entry No. 7338, dated May 26th, 1882, upon the se¼ S. 22, T. 154, R. 46 in Polk County, Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry; the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 21st day of August 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged abandonment.

JOHN CROMB, Register.
[10-15] P. C. SLETTEN, Receiver.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., June 26th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on August 20th, 1884, viz: JOSEPH GILSOUL, Hd [illegible], for the ne¼ Sec. 22, T. 147 R. 46. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon, and cultivation of, said land, viz: James Wilson, Leo Wilson, Michael Conery, John Connery, all of Edna Polk Co., Minn.

[9-14] JOHN CROMB Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., July 1st, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Aug. 20th, 1884, viz: WILLIAM CUNNINGHAM, H'd. Nos. 878, 2556, for the ne¼ S. 26, T. 151, R. 47. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon, and cultivation of said land, viz: Elias Phillips, James Westover, D. F. McDonald and Christ Nelson, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[10-15] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., July 3d, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on August 25th, 1884, viz: MATHIAS TOLEFSON DAHL, D. S., No. 6351, for the n½ se¼ and lots 6 and 7, S. 7, T. 147, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Peter Eiskoll, Jorgen Flaten, Mars Jenson and Frank Mogul, all of Aldal, Polk Co., Minn.

[10-15] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., July 5th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of her intention to make final proof in support of her claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Aug. 15th, 1884, viz: JOHAN GUDMUNDSEN, Pre. D. S., No. 8584, for the ne¼ S. 20, T. 148, R. 41. She names the following witnesses to prove her continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Andrew Anderson, Hulbert Anderson, Richard Olson Even Brindleson, all of Fertile, Polk Co., Minn.

[11-16] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., July 7th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Aug. 26th, 1884, viz: DAMASE LEDUC, H'd No. 9,819, for the n½ sw¼ and n½ se¼ of S. 32, T. 148, R. 48. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Louis Cenvrette, Peter Genereux, Theodore Genereux and Edward Barrette, all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[11-16] JOHN CROMB, Register.

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Arthur Perras, mortgagor, to John Cromb, mortgagee, dated the 31st day of October A. D. 1882, and recorded as a mortgage together with the power of sale therein contained in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 31st day of October A. D. 1882 at 3 o'clock and 40 minutes p. m., in book "H" of mortgages on page 352 which said mortgage authorized the holder thereof in case of such default to declare due and foreclose the same for the whole amount secured to be paid thereby, and whereas, there is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice, the amount of four hundred and sixty-six and 66-100 dollars, being the whole amount secured to be paid thereby, and still unpaid and seven and 35-100 dollars taxes paid by mortgagee, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, and whereas by such default the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become and is operative.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of such power of sale contained in, and recorded with said mortgage and of the statute in such case made and provided the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the west front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said County or by his Deputy of said County, on Saturday the 16th day of August A. D. 1884, at ten o'clock in the forenoon to satisfy the amount that shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon and costs and expenses of sale and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure. The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold, are the lot piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The east half (e½) of the northwest quarter (nw¼) and the west half (w½) of the northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section number fourteen (14,) in Township number one hundred and fifty (150) north, of Range number forty-two (42) west, of the fifth principal meridian, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less according to the United States government survey thereof.

Dated Crookston, July 3d, 1884.

JOHN CROMB,
Mortgagee.

JOHN LEO,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [10-16]

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication July 3d, 1884.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of ninety-two and 75-100 dollars ($92.75-100,) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by James Ryan, a single man, to James Barton, bearing date the 11th day of December A. D. 1883, and, with a power of sale therein contained duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on the 11th day of December A. D. 1883, at 5:25 o'clock p. m., in book "N" of mortgages, on page 219, that an action at law in which said James Barton was plaintiff, and said James Ryan was defendant, was instituted in the District Court, in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on March 11th, 1884, to recover said debt and that on June 26th, 1884, a judgment was duly rendered in said action for the sum of $102.81 in favor of the plaintiff therein, and against the defendant therein, which said judgment was on the 26th day of June 1884, duly entered in the office of the Clerk of said Court, and that on the 26th day of June 1884 an execution was duly issued from said court in said action and that on June 28th 1884, said execution was returned wholly unsatisfied, and that said sum of $102.81 is now justly due and owing from the defendant in said action to the plaintiff therein.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: Lot number nine (9,) in block number two (2,) in Hurlbut's addition to the townsite of Crookston, according to the recorded plat thereof now on file in the office of the Register of Deeds of Polk County, Minnesota, also an undivided one-half (½) of lot ten (10) in block twelve (12) in Davis Addition to the townsite of Crookston, according to the recorded plat thereof now on file in the office of the Register of Deeds, of Polk County, Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 16th day of August A. D. 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated Crookston, June 28th, 1884.

JAMES BARTON,
Mortgagee.

JOHN McLEAN,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [10-16]

Notice of Mortgage Sale by Advertisement.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Theophile Patnode and Cordelia Patnode, his wife, mortgagors, to John Cromb, mortgagee, dated the fourth day of September A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of September A. D. 1882, at 1:45 o'clock p. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 248 on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of fifty-six and 17-100 dollars, and there is yet to become due thereon four hundred and twenty-five dollars and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction by the Sheriff of said County, on Saturday the 30th day of August A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold, are the lots, pieces or parcels of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: Lots number four (4) eleven (11) and twelve (12) and the southeast quarter (se¼) of the southeast quarter (se¼,) all in Section number eighteen (18,) in Township number one hundred and fifty-one (151) north, of Range number forty-three west, of fifth principal meridian, containing one hundred and seventeen (117) acres more or less according to the United States survey thereof.

Dated July 2d, 1884.

JOHN CROMB,
Mortgagee.

MONTAGUE & WIGHT,
Attorney's of Mortgagee. [10-18]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., June 23, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Aug. 18, 1884, viz. HENRY SNACALLE D. S. No. 6317, for the sw¼ NE¼ W½ SE¼ and SE¼ SE¼ S. 20, T. 150 R. 42. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon, and cultivation of, said land, viz: Louis Buyceau, T. Mineau, T. Millette, Joseph Lerome, all of Terribonne, Polk Co. Minn.

[9-14] JOHN CROMB Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., June 21, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn. on Aug. 14, 1884, viz: THOMAS BOISVERT D. S. 8405, for the sw¼ S 21, T. 150, R. 41. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon, and cultivation of, said land, viz: T. Carle, Thomas Berner, Charles Dubard, F. Lemayl, all of Lambutson, Polk Co. Minn.

[9-14] JOHN CROMB Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston Minn., June 24th, 1884.

Complaint having been entered at this Office by Johnston Corrigan against Archibald S. Campbell for failure to comply with law as to Timber-Culture Entry No. 963, dated March 27, 1879, upon the se¼ S. 30, T. 154 R. 46, in Polk County, Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry; contestant alleging that the said Archibald S. Campbell has wholly failed to plant and cultivate any trees, tree seed or cuttings on said land since entry was made; the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this Office on the 20th day of Aug. 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged failure.

[9-14] JOHN CROMB Register.

Send Money by American Express Co. Money Orders. Receipts given. Money refunded if Orders are lost. Sold at all offices of the Company. Payable at 6,500 places. RATES: To $5-5c.; $10-8c.; $20-10c.; $30-12; $40-15; $50-20 [illegible]

N. F. CHINIQUY'S

Chicago Dry Goods House.

JUST RECEIVED,

Full Lines Of

Dress Sstins, Lawns, Organdies.
Percales, Cambrics, Buntings, Piques
Marsailles, Prints, Embroideries.
Gloves, Hosiery, Handkerchiefs.
Hoop Skirts, Bustles, Corsets.
Parasols, Collars, Cuffs, Ruchings.
Lacesand Lace Goods, Gauze.
Underwear, Etc., Etc., Etc.
Cretonnes and Fringes.
Gent's Furnishing Goods.

The above goods were bought late in the season at very Low Prices and I will make it an aim to sell those goods very cheap.

No Trouble to Show Goods

At N. F. CHINIQUY'S

Chicago Dry Goods Store.

JEROME'S ADDITION

TO THE

CITY OF CROOKSTON

IS NOW

Offered for Sale

This is the finest Residence Property in the City. High and dry, good cellars, water, and well sheltered. Enclosed on three sides by the river, and only three blocks from the heart of the city and Post Office.

Pure Drugs,

Reliable Medicines,

LOWEST LIVING PRICES,

AT

Medical Hall,

CROOKSTON,

Beecher & George, Prop's.

THE

St. Paul, Minneapolis

AND

Manitoba

RAILWAY,

WITH ITS

1,400 Miles of Road

Is the only line extending through the

Park Region of Minnesota,

To all principal points in

Red River Valley,
Northern Minnesota,
Northern Dakota,
And to Devil's Lake and Turtle Mountain Districts.

CONTAINING OVER

9,000,000 Acres

GOVERNMENT LANDS!

The Land department of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has exclusive charge of the Company's Lands in Minnesota, and all correspondence relative to the purchase of lands, terms, description or price of any particular tract should be addressed to that department.

Maps and pamphlets describing the country and giving rates of fare to settlers, etc., mailed FREE on application.

JAS. B. POWER,
Land and Immigration Commissioner

C. H. WARREN,
General Passenger Agent,
St. P., M. & M. R'y., St. Paul, Minn.

E. D. Schreader

LIVERY,

Feed and Sale Stable.

BEST TURNOUTS IN THE CITY.

Single or Double Rigs, with or without driver or

SADDLE HORSES

Always ready at a moments notice by day or night. If you want a Nobby Turnout call at the Red Barn, Corner Main and Third Streets,

CROOKSTON, - - - MINNESOTA.

W. L. Sargeant,

Veterinary Surgeon.

CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

Diseases of horses and cattle a specialty.

[9-tf]

NEW LIVERY, Feed and Sale STABLES.,

CORNER MAIN AND FOURTH STS.,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINNESOTA.

TERRY & COLLINS, Prop's.

☞ Good Turnouts at all times at reasonable prices. Good Hearse and careful driver when needed.

NEW

DRUG STORE IN GARFIELD

DR. A NELSON, Prop.

The citizens of this town and vicinity are respectfully invited to call at my new Drug Store in the town of Garfield and examine my stock of

DRUGS, MEDICINES, PAINTS, OILS AND YANKEE NOTIONS.

It is no longer necessary to go 40 or 55 miles for anything in this line, as I have a full supply at prices as reasonable as any town in the Northwest. Call and see

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON

I am also ready to answer all calls by day or night, for the practice of my profession. Call, or leave orders at my Drug Store in Garfield, Polk Co., Minn.

DR. A. NELSON.

Fortier's Place,

Corner Broadway and Robert Street

EVERYTHING NEW, NEAT AND NOBBY.

Billiards, Pool, and the Choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars. The purest High Proof Whiskies at wholesale prices

PURE IMPORTED GOODS ON DROUGHT.

A BARGAIN.

A choice business location on Broadway 100x140 feet, for sale at a bargain. For particulars address the JOURNAL.

THE B. O. M. SOCIETY.

"When I think of the coarseness, selfishness and brutality of men, I wonder how any women can stand the best of them for a minute!"

This was what Miriam Tracy said to her three most intimate friends as they were talking their "first season out." The opinion they had formed of the male sex was a very unfavorable one, and they expressed it with the utmost confidence in their own judgment and experience.

They were all pretty girls, but Miriam had a kind of beauty which none of the others possessed. She was tall and graceful, with soft, red-gold hair, and large, dark gray eyes, shaded by long black lashes, and her face showed the force of character which had made her a natural leader among her friends and school companions. Their opinions were always influenced by hers, and on the present occasion they agreed with her fully.

"Yes, indeed!" exclaimed Hattie Sanford. "Men think they know everything, but they are as ignorant of a woman's feeling's as they are of everything else that's worth knowing."

"Yes, and they're so rude!" said Belle Middleton, a lovely blonde, with a vast capacity for being waited upon. "They only pretend to rise when you come into a room, and if you drop anything they make out they don't see it."

"What I mind most," said Miriam, "is the way married men treat their wives. They make real slaves of them. But if the women would only stand up for themselves as they ought to do they would be treated very differently."

"I'll tell you what let's do, girls!" said Nellie Lane. "Let's form a society for the repression of men! We can keep them in their places if we try, and we can get other girls to do the same thing."

"Yes, let's do that," said Miss Middleton. "But, girls, of course we're not going to stop dancing with them."

"Oh, certainly not!" "Of course not!" cried the others.

This important matter being settled, the society was organized on the spot, and each member pledged herself to do all she could to further the object of the association. It was then about the middle of June, and they were all going out of the city in a few days, but they agreed to meet at Hattie Sanford's house on the 10th of October and report what each had done during their absence.

Miriam and her mother went to a popular seaside resort, at which the season had not yet fully opened. When they drove up to their hotel its portico was occupied only by about a dozen men, who sat and smoked, with their chairs tilted back and their hands in their pockets. One of them looked at Miriam so intently that she thought him very impudent, and went to her room in a state of wrath and indignation.

A few days after the arrival, Mrs. Tracy received a letter from her aunt, Miss Griselda Chadwick, who lived in the neighboring village of Sinnetasket.

This lady announced her intention of coming immediately and spending a week at the hotel where they were stopping, as she "might never be so near them again."

"How ridiculous it would be to have her here!" said Miriam. "But she is a dear old thing, and I had delightful times in her queer old house when I was a child, so I'm going to make the best of it."

Miss Griselda arrived at the appointed time, with a large collection of bandboxes, bundles, baskets, birdcages and a specally beloved Angora cat named Maximilian, which last treasuer she carried in her arms.

"My dear children," she said, when all her possessions had been safely deposited in her room, "I thought I should never get here without being robbed. The conductor on the cars and the stage-driver here both wanted to steal Maximilian, and if it hadn't been for a gentleman who was standing in the depot they'd have done it. He took care of my baggage, and left me at liberty to guard over Maximilian. This is the gentleman's card. I made him give it to me.

She drew the card out of her reticule and handed it to Miriam, who saw it contained the name of "Frederick Dalmayne."

A moment afterwards, Miss Griselda happened to look out of the window, and she immediately exclaimed:

"Why there's the gentleman now, down there in that little shed! Heavens and earth! what does he want with all those children crowding around him? I thought men hated children. Just look at them now!"

Miriam came to the window and saw, in a small pavilion behind the hotel, the man who had aroused her indignation by gazing at her so intently on the day of her arrival. Four little girls were leaning on his shoulders and knees, and seemed to be listening with the deepest interest to what he was telling them.

"Goodness gracious, what a funny man!" cried Miss Griselda. "He'd be the very person to take charge of our Sunday school. Do you think he'd like to come up to Sinnetasket and settle Louisa?"

"I'm afraid not," answered Mrs. Tracy.

"I'll ask him, anyhow," said the old lady. "And Miriam, I'll introduce him to you the first time we meet him."

"Oh, no, auntie," said Miriam. "Perhaps he wouldn't want to know me."

"Nonsense!" said Miss Griselda, laughing. "You don't really believe that yourself."

Miriam knew it would be useless to argue with her, but she determined that the man should not be forced to make her acquaintance if she could help it.

Early the next morning she was walking on the beach when she saw something which moved her deeply. In a child's carriage sat a little girl about 3 years old so pale and shrunken from disease that it made Miriam's heart ache to look at her. She tried to speak to the child, but the marks of suffering in the patient baby face brought tears to her eyes, and she could not utter a word.

"Speak to the lady, Mamie!" said the nurse.

The little girl looked at Miriam earnestly, but seemed to find nothing in her face that interested or attracted her, and soon turned her sad eyes in another direction. But almost instantly her eyes brightened and she stretched out both arms and uttered a faint cry of pleasure. Miriam looked to see what had wrought such a change, and found that the child was looking at Dalmayne. He stood leaning against a pier a short distance away, kissing his hand to Mamie, but showing no intention of coming nearer. Understanding that her presence kept him away she continued her walk up the beach and soon returned to the hotel, feeling very sorrowful and more dissatisfied with herself than she had ever before been. Her inability to do anything for the child she pitied so much troubled and humiliated her, and the idea that a "coarse, brutal and selfish man" should be able to effect, without apparent effort, what she had vainly tried to do made her begin to think that she and her friends had been too sweeping and hasty in their judgment. In fact, she began to be a little ashamed of "the society," and to wish she had not taken part in forming it.

The company at the hotel had increased very fast, and Miriam had an opportunity every evening to indulge her taste for waltzing. She often saw Dalmayne in the ballroom, though he never danced. One evening, when she had just taken her seat between her mother and her aunt, he came up and spoke to the latter, who introduced her to the other two ladies. Miriam was soon called on to fulfill an engagment to dance, but when she returned he was still talking to Mrs. Tracy and Miss Griselda. His corteous manner to them pleased Miriam and made her feel disposed to pardon his seeming rudeness to her on the day of their arrival. He did not say much to her, but two or three times during the evening, while she was dancing, she saw him looking at her with an interest that was too evident to admit of doubt.

After that evening he often came and sat with the two older ladies in the ballroom, and Mirriam soon noticed that he managed in a quiet way, to keep her aunt from making herself ridiculous at at such times. The old lady was continuously sounding his praises, and Mrs. Tracy also spoke of him with a warmth that showed that she considered him a true friend. Miriam found that all invalids and elderly people at the hotel regarded him in the same way, and his deference to them and consideration for their tastes and wishes gave her a high opinion of his good breeding and innate kindliness. The children seemed to consider him their property, and a large part of his time was taken up by his efforts to please and amuse them. Her own conversations with him always took place in the evenings, and they were regularly interrupted by her numerous engagements to dance, but she soon discovered that he was the best informed and most intelligent man she had ever known.

Miss Griselda stayed five weeks instead of one, and Dalmayne escorted her back to Sinnetasket, returning next day laden with thanks, good wishes and infallible remedies for "the ills that human flesh is heir to." Not long afterward, the company at the hotel began to decrease, and it became evident that the height of the season was over. Mrs. Tracy had engaged rooms at a place in the Catskills for August and September, and the time was now fast approaching when Mirriam and she were to leave the seaside.

One afternoon she was sitting on some rocks in a part of the beach far away from the hotels, when Dalmayne came up and seated himself close to her, but a little higher up on the rocks. "Mrs. Tracy tells me you are going to the mountains next week," he said. "Shall you be glad to go?"

"I hardly know," she answered "I have enjoyed my stay here very much, but everything must become tiresome at last, I suppose."

"Even dancing?"

"Yes. But I'm not tired of that yet."

"You don't seem to be. I don't care much for dancing myself, but I like to see you dance. You do it as if you believed in it."

Just then a little girl came running up and clasped Dalmayne in a close embrace.

"Oh, here you are!" she exclaimed. "I've been looking for you everywhere! I don't like playing with children, and there isn't one big dog in the place."

"This is Miss Caroline Thornton," said Dalmayne to Miriam. "She is one of my most intimate friends."

Miss Thornton had not seen Miriam before, and as soon as she became aware of her presents her whole manner changed.

"What's that lady's name?" she asked.

"Miss Tracy," replied Dalmayne.

"But what's her other name?",

"Why do you want to know that?"

The girl looked at Miriam and said: Is your name My-ry-am?"

"Yes," replied Miriam, a good deal surprised and a little disconcerted.

"That's what he's all the time writing in the sand with his cane," said Carrie. "Are you his sweetheart?"

For a few moments there was an awkward silence. Then Dalmayne said, very quietly, "No, Carrie, she's not my sweetheart. But I should be a very happy man if she would be something more than that." After a short pause he turned to Miriam and said: "Will you?"

It was a very sudden proposal, but Miram's own nature was so frank and straightforward that no other mode of asking such a question would have seemed so natural and proper to her. Her answered was given in one word, and it was the word he most ardently wished to hear.

Carrie stood looking at them both for a little while, fully conscious that they had forgotten her existence. Then she drew a long breath and said: "Well, I suppose I'll have to play with the children!"

As she walked away, Miriam's sympathy for her was thoroughly aroused, and she called after her, "Come back, Carrie, come back! We want you to stay with us!" But Carrie walked stolidly on.

Three days afterward, she might have been seen playing on the beach with a huge New foundland dog, both of them half wild with delight, and on the dog's collar was inscribed, "Carrie Thornton. From Mariam."

At the appointed time in October, Miriam went to Nellie Lane's house, and found that young lady and Hattie Sanford waiting for her. She noticed immediately that they both seemed a little constrained and embarrassed, and was at a loss to account for it. After a little general conversation she said, in her usual direct way, "Girls, I've come to tell you I'm going to leave the society. The truth is, I'm engaged."

A look of intense relief instantly came into the face of both her companions.

"I am, too!" exclaimed one of them.

"And so am I!" cried the other.

While they were satisfying each other's curiosity about their respective engagements a letter was brought in, which Nellie Lane opened and read aloud as follows:

Dear Girls:—I can't attend the meeting, as I'm too buisy getting ready to be married and go abroad. Reginald is so impatient that I have agreed to be married next week. But I intend to "repress" him systematically, and I hope that when you are all married you will treat your husbands in the same way. Ever yours,

B. M.

"I have no doubt she will repress him as much as she can," said Miriam. "But, girls, I'm beginning to think men are not the only people who need repressing, and I hope that when I'm married my husband will help me to repress myself."

In the Jaws of a Shark.

Household Words.

Alfetto, a Spanish diver, who had been at work on the wreck of a vessel, thus speaks of an extraordinary adventure which he once had: "At that time I was at the bottom of the sea, and was just about to signal to be drawn up for a moment's rest, when I noticed a shadowy body moving at some distance above me and toward me. In a moment every fish had disappeared, the very crustaceans lay still upon the sand and the cuttle fish scurried away as fast as they could. I was not thinking of danger, and my first thought was that it was the shadow of a passing boat. But suddenly a feeling of terror seized me. I felt impelled to flee from something, I know not what. A vague horror seemed grasping after me, such as a child fancies when leaving a darkened room. By this time the shadow had come nearer and taken shape. It scarcely needed a glance to show me that it was a man eater and of the largest size. Had I signeled to be drawn up then it would have been certain death. All I could do was to remain still until it left. It lay off twenty or twenty-five feet, just outside of the rigging of the ship, its body motionless, its fins barely stirring the water about its gills. It was a monster as it was, but, to add to the horror, the pressure of the water upon my head made it appear as if pouring flames from its tail and mouth and every movement of its fins and tail seemed accompanied by a display of fireworks. I was sure the fish was thirty feet long, and so near that I could see its double row of white teeth. Involuntarily I shrunk closer to the side of the vessel. But my first movement betrayed my presence. I saw the shining eyes fixed upon me; its tail quivered as it darted at me like a streak of light. I shrank closer to the side of the ship. I saw it turn on one side, its mouth open, and heard the teeth snap as it darted by me. It had missed me, but only for a moment. The sweep of its mighty tail had thrown me forward. I saw it turn, balance itself, and its tail quivered as it darted at me again. There was no escape. It turned on its back as it swooped down on me like a hawk on a sparrow. The jaws opened and the long, shining teeth grated as they closed on my metal harness. It had me. I could feel its teeth grinding on my upper breast-plate as it tried to bite me in two, for, fortunately, it had caught me just across the middle, where I was best protected. Having seized me it went tearing through the water. I could feel it bound forward at each stroke of its tail. Had it not been for my copper helmet my head would have been torn off by the rush through the water. I was still perfectly conscious, but somehow I felt no terror at all. There was only a feeling of numbness. I wondered how long before those teeth would crunch through, and whether they would strike first into my back or my breast. Then I thought of Maggie and the baby, and wondered who would take care of them and if she would ever know what had become of me. All these thoughts passed through my brain in an instant, but in that time the connecting air tube had been snapped and my head seemed ready to burst with pressure, while the monster's teeth kept crunching and grinding upon my harness. Then I felt the cold water begin to pour in and heard the bubble, bubble, bubble, as the air escaped into the creature's mouth. I began to hear great guns and to see fireworks and rainbows and sunshine and all kinds of pretty things, then I thought I was floating away on a rosy summer cloud, dreaming to the sound of sweet music. Then all became blank. The shark might have eaten me at his leisure and I would never been the wiser. Imagine my astonishment, then, when I opened my eyes on this boat and saw you fellows around me. Yes sir, I thought I was dead and ate up sure." Alfetto was found by his comrades a few minutes after the snapping of the line. He was picked up insensible and with several holes punched in the metallic part of his diving suit.

Charlie Mitchell's little essay on fighting: "The first thing a man must have, if he wants to make a good fight, is confidence in himself. I'd sooner fight a terror, if I knew he was afraid, than a greeney that thought he could whip the earth. You see it surprises these fellows so much when they begin to get the worst of it that they think something must be wrong and they fight all the harder; but when a fellow that's afraid gets hit in the ear or eye he says: "Just as I expected" and drops. Of course, a man doesn't need to think he's a prairie fire looking for dry grass, but he wants to think he can win, and then he's likely to do it. Whether I win or not, I won't drop with fright like most of the men that face Sullivan."

Lulu Hurst, the Georgia young woman who moves heavy objects, lifts a chair from the floor against the efforts of four or five men to press it down, etc., has arrived at New York and exhibits her power for gold. Dr. William A. Hammond says it is largely the influence of suggestion on the minds of the men whom she discomfits, and for the rest uncommon muscular strength, which seems very likely. One of the men who experimented at Wallacks theatre, Saturday, trying in vain to hold a billiard cue which she chose to move, and so on, says "the girl is as strong as Sullivan."

GENERAL SCOTT'S PROPHECY.

A Remarkable Prediction Before the Civil War Opened—"If you Don't Do This You Will Be Beaten in the First General Action"—A Historic Military Conference in 1861.

One of the most valuble contributions to the July number of the Magazine of American History is that by General Stone, in which he relates, with circumstances and detail, General Scott's prophecy of the battle of Bull Run. He writes:

The "On to Richmond" party had its powerful supporters in the capital of the country, in the Senate and even in the President's Cabinet. While it was well understood there that the President and Mr. Seward were disposed to act coolly and in conformity with the ideas of the responsible military chiefs in reference to military movements, it was also understood that Mr. Chase was a strong advocate for "immediate advance."

Lieutenant-General Scott, the General-in-Chief of the Army, while desiring prompt and vigorous "action as soon as the proper means of procuring success could be organized, was earnestly opposed to a forward movement until such time as the National forces should be so reasonably organized as to make success at the least probable. Notwithstanding my appointment to the Colonelcy of a new regiment (the Fuorteenth United States Infantry), I was still retained by General Scott as his Inspector-General for the District and commander of the District of Columbia troops, and was acting directly under his orders.

At about eight o'clock at evening on one of the last days of May (I think it was the 31st of May) I entered as usual the quarters of the aged General-in-Chief to make my report for the day and to receive my orders for the night. As I entered the General was seated at the head of his dinner table (which had been cleared), while the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Chase, occupied a seat opposite him at the foot of the table. Habitually the General-in-Chief on my entrance in the evening, courteously inivted me to be seated; but now he seemed to have been engaged in earnest conversation, and as I advanced he said, quickly:

"Colonel Stone, how many men do you want to march on Richmond by the way of Manassas?"

I perceived that the general desired an instant reply, and said promptly: "Forty thousand, general;" and then quickly added: "With 15,000 in reserve."

"Well, sir, suppose I give you that force, how soon could you move?"

"That, general, would depend upon the quartermaster's and subsistence departments. I could move as soon as they could give me rations and transportation."

"Well, sir, suppose you had them. How fast would you advance?"

"Having all prepared, general, the advance guard of my force might be on the Rappahannock in three days, and——"

"Rappahannock! Rappahannock! what is that?"

"The Rappahannock river, general!"

"Oh! there is a river there, is there? Rappahannock river, eh? I wish that everybody knew that! Well, sir, what then?"

"Should the bridge be burned——?"

"Eh, there is a bridge over that river, and that bridge might be burned! I wish everybody knew that, too. Well, sir, if the bridges are burned?"

"Why, then, general, I would probably lose two or three days in forcing the passage of the fords. Then——" And so I continued to describe the advance.

"The general interrupted me with: "Why, Colonel Stone, you are taking forty or fifty days to get to Richmond!"

"General, I think that I would be fortunate to arrive there in that time in the place of an active enemy, fully acquainted with the country."

The old general said, as if thinking aloud: "I wish I could see General Totten. I wish I could see the chief of engineers."

I immediately left head-quarters to find General Totten, the chief of engineers of the Army. It was a rainy night, and to spare the aged general a damp walk I took a carriage and drove to his house. Abmitted immediately, I found the venerable General Totten and his gracious wife seated before the fire-place, in which a small fire had been kindled to keep away the dampness. Both welcomed me kindly and invited me to a seat between them; but I excused myself, and, apologizing for disturbing them on so damp an evening, said: "General, the General-in-Chief desires to see you at his head-quarters, and have a carriage in order that you may respond to his desire with as little inconvenience as possible."

In one minute the careful wife of his youth had thrown a cloak over the old General's shoulders, and a few minutes after I ushered him into the presence of the General-in-Chief.

There had been arrivals since my recent departure. Mr. Seward, Secretary of State; Mr. Cameron, Secretary of War, and General Thomas, Adjutant-General of the Army, were there. All rose as General Totten entered, and a chair was placed for him at the table, between General Scott and Mr. Secretary Chase. Mr. Cameron seated himself between General Scott and General Totten, while Mr. Seward stretched his length upon a lounge near by.

After a few words of compliment had passed, General Scott said:

"General Totten, I regret to have disturbed you on so disagreeable an evening, but I greatly desired your opinion on a military matter which is under consideration. How many troops would you consider it necessary to have to make a movement hence on Richmond by the way of Manassas?"

General Totten, as he sat there with his hands clasped on the table before him and his white head bending over his hands, in serious thought, looked the type of the scientific General. He replied, carefully and deliberataly: "General, I do not think it would be wise to undertake such an operation, without a force of at least fifty thousand men."

General Scott—Supposing such a force placed at your disposal, General how could you make the advance?

General Totten—I suppose that the Ordnance Department would probably have supplies sufficient for such a force, and the Engineer Department would be ready quickly; the great question of time would depend upon the procurement of transportation and of substance stores, etc.

Then came a series of questions and answers concerning the details of advance, almost identical with the questions which had been propounded to me, and to my great relief General Totten's answers were singularly like those I had already given to similar questions.

The General-in-Chief was greatly pleased. He turned to the Cabinet Ministers present and said. Really, gentlemen, here is a most extraordinary unanimity of opinion. I address a certain set of questions to a young Colonel, the youngest Colonel, perhaps, in the army, in whom one might expect to find a youthful enthusiasm and a too sanguine view of matters, and I receive a certain set of answers. I address the same set of questions to the oldest and most distinguished of our scientific general officers rich in the experience of two wars, and from him I receive almost identically the same set of answers. How can we explain such unanimity of opinion? Gentlemen, the only way I can explain it to myself is 'that it must be of their trade' that they have been speaking, and they speak from its principles." Then, growing more serious, the aged general-in chief said, impressively: "Gentlemen, this matter has now, unfortunately, gone beyond politics, and has become a military question. Most unfortunately it is so, most unfortunately! and now soldiers must settle it. Such being the case, since, unfortunately soldiers must settle it, you must allow the soldiers to do what they know they ought to do, and you must be careful not to force them to do what they ought not to do."

"There have now arrived and are in service seventy-five thousand three-months' men. There are rapidly coming in three hundred thousand two-years' and three-years men. What the soldiers know ought to be done is this: The three-months' men should be used to guard the District of Columbia—the whole District of Columbia. The two-years' and three-years' men as they arrive and as they shall arrive should be placed in large camps of instruction at strategic points along the frontier, say sixteen thousand men at Fort Washington on the Potomac; an equal force at Annapolis, Md., another here in the Capital; another say at Frederick, Md., another at Cumberland, Md., perhaps another at Pittsburg, Penn.; certainly one at Wheeling, Va., and one at Mariette, Ohio; also at Cincinnati, Ohio; Louisville, Ky.; Cairo, Ill., and other points on the frontier. There they should drill and drill and drill and discipline, guarding always the frontier. Meantime our gallant little navy should do all that it can to keep up a blockade of the entire southern coast.

"By the last days of September, or the first days of October, we can have the gun-boats ready on the Ohio River. By way, Mr. Secretary," said he, turning quickly to Mr. Cameron, "have you ordered for me that naval constructor I asked you for, to go under my orders to the West?"

"No, General, not yet," said Mr. Cameron; "but, General, I can furnish you with as many steamboats as you want on the Ohio river within seven days by contract."

General Scott said, a little impatiently. "Mr. Secretary, I do not want there even one old rotten contract steamboat. I want gun-boats, built to draw just as many feet of water as I say, to carry just as many guns as I say, and of just such caliber as I say. Sir, there is plenty of material for such gun-boats on those Western waters; there is plenty of mechanical skill there, and, sir, there is plenty of time!"

Mr. Cameron hastened to say to the Chief: "General, you shall have everything you want."

General Scott—Thanks, Mr. Secretary. Every thing I want is all that I want! Thanks! Well, then, I want the best practical naval constructor in the United States sent immediately to Louisville, Ky., to design and see constructed gun-boats. These boats can easily be finished before the first frost. Our southern friends, seeing the government apparently content with guarding the frontier, may not believe they are to be attacked, and may relax in their preparations. In any case our preparations being made on sound principles, I would have, by the 1st day of October next, assembled at the junction of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers an army of 150,000 armed men. I would send that western army, accompanied by the gun-boats, down to the Gulf of Mexico! At the same time I would send this army of 150,000 men hence to Richmond by the right road!

"If you act thus, if you allow the soldiers to do what they know they ought to do, I will answer for it that the Government of the United States shall have its flag and its authority recognized throughout the land, every inch of its territory, by the 4th day of next March, or at the latest by the 4th day of July following. If you do not thus act; if you make the soldiers do what they know they ought not to do; if you push these three-months men into battle just as they are all thinking of going home; if you push the two and three years men into battle just before they shall be organized; you will be beaten in the first general action of this war! You will consolidate what is now an insurrection, and make a rebellious government—which rebellious government you may be able to put down in two or three years; but I doubt it!"

Such were the words of America's greatest soldier in May, 1861. We all know the result. For the moment he succeeded in delaying rash movement. But later on the aged chieftain, worn out by the pressure brought to bear upon him, yielded to those in authority and those assumed to direct the authorities, and he in an evil hour consented to see sound military principles set aside and replaced by ignorant assumption. The three-months men were pushed into battle "just as they were thinking of going home;" the two and three-years men were pushed into battle, some of them before they were fairly organized. We were beaten in the first general action of the war. The insurrection did not become a strongly organized rebellious movement, which the government of the United States did not succeed in putting down in two or three years.

This Was Woman's Way.

The New York Times relates: A well-dressed young man, with a lady on each arm, approached the Battery-place elevated railroad station on the up-town side early last evening. As the three, walking abreast, stepped on the platform they became temporarily wedged between the posts supporting the awning. Like a flash a man who had just come down the steps leaned forward, caught the gold watch chain crossing the young man's waistcoat, snatched the watch from the pocket, and with it and the chain darted around the corner and up Greenwich street. Before the watch left the young man's pocket he and the ladies with him seemed to realize what was about to happen. As the thief started away the young man tried to disengage his arms and run after him, but the two ladies with one accord and great unanimity hung on to him. "You sha'n't go," they shrieked. "He'll kill you." "Let me go," shouted the young man, "he's got my watch." "You sha'n't," again chorused the ladies. The young man struggled and his coat began to peel off. The ladies caught him by the wrists and shrieked and held on. Two policemen came up and collared the young man, charging him with trying to rob the ladies. When the young man heard the charge and saw that the thief had disappeared he settled back into his coat, looked at his companions with infinite disgust, and simply ejaculated, "'Well, by——"

CUBAN WOMEN.

Languid Beauties Whose Only Exercise Is to Fan Themselves.

Every Cuban city resolves itself into a beauty show every afternoon, says a Havana correspondent. When the hot sun's rays slant so as to fill the streets with shade, the pretty girls, dressed in their thin, light costumes, pose themselves in picturesque attitudes in the windows, and enjoy looking out on the street scenes, and being looked at in return. The windows are as big as stable doors, and the sills, which are as wide as an ordinary sofa, and composed of cool marble squares or china tiles, are only a foot, or, at the most, two feet above the sidewalks. On these broad sills the pretty, big-orbed, languid beauties seat themselves in tailor fashion, or lie at half length, resting their backs against the window frames and displaying their small high-arched heeled shoes, and sometimes an inch of gay silk hose. I never saw one reading in fact, I never saw anybody reading in Cuba. Every club has a library, but the collections of volumes are very slender, and seem to be usually dusty and abandoned looking. The women and girls sometimes hum a pretty Cuban tune, sometimes chat or comment on the passers-by, but oftener are content to lie in dreamy indolence, fanning themselves with the easy, graceful mastery of their huge fans peculiar to Spanish and semi-Spanish women.

They lack vivacity. They are inactive. I saw every sort of them, and the only one who in my presence exhibited energy enough to run from a mouse was a ballet dancer in a theatre. In a parlor in Santiago six or eight were entertaining company. The night was cool, as all nights are in that land of promise, and a company of healthy American girls would have shown at their best. Some would have romped, some would have laughed outright at the mental efforts of others; not so the Cuban misses. Each girl came languidly in, dropped into a rocking-chair, opened a huge fan, and took a light part in a very light conversation. To be sure, they were proportionately as active in comparison with the men as American women are, for the heat subdues energy to such a degree that one never sees a man hurry, or allowed himself to be disturbed by work. A few hours of coolness in the evenings will not suffice to overthrow the results of every day heat. On board the Ward's steamer Newport, coming from Havana early in May, when the ocean atmosphere was refreshingly cool, a number of New York men endeavored to arouse the ladies, all Cubans or Spaniards, but they would not walk or dance or even talk very much. The most that could be coaxed from them was an occasional Spanish or Creole ballad, sung so sweetly and with such unlooked for spirit every time and by every lady, that all the passengers crowded the social hall, and even struggled for room in the gallery overhead.

Wallace and the Turkish Siren.

"Where is the lovely Turkish maiden which the Sultan presented to you," was asked recently of a large, handsome, olive-complexioned man who stood in the rotunda of one of the leading hotels in Washington. The question, being a somewhat singular one, attracted the attention of several gentlemen in the vicinity. The questioner was a reporter, and the gentleman addressed was Hon. Lew Wallace, of Indiana, the present United States Minister to Turkey. Wallace's name is more frequently in the newspapers probably than any man in the public service abroad. The explanation of this is that Wallace is one of the few foreign ministers who earn their salary by hard work in matters affecting the interest of citizens of the United States. He is a warm personal friend of the Sultan of Turkey. He gives that nabob the benefit of his advice in conducting the affairs of the Empire. In other words Wallace and his Royal Highness are "chums." Hence the story of "The Lovely Turkish Maiden." As told by Wallace, it was quite interesting. It seems that while discussing a bottle of Turkish wine at the Sultan's palace one day, the gallant Wallace admired the picture of a beautiful sun-browned siren hanging on the wall.

"You shall have it!" impulsively cried his Majesty.

"Oh no!" said the diplomat. "My country will not allow her representatives to accept gifts from foreign potentates.

"Then I shall loan you the charming beauty," was the prompt reply.

When Wallace arrived home he found four sturdy natives bearing the gentle maiden on their broad shoulders and he gave her a corner in his tasteful residence. His wife hearing that her spouse had been presented with a girl of surpassing charms, hastened home with fire in her eye only to find that it was but a picture. Then some enterprising newspaper published the story and clothed the fair being with flesh and blood. Since then Wallace has been besieged with letters and telegrams in reference to his harem. He says one object of his visit to this country now is to explode the rumor that he had accepted as a gift a fair daughter of the Sun. Wallace's life in Turkey must be a pleasant one. The doors of the Sultan's palace are always open to him. The United States has pleasant relations with that country. The skies are clear. The air is pure. Living is cheap. His salary is ample and the women are beautiful.

Who wouldn't go there?

General Gatherings.

There was such an extraordinary rush for tickets to a recent Sunday bull fight in Madrid that a riot was nearly caused, and the presence of several hundred horse and foot police was required to preserve order. About ten thousand persons of all ranks besieged the doors, some of them remaining all night at the approaches to the bull-ring, where tickets realized fabulous prices. The eagerness to gain admittance was occasioned by the appearance of a new bull-fighter, who is said to surpass all the most famous heroes of the bull-ring since the days of El Tato and Cuchares.

During the last sixteen years there have been ten divisions in the house of commons on the question of the enfranchisement of women. The following record of the results will be interesting at the present time: In 1867, for woman's suffrage, 81 against 202; 1870, 119 against 244; 1871, 159 against 228; 1872, 163 against 242; 1873, 172 against 239; 1875, 170 against 205; 1876, 161 against 248; 1878,155 against 235; 1879, 134 against 245; 1883, 163 against 179; 1884, 135 against 271.

The professors of the university of Jena, who have been investigating the effect of tobacco upon the human system, report that moderate quantities of the weed may be used without injurious effects. They say that in the German army soldiers in active service are very properly furnished with smoking tobacco, because smoking enables them to endure severer fatigue upon smaller nutrition and with greater alacrity and confidence than would otherwise be the case.

The Alps contain two peaks about 15,000 feet, six or seven about 14,000 feet, and in all about thirty which are called first-class peaks. The Himalayas, on the other hand, or rather the limited part of them with which we are familiar, contain peaks from 20,000 feet downward. More than 1,100 have been measured exceeding 20,000 feet, and it is computed that at least 2,000 exceed this height.

The coal miners of Pennsylvania say that their bitter opposition to the employment of Hungarians in the mines is not due to the matter of wages. "We don't care," they say, 'whether they pay these men more wages than they do us or not. It is not a question of wages. We might as well commit suicide as go into the mine with them, since they do not understand the manner of handling the safety lamp and may set off the gas at any time and burn us all to death. They don't know how to read, they can not tell the danger signs when they see them." The business men of the section, it is said, dislike the Magyars quite as strongly as the miners.

The World a Thousand Years ago.

Countries of the World.—A thousand years ago, and for long after, the world was not all the geologized, botanized, zoologized and mapped out earthly ball it is now. There it lay, according to the imagination of the men and women of those days—or rather, according to the monks; for the men, and far less the women, of those distant times troubled themselves very little about matters of this kind, but left it to the churchmen to meddle with such dangerous book learning—a flat plain, full of things mysterious and unknown and out of the four corners, through the gaps of four mountain ranges, which were placed there to keep it steady, blew the four winds of Heaven!

Of course, the center of it all was the little town, and county, parish, manor, barony or kingdom where they dwelt; but outside of that was no man's land. It was looked upon by our remote forefathers in much the same light as it is by the Chinese, who, while making maps of the Flowery Land on a scale so large as to show the ground plain of every town and village, mark all the countries outside of that magic boundary of theirs as "inhabited by barbarians." It was the land of the infidel," the people said, as they piously crossed themselves at the thought. All was mysterious to the travelers at that age. The unknown lands were full of dragons and giants, rocs, orcs, witchwhales, grffins, chimæras, enchanters, Paynims, Saracens, Emirs and Sultans, Kaisers of Constantinople, of Ind and Cathay and Cipango.

What a choice was there for a young traveler, a good knight and a proper man withal. If he had a mind he could steer his way to Lapland, where (as all the world knew) dwarfs forged chain armor of magic links, and where which-whales and ice moutains roamed about the chilly sea, or go south and join the Varangian Guard in Constantinople, or beard the Turk in Palestine; or into Egypt and win the Prince's daughter by killing a great dragon, as did St. George; or down to Cordova, where there were dire magicians; or into the forests of Brittany, where beauteous fairies sported—kindly immortals, who loved to be wedded to mortality—who emptied his water jars at night, and filled them with good Rhine wine ere dawn of day. He might even marry one, as did Sir Thomas, and pass a few days in Fairyland!

In Dread of Dynamite.

From a Paris Letter to the Boston Journal.

The dynamite vigil on the other side of the Channel is making the traveling public very sour against the English. In their clownish zeal the employes, who seem convinced that the explosive material is brought in from France, are frequently brutal, and are almost invariably impertinent. A well-known American attempted to jest with one of the guardians at Dover, the other day, by "clicking" in his hand, while the honest islander was peering into his valise, a small toy made to produce a noise like the ticking of a clock. At first the examiner's hair stood on end. And, when he saw the joke, he was wild with rage, "—— —— you," he said to the American, "I have a mind to knock you into the water! I'll teach you to try your Yankee game on me!" Click went the toy again. "I'll call a policeman, and have you locked up!" cried the examiner. "—— ——, I have a mind to knock you over the head. I'll have you to understand this is no laughing matter." And so, indeed, it is not. The consternation is widespread, and seems daily to deepen in degree. You have heard how Lord Harrington was detained the other day by a zealous fool, who thought there might be dynamite concealed within a wedding cake which some one had asked the noble lord to add to his baggage.

Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Publisher.

CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA.

The great Fair in New Orleans, which opens in December, is begining to attract the attentionn of thousands who wish to enjoy a relaxation of a few weeks or months from the rigors of a Northern winter and at the same time, witness one of the greatest exhibitions of modern times in one of the most cosmopolitan cities of the globe.

A warfare between the New York Central and Hudson River, and the West Shore systems has reduced fares to $5 from New York to Buffalo with a prospect of going sill lower. These roads run paralel and for long distances in sight of each other—hence the rivalry that pleases the public which gets the benefit much more than it does the stockholders.

France has made no progress in population since 1860. Its numbers are smaller now than they were 15 years ago, while the load of taxation has almost doubled—in mere debt charges it has more than doubled, while imports have argumented and exports decreased. It is alike facts that have caused great dissatisfaction among the people and the apprehensions of violent changes at no distant period.

The people all over Europe are settling down to the conviction that they are to have a visitation of cholera which will permit no place to escape, and are putting their houses in order for the scourge. The English have fondly hoped that their insular position would protect them from an invasion of the plague, but this pleasing idea has been rudely dispelled by the earnest reminder of the leading physicians that any ship sailing into these harbors from a Mediterranean port may infect the whole island.

The organ of the British grain trade states that the drouth this year in England has been the most severe and prolonged since 1868. But so opposite are the climatic conditions of England and the United States, that drouth, which in this country is destuctive to field crops, may be looked upon ordinarly in England in the light of a blessing. In one instnance an excess of moisture is normal, and in the other an excess of dryness. In 1868, therefore, the English wheat crop was the largest in twenty years. The authority from which we quote, however, shows that the drouth of 1884 has been accompanied by a temperature extraordinarily low, while that of 1868 was abnormally high. The crop outlook for 1884 is therefore less favorable.

The States did not always vote on the same day for president. In the campaign of 1844, which ended in Clay's defeat by Polk, twelve of the twenty-six States voted on the first Monday in November, three on the first Tuesday, three on the second Monday, and the others at different times, New Jersey taking two days for the business, beginning with the first Tuesday, Pennsylvania the first Friday and Ohio the last Friday, and South Carolina not choosing her electors until the Legislature met, about the first of December. The only requirement then was that the electors should be chosen within the thirty-four days preceeding the first Wednesday in December, but early in 1845 the present law was passed, which provides that all electors shall be chosen on the Tuesday next after the first Monday of November.

Watchers of Congress cannot have failed to notice the great increase in importance into which conference committees are growing. The fashion nowadays is to formally disagree to all amendments proposed by one house to a bill coming from the other, and refer the points in dispute to a committee of conference, composed of three members of either house. These six Congressmen can add, cut, and change the bills submitted to them pretty much as they choose, and their work is generally ratified without much objection or consideration of any sort. The custom has grown popular from the difficulty of getting the houses in free and open debate to agree to anything, and is, perhaps, a necessary device under the present code of rules. But it is a dangerous convenience, and greatly increases the responsibilities of the President of the Senate and Speaker, as they select all the conference committees.

A writer in the Century boldly argues that we are "a nation of rascals," and he cites a number of disgraceful instances where during the past twenty years, certain states and towns have repudiated, in whole or in part, or attempted to repudiate, their honest debts and contracts, deliberately defrauding their creditors who purchased their bonds out of both the principal and the interest due them. It is certainly a bad record but the proposition of the writer that our national Government should assume the repudiated and defaulted indebtedness of states and pay the creditors in full, principal and interest is not to be considered a moment. Aside from the injustice of making New York pay a portion of the repudiated debt of Mississippi, such an act would be a most dangerous precedent. Things are better as they have been from the first. Creditors of States have never looked to the United States for payment, nor creditors of counties and towns to the [illegible] have as provided [illegible] A departure from this custom [illegible]

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Washington News.

Internal revenue receipts last year fell off nearly $23,000,000 from the year before.

New offices—Henry Brayton, Brayton county Dak. Postmasters Commissioned—George Arnold, Cornell, Dak.; William P. Reynolds, Oak Hollow, Dak.

Col. Ike Hill, assistant sergeant at arms of the house of representatives, is not expected to live. He returned to Washington from the Ohio state convention about three weeks ago, and was taken with Bright's disease. He was removed to his home in Newark, Ohio, a few days ago, where he is now lying very low.

The president has appo inted G. H. Heap, of Pennsylvania secretary of legation at Constantinople, and Webster Flannigan collector of internal revenue, Fourth district of Texas. A circular has been issued by the treasury department promulgating the Chinese act, and inviting customs officers attention to its provisions.

The first report of the commissioner of internal revenue since the new law went into effect is instructive. There is an increase in the revenue from all classes of spirits, and the decrease of $23,000,000 is divided between the item of tobacco and articles upon which the tax is now repealed. The indications of the returns is that trade in all the taxed articles has increased.

Personal News Notes.

Langtry has sailed for England.

Henry A. Elkins, a well known landscape painter of Chicago, died of mountain fever at Georgetown, Colo.

Emma Abbott denies the truth of the report that she wanted to manage the New York Academy of Music next season.

Ex-Congressman John Hill of New Jersey died at Morristown, that state, recently. He was a member of the Fortieth, Forty-first, Forty second and Forty-seventh congresses, and sixty three years old.

Prof. George H. Darwin, son of the celebrated naturalist, was married at Erie, N. Y., on Tuesday, the 22d, to Miss Dupuy of Philadelphia, daughter of Charles Dupuy, president of the American society of Hugenots

An inventory of the estate of the late Cyrus H. McCormick shows stock and bonds aggregating $3,000,000, an interest of $1,870,000 in the harvester company, and real estate producing an income of $128,775, beside vast amounts of other property.

In the United States court at Wilmington, Del., on Thursday Moses Thomas, forty years of age, a jet-black native of the British dependency of Sierra Leone, on the western coast of Africa, appeared and took the oath of American citizenship. Moses is believed to be the first negro naturalized in Deleware.

Casualties of the Week.

Emerson, Smith & Co.'s extensive saw manufactory at Beaver Falls, Pa., was burned. Loss $30,000; partially insured.

The peanut factories of R. C. Marks and George Davis, at Petersburg, Va., were burned. Loss, $30,000.

the marriage.

The steamer J. M. Rowell capsized on the Monongahela river at Wood's Run, Pa., recently, and thirty persons, including the crew, were thrown into the river. All were rescued but a little child of William Harrison.

The unknown man recently found on the beach at Lake harbor, Muskegon, Mich., supposed to have been murdered, is now believed to be the missing brother of S. B. Vanhorn, dry goods merchant of Benton Harbor.

A. Overbolt & Co.'s distillery at Counsellersville, Pa., caught fire and in less than three hours the main building together with three bonded warehouses and 7,000 barrels of whisky were burned. The origin of the fire was either spontaneous combustion of mill dust or from a cigar left by workmen. The gross value of the whisky was $550,000.

As an east-bound passenger train left Terry, Mont., Tuesday night, William Schelor, a tramp, mounted a brake on one of the coaches. A short distance out he was thrown off and the wheels passed over his leg mangling it terribly and cutting his stomach so the bowels protruded. He died yesterday at Glendive. He was a son of George Schelor of Evansville, Ind.

Crimes and Criminals.

George A. Rich, editor of the Mohawk, N. Y., Independent, a weekly newspaper, committed suicide by hanging while temporarily insane.

Kate R. Merrills, a beautiful young widow of Mobile, Ala., was found outraged and murdered, and her body concealed in the grass in the suburbs.

Ed T. Sperry, son County Treasurer Sperry of Mayville, N. Y., devoted $19,000 of the county fonds to his own use, while the treasurer is short $90,000 and has fled the country.

W. S. Cavett, ex-sheriff of Simpson county, Ky., and now constable of Middleton, Ky., has been arrested on a warrant charging him with raping his daughter Sallie. The warrant was sworn out by his daughter.

A negro was found suspended to a tree close to an iron bridge across the river at Cameron, Tex. He recently robbed the residence of Rev. Lightfoot, and attempted to outrage Mrs. Lightfoot. He was captured and hanged. He confessed the crime.

At Maysville, Ky., Thomas R. Calvert was shot and killed by Robert Farrell. Farrell surrendered himself. He claims he shot Calvert in self-defense. Calvert was an old, respected citizen and Farrell is a horse-trainer and sporting man.

While temporarily insane, undoubtedly from the effects of liquor, Benjamin Foster of Seymour, Wis., heavily loaded an old-fashioned army musket with Buckshot and proceeded to look for his brother. His intended victim, by entering into conversation with the crazy fellow, managed to seize the musket, but was slightly wounded in the shoulder before he secured it.

Somebody stole into the back kitchen at the house of William Fritz, Muskegon, Monday night and put some "rough on rats" into the teakettle. On drinking coffee made from the water at breakfast four persons were poisoned —William Fritz, his two daughters, aged five and seventeen, and a boarder named John Sprick. A woman named Mollie Mulligan, suspected of the crime, has been arrested.

Rev. R. W. Smith, pastor of the Broadway Methodist Episcopal church of Sterling, Ill., is guilty of immoral practices with certain members of his flock. Charges were formulated by the presiding elder, who convened an ecclesiastical court, the trial ended July 25th, and resulted in a unanimous verdict of guilty, and his suspension from the ministry. Many facts were drawn out in the trial which are unfit for publication.

General News Items.

Revivalist Harrison made one hundred converts at Lode Bluff, Ill., on Wednesday.

Suits will be begun against 2,000 Cincinnati saloonkeepers who have failed to take out licenses under the Scott law.

State Statistical Agent Young, of Minnesota estimates the state wheat acreage at 2,757,218, and the probable yield at 45,000,000 bushels.

Aug. 20 has been fixed as the date of the convention of the lumbermen, who will decide whether or not Northwestern sawmills will be shut down after Sept. 15.

Charles Crocker, one of the Central Pacific's "big four" millionaires, testified in the Colton case that he began his business life at the age of nine in Troy, N. Y., where he peddled oranges and sold newspapers on the street. [illegible]

It is stated that notes of the National Rubber company, R. I., have been protested. It is denied, however, that the company has failed. [illegible] the annual statement showed liabilities of $781,[illegible] Gov. Bourn, treasurer of the company [illegible] the outstanding [illegible]

Regularly every year Thomas Conroy, an industrious shoemaker of Tanner's Falls, Pa., receives official notice from Dublin, Ireland, that a fortune of £5,000, with the accumulations of twenty-six years, is in bank there awaiting his order, and regularly every year he sends back word that he will never touch a penny of the money until he has had justice done him in another way, an apology from his uncle, who had wronged him.

The extensive dry goods house of Wear, Boogher & Co., at the corner of Sixth and St. Charles streets, St. Louis, assigned to Nathan Cole. The assets of the firm are given at about $620,000, embracing goods and merchandise, $440,000; open accounts and bills receivable, $172,000; other matters, $5,000. The liabilities are not definitely known, but will aggregate about $450,000.

John C. S. Harrison, resigned as receiver of the Indiana banking company, Indianapolis, which failed last August, for $750,000. This action is the result of the suspension of Harrison's bank. Nothing positively is known conceiving the condition of his accounts as receiver, but it is understood that the resignation was the result of pressure. His successor will be named Wednesday.

Ex-Gov. John P. St. John of Kansas, being interviewed at Rochester, N. Y. said: While at Lakeside recently, where I delivered a temperance lecture, I received a telegram from a friend at Pittsburg informing me of my unanimous nomination by the Prohibition party for the presidency. In view of the fact of my unanimous nomination I feel that I must accept. The temperance cause is gaining steadily throughout the country, and we are as certain of final victory as that God is just. The campaign will be earnest and aggressive. We will not, however, indulge in abuse of men or parties, but will appeal to the reason of intelligent voters."

Foreign Flashes.

On July 11 Mr. Gladstone had been prime minister for 9 years and 147 days, one day longer than Lord Palmerston.

Sir Laurence Peel is dead in London. He was a cousin of Sir Robert Peel, and born in 1799. He wrote a life of Sir Robert Peel.

Many of the chief physicians of London have given a warm reception to Dr. Durant. The doctor has given numerous conferences, in which he explained his methods of treating cancers without a knife.

The great German shooting festival, which has just been concluded at Liepsic, is admitted on all sides to have been the most imposing event of the kind in modern times. All the arrangements were on a colossal scale, far exceeding those of any previous schuuetzenfest, and even dwarfing the great prize meeting for British riflemen now in progress at Wimbledon. The number of visitors almost equaled the permanent population of Liepsic, being estimated at 100,000.

The excitement in Quebec in apprehension of the cholera is great. The government is being almost daily asked to take further precautions in regard to quarantine and system of inspection. A French barque will arrive in a few days at the small port of Decoumaines, below the Saguenay river, in the St. Lawrence from Marseilles, where cholera is raging, and there is no quarantine at the place. The government will give orders not to allow the boat to land until thoroughly disinfected.

Truth's Paris Cable: The official report gives the number of deaths from cholera at Marseilles during the past twenty-four hours at 44, and at Toulon 32. Unofficial reports place the number of deaths at Marseilles at 71. The convent at Marseilles has been compelled to close its doors, and the nuns, to the number of eighty, have fled. The lady superior has issued an appeal, for prayers on their behalf, that they be preserved from worldly tempters. Twenty thousand persons have fled from Arles. There is difficulty in procuring enough coffins in which to promptly inter the dead.

Ex-Gov. Walter Harriman Dead.

Ex-Gov. Walter Harriman, died at Concord, N. H., on the 25th, aged 67. Mr. Harriman was born at Warner, N. H., in 1817. He acquired considerable local renown as teacher, Universalist preacher, democratic politician and orator. From 1863 to 1865 he commanded the Eleventh New Hampshire, volunteers in the civil war. In 1865-'7 he was secretary of state of New Hampshire, and republican governor in 1867-'9. He afterward held the position of naval officer of the Port of Boston, being appointed by President Grant.

Effects of the Late Tornado.

The cyclone which swept over a portion of Montana, Dakota, and Minnesota on Monday appears to have had its origin near Fort Assinaboine, Montana. Gathering strength as it progressed in a southeasterly direction, it passed over several hundred miles of territory and finally split upon reaching Sioux Falls, and did not pass far south of that point. The cyclone was about fifteen miles in width, and did considerable damage, a few lives being lost and a considerable area division of the Northern Pacific, the wind, rain and hail was very heavy and delayed the trains. No damage or casualty has, however, been reported from that section. On the line of the Omaha the storm was severest. At Sibley, the wind mill wheel attached to a flour mill was blown away and the damage will amount to $2,000. The crops in the vicinity were not much damaged. At Bigelow, a small building was blown from its foundation. At Ashton several houses were blown down, a girl thirteen years of age was killed, and an old man fatally injured. The crops were slightly damaged. At Luverne the damage will reach $10,000. Several unfinished houses were completely destroyed. One grain warehouse, containing 4,000 bushels of wheat, was demolished. The roofs of two brick blocks were blown off and the Baptist church steeple destroyed. Barns, sheds and outhouses were blown over. Grain was flattened out and considerable blown out by the roots. The storm lasted about thirty minutes and came west by northwest. At Dora small grain at Rock Rapids was blown down in places. Small grain at Rock Rapids was also blown down. The new Norwegian church at Beaver Creek, just being completed, was totally destroyed. One man killed and two seriously injured. The crops were flattened but the majority will straighten. At numerous other points there was more or less damage done.

In Dell Rapids there was great loss. The school house was totally destroyed; loss, $2,000. The congregational church is a total wreck; loss, $25,000. The Methodist church was so badly wrecked that it must be taken down; loss, $1,000. The Presbyterian church roof and tower were blown off. The wind was strong enough to partly tip it over; then it fell back to its place. Damage, $500. The old Baptist church was moved from its foundation and little injured. The new Baptist church was right in the range with the first three churches, but suffered least. A chimney blown down and the whole glass broken was the only damage. It was dedicated in June. Episcopal hall and church were damaged $200. The Milwaukee depot branched off and sags in the center. The Western hotel roof was damaged $100. The Exponent newspaper office was damaged $25, and the skating rink flat, $1,000; two large warehouses, $2,000; Crossman Bros'. general merchandise store was blown flat and a large stock of goods damaged badly. Total loss, $5,000.

In the country fifteen houses were blown down in the Fulmer neighborhood, in Moody county, west of Dell Rapids. A house four and a half miles northeast was caught by wind, and slid fully a mile into a slough. Three and a half miles north Harvey Moore's barn was flattened. Ten horses in it were unhurt. Three of them were tied to a manger, which was blown several rods, and led the horses that distance. Milo Johnson's barn, three and a half miles northwest, 40x50, was blown off its foundation. George Wood's house and barn were destroyed seven miles northeast. Five miles southeast, James Carrother's large barn was destroyed, stock in it not hurt; loss, $800. C. Reed's barn, one mile north of town, was leveled. E. F. Pierce's barn, one mile north, was ruined. Wm. Morgan's barn was destroyed and Alexander's granary overturned. Alden Pattler's barn, ten miles north, was ruined; loss $400. Ten miles north, Alden Burdell's large new barn was ruined; loss, $2,000. In the same vicinity Peter Bowman's house, barn and granary are all gone. The family remained in the cellar unhurt; loss, $800. Dexter Brown's new house was ruined; loss $600. Joseph Brown's 16x22 house wholly disappeared; loss $800. The house of Arthur Brown, in that vicinity was blown down. Mr. Dilley's house was blown down. W. G. Blow's buildings were all rocked and injured. John Halles' house was destroyed; loss, $300. William A. Wood's house was wrenched so as to require rebuilding. All the farmers, says the [illegible] crops are wholly ruined in the belt specified.

THE GRAND ARMY.

Annual Meeting of the Grand Army of the Republic at Minneapolis—An Immense Gathering of Veterans and Citizens.

The Annual Meeting of the Grand Army of the Republic at Minneapolis was a grand affair, as regards attendance of Veterans from nearly all the Northern States, the ceremonies attending the meeting, the associations connected with the occasion, and the ample provisions for sheltering and otherwise entertaining the army. The old fair ground in the southern part of the city was converted into a camp, the various buildings converted into lodging houses, and the grounds dotted with thousands of tents, while adjoining were neat eating houses. The great mass of veterans were here accommodated while thousands found shelter and food in various parts of the city. Viewed from the Amphitheatre or grand stand on the fair grounds, presented a picture to be always remembered. Six hundred and fifty tents almost completely filled up the space inclosed by the track, race while their snow white walls and waving banners make a pleasant picture upon the background of the plain. Here and there a silken banner of elegant design floated from the tents, and marked the headquarters of a state delegation. In the town headquarters were established in hotels for the various states, which were continually thronged by citizens and soldiers in search of fields and former comrades. As the streets and buildings were decorated in the most elaborate and tasteful manner.

There were many arrivals on Sunday, and on Sunday night and Monday, trains were constantly coming in from all quarters. Bands of music were playing in every direction, and veterans marching to their respective quarters, while distinguished officers were taken in charge by citizens who were proud to entertain them. At noon on Tuesday those who had come in, assembled at the grand amphitheatre to witness the welcoming ceremonies. The stand was filled with the officers of the National Encampment, Minnesota Department, local posts, and with the speakers. The latter were Commander-in-chief Beath, Department Commander Babb, Gov. Hubbard and Mayor Pilsbury. There was also upon the stand, Gov. J. M. Rusk, of Wisconsin, and body guard consisting of six one-armed and six one-legged veterans, ex-Gov. Lucius Fairchild, of Wisconsin, Gen. Paul Vandevoort, post commander, Senior Vice Commander Warner, of Missouri, Gen. Chas. Grosvenor, of Ohio, Gen. John H. Gibson, of Ohio, and others. Governor Lucius F. Hubbard, made a welcoming address on behalf of Minnesota, and commander-in-chief Gen. Beath responded. Mayor Pilsbury of Minneapolis gave the city,s welcome, and a response was made by Senior Commander Warner, of Missouri. Other speeches and responses were also made, squads and battalions of blue-coated men were landed in the city at almost every hour during Monday night. The Tuesday morning trains came similarly loaded, the noon trains resembled the others that had preceded them, and troop after troop arrived by the trains that came as the day waned. In the streets of the city the scenes of the preceding day were re-enacted, save that the thoroughfares were more crowded and the number of Grand Army boys had been increased from probably 10,000 to 20,000. Wisconsin came up with Gov. Rusk and ex-Gov. Lucius Fairchild, Gen. Tom Allen, Gen. Ross of Washington (accompanied by six veterans without arms and six with one leg gone). Gen. Wm. Tecumsch Sherman eluded the "boys" who were in wait for him and found his way to the head quarters of the State of Missouri, where hundreds called to see him. Their badges recalled the remotest of states, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from the international boundary to the Gulf—the far away frontiers being conspicuously well represented. At a late hour Gen. Logan, Grand Commander. Gen. Negley and other noted officers arrived. A large number of citizens surrounded Gen. Logan's carriage and filled the air with cheers, which were taken up and repeated by the veterans at the West hotel and in the vicinity. Some of the latter, amid cries of "There is Black Jack, and natural as life!" added the suggestion, "Let's carry him into the house!" and a movement was made with that object in view, but the carriage started off toward the residence of Gen. Washburn, Generals Logan and Negley being his guests. In the evening of Tuesday there was a "camp fire" on the Fair grounds, attended by a vast crowd. The speakers were a little belated, but in due time Gen. Logan was introduced and made a patriotic speech. He was followed by ex-Gov. Lucius Fairchild of Wisconsin, Gen. Warne, and others. After the speeches many retired to their cots, but others did not, and there was "music in the air" until nearly morning.

On Wednesday, the day of the grand procession, it is estimated there were 100,000 strangers in Minneapolis. The parade itself with its 7,500 in line gave the first index to the number of old soldiers in the city. The roster of many of the departments demonstrate that only about one-half of the entire number in attendance upon the reunion participated in the parade, many being physically unable to stand the heat and the long march. The bands more than twenty in number, not including the drum corps, seemed to enter into the zest of the thing. The blare of their trumpets was not confined to the marching. Serenades and parades upon their individual account were frequent. Crowds gathered long before even the advance guard of the procession had begun to form. Many a house top was crowded with people anxious to witness the grand spectacle, and the brilliancy of the decorations of the buildings was enhanced by their windows which were crowded with visions of beautiful faces, in settings of nebulous lace and creamy muslin. The enthusiasm rose and fell as the waters of the sea. The section that Logan was in could be followed about the city by the thunders and shouting that followed it everywhere. The old Minnesota battle flags were another feature that set the crowd roaring, likewise the remnant of the First Minnesota volunteers. Many of those that walked have wooden legs, many of them are walking lead mines, and not a few of them were shot full of holes. Such conditions are not salubrious, and, in deference to the decrepitude of a large number of the veterans, the line of march was confined to three miles, this even being too much for some of them. On the sidewalks, then, of this contracted line were compressed the hordes already spoken of, the result being a squeeze, a jam, and a pressure, which only a steam guage of the highest test could measure. At a suitable point, Gen. Logan, Gen. Sherman, and other notables took a position and reviewed the column as it marched. The procession was one hour and twenty minutes passing in review. Some of the citizens along the line of march, with rare thoughtfulness, provided large pails and tubs of ice water, with cups and glasses, for the veterans to slake their thirst as they passed by. One of the most interesting and amusing features of the procession was a cavalcade of "Sherman's bummers," marching through Georgia and "living on the country." Horses, equipments, bridles saddles and riders, composed a perfect fac simile of a class as are known to those who are familiar with war history. Hanging to saddles and the backs of the horses and about the riders, were strings of chickens, turkeys, hams, cabbages, pigs, and everything conceivable for camp fare, and one had, perched on the pommel of his saddle, a bright, bareheaded little negro boy, from three to four years old, who was delighted with his distinguished position and the cheers that greeted his appearance. The 200 children sitting on the pyramid on bridge square sung and waved flags to the old veterans. It was a beautiful sight to behold, and it was appreciated by the old warriors.

The first division of the procession was composed of military, headed by a large body of police. Next to the three squads of police were the Twenty-fifth regiment U. S. A. (colored band, followed by Company B, C, F and I of that regiment, which is stationed at Fort Snelling, comprising 150 men commanded by Col. Andrews, but in immediate command of Col. Lawson; battery F, Fourth artillery, sixty men, eighty pieces, under command of Major Smith; Mankato band, Second regiment band, followed by Second regiment, five companies, Col. Bobleter commanding. First regiment band, ten companies of state guards, 175 in line, under Col. Bend; Woll Toce rifles, twenty-four in line, accompanied by fife and drum corps under Capt. McArdle; Gen. Terry and staff, Governor Hubbard and staff, Gen. Logan, Grand Commander Beath and other veteran generals mounted and in carriages.

The second division was composed of the Veterans of the first Minnesota, 150 men, carrying old tattered battle flags. Following came the members of nearly 100 Posts of the Grand Army in Minnesota. Then Dakota strongly represented. Following Dakota came the Ohio representation of fifty-six men, under command of Gen. H. P. Slago, of Cincinnati, Colorado, twenty men under Gen. S. B. Carr.

The Third division was headed by the old vets, who were in line to the number of 1,000 men, representing thirty posts, all under the command of the gallant Phil. Cheek, Jr. Next came the Indian delegates, 210 in line under command of Edwin Nicar. The Green Mountain state with only thirty men followed, C. C. Lineman commanding, and Kentucky brought up the rear with a delegation of four. The fifth division one of the strongest in the line. With a band at the head, Kansas took the lead with 1,200 men from all parts of the state. The Flambeau club, one of the most noted organizations of the country, came next, and their handsome white uniforms attracted universal attention. Iowa contributed a quota of 1,500 next in line, under command of B. B. Cook. Illinois followed with 300 under L. T. Dickinson. Then in order followed; Massachusetts, with thirty-five men; officers and members of the National Relief corpse and Connecticut, fifteen men under command of F. Berry. In the afternoon of Wednesday the G. A. R. command at the coliseum which holds 5,000 people, Commander in Chief Robert B. Heath and most of the general officers being present. Nearly all of the council of administration were present. The roll of delegates was then read and each delegation was reported present in whole or in part—a number of those regularly chosen not being in attendance. Commander-in-Chief Beath then read his address which was very long. He stated that the returns for the quarter ending June 30 are necessarily incomplete, but gains reported by the departments for the quarter makes the total membership at that date 253,895. On March 31, 1883, thirty-two departments reported 2,575 posts and 146,183 members. On March 31, 1884, thirty-six departments reported 4,323 posts and 233,595 members, a gain in these twelve months of four departments and 1,748 posts, and 87,412 members.

Gen. Logan entered the room and was received with cheers, being introduced by Gen. Beath as the first commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., and was again loudly applauded as he took a seat with the Illinois delegation. The reports of the several staff officers were next read and distributed to the delegates in attendance preceded by the introduction of Gens. Sherman and Logan from the platform in the midst of approving plaudits.

Chaplain-in-Chief Foster delivered a brief report, and Adj. Gen. Vanderstice submitted his official statement of the G. A. R. membership, showing thirty-two permanent and four provisional departments, with a total membership in good standing on March 31, 1883, of 146,183. At the same date in 1884 the membership was 233,595, being a gain for the year of 87,412 members. The number of members relieved was 6,324, and the amount expended for relief $153,364.30.

Quartermaster General John Taylor reported $64,363.66 received during the past year, and the total expenditures $48,988.03, leaving a balance on hand on the 30th of June of $15,375.63, with $2,748.01 due from departments; total assets, $19,002.03. The amount paid for the relief of distressed comrades in Pensecola was $2,301.01, leaving a balance to the credit of the fund of $1,262.71.

After the appointment of committees the meeting adjourned.

On Thursday, there was a round of minor reunions and receptions of more or less prominence, and apparently but little abatement of the good spirits of the veterans, many of whom showed none the less effects of the round of excitement and of inadequate rest. The National Encampment resumed its sessions at the Coliseum. William Warner of St. Joseph, Mo., from the committee on the establishment of a soldiers' home west of the Mississippi, gave a history of the work by which the act was secured.

Corporal James Tanner of Brooklyn, N. Y., chairman on the committee of pensions, and representing a majority, submitted a report showing the proposed legislation affecting the pensions to soldiers and sailors, and the efforts of the committee to secure a revision of the existing laws. Many of the relief measures introduced were pronounced unreasonable, impolitic and unwarranted, especially those entitling soldiers to warrants to the public lands without settlement, or granting high pensions to those who had not been injured in the service. It favored liberal pensions to widows and minor children and to honorably discharged soldiers injured or incapacitated by disease, since the expiration of their term of service. Gen. Paul Vandervoort of Nebraska, contested for land warrants, etc., but the majority report was adopted.

The encampment proceeded to the election of officers. For commander-in-chief John O. Burst of Illinois was nominated. Gen. Robinson of Indiana, nominated Gen. J. R. Carnahan of Indiana. Kansas presented the name of Thomas J. Anderson. On the call of the State of Missouri Gen. Sherman stepped to the front of the platform, and was received with wild applause. The commander-in-chief introduced him as Comrade Sherman. He made a warm speech in favor of William Warner of Missouri. After three ballots, there being no choice the encampment adjourned.

During the day the Illinois veterans gave a rousing reception to Gen. Logan. The ex-Andersonville prisoners, and the Sibby prisoners, had a meeting and about 70 accepted an invitation from comrade C. C. Seeley of Minneapolis to go to Lake Park Minnetonka, where they had a bounteous dennis, speechs, &c.

The Fifth Minnesota comrades in attendance upon the G. A. R. formed an association meeting at headquarters, Camp Beath, on Wednesday evening, and at a meeting Thursday morning Capt. J. G. McGrew was elected president, Capt. G. F. Hatch and Capt. E. R. French, vice presidents; A. W. Williamson, secretary; and I. W. Arnold, assistant secretary. Col. L. F. Hubbard, Surgeon W. H. Leonard and I. W. Arnold were appointed a historical committee. All comrades are especially requested to send the address and present occupation of those known to them to the secretary, A. W. Williamson, postoffice box 900, Rock Island, Ill., also brief obituaries of those who have died since discharge, or addresses of persons who can furnish the same.

At the camp fire Thursday evening Gen. Sherman was present and made a speech Commander Babb, introduced Miss Marion Howell, who read a poem entitled "Gettysburg: Charge of the first Minnesota," composed by H. L. Gordon of Minneapolis. Miss Jessie Bryant, a daughter of one of the survivors of the First Minnesota, recited "Sheridan's Ride."

In the evening the Acker Post, no 21, of St Paul entertained a large number of comrades in fine style.

At a meeting of the 8th, Minnesota a permanent organization was effected, of which Maj. Camp was unanimously elected chairman, and A. H. Bertram secretary. The secretary requests all members to apprise him by postal card of the name, county and postoffice address of themselves or any comrade of the Eighth, that the names may be entered on a register to be kept for that purpose. All communication directed to A. H. Bertram, secretary, Monticello, Wright county, Minn., will receive prompt attention.

Officers of the Grand Army.

The last day of the grand meeting at Minneapolis the officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows:

Commander, John S. Kountz, of Ohio. Senior Vice-Commander, John P. Rea of Minnesota. Junior Vice-Commander, A. M. Way. Chaplain-in-chief, J. W. Shannafell, Mich. Surgeon-general, William B. Hall, Pa.

John S. Kountz, who succeeds Gen. R. B. Beath as commander-in-chief, is the youngest man who has thus far occupied that high position. He was born at Toledo, Ohio, on the 25th of March, 1846, and enlisted as a drummer boy in the Thirty-seventh Ohio when only fifteen years of age. He was with the regiment in every battle in which it participated, until he received his desperate wound at Missionary Ridge, where he was left for dead on the field, and was subsequently rescued by his comrades —the incident being the inspiration of Mrs. Sherwood's poem, "The Drummer Boy of Mission Ridge."

The following were elected as the new council of administration:

Arkansas—Thomas H. Barnes, Fort Scott.
California—W. H. Holmes.
Colorado—C. D. Haskins.
Connecticut—Fred A. Spencer.
Delaware—W. H. Purnell.
Illinois—W. W. Berry.
Indiana—P. P. Hammond.
Iowa—John K. Peal.
Kansas—H. S. Millard.
Kentucky—Samuel T. Jenk.
Maine—F. W. Haskell.
Maryland—W. O. Laville.
Massachusetts—H. B. Pierce.
Michigan—Samuel Wells.
Minnesota—W. P. Roberts.
Missouri—J. S. Sterritt.
Nebraska—J. O. West.
New Hampshire—D. B. Nowhall.
New Jersey—J. R. Vansyckle.
New Mexico—J. J. Fitzgerrall.
New York—Herman K. Fox.
Ohio—J. J. Sullivan.
Pennsylvania—Samuel Harper.
Potomac—John Cameron.
Rhode Island—W. J. Bradford.
Vermont—L. F. Terrill.
Virginia—H. De B. Clay.
Wisconsin—Phil Cheek, Jr.
Washington Territory—H. V. Daniels.
Oregon—B. B. Tuttle.
Dakota—John R. Denins.
Tennessee—E. S. Jones.

An interesting incident of the day was a motion to pay from the general funds the sum of $500 to John F. Johnson the first Minnesota veteran, who had his leg crushed by a horse car while hailing a comrade. This was passed with a shout and in a few minutes voluntary contributions from various states increased the sum to $3,000.

Rev. Moncure D. Conway will preach his farewell sermon in London on the 27th, preparatory to coming to America and locating in Washington.

MINNESOTA NEWS NOTES.

Reunion of the First Minnesota Regiment.

The veterans of the First Regiment Minnesota Volunteers held their annual reunion at Minneapolis on the 22d. There were over three hundred in line when the march was made to the train that conveyed the jubilant throng to the Lyndale, which was the scene of the festivities. The following of the field and staff were present. Col. William Colville of Red Wing, Maj. W. H. Dyke of Faribault, Maj. C. B. Heffelfinger of Minneapolis, adjutant W. B. Leach of Iowa, quartermaster, Francis Bacon, of New Ulm; chaplain, Rev. E. D. Neal, St. Paul; surgeon, J. H. Murphy, St. Paul; surgeon, D. W. Hand, St. Paul. While waiting for the cars that were to take them to Lake Calhoun, the veterans got together and reviewed old times amid great hilarity. Over three hundred men were counted in the line, and a pleasing sight was several young girls marching beside their fathers. Nearly two hours intervened before the banquet, and the time was devoted to an informal reunion and discussion of matters of common interest. Especially interesting was the group that gathered around the old flag—i. e., what is left of it. It is a precious relic, which the First regiment would not part with for the world. The dinner at the Lyndale hotel was a grand affair. The walls were appropriately decorated with martial emblems. Large banners, each bearing the name of one of the battles in which the First regiment figured, were arranged around the walls at intervals. H. L. Gordon, who provided introduced Mayor Pillsbury, who gave the vets. a warm welcome. Rev. E. D. Neill offered prayer. In response to toasts and calls speeches were made by ex-Senator Windom, Gen. J. H. Baker, Hon. J. B. Gilfillan, Gen. Logan, ex-Gov. Pillsbury, Capt. O. C. Merriman, W. D. Washburn, Col. W. L. King, Gen. Kegley, Gen. Rossor, ex-confederate, etc. After dinner came a business meeting. A number of old soldiers were made honorary members, among whom were Maj. Haskell, of the Nineteenth Maine. A subscription was started for Mr. Johnson, of Company A, of the First Minnesota battalion, who lost his leg on Monday afternoon, in this city by being run over by a street car. A few minutes elapsed, and the collector reported $97, and Mr. William Lochren was delegated to convey to Mr. Johnson the money and the deep symyathy of his comrades. The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—Capt. Baasen, New Ulm.
Vice President—F. Casey, New Ulm.
Treasurer—James Cannon, Mankato.
Secretary—Col. S. F. Hansdorf, St. Paul.

CONCERNING THE STATE FAIR.

Publications of the Premium List, Which Shows Liberal Offers for Horses, Cattle, Hogs, Sheep and Farm Products.

The premium list of the twenty-sixth annual fair of the Minnesota State Agricultural society, to be held at Owatonna Sept. 8 to 13, inclusive, has just been issued, and makes favorable promise for a successful exhibition. As usual competition is open to the world, and the arrangement for the transportation of exhibits and their reception and display are admirably complete. Except in the speed ring there are no entrance fees. New buildings on a large scale have been erected for the convenience and use of exhibitors. It is promised that hotel rates and transportations to and from the fair grounds will be on the most reasonable scale. The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, the Chicago & Northwestern, the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapol's & Omaha, the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba, the Northern Pacific, and the St. Paul & Duluth railroads make the following rates:

Passengers fare and one-fifth the round trip. Freight will be charged full rate to Owatonna, and must be prepaid, when it will be returned free to points on the line whence shipped.

The Minneapolis & St. Louis road gives free freight one way.

DIRECTIONS TO EXHIBITORS.

It is set forth that the fair will be on so extensive a scale that it will be of the greatest importance to exhibitors that they give early notice to the secretary by correspondence, of intention to exhibit, stating amount of space, pens or stalls required, that provision may be made for their accommodation. The entry book will close Monday night, September 8th.

In the class of thoroughbred horses the premiums aggregate $140; Norman, Clydes and other heavy horses, $115; Clydesdale draft stallions, $110; sweepstakes for draft stallions, $50; for trotting strains, including sweepstakes of $50 for trotting stallions, $460; short horned cattle, $165; Devons, do; Halsteins and Jerseys a similar amount each; herd premiums of $40 for each class and for best herd of any breed or age, $75; premiums for dairy products, $340. For sheep, hogs, poultry, flowers, fruits and vegetables, domestic manufactures, grain, etc., the premiums, while not large, are liberal and numerous. Copies of the premium list or any information may be had by addressing the secretary, R. C. Judson, at Farmington.

The following is a list of the principal losses by the tornado of Monday, the 21st, at Luverne Rock county. Bank of Luverne, roof blown off. Baptist church, steeple blown down. A. A. Noble's new residence, blown in pieces. Freeman Avenue hotel barn, with several horses inside, somewhat injured, all blown to pieces. N. Nelson's drygoods store, tin roof removed and part of front blown out. Luverne house barn, second story blown off and several small buildings near it blown to pieces. C. Smith's newly completed residence blown from its foundation. The skating rink, 40x100 feet, blown from its foundation and partly blown over. Hicks grain warehouse blown down. Union block cornice and part of the roof taken off. Nearly every outhouse and detatched shed in town was blown to pieces or tipped over. Chimneys all over town were blown down.

The report of the department of agriculture for July is just out. It reports a decrease in the acreage of corn in Minnesota, although it says in the area west of the Mississippi and north of Missouri, the extension has been greatest because settlement and cultivation of new lands are more noticeable there. In Minnesota the decrease noted in the acreage of corn is due to the scarcity of good seed, and it was impossible for the farmers to get a full supply such as they could depend upon this spring. Potatoes are suffering seriously from the ravages of the bugs, of which a new variety is reported to have made its appearance in some localities. This variety is reported as being a small black bug. The favorable weather during the last of June and the first part of July has advanced the corn crop in Illinois very rapidly. The stand is fair, and in the northern and central parts of the state particularly the ground is unusually clear.

Jerry Baldwin, a pioneer settler and highly esteemed citizen of Greenwood Prairie, died at his residence Wabasha county Friday afternoon, of lung disease, aged fifty-eight years. He was buried with masonic honors Saturday afternoon, Rev. Henry Willard officiating.

The mystery surrounding the cause of Herman Berkholtz's sudden death at Rock Rapids is still unsolved. The Chicago chemist who analyzed the stomach found no traces of poison. Berkholtz died very suddenly, and it was suspected that he had been poisoned.

Two new elevators on the Little Falls & Dakota, at Westport and Cyprus, have been completed, and the machinery will soon be placed in position.

Blank Gray, supposed to have escaped from the asylum at St. Peter, has been arrested at Mindora.

The new German Catholic church at Stillwater, called the "Immaculate Conception," was dedicated recently. The consecration service, according to the usual Catholic ritual, was celebrated by Bishop Ireland, assisted by a number of the clergy, in the morning. At this ceremony only the clergymen are permitted to be present. At its conclusion the lay membership of the different Catholic societies of Stillwater, St. Paul, Minneapolis and elsewhere were admitted, and solemn high mass was celebrated by Mitered Abbot Edelbrock, of St. John's abbey at Collegeville, Minn.

A correspondent says equal parts of camphor, opium (laudanum), rhubarb and ether, if taken in doses of 17 to 24 drops, will instantly check incipient diarrhœa. Mnemonically the dose can be remembered by the letters C. O. R. E., and the cost will not exceed ten cents.

The main event at Lake Minnetonka on Sunday last, was the arrival of Gen. Sherman and party at the hotel St. Louis. The general was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Rachel, and his son, P. T. Sherman. Others of the party were French Rayburn, private secretary to the general, Miss Rayburn, Theodore W. Fitch, Gen. Sherman's son-in-law, and the Hon. John R. Lionberger.

The state tournament of the Minnesota fire departments, to be held at Faribault on Aug. 21 and 22 promises to be largely attended; $825 is offered in prizes, and the contests include many athletic sports.

Jake Thomas, working for Mr. Sullivan of Haven, Sherburne county, is believed to have drowned himself, as he disappeared after writing a letter to his employer telling him to send his wages to his little daughter.

Hennepin county has paid into the state treasury $73,523.13 for the June settlement of taxes. This is the largest sum due the state from a single county.

The delegates at large from Minnesota to the convention of Catholic total abstinence societies, to be held in Chicago Aug. 6, are J. F. Carrere, St. Paul; John O'Brien, Stillwater, and P. Morna Minneapolis. Almost all the societies in the state will be represented by delegates, and the convention will be one of the largest and most important connected with temperance ever held in the United States.

The valuation of all property in Hennepin county is $103,299,648.

There were only from 350 to 400 of the First Regiment of Minnesota Militia in camp at Lake Calhoun.

Curtis Lord, of Lord Bros., druggists, of Shakopee, while out at Prior lake, accidentally shot himself in the left leg while handling a 38-caliber double-action revolver. The wound is not dangerous.

Jacob R. Hickok of the town of Lyle, Mower county, was killed by falling from his wagon in a fit. He had recently bought the Peter Nelson farm, and had just moved his family there from Dane county, Wis.

The Canadian Pacific has carted its terminus over to Emerson, but the Manitoba will follow it there, and there will be no interruption of international traffic.

Bishop Grace's twenty-fifth year in the episcopate closes this week.

The statement of the condition of the bankrupt firm of Mayo & Clark of St. Paul is mainly interesting from the discrepancy between the nominal and actual assets, as determined by the receiver. The resources of the firm, as stated in the first schedule, were $137,088.08. The actual value of the items included was found to be $95,687.90.

While Lewis Chipman of Kellogg, Wabasha county was curbing a well at that place, the curbing gave way and Chipman was buried alive.

In the case of the State vs. Burdick for kidnapping at Willmar, the defendant waived examination, and was bound over to await the action of the grand jury. A stipulation was agreed upon in the habeas corpus case against Mrs. Gale, giving the custody of the child to Mrs. Burdick until a final decision in the premises should be reached.

The town of Park, Becker county is highly excited. The latter part of last week John Edis, a Swede, reported that after absence, he returnrd to his home and found his wife lying in the garret dead. The neighbors were suspicious and notified the coroner, who called and reported matters all right. The neighbors claim that the coroner neglected his duty, as the woman's neck was broken, which would not be the case if she had suicided. The suspicion was grounded on the fact that when Edis came to this country he left his wife in Sweden, being accompanied by a daughter who occupied a bed with him continually to the exclusion of his wife. The result of this illicit cohabitation is a boy, who is now three years old. The girl was not at home on the day of the tragedy.

Stanbro, the Hawluy, Minn., abscounder, was brought up for trial at Winnipeg. Cattel, private secretary to the superintendent of the express company, swore that the prisoner forged the name of A. M. X. Hulgeson, to whom a parcel of money was consigned. Hall, assistant superintendent of the company swore that when he arrived here Stanbro acknowledged having committed forgery and used money, and acknowledged other embezzlements, but stated he was crazed with drink, and did not know what he was doing. The case was adjourned.

The assessed valuation of real estat in Faribault is $1,176,145; of personal property, about $800,000—making a total of nearly $2,000,000.

The first boat of the new line of steamers connecting with the Manitoba at St. Vincent for Winnipeg left St. Vincent on Tuesday night. She carried a fair load, and the projectors are sanguine of success in the new movement. This action has been threatened for some time, and was caused by the poor service rendered by the Canadian Pacific in transporting freight received from the Manitoba consigned to Winnipeg.

J. J. Hohl, a dealer in agricultural implements at Hokah, had both legs badly cut by a harvester.

A severe thunderstorm with heavy wind occurred at Lake City during Tuesday night and a great many limbs from the maple shade trees were broken off. Several farmers report that their uncut barley was badly damaged by the storm.

At Wabasha, during the gale of Monday the county poor house was entirely blown off; damage, $1,000. A large barn, belonging to a man named Affeld, near the poorhouse, was reduced to flinders. The blacksmith shop of John Thill, was stripped of brick veneering on one side, and otherwise damaged. Hay and barley, which was in process of stacking, was blown away, and shade trees were badly twisted and many of them broken down.

The heaviest thunder shower of the season passed Rochester Tuesday night. Rain fell in torrents, but was unaccompanied by hail. The heavy wind lodged and tangled grain badly, much of which will not get straight before harvest. Just as the storm was over the court house was struck by lightning, which did some damage to the interior of the building.

A. Dorrick, a young German working in B. Donahoo's quarry, half a mile north of Rochester was struck by lightning and instantly killed. His companions saw him clamber up from the ledge to the top of the excavation, some fifteen feet above, and he had just reached the ground level when the fatal flash came. He was very much mutilated, his clothing torn from his right side, and his flesh burned to a crisp. His pocketknife was torn to pieces and thrown some distance, and shreds of clothing were picked up rods away. He fell back on the ledge where he was found with a gaping wound in his head and a three-cornered gash in his heel, where the electric fluid entered and left his body.

Willmer Special:—The community was astonished recently by the arrest of J. W. Burdick, one of Willmer's oldest and most respected citizens, for kidnaping. Some three years ago Mrs. H. R. Gale, wife of the editor of the Republican Gazette, obtained a divorce from her former husband, Horace Brown, a son of Judge Brown, on the charge of drunkeness. The issue of this marriage was a girl, now about nine years of age. In the decree the present Mrs. Gale was allowed the custody of the child as long as she could properly care for it. Meantime Horace Brown reformed, and is now the county attorney of Marshall county and publisher of the Argyle Banner, and is said to be prosperous. About six months ago he took unto himself another wife, who is now with him on a visit to Judge Brown. The child has been staying with Judge Brown for some time past. Sunday night it was taken away, and it transpired that Mr. Burdick, who is Mrs. Gale's father, had taken it home to its mother. Burdick alleges that he and Mr. Gale were out riding Sunday night; the girl came out on the sidewalk and greeted them, they stopped and inquiring whether she wanted to go home, to which she assented. This, they claim, is all the kidnaping there is to it. A writ of habeas corpus has been issued for the child.

Andrew Ludwein of St. Cloud has been held to the grand jury for shooting at his wife.

Tramps broke into I. W. Bouck's store at Royalton, and appropriated seven boxes of cigars, about twenty pounds of tobacco, some purses, a satchel, etc.; but, strange to say, did not disturb the cash drawer.

A new military company has been organized in Winona composed entirely of Germans. Fifty names are already enrolled, and the success of the company is a fixed fact. Gov. Hubbard has been duly notified and a request made for guns. The officers are as follows: Captain, Otto Von Rautenkranz; first lieutenant, August Peterson; second lieutenant, William Werner; orderly sergeant, R. Muswick.

OUTLINED BY GEN. LOGAN.

The Vice Presidential Candidate's Letter of Acceptance discussing All the Issues of the Campaign.

Points of the Republican Platform Dilated Upon and Southern Bourbons and Polygamists Treated with Severity

Both Parties Collecting Campaign Funds in Washington—The Irish Deserting Cleveland's Cause

Gen. Logan's Letter.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The following is Senator Logan's letter accepting the nomination:

Washington, D. C., July 19, 1884.—Dear Sir: Having received from you on the 24th of June official notification of my nomination by the national Republican convention as the Republican candidate for vice president of the United States, and considering it to be the duty of every man devoting himself to the public service, to assume any position to which he may be called by the voice of his countrymen, I accept the nomination with grateful heart and deep sense of my responsibilities, and if elected shall endeavor to discharge the duties of the office to the best of my ability. This honor, as is well understood, was wholly unsought by me. That it was tendered by representatives of the party, in a manner so flattering will serve to lighten whatever labors I may be called upon to perform. Although the variety of subjects covered in the very excellent and vigorous declaration of principles adopted by the late convention prohibits, upon an occasion calling for brevity of expression, that full elaboration of which they are susceptible, I avail myself of party usage to signify my approval of the various resolutions of the platform, and to discuss them briefly.

PROTECTION TO AMERICAN LABOR.

The resolutions of the platform declaring for the levy of such duties "as to afford security to our diversified industries and protection to the rights and wages of laborers, to the end that active and intelligent labor, as well as capital, may have its just award, and the laboring man his full share in the national prosperity," meets my hearty approval. If there be a nation on the face of earth which might, if it were a desirable thing, build a wall upon its every boundary line, deny communion to all the world and proceed to live upon its own resources and productions, that nation is the United States. There is hardly a legitimate necessity of civilized communities which cannot be produced from the extraordinary resources of our several states and territories, with their manufactories, mines, farms, timber lands and waterways. This circumstance, taken in connection with the fact that our form of government is entirely unique among the nations of the world, makes it utterly absurd to institute comparisons between our own economic systems and those of other governments, and especially to attempt to borrow systems from them. We stand alone in our circumstances, our forces, our possibilities and aspirations. In all successful governments it is a prime requisite that capital and labor should be upon the best terms and that both should enjoy the highest attainable prosperity. If there be a disturbance of the just balance between them, one or the other suffers and dissatisfaction follows, which is harmful to both. The lessons furnished by the comparatively short history of our own national life, have been too much overlooked by our people. The fundamental article in the old Democratic creed proclaimed almost absolute free trade, and this, too, no more than a quarter of a century ago. The low condition of our national credit, the financial and business uncertainties, and general lack of prosperity under that system can be remembered by every man now in middle life. Although a great number of reforms have been instituted by the Republican party, sufficient credit has not been publicly awarded to that of

TARIFF REFORM.

Its benefits have nevertheless been felt throughout the land. The principle underlying this measure has been in process of gradual development by the Republican party during the comparatively brief period of its power, and to-day a portion of its antiquated Democratic opponents make unwilling concession to the correctness of the doctrine of an equitably adjusted protective tariff by following slowly in its footsteps, though a very long way in the rear. The principle involved is of no great obscurity, and can be readily comprehended by any intelligent person calmly reflecting upon it. The political and social systems of some of our trade-competing nations have created working classes miserable in the extreme. They receive the merest stipend for their daily toil and put to great expense for necessities of life; are deprived of those comforts, clothing, housing and health-producing food, which, with wholesome mental and social recreation, can alone make existence happy and desirable. Now if the products of those countries are to be placed in our own markets, alongside American products, either the American capitalist must suffer in his legitimate profits or he must make the American laborer suffer in an attempt to compete with the species of labor above referred to. In case of a substantial reduction of pay there can be no compensating advantages for the American laborer, because the articles of daily consumption which he uses, with the exception of articles not produced in the United States, being especially provided for, as coffee and tea, are grown in our own country and would not be affected in price by a lowering in duties. Therefore, while he would receive less for his labor his cost of living would not be decreased. Being practically placed upon the pay of the European laborer, our own would be deprived of facilities for educating and sustaining his family respectably. He would be shorn of proper opportunities of self-improvement and his value as a citizen charged with a portion of the obligations of government would be lessened.

THE MORAL TONE

of the laboring class would suffer, and in turn the interests of capital and well-being of orderly citizens in general would be menaced, while one evil would react upon another until there would be a general disturbance of the whole community. The true problem of good stable government is how to infuse prosperity among all classes of people—the manufacturer, farmer, mechanic and laborer alike. Such prosperity is preventive of crime, is security for capital, and the very best guarantee of general peace and happiness. The obvious policy of our government is to protect both capital and labor by proper imposition of duties. This protection should extend to every article of American production which goes to build up the general prosperity of our people. The national convention, in view of the special dangerous menace to the wool interests of the United States, deemed it wise to adopt a separate resolution on the subject of its proper protection. This industry is a very large and important one. The necessary legislation to sustain this industry upon a prosperous basis should be extended. No one realizes more fully than myself the great delicacy and difficulty of adjusting the tariff so nicely and equitably as to protect every home industry, sustain every class of American labor, promote to the highest point our great agricultural interests, and at the same time to give to one and all the advantages pertaining to foreign productions not in competition with our own; thus not only building up our foreign commerce, but taking measures to carry it in our own bottoms. Difficult as this work appears, and really is, it is susceptible of accomplishment by patient and intelligent labor, and to no hands can it be committed with as great assurance of success as to those of the Republican party.

OUR MONETARY SYSTEM.

The Republican party is the indisputable author of a financial and monetary system which, it is safe to say, has never before been equaled by that of any other nation. Under the operation of our system of finance the country was carried through an extended and expensive war, with a national credit which has risen higher and higher with each succeeding year, until now the credit of the United States is surpassed by that of no other nation, while its securities are at constantly increasing premium, and are eagerly sought after by investors in all parts of the world. Our system of currency is most admirable in construction. While all the conveniences of bill circulation attach to it, every dollar of paper represents a dollar of the world's money standards, and as long as the just and wise policy of the Republican party is continued, there can be no impairment of the national credit. Therefore, under the present laws relating thereto, it will be impossible for any man to lose a penny in bonds or bills of the United States, or in bills of the national banks. The advantage of having a bank note in the house which will be as good in the morning as it was the night before, should be appreciated by all. The convertibility of currency should be maintained intact, and the establishment of an international standard among all commercial nations, fixing the relative values of gold and silver coinage, would be a measure of peculiar advantage.

INTERSTATE, FOREIGN COMMERCE AND FOREIGN RELATIONS.

The subjects embraced in the resolutions, respectively looking to the promotion of our interstate and foreign commerce, and to the matter of our foreign relations, are fraught with the greatest importance to our people. In respect to interstate commerce, there is much to be desired in the way of equitable rates and facilities of transportation, that commerce may flow freely between the states themselves, diversity of industries and employments be promoted in all sections of our country, and that the great granaries and manufacturing establishments of the interior may be enabled to send their products to the seaboard for shipment to foreign countries, relieved of vexatious restrictions and discriminations in matters of which it may emphatically be said "Time is money," and also of unjust charges upon articles destined to meet close competition from the products of other parts of the world. As to our foreign commerce, the enormous growth of our industries and our surprising production of cereals and other necessities of life, imperatively require that immediate and effective means be taken through peaceful, orderly and conservative methods to open markets which have been and are now monopolized largely by other nations. This more particularly relates to our sister republics in Spanish America, as also to our friends, the people of the Brazilian empire. The republics of Spanish America are allied to us by the very closest and warmest feelings, based upon similarity institutions and government, common aspirations and mutual hopes. The "great republic," as they proudly term the United States is looked upon by their people with affectionate admiration and as a model for them to build upon, and we should cultivate between them and ourselves closer commercial relations which will bind all together by ties of friendly intercourse and mutual advantage. Further than this, being small commonwealths in the military and naval sense of the European powers, they look to us as at least a moral defender against the system of territorial and other encroachments which, aggressive in the past, has not been abandoned at this day. Diplomacy and intrigue have done much more to wrest the commerce of Spanish-America from the United States than has legitimate commercial competition. Politically we should be bound to the republics of our continent by the closest ties, and communication by ships and railroads should be encouraged to the fullest possible extent consistent with wise and conservative public policy. Above all, we should be upon such terms of friendship as to preclude possibility of national misunderstandings between ourselves and any members of the American republican family. The best method to promote uninterrupted peace between one and all would lie in the meeting of a general conference or congress whereby, an agreement to submit all international differences to peaceful decision of friendly arbitration might be reached. An agreement of this kind would give to our sister republics confidence in each other, and closer communication would at once ensue; reciprocally advantageous commercial treaties might be made whereby much of the commerce which now flows across the Atlantic would seek its legitimate channels, to inure to the greater prosperity of all American commonwealths. The full advantages of a policy of this nature could not be stated in a brief discussion like the present.

FORCING POLITICAL RELATIONS.

The United States has grown to be a government representing more than fifty millions of people, and in every sense excepting that of mere naval power is one of the first nations of the world. As such, its citizenship should be valuable, entitling its possessor to protection in every quarter of the globe. I do not consider it necessary that our government should construct enormous fleets of approved iron-clads and maintain a commensurate body of seamen in order to place ourselves on a war footing with the military and naval powers of Europe. Such a course would not be compatible with the peaceful policy of our country, though it seems absurd that we have no effective means to repel wanton invasion of our coast and give protection to towns and cities against any power. The great moral force of our country is so universally recognized as to render an appeal to arms, either in the protection of our citizens abroad or in recognition of any just iternational right, quite improbable. What we most need in this direction is the firm and vigorous assertion of every right and privilege belonging to our government or its citizens, as well as an equally firm assertion of rights and privileges belonging to the general family of American republics situated upon this continent, when opposed, if ever they should be, by different systems of government upon another continent. An appeal to right it by such a government as ours could not be disregarded by any civilized nation. In the treaty of Washington we led the world to means of escape from the horrors of war, and it is to be hoped that the era when international differences shall be decided by peaceful arbitration is not far off.

EQUAL RIGHTS OF CITIZENSHIP.

The central idea of the republican government is the rule of the whole people as opposed to other forms which rest upon a privileged class. Our forefathers, in the attempt to erect a new government which might represent the advanced thought of the world at that period upon the subject of governmental reform, adopted the idea of the people's sovereignty, and thus laid the basis of our present republic. While technically a government of the people, it was in strictness only a government of a portion of the people, excluding from all participation a certain other portion, held in a condition of absolute, despotic and hopeless servitude, the parallel to which, fortunately, does not now exist in any other Christian nation. With the culmination, however, of another cycle of advanced thought, the American republic suddenly assumed the full character of government of the whole people. Four million human creatures emerged from the condition of bondsmen to the full status of freemen, theoretically invested with the same civil and political rights possessed by their former masters. The subsequent legislation, which guaranteed by every legal title, citizenship and full equality before law in all respects this previously disfranchised people, amply covers requirements and secures to them, so far as legislation can, the privileges of American citizenship. But the disagreeable fact that while, theoretically, we are in the enjoyment of government of the whole people, practically we are almost as far from it as we were in the ante bellum days of the republic. There are but a few leading and indisputable facts which cover the whole statement of the case. In many Southern states the colored population is in large excess of the white. The colored people are Republicans, as are also a considerable portion of the white people. The remaining portion of the latter are Democrats. In the face of this incontestable truth those states invariably return Democratic majorities. In other states of the South, colored people, although not a majority, form a very considerable body of the population, and with white Republicans, are numerically in excess of the Democrats; yet precisely obtains, the Democratic party invariably carrying the elections. It is not even thought advisable to allow an occasional or unimportant election to be carried by the Republicans as a "blind" or as a stroke of finesse. Careful and impartial investigation has shown these results to follow the systematic exercise of physical intimidation and violence, conjoined with the most shameful devices ever practiced in the name of free elections. So confirmed has this result become that we are brought face to face with the extraordinary political fact that the Democratic party of the South relies almost entirely upon the methods stated for its success in national elections. This unlawful perversion of popular franchise, which I desire to state dispassionately and in a manner comporting with the proper dignity of the occasion, is one of deep gravity to the American people in a double sense.

THE SAME POLITICAL RESULT

First, It is in violation, open, direct and flagrant, of the primary principles upon which our government is supposed to rest, viz., that the control of government is participated in by all legally qualified citizens in accordance with the plan of popular government that majorities must rule in the decision of all questions.

Second, It is in violation of the rights and interests of states wherein are particularly centered the great wealth and industries of the nation, and which pay an overwhelming portion of the national taxes. The immense aggregation of interests embraced within and forming much the greater population of these other states of the union, are subjected every four years to the dangers of the wholly fraudulent show of numerical strength. Under this system minorities actually attempt to direct our national affairs, and though up to this time success has not attended their their efforts to elect a president, yet success has been so perilously emminent as to encourage repetition of the effort at each quadrennial election and to subject the interests of the overwhelming majority of our people to the hazards of illegal subversion. The sterotyped argument in reputation of this plain truth is that if the Republican element was really in the majority they could not be deprived of their rights and privileges by the minority; but neither statistics of population nor the unavoidable logic of the situation can be over-ridden or escaped. The colored people of the South have recently emerged from the bondage of their present political oppressors. They have had but few advantages of education which wight enable them to compete with the whites. As I have heretofore maintained, in order to achieve the ideal perfection in popular government it is absolutely necessary that the masses should be educated. This proposition applies itself with full force to the colored people of the south. They must have better educational advantages, and thus be enabled to become the intellectual peers of their white brethren, as many of them undoubtedly already are. A liberal school system should be provided for the rising generation of the South, and colored people be made as capable of exercising the duties of electors as white people. In the meantime it is the duty of the national government to go beyond resolutions and declarations on the subject, and to take such action as may lie in its power to secure the absolute freedom of national elections everywhere to the end that our congress may cease to contain members representing fictitious majorities of their people, thus misdirecting the popular will concerning national legislation, and especially to the end that in presidential contests great business and other interests of the country may be placed in fear and trembling lest the unscrupulous minority should succeed in stifling the wishes of the majority. In accordance with the spirit of the last resolution of the Chicago platform, measures should be taken at once to remedy this great evil.

FOREIGN IMMIGRATION.

Under our liberal institutions the subjects and citizens of every nation have been welcomed to a home in our midst, and on compliance with our laws to co-operation in our government. While it is the policy of the Republican party to encourage the oppressed of other nations and offer them facilities for becoming useful and intelligent citizens in the legal definition of the term, the party has never contemplated the admission of a class of servile people, who are not only unable to comprehend our institutions, but indisposed to become part of our national family, or embrace any higher civilization than their own. To admit such immigrants would be only to throw a retarding element into the very path of our progress. Our legislation should be amply protective against this danger, and if not sufficiently so now, should be made so to the fullest extent allowed by our treaties with friendly powers.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

The subject of the civil service administration is a problem that has occupied the earnest thought of statesmen for a number of years past, and the record will show that, toward its solution many results of a valuable and comprehensive character have been attained by the Republican party since its accession to power. In the partisan warfare made upon the latter with a view to weakening it in the public confidence, a great deal has been alleged in connection with the abuse of the civil service, the party making indiscriminate charges, seeming to have entirely forgotten that it was under the full sway of of the Democratic organization that the motto "to the victors belong the spoils," became a cardinal article in the Democratic creed. With determination to elevate our governmental administration, to strengthen justice, excellence, and public morality, the Republican party has sedulously endeavored to lay the foundation of a system which shall reach the highest perfection under the plastic hand of time and accumulating experience. The prrblem is of far greater intricacy than appears upon its superficial consideration, and embraces subquestions of how to avoid abuses possible to the lodgment of an immense number of appointments in hands of the executive, of how to give encouragement to, and provoke emulation in various government employes in order that they may strive for proficiency, and rest their hopes of advancement upon the attributes of official merit, good conduct and exemplary honesty, and how best to avoid the evils of creating a privileged class in the government service, who, in imitation of European protypes, may generally lose all proficiency, and value in the belief that they possess a life calling only to be taken away in case of some flagrant abuse. The thinking, earnest men of the Republican party have made no mere wordy demonstration upon this, but they have endeavored quietly to perform that which their opponents are constantly promising without performing. Under Republican rule the result has been that without engrafting any objectionable features of European systems upon our own, there has been a steady and even rapid elevation of civil service in all its departments, until it can now be stated without fear of successful contradiction that the service is more just, more efficient and purer in all its features than ever before since the establishment of our government, and if defects still exist in our system the country can safely rely upon the Republican party as the most efficient instrument for their removal. I am in favor of the highest standard of excellence in the administration of the civil service, and will lend my best efforts to the accomplishment of the greatest attainable perfection in this branch of our service.

REMAINING TWIN RELIC OF BARBARISM.

The Republican party came into existence in a crusade against the Democratic institutions of slavery and polygamy. The first of these has been buried beneath the embers of the civil war. The party should continue its efforts until the remaining iniquity shall disappear from our civilization under faithfully executed laws. There are other subjects of importance which I gladly touch upon did space permit. I limit myself to saying that while there should be most rigid economy in governmental administration, there should be no self-defeating parsimony either in our domestic or foreign service. Official dishonesty should be promptly and relentlessly punished. Our obligations to the defenders of our country should never be forgotten, and the liberal system previously provided by the Republican party should not be imperilled by adverse legislation. The law establishing a labor bureau, through which the interests of labor can be placed in an organized condition, I regard as a salutatory measure. The eight hour law should be enforced as rigidly as any other. We should increase our navy to a degree enabling us to amply protect our coast lines, our commerce, and to give us a force in foreign waters which shall be a respectable and proper representative of a country like our own. The public lands belong to the people, and should not be alienated from them, but reserved for free homes for all desiring to possess them. And finally, our present Indian policy should be continued and improved upon, as our exerience in its administration may from time to time suggest. I have the honor to subscribe myself, sir, your obedient servant,

JOHN A. LOGAN.

To Hon. John B. Henderson, Chairman of the Committee.

Russian Police.

Those familiar with the Russian espionage and remorseless despotism of the Russian police find therein one cause for the growth of nihilism. The wife of a former English embassador at St. Petersburg was told by the head of the police that he knew everyone who went in and out of her house, and that each day he received a report of what there was said and done. "You are welcome to know all, as far as I am concerned," replied the lady, with a laugh, "for you can't send me to Siberia."

The chief looked at her with a smile and then made a remark which she never forgot. "Do you suppose," he he said, "it would be necessary for me to speak to take away a person's character? Not at all. If there was a question as to that person in society, and I shrugged my shoulders, thus intimating that he or she was suspected, that person would be ruined."

The English lady knew of a lady who was living in a hotel. One day she received a friendly hint that she had better be on her guard as to what she said or did in her room, as she was watched. The walls of her apartment looked all right, but on tapping them she found one place which was hollow.

She discovered, on further examination, that the winter supply of wood was piled up in the hotel yard against the wall of her room. In that wall there was a space where a man could stand and see everything that went on in the room, and the occupant would not be aware of his presence.

The English lady also relates the following incident as illustrating how far the hands of the secret police reach, when they choose to stretch their arms:

In the summer of 1850, when we were living at the Forestier's, we were just starting one lovely evening for a row on the Neva, when a carriage drove up with two ladies in it, who turned out to be Princess R. and her cousin.

The latter, a charming Pole, had but lately arrived at St. Petersburg, having been ordered to come there for political reasons. She was living at Paris when one day the Russian Charge d'Affaires walked into her room, and to her great surprise and consternation informed her that she was to go to St. Petersburg instantly. She happened to be in delicate health, and quite unfit to travel in the middle of winter, so with difficulty she was allowed to postpone her departure till the navigation opened; and then she arrived, having never been in Russia before. The first visit she paid was to a country woman of her own, who exclaimed,—

"Why, what are you doing here? are they going to send you to Siberia?"

This was not promising, and she begged in vain to be brought face to face with her accusers, or to be told what she had done. She was merely told she must remain at St. Petersburg, or run the risk of having all her property confiscated.

One day we were all invited to a party at the islands to visit a gypsy camp and hear their music. The Princess cousin arrived, looking as pale as death, so I went up to her and inquired whether she was ill.

She said no, only worried and could she speak a few words to me privately. So we drove together to the gypsy camp, and then she informed me she had heard that her only son, a boy of seven or eight years old, was dangerously ill at Vienna.

She had applied that morning for leave to go to see him, but had been refused, and she was so unhappy she knew not what to do.

I did my best to comfort her, and from that time we became very intimate, and I saw a great deal of her.

She was kept about six months at St. Petersburg, whilst her papers were being examined.

At the end of that time the head of the police told her that as there was no proof against her, she was at liberty to depart; so to her intense delight she was able to return to her family.

Capt. Perrins had an indecisive fight with Indians in Arizona on the 15th, and had to leave them in their entrenchments.

Personal Mention.

Minister Sargent says: "Bismarck is now intensely conservative. He is working in every possible way to conserve the landed interests and thus control their support. To do that he does not shrink, so far as America is concerned, to disregard the provisions of treaties now existing between the two countries, and he beleives he can do it with perfect impunity.

A correspondent of the San Francisco Chronicle tells a funny story of how he used to go visiting with Joaquin Miller in Washington. That was before Joaquin cut his hair, and then he carried it all carefully fixed up with hairpins. They would reach the house and ring the bell. If the lady was out, they would go away. If she were at home, Joaquin would take off his hat, carefully take out the hairpins, let the hirsute mass fall over his shoulders and march into the drawing-room with the poetic stride of Walker of Nicaragua.

The first monument to a woman raised in the United States was unveiled at New Orleans last Wednesday in memory of Margaret Haughery, known as the Orphans' Friend, whose benevolence was extended to all worthy calls for assistance. The statue, which is of Italian marble, represents Margaret sitting in a chair clasping an orphan to her side, while her hand rests upon the child, who is bending forward looking up into her face.

Thomas M. Griffiths, the civil engineer who constructs the suspension bridge at Minneapolis, Minn., is at present living on Staten Island. He has been engaged for two months past in the construction of a model of a suspension bridge which is to be exhibited in the New Orleans cotton exposition this fall. The model is sixteen feet in length, and will involve new improvements in suspension bridge construction, by which such structures are to be made more secure against danger from storms, and more stable. The model is for a regular roadway bridge, and will make a handsome addition to the New Orleans exhibit.

The other day, after dinner in Eaton square, London, much to the amusement of the neighborhood, a young nobleman in full evening dress, rode for a bet a racer up his steps into the hall, thence to his dining room, and out again. Those exploits used to be confined to the old castle squander, Sir Toby Rackrent, six-bottle, fifteen-paces era in Ireland. A gentleman there, styled Jerusalem Whaley, rode one of his coach horses up the grand staircase of his residence in Stephen's Green, Dublin, and into the dinner room, where his guests were assembled.

What a Young Woman Wrote.

The Columbia (Ga.) Sentinel publishes the following:

GEORGETOWN GA. 6-20-84.

MY DEAR HONEY:—I have just laid aside my work and have taken my pen in hand to show you that I do think about you in fact the trouble is to keep from thinking about you all this afternoon just before commencing dinner I felt so lonely that I didn't know what to do now as I never had such feelings before I met you I cannot help but think I must be in well if I am in love with you I am sure I have no need to be ashamed of it you see when I got the potatoes and was about to have them for dinner I just thought how nice it would be if I was just doing that for your dinner and mine only in our snug little house when are you going to get your license I think you are so long about it I aint in a hurry but then I would like to get married if we are going to do it at all and not be fooling away all these short summer evenings as ever your DARLING.

Two young men attending the military academy eloped with two young seminary girls some time ago, and were married by a justice of the peace at Rochelle, N. Y. The young ladies are said to be Lydia and Mary Wills, daughters of a wealthy paper manufacturer, now deceased, and are quite wealthy. The young men are Frederick M. McNally of Detroit and Henry G. Wallings of Chicago. They are mere boys, neither being of age. The young ladies are about the same age at the boys. The girls say they only married for fun. An effort is to be made in the courts to annul.

Agonizing Pain.

I suffered pain and torture for forty-eight hours with pain and soreness all through my back and chest. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil relieved and cured me.

MRS. E. SYKES, 80 Chestnut St.
Springfield, Ohio.

For three years I suffered with a pain in my chest and side which over a dozen skillful doctors failed to remedy. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has made me a well man.

G. G. PARKER, Ashley, Luzerne, Pa.
GEORGE H. DART, Sas City, Iowa.
ED. S. ROWLEY, Davenport, Iowa.
VICTOR A. LOITER, Danville, Pa.

The above gentlemen state Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil cured them of catarrh. In fact it is almost infallible for catarrh—has cured thousands—and with deafness the following is truly wonderful:

Buffalo, N. Y., Apr. 12, 1884.

For twenty years I was so hard of hearing, people considered it hard work to talk to me. I tried all the cures advertised—and ear doctors—and my case was finally pronounced incurable. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil was recommended—I used it three times (by dropping in the ears) and not over a tablespoonful altogether. It cured me, and so thoroughly, I can now hear as well as any one; also used it for catarrh with immediate relief.

JNO. J. FORD, 198 Folsom St,
Buffalo N. Y.

The president has made the following special rules for the regulation and improvement of the civil service: First—The names of all persons who shall have successfully passed their examination under the civil service act previous to July 18, 1884, may remain on the register. Persons are eligible for appointment two years from the date of their respective registrations unless sooner appointed. Second—The appointments to 150 places in the pension offices provided to be filled by the act of July 7, 1884, except so far as may be filled by promotion, must be separately apportioned by the appointing power, as nearly in conformity with the second section of the act of Jan. 16, 1883 as the need of filling them promptly and the residence of applicants will permit.

From Head to Foot.

The posmaster at North Buffalo, Pa., Mr. M. J. Green, says St Jacobs Oil, the great pain-conqueror, cured him of pains in the head, and also of frosted feet.

James Callinan shot and killed a young married man named George Nichols, in Chicago Tuesday night, because the latter interfered to prevent the son of Callinan from beating a young child.

Thirty deaths from cholera at Marseilles in one night, and twenty-eight deaths at Toulon. A panic was created at Toulon Monday night by the arrival of one hundred coffins ordered from Marseilles. In order to allay the excitement it was found necessary to send the coffins back. At a meeting of the municipal council of Paris, the director of public aid declared that no case of genuine Asiatic or sporadic cholera had been reported at the Paris hospitals, and deaths attributed to cholera are really due to other causes. Between 9 and noon Tuesday there were eight deaths from cholera at Marseilles.

Joseph N. Conter, a young man residing in St Paul, has been missing since the Fourth of July. His father resides at Shakopee, where he has a limekiln. The young man has been assisting at the agency in St Paul. He is twenty-four years old, crippled in both legs, walking with a cane, has light sandy mustache, light complexion, and is about five feet four inches tall.

Affairs in Ireland have been portentious of late. There is now some fear on the part of Chief Secretary Trevelyan and others of a dangerous agitation next fall against the system of rents rated by the local judiciary. The rulings of the magistrates have been generally moderate and considerate, and the order from the Irish office has been that they should lean to the tenant rather than to the landlord, so as to prevent a general depreciation in values in Irish farming lands. It is claimed, however, that the magisterial judgment is often warped by local and social influences, and that it is not at all judicial. Some of the charges imposed are said to be on the rack rent principle, and it is feared that a dangerous agitation will begin when the wants of winter begin to punish the people.

The Atlantic bank of Brooklyn has paid a dvidend of 40 per cent to its depositors.

Bed-bugs, flies, roaches, ants, rats, mice, cleared out by "Rough on Rats." 15c.

Young Men!—Read This.

THE VOLTAIC BELT CO., of Marshall, Mich., offer to send their celebrated ELECTRO-VOLTAIC BELT and other ELECTRIC APPLIANCES on trial for thirty days, to men (young or old) afflicted with nervous debility, loss of vitality and all kindred troubles. Also for rheumatism, neuralgia, paralysis, and many other diseases. Complete restoration to health, vigor and manhood guaranteed. No risk is incurred as thirty days trial is allowed. Write them at once for illustrated pamphlet free.

H. P. Robinson & Bro., general store and bankers at Ocala, Fla., have made an assignment. Liabilities $200,000.

A Cincinnati Druggist Reports.

Mr. Ferd Zuenkeler, Druggist, No. 686 Vine St., Cincinnati, O., writes under date April 7th, 1884, I have obtained four additional verbal testimonials for "The Big Four" Peerless Papillon Remedies, from my customers. Mr. Louis Grater says, "Papillon Blood Cure works like a charm." Geo. C. Hasenfels, of Bethlehem suburb, says: "Papillon Blood Cure is a great relief to him, and is glad that he has at last found something that will do him good." Miss C. E. Relshark, No. 302 McMicken Avenue, praises Papillon Skin Cure very highly. She has used three bottles. Mr. Adam Kiefer, cor. 3rd and Martin Sts., has used two bottles of Papillon Catarrh Cure, and says, "he is positive it will cure him if he keeps it up," which he says, "I will do." Mr. Reule, of whom I wrote in my last letter, said to me this evening that your "Papillon Catarrh Cure is a good remedy, because he has given it a fair trial and has obtained most excellent results therefrom."

Just So.

A lady reader writes to say that she has been losing her hair and wants to know what she shall do to prevent it. Either keep your bureau-drawer locked or get a bottle of Carboline the great Petroleum Hair Renewer.

The saw mill of Reeves & Hoskin, at Eden Lake, was burned by an incendiary recently.

Stinging, irritation, inflammation, all kidney and urinary complaints, cured by "Buchu-Paiba." $1.

Gen. McClellan is now president of a New Mexican ranch company which owns 16,000 head of cattle and 1,500,000 acres of land.

"What we learn with pleasure we never forget."—Alfred Mercier. The following is a case in point. "I paid out hundreds of dollars without receiving any benefit," says Mrs. Emily Rhoads, of McBrides, Mich. "I had female complaints, especially 'dragged-down,' for over six years. Dr. R. V. Pierce's 'Favorite Prescription' did me more good than any medicine I ever took. I advise every sick lady to take it." And so do we. It never disappoints its patrons. Druggists sell it.

Capt. Perrins had an indecisive fight with Indians in Arizona on the 15th, and had to leave them in their entrenchments.

Pile Tumors,

however large, speedily and painlessly cured without knife, caustic, or salve. Send six cents in stamps for pamphlet, references and reply. World's Dispensary Medical Association, 663, Maine Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

Lizzie Bradley, a Pittsburg missing girl, was robbed and maltreated in a Monongahela fishing camp.

Stranger than Fiction.

are the records of some of the cures of consumption effected by that most wonderful remedy—Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." Thousand of grateful men and women, who have been snatched almost from the very jaws of death, can testify that consumption, in its early stages, is no longer incurable. The Discovery has no equal as a pectoral and alterative, and the most obstinate affections of the throat and lungs yield to its power. All druggists.

Blanchard's shoe factory in Boston was damaged $30,000 by fire.

Nervous Weakness, Dyspepsia, Sexual Debility, cured by "Wells' Health Renewer." $1.

Cured Thoroughly and Absolutely.

John A. Smith, the largest merchant in Gainesville, Ga., says: "I suffered for years from the combined effects of Erysipelas and Eczema. I continued to grow worse under medical treatment and by taking medicine containing potash. S. S. S. cured me thoroughly and absolutely. My appetite, strength and flesh returned as I was cured with it."

The Minnesotas lost the senior four at St Clair by a foul and a bad position.

I was afflicted with kidney disease, and suffered intensely. I was induced to try HUNT'S [Kidney and Liver] REMEDY, and before I had used two bottles I was entirely cured. Richmond Henshaw, Providence, R. I.

An Invaluable Remedy.—None except those who have suffered all the horrors of Dyspepsia, can fully appreciate the value and efficacy of Perry Davis' Pain Killer, a sovereign remedy for this distressing disease in all its forms is used internally and externally, test its virtues.

The best place to obtain a good business education is at the N. W. Business College, Madison Wis. Send for Catalogue.

Public speakers and singers use Piso's Cure for hoarseness and weak lungs.

A little child of Brent Johnson of Tracy, Minn., was trampled to death by a horse.

"Rough on Pain." Quick cure for Colic, Cramps, Diarrhœa, Aches, Pains, Sprains, Headache.

For Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms; also as a preventive against Fever and Ague, and other Intermittent Fevers, the "Ferro-Phosphorated Elixir of Calisaya," made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by all Druggists, is the best tonic; and for patients recovering from Fever or other sickness, it has no equal.

A Perfect Remedy for all abrasions of the skin and all diseases of the feet of Horses and cattle. Invaluable to stockmen. Cole's Veterinary Carbolisalve. In 50c. and $1.00 cans. At Druggists or by mail. J. W. Cole & Co., Prop's, Black River Falls, Wisconsin.

"St. Paul Chemical Oil."
A Wonderful Discovery.

Elegant Prizes for small collection of Empty Durham Tobacco Bags. Particulars free. Thompson Bro., 257 Main St., Cincinnati, O.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

LEARN TELEGRAPHY, or SHORT-HAND and TYPE WRITING HERE. Situations furnished. Address Valentine Bros., Janesville, Wis.

"I owe my Restoration to Health and Beauty to the CUTICURA REMEDIES."

Testimonial of a Boston lady.

DISFIGURING Humors, Humiliating Eruptions Itching Tortures, Scrofula, Salt Rheum and Infantile Humors, cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new blood purifier, cleanses the blood and perspiration of impurities and poisonous elements, and thus removes the cause.

CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, instantly allays Itching and Inflammation, clears the Skin and Scalp, heals Ulcers and Sores, and restores the Hair.

CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier and Toilet Requisite, prepared from CUTICURA, is indispensable in treating Skin Diseases, Baby Humors, Skin Blemishes, Chapped and Oily Skin.

CUTICURA REMEDIES are absolutely pure, and the only infallible Blood Purifiers and Skin Beautifiers.

Sold everywhere. Price, Cuticura, 50 cents. Soap, 25 cents; Resolvent, $1. POTTER DRUG AND CHEMICAL CO., BOSTON, MASS.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE!
BEST IN THE WORLD.
Get the Genuine. Sold Everywhere.

PAIN!

Pain is supposed to be the lot of us poor mortals, as inevitable as death, and liable at any time to come upon us. Therefore it is important that remedial agents should be at hand to be used in an emergency, when we are made to feel the excruciating agonies of pain, or the depressing influence of disease.

Such a remedial agent exists in that old, Reliable Family Remedy,

PERRY DAVIS'
Pain-Killer

It was the first and is the Only Permanent Pain Reliever.

ITS MERITS ARE UNSURPASSED.

There is nothing to equal it for curing

Colic, Cramps, Spasms, Heartburn, Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Flux, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache.

CURES CHOLERA!

When Cholera prevailed in the years 1849 and 1850,

"PAIN-KILLER"

Was used with such wonderful success, that it is considered an unfailing cure for all Bowel Complaints. It has stood the test of Forty Years' Constant Use in all Countries.

WHEN USED EXTERNALLY AS A LINIMENT, nothing gives quicker ease in Burns, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Stings from Insects and Scalds. Those suffering with Rheumatism, Gout or Neuralgia, if not a positive cure, they find the PAIN-KILLER gives them relief when no other remedy will. In sections of the country where

FEVER AND AGUE

Prevails, there is no remedy held in greater esteem. Persons traveling should keep it by them.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

STOCKS of goods wanted in exchange for Minneapolis Real Estate. E. H. Steele, Minneapolis.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

To the needs of the tourist, commercial traveler and new settler Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is peculiarly adapted, since it strengthens the digestive organs, and braces the physical energies to unhealthful influences. It removes and prevents malarial fever, constipation, dyspepsia, healthfully stimulates the kidneys and bladder, and enriches as well as purifies the blood. When overcome by fatigue whether mental or physical, the weary and debilitated find it a reliable source of renewed strength and comfort. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

Sold everywhere, 25c. Office, 44 Murray St., N.Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed instantly to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.

Office, 44 Murray Street, New York.

TUTT'S MANUAL OF USEFUL RECEIPTS FREE.

ROCKFORD WATCHES

Are unequalled in EXACTING SERVICE.

Used by the Chief Mechanician of the U. S. Coast Survey; by the Admiral commanding in the U. S. Naval Observatory, for Astronomical work; and by Locomotive Engineers, Conductors and Railway men. They are recognized as THE BEST for all uses in which close time and durability are requisites. Sold in principal cities and towns by the COMPANY'S exclusive Agents (leading jewelers,) who give a Full Warranty.

IT IS NOT

A CURE ALL, but as a tonic and health renewer, and for Blood and Skin Diseases, and troubles dependent on impure or impoverished blood, Swift's Specific is without a rival.

"My baby six months old broke out with some kind of skin humor, and after being treated five months by my family physician, was given up to die. The druggist recommended Swift's Specific, and the result was as gratifying as it was miraculous. My child soon got well, all traces of the disease is gone, and he is as fat as a pig."

J. J. KIRKLAND,
Minden, Rusk County, Texas.

"I used Swift's Specific on my little daughter, who was afflicted with some Blood Poison which had resisted all sorts of treatment. The Specific relieved her permanently, and I shall use it in my practice."

W. E. BRONTE, M. D., Cypress Ridge, Ark.

Our Treatise on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed free to applicants.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO.,
Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.

N. Y. Office, 159, W. 23d St., between 6th and 7th Aves., Philadelphia Office, 1205 Chestnut St.

RULES For self-measurement and price list sent free by BIG BOSTON, Minneapolis.

PATENTS! Thos. P. Simpson, Washington, D. C. No pay asked for patent until obtained. Write for Inventor's Guide.

SOLDIERS or heirs send stamp for circulars showing who is entitled to pension, bounty, &c. L. C. WOOD, Pension Atty., Washington, D.C.

MORPHINE and CHLORAL HABITS EASILY CURED. BOOK FREE. Dr. J. C. Hoffman, Jefferson, Wisconsin. OPIUM

$65 A MONTH and Board for 3 live young men or ladies in each county to take orders for the Lives of BLAINE AND LOGAN. Address P. W. ZIEGLER & CO., Chicago, Ills.

25 CTS PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS

NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC.
MUSIC. Vocal and Instrumental and Tuning.
ART. Drawing, Painting, Modeling and Portraiture.
ORATORY. Literature and Languages.
HOME. Elegant accommodations for 500 lady students.
FALL TERM begins Sept. 11th. Beautifully Ill'd Calendar free. Address E. TOURJEE, Director.
FRANKLIN SQUARE, BOSTON, MASS.

DON'T BUY AN ENGINE

Until you have seen our Circulars and Prices. $250 for 15 Horse Power, to $550 for 60 Horse Power. Engines complete with Governor, Pump, Heater, and Throttle Valve, and Sight Feed Cylinder Lubricator. More than 1,000 in use. Send for circular giving testimonials from every State in the Union. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed.

HERALD & MORRIS,
[Mention this paper.] Baldwinsville, N. Y.

ASTHMA GERMAN ASTHMA CURE never fails to instantly relieve the most violent attack and insure comfortable sleep. Used by inhalation, thus reaching the disease direct, relaxes the spasm, facilitates free expectoration and effects CURES where all other remedies fail. A trial will convince the most skeptical of its immediate, direct and never failing effect. Price: 50c. and $1.00. Trial package free. Of druggists or by mail for stamp. Cut this out. DR. R. SCHIFFMANN, St. Paul, Minn.

PAPILLON CATARRH CURE

ABSOLUTELY CURES NASAL CATARRH, ACUTE OR CHRONIC Cold in the Head, Rose Cold, Bronchial Catarrh and Hay Fever.

Cleanses the nostrils, permits natural breathing, and prevents incrustations, snuffles and sneezing.

FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Dr. Bunce's Infirmary

EYE, EAR, THROAT, LUNGS, CATARRH, ASTHMA, and RHEUMATISM treated with great success. All diseases of a private nature treated with delicacy, with a warrantee of speedy reliefs or permanent cure. Good rooms and board at reasonable rates furnished patients at the Infirmary. Patients treated at a distance. Correspondence solicited. Send stamp for reply. Infirmary 505 Second Avenue South, Minneapolis, Minn.

THE TIFFIN Well Boring & Rock Drilling MACHINERY!

For Horse or Steam Power

Hundreds of the best men in 30 States and Territories use it and will have no other!

RELIABLE! DURABLE! SIMPLE!

Established over 35 years, we have ample facilities to fill orders promptly, and to satisfaction of our customers. Catalogue FREE. Address

LOOMIS & NYMAN, Tiffin, Ohio.

ALLEN'S IRON TONIC BITTERS

The most Elegant Blood Purifier, Liver Invigorator, Tonic, and Appetizer ever known. The first Bitters containing Iron ever advertised in America. Unprincipled persons are imitating the name; look out for frauds. See that the following signature is on every bottle and take none other:

ST. PAUL, MINN. J. P. Allen Druggist & Chemist

ONLY 25 CENTS!

DURING THE

Campaign of 1884.

THE WEEKLY

PIONEER PRESS,

The Great Newspaper of the Great Northwest,

WILL BE MAILED TO ANY ADDRESS

Three Months for 25 Cents!

OR

ONE DOLLAR

For a Club of FIVE, sent to one address,

ONLY 20 CENTS

For Each Subscriber for Three Months!

This Offer holds good only till Sept. 1st, 1884.

Money may be sent by draft, money order, postal note or registered letter, addressed to

PIONEER PRESS CO.,
ST. PAUL, MINN.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND IS A POSITIVE CURE FOR All those painful Complaints and Weaknesses so common to our best FEMALE POPULATION.

Price $1 in liquid, pill or lozenge form.

Its purpose is solely for the legitimate healing of disease and the relief of pain, and that it does all it claims to do, thousands of ladies can gladly testify.

It will cure entirely all Ovarian troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Falling and Displacements, and consequent Spinal Weakness, and is particularly adapted to the change of life.

It removes Faintness, Flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves Weakness of the Stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, and backache, is always permanently cured by its use.

Send stamp to Lynn, Mass., for pamphlet. Letters of inquiry confidentially answered. For sale at druggists.

Dr. Spinney & Co.

Treat all Chronic and Nervous Diseases. Young men who may be suffering with Weakness, Nervous Debility, Despondency, Aversion to Society, Kidney troubles, or any similar disease, can here find a safe and speedy cure. There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are often troubled with uncomfortable symptoms, accompanied by weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. Examination reveals the fact that the patient's system is undergoing a depletion which rapidly exhausts every vital function. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause. The doctor will guarantee a cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration. Pamphlet, with full particulars, sent free to any address. Call on or address DR. SPINNEY & CO., 37 E. Third st., Minneapolis, Minn

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD,

Positively cure SICK-HEADACHE, Biliousness, and all LIVER and BOWEL Complaints, MALARIA, BLOOD POISON, and Skin Diseases (ONE PILL A DOSE). For Female Complaints these Pills have no equal. "I find them a valuable Cathartic and Liver Pill.—Dr. T. M. Palmer, Monticello, Fla." "In my practice I use no other.—J. Dennison, M.D., DeWitt, Iowa." Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cts. in stamps. Valuable information FREE. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., BOSTON, MASS.

FARM AND HOUSEHOLD.

Agricultural Notes.

The Christian Union, which finds space for occasional consideration of rural affairs, prints a brief plea for the toad, an excellent help against insect enemies.

A Dakota farmer, in 1881, planted a single grain of wheat in one of his oat fields. From it grew twenty-two stalks, each bearing a full head. These yielded 860 grains, 760 of which were planted the next year, producing one-fifth of a bushel of splendid wheat. This was planted last Spring, yielding seventeen bushels, making 1,020 pounds of wheat from one grain in three years.

A correspondent of the Kansas Farmer says that the following ship-dip receipt has been used quite successfully: One pound of sulphur to one-half pound of lime, and one gallon of water; boil one hour; when ready to use, add three gallons of water to one of the liquid, then dip hot. The cost of this dip is 2 cents per head.

A good way to use corn drills for sowing corn for fodder is to remove the brush or iron regulator, as the case may be, and use the largest plates, or the plates having the largest holes, and then drill in the corn three feet apart. With double-row planters that drop four feet apart, the machine may be run half way between the first drills, thus planting drills two feet apart. A cabbage plow will serve to cultivate between the rows and keep down the weeds. The Black Sweet Corn or Stowell's Evergreen, is excellent to plant for this purpose.

A correspondent of the Husbandman says that sulphur is a preventative of potato rot, and this is confirmed by the experience of a Vermont farmer, who rolled his cut potatoes in fine sulphur at planting and dusted the plants as they appeared above the ground. Neither rot, worm nor insect touched them, though potatoes on neighboring farms were badly damaged. His potatoes were excellent and the crop yielded well. There is no doubt that sulphur will assist materially in preventing fungus growth in other plants as well as potatoes, and it would be well if farmers gave it a trial for such purposes the coming season.

The first thing many persons do in purchasing a plot of ground and building a residence thereon is to stock the lawn with so large a number of trees and so much shrubbery, which, while small, look very pretty, but in the course of years increase in size to such an extent as to turn the beautiful lawn into a forest, screening the dwelling from public view, destroying the symmetry of the trees, and ruining the grass; besides, if there are any hedges near, they will soon become irregular in form and ragged in appearance and frequently die. But in addition to this, as a general rule, we plant too many ornamental trees upon our premises, and too few fruit trees. Some of the latter are as comely in form and yield as fine shade as the former.—Germantown Telegraph.

"If potatoes show signs of decay, dust them with air-slacked lime." This item is going the rounds of the press, and as lime seems a powerful application for such a juicy tuber, we would like to know what they mean by "air-slacked." The term is often used promiscuously. Proper air-slacked lime that was slacked by the slow process of absorbing moisture from the air may have lost some of its properties so as to be safe to apply to potatoes, but simple dry-slacked lime, rapidly prepared, with just water enough to slack it and leave it dry, may be more powerful.

Cooking of Milk.

The cooking of Milk is very simple, but by no means unimportant. That there is an appreciable difference between raw and boiled milk may be proved by taking equal quantities of each (the boiled sample having been allowed to cool down), adding them to equal quantities of the same infusion of coffee, then critically tasting the mixtures. The difference is sufficient to have long since established the practice among all skilful cooks of scrupulously using boiled milk for making cafe au lait. I have tried a similar experiment on tea, and find that in this case the cold milk is preferable. Why this should be—why boiled milk should be better for coffee and raw milk for tea, I cannot tell. If any of my readers have not done so already, let them try similar experiments with condensed milk, and I have no doubt that the verdict of the majority will be that it is passable with coffee, but very objectionable in tea. This is milk that has been very much cooked. The chief definite alteration effected by the boiling of milk is the coagulation of the small quantity of albumen which it contains. This [illegible] as it becomes solidified, and forms a skin like scum on the surface, which may be lifted with a spoon and eaten, as it is perfectly wholesome and very nutritious.—W. Mattieu Williams, in Popular Science Monthly.

Home Decoration.

Dinner, tea, breakfast and luncheon linens are made beautiful with artistic embroideries in colors and gold thread.

Poplin is being extensively used for window curtains, hangings and other upholstery purposes, and excellent effects can be obtained by the use of this handsome and durable material.

The following is said to be a certain test of the genuineness of a Turkish rug: Put a red hot coal upon the rug and leave it there for a moment; if on taking it off the charred place can be rubbed so as to leave no trace of the burnt wool it is the true article.

The broad ribbons that can now be purchased at a reasonable figure, formed into bows, make a handsome substitute for ladies [illegible] embroidery will be a [illegible] decoration.

[illegible] polish. Spirits of turpentine, [illegible] yellow wax, 1¼ pounds; al[illegible] (for color), ¼ ounce. Melt [illegible] with a cloth, and rub [illegible] in to dry.

For the sitting room table a pretty [illegible] can be made at small expense, [illegible] counting the trouble of making [illegible] will cost less than a woven [illegible] will show a great deal more [illegible]. Get a square of cardinal [illegible] good quality, and that which is commonly called "double width;" around this put a broad band of velveteen of the same color, but of a darker shade; then put flannel around this to the depth of four inches. This may be pinked around the edge. As to ornamentation, it may be indulged in to any extent, but it is a pretty spread with the plain band, or with a feather stitching on each side of the band.—N. Y. Post.

Mothers.

There are two extraordinary things about mothers. One is their patience, and the other is their impatience. He who sees a mother care for a child through a long and dangerous sickness, tending it by day and by night, saving its life, not once merely, but many times, hoping on when all others despair, and keeping up when all others give out, and at last coaxing and loving the little creature back to convalescence, sees one of the sublimest things in nature. The same mother, when the child is well again, will sometimes exhibit an impatience with it that borders on the ridiculous. It is noisy, boisterous, inquisitive, careless, as all healthy children are apt to be, and the mother wears out her soul in scolding it. This is often a case of cause and effect. The child has recovered its nervous force, but the mother has not. During the ten weeks' illness of a child, it's mother may expend her entire reserve of vital energy, and contract a large debt in that line besides, which she may be years in liquidating. She may never liquidate it, but live on fretful and irritable to the end, for a mother seldom passes a whole year without incurring some new drain upon her resources. It is for this reason that, in all the arrangements of a home, the ease and comfort of the mother should be considered before all things. This is her right. Nor is it less the interest of the family, for their happiness depends chiefly upon her health and cheerfulness.

Staining Floors

A month ago I had my dining-room floor stained and waxed, and it has given such perfect satisfaction that I only wish it had been done years ago. One-and-a-half ounce of permanganate of potash, in crystals, was dissolved in a gallon of water. This stain was put upon the floor with a painter's flat brush, working the way of the grain of the wood. When the floor was perfectly dry, three applications of linseed oil were given. This was well rubbed in with a piece of flannel. In two days the floor was ready for the wax, which was prepared as follows: Cut into bits; just cover with turpentine, and set the dish in a pan of hot water until the wax has melted; then let it get cold, when it will be in the consistency of thick cream. Rub on with a piece of flannel, and then polish with a polishing brush. We used a large scrubbing brush, not wishing to go to the expense of buying one for the purpose. The polishing is the hard part. You can ask each member of your family to lend a hand at this stage of the work, and I have small doubt but that each and all will declare stained floors "a humbug" before the right degree of polish is attained. But when a floor is once thoroughly polished, it takes but little labor to keep it looking nicer.—Rural New Yorker.

What Constitutes a Lady.

Because a woman is obliged to economize and re-make her old dresses, it does not follow that she is not a lady in the accepted sense of the term. A "lady" is a woman who clearly understands and consistently practices the refinements of a highly civilized existance; and the most real distinction between a lady and a woman who is not a lady, is that one is more civilized than the other, and more determined to preserve the habits of high civilization, both in her own person and in all those over whom she has authority. These habits are not simply habits of expense; it is cheeper to remain sober than to get tipsy, and yet it is more ladylike to be sober. It does not cost more money to speak good English than bad, or to be gentle than rude; yet a lady from preference speaks correctly and has gentle manners. It so happens that there are more ladies in the upper classes than in the lower, and that there is a severe public opinion in the upper class about most things which, taken together, constitute civilization, because it is a fault in rich people who have great faculties not to be clean, and cultivated and polite, when it may only be a misfortune in poor ones. There is, then, really such a thing as ladyhood, and it is one of the strongest of civilizing influences.

Calling Etiquette.

Very few people have learned the art of leaving, after a call, at the proper time and with promptness and dispatch after they have once started. Every other Saturday gives some very good and appropriate rules upon this subject; "When you are ready to depart, do so at once, gracefully and politely and with no dallying. Don't say, 'It's about time I was going,' and settle back and talk on aimlessly for another ten minutes. Some people have just such a tiresome habit. They will even rise and stand about the room in various attitudes, keeping their host standing, and then, by an effort, succeed in getting as far as the hall, when a new thought strikes them. They then brighten up visibly, and stand for some minutes longer, saying nothing of importance, but keeping everybody in a restless, nervous state. After the door is opened the prolonged leave-taking begins, and everybody in general, and in particular is invited to call. Very likely a last thought strikes the departing visitor, which his friend must risk a cold to hear to the end. What a relief when the door is finally closed! There is no need of being offensively abrupt, but when you are ready to go, go."

Treatment of Horses.

From the Western Rural.—In slight ailments do not resort to harsh medicines. Frequently a little wood ashes, powdered charcoal, salt or Epsom salts will be all that is needed, besides judicious feeding. If a horse gets wounded do not become frightened, or spend your money on veterinary surgeons, unless it is badly wounded. Apply a week solution of carbolic acid to the wound, bruise or swelling. It is safe, cheap and efficacious. Such simple remedies are frequently not only all that are required, but when efficacious they are very much better than harsher remedies. Of one thing the horse owner may rely upon; in nineteen cases out of twenty he still knew just as much about the disease and the proper treatment as the horse doctor who is usually found in every community. Unless a man knows something of the anatomy of the animal, of chemistry and the effect of drugs, he should never be employed to treat a sick animal. But if we remember that all disease results from a violation of the laws of nature, and will direct our attention to the proper care of the animal, to the end that such violation may be avoided, we shall not so often have sick animals upon our hands. Allen very properly observes that heaves, spavins, blindness, broken wind and most of the disorders so common with work horses can usually be traced to improper usage, neglect or abuse. Even contagious diseases can be warded off to a considerable extent by proper care. When animals have been neglected the system is run down and becomes an easy prey to contagious diseases.

Water For Poultry.

A farmer bought last fall thirty turkeys and had about the same number of his own. Those he bought he got home the day before he killed them, and fed the whole flock what barley they could eat, but the strange birds did not know where the water was and did not drink. The next morning they were not fed but were killed with the expectation of finding the crop empty by the digestion of the night. The home birds had empty crops of dry barley, so that in dressing them an incision had to be made in the breast to remove grain—half a pint or more from each fowl. If the crop had been empty no wound would have been made on the breast, but only the inwards drawn out. The conclusion was that the only reason the turkeys had full crops was because they did not drink water. Apparently the grain would not have passed to the gizzard from the crop until water had been taken to moisten the food.

Masonic Baptism in New York.

The ceremony of Masonic baptism and adoption of children was performed in the Grand Lodge room of Masonic Temple, Twenty-third street, by the French lodge La Sincerite. This ceremony has rarely been performed in public in this country, and the great hall was crowded with invited guests of the lodge, including many ladies and gentlemen in evening dress.

The members of the lodge formed open rank in the center aisle with crossed swords held high, while, at a given signal, eight boys were brought in blindfolded, led by their parents, their ages ranging from three years to ten. Some of the boys looked a little frightened, and grasped their parents' hands rather tightly. Brother Herdet received them at the top of the steps, and, at a given signal, the bandages were removed from the youngsters' eyes, evidently much to their relief. They looked about in a dazed way, and timidly walked upon the platform. The youngest, to the gaeat amusement of the audience, stoutly resisted being put in the place where he was expected to stand. His mother was obliged to go upon the platform and assist in the ceremonies.

The sponsors of the children took the solemn obligation to aid the children to the utmost in performing the duties of masonry. Then the children were in turn taken to the front and baptized by washing of their hands, and thence to the altar, whereon was a blazing fire and, where they knelt. The youngest of the eight kept up his reputation and continued to amuse the audience by stoutly resisting, and his mother was obliged to join the circle at the altar. Next the members of La Sincerite lodge took the solemn vow binding them to accept the children, which was duly confirmed, the members of the lodge rising and clapping their hands in unison at a signal.

The children were then invested with the aprons and jewels of Masonry, all of them but the youngest being highly pleased with their regalia. The youngest, however, was again obstreperous and had to be persuaded by his mother, and possible by surreptitious candy. Finally the youngsters were all settled. Then they were consecrated, and the orator of the lodge, Brother Lallemand made an address. Brother Charles T. McClenachan, explained in English that La Sincerite lodge had pledged itself to guard and protect these little children and see that they are educated in Free Masonry, to restrain them from vice and keep them from the snares that surround the young. The ceremony of the washing of hands was not intended in the slightest degree to interfere with any religious faith, but was symbolic of approaching the throne of grace with pure hearts.—N. Y. Sun.

A California Fruit Ranch.

From the New York Evening Post.

The fruit ranch of Mr. A. T. Hatch, of California, is one of the finest in that state. It consists of 667 acres of valley land and 153 acres of hills. Five hundred and thirty acres of the valley land are set out to fruit, twenty acres of it being grapevines. There are about 11,000 bearing fruit trees upon his ranch, counting some that have just commenced to bear. Three thousand of these are almonds, carrying a large crop, after having borne an immense one last year; about 4,000 pears, consisting of Bartlett, Winter Nellis and Eastern Benson, all showing an excellent crop of clear, bright fruit; about 1,000 plums and prunes now drooping with their load of fruit; 1,000 apricots, 2 and 3 years old, that will bear a fine crop for their age this year. Among the peaches there is no curl leaf noticeable, except on a few old trees. About 450 large, healthy apple trees, all overloaded with fruit, and a variety of other fruits in small numbers. There are also about 25,000 currant bushes, which produce good crops every year after the second, and about 50,000 gooseberry bushes. Of younger trees not in bearing, Mr. Hatch has about 9,000 pear trees, 6,000 apricots, 9,000 plums and prunes, 10,000 peaches, 4,000 almonds, 2,500 cherries, 1,000 nectarines, beside some lots of other fruits, making in all 52,500 fruit trees on the ranch. Among the cherry trees there are planted about 60,000 currant roots, two rows within each two rows of trees.

OLD MRS. GRIMES.

[Tune: "Old Grimes is Dead."]

Old Mrs. Grimes is dead. Alas!
  We ne'er shall see her more.
She was the wife of good old Grimes,
  Who died some years before.

A very worthy dame is gone,
  Since she gave up her breath;
Her head was white with frosts of time,
  She lived until her death.

Though rough the path, her willing feet
  E'er walked where duty led;
And never wore a pair of shoes,
  Except when out of bed.

Busy she was from morn to night,
  Spite of old times advances;
Although her husband left her here
  In easy circumstances.

Good Mrs. Grimes is now at rest,
  She'll rest through endless ages;
The sun is set, her work is done,
  She's gone to claim her wages.

—A. T., in the Century.

THE LEGEND OF THE ABBOT'S GRAVE.

More than a century ago the site of the actual Etablissement des Bains of Dalmas di Tenda was occupied by a noble and spacious Benedictine monastery embosomed in an extensive park or forest of lordly and broad-branching chestnut trees, such as the one under whose shadow we are now seated. At the point to which I am referring, the Superior, or Lord Abbot, as he was generally styled, was a somewhat remarkable specimen of his race; no less from the nobility of his birth and breeding than from the rigid ascetic rule of life to which he voluntarily subjected himself. Not a single idle or superfluous word was ever known to escape his thin, compressed and bloodless lips; nor did either semblance of smile or shadow of a scowl ever rest on his marble-pale cheek, or broad, high-arched brow. His features and carriage alike attested patrician origin and lineage, which the loftiness of his stature, equally tall and commanding, in perfect keeping with his rank and station only served to express and emphasize. His eyes, overhung with black bushy brows, wore that concentrated, inner look indicative of a mind habitually absorbed in its own reflections, and regardless of the superficial world of men and things around him. As he paced the cloisters of the abbey, which frequently re-echoed to his slow but firm and measured footfall during the mid-most and darkest hours of the night, not one of the respectful brotherhood who chanced to come in contact with him, even saw the eyes of the Lord Abbot lifted even for an instant from the marble pavement on which they ware habitually riveted, save perchance when the starry skies shone with unwonted splendor; and it was whispered, that, at such an hour, he would fix his dreamy abstract gaze on one bright particular orb which seemed to possess a sort of mysterious attraction of affinity for him, and which, with brows slightly arched and a look of painful absorption, he would contemplate for an hour at a time; then heaving a long, deep sigh and seemingly recovering his lost consciousness, again resume his former monotony of attitude and walk. Occasionally, too, a brother, more inquisitive or clairvoyant than his fellows, would whisper, below his breath, how he had surprised the Lord Abbot in the act of drawing from his bosom an object suspiciously resembling a locket or miniature portrait, which, pressing convulsively to his lips, he would hold it a while in his wan and tapering fingers, and then quickly replace it with a scarce audible sigh, while—this was even hinted—his bloodless, half-closed lips were heard to syllable the name of—Marie! This circumstance, however, admitted of a simple and natural explanation from the fact of the Lord Abbot's special devotion to the cult and invocation of the Madonna, who was, besides, the sainted patroness and guardian of the community.

"Now, you must know that this island was ever a favorite retreat of the solitary, contemplative Abbot, who passed whole summer nights in meditation, and —it was surmised—holy offices of prayer and praise, at the foot of this very fountain which now refreshes us with its music and spray. Nay! tradition avers that on this same mossy knoll where we are now lounging, was the stately, silent Abbot often wont to recline his attenuated frame, while watched, with strenuous and unflagging fixity of gaze, the graceful, sylph-like fountain playing above the site of yonder mound.

"I said 'the site' advisedly for the mound itself was not then in existence. some of the younger friars would even tell, with faltering accents, how they had once intruded unawares on the privacy of the awful superior, and surprised him, meekly bowed on his knees, like any other simple child of sin and sorrow, or prostrate with his august face earthward, in the midst of a bed of roses, such as that which lies so bewitchingly in its summer bloom of fragrance.

"Whatever the reason might be, it was certain that the fountain and its surroundings exercised a mysterious and irresistible fascination over the spirit of the Lord Abbot. It was even surmised that his ardent imagination exaulted by contemplation and fasting into the predominance of a fixed idea, might, at certain seasons, have identified the spirit of the fountain with the invisible shape and presence of her who was believed to be the object of his soul's special love and adoration. The sequel of my tale will show whether this were the true key to the enigma.

"Years passed away, noiselessly and uneventually, over the lives of the simple, secluded community, only spiriting away one and another of them by turns, into 'the land of souls beyond this sable shore.' At last, one morning, just as the convent bell had rung for matins, an awful whisper spread from lip to lip that—the Father Superior himself had that very night obeyed the irrevocable summons of the angel of death—the inevitable Azrael! It was too true. The Lord Abbot died, and, to the surprise of all but one member of the community, was buried—not in the chapel of the monastery, where his predecessors had been laid, one after another, side by side, from time immemorial, but—at his own earnest and dying request—in the very spot of earth where yonder grassy mound now rises bedewed with the sleepless tears of that fountain so long and mysteriously associated with the object of his contemplation and worship. Needless to add that the sweet little nook of secular soil had previously been consecrated according to the most solemn and punctual rites of that church to which the august deceased had belonged. Not until after an interval of many years was the mystery cleared up, when the abbey, with all its fair, broad land, passed, by voluntary sale, into the possession of lay proprietors at the commencement of the Region of Terror, A. D. 1793.

"Then it was that amid a heap of supposed rubbish and paper-asses, accidentally discovered in a long-neglected lumber-closet, a certain old Dry-as-dust, with tastes akin to my own, ferreted out a sere, half-legible document bearing the signature of the Rev. Father Bernardin, who had succeeded to the Lord Abbot, after acting as confessor and confident of his last moments.

"The mystery of the Abbot's grave was at last solved thus: In the earlier half of the eighteenth century the young, wealthy, and handsome Count Robert of Nice, weary of playing the Prodigal Son's part, and having lately inherited a fine ancestral estate, bethought him seriously of taking himself a wife, and settling down into a staid Benedict for the remainder of his three-score years and ten. He therefore made offer of his hand and heart to a young lady of a rank corresponding to his own—one Mademoiselle St Vallier, likewise of the county of Nice, whose parents, at first favoring the alliance, but subsequently yielding to the suggestions of unexplained caprice, withdrew their sanction at the eleventh hour of courtship. The result of the shock on the young lady's system was alike unforseen and alarming. Beginning with the temporary aberration of reason, it had well-nigh culminated in a fatal catastrophe. The terrified and remorseful parents were now induced to retract their ill-time and irrational opposition. The lovers renewed their intercourse. But the blow to Mlle. St Vallier's constitution was to radical to admit of a speedy cure.

"Still, as no dangerous symptoms revealed themselves to the careful and minute investigation of experienced physicians, it was agreed that the slow, but, as was fondly hoped, certain process of recovery would best be seconded by a speedy consummation of the marriage tie.

"The nuptial day was fixed. All the preliminaries and formalities were duly accomplished. The marriage feast was provided. The guests were bidden, and had joyfully answered the summons of the ever-welcome bridal bell The metropolitan church of Santa Reparata, in the centre of what is now the old town of Nizza la Bella, was the chosen theatre wherein Monsignor the Bishop himself—for to no less a dignitary could so august a ceremonial be entrusted—was to consecrate the union of the loveliest and noblest bridal pair which had ever received the Episcopal benediction at the hymeneal altar and been clasped in the church's indissoluble love-links. The April sun shone with a merry smile through the rose-tinted tears. In a word, "all went merry as a marriage bell." But the sullen distant echoes of that bell were, perhaps mercifully, yet inaudible to the ear of youth and hope, though the breath of inexorable fate was even now shadowing the horizon. Never had bride smiled fairer or lovlier smile—never had gallent night uplifted prouder brow. Nay—as if to crown the propitious auspices with every favoring circumstance of luck or providence—never had fair lady's fond and now frankly consenting parents worn a happier or more hopeful aspect. In a word, there could hardly have been a more inauspicious moment for the inevitable prophet of evil to point his lean and menacing finger toward that sunny horizon, where "a cloud no bigger than a man's head" was slowly but surely struggling upward, like an electric storm cloud, against the bonny blithesome breeze of this happy April morning.

"But the festive hour was at hand. The spacious choir of the ancient Church at St. Reparata was flooded with 'beauty and chivalry,' 'fair women and brave men,' while the grand music of the monster organ burst forth in that 'voluptuous swell' whose vocal waves float upward all that is least mortal in the human soul. The wedding mass had begun. Now, for the first time was it casually remarked by some of the bystanders that the brilliant carnation of the bride's habitually pale cheeks, and the almost unnatural glow in her normally placid and reticent eyes, were tell-tales of a portentous degree of moral exaltation and harbingers of a corresponding reaction. And that was all!

"That impressive climax in the marriage service was now finally reached when the venerable prelate, joining their hands together in his own, pronounces the nuptial vow of mutual and lifelong fidelity, which is repeated after him by man and wife alternately. The count had already fulfilled his part of the contract, and his spouse, with a voice of surprising decision and almost superhuman energy and resonance, was in her turn articulating the solemn pledge, when her strength seemed suddenly to fail her, and as she vainly strove to enunciate the final words—'Until death do us part.' Repeating the effort, a second time did the words die away in her throat, when with an hysterical laugh and defiant air, and drawing a deep breath which struck on the ear of the bystanders like a passing sigh, she uttered with almost a shriek, the fateful words, 'Until—death—us —do—part!' An instant later, and, clasping her hand to her heart, with a whisper 'Amen,' she fell forward into the arms of the count—a lifeless bride!

"Only a few years after this event the gate of the Benedictine Abbey of St. Dalmas di Tenda opened to admit a stranger in the garb of a novice who, though bearing evident traces of youth and extraordinary beauty, yet failed not to betray signs of having passed through that furnace of moral probation which sears the very root of hope, and renders the bare name of happiness an echo of mockery. His name and antecedents are alike unknown to the members of this studious and secluded community—this cloistered microcosm. Though, indeed, it was not long before the gossip rumor whispered to these echoing walls the secret of his noble, almost princely lineage, and its vast ancestral demesnes; likewise that, having sustained in early youth a severe shock to his affections, he had sought and found consolation in a religious life. To him, indeed, might truly be applied the description of the poet:

'Twas quickly seen
What'er he was, 'twas not what he had been.

One of those whom the probation of a few years so changes that their most familiar friends would pass them by for a stranger, yet perchance turn a backward look as the image of some faint personal resemblance to one whom they well remembered in bygone years flashed across their memory. His once towering and upright form had yielded to a slight stoop, as of premature age; his rich raven locks were white as the snow that lies more than half the year round on Alpine highlands which begirdle the valleys of the Roya; moreover, their rare luxuriance had been long since subjected to the shears and the tonsure in conformity with the austere self-abnegating vows to which their once proud possessor had voluntarily submitted.

"Perhaps the most faithful and forcible comparison which could be suggested between the grave and marble-pale, smooth-faced Brother Sebastian of the present with the gay, proud, hirsute Count Robert of the past, would be that of a plaster cast or post-mortem picture contrasted with the living prototype in the heyday of youth and exuberant vitality.

"But the inexorable finger of time speeds fast round the arrival of Dom Sebastian, gradually sank beneath the weight of his infirmities, and his office became vacant. With one voice the grateful and apprecative fraternity elected their exemplary and generous benefactor for their spiritual head; a dignity which he exercised to the general satisfaction and edification during the brief continuance of his austere but kindly and paternal sway. Not till years after his decease, and the subsequent dispersion of the community by the stormy breath of the great French Revolution, was the secret of his life betrayed to the world, by the chance discovery, to which I have already referred, of certain documents, forgotten or mislaid amid the hurry and confusion of the general demenagement and Sauve-qui-peut.

"The secret was now divulged, and the key to the enigma at last found. The beloved and revered Lord Abbot of St. Dalmas di Tenda was no other than the heartbroken and prematurely aged Count Robert of Nice; who, in the flower of early manhood, had borne in his arms, from the altar stair of St. Reparata's Cathedral church, the lifeless form—lovely even in death—of his bride—Maria de St. Tallier?

"Nay, none had even for a moment conjectured that the sweet name, which ever and anon fell from his bloodless lips, was not always that of her whose presence and guardianship were daily invoked by the chime of the Angelus bell—but sometimes also, though the frailty of human nature, of the Marie who was to him a wife of an instant and the bride of eternity. Nor was it ever surmised among the guileless and unsuspecting community that when the Lord Abbot spent hours of moonlight meditation in his island sanctuary, fixing a wrapt and wistful gaze in statuesque immobility on yonder silver babbling font, which rises so spiritlike amidst the impenetrable foliage belting it in on all sides, like the sacred grove of a Greek temple—that this austere and holy man saw and heard, with inner eye and ear, only the shape and voice of her whose faithful and loving worshipper he was even unto death. Few or none had, even at such an hour, caught the passionate accents which broke from the heaving bosom of the lonely abbot; and which, echo alone, whispering the name of 'Marie,' discretely buried in her secret and silent cave."—Belgravia.

INDIA'S HOT MONTHS.

Midsummer Life in Calcutta, and How It Is Made Tolerable.

Up country the heat is especially trying, and there a few months when to venture out in the sunshine, even with a solar-topee for a hat, and an umbrella also, would be nothing short of suicide. Every summer a good many people die just from riding on the railway in carriages cooled by all kinds of artificial appliances. In looking over the government weather statistics I find that the thermometer frequently goes up to 150 degrees in the shade during the hot months, and to 180 in the sun. Think of that, ye that complain of the heat which occasionally besieges the states at home. This climate seem to be the one thing which is fatal to the highest development of this wonderful country. I have been interested in examining some of the make-shifts which human ingenuity has devised to render life tolerable during the blistering days of an Indian summer. First of all, there are the punkahs, which are kept swinging with considerable effect. Then there are porous mats, called kuss-kuss tatties, which usually contain some fragrant roots. They are kept saturated with cold water, and placed where the wind will blow through them as it enters the house. In the absence of wind, punkahs are so placed as to furnish a breeze to pass through them. These tatti-mats are then placed in the windows of the railway carriages. Most of the ice used here is now manufactured. Up to four or five years ago it was brought on ships from Boston and sold for from four to six cents per pound. Although the manufactured ice only lasts half as long as the natural ice, it can be made so much cheaper now that it has driven the Boston ice out of the market. Some of the thermantidotes, as they are called, are quite ingenious and successful. A very popular one consists of a winnowing machine placed in the window, surrounded by mats which are kept constantly wet by an endless succession of small tin cups. The evaporation of the water cools the breeze, so that it is alleged that sometimes people take cold by sitting in the draught on a scorching hot day. However, all these plans are but make-shifts at the best, and the Yankee who can construct a tunnel through from here to the north pole has both fame and fortune awaiting him. Will the Ohio man step forward? Such a climate forces the traveller to practically reverse the ordinary methods of procedure in the matter of sleep, diet, and other natural operations. We rise early, eat chote-hadjeirie, or little breakfast, consisting of a cup of coffee and a slice of toast, and then go sight-seeing. At 10:30 o'clock comes hadjeirie, or big breakfast. The heat of the day has by this time set in, and a nap of a couple of hours is in order. At 2 o'clock tiffin is served, a lunch consisting of bread and butter (the latter without a particle of salt in it) fruit, cheese and jam. Dinner is served at 7 o'clock in the evening, and is the most substantial meal of the day. Tea is disbursed at all seemly and unseemly hours of the day "between times."—Cor. Inter-Ocean.

Some Strange Metals.

Some of the metals which seem familiar enough to the chemist, though rarely seen outside his laboratory, have so little in common with the metals of every day life as to scarcely seem to belong to the same class of substances. We commonly think of a metal as being heavy, yet sodium and potassium will float on water, and lithium is the lightest of all known solids. The fact is that the word "metal" is one of the hardest in the language to define. The metals all have a peculiar lustre, to be sure, which from its association, has come to be called metallic; but many minerals, as galena and black-lead, which most certainly are not metals, have the same appearance, and so on through the list of properties. The chemical relations of the metals give good reasons for placing these substances by themselves, though even here the lines are not clearly marked.

One of the most distinctive properties of the metals is their power to form, when combined with acids, a class of bodies called salts,—on account of their resemblance to the common salt, which contains about forty per cent. of the metal sodium. This metal is a bluish white, waxy solid, and has such a great tendency to rust, or unite with the oxygen in the air, that it must be kept in some oil, like petroleum, which contains no oxygen.

If a bit of sodium be thrown upon a piece of ice, the metal takes fire, and any attempt to put it out by pouring water on it would only be adding fuel to the flame.

The sodium-match is an application of this pecular property of the metal. It is merely a bit of wood tipped with sodium, and which can, of course, be lighted on the stormiest day by the mere contact of a rain drop. The matches are, however, decidedly dangerous, and their manufacture is generally prohibited.

Potassium, which is obtained from potash, is another metal very similar to sodium, and will take fire upon ice or water even more rapidly than this last-named metal. A small piece of potassium thrown into a jar of water apparently takes fire at once, and swims about with great rapidity, burning all the time with a brilliant violet flame.

One may be forgiven if his ideas on combustion are somewhat upset by the first sight of this phenomenon, but there is really nothing very strange about it. Water is a compound of hydrogen and oxygen, and these metals, sodium and potassium, have so strong an attraction for oxygen that they will take it wherever they can find it, even from water.

This, of course, sets the hydrogen free, which is set on fire by the heat given off when the potassium and oxygen unite, and burns with a violet color because of the vapor of the metal. The same is true in the case of sodium: the flame is due to the burning hydrogen rather than the metal.

Sodium, potassium and lithium, with several other metals, form a group known as the alkali metals. There is another group, to which iron belongs, which contains an interesting member called aluminium,—sometimes aluminium,—from its occurrence in common alum

Aluminum is a beautiful metal, much like silver in appearance, and possessing many valuable properties. It is very sonorous, easily worked, does not tarnish in the air, and is only about one-fourth as heavy as silver. It conducts eight times better than iron.

Added to this, it occurs in greater quantity than any other metal in the world. Every clay-bank, every granite-bed, is a mine of aluminum, but as yet no cheap and ready means of obtaining the metal has been found, in spite of all attempts.

Napoleon offered a large reward to any one discovering such a process, as, on account of its lightness, he wished to use the metal in his army for helmets and cuirasses.

It is hardly possible to give an exact statement of the amount of aluminum in different clays, since the composition of these earths varies greatly. Clays are impure silicates of aluminum, and, generally speaking, a good brick clay contains a tenth or more by weight of the metal. This would be sufficient to plate the upper surface of the bricks, as they are commonly laid in sidewalks, with a layer of metalic aluminum a fifth of an inch deep.

Or this same amount of metal would form a layer one-third of an inch deep on the outside of the bricks as they are laid in our houses. So we find this hidden metal everywhere about us, and a princely fortune awaits the man who can bring it to light.

Rejected Manuscripts.

Chambers' Journal.

Thackery himself has told us how his "Vanity Fair" was hawked about from publisher to publisher, and its failure everywhere predicted. For a long period Charlotte Bronte's "Jane Eyre" shared the same fate. Again, Mr. Kingslake's carefully composed "Eothen," the labor of several years, was destined to go the weary round of publishers in vain, and it was only when its author induced one of that cautious fraternity to accept the classic little work as a present, that he at length enjoyed the gratification of seeing it in print.

The first chapter of "The Diary of a Late Physician" was offered successively to the conductors of the three leading London magazines, ond rejected as "unsuitable to their pages" and "not likely to interest the public," until Mr. Warren, then a young man of twenty-three, and a law student, bethought himself of Blackwood. "I remember taking my packet," he says, to Mr. Cadell's, in the Strand, with a sad suspicion that I should never see or hear anything more of it; but shortly after I received a letter from Mr. Blackwood informing me that he had inserted the chapter, and begging me to make arrangements for immediately proceeding regularly with the series. He expressed his cordial approval of that portion, and predicted that I was likely to produce a series of papers well suited to his magazine, and calculated to interest the public."

The Washington monument, which will be completed before Christmas, will afford the most delightful view in the city. The capitol is looked down upon, and Washington is spread out in panorama, the Potomac beyond Harper's Ferry is visible, and the far-away mountains in Maryland are distinctly seen. An elevator will take parties to the top in nine minutes.

The Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Proprietor. DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. TERMS---$1.50 Per Annum.

VOL. VIII. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, AUGUST 14, 1884. NO. 16

Polk County Journal.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance, to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

ADVERTISING RATES.

SPACE.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	2 m	6 m.	1 year
½ inch	50	$1 00	$1 15	$1 50	$3 00	4 50	$ 6 00
1 inch	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	5 50	6 00	10 00
2 inches	1 50	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 50	9 50	15 00
3 inches	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	9 50	13 50	20 00
4 inches	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 50	10 00	10 00	25 00
5 inches	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 50	20 00	30 00
¼ column	3 50	5 50	5 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	25 00
½ column	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	20 00	35 00	70 00
1 column	9 50	12 50	15 00	18 00	25 00	60 00	100 00

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

Republican Ticket.

For President,
JAMES G. BLAINE,
of Maine.

For Vice President,
JOHN A. LOGAN,
of Illinois.

For Representative in Congress,
HON. KNUTE NELSON,
of Alexandria.

The Freight Pilgrimage.

Encouraged by the success of the first pilgrimage to the shrine of St. Paul, the late farmers' convention at Moorhead organized a second pilgrimage for the avowed object of demanding a reduction of one-third in the rates of freight for the carriage of wheat to Minneapolis. Some of their number, mathematically inclined, had figured out that the companies had made so much money on the last crop, that with no better crop this year they could afford to carry wheat for one-third less, which would be ten cents a bushel from Grand Forks, and still make "big money." While this is no doubt strictly true, it is another thing to get the railroad companies to see it in that light, and it was to be anticipated, the committee, only two of whom visited the railroad offices, simply accomplished a magnificent zero. At one of the company's headquarters they were put off by the conventional fraud that the proper officers were "not at home," and at the Manitoba offices they were most blandly and politely received, and as usual, anticipated with the reply that the company was very poor and had expended a vast sight of money in Canada, but notwithstanding all that, it was engaged upon a new tariff which would reduce freight as much as the company could possibly stand without bankruptcy, and in substance, that the farmers were very good big boys and should go home about their business, gather in the crop, and about the 13th of August the new schedule, with about 1½ cents a bushel of reduction, would be forthcoming! Now, of course, comes this peregrinating committee and with cozening reports it will tell the farmers how much the railroads love them and how identically identical and muchly more so, their interests are, and what a glorious work the committee has accomplished for its dearly beloved constituents, the horny-handed sons of toil; how the railroad benefactors are tossing upon sleepless beds at night studying out the problem how best to ameliorate the condition of the farmer, put filthy lucre (one and one-half a cent per bushel) into his pocket, and how the poverty stricken corporation has been bled almost to death by improvements and extensions for the public good, and how the unsophisticated wheat raiser should not burthen the already overloaded elevators that with true porcine enterprise are all the time building more and more but go to diversified diversification in multitudinous shapes and sundry manners. The whole business may be summed up in one terse phrase: it is all infernal nonsense. The sooner farmers make up their minds not to rely upon the generosity of anybody, much less a railroad corporation, the sooner will they come to the solution of the problem. Pilgrimages are nothing; demands are useless—pow wows with the Indians at Fort Totten would be as effective. What the farmers of the Northwest will find they need is to organize, take part in the caucuses of the coming campaign; determine to send nobody to the territorial legislature who has been there only to betray them; and to send there only such as they can rely upon to be above the sophistry employed by the corporations. Time and again they have been told their laws are futile, that no adequate penalty is provided to enforce them, that they are at the mercy of a lot of greedy, irresponsible, capricious graders who may know smut from cockle, and who may not, that the territorial inspectors are legalized humbugs, that there is no legal way of reaching the great injustice which deprived Dakota of hundreds of thousands of dollars last year, and punishing the nonresident leeches that suck the life blood out of our commercial veins. If the farmers and business men want to follow the clatter of hurdy gurdies and the noise of tom-toms and overlook the fact that corporations never resolve themselves into commissions of public charity, and that only cold law will reach the ills we have, all right; theirs be the responsibility for all the polite and systematic stealage which may follow in the wake of their indifference. The time has arrived for them to look to this matter sharply and effectually. In the canvass which is to follow, men must be sought for the legislature who have not been notoriously covered with the tar-stick of corporate greed, but at the same time they must have men who are firm in their determination, that laws shall be enacted which will effectually meet the wants of farmers and business men. They do not want men who are only noted for their pugilistic opposition to corporations on general principles, but conservative sound men, neither the friends nor the enemies of these necessary accessories to trade, men, who will not go beyond the mark; who, when they will have firmly and effectually taken care of the interests of the wheat producers, will not needlessly oppress the railroads because the latter have oppressed them. But above all, they want no man nor set of men who have notoriously fingered the spoils of the past. To be guilty of such a folly now, would forever lose the agricultural class the sympathy of all other classes, and it would be written of them that their rights bartered like chattels in the market.—[Grand Forks Herald.

CLEVELAND'S NOMINATION.

Independent and Democratic Opinions.

PREDICTING HIS DEFEAT BEFORE THE CONVENTION.

His Destiny Is Defeat.

From the New York Sun.

Mr. Cleveland will appear upon the stage bearing the mark of destiny, and that destiny will be defeat. At the same time the disaster will be more pernicious in its effects upon the Democracy. The folly of repeating such a foolish experiment, with a man independent of party obligations, will be signally punished, and the disorganization it produces will be of a sort that will take years to recover from.

RISKING THE VOTES OF 30,000 OR 40,000 WORKINGMEN.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

Our esteemed contemporary the Herald, declares that twenty Democratic States that never heard of the Five-Cent-Fare bill may want Gov. Cleveland for a candidate. That is not improbable, because our reform Governor is a man who has done well in his office; but the question is: would the twenty Democratic States want him for a candidate at the risk of losing the votes of 30,000 or 40,000 workingmen in New York City?

NO TRUE DEMOCRAT CAN SUPPORT HIM.

From the Rochester Union.

The veto of the Five-Cent-Fare bill was against and directly in the teeth of constitutional principle and public policy. The constitution of the State of New York expressly declares as a condition precedent of the formation of corporations that the charter of every corporation shall be held subject to "alteration from time to time or repeal" by the law-making power; and the Court of Appeals of the State of New York and the Supreme Court of the United States have affirmed the right of the law-making power to so alter or repeal. Every engagement entered into, and every contract made, by a corporation created by the State of New York, is subject to the exercise of this law-making power. The constitutional reservation is the very first condition of any such engagement and of any such contract. The principle of the veto denies this and argues in favor of the corporation theory that charters of corporations are in the nature of contracts between the State and the corporations, and that the corporations, not the State, are master. There is not an anti-monopolist—there is not a true Democrat in the United States who can approve of that veto and doctrine, or support for public office any man who approves of them.

DESERVEDLY A WEAK CANDIDATE.

From the New York Sun.

Cleveland is deservedly a weak candidate among the Democrats, because he has followed his own selfish purposes by undertaking to rule without regard to the party which made him Governor, and all the Republican kickers in the world could not make up for the Democratic votes he might lose if he were a candidate.

NOT A BIG ENOUGH MAN FOR PRESIDENT.

From the Boston Pilot.

Cleveland represents the narrowest and most selfish class in American social and public life. He is of those who distrust the common people. He advises only with the wealthy and the conservers of wealth. The workingmen of his own State dislike and distrust him, and will not vote for him. He knows nothing of important public life or men. He has not a single quality large enough to fit him for the Presidency of the United States.

"AN UTTER MISREPRESENTATION" REBUKED.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

It is an utter misrepresentation of the facts to say that the antagonism to the Governor springs from Tammany Hall or any other political organization. Its source is in the minds of workingmen, anti-monopolists and Irishmen, who have come to look upon the Governor as being either indifferent or hostile to interests which they deem of great importance.

CANNOT CARRY NEW YORK AGAINST BLAINE.

From the Albany Times.

Though the Independent Republicans may prefer him, his nomination would be so distasteful to a large portion of his own party that he could not hold the entire Democratic vote, without which it would be hopeless to attempt to carry New York against so formidable a Republican candidate as Mr. Blaine.

WILL LOSE THE STATE BY 50,000.

Dispatch sent to Chicago Convention by George H. Lapham, a well-known Democrat.

PENN YAN, July 7.—The Hon. William Purcell: I am earnestly urged to telegraph you not to relax your efforts, but to use all honorable means to prevent the nomination of Grover Cleveland. The feeling against him seems to increase in bitterness daily. This county of Yates would certainly give 2,000 majority against him, and it is the judgment of our best informed men here that he would lose us the State by 50,000. GEORGE H. LAPHAM.

THE STRONG ELEMENTS ARRAYED AGAINST CLEVELAND.

From Delegate Grady's Speech in the Democratic National Convention.

It has been stated that the purpose for which you assembled is to make a nomination that will be ratified by the people at the next election, and it is urged in support of the nomination presented from New York that that is the kind that would receive such treatment at the hands of the people. I am here to say to you that we do not claim, as suggested by the distinguished delegate from New York, that Catholics or Irish are against Cleveland. [Cheers.] We are here to say that the anti-monopoly element of the State and the labor interests of the State, Catholic and Protestant—Irish, German and American—every man who belongs to either of these two great interests, is opposed to Gov. Cleveland's nomination, and will be opposed to Grover Cleveland.

Take Notice.

We the undersigned are now prepared to do all kinds of work pertaining to the tailoring business, cheap, substantial and promptly. Would especially recommend our mode of cleaning and dyeing clothes, which is done through a chemical process, thereby enabling us to thoroughly and effectually withdraw all kinds of grease and paint spots without injury to the cloth. All work guaranteed, and patronage solicited.

GJERBERG BRO'S,
Adjoining T. H. Bjoin's livery stable Main Street, Crookston, Minn.
[16,18]

STATE TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

An Institute for the County of Polk will be held at Crookston, during the week commencing Monday, August 18th, 1884. This institute is appointed upon the application of the State Superintendant. The law which makes generous provision for the expenses of this institute, also provides for the closing of all schools during the week and the prompt attendance of all the teachers. The plan of the institute will be to give the best instruction in the grading and discipline of the school, and in methods of teaching the branches of the common school course. The instructors will be supplied with such professional books, papers and apparatus as are needed by progressive teachers. Lectures and discussions will be appointed for several of the evenings, and no pains will be spared to fill the time with valuable exercises. A new and very full syllabus of work will be ready in time for the institutes of the season. The Superintendent will make all necessary provision for board at the most reasonable rates. Give him timely notice if you intend to be present. Work will begin promptly Monday afternoon and close Friday evening. Be on hand at the beginning. Plan to stay the entire week and let nothing prevent giving your undivided attention to its duties.

D. L. KIEHLE,
Supt. Public Instruction.
V. D. CARRUTH, County Supt.

To The Public.

We wish to state to the people of Crookston and vicinity, that we have purchased the stock of groceries owned by J. L. Bailey, on Broadway, opposite the post office. We purpose to carry on the trade at the old stand, and will keep on hand, at all times, a fresh stock of groceries, provisions, etc., and we ask a share of the patronage of the generous public.

[5-tf] BAUSCHMAN & MILETTE.

NOTICE.

As I still own my share of Crookston Nurseries, and purpose to continue the business, I will announce to our former customers and all that are desirous of obtaining trees and Plants the coming spring that I will sell said stock at prices below any competition. Call and see me before making purchase elsewhere. Residence on second block north of Court House, or address P. O. Box 754.

Most Respectfully,
[38-tf] E. W. HASELTINE.

To Rent.

Ready for grain in the spring 100 acres on Section 12 Township 148 Range 46 and 250 acres on Section 11 Township 148 Range 46. Both track have a good house and barn. Apply to

PETER CORNELIUS,
[38-tf] Crookston, Minn.

PIANO TUNING.

Any parties having pianos or organs that need tuning or repairing can have their work satisfactorily done by leaving orders at the Linton House. Satisfaction guaranteed.

[9-tf] E. F. WHEELDEN.

John Knuppe.

General Agent in the Red River Valley of the Netherlands American Land Company of Amsterdam, Holland.

Money to loan on good real estate security, on time to suit the borrower. Office over Merchant's Bank. [1-tf]

Money to Loan.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS to loan on improved farms from THREE to FIVE years time at very reasonable rates. Apply at my office on Broadway, in U. S. Land Office building.

[14tf] H. STERNERSON.

Just received. A car-load of Buggies selected by an experienced carriage-builder all warranted. Call early and select one. McKinnon Bros.

The United States Internal Revenue Special Tax is due May 1st. Any information and a full line of blanks can be had by calling on or addressing.

JOHN McLEAN,
Attorney at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

THE
St. Paul,
Minneapolis
—AND—Manitoba
RAILWAY,
WITH ITS
1,400 Miles of Road
Is the only line extending through the
Park Region of Minnesota,
To all principal points in
Red River Valley,
Northern Minnesota,
Northern Dakota,
And to Devil's Lake and Turtle Mountain Districts.
—CONTAINING OVER—
9,000,000 Acres
GOVERNMENT LANDS!

The Land department of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has exclusive charge of the Company's Lands in Minnesota, and all correspondence relative to the purchase of lands, terms, description or price of any particular tract should be addressed to that department.

Maps and pamphlets describing the country and giving rates of fare to settlers, etc., mailed FREE on application.

JAS. B. POWER,
Land and Immigration Commissioner.
C. H. WARREN,
General Passenger Agent,
St. P., M. & M. R'y., St. Paul, Minn.

BROADWAY
Meat Market.
FRANK JEROME & CO.,
Fresh and Salt Meats
OF ALL KINDS
VEGETABLES
In their season. All goods delivered if requested.

Stewart & Lawrence,

—DEALERS IN—

Lumber, Sash, Doors, Mouldings,
Building Paper, &c.

1st Com. Dimensions and boards, rough	$18 00
2d " " "	10 05
3d " " "	15 00
Ship Lap, dry	17 00
Siding, "	18 00
Flooring, "	21 00
Lath	3 00
Shingles	2 00

A full stock of Sash, Doors, Casings, Mouldings, Eve Trough and Building Paper constantly on hand.

NEW YORK STORE!

Dry Goods, Notions, Shawls.

Ladies' Fine Pebble Goat Slippers, Opera cut, reduced to $1.00
Ladies' extra-fine American kid hand turned sole slippers, $1.50
These slippers are genuine bargnins.

We have a full line of Ladies' and Misses Grey Bro's

FINE SHOES!

Spring heel shoes for men and children.
Gents hand sewed shoes.
" " " walking shoes.
" " " hunting boots.

We carry a full line of Forepaugh & Tarbox custom made goods for Gents', Ladies' and Misses'.

We have a few odd sizes in Men's Heavy Boots that we are closing out Cheap.

PROUD & MACDONELL.

Johnson & Stevens,

FISHER AND CROOKSTON,
WILL NEGOTIATE LOANS
Through the Corbin Banking Co., New York,

SELL MINNESOTA CHIEF
Threshers and Engines,
Deering and Esterly Binders,
Studebaker Wagons,
and a variety of Rakes, Mowers, Plows, Etc., Etc.
KEEP A MORE
COMPLETE LINE OF REPAIRS
than any agency in the County.
Twine and Wire In Season.

EIKEN BROS.,

Corner of Fletcher and Main Street, Crookston, Minn.
Dealers in
HARDWARE, TIWARE,
STOVES,
—AND—
SHELFWARE.
WE KEEP A
FULL & COMPLETE STOCK,
—AND—
Invite the Patronage
OF ALL.

A. H. DUNLOP M. D.,
Graduate McGill University, Montreal.
LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON QUEBEC.
Office on Robert Street, Crookston.

I have a good Hotel for sale, located right in the business part of the city.
H. W. LEWIS.

ELLIS & JOHNSON,
AGENTS FOR THE
WALTER A. WOOD
Mowing and Reaping
MACHINE COMPANY.
A Full Line of Repairs and Twine constantly on Hand.
Robert Street,
Opposite Old Mill. CROOKSTON, MINN.

AIME GABOURY,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
Graduate Doctor in Medicine Laval University Canada. Licensed Coll. Phy. Surg., Quebec Late of Michigan University, U. S.
Office over the "Arcade" Clothing Store,
CROOKSTON - - - - MINN

M. M. VAN DYKE,
Physician and Surgeon,
Corner of Main and Second Streets,
ROOKSTON, - - - MINN
Will attend to all professional calls promptly.

MERCHANTS'
Bank of Crookston.
H. B. MONTGOMERY.........President, St. Paul, Minn.
M. R. BROWN,............Vice President, Crookston, Minn.
J. KELSO.........Second Vice President, Bellevue, Iowa.
Wm. ROSS............Cashier, Crookston, Minn.

CASH CAPITAL, $32,000
SURPLUS, $16,533.82.

Will receive deposits and allow interest by special contract.
Buy and Sell Foreign and Domestic Exchange, make collections, and do a strictly legitimate business.
Agents for foreign passage tickets.
De Skandinaviske Sprog tales her.
WM. ROSS, Cashier.

ATTENTION
Now is the Time to Build
While you can buy
Cream Brick
at Very Low Figures. The Best Brick ever made in the Red River Valley. Manufactured by SWANSON & KOEPPE,
[11-18] Crookston, Minn.

SECOND STREET
MEAT MARKET
STANTON & CO., Proprietors.
Choice meats of every description. Fish and game in their season. Everything of the very best quality and lowest prices. Call and see us.
STANTON & CO.,
Dobson's Block, Second Street.

Polk County Journal.

C[illegible]ston, Minn., Thursday, August 14

'ROUND HOME.

The express cars come in now-a-days are all loaded with twine.

Quite a number of people from Grand Forks were in the city this week.

W. C. Misner and T. C. Hawkins, of Euclid, were at the Linton last Tuesday.

W. M. Clements is now selling out the stock of goods formerly owned by Chas. Davis.

Sam Faulkner, the irresistible stove man, of Minneapolis, was at the Commercial this week.

Pete Nolan is off on sick leave for a week or so. He will put in the time visiting friends below.

Mr. Fosberg, formerly one of Crookston's business men, now of Wilmar, is in the city this week.

Geo. Q. Erskine left on the train last Tuesday morning for Devils Lake to be gone about a week.

Did you notice the change in Stewart & Lawrence' ad? Look at their new price list therein contained.

Mr. W. M. Clements sold out his business on Broadway last Monday to R. Towler, formerly of St. Hilaire.

Landlord Mitton has concluded to change the name of his hotel from the Central to the Merchants' Hotel.

Capt. Soule, of the Russia farm, was in the city yesterday. He says he will commence cutting wheat next Monday.

Any persons who have rooms enough to accommodate one or more teachers next week will please make it known to Supt. Carruth.

The display of fresh fruit at Herb's branch, is the choicest that we have ever seen in this market. Herb always has the finest in the city.

Chas. Seely is bound to get to the front. Last Tuesday morning he set up a fine turkey lunch at his place on Second Street, which was duly appreciated by the boys.

Rev. C. E. Fago and wife spent last Saturday and Sunday at Stephen, Marshall County. They returned Monday evening after having a splendid visit.

Bert Bivins, the baggage agent, was handling a large sample trunk the other day and strained himself, so that he will not be able to attend to business for a few days. M. B. Hayes will take his place until he is able to attend to business again.

The members of Col. Cochran Post No. 90, G. A. R., are organizing a dramatic company, to present to the people of Crookston and vicinity, the celebrated drama, "The Spy of Atlanta." This play will be rendered in this city some time in September. It is a fine play and the members of the Post will leave nothing undone that can be done to make it a grand success.

Ned Gallup, who it will be remembered had his fingers pinched off, one April Fools day a few years since by the cruel bumpers, while attempting to make a coupling in the yard at this place, and who for some years since has been running as baggage smasher, has secured a position as baggage-checker in the union depot at St. Paul. He has taken unto himself a better half, and has a nice, cosy little home it St. Paul.

Chris. Steenerson, the fiery, untamed chieftain of the Beltramis, of Beltrami County, was in the city on Wednesday rigged out in all the glory of his war-paint, blanket, kinikinnic and pipe of peace. He dropped into our den to smoke a piece of the latter with us and to remark, "ugh!" He reports his tribe gaily whoopin up a fine harvest of No. 1 hard and rejoicing in the sure prospects of a good crop and Blaine and Logan. Chris will dwell in the lodges of the pale face awhile ere he departs toward the rising sun.

Sol Smith Russell, in "Edgewood Folks," was the attraction at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday evening. The ever-versatile Sol received an enthusiastic welcome from a large audience whom he kept in uproars of laughter whenever he appeared upon the stage. The very sight of his face is provocative of laughter, but when he appears made up he is irresistibly funny. If we have any fault to find with the performance it is from the fact that he was obliged to hurry through with his part in order to catch the 11 o'clock train for Winnipeg. We have not learned whether the troupe intends to stop on its return or not, but if they should, we advise all who enjoy a hearty laugh to be sure and go.

M. E. Bartlett and A. J. Arnold returned from a trip to the thirteen towns on Monday. They report having seen lots of excellent land and are now on the war path for an interest therein. While there they met a noble red man who was anxious to hire out to Bartlett to come down and work through harvest. Poor Lo expressed an ardent desire to go to work in the harvest fields of the pale face in order, as he expressed it, that he might be able to "get onto the farming racket," and be thus better able to provide for the support of himself and all worthy brother Lo's who [illegible] hereafterly. Lo [illegible] he would hurry home and hurry [illegible] one two three tons of hay [illegible] ox team and then would hie him [illegible] the happy harvest fields of the pale face there to learn just how the old thing works.

Services in the Methodist church next Sunday morning and evening at the usual hours.

John Moore, the new principal of our city schools, with his wife registered at the Commercial on Tuesday.

There was a very heavy rain north of here last Tuesday evening, but we are glad to state that there was no serious damage done.

To-morrow the festive chicken has no rights which a white man is bound to respect. You may shoot him on the fly or any other way you please.

J. H. Willbershire, of St. Paul, is in the city this week in the interest of the St. Paul Harvester works. He is well pleased with the general outlook of things in this county.

Bro. Rothpletz, of the Red Lake Falls Messenger, has recently been called upon to mourn the death of two of his children, a boy and a girl. We extend our heart-felt sympathy to himself and wife in this, their deep affliction.

Mr. Starkweather, Vice president of the St. Paul knitting works, was in the city interviewing our merchants this week. This is a new branch of business in this country but will soon be one of the principal business houses in this country.

Dr. S. Filmore Bennett, of Richmond, Ill., the man who composed the verses "In the sweet bye and bye," was in the city last week visiting Mr. Benedict the popular landlord of the Commercial hotel. Mr. Bennett was greatly pleased with Crookston and will probably make another visit here this fall.

Grover Cleveland, of New York was on July 9th nominated by the Democratic party, a candidate for President, and now you hear of cyclones and big storms in that State. Tammany is all tore up and a big earthquake occurred in that town. Another will occur in November and a Tam-many more will be all tore up.

On Tuesday Mr. John Ross brought in a fine sample of cherry tomatoes, fully ripe. He says that he had ripe tomatoes on July 25th and he thinks there is no reason why tomatoes can not be a staple crop here every year, if properly handled. His method is to plant his seed early enough to have large, thrifty plants to set just as soon in the spring as the danger from frost is past. He gives thorough cultivation and does not allow the plants to branch too much. Thus he secures good, ripe fruit, early and lots of it.

While some are disposed to find fault with this country on account of an occasional high wind, a hail storm now and then and all that sort of thing it is well to consider the fact that this is not the worst country in the world, after all. We have reports of a tremendous cyclone in Alleghany Co., N. Y., in New York papers of recent date, which cyclone must have been a giant in strength. It tore up trees destroyed barns and houses and laid desolate a large tract of country doing thousands of dollars worth of damage in a very few seconds. We have had a very few similar storms in Minnesota but none harder. Again we read of a severe earthquake shock which has been felt in New York city, Boston, Philadelphia and other eastern cities. We don't get any of that kind of music in Minnesota and we don't need it in our business. Let all who are disposed to find fault with our State compare notes and they will be very liable to draw the conclusion that old Minnesota is not half so bad a State to live in after all.

We had a long chat with Supt. W. H. Fisher, during his recent visit to his Polk County farm, in which he gave us some inside views of his methods of farming which show that that gentleman, while being a good railroad man is no slouch of a farmer. He believes in diversified farming, practices it and is making money. On his farm may be seen as fine a herd of shorthorns as was ever brought to this county. He has a large number of Berkshire hogs from which he supplies the farm with meat and annually sells a large quantity of pork. He has one of the finest Norman horses ever brought to Polk County, and every year adds a number to the growing farm horses. For his stock he raises beets, turnips, potatoes, barley, oats and peas in great plenty. He has a root cellar under his stock barn wherein roots will keep without freezing. While he believes in the virgin fertility of the soil he does not believe in robbing his soil year after year without making any returns so he saves all of his straw, which, after the stock have worked it up well, he hauls out onto his fields, during the winter season, in the form of manure. He has a regular system of summer fallowing and says that, while he has some excellent wheat on land that was never top-dressed or summer fallowed yet the wheat on the land that has been so treated so far excels in length of head, stooling, rankness and thickness upon the ground as to more than pay the little extra cost. He intends to build a barn large enough to hold all of the wheat he will raise in one year so that he can as soon as it is cut, haul it into the barn and let it sweat in the mow. Then he will be in no hurry to thresh it but can attend to that at his leisure during the winter time. We are rather inclined to think that Mr. Fisher has some excellent ideas of how farming should be done, and we should not be a bit surprised if he makes some money out of it. We should be surprised if he don't.

The best five cent cigars is at the Red Star Grocery, Broadway. [51-tf]

A. J. Chamberlain, who has been south for the past month, has returned to the city.

Charlie Seely's hub punch, a new summer drink, is the finest in the market. Give it a trial.

Wm. Budge and Capt. Pervio, two Grand Forkers, were in the city this week and registered at the Linton.

Knute Nelson is up from Aldal and reports harvesting down there pretty well under way. He thinks they will be all done next week.

Great preparations are being made by the sportsmen of our city for a big hunt to commence Friday. Every rig, dog and gun is engaged for the sport.

I have some of the best located residence and business lots in the city that I will sell on easy terms.

H. W. Lewis.

L. Berthiaume has purchased a fine engine and thresher of McKinnon Bros., and has his name on brass plates on both the engine and thresher. He intends to thresh everybody giving him the least provocation this fall.

One would think that there would be no lack of threshing machines this fall judging by the number of new ones machine men have sent out this fall. There will hardly be too many, however, as there is a very large area to be threshed.

W. L. Sargent left for Warren last Monday to commence cutting grain. He writes back and says that everything is lovely in that vicinity, and that binders are singing in nearly every field, and that there will be a great deal of grain cut this week.

Miss Ida M. Piper has closed her school at Buxton, D. T., and has accepted a situation as teacher in one of the public schools at Fargo. She has been spending a week with friends in this city and will leave for Fargo soon. Miss Piper is one of the best teachers in the country.

The regular annual Fair of the Northwestern Industrial Exposition will commence at the fair grounds in Minneapolis, on Monday, Sept. 1st, and continue through the week. It is expected that one of the finest display of grains, fruits, vegetables, dairy products, machinery and manufactures of all kinds ever seen in the State, will be made. The live stock display promises to eclipse that of last year, which was the best display of cattle ever made in the State. Representatives of many of the leading herds of the country will be on hand, while of horses, sheep and hogs, there will be no lack. Some of the best trotters in the country are expected, and last, but not least of all the animals on exhibition, Ben Butler will be there and make a speech on some day during the fair. It will be a big time that no one who can help it should miss.

In Deep Affliction.

A short time since Mr. Jacob Sletten was called upon to mourn the sudden death of his brother, the Hon. Paul C. Sletten, and now he mourns the loss of his wife, who died at the residence of John Cromb, Esq., in this city, on Wednesday, August 6th. Mr. Sletten has our sincere sympathy in his afflictions.

A Card.

I wish to thank the traveling men and the public generally for their kind patronage to me while in the hotel business in this city. For nearly four years I was in the Commercial Hotel, and it is not without regret that I leave it, and it is with a great deal of pleasure that I look back and bring to mind the many acquaintances and friends that I met while there. Again I thank you, and hope that I will soon be located again where I shall have the pleasure of meeting you all.

W. H. Topping.

I would say to the people of Polk County that I have on sale some of the most desirable lots in the city o Crookston.

H. W. Lewis.
Office in Journal building.

A BARGAIN.

A choice business location on Broadway 100x140 feet, for sale at a bargain. For particulars address the Journal.

LIST OF LETTERS

Remaining uncalled for in the Crookston Post Office, for the week ending August 11th, 1884. Persons calling for these letters will please say "advertised."

Asleson, Halvor
Anderson, Mr
Barnes, Wellington
Byrnes, John
Bigmen, M Mrs
Crowley, E Cornelius
Chappuis, Cholastic Mrs
Christoffersson Ole—2
Camire, Westor
Carrier, David
Devlin, James
Eriksson, J Charley
Heldstab, John
Johnson, John
Johnson, M Julia Mrs
Jaundran, Jofrey
Kerr, R D
Lytle, O Sidney
Landing, Anna Miss
Logace, Theodul
Leo, John
Lewis, E F Dr
Murphy, G M D
Munson, N I
Moe, Triner Miss
Moen, C Ole
Morin, Ballst Jean
McAray, Nellie
Nelson, Mary Mrs
Olesen, Torger
Olstad, P Ceeter
Poston, H A
Roy, W Geo—2
Smith, Stoddard C
Swanson, Robt
Tweten, Christine Miss
Tollen, H Halvor
Flute, H A
Torgesen, Merl
Terchmaum, R Roy
Viels, B O

PACKAGES.

Johnson, Sophia
Starkweather, Perry
Hobson, Mirine L
Mathews, O W

D. JACOBUS, P. M.

BERG & OLSON,
PRACTICAL WATCHMAKERS,
AND DEALERS IN CLOCKS,
WATCHES,
JEWELRY.
[illegible]

A. Allen, AGENT FOR THE HOWE
SCALE
COMPANY.

Fortier's Place,
Corner Broadway and Robert Street
EVERYTHING NEW, NEAT
AND NOBBY.
Billiards, Pool, and the Choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars. The purest High Proof Whiskies at wholesale prices
PURE IMPORTED GOODS ON DROUGHT.

CITY ICE HOUSE!
E. D. SCHRAEDER & CO., Proprietors.
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Having purchased the ice house business of Ruedy & Kindler, and put up during the past winter from 75,000 to 100,000 tons of ice, we are now prepared to supply the trade the coming summer at reasonable figures.
E. D. Schraeder & Co.

DENTISTRY.
J. H. THOMAS, D. D. S.,
ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.
Artificial Teeth from one to an entire set inserted. Gold, Silver or Artificial Filling used as desired. Regulating Children's Teeth a specialty. ALL WORK WARRANTED.

DR. M. WATTS.
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
OFFICE ON ROBERT STREET.
Professional calls by day or night attended to with promptness.

The Red Lake Falls
FLOURING
MILL
Has lately been enlarged and is now prepared to do custom work without delay. Stable room free.
BUSE & COLBENTSON,
Proprietors, Red Lake Falls, Minn.

Groceries, Provisions,
Flour, Feed
SMOKED, DRIED AND SALT
MEATS,
TEAS,
COFFEES,
SUGARS,
SPICES,
ETC.
Highest Market Price Paid for
FARM PRODUCE.
Bauchman & Millette.
Broadway, Opposite the Post Office,
Crookston, Minn.

Crookston Tonsorial
PARLORS.
PROF. THOMPSON, Proprietor.
Robert Street, Crookston, Minn.
Shaving, hair dressing and all work in my line promptly attended to the latest style of the art. Give me a call.

MERCHANTS HOTEL
J. E. MITTON, Prop.,
WAHPETON, DAKOTA.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homœopathic Physician and Surgeon.
Rooms corner Main street and Fletcher Avenue, over Eiken Bros. Hardware Store,
CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINN.

Wentzel & Rauch,
Sample Rooms.
MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.
For a fine mixed or straight drink call on the boys. The choicest liquors and cigars in stock. [9-1f]

JOHN N. IVES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW.
Collection and Land Office Business made a specialty. Money secured for final proofs.
[illegible]
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

P. A. DUFOUR,
Attorney and Counselor at Law
[illegible] Minn.

HOW TO BE HEALTHY!
Drink LePage's
35c Tea and 35c pure Java Coffee
AND SMOKE MY NICKEL PILGRIM CIGAR.
HOW TO BE WEALTHY!
COME TO THE RED STAR GROCERY
And Save Money on everything you buy.
AND IF YOU ARE WISE
You will buy only Pure and Fresh Groceries. THE RED STAR GROCERY is the place to get them and there you will find Prices the Lowest. Farmers and others bring in your Butter and Eggs and get highest prices for them. Remember the RED STAR, one door south of Montreal House.
E. LEPAGE, Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

E. D. CHILDS & CO.,
Proprietors of
CARMAN TOWNSITE,
AND
Dealers in Real Estate!

Why Don't You wait?
Wait till Crookston has ten thousand people. Three years!
Wait till Crookston is the largest and most important manufacturing town in the Northwest. Two years!
Wait till Crookston has two more large saw mills, and is cutting 75,000,000 feet a season. One year!
Wait till lots in SOUTH CROOKSTON are selling for twice their present valuation (six months) and THEN purchase
South Crookston Property.
But if you have time, just drop in and have a chat with
STEENERSON & McMANUS, Broadway.
JOHN IVES & SON, Broadway.
PALMER & BOND, Robert Street.
CROOKSTON IMPROVEMENT CO., Main Street.

Crookston City Bakery,
Peter Lorge, Prop.,
Keeps constantly on hand a full line of all goods usually found in a
First-Class Bakery.
Cigars and Tobacco, Nuts, Fruits,
Candies; Pies, Cakes, Bread,
And everything to fill out a hungry man, constantly on hand.

MONEY! LAND!
$100,000 To Loan.
20,000 Acres of Land for Sale.
BRING IN YOUR PROPERTY
AND IT WILL BE SOLD.
Law and insurance, Collections Made,
CITY LOTS FOR SALE!
Houses, Rooms and Farms to Rent.
U. S. LAND OFFICE
Business promptly attended to.
CONTEST CASES A SPECIALTY.
Office Corner Broadway and Robert Street,
PALMER & BOND.

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP.
M. RADENBUEHLER, Proprietor.
[illegible]

MERCHANTS' BILLIARD HALL.
FRED ANDERSON, Proprietor.
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.
The choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

Tom Morris,
THE
CITY
JEWELER
Represents the
CELEBRATED
Rockford Quick Train
WATCH
THE ONLY
Railroad
Watch
IN EXISTENCE.

Crookston Nurseries
ESTABLISHED IN 1879.
Tree Claim Stock.
I desire to inform my customers and others that I shall make a great reduction from former prices on forest trees and seeds for tree-claims. I have good thrifty two year old trees, such as Box Elder, Ash and Cottonwood to sell by the thousand. I also furnish the hardier varieties of
SMALL FRUITS,
Such as Currants, Gooseberries, Raspberries and Strawberry plants, and young, thrifty Transcendent and Hislop Crab Apple trees. The firm of Heseltine Bros. having dissolved, I still continue business on the
—OLD NURSERY GROUNDS—
in Crookston. Hoping by fair dealing and promptness with my customers to merit their patronage.
Don't fail to write for Catalogue and Prices.
All Communications Promptly Answered.
F. T. HASELTINE,
Proprietor of the Crookston Nurseries, Crookston, Minn.

JOHN LEO. H. STEENERSON.
LEO & STEENERSON.
ATTORNEYS AT LAW
Room 3., U. S. Land Office Building,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

WANTED!
5,000 Men, Women and Children
—TO VISIT—
HACK & GALLASCH'
General Store, where you can buy
13 lbs. Pure Sugar for $1.00
12 lbs. Turkish Prunes for 1.00
5 three lb. cans Table Peaches for 1.00
Japan Tea from 20 to 60 cts per lb
1 long bar of soap and 1 towel, all for 25c
Our stock of
DRY GOODS, NOTIONS,
AND DRESS GOODS IS COMPLETE.
Don't fail to visit our Shoe and Slipper department before buying elsewhere. New and complete stock of Groceries Crockery, Glassware, Flour and Feed.
We pay the highest market price for Butter, Eggs, Snake Root, Etc.
Call and see us. NO TROUBLE TO SHOW GOODS.
Cor. Main and Second Street,
CROOKSTON, MINN

Bigham & Olafson
(Successors to Juve & Bergland,)
THE POPULAR MERCHANTS ON
MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON,
Have on hand and are constantly receiving full lines of
DRY GOODS, GROCERIES,
CROCKERY,
CLOTHING,
BOOTS AND SHOES,
HATS AND CAPS
In fact everything usually found in a first-class general store.
Our goods are bought with great care and will be sold at LOW PRICES
FOR CASH.

Commercial Hotel,
W. H. TOPPING, Proprietor
SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN
First-class in all respects. Terms reasonable. A share of the public patronage solicited.

Polk County Journal.

[illegible]ston, Minn., Thursday, August 14

ROUND HOME.

The express cars come in now-a-days are all loaded with twine.

Quite a number of people from Grand Forks were in the city this week.

W. C. Misner and T. C. Hawkins, of Euclid, were at the Linton last Tuesday.

W. M. Clements is now selling out the stock of goods formerly owned by Chas. Davis.

Sam Faulkner, the irresistible stove man, of Minneapolis, was at the Commercial this week.

Pete Nolan is off on sick leave for a week or so. He will put in the time visiting friends below.

Mr. Fosberg, formerly one of Crookston's business men, now of Wilmar, is in the city this week.

Geo. Q. Erskine left on the train last Tuesday morning for Devils Lake to be gone about a week.

Did you notice the change in Stewart & Lawrence' ad? Look at their new price list therein contained.

Mr. W. M. Clements sold out his business on Broadway last Monday to R. Towler, formerly of St. Hilaire.

Landlord Mitton has concluded to change the name of his hotel from the Central to the Merchants' Hotel.

Capt. Soule, of the Russia farm, was in the city yesterday. He says he will commence cutting wheat next Monday.

Any persons who have rooms enough to accommodate one or more teachers next week will please make it known to Supt. Carruth.

The display of fresh fruit at Herb's branch, is the choicest that we have ever seen in this market. Herb always has the finest in the city.

Chas. Seely is bound to get to the front. Last Tuesday morning he set up a fine turkey lunch at his place on Second Street, which was duly appreciated by the boys.

Rev. C. E. Fage and wife spent last Saturday and Sunday at Stephen Marshall County. They returned Monday evening after having a splendid visit.

Bert Bivins, the baggage agent, was handling a large sample trunk the other day and strained himself, so that he will not be able to attend to business for a few days. M. B. Hayes will take his place until he is able to attend to business again.

The members of Col. Co[illegible] Post No. 90, G. A. R., are organizing a dramatic company to present to the people of Crookston and vicinity, the celebrated drama, "The Spy of Atlanta." This play will be rendered in this city some time in September. It is a fine play and the members of the Post will leave nothing undone that can be done to make it a grand success.

Ned Gallup, who it will be remembered had his fingers pinched off one April Fools day a few years since by the cruel bumpers, while attempting to make a coupling in the yard at this place, and who for some years since has been running as baggage smasher, has secured a position as baggage checker in the union depot at St. Paul. He has taken unto himself a better half, and has a nice, cosy little home it St. Paul.

Chris. Steenerson, the fiery, untamed chieftain of the Beltramis of Beltrami County, was in the city on Wednesday rigged out in all the glory of his war paint, blanket, kinikinnic and pipe of peace. He dropped into our den to smoke a piece of the latter with us and to remark "ugh!" He reports his tribe [illegible] whoopin up a fine harvest of No. 1 hard and rejoicing in the sure prospects of a good crop and Blaine and Logan. Chris will dwell in the lodges of the pale face awhile ere he departs toward the rising sun.

Sol Smith Russell, in "Edgewood Folks," was the attraction at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday evening. The ever versatile Sol received an enthusiastic welcome from a large audience whom he kept in uproars of laughter whenever he appeared upon the stage. The very sight of his face is provocative of laughter, but when he appears made up he is irresistibly funny. If we have any fault to find with the performance it is from the fact that he was obliged to hurry through with his part in order to catch the [illegible] o'clock train for Winnipeg. We have not learned whether the company intend to stop on the return or not, but if they should, we advise all who enjoy a hearty laugh to be sure [illegible]

Chas. Barrett and A. M. Anderson returned from a trip to the [illegible] towns Monday. They report having [illegible] excellent [illegible] [illegible]

Services in the Methodist church next Sunday morning and evening at the usual hour.

John Moore, the new principal of our city schools, with his wife registered at the Commercial on Tuesday.

There was a very heavy rain north of here last Tuesday evening, but we are glad to state that there was no serious damage done.

To-morrow the festive chicken has no rights which a white man is bound to respect. You may shoot him on the fly or any other way you please.

J. H. Willbershire, of St. Paul, is in the city this week in the interest of the St. Paul Harvester works. He is well pleased with the general outlook of things in this county.

Bro. Rothpletz, of the Red Lake Falls Messenger, has recently been called upon to mourn the death of two of his children, a boy and a girl. We extend our heart-felt sympathy to himself and wife in this, their deep affliction.

Mr. Starkweather, Vice president of the St. Paul knitting works, was in the city interviewing our merchants this week. This is a new branch of business in this country but will soon be one of the principal business houses in this country.

Dr. S. Filmore Bennett, of Richmond, Ill., the man who composed the verses "In the sweet bye and bye," was in the city last week visiting Mr. Benedict the popular landlord of the Commercial hotel. Mr. Bennett was greatly pleased with Crookston and will probably make another visit here this fall.

Grover Cleveland, of New York was on July 9th nominated by the Democratic party, a candidate for President, and now you hear of cyclones and big storms in that State. Tammany is all tore up and a big earthquake occurred in that town. Another will occur in November and a Tam-many more will be all tore up.

On Tuesday Mr. John Ross brought in a fine sample of cherry tomatoes, fully ripe. He says that he had ripe tomatoes on July 25th and he thinks there is no reason why tomatoes can not be a staple crop here every year, if properly handled. His method is to plant his seed early enough to have large, thrifty plants to set just as soon in the spring as the danger from frost is past. He gives thorough cultivation and does not allow the plants to branch too much. Thus he secures good, ripe fruit, early and lots of it.

While some are disposed to find fault with this country on account of an occasional high wind, a hail storm now and then and all that sort of thing it is well to consider the fact that this is not the worst country in the world, after all. We have reports of a tremendous cyclone in Alleghany Co., N. Y., in New York papers of recent date, which cyclone must have been a giant in strength. It tore up trees destroyed barns and houses and laid desolate a large tract of country doing thousands of dollars worth of damage in a very few seconds. We have had a very few similar storms in Minnesota but none harder. Again we read of a severe earthquake shock which has been felt in New York city, Boston, Philadelphia and other eastern cities. We don't get any of that kind of music in Minnesota and we don't need it in our business. Let all who are disposed to find fault with our State compare notes and they will be very liable to draw the conclusion that old Minnesota is not half so bad a State to live in after all.

We had a long chat with Supt. W. H. Fisher, during his recent visit to his Polk County farm, in which he gave us some inside views of his methods of farming which show that that gentleman while being a good railroad man is no slouch of a farmer. He believes in diversified farming practices it and is making money. On his farm may be seen as fine a herd of shorthorns as was ever brought to this county. He has a large number of Berkshire hogs from which he supplies the farm with meat and annually sells a large quantity of pork. He has one of the finest Norman horses ever brought to Polk County, and every year adds a number to the growing farm horses. For his stock he raises beets, turnips, potatoes, barley, oats and peas in great plenty. He has a root cellar under his stock barn wherein roots will keep without freezing. While he believes in the great fertility of the soil, he does not believe in robbing the soil year after year without making any returns so he saves all of his straw which, after the stock have worked it up well, he hauls out onto his fields during the winter season in the form of manure. He has a regular system of summer fallowing and says that while he has some excellent wheat land that was never [illegible]

The best five cent cigars is at the Red Star Grocery, Broadway. [51-11]

A. J. Chamberlain, who has been south for the past month, has returned to the city.

Charlie Seely's hub punch, a new summer drink, is the finest in the market. Give it a trial.

Wm. Budge and Capt. Pervio, two Grand Forkers, were in the city this week and registered at the Linton.

Knute Nelson is up from Aldal and reports harvesting down there pretty well under way. He thinks they will be all done next week.

Great preparations are being made by the sportsmen of our city for a big hunt to commence Friday. Every rig, dog and gun is engaged for the sport.

I have some of the best located residence and business lots in the city that I will sell on easy terms.

H. W. Lewis.

L. Berthiaume has purchased a fine engine and thresher of McKinnon Bros., and has his name on brass plates on both the engine and thresher. He intends to thresh everybody giving him the least provocation this fall.

One would think that there would be no lack of threshing machines this fall judging by the number of new ones machine men have sent out this fall. There will hardly be too many, however, as there is a very large area to be threshed.

W. L. Sargent left for Warren last Monday to commence cutting grain. He writes back and says that everything is lovely in that vicinity, and that binders are singing in nearly every field, and that there will be a great deal of grain cut this week.

Miss Ida M. Piper has closed her school at Buxton, D. T., and has accepted a situation as teacher in one of the public schools at Fargo. She has been spending a week with friends in this city and will leave for Fargo soon. Miss Piper is one of the best teachers in the country.

The regular annual Fair of the Northwestern Industrial Exposition will commence at the fair grounds in Minneapolis, on Monday, Sept. 1st, and continue through the week. It is expected that one of the finest display of grains, fruits, vegetables, dairy products, machinery and manufactures of all kinds ever seen in the State, will be made. The live stock display promises to eclipse that of last year, which was the best display of cattle ever made in the State. Representatives of many of the leading herds of the country will be on hand, while of horses, sheep and hogs there will be no lack. Some of the best trotters in the country are expected, and last, but not least of all the animals on exhibition, Ben Butler will be there and make a speech on some day during the fair. It will be a big time that no one who can help it should miss.

In Deep Affliction.

A short time since Mr. Jacob Sletten was called upon to mourn the sudden death of his brother, the Hon. Paul C. Sletten, and now he mourns the loss of his wife, who died at the residence of John Cronib, Esq., in this city, on Wednesday, August 6th. Mr. Sletten has our sincere sympathy in his afflictions.

A Card.

I wish to thank the traveling men and the public generally for their kind patronage to me while in the hotel business in this city. For nearly four years I was in the Commercial Hotel, and it is not without regret that I leave it, and it is with a great deal of pleasure that I look back and bring to mind the many acquaintances and friends that I met while there. Again I thank you, and hope that I will soon be located again where I shall have the pleasure of meeting you all.

W. H. Topping.

I would say to the people of Polk County that I have on sale some of the most desirable lots in the city of Crookston.

H. W. Lewis.
Office in Journal building.

A BARGAIN.

A choice business location on Broadway 100x140 feet, for sale at a bargain. For particulars address the Journal.

LIST OF LETTERS.

Remaining uncalled for in the Crookston Post Office for the week ending August 11th, 1884. Persons calling for these letters will please say "advertised."

[illegible]

BERG & OLSON,

PRACTICAL WATCHMAKERS

AND DEALERS IN

CLOCKS

WATCHES

JEWELRY

[illegible]

A. Allen,

AGENT

—FOR THE—

HOWE

SCALE

COMPANY.

Fortier's Place,

Corner Broadway and Robert Street

EVERYTHING NEW, NEAT

—AND NOBBY.—

Billiards, Pool, and the Choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars. The purest High Proof Whiskies at wholesale prices

PURE IMPORTED GOODS ON DROUGHT.

CITY ICE HOUSE!

E. D. SCHRAEDER & CO., Proprietors,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.

Having purchased the ice house business of Ruedy & Kindler, and put up during the past winter from 75,000 to 100,000 tons of ice, we are now prepared to supply the trade the coming summer at reasonable figures.

E. D. SCHRAEDER & Co.

DENTISTRY.

J. H. THOMAS, D. D. S.,
ROBERT STREET, - - CROOKSTON, MINN.

Artificial Teeth from one to an entire set inserted. Gold, Silver or Artificial Filling used as desired. Regulating Children's Teeth a specialty. ALL WORK WARRANTED.

DR. M. WATTS.

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.

OFFICE ON ROBERT STREET.

Professional calls by day or night attended to with promptness.

The Red Lake Falls FLOURING MILL

Has lately been enlarged and is now prepared to do custom work without delay. Stable room free.

BUSE & COLBENTSON,
Proprietors, Red Lake Falls, Minn.

Groceries, Provisions,

Flour, Feed

SMOKED, DRIED AND SALT

MEATS,

TEAS,
COFFEES,
SUGARS,
SPICES,
ETC.

Highest Market Price Paid for FARM PRODUCE.

Bauchman & Millette.

Broadway, Opposite the Post Office,
Crookston, Minn.

Crookston Tonsorial PARLORS,

PROF. THOMPSON, Proprietor.
Robert Street, - - Crookston, Minn.

Shaving, hair dressing and all work in my line promptly attended to the latest style of the art. Give me a call.

MERCHANTS HOTEL

I. E. MITTON, Prop.,
WAHPETON, - - DAKOTA

A. A. JUST, M. D.,

Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon.

Rooms corner Main street and Fletcher Avenue, over Eiken Bros. Hardware Store.

CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINN.

Wentzel & Rauch,

Sample Rooms.

[illegible]

JOHN N. IVES,

ATTORNEY AT LAW.

[illegible]

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

F. A. DUFOUR,

Attorney and Counselor at Law

MAIN STREET,

CROOKSTON, - - MINN.

HOW TO BE HEALTHY!

Drink LePage's

35c Tea and 35c pure Java Coffee

AND SMOKE MY NICKEL PILGRIM CIGAR.

HOW TO BE WEALTHY!

COME TO THE RED STAR GROCERY

And Save Money on everything you buy.

AND IF YOU ARE WISE

You will buy only Pure and Fresh Groceries. THE RED STAR GROCERY is the place to get them and there you will find Prices the Lowest. Farmers and others bring in your Butter and Eggs and get highest prices for them. Remember the RED STAR, one door south of Montreal House.

E. LEPAGE, Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

E. D. CHILDS & CO.,

Proprietors of

CARMAN TOWNSITE,

AND

Dealers in Real Estate!

Why Don't You wait?

Wait till Crookston has ten thousand people. Three years!

Wait till Crookston is the largest and most important manufacturing town in the Northwest. Two years!

Wait till Crookston has two more large saw mills, and is cutting 75,000,000 feet a season. One year!

Wait till lots in SOUTH CROOKSTON are selling for twice their present valuation (six months) and THEN purchase

South Crookston Property.

But if you have time, just drop in and have a chat with

STEENERSON & McMANUS, Broadway.
JOHN IVES & SON, Broadway.
PALMER & BOND, Robert Street.
CROOKSTON IMPROVEMENT CO., Main Street.

Crookston City Bakery,

Peter Lorge, Prop.,

Keeps constantly on hand a full line of all goods usually found in a

First-Class Bakery.

Cigars and Tobacco, Nuts, Fruits, Candies; Pies, Cakes, Bread,

And everything to fill out a hungry man, constantly on hand.

MONEY! LAND!

$100,000 To Loan.	20,000 Acres of Land for Sale.

BRING IN YOUR PROPERTY

AND IT WILL BE SOLD.

Law and Insurance, Collections Made,

CITY LOTS FOR SALE!

Houses, Rooms and Farms to Rent.

U. S. LAND OFFICE

Business promptly attended to.

CONTEST CASES A SPECIALTY.

Office Corner Broadway and Robert Street.

PALMER & BOND.

THE PIONEER

HARNESS SHOP.

[illegible]

MERCHANTS'

BILLIARD HALL,

FRED ANDERSON, Proprietor.
CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA

The choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

Tom Morris,

—THE—

CITY

JEWELER

Represents the

CELEBRATED

Rockford Quick Train

WATCH

THE ONLY

Railroad

Watch

IN EXISTENCE.

Crookston Nurseries

ESTABLISHED IN 1879.

Tree Claim Stock.

I desire to inform my customers and others that I shall make a great reduction from former prices on forest trees and seeds for tree-claims. I have good thrifty two year old trees, such as Box Elder, Ash and Cottonwood to sell by the thousand. I also furnish the hardier varieties of

SMALL FRUITS,

Such as Currants, Gooseberries, Raspberries and Strawberry plants, and young, thrifty Transcendent and Hislop Crab Apple trees. The firm of Haseltine Bros. having dissolved, I still continue business on the

—OLD NURSERY GROUNDS—

in Crookston. Hoping by fair dealing and promptness with my customers to merit their patronage.

Don't fail to write for Catalogue and Prices.

☞ ALL COMMUNICATIONS PROMPTLY ANSWERED.

F. T. HASELTINE,

Proprietor of the Crookston Nurseries, Crookston, Minn.

JOHN LEO. H. STEENERSON.

LEO & STEENERSON.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW

Room 3., U. S. Land Office Building,
CROOKSTON. - - - MINNESOTA.

WANTED!

5,000 Men, Women and Children

—TO VISIT—

HACK & GALLASCH'

General Store, where you can buy

13 lbs. Pure Sugar for	$1.00
12 lbs. Turkish Prunes for	1.00
5 three lb. cans Table Peaches for	1.00
Japan Tea from	20 to 60 cts per lb
1 long bar of soap and 1 towel, all for	25c

Our stock of

DRY GOODS, NOTIONS, AND DRESS GOODS IS COMPLETE.

Don't fail to visit our Shoe and Slipper department before buying elsewhere New and complete stock of Groceries Crockery, Glassware, Flour and Feed.

☞ We pay the highest market price for Butter, Eggs, Snake Root, Etc.

Call and see us. NO TROUBLE TO SHOW GOODS.

Cor. Main and Second Street,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN

Bigham & Olafson

(Successors to Jure & Bergland,)

THE POPULAR MERCHANTS ON
MAIN STREET, - - CROOKSTON,

Have on hand and are constantly receiving full lines of

DRY GOODS, GROCERIES,
CROCKERY,
CLOTHING,
BOOTS AND SHOES,
HATS AND CAPS

In fact everything usually found in a first-class general store.

☞ Our goods are bought with great care and will be sold at

LOW PRICES

☞ FOR CASH, ☜

Commercial Hotel,

W. H. TOPPING, Proprietor
SECOND STREET, - CROOKSTON, MINN.

—o—

First-class in all respects. Terms reasonable. A share of the public patronage solicited.

WOE IS ME!

Though we were parted, as though he had died,
She said, I could bear the worst,
If he had only loved me at the last,
As he loved me at the first.

But woe is me! said the hapless maiden,
That ever a lover came,
Since he who lit in my heart the fire
Has failed to tend the flame.

Ah! why did he pour in my life's poor cup
A nectar so divine,
If he had no heart to fill it up
With a draught so pure and fine?

Oh! if he were either true or false,
My torment might have end;
He has, been for a lover, too unkind—
Too loving for a friend.

And there is not a soul in all the world
So wretched as mine must be;
For I cannot live on his love, she said,
Nor die of his cruelty.

—Boston Transcript.

A MEXICAN ROMANCE.

It was in the month of March, in the year 1847, and the fleet of the United States, with the army under General Scott on board, lay before the city of Vera Cruz. All the morning the guns of the fleet had poured their shot upon the castle of San Juan de Ulloa, which commanded the city, and on the beach where the Mexican army had gathered to oppose the landing of the Americans. Finally the heavy fire drove the Mexicans from the beach, and they retired to the castle and the city.

Then the boats of the ships were lowered away and arranged themselves in a long line, parallel with the beach. Soldiers, sailors and marines filled the boats, and in the bows, all along the line, there stood a sailor, with one foot on the gunwale, who held a flag furled around the staff in his hand. Not a sound was heard but the splashing of the waves against the boats, and all eyes were turned toward the flag-ship as the sailors lay on their oars awaiting the signal to advance. A little ball of bunting sped up to the masthead of the flag-ship, and then unrolling itself, spread out into the watched-for signal. "Give way!" The oars fell into the water from end to end of the long line, as if moved by one gigantic impulse, and a race for the shore was begun. Finally, one of the boats grated on the sand, the sailor in the bows leaped to the beach, and amid wild hurrahs unfurled the American flag on the hostile shores of Mexico.

Among the officers in the boat which touched the shore that day was a young lieutenant of infantry named Edward Ives.

In person the young lieutenant was of medium height, and of slight but firm build, with light hair and blue eyes. His face was browned by exposure to the weather, and his expression was one of courage and decision of character. He was recently graduated from West Point, and as yet love, except that of kindred, was to him but a name. In fact, though only 24, Ives was known among the officers of his regiment as "the bachelor," he having announced to each of them in the "strictest confidence" that he considered all men who got married slightly insane.

"Mr. Ives," said the young lieutenant's captain soon after the landing had been effected, "the colonel wants a scout made in the direction of that house over yonder. Take half a dozen men and go see what there is there and report to me."

The house which Edward Ives approached with his scouting party was situated in a grove of palms and giant ferns, something over a mile from the shore. At the main entrance of the house stood a wagon in which some Indian servants were loading the household effects of the family. A tall Mexican, of middle age, was superintending the operation, and gesticulating violently with his cane, as he urged the Indians to greater efforts. Near by stood a young girl of 19, of surpassing beauty. On her olive cheek there was a warm flush, and her dark eyes were hid beneath long, dark lashes. She wore a Spanish mantilla over her head and shoulders, and altogether formed a most charming picture.

The approach of Lieutenant Ives and his men had been so cautious that he was close to the house before his presence was perceived. One of the Indians saw him first, and catching sight of the blue uniform, uttered an exclamation and fled precipitately, followed by all his companions. The Mexican gentleman who had been superintending the leading of the wagon turned his head, and, seeing that there was no escape and no chance of successful resistence stood proudly waiting for the lieutenant to speak. His daughter grasped her father's arm, and a pallor overspread her face.

"Fear nothing, senor," said Lieutenant Ives, in Spanish. "I have only come to see if there are any soldiers concealed hereabouts."

"Fear!" returned the Mexican." We do not fear Northern invaders and robbers. We hate and despise them."

Before the lieutenant had time to reply, a soldier ran up and exclaimed:

"A party of Mexican cavalry are right on us, sir!"

The words were scarcely out of his mouth when, with clanking sabres and jingling spur, thirty horsemen dashed through the trees.

The Americans made a desperate resistance, during which four of the Mexicans were killed, but were soon overpowered. The young lieutenant fought bravely, using his sword, until a sabre-cut in his sword-arm forced him to desist.

From the wild and picturesque dress of his captors Lieutenant Ives saw that they were a party of Mexican guerillas—fierce and cruel men, out of whose hands few escape alive.

The night was now falling, and the Mexicans hurried their prisoners into the house. The lamps were lighted in a large apartment, from which most of the furniture had been removed, and the [illegible] of the band, a fierce-looking man of gigantic stature, whose features showed clearly the Indian blood in his veins, seated himself in a chair, and, lighting a cigarette, ordered the prisoners to be brought before him. The Americans, who, with their arms bound behind them, had been hurried in one corner of the room, were led to the captain of the guerillas, who was spoken of by his subordinates as "El Tigere."

"Ah, Senor Americano," said El Tigere, addressing Lieutenant Ives, "so you thought to take Don Francisco and his daughter captives, did you? If I am not mistaken you were one of the cabelleros who leaped so gallantly from the first boat of the invaders that landed to-day." I and my men were lying behind a hummock near the shore at the time, and I covered you three times with my carbine. I am glad now that I did not kill you then. I have you now where I can shoot you at my leisure."

"Nay," interposed Don Francisco, who was standing near, "these are prisoners of war, captain, and must be treated as such."

"Do not cross the path of the tiger in his fury," replied the captain, with a dark scowl. "Those are my prisoners, and shall be dealt with as I see fit."

Lieutenant Ives knew that his failure to return from his scout would by this time begin to excite apprehensions, and a strong party would be sent out in search of him. So great was his chagrin at having been surprised by the Mexicans, however, that he really cared little whether he was rescued or not.

During the conversation between Don Francisco Monteverte and El Tigere, the don's daughter, Dolores, had stood close beside her father. She had been frightened at first, but her fire was roused by the manner in which the guerrilla chief had replied to her father, and she stood up as proudly and definity as the don himself.

Lieutenant Ives had tied a handkerchief tightly around his arm after he had been wounded. The wound was now causing him intense pain, and he was beginning to feel faint from loss of blood.

"I fear neither tigers nor banditti," said Don Francisco, hotly, in reply to El Tigere's last remark. "I insist that these men be treated as prisoners of war."

"There's just one reason that will purchase them, Senor Don, "and that is the hand of your daughter Dolores."

"Never!" exclaimed Don Francisco. "I would rather see her married to that young invader, much as I hate the whole race of the Americanos, than to you."

Lieutenant Ives, who was becoming more and more impressed with the Donna Dolores, thought to himself that the don's alternative would not be such a bad idea after all.

"Well we have no time to parley now," said El Tigere. "The Americans will be down on us before we know it. I will take my prisoners with me to a place of safety, and in the morning they shall die."

At that moment the report of a musket was heard outside the house, and El Tigere and his followers rushed to the doors and windows in alarm. A party of American soldiers was coming up to the house on the double-quick, and the shot had been fired by one of the Mexican pickets to give warning of their approach. The Mexicans ran to their horses, which were tethered near the house, but before they could mount the Americans were upon them, and a fierce hand-to-hand struggle ensued. The prisoners, being left unguarded, ran out of the house, and the thongs which bound their hands being cut by some who had come to their rescue, they too joined in the fray.

The moon had now risen and looked down through the palm trees and giant ferns on the scene of tumult below. The don and his daughter stood in the doorway looking helplessly on. To them it mattered little which side won, for one party was that of the invaders whom they hated, and the other that of the banditti whom they feared. Donna Dolores, however, secretly hoped that, whichever way the conflict was decided, the handsome young lieutenant (who had seized a sword in his left and was fighting as best he could) would come out of the affray in safety. In less time then it takes to tell all this the Mexicans had either been killed or put to flight, and Don Francisco found himself face to face with Captain Kirkland, who had commanded the rescuing party. The captain was for taking the don prisoner, charging him with having been in league with the guerillas, and having brought about the capture of Lieutenant Ives and his men. The lieutenant, however, warmly interceded for the don, and told how he had stood between El Tigere and his prisoners a short time before. On hearing this the captain bowed low to the don and thanked him in courteous phrases for what he had done, speaking all the time in English, however, of which Don Francisco understood never a word. Dolores, who had been educated in England and spoke English perfectly, translated the purport of the captain's words to her father, and then, turning a grateful look upon Lieutenant Ives, gave her hand to him. The young man bowed low and pressed it to his lips. The hand was quickly withdrawn and the don frowned, but the Donna Dolores smiled and blushed. Thus they parted.

Days and weeks passed. At length Vera Cruz fell and General Scott began his grand march for the capital. The great battles which marked his passage of the Cordilleras are matters of history. Finally the day came when, over these causeways which furnished a passage for those glittering cavaliers of Cortez, Quitman and Worth stormed the gates of the City of Mexico. Lieutenant Ives won much of glory in all the battles which led up to the, final victory and in that last engagement received a serious wound which placed him in the hospital. The hospital in which he lay was within the city, and every day the good Sisters of Charity, who bestowed their care alike on friend and foe, came about, comforting the sick and giving words of peace to the dying. One day there came to the hospital with one of the sisters a novice, whose white veil showed that she had not yet taken those solemn vows which separated her from the world. The sister came and stood by the bedside of the wounded lieutenant, and with her the novice.

The young man raised his eyes and recognized in the novice Dolores Monteverte. The recognition was mutual and Dolores visited the bedside of the lieutenant every day after that; he would have no one else minister to him. And why should she not? Had she not resolved to be a sister of charity and spend her life in attending the sick? Her father had joined the [illegible] killed in battle, and she was an orphan now. The result was that when, after a month, Lieutenant Ives was able to leave the hospital, he returned to the United States, Dolores, reconsidering her determination to enter a convent, went with him as his bride, and Edward Ives was no longer "the bachelor" of his regiment.

Payne must go out of the Indian Territory or [illegible] are to be destroyed.

The Rearing of Children.

We should make ourselves conversant with those little parliamentary rules which must govern the conduct of the parent in his or her social contact with the child. A few suggestions upon what constitutes etiquette, readily marking and contrasting the cultivated parent and distinguishing him or her from the vulgar, the snide, the plebeian, the canailles (as we say in France), might not be ill-timed or inopportune. In wiping a child's nose be extremely careful to leave the nose. Some parents use so much unnecessary strength in doing this that they find when it is too late that they have wiped the nose of a pet child into space, nothing gives more needless pain. Nothing can be more pitiful than the child's first look of sorrow and disappointment when he starts to wipe his nose and discovers that it is gone. Pause, fond parent, while the wipe is in its incipiency, and resolve that you will spare its nose. It can be of no use to you, and the loss of it will be a constant source of annoyance to the child. Teach your child the beauty of frankness and open candor toward all. Impress upon him the beauty of being what you appear to be, and hate deception everywhere. If you fondle him and dote on him in society, and then, when the home-life is again resumed, you throw him down cellar and wear out a table-leg on his chubby limbs, he will learn that life is real, life is earnest, and the square-toed-open, frank policy is not generally in use. Parents should inpress upon their children the beauty of self-sacrifice and self-abnegation, if they know what that is; I don't. If there should be but one piece of pie, give it to "poor sick papa." It may kill him, and after the funeral your young life will be one prolonged hallelujah and rose-tinted whoop-'em-up. Parents should not be constantly suspicious of their children. If you fear that your son is playing pin-pool, do not break down your constitution and bring on delirium tremens hanging around the pool-tables watching all night for him. He will look upon you with distrust, and no doubt, at last, tell you to go and soak your head.

Do not constantly tell your boy "how tall" he is—that he "grows like a weed," and finally make him think he is a giraffe. If you keep it up you will finally make a round-shouldered, awkward, bashful bean-pole out of a mighty good-looking boy. The same rule applies to girls as well. If you want to make your daughter fall over the piano and learn to climb a tree whenever she sees anybody come toward the house, tell her "what a great swalloping tom-boy she is getting to be." In this way, if parents act judiciously and in concert, we can soon have a nation of young men and women whose marriage and carriage will be as beautiful and as symmetrical as the plaster cast of a sore toe.—Denver Opinion.

Old-Fashioned Flowers.

From the Lancaster Intelligencer.

On many sides we see the evidences that the old fashioned flowers are coming into fresh favor. A bright lady writer gives it as her experience and observation that there is a decided restoration of the flowers of our great-grandmothers' gardens, such as peonies, poppies, hollyhocks, sweet williams, clove pinks, yellow lilies, columbines, blue-bells, fleur-de-lis, monk's hood, phloxes, lychnis, sweet sultan, and the like. They are not only for the most part beautiful in color and form, but a great advantage of their cultivation is, that when once planted they will delight the senses for years, if a little attention is only given to them in the spring by digging about the roots and applying a plentiful supply of rich compost, and dividing their roots in autumn if too crowded. They bloom at a season when flowers are most welcome.

Who that has been familiar with a garden of a generation ago will not recognize this picture? "To make an old-fashioned garden there should be beds of Easter lilies, mingled with clumps of spider lilies and borders of sweet williams and columbine of every hue, inter mixed with circles of such annuals as migonette and sweet alyssum, edged with blue-bells or baby's breath. Long beds are made of tulips of all colors, single and double, and clumps of peonies, phloxes, clove pinks, poppies and garden pinks, with a background of hollyhocks and monk's hood. The martagon lilies, Easter lilies, yellow lilies, and the iris, with its pure crimson balls, succeeded the tulips, and then the June roses, which in these days of rose gardens would not be thought very beautiful, but at that time were a glory. Fifty kinds of garden roses were planted there, besides climbers and bush roses, and various kinds of monthly tea and banksia, whose clusters of buff flowers were exquisitely beautiful. Of course these delicate roses were housed in the cellar during the winter, but they added great beauty to the old garden in the summer. Campanulas, fox-gloves, pyrethrums, and larkspurs, also grew in abundance, and cut flowers always filled vases and dishes in the sitting-room and parlor. The blood-red dark crimson and dwarf golden yellow sorts are very effectual in mixed borders. Sweet williams have been greatly improved and produce flowers of large size and great richness of coloring.

Oldest of English Families.

Lord Palmerston's country residence is known to have been near Romsey, Hants. In the course of his accustomed rides in the New Forest he saw a laboring man burning lime and entered into familiar conversation with him, asking to be obliged with his surname. The man replied it was Purkiss. Now, this was the reply that was sought, and Palmerston exclaimed, "I thought as much." He accordingly asked the man if he were descended from the lime-burner of that name who carted away the body of William Rufus after his unfortunate fall by the arrow of Sir Walter Tyrrel. The man answered in the affirmative. "Then give me your hand," said his lordship, [illegible] Hampshire man, [illegible] "Thus," said his lordship, [illegible] —Notes and Queries.

Olden Time Political Animosities.

Men complain of the partisanship of our politics, and predict that it will injure the national life. But as American politics have always been marked by intense feeling, this view is a little more gloomy than the facts justify. The political campaigns of our grandfathers and our fathers were fully as exciting and bitter as those of the present, yet the Republic still lives. Our Presidential campaigns are disgraced by fierce assaults upon the private characters of public men. But disgraceful as they are, they are equalled by the calumnies which Whig and Democrat hurled at each other fifty years ago, when Clay and Jackson were rivals. An amusing story illustrates the violent feelings which then swayed the partisans of these political leaders.

In Daviess County, Ky., at the time when Henry Clay was leading the opposition to Gen. Jackson, who was a candidate for the Presidency, there lived a plain, industrious farmer. He was an ardent politician, noted for his hostility to Clay and his party.

But his interest in politics did not make him indifferent to his wife's happiness. While in town one day, he thought he would surprise the good woman by presenting her with a new set of dishes. He selected a pretty pattern, and being in a hurry, did not examine them closely, but had them packed and placed in his wagon. His wife was delighted with the gift, but no slight examination satisfied her feminine curiosity. In turning over a dish, she discovered on the under side a portrait of Henry Clay. Every piece was thus marked. Thinking to tease her husband, she asked if he had looked closely at the dishes.

"No," said he. "Anything wrong with them?"

"Oh no! But I was a little surprised at your sudden change of politics."

"Change of politics! What do you mean?" shouted the husband, as excited as if he had been charged with a crime.

Picking up a plate, he saw the portrait. As promptly as if he were punishing a robber he gathered up the dishes, and carrying them to the door, broke them in fragments on the stone steps. He purchased another set of dishes in a few days, but not until he had ascertained that there was no political heresy painted on them. Youth's Companion.

Power of Music.

It is true that most persons are more impressed by what they see than by what they hear; so that it has became a maxim that one learns more readily through the eye than through the ear. But nature is a compensating mother. If the eye begets the most lasting impression, the ear imparts the most active stimulant. Few artists who appeal to the eye have so aroused the vital action as those who seek the ear. An illustration of the power of sound, expressed in fitting music to fitting words, is given by Ben Perley Poor in the Boston Budget. He says:

Jenny Lind's ballad-singing carried her Washington audiences by storm. Without in the slightest degree compromising its character of a single ballad, she infused into every line of it more of the poetic spirit and meaning than the words, upon the mere reading seemed to contain.

It was often the outpouring of the soul of a Scottish peasant lassie, yet it was one of the most sparkling pieces of vocalization ever listened to.

What wonderous versatility was here! From Bellini to Burns—from the highest reach of Italian art to the most homely simplicity of Scottish minstrelsy—and the same effects produced by each!

At the close of her singing of the "Last Rose of Summer," on one occasion, Mr. Webster, who occupied a front seat, joined in demanding its repetition, and when Miss Lind came on the stage again he rose and bowed low thrice, his swarthy features gleaming with gratification. The audience indorsed the compliment with vociferous applause.

What there is in a Bottle.

Sufficient to stop in five minutes the smarting, stinging pain of 100 burns or scalds. It will stop the pain as soon as applied.

Abundance to cure a score of colds and the coughing that often leads the way to Consumption. IT WILL POSITIVELY ease a Cough in fifteen minutes.

More than enough to save a dozen children Choking with CROUP. One minute after the first dose the hardest attack of Croup will be relieved.

Plenty to relieve the oppression and wheezing of the most severe case of of Asthma. The direct cure of Asthma by this medicine is proof that Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has no equal as an Asthma cure.

In the above cases Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil can be relied upon. It has given relief to thousands. Keep it in your house. There is hardly a week of the year it will not be useful.

Rough on Payne's Squatters.

A Dispatch says that Gen. Hatch moved his headquarters from Caldwell, Kansas, Wednesday, his camp being twenty-five miles southeast, on the Chickaskia river, where six companies of the Ninth cavalry are concentrated Operations will probably continue until the last intruder on the Indian country has been expelled. The impression prevails at Rock Falls, a few miles below, that Honewell will be raided first, the printing press and belongings confiscated and the contents of the notorious drug store destroyed, and that Payne and his ring leaders will be marched to Fort Smith to answer numerous indictments in the federal court. The valley settlement will probably be cleared up next by detachments of troops striking simultaneously from numerous camps along the Cimarron and the north fork of the Canadian river. All improvements will be destroyed. The best information attainable places the number of the boomers at 3,000.

It is understood that Secretary Lincoln has decided upon the promotion of the survivors of the Greely party. Steward Biederbeck, and Private Connell will be made sergeants, and Sergeants Brainard, Frederick and Long second lieutenants. Lieut. Greely, it is understood, has refused to accept promotion [illegible] with his report.

BORN LUCKY.

The Memphis Man Who Got $15,000.

Fortune seems to favor this neighborhood, for hardly a Louisiana Lottery drawing takes place without singling out some lucky fellow in Memphis or this vicinity. At the last drawing ticket No. 67,552 drew the fourth capital prize of $6,000, and one-fifth was collected by the German National Bank for Chris. Hettinger an honest and industrious carpenter. Mr. Hettinger was looking over the morning Avalanche, when he came to his number. He hastily remarked to a friend: "By Joe, I believe I have struck it this time," and rushed off for his ticket. He was overjoyed to find that it was a tally.

Ticket No. 12,333 drew the first capital prize of $75,000, and one-fifth was held by a well-to-do farmer living in the quaint and picturesque little town of Canadaville, Fayette, county, Tenn. An Avalanche reporter paid a visit recently to Canadaville and was introduced to the lucky farmer. His face was all aglow with good nature. He said that his good fortune enabled him to make some improvements in his place that he had been long wanting to make, but felt unable to do so. He said he had begun life with nothing, but had accumulated and acquired a good farm. His $15,000 would enable him to live comfortable and serenely the rest of his life. He remarked to the reporter that now he would have a windmill—something that his heart had long been set upon. The farmer drew his money through the Bank of Commerce of this city.—Memphis (Tenn.) Avalanche, July 26.

"There is nothing in the reports this year that has not been known a long time," remarked Gen. Newton, chief of engineers, when questioned about the reports of coast defense. "They show the utter defenseless condition of our coast and the impossibility of repulsing an attack by the navy of any second or third European power. The defenses of Washington form the most striking example though no worse than many others. Here is the national capital, the capitol building, and that important institution called the treasury, protected by two dismantled, decaying and superannuated forts that are utterly useless. It is certainly to be hoped that congress will realize the necessity for improving this state of affairs. It seems particularly urgent that Washington should be prperly protected.

By direction of the secretary of war Orderly Sergeant Martin Schocht, United States army, will be relieved from duty at Fort Buford, Dak., and proceed to Fort Pike, Louisiana. Orderly Sergeant Cooney upon being thus relieved will proceed to Fort Buford, Dak., and report to the commanding officer for assignment. The following named second lieutenants (recently promoted from non-commissioned officers) will proceed from Fort Monroe, Va., to the respective companies to which they have been assigned: Alfred S. Frost, Twenty-fifth infantry, Company F, Fort Snelling, Minn.; Leon S. Randiez, Fifteenth infantry, Company D, Fort Pembina, Dak. If the officers named join their station within thirty days, over and above the time necessary to reach them in the ordinary course, it will be deemed a compliance with this order. The detail of the following named officer as acting judge advocate for the department designated, to date from July 5, 1884, is announced: Capt. John R. Myrick, Third artillery, department of Dakota.

Blue Grass Breeders.

Mr. R. S. Withers of Fairlawn Stock Farm, Lexington, Ky., writes: "I have such confidence in St. Jacobs Oil, the great pain-cure, that I use it on everything; myself, my horses, my negroes. Everybody and every horse, for all kinds of aches and pains, believe in its sovereignty as a cure."

Working the Soil.

Plowing and harrowing have long been the two chief operations in cultivation, and the general idea has been that we plowed the land so it would harrow easier, and that harrowing was done to make the soil loose so we could put the seed in. For general purposes these reasons are sufficient as long as they insure thoroughness in the work. But we can easily apply a well-known principle that will help us understand the importance of the work and aid us in some cases to decide what to do and when to do it. All substances decay faster when exposed to air and moisture; therefore the more the soil is stirred and pulverized the more plant-food will be developed.

Brush got the $95,000 electric light contract at Detroit, but his competitors got an injunction.

"No Physic, Sir, in Mine!"

A good story comes from a boys' boarding-school in "Jersey." The diet was monotonous and constipating, and the learned Principal decided to introduce some old-style physic in the apple-sauce, and await the happy results. One bright lad, the smartest in school, discovered the secret mine in his sauce, and pushing back his plate, shouted to the pedagogue, "No physic, sir, in mine. My dad told me to use nothin' but Dr. Pierce's 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets,' and they are doing their duty like a charm!" They are anti-bilious, and purely vegetable.

Ex-Major Hugh Moffat of Detroit, Mich., died last night, aged seventy-five and leaving $500,000.

It's no secret nostrum. We speak of Dr. Pierce's Extract of Smart-Weed, composed of best French Brandy, Smart-Weed, Jamaica Ginger and Camphor Water. It cures cholera morbus, colic or cramps in stomach, diarrhœa, dysentery or bloody-flux, and breaks up colds, fevers and inflammatory attacks.

James Ashbey, an insane man of Holden, Mo., mortally shot his father-in-law, W. F. Hess, who was having him removed to an asylum.

"Hello!" we heard one man say to another, the other day. "I didn't know you at first, why! you look ten years younger than you did when I saw you last." "I feel ten years younger," was the reply. "You know I used to be under the weather all the time and gave up expecting to be any better. The doctor said I had consumption. I was terribly weak, had night-sweats, cough, no appetite, and lost flesh. I saw Dr. Pierce's 'Golden Medical Discovery' advertised, and thought it would do no harm if it did no good. It has cured me. I am a new man because I am a well one."

Nasby is building the Toledo Blade a fine office.

"After Suffering Four Years."

I have used the Papillon Skin Cure for my ulcerated sore leg. It has entirely healed and is free from pain. I have recommended it to several persons here, and they are trying it. I will take great pleasure in recommending it, for I can safely do so. I suffered with my leg four years, and tried a great number of remedies that gave me no relief. Your medicine cured me. I cheerfully give you permission to write a testimonial just to suit yourself.

Thanking you for such a medicine, I am,
MRS. M. LARUE
Covington, Ky., April 5, 1884.

I have known and watched the use of Swift's specific (S. S. S.) for over fifty years, and never have known or heard of its failure to cure any case of Blood Poison when promptly taken. H. L. DENNARD, Perry, Ga.

Plain as The Nose on Your Face.

What is the difference between a persons nose and Carboline the Great Petroleum Hair Renewer. Ans:—one is the center of the head and the other is a head-scenter.

The St. Paul road earned $1,960,000 in July, an increase of $120,715.

Stinging, irritation, inflammation, all kidney and urinary complaints, cured by "Buchu-Paiba." $1.

I have been using Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) [illegible] JOHN TRECHER, 3d U. S. Cavalry.

Older than Emperor William.

Dr. Warner's German Hop Bitters, the great German Remedy. None genuine that do not bear Dr. G. D. Warner's name [illegible]

Don't Be Swindled.

The only genuine German Hop Bitters [illegible] label and wrapper of the genuine.

Miller & Son, flax spinners of Belfast, have failed. Liabilities, £110,000.

Bed-bugs, flies, roaches, ants, rats, mice, cleared out by "Rough on Rats." 15c.

Young Men!—Read This.

THE VOLTAIC BELT CO., of Marshall, Mich., offer to send their celebrated ELECTRO-VOLTAIC BELT and other ELECTRIC APPLIANCES on trial for thirty days, to men (young or old) afflicted with nervous debility, loss of vitality and all kindred troubles. Also for rheumatism, neuralgia, paralysis, and many other diseases. Complete restoration to health, vigor and manhood guaranteed. No risk is incurred as thirty days trial is allowed. Write them at once for illustrated pamphlet free.

Hunts [Kidney and Liver] Remedy is no "hit or miss" compound or old woman's mixture. It is prepared by a scientific pharmacist, with a full knowledge of the powers and virtues of each ingredient in the class of diseases which it cures. It is purely vegatable and can not harm the youngest child or the most feeble invalid.

ALLEN'S IRON TONIC BITTERS give tone and vigor to the whole system. All genuine bear the signature of J. P. Allen, Druggist, St. Paul, Minn.

The best place to obtain a good business education is at the N. W. Business College, Madison, Wis. Send for Catalogue.

The Stillwater and Fort Wayne clubs follow the Bay Citys up the flue.

"Rough on Pain." Quick cure for Colic, Cramps, Diarrhœa, Aches, Pains, Sprains, Headache.

Several St. Paul school buildings are to have chemical fire extinguishers and standpipes.

An Invaluable Remedy.—None except those who have suffered all the horrors of Dyspepsia, can fully appreciate the value and efficacy of Perry Davis' Pain Killer, a sovereign remedy for this distressing disease in all its forms is used internally and externally, test its virtues.

Headache is immediately relieved by use of Piso's Remedy for Catarrh.

The St. Paul public library issued 10,407 books in July.

Nervous Weakness, Dyspepsia, Sexual Debility, cured by "Wells' Health Renewer." $1.

Mensman's Peptonized Beef Tonic, the only preparation of beef containing its entire nutritious properties. It contains blood-making, force-generating and life-sustaining properties; invaluable for Indigestion, Dyspepsia, nervous prostration, and all forms of general debility; also, in all enfeebled conditions, whether the result of exhaustion, nervous prostration, overwork, or acute disease, particularly if resulting from pulmonary complaints. CASWELL, HAZARD & CO., Proprietors, New York. Sold by Druggists.

Barbed Wire.

If you have barbed wire fences, keep Veterinary Carbolisalve in your stables. It is the best remedy for wounds of all kinds. 50c. and 1.00 cans at druggists or by mail. J. W. COLE & CO., Props., Black River Falls, Wis.

5,000 ACTIVE AGENTS WANTED AT ONCE
Address H. R. HALE, So., Manchester, Conn.

PATENTS! Thos. P. Simpson, Washington, D. C. No pay asked for patent until obtained. Write for Inventor's Guide.

WHITE BEAVER'S COUGH CREAM
Heals Diseased Lungs.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE!
BEST IN THE WORLD.
Get the Genuine. Sold Everywhere.

PAIN!

Pain is supposed to be the lot of us poor mortals, as inevitable as death, and liable at any time to come upon us. Therefore it is important that remedial agents should be at hand to be used in an emergency, when we are made to feel the excruciating agonies of pain, or the depressing influence of disease.

Such a remedial agent exists in that old Reliable Family Remedy,

PERRY DAVIS'
Pain-Killer

It was the first and is the Only Permanent Pain Reliever.

ITS MERITS ARE UNSURPASSED.

There is nothing to equal it for curing

Colic, Cramps, Spasms, Heartburn, Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Flux, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache.

CURES CHOLERA!

When Cholera prevailed in the years 1849 and 1850,

"PAIN-KILLER"

Was used with such wonderful success, that it is considered an unfailing cure for all Bowel Complaints. It has stood the test of Forty Years' Constant Use in all Countries.

WHEN USED EXTERNALLY AS A LINIMENT, nothing gives quicker ease in Burns, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Stings from Insects and Scalds. Those suffering with Rheumatism, Gout or Neuralgia, if not a positive cure, they find the PAIN-KILLER gives them relief when no other remedy will. In sections of the country where

FEVER AND AGUE

Prevails, there is no remedy held in greater esteem. Persons traveling should keep it by them.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

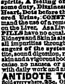
ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

Sold everywhere, 25c. Office, 44 Murray St., N.Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed instantly to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.
Office, 44 Murray Street, New York.
TUTT'S MANUAL OF USEFUL RECEIPTS FREE.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS



The feeble grow strong when Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is used to promote assimilation of the food and enrich the blood. Indigestion, the chief obstacle to an acquisition of strength by the weak, is an ailment which infallibly succumbs to the action of this peerless corrective. Loss of flesh and appetite, failure to sleep, and growing evidence of premature decay, are speedily counteracted by the great invigorant, [illegible]

For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

ECZEMA ON SCALP.

Cuticura
A POSITIVE CURE for every form of SKIN & BLOOD DISEASE.
FROM PIMPLES to SCROFULA

ITCHING, Scaly, Pimply, Scrofulous, Inherited, Contagious, and Copper Colored Diseases of the Blood, Skin, and Scalp, with loss of Hair, are positively cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new blood purifier, cleanses the blood and perspiration of impurities and poisonous elements, and removes the cause.

CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, instantly allays Itching and Inflammation, clears the Skin and Scalp, heals Ulcers and Sores, and restores the Hair.

CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier and Toilet Requisite, prepared from CUTICURA, is indispensable in treating Skin Diseases, Baby Humors, Skin Blemishes, Chapped and Oily Skin.

CUTICURA REMEDIES are absolutely pure and the only infallible Blood Purifiers and Skin Beautifiers.

Sold everywhere. Price, Cuticura, 50 cents; Soap, 25 cents; Resolvent, $1. Prepared by POTTER DRUG AND CHEMICAL CO., BOSTON, MASS.

Send for "How to Cure Skin Diseases."

ROCKFORD WATCHES

Are unequalled in EXACTING SERVICE.

Used by the Chief Mechanician of the U. S. Coast Survey; by the Admiral commanding in the U. S. Naval Observatory, for Astronomical work; and by Locomotive Engineers, Conductors and Railway men. They are recognized as THE BEST for all uses in which close time and durability are requisites. Sold in principal cities and towns by the COMPANY'S exclusive Agents (leading jewelers,) who give a Full Warranty.

RULES For self-measurement and price list sent free by BIG BOSTON, Minneapolis.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

LEARN TELEGRAPHY, or SHORT-HAND and TYPE WRITING HERE. Situations furnished. Address Valentine Bros., Janesville, Wis.

"St. Paul Chemical Oil—Sure cure for Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, any local inflammation, or affection of the muscles or joints. Sold by Druggists.—Wholesale by Noyes Bros., & Cutler, St. Paul, Minn.

SOLDIERS or heirs send stamp for circulars showing who is entitled to pension, bounty, &c. L. C. WOOD, Pension Atty., Washington, D.C.

STOCKS of goods wanted in exchange for Minneapolis Real Estate. E. H. Steele, Minneapolis.

MORPHINE and CHLORAL HABITS EASILY CURED. BOOK FREE. Dr. J. C. Hoffman, Jefferson, Wisconsin. OPIUM

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good.
Use in time. Sold by druggists.
25 CTS.

NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC.
MUSIC. Vocal and Instrumental and Tuning.
ART. Drawing, Painting, Modeling and Portraiture.
ORATORY. Literature and Languages.
HOME. Elegant accommodations for 500 lady students.
FALL TERM begins Sept. 11th. Beautifully Ill'd Calendar free. Address E. TOURJEE, Director.
FRANKLIN SQUARE, BOSTON, MASS.

DON'T BUY AN ENGINE

Until you have seen our Circulars and Prices. $250 for 15 Horse Power, to $550 for 60 Horse Power. Engines complete with Governor, Pump, Heater, and Throttle Valve, and Sight Feed Cylinder Lubricator. More than 1,000 in use. Send for circular giving testimonials from every State in the Union. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed.
HERALD & MORRIS,
[Mention this paper.] Baldwinsville, N.Y.

PAPILLON COUGH CURE
ABSOLUTELY CURES
WHOOPING COUGH.
It is a harmless vegetable syrup, very delicious to the taste. Relieves at once and is a positive cure. Winter Cough and Bronchial Cough are cured by this excellent remedy.
FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS

THE TIFFIN Well Boring & Rock Drilling MACHINERY!
For Horse or Steam Power
Hundreds of the best men in 30 States and Territories use it and will have no other!
RELIABLE! DURABLE! SIMPLE!
Established over 35 years, we have ample facilities to fill orders promptly, and to satisfaction of our customers. Catalogue FREE. Address
LOOMIS & NYMAN, Tiffin, Ohio.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND
IS A POSITIVE CURE FOR
All those painful Complaints and Weaknesses so common to our best
FEMALE POPULATION.
Price $1 in liquid, pill or lozenge form.

Its purpose is solely for the legitimate healing of disease and the relief of pain, and that it does all it claims to do, thousands of ladies can gladly testify.

It will cure entirely all Ovarian troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Falling and Displacements, and consequent Spinal Weakness, and is particularly adapted to the change of life.

It removes Faintness, Flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves Weakness of the Stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, and backache, is always permanently cured by its use.

Send stamp to Lynn, Mass., for pamphlet. Letters of inquiry confidentially answered. For sale at druggists.

$1000.00!

WILL be paid to any one who will find a particle of Mercury, Potash, Iodine, Arsenic or any poisonous substance in Swift's Specific.

"I have cured Blood Taint by the use of Swift's Specific after I had most signally failed with the Mercury and Potash treatment."
F. A. TOOMER, M. D., Perry, Ga.

"Swift's Specific has cured me of Scrofula of 12 years standing. Had sores as large as my hand, and every one thought I was doomed. Swift's Specific cured me after physicians and all other medicines had failed."
R. L. HIGH, Lonoke, Ark.

$10,000 would not purchase from me what Swift's Specific has done for me. It cured me of Rheumatism caused by malaria."
ARCHIE THOMAS, Springfield, Tenn.

Our Treatise on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed free to applicants.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO.,
Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.
N. Y. office, 159 W. 23d St., bet. 6th and 7th Avenues.
Philadelphia office, 1205 Chestnut St.

Dr. Spinney & Co.

Treat all Chronic and Nervous Diseases. Young men who may be suffering with Weakness, Nervous Debility, Despondency, Aversion to Society, Kidney troubles, or any similar diseases, can here find a safe and speedy cure. There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are often troubled with uncomfortable symptoms, accompanied by weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. Examination reveals the fact that the patient's system is undergoing a depletion which rapidly exhausts every vital function. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause. [illegible] DR. SPINNEY & CO., [illegible] Minneapolis, Minn.

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS
MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD.
[illegible]

MY LOVE AND I.

We loved each other, my love and I;
And the wind sighed low through the tasseled corn,
The bobolink sang in the dewy morn,
And the brook ran merrily by.

We loved each other, my love and I;
And the quail piped low mid the yellow corn,
We heard in the distance the huntsman's horn,
And the leaves were brown and dry.

We looked to the future, my love and I,
The future so crowded with hopes and fears
That turns our smiles so often to tears,
As the days pass wearily by.

He spoke of the time when we two should dwell,
Together beneath fair Southern skies,
Where the rose in its fragrance never dies,
And love hears no parting knell.

The corn was garnered long years ago,
The bobolink's song is heard no more;
Only a shadow falls through the door
Where he used to come and go.

The sea is wide and it lies between
My love and I, my love and I;
Where the flowers bloomed dead leaves now lie,
And the grass o'er his grave is green.
—Rebecca Ruter Springer.

SIR ALGERNON'S INTENTIONS.

In Three Episodes.

MORNING.

Sir Algernon Tudor was eminently aristocratic and exceedingly good-looking but not altogether so wise as a baronet with a rent roll of £10,000 a year ought to be.

And Sir Algernon was desperately in love with Lady Dolly Castleton, who was, as everybody knew, the prettiest girl in all the country, and not a bad match even for Sir Algernon.

Dolly, for her part, was quite aware of the tender feelings she had inspired, and was even prepared to reciprocate it as soon as the gentleman gave her a chance of doing so, without overstepping the bounds of maiden modesty and reserve; for Dolly was a very discreet young lady, and knew better than to make herself cheap by meeting advances too readily, or doing any of the love-making herself. And poor Sir Algernon, who was very shy and not very ready of speech, found this sweet unvarying friendliness very trying, for he was dreadfully in love, and anxious above all things to propose and get that difficult question off his mind, and yet he never seemed able to arrive at the desired goal.

But one morning he screwed up his courage to a very high point. Fortune had favored him, for he had been invited to lunch at the house where Dolly was staying, and he was to remain for a small dance which was to follow on the same evening, so that he would pass many consecutive hours in the immediate neighborhood of his idol, and it was all but impossible that the day could pass without giving him the desired oppotunity.

"I'll propose to-day—I'll settle it all to-day," said Sir Algernon to himself over and over again, as he dressed himself with the most scrupulous care. "I'll go over early with those duets she promised to try with me. That will give us an excuse for getting into some room by ourselves, and when the music and words have led up to it, I'll have it out with her. I believe she cares for me, and I'll make her give me my answer. I can't live a day longer in this suspense."

Fortune favors the brave, and Sir Algernon, who tried to persuade himself that his courage was unbounded, soon found himself alone with Dolly and his duets in a delightful little boudoir, where it was most likely they would remain undisturbed all the morning.

Dolly, in the most charming of morning wrappers, looked more like an angel than a young lady, and the tender way in which that fascinating pair sang sentimental duets was truly romantic and deserved a more appreciative audience than that afforded by the giggling couple who were enjoying the music just outside the door.

Now, it must be explained that Dolly Castleton had a very mischievous brother, who had reached the merciless age of 19. Of this fact Sir Algernon was aware, and always took care to do his love-making beyond the reach of that young man's sharp eyes. But he was not aware of the existence of an equally mischievous younger sister, because she had only just appeared on the scene and very much astonished and disgusted was he when, just as he had summoned up his resolution, and was about to pour into Dolly's ears the story of his hopes and fears, the door was flung open, and these two audacious individuals rushed noisily in, followed by a mastiff dog of so fierce an aspect that Sir Algernon fled precipitately into a corner, and barricaded himself with a table and two chairs.

Dolly pouted and looked daggers at her brother and sister, but her voice was sweet and placid as ever. "Sir Algernon, I must present you to my sister Freda (Freddie do send that horrible dog away). People think we are very much alike—sometimes we are mistaken for one another."

Dolly and Freda were alike in feature and voice; but the likeness was not easy to detect for Dolly's face was pensive and demure, and her voice low-toned and gentle; whereas Freda was always laughing and mischievous, saucy looks and ways were singularly unlike her sister's.

"Alike!" echoed Sir Algernon, as he slowly advanced with his eye on the dog. "I cannot see the smallest resemblance. Why nobody in his senses could mistake you for a moment—impossible! Still I am delighted to make Lady Freda's acquaintance. I really did not know—"

"Did not know of my existence!" laughed Freda. "How odd! for I've heard oceans and oceans of stories about you. Indeed, I am quite tired—"

"Hush, Freda!" interposed Dolly's gentle yet commanding tones, and Charley stopped any further talk by bursting into a roar of laughter. He was standing by the piano looking at the music, which stood open. "Just listen to the words, Freda; did you ever hear such bosh?" Here followed some extracts, in which sentiment certainly preponderated over sense, and which produced such an outbreak of mirth from the irrepressible brother and sister, that Dolly looked vexed and Sir Algernon discomfited; both made excuses to slip away from the room, though not together.

"Isn't he a muff?" laughed Charley.

"Well, rather; but I dare say he'd just suit Dolly. He isn't bad looking, and I think they like one another."

"Oh! I don't want to hinder their love making. I'd give anything to hear what he says to her when they're alone. "Oh, Fred!" with a sudden gleam of inspiration, "you could make yourself just like Dolly if you chose. Couldn't you contrive to come across him in the dusk and give him a sell? It would just serve him right for saying you weren't alike."

Freda's face dimpled into laughter, and she looked at Charley reflectively, with her head on one side.

"We are going to ride this afternoon, Dolly and I, and I believe she'll come, because she does not care to seem to crave her Algernon's society too much. We do look almost exactly alike in our habits; and I can contrive that he shall not see me before we start. If you'll get him alone in this room at dusk, I'll give Dolly and the groom the slip, and gallop home. Then I can come in quite innocently, and surprise him in the gloaming, and you can be listening outside; and then we shall never pine any more to know what he says, and how he says it."

"First rate!" cried Charley ecstatically. "Won't he be wild when he finds out! You're a brick, Fred, and we'll do it."

AFTERNOON.

"If only she would come again! If only I could see her now!" quoth Sir Algernon, as he paced up and down the little boudoir at dusk. "If only I could see her again alone, I would not let the chance slip. I had got so near the point, if only that dreadful brother and sister had not come. Oh, if I could only get such another chance again!"

The door opened quietly and a dark figure stood in the doorway. A soft voice asked:

"Are you there, Freda?" and as the baronet sprang eagerly forward the girlish figure started violently.

"Sir Algernon! You here! Have you seen anything of Freda? We lost her out riding. She is so reckless I am afraid she will come to a bad end one of these days."

I have not seen your sister, but, Lady Dolly, please come in. I have so wished to speak to you—to see you alone again. Take this chair. Give me the chance to finish what I only begun to say this morning."

The graceful girlish figure in the riding habit advanced readily, and seated itself against the dim light. The veil tied tightly across the face could not conceal the well-known contour of cheek and lip which had from the first so bewitched him.

"Lady Dolly—dear Dolly!" he exclaimed, rapturously, "you are the lovliest woman in the world!"

Had he not been so preoccupied by his own emotions, he might have heard a faint giggle from the object of his adoration as he made this admission.

"Yes, the lovliest—the most adorable. My heart has been on fire ever since I first saw your face."

"I'm afraid you must have been awfully uncomfortable," said the soft voice, that seemed to quiver a little.

"I have been living ever since that time in a strange sweet dream, in which I have been haunted by your fair face as—as—as one is haunted by a vison in—in—in—"

"In a nightmare," concluded the soft voice, still tremulous; "I am very sorry."

"Sorry! Why should you be sorry? It has been the joy, the delight of my whole life. Dolly, dearest Dolly," in a moment Sir Algernon had flung himself upon his knees at her feet, and had seized her hand and covered it with kisses, "you know that I am yours, that I love you with my life and soul. Say that you can love me, too, a little. Dolly, bid me hope—say you will be mine, and I shall be of all men, the most happy."

But the usually self-possessed and gentle Dolly seemed quite taken aback and frightened by this sudden declaration, and tried to draw her hand away and escape.

"Oh, I don't know! How can I tell! Oh, do let me go. I think I here somebody coming."

"Say that you love me! Say you will be mine!" pleaded the young lover with ever-increasing fervor. "Oh, my love, my darling, say that you will marry me!"

"Oh, yes, yes—anything you like; please let me go. Oh, yes, I'll do anything—only I'm sure somebody's coming. Do, do go away—I know it's Charley."

The dreaded name acted like a spell. Sir Algernon vanished like a dream, carrying with him the pleasant sense of a victory more easily gained than he had anticipated.

Charley entered, shaking with laughter.

"Well, you've been and gone and did it now, Freddie. I never enjoyed anything more in my life. It was as good as ten plays."

"Oh, Charley who could have thought he'd propose? I was horrid when he began that. What did he say?"

"You accepted him, my dear, and very wisely, too. It would have been too bad to have blighted Dolly's future. You acted wisely and well."

"But he'll think he's engaged to Dolly!" cried Freda, and there'll be some horrid scene at the dance to-night. I ought to tell Dolly, but I don't like. She'll be so wild!"

"Don't you say a word," advised the wily Charley. I'll keep an eye on them, and if a row seems imminent I'll summon you, and we can explain, I think they will soon make it up between them afterward."

EVENING.

Sir Algernon was in a state of ecstatic joy as he dressed himself for the dance that evening. He had done the deed at last. He had proposed, and had been accepted, and as Dolly's betrothed husband he felt himself as bold as a lion.

"Poor little love how frightened she seemed—she who has always been so self-possessed and calm. Perhaps she was not as much prepared for as I thought. Well, I will finish all I have to say to-night. We will make up for that second interruption. That dreadful brother shall not disturb us a third time. Now that she has promised to be my wife I can face the whole world. My tenderness shall drive all her fears away, sweet darling!"

Sir Algernon descended to the drawing-room, where a waltz was going on. Dolly was dancing, and she was engaged seven or eight deep already; but the lover patiently bided his time, secure in the strength of his position.

At last he held her in his arm and glided gently over the smooth floor, first in the silence of satisfaction, but with a growing desire to hear her voice again.

"Dolly, my darling!" he softly whispered in her ear.

She drew herself slightly away, and looked at him in a way he did not understand.

"My sweet love—my Dolly, no one can hear me. Do not be afraid. You know you have given yourself to me."

"Sir Algernon, you forget yourself strangely!" said Lady Dolly, drawing up her head in her most stately way.

Sadly dismayed at such a rebuff, Sir Algernon drew his offended partner into a small room which opened from the one in which they were dancing.

"My dearest—my own Dolly—you cannot forget what took place between us in the boudoir to-day. We were interrupted, I know, but not before you had said—"

"I said nothing which could warrant such language as you have just employed. I am much surprised and displeased," said Dolly, in her haughtiest tone.

"But Dolly, dear, Dolly."

"Call me Lady Dolly, if you please."

"But, indeed, you did promise—"

"I have promised you nothing, and you know it."

"But—Oh, Dolly, you must listen—you—"

The door burst open once again—interruptions that day seemed inevitable. Freda and Charley appeared, flushed and laughing.

"Sir Algeron—Dolly," began the saucy girl, "don't quarrel and be angry with one another. It's all my fault. I pretended to be Dolly this afternoon in the dusk, Sir Algernon, to pay you out for saying no one could mistake us. He proposed to me, Dolly, and I was so frightened I had to accept him, because I thought that is what you would have done in my place. I'm awfully sorry, and indeed I'd no idea he would do anything more than say a few pretty things. I never was so frightened in all my life as when I found out what I'd let myself in for. Please don't quarrel, because it was all my fault! I think that's all. Come, Charley, we shall loose our waltz if we stay any longer."

Brother and sister vanished as quickly as they had appeared.

"Oh, Charley!" said Freda, with a long gasp, I'm glad I've got it off my mind. I do hope I haven't done any harm. I didn't mean to make mischief."

"Never you fear," said Charley reassuringly; "they'll make it up fast enough, now they're left alone together."

The irrepressible Freda enjoyed her dances very much after that.

"It's all right said Charley, coming up and whispering to her, some three-quarters of an hour later. "I peeped in through the keyhole and they're still there, sitting together on the sofa; and he's got his arm round her waist, and she's put her head on his shoulder!"

"Oh, I am glad!" cried Freda, gladly; and then bursting into a merry laugh she added, "sooner she than I, Charley, all the same!"

The Feats of Lion Tamers.

Lion tamers are usually killed a dozen times or more by rumor during their careers, and yet, after all, they die in their beds in about the same proportion as other men. For instance, Manchester Jack was reported by the newspapers as having come to his end in various ways, once after the following unenviable fashion: He was said to have been exhibiting the feat which Van Amburgh organized, of putting his head into the lion's mouth, and to have been roused to a sense of his rashness by hearing the animal growl and feeling its jaw closing upon his neck.

"Does he whisk his tail, Bill?" he is said to have asked the keeper while in this horrible situation.

"Yes," replied Bill.

"Then I am a dead man," groaned Jack.

A moment afterward the snapping of the lion's jaws fulfilled his prophecy. But this thrilling story is contradicted by the fact that Manchester Jack left the menagerie with a whole skin, and for a number of years afterward kept an inn at Taunton, where he died in 1865. With reference to this feat of putting the head in the mouth of the lion or tiger, it must be said that, foolhardy as it seems, we have been unable to find a single authentic instance in which the beast has improved the opportunity to remove such a foolish head from its shoulders. It is possible such instances may have occurred, but in comparison to the many hundred times the feat has been performed they seem to show that it is not really more perilous than many simpler performances. It is an utterly objectless feat, only introduced because of the fascination which terrible peril has to most audiences. When Van Amburgh was in England a certain gentleman went to see him for a hundred or more consecutive nights, following him from place to place solely, he said, because he was convinced that the performer's head would one day be bitten off, and he did not want to miss the sight. In the daring and triumphs of Van Amburgh this country has taken a special interest, since he was generally known as an American, and it was here that he won his first laurels. He was a native of Holland, however, but coming to this country as a young man, always regarded himself as an American citizen. He was a very handsome man, tall and well formed, and when, some years after his appearance in England with his trained lions and tigers, Sir Edwin Landseer painted him in the midst of his tamed beasts, the picture attracted a great deal of attention, and made Van Amburgh's show the fashion with the very highest circles, even royalty itself. The Duke of Wellington was an ardent admirer of his performances, and cultivated his acquaintance with interest.

"Were you ever afraid?" once asked the Duke, when the lion king was a guest at his house.

"The first time I am afraid, your Grace," replied the lion tamer, "or that I fancy my pupils are no longer afraid of me I shall retire from the wild beast line."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Mrs. Ferdinand Ward owns the Champion House at east Haddam, a fine Connecticut summer resort, so that young Ward will not be homeless when he regains his freedom.

FARM, FIELD AND FIRESIDE.

Home Miscellany.

Suggestions for Keeping Preserves. Put them away in small jars or glasses. If the latter are used, store them in a dark place. Cut out a piece of stout paper the size of each jar. Slip these over the fruit as soon as it has grown cold. Having reserved a little syrup for the purpose, pour a layer of it on top of the paper, and the fruit will not rise to the top, mould and spoil.

Unless you have hired help whom you can trust implicity it is a good idea to use earthern dishes for milk in place of tin; they are kept clean with much less trouble. The scientists of the present day and hour claim that the germs of disease hide in the crevices of a milk-pan, and that nothing but conscientious application or absolutely boiling water will remove the danger.

All squares of silk for ornimenting pincushions and toilet bottles are now placed on diamond-wise. One pretty example in dark blue satin has a top triangle veiled by lace, on which rests a bow of old-gold and blue satin loops. On the opposite half is painted a bouquet of primroses. Round the edge is sewed a box-plaiting of soft lace, which also surrounds the satin doilies, where the perfume bottles rest inclosed in a blue satin cover painted with primroses, and secured round the neck by an old-gold ribbon. Loops of ribbon also adorn the lower angle of the doily.

A Little Powdered Charcoal will cleanse and sweeten bottles if it is well shaken about in them.

French Custards.—To make about seven custards, boil one pint of milk with four desert spoonfuls of sugar. Beat the yelks and whites of two eggs well together, and pour the milk, when slightly cool, on to the eggs, and beat well together. Fill seven china custard cups; stand them in a shallow tin of water, or frying-pan, half-full, and let them cook until they become solid, taking care to let no water get on the top. When set, take the tin off the fire and put the cups in the oven for the custard to slightly brown. Vanilla or any flavoring can be used; add this the last thing.

Farming Paragraphs.

No fewer than 100 societies exist in Scotland, whose object is to promote and maintain the purity of the Clydesdale horse.

Cows are better off in a cool stable than in the pasture during the mid-day heat.

Now that the harvest is nearly all done by machinery, it is pretty hard on the horses; see to it that they have the best of care and generous feeding.

In Arkansas some strawberry growers, anticipating a large yield and low prices, sold their entire crops on the vines to dealers at five cents a quart, and are realizing from $100 to $150 per acre for their fruit.

A good wash for sore eyes in animals, is made of sulphate of zinc, 40 gr.; fluid extract of opium, 3 dr.; fluid extract of belladonna, 2 dr.; water, 1 qt.; mix and paint the eyes with a camel's-hair pencil at night.

If a hen persists in untimely sitting, don't try to brerk it up by the cruel yet ineffectual method of half drowning the poor bird, but instead take a headless cask, invert it over her, allowing it to rest on three bricks, and bore a hole in the top for ventilation. Water and scanty food should be provided just outside the rim. A week of this treatment will usually convert biddy into a more sensible hen.

Foot-rot in cows is one of the most common diseases, and is in many respects precisely the same as the foot-rot in sheep. And yet it is more easily prevented. It is caused by the constant saturation of the feet with wet sloppy mud or manure. This soon inflames the skin between the claws and around the heels of the hoof, and softens the horn and causes it to rot. By neglect the inflammation spreads to the centre of the foot and the horn is loosened from the tissues, and drops off. The wretched beast then crawls around upon the stumps of the bones, and its sufferings are equal to those of a man compelled to walk upon the ends of the legs, if the feet are cut off. The only excuse is that the owner is helpless because he knows not what to do.

Farmers Should Bathe Often.

Farmers, as much as any class of men in the world, and more so than most, need frequent baths. Their work causes them to perspire greatly and they are constantly in contact with dirt. Reliable medical authority asserts that the statistics which now place the life of the farmer below the average might be raised considerably if this class paid more attention to cleanliness. One farmer, John M. Stahl, appreciating the importance of bathing, thus writes to the New England Farmer:

"The body should be cleansed every twenty-four hours, and it is best to do this when the day's work is done, for then the body's liability to receive dirt from external source is small, and the functions of the glands can be properly performed during the night, insuring healthful slumber.

But how many of us do cleanse the body each night? I am afraid the truth would be that full as many cleanse the body only once a week, as those that cleanse it once a day. Not one farmhouse in fifty, take the country over, has a bath-room; and I doubt if even one farmer's family in twelve has even a bath-tub. This is a sad commentary on our way of living, and explains the prevalence of fevers in the country where they should be almost unknown.

I know only too well how tired the ploughman is at the close of the day, and the fatigue is yet greater if the day has been spent in the harvest field. It seems a great task to drag the wearied body even twenty feet to bed. The thought of going to the trouble and expense of time of bathing may appear almost absurd. But my word for it you will be largely the gainer by so doing. To bathe will not require more than ten minutes, and you will have added two hours to your slumbers. You have shortened the time for sleep by ten minutes, but you have made slumber so much sounder and sweeter that you have gained a dozen times the time expended. By bathing each night for a week, you will no more think of retiring without first cleansing the body of sweat and dirt than you would of going to bed with your boots on. And remember that while you have gained so much in rest and comfort, you will ultimately gain more in health."

A Good Summer Beverage.

Ginger ale is a beverage at once healthful and refreshing in warm weather. To make it thinly peel two lemons, and put the rinds into an earthen pan with juice, which must have been previously strained; one and one-quarter pounds of loaf sugar, one ounce of bruised ginger and a quarter ounce of of cream of tarter. Over this pour five quarts of boiling water. Let it stand, and when lukewarm add a tablespoonful of brewer's yeast which must be quite fresh. Stir this quickly together a short time, and then leave it until next day to ferment. Skim off the yeast, and, having carefully poured the liquid from the sediment, it may then be bottled for use. Take care that the corks are good; just before using put them into boiling water, and, having placed them in the bottles, let them be firmly secured with wire. This quantity will make rather more than a dozen bottles, and will be ready in two days. Another way: Two ounces of whole ginger bruised; two pounds of loaf sugar, the thinly pared rind and strained juice of four lemons; over this pour two gallons of boiling water. When it has remained until lukewarm spread a toast with yeast and put in it. Let it stand all night, then bottle it off. This quantity will make about four dozen bottles.—American Queen.

Thread Fringe for Tidy.

Procure two large spools of the cheap French thread, such as is used for basting, and use for the fringe, instead of the coarse machine cotton of which the tidy is made. This cheap thread, being twisted but lightly, makes a more "fluffy" and much softer fringe than the more expensive brands. Procure a strip of box cardboard three inches wide, or a smooth stick six inches around, and wind its entire length with bunches of thread, each bunch containing from fifteen to twenty threads, making when doubled, thirty or forty ends in each tassel of the fringe. With a sharp pointed knife cut these, letting them fall off the stick so carefully as not to become tangled. Pick up each bunch separately, and place the ends together, thereby forming a loop in the middle; with an ivory crotchet-needle, draw this loop through a mesh in the edge of a tidy; then draw the ends through the loop and pull down tight. Proceed in this way until the tidy is entirely fringed; then shake out carefully, and trim off all uneven threads.—Country Gentleman.

Our American Girls.

Youth's Companion.—American girls are apt to hear, with a good deal of irritation, and criticism on their habits and manners from foreigners, but they will probably listen with patience to the impressions of one of their own countrymen on this subject, on his return home after a prolonged absence of years in Europe. He is a man well-known in the scientific world.

"When I come back," he said lately, "I felt like a stranger. People and things had receded into an unfamiliar distance. I believe that I judged of them wholly without predjuice, as I would have done of things and people in Norway or Turkey.

"My first thought when I saw the young girls of Boston and New York was, that nowhere in any country had I found so much distinction in the faces of women. Nor is this delicacy and refinement confined to the gentler classes.

"The daughters of many an American mechanic have aristocratic features, which would better become the princess of the Houses of Hapsburg and Guelph than do their own. Their claims of long descent have often resulted in Europe in heavy, sodden, sensual traits,—the results of high living and inactivity; while the daughter of our workingman frequently has the fine, sensitive features which are supposed to indicate generations of gentle blood and thorough breeding.

"The American girl is more keen-witted and better informed than her English sister; her sympathies are finer. She has a taste in dress and a tact of manner wholly wanting to the other. Her gown or her words are never offensive. She is brilliant, virtues, friendly,—but not womanly. Men like to protect a woman, and the chief aim of American girls seems to be to show that they need no protection. Hence, the dullest, homeliest European woman has a charm which the American women lack."

The President of a Quaker college where co-education is the rule, was wont to point his mixed classes of boys and girls to a couple of trees growing in the midst of the campus. "That elm is tall as the oak," he would say. "It is as green, as deep-rooted and as useful, but it is not an oak, and it does not try to be."

The old Quaker had the keyword of the secret. There has been, since the war such a struggle among many of our women to force their way into the careers, the education and the civil rights hitherto monopolized by men, and show that they are intellectually their equals, that they forget that they really are not men, but have graces and rights exclusively their own.

A young girl enters a ball-room, a street car or a church with the air "I can take care of myself." Hence she is left to take care of herself, which usually is, secretly, the last thing she desires.

The Certainty in Farming.

Could farmers' sons fully realize the financial disasters which are constantly overtaking commercial men there would be less sighing for a chance from the farm to the counting room. It is true there comes to the farmer no grand and sudden fortunes. At the same time if he wisely and prudently manages his business no sudden disasters run their prospects. Merchants and manufacturers may make money for a time faster than the farmer. But they are subject to the fluctuations of trade—prosperous and hard times, floods and depressions. We are frequently told of the uncertainty of trade in the largest cities of the world where the largest fortunes and the most prosperous business, by the reverse of trade, are suddenly swept into oblivion. We see these tales every day in our daily papers. But they are apparently at a distance, and do not attract any special attention, and make little or no impression on our minds.

But how is it at home? The agricultural editor moved to the city of Des Moines not quite six years ago. Des Moines is a growing, prosperous city. In the past six years there has been no depression or stagnation in its business. Its banks are sound and money plenty. Its mechanics have a plenty of work at good wages. And yet of the drygoods houses doing business in the city of six years ago all, except one or two have had to succumb and make assignments. The grocery trade has been a little better, yet it has had its examples of the vicissitudes of trade. And nearly all branches of business in that time have had a taste of reverse. And yet of all the thousands of careful farmers of Polk county, though it has been for the the past three years the worst season for crops, it is a very rare thing for one of them to assign or be sold out.

The hard toiling farmer knows but little of the troubles, anxieties and vicissitudes of a commercial life. And the uncertainty of the future with the latter class is probably the reason why there is so much extravagance and vain show in the families of commercial men. They have large fashionable families, dress richly, and parade in their fine carriages on the very brink of ruin. With them it is now or never, and they flourish while they can, and too many farmers and farmers' families sigh for the same thing.—Des Moines Register.

Farmers' Organizations.

Combinations, pools, rings, and organizations of various kinds exist in most lines of commerce, manufacturing, labor, and even in some of the higher arts and professions. Agriculture alone is without the protection afforded by consolidation of individual interests, and an organized resistance to unjust encroachments; yet no other industry is more in need of such organized resistance to robery than is farming. In scarcely one of the operations connected with husbandry is the farmer able to dictate terms to those who buy of or sell to him. Yet no class has greater natural power over the very existance of mankind than have they who furnish the daily bread of the world. By combining, as railroads, speculators, and others do, formers could compel all the world to comply with their demands, for men must eat though the Kingdoms fall and empires disappear. Ships may be built and manned, factories may be filled with machinery and operatives, railroads may stretch across the land, elevators may be erected, and speculators, merchants, and manufacturers may stand ready for business—and, if the farmer fail to give them work, there they will stand idle. All are dependent upon the farmer, and he alone of all classes can live independent of the rest of the world. Yet, by the sheer force of combination, the dependent classes have so reversed the natural order that the tiller of the land is the slave, toiling for the pittance allowed him from his own earnings by those who, in the natural order, should be servants and not masters. This has been the condition of things so long and so generally that it seems now to be the natural condition of affairs.—Chicago Tribune.

Cholera Treatment in India.

Dr. Fairbanks, of Ahmednugger, in Missionary Herald.

"In the few cases where the patients died, they either did not take the medicine till the disease had nearly done its work, or, as I found on inquiry, the medicine was not taken according to the directions. I have noticed that camphor is an ingredient in most of the medicines that have proved useful in the treatment of cholera, and I regard it as a specific for stopping the vomiting and purging of serum, that accompany this disease. I think that camphor stops the separation of serum from the blood. But its action needs to be modified by the administration of some alkaline substance, which will make the kidneys act powerfully, and remove the serum and other watery substances which have accumulated in the stomach and intestines.

"If these substances are allowed to remain they cause bloating and consequent death. I have found nitre most active and efficient as a corrective for the bad effects of camphor. This year I used pills containing a grain each of camphor and nitre, giving one at once each time the patient had vomited, and continuing thus till the vomiting ceased. Then I gave six or eight grains of nitre dissolved in a little water. If this did not cause urine to flow within an hour, I would give another similar dose of nitre. Unless urine flows, there is little to expect recovery. In one case, when the nitre did not take effect and the patient was much bloated I gave an emetic, and so removed the fluids from the stomach, and the patient recovered."

Around the World On a Bicycle.

From the Boston Herald.

Thomas Stevens, the young Englishman who is on his way to Europe travelling across this country on a bicycle, arrived at Chicago July 4th, bronzed and weather worn. He left San Francisco April 22, and therefore had been forty-two days on the road. In conversation Mr. Stevens said that the journey over the mountains and through the deep sands of the Nevada desert had been long and tedious. He stopped at Ogden, Cheyenne and Omaha. The roads in Illinois were found to be in very good condition. He averaged 50 miles a day, and the result of his tour will be embodied in a book to be published in England. At times the rider was in a quandary to obtain food, but he was never more than twenty-four hours without it. He is now on his way to New York via Toledo, Cleveland and Erie, thence along the New York Central and Hudson River Railway roads. After a two weeks' rest he will take the steamer for Liverpool and bicycle through England, France, Germany, Austria and Turkey to the boundary of the European continent. Mr. Stevens will stop there, and will, if possible, tour through Asia in 1885. His only additional luggage is a water-proof coat, and additions to his wardrobe are made on the road as required. He wears an army helmet, and finds it preferable to one of felt in the sun. He rides a fifty-inch bicycle.

The White House Kitchen.

A Washington Star reporter ran across steward Williams at the White House the other day and asked to be shown through the culinary department. The steward kindly accompanied him. There are two kitchens, one much larger than the other, with mammoth ranges and boilers. The walls are hung with copper-cooking utensils of every character, bright and in order. In the centre of the big kitchen a permanent zinc-covered table, at which most of the minipulating is done. Chief Fortin, about as broad as long, was standing at it hard at work. He speaks English very well, and kindly assisted in explaining the manner of doing business in his department.

"How much warning do they give you when a state dinner is to be prepared?" asked the reporter of Mr. Williams.

"About four days, to give us plenty of time to get things in shape. Lots of preparations, too are necessary. In the first place, the ornaments are to be made, and the chief here likes to make an early start in that branch."

"What do you make them from?"

"Grease. Yes, we take old candles and melt them over time and again, and mould figures, etc., of various designs. The cheif tells me that such ornamentation is largely taking the place of flowers in Europe, partially because flowers are scarce. We endeavor always to have a good supply of both, and the effect is very satisfactory."

The cheif was busy with some broken ornaments when the reporter entered, These he melted and poured into plaster-of paris mould. Placing this in a pan of ice water for a little while, it was opened and an excellent goddess of liberty was produced, looking as well as many of her marble sisters.

"You see," continued the steward, "such figures are made the center pieces for cold meats and the like, which are usually served in a sort of pyramid. One of the rules is that no dish must be served flat. It must be raised in some way, and there are various plans followed. A big base of rice is sometimes made to raise the birds or meats or whatever is to be served. Sometimes they are well raised, and then are so well concealed by tallow ornaments and disguised that it is pretty hard to tell where to start in, I have seen some of the Western congressmen, when such a dish is passed, look all around it, kind of uncertain where to strike, and then shake their heads and let it pass. That is not saying anything against the gentlemen. I couldn't do any better if I had n't seen such dishes prepared time and again, for they are very deceptive."

"How do you go to work to prepare a big dinner?" asked the reporter.

"We get word that there is to be a dinner for so many persons on such an evening. I know that the dinner is to be the best that can be prepared, and I go to work accordingly to procure the best, not only that the Washington market affords, but that can be secured in New York, where I telegraph at once for the choicest game and other things that can be obtained. The president gives corte blanche, and never grumbles at expense, so we are never hampered. The chief always has an assistant on such occasions, and they first go to work on the tallow ornaments, and Mr. Pfister begins on the floral ornaments. Great care must be taken in ornamenting not to obstruct the view of any of the guests, and while floral designs are intended to be characteristic of the occasion, they are either suspended so that the guest can see under them, or else raised on pillars far enough apart not to obstruct the view. At the judicial dinner last year the chief floral piece was a temple of justice, with the book of laws in the interior. It takes the ingenuity of all of us to secure a variety, and at the same time maintain excellence in all branches. The menus must be entirely different. Not a dish must be brought on the table that appeared at the previous dinner, so you see we have to keep scheming."

"How many persons does it take to serve a state dinner?" asked the reporter.

"If there are fifty persons at the table or a few more or less, it takes twelve servants."

"Why so many?"

"Well, there are five services for every course; by that I mean that five dishes of everything are served at once. If the course is fish, five plates of fish are served simultaneously, and so on through the dinner. This is to prevent delay. So you see there are five of the servants engaged in serving the main dish of the course, each one helping about ten persons, and five more follow with the vegetables or the accompanying dish. Two more waiters are kept busy serving the wine which belong to the course."

"The whole dinner is prepared here in the White House, is it not?"

"Everything but the ice cream; that we get outside. Of course we haven't a large enough force of servants regularly in the house to serve the dinner, and so have to get outside assistance, but the dinners are truly White House dinners.'

Outside the kitchen are two refrigerators, big enough for a mammoth hotel, but they do not suffice, and a new one with all the modern improvements is about to be built. Mr. Williams has a comfortable office in the basement, from which opens the President's wine cellar. The stock of wines has not been replenished since the season's gaities were over, but the shelves are pretty well filled yet.

Mistakes in the Pig Business.

From the Iowa Homestead.

Some of our farmers are very likely to make a mistake just now, in the management of their pigs. They have an idea that because an old hog will thrive on clover, a young pig will. This is about as sensible an idea as that of fattening a newly weaned calf by turning it to a straw stack. A ton of clover has 1,660 pounds of water and only sixteen pounds of fats; and the larger a pig's stomach becomes by trying to eat enough, the closer his hips shrink together. No matter what the price of corn may be, it will pay to shell, soak and feed it to weanling pigs rather than try to shove them on green clover alone. If corn is not available, grind and soak rye and oats, or even soak them without grinding. Remember a pig is a pork factory, and to run any factory profitable you must run on full time and every day in the season. Another matter should be looked after, and that is shade to make them comfortable and avoid the flies. The best shade we have ever found is a thick maple grove where, the shade is so dense that the flies do not bother.

TO THINE OWN SELF BE TRUE.

By thine own soul's law learn to live,
And if men thwart thee take no heed,
And if men hate thee have no care;
Sing thou thy song and do thy deed,
Hope thou thy hope and pray thy prayer,
And claim no crown they will not give,
Nor bays they grudge thee for thy hair.

Keep thou thy soul-sworn steadfast oath,
And to thy heart be true thy heart;
What thy soul teaches learn to know,
And play out thine appointed part;
And thou shalt reap as thou shalt sow,
Nor helped nor hindered in thy growth,
To thy full stature thou shalt grow.

Fix on the future's goal thy face,
And let thy feet be lured to stray
Nowhither, but be swift to run,
And nowhere tarry by the way,
Until at last the end is won,
And thou may'st look back from thy place
And see thy long day's journey done.
—Pakenham Beatty, in Spectator

THE STOVEN BOAT.

Absorbing Incident of a Whaling Voyage

Marine Record.

Of all the pursuits that men follow in order to obtain a subsistance, there is none that will compare, in danger and hardship, with that of a whaleman, and yet how little the people on the shore know of this. It is in order to let them have some insight into this business that the following narrative is written. The facts, as they occurred, were noted in the journal or log soon after they transpired:

On the 14th day of December, 1837, the good ship Croesus, of Newburg, Captain Perkins, was cruising somewhere between the latitude of 36 and 37.8 and longitude of 60 east, in search of right whale. It was in the forenoon and the old ship was moving along under the topgallant sails with a light breeze at the rate of about forty knots an hour. The most hardened grumbler could not find fault with the day. At the fore and main topgallant crosstrees were two men on the lookout for whales.

It was now nearly four o'clock in the afternoon when the man in the main sang out:

"There she blows!"

He repeated the cry regular five or six times. All was now excitement among the officers and men. Every one was anxious to know if it was the kind of whale that was wanted.

The mate hailed the man at the mast head:

"Where away is that whale? What do you call her?"

"Right whale, sir, on the lee beam, two miles off. Look out sharply for her."

"Sing out when the ship heads for her."

"Aye, aye sir."

"Keep her away," said the captain to the man at the helm. Boy, hand me the spy glass."

"Steady!" sung out the man at the mast head."

"Steady it is," answered the man at the wheel.

The captain started to go aloft "Mr. A.," to the mate, "you may square in the after yards and call all hands."

"Forward there!" shouted the mate. "Haul the mainsail up and square the yards! Bill!" to an old sailor—

"Sir?"

"Call all hands."

"Aye, aye, sir. All hands ahoy," shouted old Bill, in a voice like a tempest: "stand by the boats."

In less than no time the deck was alive with men.

"Boat steerers, get your boat ready."

In a moment the boats were in readiness, the tubs put in, and the lines bent on the harpoons, the crew standing by ready to follow the boat. Down went the boats and down followed the crew, down to the water when the word came from the captain to lower away.

"There she blows," sung out the man at the fore, "not half a mile off."

"Down helm!" shouted the captain. "Mr. A., brace the mizzen topsail! Hoist and swing the boats and lower away!"

As the boats struck the water, every man on his thwart, with his hands on the loom of the oar, and in less time than it takes to write it the three boats were cutting their way through the water in the direction of the whale.

It was my duty to steer the mate's boat, and she happened to be the fastest puller, so that, although we all left the ship together, and for a few rods keep nearly head and head with each other, still we knew well enough, that as soon as word came from the mate to "give way" we should drop the others in a moment. So we did not fret ourselves, but kept cool for a tight pull when the whale should show himself on the surface of the water again, which he did in a moment after.

"There she is," cried the mate, "and not over ten rods from the boat. Now, my dear fellows, lay back hard, I tell you! There she blows! Only give, my boys, and she is ours!"

The boat bounded forward like a thing of life.

"Spring like tigers!" says the mate, his voice sinking almost to a whisper. I looked to see what kind of a chance I was to have at the same time pulling at my oar with all my might. We were going on to her starboard quarter, just the chance I liked to fasten to a whale.

"Stand up!" shouted the mate, and in a moment I had two harpoons to the hitches into her.

"Stern—stern all!" sung out the mate, as he saw the iron in the whale. "Come here, my boy," he said to me. We shifted ends, he to the head, and I to the stern of the boat. The whale started off like lightning.

"Hold on line," said the mate, and away we shot after her, like an arrow from a bow. The mate by this time had his lance ready.

"Haul me on that whale," he shouted, and all hands turned to hauling line while I coiled it away to the stern sheets.

We had got nearly up to the whale when she went to "sounding," taking the line right up and down from the head of the boat. I had two turns of the line around the logger-head, and was holding on as the boat would bear, when, all at once, another larger whale that we knew nothing about, shot up out of the water nearly her whole length, in a slanting position, hanging directly over the boat. I threw off the turns from the loggerhead and shouted to the men to "stern." But it was of no use; she fell the whole of her body on the boat. I heard a crash, and as I went down I felt a pressure of water over my head, caused as I then thought, by the whale's flukes as she struck. How long I was under water I know not, but I remember that all looked dark above me and I tried very hard to shove my head through, in order to breathe. At last I succeeded, but what a sight was that on which I gazed when I found myself on the surface of the water! About a rode from me was the whale that we were fast to, thrashing the water into a foam with his flukes, the ocean red with blood, and the crimson streams flowing from the wounds made by harpoons. In another direction I could see pieces of the boat floating around. At the distance of two or three miles I could occasionally get a glimpse of the ship as I rode on the top of a swell, and not a human being in sight. Most forcibly did the words of the poet apply to my situation at this moment:

"Oh, Solitude, where are the charms
That sages have seen in thy face.
Better dwell in the midst of alarms
Than reign in this horrible place."

So thought I, as I struck out for a piece of our once beautiful boat, a few rods distant. The crew came up, one after another, catching at anything they could see to keep them afloat. One poor fellow came paddling along with two or three oars under him, crying out that his back was broken. Another of the crew and myself got him on the piece of a boat that he had hold of. His thigh was broken, and he could not move his legs at all. The second mate soon after picked us up with his boat, and so much had we been engaged in looking out for ourselves that we did not perceive that one of our number was missing. But, alas! it was too soon found out. He was a young man about seventeen years old, and did not belong to the boat, but went in the place of the midship oarsman, who was sick at the time. The whale fell directly on him and probably killed him in a moment. With what feelings we pulled round and round the spot where the boat was stoven, unwilling to believe even after we knew there was no hope, that our shipmate was gone never more to return. And how silently we glided alongside the ship and hoisted in our poor shipmate now lamed for life.

Oh, that some of these people who look upon sailors as little better than brutes, and who know little or nothing of the kind feelings and growing affections concealed under their rough exteriors, could have seen what I saw on board that ship, even their hearts would melt, and they would find that it is not always the polished and educated, the smooth-faced and handsome man that has the warmest heart or the most generous feelings.—J. W. H.

FOR ME ONLY.

I was climbing after a rosebud
That grew a little too high,
Though I stood on tiptoe to reach it,
When I heard him passing by.

He held in his hand a lilly,
He stopped and gave it to me,
But I thought of the rosebud hanging
High up on the trellis-tree.

So I only took it a moment,
And pressed its petals apart,
Inhaling one breath of the fragrance
That lay in its golden heart.

Then I gave it back again, saying,
"Look, there where my neighbor stands,
Waiting for just such a plaything
To hold in her dainty hands."

He turned and went from me slowly,
Like one who silently grieves,
And all the green path behind him
Was strewn with white lilly-leaves.
—London Society.

(40 Rounds, U. S.)

On the return of the 15th corps from the relief of Knoxville, after having marched all the way from Memphis and back to Chattanooga, a soldier of the 8th Missouri—one of Sherman's bummers, an Irishman who had been a roustabout on the levees of St. Louis—came straggling along behind the column on a cold, dreary day for that section; his knapsack slung on one shoulder, his blanket over the other; across his breast and tied at his left hip, a greasy, but empty haversack; his pants worn and rent in many places and in others sewed up with cord; no peak to his cap, his musket at "reversed arms," and altogether presenting the appearance of general disgust and demoralization. Off from the road he was attracted by a headquaters tent and sentinel in a neat and comfortable uniform, whom he approached and accosted, when the following dialogue ensued:

"I say, sintinil, could ye tell me where me regiment is?"

"What regiment do you belong to?"

"Eighth Misshoay, sure."

"What division?"

"Morgan Ill[L] Smit's, av coorse."

"What brigade?"

"Phwat brigade? Faith, an don't ye know its Giles Smit'—the Suound brigade of Morgan Ill's division."

"What corps is it?"

"Phwat coor is it. Ah, then, ye blackguard, doesint everybody know that its the Fifteenth coor?"

"How could I tell what corps you belong to when you have no corps badge?"

"Noa—bauge, is it? Coor badge! Now, thin, phwat's a coor badge?"

"Do you see that crescent on my partner's hat? Well, that's the badge of his corps—the Eleventh; and this badge on my cap is the badge of my corps—the Twelfth."

"Ho, ho! I see. Thim's the lights yez Potomac byes have to show home dark nights. Yes, takes the moon and shtars along wid yez."

Laughing at the witty remark, the sentinel responded: "Well, what's the badge of your corps?"

Hesitating a moment to gather a thought, then making a left face and slapping his right hand on his cartridge box, the Irishman replied: "D'ye see that?" [Then a moment's pause.] Forty rounds in my cartridge-box and twenty in my pocket—that's the badge of Logan's 15th coor, do yez mind that! that kem all the way from Vicksburg to help yez Potomac fellers foight at Chattanoogy."

The incident having been related to General Logan the same evening by an officer who overheard it, the cartridge-box bearing the legend "40 Rounds, U. S.," was at once adopted by General Logan as the corps badge, and a general order to that effect issued the next day.

RICE CROQUETTES.—Wash and boil one pound of rice until soft, sweeten with white sugar and flavor with nutmeg; when cold form in long rolls, dip them in beaten egg, roll in cracker dust, lay them in boiling butter and fry brown. Serve hot.

FARM, FIELD AND FIRESIDE.

Tenant Farming.

The population of this country is soon to become very much denser in the older sections, and there will have to be a dividing up of the larger farms, or the plan of tenant farming more largely practiced. Tenant help in Ohio is in greater demand each year, and our larger farmers now provide comfortable houses and gardens, and men with families are now the principal hired help. There is a reliability about such help that pays in more ways than one. Tenant farming should also be more largely encouraged, and it carries with it more responsibility upon the part of the tenant; for the better he does, the larger his income, and there is indication of better farming, and even culture that is very gratifying. A large farmer near by practices a plan of tenant farming as an investment for his surplus money, buying a large farm as often as every other year. He will purchase a large farm and put upon it the best tenant he can select from the large number from which he can always choose. The farm is stocked, buildings put into thorough repair, and the tenant put into possession, an equal division being made of all incomes. A certain programme of work is made part of the contract, and certain repairs made, the owner to furnish material, the tenant to do the labor. The result is favorable; the one has secured a fair income for the money invested, the other has made a good living and a better return than he could possibly have made from day wages. Instead of forcing the surplus families of a township to go West it provides homes and incomes here, and usually retains a useful and industrious class of citizens; while it actually doubles the former productive capacity of the farm.—Correspondence Country Gentleman.

Kindness as an Investment.

From the American Poultry Yard.

There is nothing worse for domestic animals than to scare them half to death. Fright uses up the vital forces more than work, more than the growth of flesh or fat, more than anything else, unless it is persistent starvation.

We have had two men working for us, with teams, on the same farm at the same time. One would take his horses from the stable when they had been refreshed by a few days' rest, and were feeling well, and because they were feeling pretty frisky while they were being harnessed up, and the off horse did not keep the furrow well at the first send-off, would get out of patience and yell at his team till finally they would break into a trot, when he would throw the plow to the full depth into the first hummuck he could find, bring the team to a full stop, and by this time they would be well in a "lather" and quivering with excitement. After he had yelled for a few minutes, and the horses had become fully frightened, they had used up strength enough to move the plow for an hour.

The other man knew better. When he observed, while "hitching up," that the horses' heads were carried high, and that they were feeling first rate, he would say to himself: "There is a good head of steam on to-day, and I shall be able to get a good day's work out of these fellows if I save it all to be used to the best advantage." Therefore he would speak in as quiet a tone as possible, would move gently about, and aim to get his team afield without the risk of and rumpus or excitement, and would bear with a few irregularities, such as getting out of the furrow and pulling by fits and starts a few times. The consequence would be that when they were warmed up to their work, they would move on smoothly and at the same time quickly, and at the end of an hour there would be a row of nice fresh furrows to show as an equivalent for the "steam" the other man had used up in mere fret and fume and worry and passion.

As it is with large animals, so it is true of fowls, if you at all times exercise kindness toward them, they will doubly repay you for all your care and kind attention.

Bees on the Farm.

We have often heard people say, "I mean to have some bees, and I meant to have had them long before this." Yet these persons live year after year without them, while their fruit bloom is poorly fertilized, and the nectar secreted in the flora of their fields and hedges is left to waste its sweetness. Bees seem especially designed, in the economy of nature, to gather up the remnants "that nothing be lost." This was forcibly illustrated the past season, by the reports coming in from different parts of the country of the large yields of honey gathered from wheat stubble. When the wheat was cut, before the straw was fully ripened, a sweet juice oozed out of the straw where it was cut; in some instances the juice was so plentiful that a clear drop of juice ran out of every stubble, and some filled the upper joints and ran down the stubble. It is a very rare season indeed that bees cannot secure enough honey from some source to support themselves. We have many times been despondent, thinking that we would get no surplus and have to feed our bees their winter stores, when, all at once there would come a flood of nectar from some unlooked for source. A cool wet spring and summer will produce no honey, although the bloom may be abundant, and yet may be just the condition suitable to produce many honey-yielding fall flowers. During the last autumn, a large amount of surplus honey was gathered from the different varieties of smartweed (polygumon). This honey was beautifully white, and of a fine minty flavor. These plants flourish on overlands and damp lands generally, although they are found abundantly in this locality growing in cornfields, and where early potatoes have been raised. Sweet corn is growing in favor as a honey plant. A sweet syrup is secreted in the axils of the leaves, near the stock, and bees gather pollen from the tassel. It is surprising that farmers will go to town and buy miserable glucose syrup, when a heaven-born sweet syrup can be had at their door, not for the asking but for the taking.

Things Good to Eat.

RICE FRITTERS.—Two eggs, one pint of milk, half-pint of boiled rice, two tablespoonfuls of yeast powder, one of salt, two tablespoonfuls of butter, sufficient flour to make a thin batter. Beat the eggs separately; put the butter in the milk and warm until the butter melts; add the yolks of the eggs, rice, flour, and other ingredients. Drop a large spoonful at a time in boiling lard, fry brown, and serve at once.

BUTTERMILK BISCUIT.—Three cupfuls of buttermilk, one small cup of butter, half-a-teaspoonful of soda, one of cream tartar, pinch of salt and flour to make a soft dough. Bake in a quick oven.

FLANNEL CAKE, NO. 1.—One quart of milk warmed with a tablespoonful of butter in it, a teaspoonful of salt, three beaten eggs, half-a-teacup of baker's yeast and sufficient flour to make a thin batter; beat well, raise over night, or four or five hours. Bake on a griddle.

SALLY LUNN.—Dissolve in one pint of sweet milk one tablespoonful of butter; whip the whites of four eggs to a stiff froth, and beat the yolks and one egg-cupful of pulverized sugar light; stir the yolks and sugar in the warmed milk and add four coffee-cups of sifted flour, three teaspoonfuls of yeast powder and the whites of the eggs. Pour the batter in a greased cake-mould and bake thirty minutes in a brisk oven. Serve hot. The sugar may be ommitted.

PLAIN CINNAMON BREAD.—Take three pints of light bread-dough, work into it a heaping tablespoonful of lard, three eggs and one cup of sugar. Having worked it thoroughly, set it in a warm place to rise; as soon as light, roll it out in cakes two inches thick, put it in pans and let it rise again. When perfectly light, make trenches in the dough and fill with the following mixture: Two tablespoonfuls of butter, four of cinnamon; boil five minutes; mix well; bake from ten to fifteen minutes.

MEAT CROQUETTES.—Chop fine, cold boiled or roasted veal, beef or mutton; season with salt, pepper and any spice you like; add a few bread crumbs and bind with an egg. Make into small cakes and fry them brown. Serve hot.

Pillow Covers.

A pretty compromise between white pillows and colored satin pillow-shams so liked by many, so scorned by others, is effected by covering the pillows with satin first, and then drawing over them a white linen or lawn slip several inches shorter than the pillow. A band of Hamburg work with deep, sharply accentuated points, headed by a band of inserting, is stitched upon the slit. When drawn over the pillow, each point, barely meeting its opposite point, is fastened to it by a tiny button and loop. The satin which shows between the diamond-shaped openings, will look much handsomer if it is gathered into a large, loose puff, and the other portion of the pillow may be covered with silesia or cambric the color of the satin.

To Cure Round Shoulders.

Letter in the New York Tribune.

More than thirty years ago I got a habit of being round-shouldered. In trying to find a remedy, the following plan, which grew out of my knowledge of anatomy, came in sight: Hook the fingers of the hands together; raise the elbows as high as the shoulders and pull like a shoemaker. The muscles about the shoulderblades, to keep them in place, are thus strengthened, and in a short time enabled to fulfill their proper office. While lying on the back press the head on the pillow so as to raise the chest up from the bed on which you are reclining. This strengthens the muscles that should hold the head erect. When standing or sitting, where the head can press against something solid, repeat the operation. By a little thought at other times to use these muscles, the difficulty may be overcome.

Tidies.

Take a square of firmly woven net, not too large meshed, and baste a smaller square of sampler canvas upon it in the center. On this work in the ordinary cross stitch any patern that can be done in one color or in different shades of a color. A dragon or griffin, or a heron worked in gold filoselle is very showy, and a very large monogram in scarlet or light blue is pretty. When the embroidery is finished draw out the threads of canvas and press the lace, and, if necessary, sponge it lightly on the back with white mucilage to restore the stiffening which may have come out in working upon it. Edge with a scallop buttonholed with silk the same color as the center, or border it with a darned net edge with the pattern run in colored silk.

There are many kinds of daisy tidies, but the simplest are made by winding for each daisy, some white wool over three fingers—a little experimenting will soon show how much to use, and tying it tightly in the middle with linen thread, cutting both ends and pulling them out and flattening them. A little combed-out tuft of yellow worsted has to be made and sewed on for the flower center. The daisies are sewed upon narrow tape in rows, and joined together in a square, diamond, or circular form.

A Little Circus at Home.

Oil City Blizzard.—The following true story is going the rounds: "There is a child in the oil region two and one-half years old that is rather queer. Every effort to have it use its legs was made by his parents but it had no inclination that way. It will raise itself on its hands and move rapidly across the floor, and when it has picked up the object it seeks places it between its feet and again moves away on its hands. The child's mother says she attended a circus about three years ago, at which the atrobatic feats made a strong impression on her mind. She remembered continually dreaming about the men walking on their hands."

The British Foreign Office spends £10,000 a year for messengers, dispatching a weekly service to Constantinople and a fortnightly to Berlin and St. Petersburg. Mr. Labouchere tried to get it reduced the other day in the Commons, but that body never cuts down an appropriation. He said that when he was in the diplomatic service at Constantinople it cost over £200 to send Sir Henry Bulwer a box of pills from Great Britain.

AN INDIAN ROMANCE.

A Creek Chieftain Married to a Washington Woman.

About the 1st of January a delegation of Creek Indians arrived in Washington. One of them was Ispahecher, an Indian whose name had come into sudden notoriety all over the United States. He had set up a rival claim to the head of the Creek nation, and Indian-like had endeavored to assert his claim by fighting. He came up to Washington fresh from the war-path, and the war of tomahawks became a war of words in the Interior Department. At last Secretary Teller refused to recognize his claims and said that Checote was the chief of the nation. The disappointed claimant was then free to go home.

But Ispahecher had found a boon for his wounded spirit. He was in love. He had been taken by a friend to a house on Ohio avenue, between Thirteenth-and-a-Half and Fourteenth streets, and was introduced to Mrs. Harrover, a woman who is a descendant of a Cherokee Indian. Mrs. Harrover was pleasant, but she had a daughter about twenty-five years old who was pleasenter. Ispahecher was impressed at first sight. Mrs. Harrover earned her living by manipulating clothes in a washtub, and in the performance of her daily avocation frequently visited the Tremont house where Ispahecher was domiciled. Then the plot thickened, and the courtship of the two waxed warmer. They became engaged, although exactly how no one seems to know. The language of love was their only means of communication.

Ispahecher had decided to leave Washington on the 16th of June, and he wanted the marriage postponed until just before that date. He was afraid it would get into the newspapers and be spread over the county and become known. But the arguments of his interpreter made him change his mind, and the 4th of June was the date fixed. Last night, therefore, at 7:30 o'clock, a little party gathered in the parlor of the bride's house. The light of a solitary lamp fell upon the dark and stalwart form of the Indian standing in the center of the room by his white bride, while her family stood over against the walls. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Bartlett of New York-avenue Church. "Will though have this woman to be thy wife?" he asked of Ispahecher. Then the interpreter, S. B. Callahan, uttered a series of guttural sounds. The Chief bowed his head, and answered, "I do" in unintelligible Greek. The whole service was thus interpreted.

Ispahecher is a fine specimen of an Indian—tall, heavily-built, with black, glossy hair, and a face which is deeply furrowed. He is fifty-six years old. When interviewed, through the interpreter, by a Post reporter after the ceremony, he said that Indians were generally regarded as poor, wandering, homeless creatures. He had a home and a farm and plenty to live on. He regretted exceedingly his inability to speak English, but he had always lived back in the country among the Indians, and had not acquired the new tongues, as others had, by mingling with the whites. He therefore felt lost among the English-speaking people.

Miss Anna Harrover, the bride, is about twenty-five years of age, with pleasant features. She wore a neat drab dress, and said but little during the interview. She does not understand one word of her husband's language, and he as stated cannot speak English. "How are you going to get along?" asked the Post reporter. "We understand each other," she said smilingly.

"I should think they did," said the interpreter, "for they have been courting each other for some months."

Mrs. Ispahecher said she did not mind going to Indian Territory, and was perfectly willing to live there.

In a room beneath the parlor a table covered with a white cloth and bearing two plates of plain cake told of the wedding feast which followed the ceremony.
—Washington Post.

The Mazeppa of Nebraska.

M. Boussand, a wealthy cattle owner of northwestern Nebraska, who has just returned to Omaha from his ranch, relates a tale that in some respects is a counterpart of the orthodox Mazeppa. When Boussand reached his ranch in the middle of June he found his cowboys nursing a man yet unconscious whom two weeks before they had rescued from the back of a wild broncho pony they had lassoed. Boussand was able to revive him through his knowledge of medicine, and he is now recovering. He said his name was Henry Burbank, an Englishman aged 34. Three years ago at Falmouth, Eng., he formed a partnership with Thomas Wilson, and they began cattle business in northwestern Nebraska. An improper intimacy began between Burbank and Mrs. Wilson, and the latters husband was informed of it by a cowboy. On the night of May 27th Wilson and three of his men surprised Burbank in bed, mutilated and stripped him, and then lashed him to the back of a wild pony, which they loosed. Burbank says he became unconscious before morning. As he was rescued June 3d, for seven days was he exposed to the sun and wind without food or water. The pony was nearly broken down when caught, and was 200 miles from Wilson's ranch. When fully restored to health Burbank proposes to make a visit of retaliation on Wilson, and in this he will be backed by Boussand's men and those of the Ogallala land and cattle company, whose range is near Boussand's.

A medical authority of Paris says that corrosive sublimate is the best disinfectant in drains and closets; for apartments he recommends phenic acid, and advises any body suffering from diarrhea to take immediately ten drops of laudanum in a glass of water. "When the cholera has once declared itself," he continues, "it should be treated with opium. Since absorption is difficult, and sometimes impossible to cholera patients, alkaloids should be employed, of which morphine is the most powerful." He thinks that morphine will be the great remedy should there be an epidemic of cholera.

A continental journal computes the mortality of the whole globe at the following figures: Sixty-seven per minute, 97,790 per diem, and 35,639,835 per annum; whereas the births are 36,792,000 per annum, 100,000 per diem, and 70 per minute.

How the Swordfish are Caught.

There are lively times now at swordfishing off No Man's Land and Block Island, says the Hartford Times. This, however, is not a sport in which a novice can take part. Great experience and skill are required. Your true swordfishman can't afford to have his luck spoiled by the bungling antics of ambitious and over confident amateurs. Everything must proceed just right. The swordfish, a huge fellow, does not show himself, like a porpoise, by jumping out of the water, nor by "blowing" like a whale. He goes, however, near the surface, and to a sharp and educated eye he shows one sharp-pointed fin—something like a shark's—just breaking the surface of the water. It is a very inconspicuous object, and would be overlooked by any but an experienced eye. But the lookout who is stationed aloft on the mast will see it at an incredible distance sometimes. Then the vessel is turned that way, the harpooner goes out on the bowsprit, and, firmly grasping his weapon, silently waits the moment of fate. When, with a lightning-like movement, he throws that iron, it is most likely to penetrate deeply, if not fatally, into the monster's vitals. Then, when the wounded fish goes rushing off, the line, all fast to a cask that cannot be sunk, is thrown overboard, cask and all, and the vessel goes off for a fresh victim, knowing that the boating cask can be followed and the tired swordfish pulled in, and, if necessary, lanced to death at any hour. It is said forty or fifty of these fish are brought into Newport every day. They measure in some parts of the world, from ten to sixteen feet in length, but on the New England coast they seldom exceed seven or eight feet (not measuring the sword), and weigh from 300 to 600 pounds. This sword, a curious bony extension of the upper jaw, is three or four feet long, and is a very formidable weapon. With it the fish successfully attacks the largest whales, and even thrusts it through several thicknesses of plank in a ship's bottom. A swordfish last summer attacked a man who was bathing in the Gulf of California, and came very near killing him before he could get ashore, where he fell, wounded and bleeding. Vessels from the Vineyard Sound bring these fish to New London by the cargo. The flesh is solid like old mess pork, and excellent when fried, but rather dry. But it is the sport and excitement of capturing the fish that make swordfishing the most captivating of all fishing, though it is actually participated in by comparatively few but trained hands.

How Gun Barrels are Made.

St. Nicholas.—The beautiful waved lines and curious flower like figures that appear upon the surface of the barrels are really the lines of welding, showing that two different kinds of metals, iron and steel, are intimately blended in making the finest and strongest barrels. The process of thus welding and blending steel and iron is a very interesting one. Flat bars, or ribbons, of steel and iron are alternatively arranged together and then twisted into a cable.

Several of the cables are then welded together, and shaped into a long flat bar which is next spirally coiled around a hollow cylinder, called a mandrel; after which the edges of these spiral bars are heated and firmly welded. The spiral coil is now put upon what is called a welding mandrel, is again heated and carefully hammered into the shape of a gun-barrel. Next comes the cold hammering, by which the pores are securely closed. The last or finishing operation is to turn the barrel on a lathe to exactly its shape and size. By all the twistings and weldings and hammerings, the metals are so blended that the mass has somewhat the consistensy and toughness of woven steel and iron.

A barrel thus made is very hard to burst. But the finishing of the inside of the barrel is an operation requiring very great care and skill. What is called a cylinder-bored barrel is where the bore or hole through the barrel is made of uniform size from end to end. A choke bore is one that is a little smaller at the muzzle end than it is at the breach end. There are various ways of "choking" gun-barrels, but the object of all methods is to make the gun throw its shot close together with even and regular distribution and with great force. There are several kinds of metallic combinations that gun-makers use, the principal of which are called Damascus, Bernard and laminated steel. The Damascus barrels are generally considered the best.

Cholera.

Cholera has made periodical twelve-year visits to our country. The last epidemic was in 1873. Thus we have something to fear for next year if not for this. The Philadelphia Medical News says of its appearance in 1873: "Cholera visited the United States before it appeared in Paris. Then there were many sources of infection—it was first brought to New Orleans by a Bremen barque, and developed in the case of a man employed in unloading her cargo (a native of Pensacola who went to New Orleans for employment). But the larger number of cases were imported directly through New York City on non-infected vessels, but the disease was not developed until the personal effects of the victims had been unpacked at their destination. This was shown in the three distinct outbreaks at widely remote parts of the United States, where the effects of emigrants from Holland, Sweden and Russia were unpacked—at Carthage, O., Crow River, Minn., and Yankton, Dak., where, within thirty-six hours thereafter, the first cases of the disease appeared."

The sexton of a Roman Catholic church in one of the small towns in the Province of Quebec had a grudge against a fellow-church member, and and proceeded to gratify it by not putting the collection plate within his reach on Sunday morning. The aggrieved man thereupon brought suit against the sexton for depriving him of the privilege of letting his light shine before men to the extent of his customary charitable ten-cent piece, and the court awarded him damages to the extent of five dollars. This decision creates much remark in the United States, where an individual omitted by the sexton, or those who pass the "corn-popper," would be apt to consider that he had a lucky escape, especially if his neighbors had not observed the omission. The obligation to give, has considerable force among good people, but giving is not usually esteemed a privilege to be earnestly contended for in courts of law.

An Old-Time Game of Draw.

From the Chicago Herald.

"De good Lawd bless my soul! Why, ole Massa Smith, what am you doin' way up Norf here? Don't you know me, old Massa?" It was the porter speaking to a southern delegate en route for Chicago. The delegate was an elderly man, who kept his slouch hat on his head even in the sleeping car, and pronounced the word "here" as if it was a "y" and two sylables in it. He failed to recognize the porter, when the latter made himself known. Twenty-five years ago they were master and slave. Their greeting was as cordial as that between brothers. Sight of an old-time face seemed to cause the porter's pronunciation to relapse to the style of the plantation. "Do you remember the time I went 'long with you to the convention at Ahleans, Massa Smith, back befo' de wah, when I was nothin' but a young buck niggah? Don't you 'mem bah dat time? You kin jes' bet I do right well. You an' Massa Jenkins was rival as'prunts fo' a nomanashun, and you sot down in your room at de hotel to talk 'n orate 'bout 'fo 'clock in de mawnin. Massa Jenkins tooked a shine to me an' wanted to buy me, but you wouldn't sell. Fin'ly Massa Jenkins made you an offuh of the nomination fo' me, an' you took him up quick. Don't ye rec'lect it now? Then you give me the wink, an' when you got to playin' pokah fo' beg stakes, I pass the bottle, an' while he was drinkin' handed you fo' duces out o' thah deck. Don't you membah it now? You' held de fo' duces till a jackpot come round, when yo' give Massa Jenkins a pot full, an' he put me in de pot an' you scooped me back. Sartinly you reck'leck now; but this niggah 'lows you won't play no pokah fo' de nom'nation up't Chicago, with a culled boy in de pot, hey, Massa Smith?"

"North Countrie" Superstitions.

Medora Clark in Chicago Current.

There are many superstitions in England, especially in the northern part, which have not obtained largely in this country. The observance of holidays is regarded with an amount of awe and superstitious importance which would seem childish and absurd to most Americans, from whom, as a class, reverence for old customs seem to be fast falling away.

New Year's day in the north of England is especially favored by the superstitious as the time when gods of fate need the most propitiation to insure their smiling indulgence for the ensuing year. It is deemed most disastrous to the happiness of a house-hold to have its threshold first crossed on that day by any female. A woman is sure to bring death. Anyone having red hair, cross eyes, bow legs (and there are many of these in the north), humped back, idiocy or any brain trouble, brings calamity of some sort, and if the mained one be a female as well she bodes illness, death and perhaps financial difficulties. To avert any such catastrophe, boys in full possession of all faculties, straight-eyed, strong-limbed, with hair not verging on the "Titian" in brightness of hue, go about, just as the bell tolls the hour of midnight, and rap at the door. It is considered heresy not to let them in. When the door is open, they cross the threshold and recite the following rhyme:

We've come to wish you a Happy New Year,
A pocket full of money and a cellar full of beer,
An apple and a pear, a plum and a cherry,
For making of good ale for to make a man merry.
God bless the mister of this house, the missus also,
Likewise the little children that 'round the board go.
We come not to your house to beg or to borrow
We come, good folks, to drive away sorrow.

They expect pennies, which they receive with a quick, jerky bow, and start off again for the other houses on the street. The little boys who go about thus are called "waits," and are the most heartily welcomed guests of the whole year. A Yorkshire woman of considerable intelligence told me, with every appearance of credulity, of the sudden death of her son which was occasioned by the ill-omened entrance on New Year's morning of a neighbor's girl, who had rushed in precipitately before the "waits," to summon aid to her dying mother. "The girl wasn't to blame, poor thing," she added, with great magnanimity; "she little thought what sorrow she was pouring on to our house, but our George Frederick Arthur lay cold in his coffin before the next July came in."

In some parts of Lancashire and Lincolnshire the same omens apply to Christmas morning.

On Shrove Tuesday the cooking and eating of pancakes insures a full larder the coming year, and if on the same day the children play almost continuously at battledore and shuttlecock the general prosperity of the family is hoped to be secured. Youths and maidens play as well, and even adults may join in the innocent amusement of this one day of the year.

The superstition that it is unlucky to go under a leaning ladder" originated in Yorkshire, as did also the idea that "whoever reads epitaphs loses his memory."

One day in the suburbs of Manchester I was walking with a young lady when we heard a dog bark in a not far distant kennel.

"How dismally that sounds!" I said.

"Wait a moment and I will put a stop to it," said the fair Lancashire lass, and bending down she unbuttoned her low walking shoe, and taking it off spit in it, then slipping it on again we resumed our walk while she laughed merrily at my amazement.

"What does that do?" I asked.

"Why, don't you see, he hasn't growled since I did it? Any dog will stop at once if you spit in your shoe."

For some reason, or for no reason at all, the dog ceased to make day hideous with his uncanny noises, at least until we were out of hearing.

On Guy Fawkes day, in November, a "guy" is constructed from straw and rags, wearing a mask face, and is burned in the streets to insure pleasant dreams to the people of the different neighborhoods, while a great exhibition of fireworks is kept up until very late, very much after the manner of our Fourth of July celebrations.

Whole chapters of these superstitions might be recorded; some of them utterly senseless, others having a slight foundation in some dimly realized scientific fact.

Henry G. Douglass, aged seventeen, clerk in the law office of William L. Royall, New York, has been arrested on a charge of forging his employer's name to seventeen checks, aggregating a considerable sum.

Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Publisher.

CROOKSTON, - MINNESOTA.

John Bright, in a recent speech at Birmingham, said the peers of the realm were the spawn of the blunders, wars, and corruption of the dark ages of British history, and that the present tory lords "are no better than their ancestors—some of them are worse for their privileges had produced ignorance and arrogance." This is strong language, applied to the hereditary aristocracy of old England, but it has an element of truth.

During the month of July the national debt was reduced nearly $4,000,000, which decrease, in view of the heavy disbursements made for pensions and interest, is quite as large as was expected generally. A few persons expected the extinguishment would reach $5,000,000, the sum fixed upon in the estimates, but the warrants for pensions aggregated $10,000,000 and so absorbed some of the surplus intended for debt reduction.

A recently enacted law forbids the gratuitous publication of statistics collected by the Government, and the cabalistic figures of imports, exports and immigration which until lately flowed in recurring streams from Washington will be seen no more for a season.—The great masses of figures gathered and published by the government, are simply rubbish to a majority of the people, but to certain specialists they are valuable for data and comparisons, and this class will not be debarred from acquiring all they want through other sources.

Alabama leads off in the elections of 1884, chosing state officers and a legislature. Arkansas will hold a similar election on Monday, September 1, and Vermont the next day. Maine will elect a governor, a legislature and congressmen, and vote upon a proposed prohibitory amendment to its constitution, on Monday, September 8. Georgia will hold a state election on October 1, and Ohio and West Virginia on the 14th of the same month. Thus preliminary contests will occur in seven states, but public interest will chiefly be attracted toward those in Maine and Ohio, and in each case the campaign will be extremely vigorous.

The season of 1884 thus far proved a comparatively unprofitable one for the watering place hotels, and also for the first-class hotels in many cities, owing in part to the unusually cold weather of July, but also in part to an apparent disposition in the public to be less lavish of expenditure than formerly. There is a growing demand for simpler and more homelike hotels, says an Eastern paper, with quiet accomodations and unostentatious service of the "good old days" style. The quiet and homelike hotels are said to be making the most money and rapidly increasing in number, indicating a growing change for the better in the habits of the American people.

Somebody once accounted for the excesses of the French Revolution on the ground that the nation had become insane, arguing that people may go mad in masses as well as individually. This idea appears to find confirmation in France now, in the case of the prejudice against doctors in the cholera smitten districts. The explanation of the prejudice is that a pamphlet written by a German, and containing the assertion that cholera is nature's means of ridding the earth of surplus population, and especially of that part not fitted for the struggle of existence, has been widely circulated in France, and that the people think the views of the government accord with those of the German writer. The doctors are looked upon as the agents of the government, and their object to encourage instead of suppress the disease. A good many follies may be attributed to simple ignorance under the influence of fear, but this folly is so extreme as to lead to the suggestion that it emanated from and is believed in only by persons who are insane.

Chief Justice Daley of New York, president of the Geographical Society, writing to the New York Herald, expresses disbelief in the existence of the open polar sea so earnestly advocated by Lieutenant Maury, Dr. Kane and Dr. Hayes, for the general reason that the ice-bound condition of the portion of the Arctic that is known to us should be assumed to continue in a still greater degree to the pole, as the nearer we approach it the further we are removed from the influence of the sun. The idea of an open polar sea originated in the imaginary representation upon old maps of the early part of the sixteenth century of such a sea at the north pole, with four rivers corresponding to the cardinal points flowing from it, and a statement made during the same century by one Moxes, an English hydrographer, that he had met a sailor in a tavern at Amsterdam who had seen this sea and sailed upon it. Still Judge Daley advocates continuous scientific observations around the polar basin, extending as far inward or toward the pole as favorable opportunities offer, for we shall never accurately know the laws of aerial and oceanic currents unless we know more than we do now about what takes place in the Arctic circle, and this will not be abandoned, notwithstanding the calamity that has befallen the present expedition.

THE PITH OF THE NEWS.

Washington News.

Gen. Newton says Washington is at the mercy of an enemy.

Prof. Stevens of the Smithsonian institution, has gone with a party of explorers to the region of the cliff and cave dwellers to make a collection of relics and curiosities to be taken to the New Orleans exposition. Explorations will be made in Arizona and New Mexico.

Postoffice established: Wisconsin—Neptune; Richland county. Postmasters commissioned: Charles A. Fisher, Aberdeen, Dak.; Charles R. Franklin, Rockford, Iowa; Akerly Townsend, Fort Sully, Dak.; Richard N. Howe, Golden, Iowa; William D. Prescott, Brown's Valley, Minn.

The special commission, which has been investigating the condition and management of the New Orleans postoffice, submitted its report to the postmaster general to-day. It severely criticises the service there, says the postmaster seldom visits the office, nothing like system is observed, the mail matter is badly handled, and several sinecures exist, which the commission recommends be abolished.

Offices Established—Iowa: Lark, Worth county. Postmasters Commissioned—Henry B. Hiller, Vienna, Wis. New Offices—James W. Smith, Neptune, Richland county, Wis. Postal Order Offices Established—Dakota: Aberdeen, Altamount, Andover, Beresford, Blunt, Bridgewater, Brookings, Buffalo, Carrington, Carthage, Columbia, Cooperstown, Dawson, Devil's Lake, Estellin, Fairbank, Faulkston, Forest City, Grand Rapids, Grandlliene, Hamilton, Higmore, Howard, Hurley, Iroquois, Lafoon, Lagrace, Lamoure, Lisbon, Miller, Minto, Northville, Portland, Raymond, Saint Thomas, Spearfish, Steele, Warner, Wentworth, Minnesota. Aitkins, Argyle, Arlington, Beaver Creek, Bird Island, Cologne, Edgarton, Elysian, Hallock, Henning, Long Lake, Mabel, Oronoco, Pleasant Grove, Springfield, Starbuck, Villard.

In accordance with the act of congress authorizing the appointment of eighty post quartermaster sergeants to perform the duties of storekeepers and clerks in place of citizen employes, a general order has been issued by the war department, providing that said sergeants shall be selected by examination from the most competent men in the army who have served at least four years, and whose character and education will fit them to take charge of public property. In so far as practicable, selections will be made regimentally, at the rate of two from each regiment, provided there are fit applicants from said regiments who deserve the positions. Until otherwise provided, candidates for appointment will be selected from those men in active service doing duty with their regiments, and those of the longest service, or highest in rank, who are entirely competent and equally qualified, will have preference. Applicants must pass a physical examination by the army surgeon, at the post where they are stationed, who must certify that the applicants are free from disease and in every way physically competent to perform outdoor or clerical duties pertaining to the position. They must be men against whom stands no charge of dishonesty, embezzlement, misapplication of property or money, or any immoral or scandalous practices whatever—men of integrity, good character, obedient, willing and of good address and bearing.

Railroad and River News.

The earnings of Northwestern roads for the month of July were as follows: Chicago & Northwestern, $1,962,300; decrease, $198,300; St. Paul & Omaha, $461,300; increase, $16,600; Milwaukee & St. Paul, $1,000,000; increase, $120,715; Northern Pacific, $1,026,440; increase, $176,225.

Record of Casualties.

The Grand Trunk railroad repair shops beyond the southwestern city limits of Chicago were burned recently. Loss $15,000.

Two Chinaman fought Tuesday night at Portland, Ore., over a courtesan. Both were mortally shot. One, a very desperate fellow, barricaded his room and refused to surrender to the police. He threatened to kill any officer who approached. The building was surrounded, the room flooded with water and the wounded man drove out.

The Criminal Calendar.

Franklin Este, late town treasurer of Southborough, Mass., was held to the grand jury for embezzelement.

Ex-Prosecuting Attorney Drew, of Cincinnati, has been arrested charged with embezzling $8,000 from Mrs. Cox, while acting as her agent.

Frank F. Everett, the late cashier of the Golden bank, Denver, committed suicide about three weeks ago. A shortage of $100,000 is now said to have been discovered.

James Holland of St. Louis, United States deputy clerk and the best known stenographer of that city, was accidently killed at Spirit Lake, Iowa, by the discharge of a gun in the hands of his son.

Henry A. Frederick and Dr. J. B. Weida of Philadelphia, surrendered to the authorites of Norristown, Pa., recently and admitted that they had stolen from the graveyard the body of John May the murderer.

Private W. W. Hill, of the signal corps, husband of a pretty wife and the father of three interesting children, has eloped with a Washington young lady whose father is a retired officer of the army. Hill was under arrest in Fort Meyer for forgery, but escaped from the guard house and eloped with the girl.

Emma Bruener, the sixteen-year-old daughter of Theodore Bruener, a saloon-keeper living seven miles west of Dubuque, was found hanging to the rafters of her father's barn, having committed suicide. She left a letter explaining that she was seduced by a young farmer and could no longer carry her shame.

Personal Points.

The will of the late Royal Phelps has been filed in the surrogate's court at New York. It is dated Feb. 11, 1884, and gives all his property to relatives with several small bequests to old employes. His nephews, Royal Phelps Wilber, and Herbert S. Wilber each get $20,000, and James H. Wilber gets $10,000. The other son-in-law, John Lee Carroll of Maryland gets $100,000. The remainder of the estate is bequeathed in as many equal parts as there are grand children surviving him. Thomas Maitland is appointed executor of the will.

Miscellaneous News Notes.

Mrs. Sharon sues the Alta Californian for $50,000 for libel.

Bradstreet says there is but little betterment of the business situation.

Thomas S. McManus, confectioner, St. Paul, departed this life by prussic acid.

Raymond, arrested in Minneapolis for the murder of Coe and released, reappeared at Bird Island.

In the Fifth Iowa congressional district "Tama" Wilson was badly beaten by M. P. Smith, of Lynn.

John B. Hulling & Co., dealers in laces, Chicago, assigned. Liabilities, $50,000; assets nearly the same.

One of President Taylor's sons died last week in the Salt Lake assessor's office. Another son, Moses, takes his place.

Altman, Demelman & Fuchs, wholesale liquor dealers of Boston, have failed. Liabilities, $75,000—largely due in the west.

Andrew Lewis, a Berryville, Va., negro, was given 100 lashes on the bare back for following Miss Erskine and frightening her.

William Kinsley of Randolph, Mass., became convinced that by divine command he must sacrifice his right hand, so he thrust his wrist beneath the blade of a cutting machine, severing the hand.

C. T. Nightingale's shoe factory at Easton, Pa., is closed and thirty hands thrown out of work. J. A. Nightingale, father of C. T. Nightingale, has $17,000 against his son and other persons hold nearly as much more.

There were 210 failures in the United States reported to Bradstreet's during the past week as compared with 241 in the preceding week and 166, 95 and 105 respectively in the corresponding weeks of 1883-82 and '81. Canada had 23, a decrease of 1.

The Wyoming supreme court has ordered prosecuting attorney of Cheyenne county to file an accusation against Melville C. Brown for assailing the integrity of certain judges of the court and for alleged unprofessional conduct. Brown is a prominent lawyer, and formerly United States attorney for Wyoming, and appointee of President Hayes.

Gen. Hatch, in company with Adjt. Gen. Finley and the inspector general of the interior department, visited the Payne camp at Rock Falls, Indian territory, and, after reading the president's proclamation to him and his assembled followers, directed them to leave the territory. Payne refused, and the soldiers raided and destroyed the settlement and drove the settlers away.

Nuggets of Foreign News.

Stellmacher, the anarchist murderer, was hanged at Vienna.

Miss Benedict of London is in training to swim across the English channel.

A French almanac predicts that Emperor William and Gen. Moltke will die before Dec. 31.

Four earthquakes occurred at Frascato Albano and Costello Romani, a few miles southeast of Rome.

In Brussels a mob hooted the Clericals and Liberals yesterday as they were leaving the chamber of deputies. The police repeatedly dispersed the mob and made several arrests.

Advices from South Africa report a severe engagement between the followers of Montsioa and the Boers, in which the latter were defeated. Many warriors were killed, including several Englishmen.

At the Hague the duke of Nassau has issued a formal protest against the king of the Netherlands' declaration that the passage of the Dutch regency law settles the question of succession to the duchy of Luxembourg.

Consul Campbell reports that one American sewing machine firm sold 1,800 machines in Monterey last year. Two stores imported 2,254 American plows, and American agricultural implements have driven the English and German goods out of the market. About 160,000 gallons of American kerosene were sent to Monterey in fourteen months and the price at retail there is 75 cents a a gallon.

The half-yearly meeting of the Anglo-American Cable company was held to-day. Reports showed a falling off in receipts of £13,377 compared with the first half of 1883. The chairman remarked that the company were about to meet another baleful competition, but its property was in good order. The decrease in earnings was owing to depression in trade. A motion was adopted setting apart £75,000 for a renewal fund.

In Mexico relations have been resumed with England, the papers having just been signed. The relations referred to are the relations diplomatic between England and Mexico, which have been suspended since the fall of Maximilian. It is understood that the settlement of the English debt, viz., certain national loans to Mexico negotiated in England, then repudiated, is one of the conditions of resuming relations.

Santa Fe is considerably excited over an attempt to kidnap one of its most beautiful Spanish-American senoritas by the use of chloroform. The villian entered the place where the maiden was sleeping by scaling the wall and passing over the flat roof. When the drug had benumed his victim he seized her in his arms and was about to carry her off, but she fortunately awoke, and her struggles aroused the family, when the villian fled before he could be captured.

The United Ireland says regarding the verdicts just gained in Belfast by Crown Solicitor Bolton in the action brought by him against the editors and proprietors of United Ireland: "The end is not yet. Lords Spencer and Trevelyan would have shared in the triumphs of Cornwall and Bolton, if they had triumphed. They must share also in their dismissal or find deadlier weapons to silence United Ireland." The grand jury yesterday, in presenting the indictments against Cornwall and companions, urged the Judge to prohibit the publication of the evidence. The judge said he would do what he legally could, and commended the request of the grand jury to the discretion and forbearance of the press.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

Annual Meeting of the National Association, With an address by George William Curtis.

The fourth annual meeting of the National Civil Service association was held at New York. George William Curtis delivered the opening address.

Mr. Curtis gave a lengthy review of civil service reform legislation in congress from the time the subject first claimed popular attention until the defeat, at the last session, of the bill to repeal the four-year tenure of office act. He then referred to the civil service law passed by the New York legislature, and enumerated and explained its provisions. Mr. Curtis highly commended the work of the present civil service commission, and praised President Arthur's course in regard to this branch of goverment al reform. The speaker then urged to completion the repeal of the four-year-law, and concluded: "The greatest and most beneficial reform in methods of administration which has ever been proposed in the country, a reform of abuses which were subjugating legitimate party action, destroying the moral authority of elections, demoralizing the public conscience, degrading official character, excluding able and upright men from public life and disgracing the American name has been begun and has thus far effectively accomplished, not by party but by patriotism, by men in office and out of office, of different political conventions strongly attached to different parties, anticipating political careers, yet co-operating with sincerity and enthusiasm, not as Republicans, not as Democrats, but solely as Americans; before all, proud of their country; above all, resolved that the national name should be unstained and national politics raised to controversies of principle and policy. In all the proceedings of our associations and, of this league, in all our appeals and arguments, there has been no word and no thought of party. Both houses of congress passed the national reform bill with practical party unanimity. A democratic legislature in New York, a republican legislature in Massachusetts, passed a state reform bill, a Republican president, a Democratic governor have been the two most conspicuous and effective executive agents in enforcing the reform. If in the mad tumult of party passion, in the storm of hatred, falsehood and malignant injustice which a presidential election whirls over the land, some appalled citizen should be ready to despair of his country and to be ashamed of his kind, let him take heart again and be prouder than ever that he is an American, and antcipate with suror confidence the greater glory of his country, as he reflects that civil reform, thus far, has been the triumph of patriotism in the midst of party conflicts and despite the ferocity of party spirit."

A business meeting was subsequently held at which remarks were made by representatives of various cities setting forth the progress made in civil service reform in each of said corporations. Resolutions were unanimously adopted congratulating the members upon the work already accomplished.

Market Reports.

ST. PAUL.—Wheat, No. 1 hard, 93@95c. No. 1, 84c; No. 2 hard, 89c; No. 2, 76c.

Corn. No. 2, 51c. No. 3, 46@48c.

Oats, No. 2 mixed, 28c; No. 3 mixed, 26c; No. 2 white, 29c.; No 3. white, 28c.

Barley, No. 2, 55c.; No. 3 extra, 48c.; No. 3, 40c.

Rye, No. 2, 55c.

Baled Hay, wild, $9.00; timothy $12.00.

Eggs, 16@16½c.

MILWAUKEE.—Wheat, No. 2, 84c.

Corn. No. 2, 56c.

Oats, No. 2, white, 34c.

Rye No. 1, 63½c.

Barley, No. 2, 55c.

Mess Pork, $16.00.

Lard, $7.20.

Butter, choice creamery, 17@18c; fair to good, 16@17c; best dairy, 14@15c.

Eggs, 15@15½c.

CHICAGO.—Wheat, No. 2 Chicago spring, 84@85⅝c.

Corn. 55@56c.

Oats, 30@30½c.

Rye, 62½c.

Barley, 64@66c.

Flax Seed, $1.32@$1.33.

Pork, $16.00@$17.00.

Lard, $7.15@$7.20.

Butter, creamery, 17@18½c; dairy, 14@14½c.

Eggs, 15@15½c.

IN HONOR OF GREELY.

Demonstration in Honor of the Rescued Arctic Explorer at Portsmouth.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 4.—The city is thronged, public and private buildings decorated, and "Welcome to our Arctic Heroes" placarded on bunting everywhere. The harbor is filled with crafts laden with people. At 11:20, amid considerable enthusiasm, Commanders Schley and Coffin and Lieut. Emory disembarked. Following them were other officers of the Greely expidition and sailors of the Thetis, Bear and Alert. They were enthusiastically greeted as they landed. The crowd pressed forward to shake their hands. A roar of welcome went up when Greely was discovered coming toward the landing in the admiral's barge, Greely was clothed in white, with a slouch hat and wore spectacles. As he and his companion alighted all crowded to welcome him. Greely leaned upon the arm of Lieut. Powell and languidly lifted his hat. His every movement indicated weakness. His comrades received much attention. All were placed in coaches and immediately driven to the Rockingham house, it having been decided that they should not appear in the procession. At the hotel crowds gathered to catch a glimpse of them Mrs. Greely joined her husband at the hotel. At 11:20 the procession began to march. The streets were packed. Great applause greeted the sailors of the relief squandron. The ovation continued through the entire route. Commander Schley, Lieut. Emory and Commander Coffin were received with TREMENDOUS APPLAUSE.

As the head of the procession neared the Rockingham house, where Lieut. Greely and the survivors were waiting to review it, the pressure of the crowd became so great that the column was delayed several minutes. Lieut. Greely and comrades were seated upon the balcony. Cheer after cheer greeted him. As the crews of the Thetis, Bear and Alert passed Greely bowed very low and seemed to look his gratitude to the men who so very recently rescued him from the grave. The scene was affecting and many brushed tears from their eyes. Greely was kept busy bowing his acknowledgment as the procession was passed. Commanders Schley and Coffin and Lieut. Emory raised their hats as they passed the hero. After the procession Greely and party were driven to the grand stand, where they again reviewed the procession and received the plaudits of the multitude. Among the prominent men on the stand were Secretary Chandler, Gov. Hale, S. J. Randall, Congressman Robinson of New York, officers of the relief expedition and the North Atlantic squadron and members of the city government of many New England cities. The procession was dismissed at two o'clock, and shortly after the invited guests were entertained at dinner by the city of Portsmouth.

THE MEETING OF CITIZENS

in music hall this evening to extend a welcome to Greely and surviving companions was largely attended. In the auditorium were Portsmouth's foremost citizens. On the stage were officers of the North Atlantic squadron and Arctic relief fleet. In front seats of the orchestra sat the crews of the Thetis, Bear and Alert. The sailors were enthusiastically received on entering the hall, as were their officers, who appeared shortly afterward. Secretary Chandler, Gen. Hazen, Admiral Luce, Commodore Wells, Gen. B. F. Butler, Congressmen Randall and Robinson, of Maine, occupied seats on the platform. The meeting was called to order by the Rev. W. A. McGinley. Rev. W. H. Alden made a prayer and was followed by Mayor Treat of Portsmouth, who read an address, in which he extended the hospitalities of the city to Greely and his little band. Secretary Chandler was permanent chairman of the meeting. When he came forward to address the meeting he was very warmly applauded. When he referred to the efforts of Randall in the house of representaives and Hale in the senate in behalf of the Greely relief bill, as well as the noble work of Commanders Schley and Coffin and Lieut. Emory, the audience became almost wild with enthusiasm. Mr. Chandler in his address told the story of the organization and object of the Greely expedition. He likewise spoke of the Proteus expedition, and recited the instructions given to Lieut. Garlington, and traced the movements of the Proteus and Yantic in their vain efforts to find and rescue Greely. He said that from July 1882 to August 1883, 50,000 rations were taken in the steamers Neptune, Yantic and Proteus up to and beyond Littleton Island. Of that number only about 1,000 were left in that vicinity, the remainder being returned to the United States or sunk with the Proteus. Mr. Chandler then related the history of the successful efforts of Commander Schley and comrades to rescue Greely, and paid a deserved tribute to all concerned. Gov. Hale, Senator Hale, Hon. S. J. Randal and Gen. B. F. Butler made short addresses. Gen. Butler said he thought Americans would never rest until the north pole was reached. He thought a party ought to be sent to the arctic to stay and advance slowly, establishing supply depots as they moved. The North Pole belonged to the United States, and he predicted that their territory would soon embrace the entire Western hemisphere—poles and all. Lieut. Greely was not able to be present, but a letter from him was read, in which he said: "No reason more serious than their inability from lack of strength and health could prevent the presence to-night of the living members of the Lady Franklin bay expedition. I am unable to fittingly express how deeply we feel the honor done us by our assembling here, to greet with kindly words of welcome the living and to give voice to tender sympathy for the dead. During our service north we tried to do our duty. If in our efforts aught is found of work accomplished to touch the heart of the people, we shall feel that our labors and hardships are more than rewarded. Time and inclination are equally wanting in which to dwell on the WORK DONE OR HARDSHIPS ENDURED.

I must, however, state that never for a moment in our darkest or gloomiest hour, did we doubt or feel that the American people were planning for our rescue through their representatives, all that lay in human power and still from day to day as food failed and men died, that faith and that certainly gave strength to us who live. I need not tell what you well know how the secretary of the navy set heart and soul on our relief by imbuing his subordinates with his own indomitable energy, started relief vessels in an unprecedented brief time. You know of the untiring zeal and determination which animated Commander Schley and officers of the squadron. No risk was too great demanding their strength and energy where it was possible that an hour could be gained or a mile made good. So marked were their dispatch and energy that had they known our exact condition and locality and thus avoided a thorough and sweeping search from Cape York and Cary Island to life boat cove, they could not have reached Camp Clary in time to have saved another life. None but those of Arctic experience could fully realize the wonderful work done by the squadron, and no one knows better than I how inadequate is this tribute to the navy for its labor, not less glorious in this work of peace than they have always been in time of war. We thank you for your kind deeds, thoughtful consideration and tender sympathy to and for us all, the living and dead." The meeting closed at midnight.

Crops of Dakota.

James Boynes, statistical agent of Dakota, has prepared his report on crops, and sent it to Washington. The following is a synopsis: Wheat harvest in South Dakota is well under way, and while farmors are straining the capacity of selfbinders, they are yet unable to complete work before past ripe grain wastes by scattering. Wheat will be in shock in a few days. Stacking has already commenced. The yield will evidently be better, but not so great proportionately, per acre; but only threshing will determine the exact status of the yield. In North Dakota harvest is just commencing in some localities, while in others it will not begin for a week. Some fields will make 35 bushels per acre, but the most only 15 to 18. The only great danger is the ruthless pelting of hailstones. Grant county reports the prevalence of smut in soft wheat. Hand county reports some blighted wheat. The acreage is placed at 1,600,000 acres, and promises about 16 bushels to the acre, which is equivalent to 25,600,000 bushels of a better quality of grain than last year.

Gifford, Sherman & Innes, dyestuffs, of New York, have suspended. Preferences, $44,000. Their house is in Poughkeepsie, with branch office at 180 William street, this city. They rated as having fair credit with a capital about $300,000.

MINNESOTA NEWS NOTES.

William Bates, a farmer crazed by Cerebral scrofula, cuts his throat with a pocket knife, at Minnetonka Mills, Hennepin county. Mr. Bates was a member of company H of Second Minnesota infantry. He leaves a wife, six daughters, and two sons. The oldest child is seventeen years old, and the youngest twelve mothes.

The articles of incorporation and amendments thereto filed in the office of the secretary of state, for the fiscal year ending July 31, amount to 383, or more than one a day. The affidavits of publication, etc., number 165.

In September, 1882, R. W. Jacklin, of Waterville, was elected to and accepted the office of member of the board of education of the Independant School district for three years; in November, 1882, he was elected to the legislature of Minnesota, and acting as such, according to law and the decision of the attorney general, he has been for the past two years illegally acting as a member of the board of education.

An old landmark near the foot of Lake Amelia was removed the other day. It was a government mile pole on the old Red River trail, set by the soldiers nearly twenty years ago.

Married at the St. Peter's Episcopal church, Shakopee, by the Rev. Mr. Osborn, rector, the Rev. George H. Mueller of Denver, Col., to Ida, daughter of Capt. J. W. Sencerbox, of this city. The reverend bridegroom was formerly rector of this church and the predecessor of Rev. Osborn.

A young Englishman came out from England with a colony of young men to learn farming in the west, and who has been at work near Dakota in Winona county, recently left for England in obedience to a dispatch stating that he had fallen heir to $18,000 in the court of chancery.

Charles Sinclair and Mrs. Alice Walker charged with setting fire to Ira Judd's house at Marine Mills on the 25th inst., were arranged in the municipal court at Stillwater. Both waived examination and in default of bail, which was fixed at $2,000 each, were committed to jail to await the action of the grand jury.

Perham Bulletin: Some time ago there was a dissension in the Catholic church in Mercer county, Ohio, caused by the father of the church being unwilling to submit to the rulings of the bishop, and one Father Joseph was expelled from the church, and at his expulsion several of his followers also left and formed a colony and came to Rush Lake, in this county, and settled there, building a church and a convent. As farmers they were prosperous and generous, it being one of their creeds to always lend a helping hand to the poor, and for all their aid furnished they never took interest, notes or usury. Everything went on harmoniously until about three months ago, when their leader, Father Joseph, died. After his demise they were unable to procure a father, in consequence of which they made arrangements to leave their beautiful farms, crops and everything, and seek some far-off western home. In accordance with these arrangments, they chartered as emigrant sleeper of the Northern Pacific road and started on their journey last Saturday morning. The car was left here Friday night, in order to give them ample time to arrange their baggage and lunch for the trip to Portland, Or. The sleeper was a new one and would accommodate about fifty persons. After their departure it was discovered that they had taken the body of Father Joseph with them.

From the St. Paul office of the Bradstreet company it is learned that the total number of business firms of St. Paul, according to the most recent summary, is 2,020. The new names added numbered 136 and the names erased 55. In the state, exclusive of St. Paul and Minneapolis, 11,534 names are reported and 1,202 towns. The names added numbered 834, and 512 are erased. There were 18 additional towns and six were erased.

Frank Kellan, arriving at St. Paul from Portland, Or., on the Northern Pacific noon train, was confidenced out of $80 by a stranger who ingratiated himself into Kellan's favor between Minneapolis and St. Paul, and succeeded in playing the old "paying debt" trick. Kellan was left moneyless with the exception of a solitary V.

Mr. F. D. Beecher, formerly of Austin, ha been appointed agent of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad company in Faribault, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of J. F. Whallon.

W. J. Wilson, of Faribault, who was arrested for refusing to pay his dog license, was fined $2 and costs, amounting in all to $10. He refused to pay the fine and was committed to the county jail for five days. On Tuesday, G. N. Baxter, attorney for Wilson, applied for a writ of habeas corpus and the question of the right of the city to collect dog license was argued before Judge Buckham, A. D. Keyes appearing for the city. Judge Buckham has the matter under consideration. Mr. Wilson is determined to make it a test case and if necessary carry it to higher courts.

Brown county has 6,655 apple trees, of which 1,840 bore 626 bushels last year. Four hundred grape vines produced 837 pounds of fruit. The tobacco crop was but 80 pounds last year to 1,141, in 1879.

The shaft in the Duluth silver mine, on West Superior street, is down nineteen feet at the end of the 200-foot drift. Ore now taken out assays $50 per ton in silver.

M. A. Schultz & Co., of St. Paul, wholesale fancy grocers, made a general assignment for the benefit of creditors to J. W. Bishop, president of the St. Paul Trust company. No correct statement of assets and liabilities can be made at present, but the nominal assets are estimated at about $13,000, and the liabilities at about $8,000.

E. W. Haskett United States district attorney for Alaska Territory, and Andrew T. Lewis, secretary and treasurer of Alaska Territory, were in St. Paul a few days ago on their way to Alaska to assume the duties of their positions. Both have been recently appointed, and form a portion of the first territorial government of Alaska. They left via the Northern Pacific.

Articles of incorporation of the Bank of Willmar have been filed yesterday in the office of the secretary of state. The place of carrying on business is Willmar, Minn. The amount of capital stock is to be $40,000, divided into 400 shares of $100 each. The incorporators are Andrew B. Robbins, Minneapolis; Thomas H. Western, Portland, Me.; A. E. Rice, John H. Brown, J. S. Robbins, R. H. Jones, M. Jorgenson, George W. Tyler, F. G. Handy, H. J. Dale, C. E. Lien and J. T. Berg, of Willmar.

Mary J. Youmans, a young lady of Winona, who enlisted as a North American teacher in the normal school of Rosario, South America, died of typhoid fever May 19.

During the heavy thunder shower early Saturday morning, the barley stacks of L. B. Rice, three miles east of Austin, were set on fire by the lightning. Loss one hundred bushels or more. Insured.

Jay Henry Loring is now editor of the Fergus Falls Telegram.

Railroad Commissioner Baker, reports the gross earning of the Duluth for the six months ending June 30, 1884, as $491,246.51, with the taxes at $14,495.81. As compared with the corresponding period last year, the gross earnings were $511,883.53, with the taxes $15,144.85; a decrease of $20,030.02 in gross earnings and $619.04 in taxes.

Fred Foulk, of London, Minn., had his leg cut off by a reaper, and nearly bled to death before medical aid was secured.

Mrs. Wilbur Gaslee, of London, Minn., was terribly burned by lighting a fire with kerosene, but will recover.

At Wilkesbarre, Pa., twenty-two young ladies four of whom were from Minnesota, took the white veil and eighteen others the black veil, the ceremony being conducted by Bishop O'Hara.

George Roth's saloon at Brownsdale, Mower Co., was discovered on fire Sunday morning and completely burned. S. A. Brown's brick building adjoining, used as a store house, and Hennecke's saloon were also burned. Kramer's furniture store and Roth's store, and Masonic hall were several times on fire, and nothing but the very heavy shower which prevailed at the time saved the whole business block from destruction. Loss, $6,000; insurance, $3,800.

Millette was drowned while fishing in the Red Lake river in Crookston. The body was recovered. The deceased was a single man, a native of Canada.

Senator Sabin is at Stillwater, and being questioned with reference to the affairs of the car company Mr. Sabin said that he was not at liberty to talk at present but that in due time he would submit a carefully prepared statement on the subject, one that would clear up the matter and place the company in its proper position before the public. At present work is progressing as usual, the shops turning out machines and filling orders without any embarrassment.

Two barns with sheep, eighty tons of hay, corn crib and 500 bushels of corn, the property of S. T. Gjerns, a farmer living a mile west of Rushford, were destroyed by fire yesterday. Loss, $3,000; insurance, $1,100. The origin of the fire is unknown.

A convention of farmers of the Forty-second senatorial district was held yesterday at Herman. Nominations were made for senator and representative, S. M. Harris of Grant county securing the former and A. P. Jackson of Big Stone county the latter.

Articles of incorporation of the Winona Automatic Windmill company, with a capital stock of $25,000, have been filed in the office of the secretary of state. The incorporators are L. J. Woods, W. F. Phelps, Samson Fleishman, D. E. Vance, John Kunan, Harmon Waldron and J. H. Nagler.

At Minneapolis, the Forest Portable House company sued T. M. Joy for a small amount, and yesterday T. M. Joy assigned all his property to Isaac McNair for the benefit of his creditors. This failure also involves in it the Minneapolis Warehouse and Seed company, of which Mr. Joy is president.

At Minneapolis, Lydia M. Ingram has begun suit against her husband, Manville A. Ingram, of Ingram, Olson & Co., for divorce, alleging that the defendant on Aug. 1 did commit adultery with an unknown woman in Minneapolis. The plaintiff prays for divorce and the custody of the child, the one issue of the marriage.

Frank Trushel, Jr., cashier, in Pillsbury & Co.'s office, Minneapolis, for five years, was married about three months ago. Two weeks ago, without explaining to his wife, he left Minneapolis, taking $200 with him. His wife telegraphed to his father in Pennsylvania, and he came on. The two went to Duluth only to find young Trushel had gone to Port Arthur. They followed him there also, but learned that he had gone to Red Rock, and subsequently to Duluth. They took the boat for Duluth, arriving there Monday night. To their joy they found the truant stopping at the St. Louis hotel. Next morning, however, after an interview with his father, he again disappeared and has not been seen since.

Arrangements have been completed for the state tournament of the Minnesota fire departments, to take place in Faribault Aug. 20 and 21, and $920 is offered in prizes.

The mineral development of the north shore of Lake Superior begins to show up well. Several new mines have been located this year and several companies formed. News now comes that one of them has made a rich strike. There is little doubt that all reports are true.

Judge Wilson says he would not be a candidate against Milo White.

Scottville, Polk county, is the youngest Minnesota postoffice.

George Dinkle committed suicide Saturday morning at his home in Long Praire township, Todd county. He went home drunk, Thursday night, and attacked his wife, breaking her nose and knocking her teeth out. A hired man rescued the woman, who went to his son-in-law's house and remained. Dinkle's son had his father arrested on Friday, but the trial not being concluded that night the justice allowed him to go home. The next morning he dressed himself in his best clothes, took a dose of poison and died in the house alone. He was soon after discovered by his sons. Dinkle was a dissolute character, and had frequently threatened to kill his wife and boys.

E. C. Hennex, of Superior, Wis., was arrested at St. Paul Monday evening by Detective John O'Connor for forging two drafts—one for $15 and the other for $25—on the First National bank of Superior. He has been in St. Paul about two weeks stopping at the International hotel and had paid his board with the $15 check. The check was deposited by the hotel at the bank of Minnesota, and was by this bank sent to the bank at Superior, which resulted in the detection of the forgery.

The Chicago Stationer and Printer offered a $10 prize some time ago for the best specimen of job printing. The prize was awarded to Mr. Adams of Spring Valley, Minn.

Frank Carswikkes died in the Vermillion woods, north of Duluth, recently of scurvy. He was a native of Russia.

A. F. Ingalls has bought into the Fulda Republican.

Mrs. Booth of Chatfield Minn., took corrosive sublimate to kill herself, but the dose was too large and the attempt failed.

The name of the new town at Silliards, near Granite Falls, which was first called Cable has been changed to Cleveland.

Mr. McLeod has withdrawn from the Henderson Independent. William Dodge continues alone.

Mrs. Susan Bergo, who was teaching school in Eastern Round Prairie, was bitten or stung on the leg by some poisonous insect or reptile on June 30, while picking strawberries. She paid little attention to the pain or the sting until next morning, when she noticed a large purple spot where she was stung, and her leg began swelling badly. The poison seemed to penetrate her entire system, and showed itself all over her person in large purple spots. She has grown steadily worse until her life is despaired of.

A swarm of bees belonging to J. M. Doudna, of Alexandria, made seventy-three pounds of honey in nine days, a fraction over eight pounds per day.

Otter Tail county has 10,536 growing apple trees, of which last year 1,254 bore twenty-four bushels of fruit. The county has twenty-seven grape vines. Twenty towns report maple groves, but there were only 500 gallons of syrup made and but 1,495 pounds of sugar.

Bishop Ireland addressed the Catholic temperance convention at Chicago.

Ex-President Billings of the Northern Pacific, is in St. Paul.

C. N. West, a young man working on George Scribner's farm at Doty station, near Rochester, was killed by lightning. The remains were taken to Winona for burial.

Rev. Osmun Hutchins, now of Sanborn, Dak., has just sold his farm, containing 320 acres, and situated east of Taopi village, Mower county, to Mr. George Beed of Hampton, Iowa, consideration $7,500. There has not been a time for years when there was so much inquiry for lands, principally by Iowa and Wisconsin men.

Thomas S. McManus, wholesale confectioner at 31 East Third street, St. Paul, was found dead in his store by the bookkeeper, Arthur Lufsky, who opened the place of business. The body was in a revolving chair at the desk, with both feet in a chair in front, the head thrown back, the mouth open, the left hand pressed against the heart, the right clutching a handkerchief and raised part way to the mouth, as if about to wipe the lips. Mr. McManus had suffered great mental depression from dyspepsia, and his death was caused by prussic acid. He was 54 years of ago and a native of England.

Mrs. Sletten, sister of the late P. C. Sletten, receiver of the United States land office, died of consumption, at the residence of John Cromb, in Crookston.

W. H. Sargent, veterinary surgeon, examined the horses in Marshall county for glanders, and five horses were condemned and killed.

On July 3 the postoffice at Princetown was broken into and robbed of a small amount of money. On the same night the billiard hall owned by Reynolds & Howe was also robbed. The postmaster, after notifying the United States authorities, deemed it necessary to keep the matter quiet and await developments. About a week ago the drug store of D. A. Colby was broken open and two gold rings and some money were taken. A young barber named Irwin Bleakney was suspected, arrested, and confessed that he robbed Colby. He was at once interviewed by Postmaster Ross and confessed that he robbed the postoffice, giving the full particulars. He is in jail under the charge of robbing Colby's store, and it is not known what action the United States authorities will take.

REPUBLICAN POLITICS.

Postmaster Robertson of Troy and Collector Robertson of New York resigned from the Republican state executive committee so as not to engage in raising money for poltical purposes, the civil law forbidding federal officials to engage in that work.

I think there is a greater motive on the part of the Republican party to carry out the principles of civil-service reform than on the part of the Democratic party, because the Republicans are already in. While I believe Cleveland to be politically honest, his election would be putting the Government not in the hands of a man, but in the hands of a party which, as Curtis says, is "hungry and thirsty." I think it would be unfortunate for the condition of the country to have such a wholesale change.—Professor William C. Morey, Rochester University.

Secretary McPherson says that reports from New York indicate that the publication of the "Cleveland scandal' has given the Independents a chill, from which they can never entirely recover. Carl Schurz's efforts are futile. "Even the furnace of the investigation committee cannot restore their normal warmth," he says. "To vote with the democrats would be so inconsistent with their high moral character that many of them are seeking the best means of getting out of the difficulty quietly. Schurz and Curtis, he thinks, will be soon without a following, and Blaine will carry New York by 75,000 majority. Republicans who voted for Cleveland for governor, he says, tell him the same story.

United States Senator Miller, of California, in an interview with a correspondent said there was not a shadow of doubt that California, Oregon and Nevada would cast their electoral votes for Blaine and Logan. Mr. Blaine's attitude on the Chinese question, his solicitude for the dignity of American labor and his intense Americanism made him exceedingly popular in the Pacific States.

Charlestown (S. C.) Mercury.—There is no doubt whatever that the Republican standard-bearers will sweep the country by an immense majority, much greater than even Abraham Lincoln recieved. It is very doubtful whether Cleveland can carry a single Northern State, and the Western States will wheel into line for Blaine and Logan, low taxation and constitutional liberty. Of the Southern States, North Carolina, West Virginia, Florida and South Carolina are overwhelmingly in favor of Blaine and Logan. The 30,000 white independent Democrats of our State, thoroughly disgusted with the iron rule of an oligarchy and in favor of a free ballot and a free count, as against the barricades used throughout the State, at elections, for defeating "a government by the people," will unite solidly with a zealous support of Blaine and Logan. There will be a great triumph of their electors by a majority never exceeded in South Carolina.

Judge Hoar, of Massachusetts, in a speech a few days ago, answered the question, "Who is the republican candidate for President?" as follows:

Mr. Blaine, a republican journalist, fearless and true. Then a member of Congress, prominent in all the party's councils. When he made his dignified and touching speech in the House, not a republican in the United States but said he was among the most trustworthy and gallant of her leaders. Since then he has been a Senator and Secretary of State. When our murdered President lay on that deathbed, our whole country looked to Mr. Blaine with honor, confidence and trust. In the past three Republican conventions Mr. Blaine has been a leading candidate, if not the leading candidate. Defeated twice, he has always accepted the result faithfully and given his best service to make the party triumphant.

A correspondent from Saratoga writes the New York Sun urging that Cleveland withdraw and Tilden be substituted. The Sun prints the communication double leaded, and at the head of a column on the editorial page. The letter says: "A vast majority of his countrymen wanted Tilden. The convention knew it, and should have appealed to Mr. Tilden's patriotism. It would not have been in vain! But it is too late now to mend the matter. No it isn't. It never is. Let the Democratic national committee tell Mr. Cleveland that his nomination was a mistake at any rate, or premature, and he cannot hesitate to retire, for he must see that would secure success to the ticket at once, and great credit to himself. But would Mr. Tilden in that event be persuaded to consent to the use of his name? Mr. Tilden is a patriot as well statesman. He would do anything to serve his country.

Mr. Murat Halstead, of the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, telegraphs from New York as follows: I do not overstate the matter when I say that the best informed here are of the opinion that Blaine will come out even with Cleveland in the city of New York, and that he will have an unparalleled majority in the country. Reports from the strong Republican counties are that they will all give increased majorities. Some of Blaine's friends two months ago hesitated as to the propriety of nominating him for the Presidency because, according to appearances, the state of New York was against him. It was easy to say that he could win without New York, but it was hard to see how he could do it, especially if in the face of the country New York was surrendered in advance. Now there is no State more confidently and intelligently claimed for Blaine than New York. The current of public judgment and enthusiasm is all his way. The incomparable blundering of the Democrats at Chicago has prepared the broad road for Blaine to the presidency. People are rapidly falling into the habit of regarding him as already elected.

Hooker of Vermont, secretary of the national committee, said to a correspondent: "Everything is all one way in Vermont, and we shall have a very easy time in that state. Blaine always was the favorite there, and every soldier is for Logan. There always is some disaffection in presidential years, however, and the present campaign is no exception to the rule, but there is less defection in Vermont than in 1880, and since 1876, for that matter."

Receiver Storla Dead.

Fargo Republican: At an early hour yesterday morning, (Tuesday August 12th,) L. O. Storla, county auditor of Clay County, Minn., died of typhoid fever at his residence in Moorhead, after a severe illness of ten days. The deceased was 31 years of age and had been a resident of Clay County since the year 1876. Four years ago he was elected county aduitor, was re-elected two years later, and but a few weeks ago was appointed receiver of the United States land office at Crookston, Minn. His character had always been above reproach, and during his four years of public service his industry and fidelity in the discharge of official duties were such as to win for him universal esteem. His death brings sadness to a large number of friends throughout the Red River Valley, and the bereaved wife and six small children have the sincere sympathy of all who know them.

Ben Butler will run. This fact he announces in a letter in the New York Sun and says he is only waiting Grover Cleveland's letter of acceptance before he pulls off his coat and sails in. When old Ben squints that cock-eye of his at Cleveland, pulls off his coat spits on his hands and sails in, Cleveland will think another young earthquake has happened to occur.

Fargo Republican: Hon. Knute Nelson, representative in congress from the Fifth Minnesota district, spent yesterday in Moorhead. He came from Alexandria on a friendly visit to Auditor Storla, in his illness, expecting to find him convalescing and thinking that he would soon be ready to qualify as receiver of the Crookston land office; but instead, he found Mr. Storla a corpse, he having died at an early hour yesterday morning. Mr. Nelson was greatly surprised and shocked at the announcement of Mr. Storla's death, and, in regard to the receivership of the Crookston land office, said he doubted if any steps would be taken to fill the vacancy for some time.

AN OPEN LETTER.

To P. J. McGuire, Esq., County Auditor of Polk Co., Minn.:

DEAR SIR:—By an interview published in the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL on the 17th ult., we learn to our great regret that you have concluded to decline to accept for another term the office which you now so creditably fill.

We are aware of the fact that the office of the County Auditor, in a county so extensive in area, so rapidly developing in population, in resources, wealth and the institutions of municipal government as this, is an office of unusually great labor and responsibility, and that the compensation attached thereto is entirely inadequate. You have now filled the office since the early part of 1881, and your services to the people of the county during this time have been invaluable and appreciated. We do not intend by the request we shall make in this letter to ask you to entirely sacrifice your own interests in complying therewith, but many of us, who, when you were a stranger to us, had confidence enough in you to urge your appointment to the auditor's office upon the county board in 1881, over a score of older competitors, have since felt a just pride in your successful and brilliant career as an officer of the county, and we are now very unwilling to cousider that career, even for the present, as closed, and we therefore most respectfully and urgently ask you to re-consider the matter and allow your name to be used as a candidate at the next election, and we beg to assure you at the same time that if you accede to our wishes in this matter, we are confident that your services will in some way in the future be properly appreciated by the county and the people.

Very Respectfully Yours,
H. STEENERSON,
O. H. LUCKEN,
M. R. BROWN,
JOHN CROMB,
G. H. PALMER,
JNO. MCLEAN
And others.

To Messrs. H. Steenerson, O. H. Lucken, et al., Polk Co., Minn.

GENTLEMEN:—Your esteemed favor of the 9th inst., wherein you indicate your desire that I shall be a candidate for the office of county auditor of this county at the coming election has been duly received.

I may here state that personal communications conveying similar expressions have been received from citizens of Grand Forks, Vineland, Euclid, Brislet, Red Lake Falls, Fisher, Garfield and other townships, which remain unanswered but which are hereby duly acknowledged.

The wishes indicated therein, emanating from friends and tax payers having been fully considered and highly appreciated and while laboring under the impression that my personal interests would be best subserved in the pursuit of a different avocation, I feel that I should comply with your wishes.

In yielding to your request and again placing myself as a candidate for the office of county auditor, I desire to state that owing to the very large amount of business to be done in my office during the current year, I will be prevented from making a personal canvass through the county, and will leave the successful accomplishment of your good will in the hands of my friends through the county.

If elected I shall give my personal attention to the duties of the office, and thanking you all very cordially for this token of confidence on your part, which is very highly esteemed, and hoping that the good opinion of me which you so kindly express, shall not be unmerited in the future, I have the honor to be, gentlemen,

Your Obedient Servant,
P. J. MCGUIRE.

Dated at Crookston, Minn., August 12th, 1884.

By the above letter to Auditor McGuire, and his reply it will be seen that Mac has decided to withdraw his refusal to again become a candidate and that he will allow the use of his name as candidate for re-election. We are glad [illegible] for he is one of the most tried and true officials Polk County ever had.

Our Present Wheat Crop.

Under the above caption a correspondent of the Prairie Farmer says:

"Prior to, and during harvest the promise for an extraordinary yield of wheat throughout Southeast Missouri and Alexander County, Ill., was never better, and our farmers were all in high spirits, believing they would make up, in quantity and quality for the greatly depressed market. Our steamers have now been going for the past week, threshing our apparently fine fields of wheat; and oh! how disappointed the results."

He then goes on and gives reports from 12 farms, that show a falling off of one-half and in some cases a little more than that from the yields of last year; all these farms were seeded with choice, sound seed and well cultivated, and they give a fair average of the wheat in this section. He then goes on to say:

"This is the real situation of the wheat throughout this section, and strange to say, at least one-third of that already threshed is wet, tough and in bad condition, and rejected by millers. My impression is that the present low prices will not last long. I am storing, not selling. All this talk about an excessive crop is imaginary, and published for the purpose of forcing down the prices, so that the speculator can get for a mere song, the fruits of the farmers' hard labor. It looks as though the farmers are becoming "the hewers of wood and drawers of water" for speculators who reap a rich harvest at their expense!"

That sounds very familiar to us in the Valley who have seen the same game played on us year after year. Before harvest nearly every paper in our State will be filled with glowing reports of "thousands of acres of No. 1 Hard wheat good for from 30 to 40 bushels per acre!" Upon these reports as a basis the price of our wheat is fixed—and of course always low. We do not really see how this is to be entirely remedied but there is one remedy at hand which the farmer can apply—stock. Gen. Baker in his address last week advised our farmers to bring the cow to the front and the advice was timely and wise. Farmers can gradually work into good stock and thus in a great degree become entirely independent of the wheat speculator. We are glad to see that Polk County farmers are catching on and are "bringing the cow to the front."

Wash de Dirt Off Yer Face.

When ole man Gab'el blows de win' fru his ho'n
Oh, sinner, wash de dirt off yer face;
De folk'll come er-runnin' like de hogs arter co'n,
Oh, sinner, wash de dirt of yer face;
He'll hug de holy men an' kiss 'em on de jaw,
Oh, sinner, wash de dirt off yer face;
But alas fur de nigger whut hab trifled wid de law,
Oh, sinner, wash de dirt off yer face;—

Oh, Mars Moses, gim me yer han',
An' he'p me fur tur come fru de gate.
Ye knows, Mars Moses, dat I wanster jine de ban',
'Fore de hour it hab growed too late,
Mars Moses, 'fore de hour it hab growd too late.

De po' worl'ly man eats de hoecake o' sin—
Oh, sinner, wash de dirt off yer face;
An' when he chaws it up, oh, de debil how he grin,
Oh, sinner, wash de dirt off yer face;
An' den fling de crums in Mr. Satan's eye—
Oh, sinner, wash de dirt off yer face;

Oh, Mars Aaron, ring yer bell,
An' let us heah all de good news.
Fur we all wanster drink from de 'ternal well,
Wid gol' all ober our shoes,
Mars Aaron, wid gol, all ober our shoes.

—Arkansaw Traveller.

THE DUTCH FRIESIAN OR HOLSTEIN!

The Best Breed of Cattle in the World,

The Dutch Friesian, or Holstein is without doubt constitutionally the most robust and vigorous race of cattle in America. It has never been pampered by over-feeding, nor weakened by direct in-breeding, and it possesses wonderful capabilities of still greater improvement at the hands of skillful breeders.

FRIESIAN'S FOR MILK,

It is generally conceded that the Dutch Friesians excel all other breeds in quantity of milk. Records of 40 to 60 pounds per day, and 7,000 to 11,000 per year for heifers with their first calves, and 60 to 90 pounds per day, and 12,000 to 18,000 pounds per year for mature cows, being quite common. No such records have been shown by other breeds.

But it is not necessary to show that Friesians, with high feeding and milking three times a day, will give from 76 to 80 pounds of milk per day. If they give from 40 to 50 pounds per day for three months, and then from 20 to 40 pounds per day for the next three months, and from 20 to 25 pounds per day for the next three months, or an average of about four gallons per day for nine months, and then gradually become dry, they are by far the most valuable milch cows in the world; and this they will do without any forcing.

FRIESIANS FOR BUTTER.

It is the opinion of those who have thoroughly tested them in comparison with others, that the Friesians will AVERAGE MORE BUTTER PER COW FOR A YEAR THAN THE AVERAGE OF ANY OTHER BREED. The general average of whole herds is remarkably good, as these cows hold out longer than most others. There are well authenticated records of thirteen mature cows ranging from two to three pounds per day for one to ten days. Whole number of cows tested [illegible] Average time [illegible] days. Average per day per cow over two lbs. [illegible] highest average twenty lbs. for seven days. Ten heifers—four three years old, and six two years—averaged two lbs. three-quarter oz. per day for a week. Thos. B. Wales' cow "Mercedes," (723) produced recently ninety-nine lbs. six oz. in thirty days—the largest yield for the time ever reported.

FRIESIANS FOR BEEF.

The Dutch cattle are large. Calves frequently weigh 100 to 130 lbs. at birth and gain nearly 100 lbs. per month till six or eight months old, and weigh from 700 to 1000, or more, at a year old. They come in early. It is the rule in Holland to have heifers come at from twenty to thirty months old. At this age they usually make a growth of from 1,100 to 1,350 pounds, and at maturity range from 1,400 to 1,800. It is no uncommon thing to see whole herds of cows, in Holland, ranging from 1,500 to 1,800 pounds. The readiness with which they take on flesh when dry is not excelled by any other breed. Bulls and steers equal short-horns in weight at same ages. Dutch Friesian steers have proved very profitable for feeding. J. S. Lang, writing from N. Vassalboro, Maine, says: "My experiments with half-bloods have been very gratifying; they outstripped all others in growth on the same feed, steers averaging in girth, at eighteen months, 6 feet 7 inches. My experiments have been conducted with care, and my conviction is, that to institute an impartial test of Holsteins and Short-horns, it would be found that the Holstein stock would cost the least per pound." As Holsteins have but recently been introduced into the West, but little has been done in testing their value strictly for beef, as the best grade bulls have been kept for breeding; but as far as they have been tried, have given good satisfaction. Half-blood steers in Illinois have attained a weight of over 1,300 pounds at two years old, and 1,900 pounds at four years old. Gray & Van Waters, West Salem, Wis., report in 1881 as follows: "We sold one yoke of half-blood Holsteins, two years and three months old, weighing 2,650. Andy McEldowny sold thirteen head of half-bloods, average age two years and three months, average weight 1,345 lbs. The man who bought them said he had bought and shipped cattle for twenty years, and they were the best lot he had ever shipped. The oldest of the thirteen was two years and four months old and weighed 1,600 pounds. They were sold to Daniel Cargle, of Sparta, and brought in Milwaukee $5.50 per 100 pounds."

TO CROSS WITH NATIVES.

The great value of the Friesian cattle as a cross on native cows is one great point in their favor. The purity of the blood, established by centuries of careful breeding gives the Friesian bull a prepotency—a power to transmit their qualites—far superior to that of any other known race. A Friesian, placed at the head of a herd of common cows, all colors, shapes, sizes and all degrees of coarseness, will reproduce his own form, color, disposition and peculiarities with such certainty that the owner may be perfectly sure beforehand that all his half-blood calves will have the marked characteristics of the Friesian cattle. The farmers of Polk County have now for the first time an opportunity to secure grade Holsteins as the thoroughbred bull, has been purchased of the Northwestern Importers and Breeders Association of Minneapolis, and brought to Crookston, where he may be seen on the old Jacobus farm (south half section 8, Crookston township.) As the season is considerably advanced only a limited number of cows will be allowed this year.

EVERETT

Pedigree of Everett.

Calved Jan. 9th, 1883; sire, Angus, (907, Holstein Herd Book, Imported.) EVERETT, in color is evenly variegated; head fine; neck and horns fine; shoulders low and well formed; body round and long; chine medium; hips broad; rump broad; quarters heavy; limbs fine; handling good; escutcheon best; dam, Beth, No. 1,743, H. H. B. Beth was bred by P. S. de Boer, Ostorierum, Friesland. Calved April 9th, 1880. Imported May 20th, 1881, by Wm Koch, of New York City.

DESCRIPTION: Black predominating, shield and rumps; horns fair; head medium; neck medium; shoulders good; chin straight; hips medium; rump best; handling good; escutcheon best; milk form.

Farmers and all who are interested in getting good stock into the county are invited to call at the farm and see EVERETT.

A. N. HOPKINS,
[15-tf] Manager.

Stewart & Lawrence are selling lumber at the following prices for cash:

1st Com. Dimensions	$18 per M.
2d " "	16 "
3d " "	15 "
Sized $1 per M extra.
1st Com. Boards	$18 per M.
2d "	16 "
3d "	15 "
Surfaced side $1 per M extra.
D. stock ship-lap	$25 per M.
E "	22 "
Common	17 "
Flooring	$21@$26 per M.
Siding	$18, $22 and $25
Lath	3
Shingles	$2, $2.50, $3.50, $4

We have on hand a full stock of sash, doors, mouldings and building paper.

[15-16] STEWART & LAWRENCE.

Notice to Farmers.

C. Kretzschmar's Grist Mill at Red Lake Falls is again open for business. Flour will be exchanged for wheat, or your wheat will be ground on shares. A feed mill is run in connection with the mill and satisfaction in all cases is guaranteed. Flour and feed on hand at all times and sold at lowest market rates.

[16-tf] C. KRETZSCHMAR.

The Old Brick Block
IS THE PLACE
To Buy Dry Goods, Groceries, Clothing, Boots and Shoe Hats and Caps, or anything you want.
Fontaine & Anglim
IS THE FIRM
Who are ready, with a corps of affable clerks to show you their NEW FALL and WINTER STOCK and quote prices to astonish the natives.
Great Bargains
Don't forget to visit Fontaine & Anglim's Emporium, in the Old Brick Block,
MAIN STREET. CROOKSTON, MINN.

THE
J. I. CASE
THRESHING MACHINE COMPANY
The Dennet of Beloit
HARVESTING MACHINE COMPANY
And the Van Brunt & Davis
SEEDER COMPANY,
Are Represented
BY
STEENERSON BROS.,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

MONEY TO GIVE AWAY
IN BARGAINS AT
MARKHAM'S
THE LEADING GROCERY HOUSE
AND THE LARGEST BOOT AND SHOE STORE
IN CROOKSTON.
Goods Delivered to any Part of the City
FREE OF CHARGE

FARMERS, FARMERS,
WE ARE
Selling Lower Than Ever!
You will always find it to your advantage to
Trade with Us!
We Sell the Best for the LOWEST LIVING PRICES. Remember the place,
Broadway, bet. 2d and Robert Sts.
D. BUCHANAN.

THE NEW ERA MANUFACTURING CO.,
Exclusive manufacturers of the
NEW ERA
Wagon Road Grader!
AND DITCHING MACHINE
Manufactory 625 to 631 south Halsted street, Chicago, Illinois.

Having established our headquarters for the Red River Valley at CROOKSTON, MINN., all inquiries addressed to us will receive our personal attention. All machines fully warranted and free trial given upon application. Address all Red River Valley correspondence to the NEW ERA MANUFACTURING CO., Box 851, Crookston, Minn.

McKINNON BROS.,
Carriage Works
Robert Street,
Crookston, - Minn.
AGENTS FOR THE
J. I. CASE THRESHING MACHINES!
And Manufacturers of Carriages, Wagons,
BUGGIES,
Cutters, Sleds, &c.
Axles, Springs, and all Repairs kept in stock,
DEALERS IN
FARM MACHINERY.
In Farm Machinery we have the Champion Seeder, Fargo Diamond Tooth Harrow, Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow, Davenport and Grand Detour Sulky and Walking Plows, Buford Gang Plows, Field Rollers of all sizes, Warrior Mowers, the leading Hay Rake and first-class Harvesters and Binders, the Webber Wagon and McKinnon Bros. Wagon, In fact we have everything in machinery, from
A Wheelbarrow to a Threshing Machine!
EXTRAS
For all Machines constautly on hand

E. M. Walsh,
DEALER IN
Hardware, Tinware
BAR IRON, STEEL,
BLACKSMITHS SUPPLIES,
BUILDING PAPER,
&c., &c. Also Agent
For the Celebrated Monitor Plows.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

A Big Bonanza!
JOSEPH BARRETT
Has decided to Put on the Market his
ADDITION
TO THE
City of Crookston,
Next adjoining the Crookston Driving Park. Parties desiring to purchase
CHOICE LOST
NOW IS YOUR TIME!
LOTS
For Sale Separately, or in
BLOCKS.
TERMS EASY!
Apply to the undersigned or at the office of C. B. Palmer, U. S. Land Office Building. Both English and French spoken.
JOSEPH BARRETT.

Polk County Journal.

Crookston, Minn., Thursday, August 14

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

GOING NORTH.	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 1 Passenger	10:45 p. m.	10:55 p. m.
" 9 Passenger	10:10 a. m.
" 19 Freight	12:20 a. m.
" 15 Freight	4:00 p. m.
" 22 Freight		10:20 a. m.
GOING SOUTH.	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 2 Passenger	6:00 a. m.	6:15 a. m.
" 10 Passenger		5:25 p. m.
" 20 Freight		7:00 a. m.
" 22 Freight		6:15 p. m.
" 21 Freight	6:00 p. m.
DEVIL'S LAKE LINE.	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 9 Passenger		10:20 a. m.
" 10 Passenger	5:30 p. m.
" 45 Freight		6:00 a. m.
" 46 Freight	7:00 p. m.

ST. HILAIRE BRANCH.

Trains leave Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 10:15 a. m., and arrive same days at 4:00 p. m.

☞ Passenger Trains No's 1 and 2, Main Line, run daily except Sunday. No's 3 and 4 run daily. Devil's Lake Passenger runs daily. Freights No's 22, 20 and 24 run daily. Freights No's 15 and 22, and Freights on Devil's Lake Line run daily except Sunday.

'ROUND HOME.

Mr. Cooke, of Fisher, was in the city Monday.

Quite a large number of traveling men were in the city over Sunday.

Send for catalogue of low prices in pianos and organs. C. J. Kops, Broadway.

Tom Morris still holds the medal for throwing the fifteen pound dumb bell. Last Saturday evening his throw was 60 feet.

New organs sold on payments of five dollars per month. C. J. Kops, Dobson's block, on Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

Prof. Moore, of Indiana, has accepted the position of Principal of our schools here. School will commence in September.

Wm. Davidson, of Keystone, was in the city last Mondry. He says that everybody in that vicinity will be in the wheat this week.

Mr. Holmes, editor of the Red Lake Falls Gazette, and his brother, were in the city last Monday. They gave a favorable report of Red Lake Falls and everything in that vicinity.

Ole Bang, one of Crookston's Aldermen, and several other parties, are up exploring the Thief River country. They will return in about a week.

Sam Rosenthal, of the C. O. D. clothing house, left for Chicago last Monday evening to purchase goods for the fall trade. He will be gone about a week.

Call and examine the largest stock of pianos and organs northwest of St. Paul and Chicago. C. J. Kops, Crookston, Minn., gen'l agent W. W. Kimball Co.

Peter Lorge has bought out the bakery business of Earnest Miller and will run the business hereafter. He invites a share of the patronage of the public.

The work done on the lower end of Ash street by Tom Batchford is said to be the best piece of road work ever done in Crookston. Tom understands his business and always gets to the front.

The half mile foot race between Judd Carroll and Herbert Holdridge was won by Judd, who came over the line considerably in the lead. The time was quite good and they are both good runners.

There were two 100 yard foot races last week and both were won by Joe [illegible], captain of the amateur base ball club of this city. Anybody running with Joe has got to get there kind of previous like.

The remainder of the stock of goods formerly owned by Chas. Davis was sold last Saturday, B. Clements being the purchaser, he paying 49 cents on the dollar. There was between $1,500 and $1,600 worth, counting the fixtures.

[illegible] E. Ackerman and E. J. Bunce, two traveling men who have made [illegible] in the Northwest by [illegible], are in the city this week interviewing our merchants as to their stock of cigars and tobacco. They [illegible] like other men of good judgment, that Crookston is the best town in the [illegible]

The Commercial House has changed hands. [illegible] Hoppin sells to Messrs. Norton & [illegible]. Mr. Norton was formerly [illegible] of the Central Hotel [illegible] and is recognized by [illegible] hotel man [illegible] the House for the [illegible]

[illegible]

I. U. Jennings is painting his residence on Main Street.

John Kankle of Grand Forks was in the city last week.

M. P. Losey and wife, of Euclid, were in the city last Friday.

C. Kretzschmar, of Red Lake Falls, was in the city last Thursday.

Capt. Donaldson, of Kennedy, was at the Linton last Thursday.

Dick Hussey and his forces are out measuring breaking every day.

Quite a number of people from Emerson, Manitoba, are visiting in our city this week.

F. E. Burnham and C. E. Mendenhall, of Fisher, registered at the Commercial last Monday.

Lou Freeman, of Fisher, was in the city last Saturday, and reports everything prospering in that district.

E. K. Overland, of Garfield, was in the city last Thursday and reports everything lovely in that locality.

A. H. Williams was in the city last Saturday from Euclid. He reports everything in good shape in his locality.

E. L. Jackson, of Monticello, stopped at the Linton last Thursday. He is on his way to Red Lake Falls to visit his brother.

Mr. Eugene Ferry and Bert Wells the clerks who have been at the Commercial so long will retain their old positions.

The farmers' elevator at Carman is enclosed and will soon be completed. The capacity of this elevator is 30,000 bushels.

D. L. Kelley, of the 13 towns, was in the city last Friday. He says that the farmers will all be cutting wheat this week.

S. S. Simpson, of Belleview, Iowa, arrived in the city last Friday. Mr. Simpson has considerable property in this county.

We understand that there will be another store started here soon in Dobson's block, on Second street, by parties from abroad.

Billy Jennie leaves for below this week with G. M. Barber's horse, Star Bashaw, to prepare for the races in Minneapolis in September.

The Red Lake Falls base ball club are expected to come to our city soon, but whether they will gain another victory or not is yet to be decided.

M. M. Wheeler, traveling passenger agent for the Chicago St. Paul & Omaha and the Chicago & Northwestern Railroads, made us a very pleasant call last week.

Morris Bro's have just received a large supply of Blaine & Logan, and Cleveland & Hendricks badges which are very nice. Call early and select one as they are going fast.

Parties thinking of purchasing pianos or organs will save from 15 to 25 per cent. by calling on or addressing C. J. Kops, Crookston, Minn., gen'l agent W. W. Kimball Organ Co.

The concert last Thursday evening, at the Congregational church, was a grand success. The parties taking part acquitted themselves very creditably. They cleared about $30.

Estey organs, Kimball organs, Emerson pianos, Decker Bro's pianos and Hallets & Davis pianos sold at Chicago prices and terms, by C. J. Kops, Crookston, Minn. Send for catalogue.

A goodly number of our popular traveling men are in the city this week interviewing our merchants. The boys say that trade is beginning to pick up some and they are all looking forward for a big trade this fall.

It seems that we are to be without electric lights for some little time on account of a washout under the pump house. It washed out so much that the pump house settled six or eight inches. As many men as can work to advantage will be set to work immediately to fix it up.

Mr. H. E. Brown, of Red Wing, of whom we spoke last week, has rented rooms in the city for the purpose of manufacturing cigars in about two weeks. Mr. Brown comes well recommended, and will no doubt do a fine business in his line. His rooms are over E. W. Wile's Excelsior Clothing House.

Mr. Eugene Clark, of Lambert, this county, on Friday last received a telegram from Grafton, D. T., stating that his father, Mr. J. D. M. Clark had died suddenly of cholera morbus after an illness of only six hours. He was 53 years old and leaves a wife and two sons. His body was taken to Centralia, Iowa, for interment. Mr. Clark was a former resident of Polk County.

A horse owned by Chas. Wedenhoffer of [illegible] was brought to the city last Monday to be put under the care of a veterinary surgeon. [illegible]

[illegible]

$100,000

To Loan on improved claims in sums of $250 to $2,000. Cash paid for school bonds. Call on or address,

JOHN MCLEAN, Att'y at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

Mrs. I. U. Jennings has just received a large stock of Spring and Summer Millinery Goods and guarantees to sell at prices 25 per cent lower than the same goods can be purchased at any other place in the Northwest. [51-tf]

Just received a large lot of rubber, hemp and soap stone packing, for threshing machines and engines, also lace leather belting and cotton waste.

[13-15] E. M. WALSH.

Send Money by American Express or Money Orders. Receipts given. Money refunded if Orders are lost. Sold at all offices of the Company. Payable at 6,500 places. RATES: To $5-5c.; $10-8c.; $20-10c.; $30-12.; $40-15.; $50-20c. [4-27]

A good farm for sale two miles from Euclid. Seventy acres in crop. Will sell at a low figure. H. W. LEWIS.

NOTICE.

Any man investing in property at Red Lake Falls or vicinity who loses by the investment, I will pay five dollars where he looses five cents.

[8-28] ALFRED GERVAIS.

A fine residence on Broadway for sale, enquire of H. W. Lewis. Office in JOURNAL building.

Christening and Wedding Cakes Made upon Shortest Notice in the Best Style.

A Choice and Well Selected Stock of Confectionery Always on hand.

John Crawford & Son,

Proprietors of

Crawford's

Bakery,

SECOND STREET,

Crookston, Minn.

CONFECTIONERY

Fresh Bread, Buns, Cakes and Biscuits. All Articles in the Fancy Baking Line.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication July 31st, 1884.]

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Joseph Piquette, a married man, and Mary Piquette, his wife mortgagors, to John Cromb, mortgagee, dated the 27th day of October A. D. 1882, and recorded as a morgage, together with the power of sale therein contained in the office of the Register of Deeds, of the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on the 31st day of October A. D. 1882, at ten o'clock and twenty-five minutes a. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 350, which said mortgage authorized the holder thereof in case of such default to declare due and foreclose the same for the whole amount secured to be paid thereby, and whereas there is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the amount of five hundred ninety-one and 25-100 dollars ($591.25-10.) being the whole amount secured to be paid thereby and still unpaid, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, and whereas by such default the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become and is operative.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of such power of sale contained in and recorded with said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises herein described, which sale will be made at the west front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county or by his Deputy, on Saturday the 13th day of September A. D. 1884, at ten o'clock in the forenoon to satisfy the amount that shall then be due on said mortgage with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold are all that tract or parcel of land lying and being in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and described as follows, to-wit: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section twenty-one (21,) in Township number one hundred and fifty (150) north of Range number forty-four (44) west, of the fifth principal meridian, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres, according to the United States government survey thereof.

Dated Crookston July 31st 1884.

JOHN CROMB,
Mortgagee.

JOHN LEO,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [14-20]

MORTGAGE SALE

[First publication August 7th, 1884.]

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Alex Allerdyce, mortgagor, to Paul C. Sletten and John Cromb, mortgagees, dated the first day of August A. D. 1882, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 25th day of August A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "H" of mortgages on page 218, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the sum of four hundred and eighty-four 90-100 dollars, according to the terms and conditions of one promissory note of even date therewith, and whereas Paul C. Sletten one of the mortgagees above named, on the 8th day of July A. D. 1884, at the City of Crookston, in said County, died testate, and the last will and testament of said deceased, which was by the Probate Court of said County duly admitted to probate and allowed as such on July 30th A. D. 1884, appointed and constituted Olaus H. Lucken, the sole executor thereof, who accepted the trust and duly qualified as such and letters testamentary under said will was then by said Court to him duly issued, and whereas an attested copy of said will was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for said Polk County on July 31st, 1884, in book "P" of deeds on pages 27 and 28, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof. [illegible]

Now notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided said mortgage will be foreclosed by the sale of the mortgaged premises therein described at public auction, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County of Polk, on Saturday, the twentieth day of September A. D. 1884, at [illegible] o'clock [illegible] to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage [illegible]

[illegible]

MORTGAGE SALE.

WHEREAS, DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Arthur Perras, mortgagor, to John Cromb, mortgagee, dated the 31st day of October A. D. 1882, and recorded as a mortgage together with the power of sale therein contained in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 31st day of October A. D. 1882 at 3 o'clock and 40 minutes p. m., in book "H" of mortgages on page 352 which said mortgage authorized the holder thereof in case of such default to declare due, and foreclose the same for the whole amount secured to be paid thereby, and whereas, there is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice, the amount of four hundred and sixty-six and 66-100 dollars, being the whole amount secured to be paid thereby, and still unpaid and seven and 25-100 dollars taxes paid by mortgagee, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof, and whereas by such default the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become and is operative.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of such power of sale contained in, and recorded with said mortgage and of the statute in such case made and provided the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the west front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said County or by his Deputy of said County, on Saturday the 16th day of August A. D. 1884, at ten o'clock in the forenoon to satisfy the amount tha shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon and costs and expenses of sale and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure. The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold, are the lot piece or parcel of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: The east half (e½) of the northwest quarter (nw¼,) and the west half (w½,) of the northeast quarter (ne¼,) of Section number fourteen (14,) in Township number one hundred and fifty (150) north, of Range number forty-two (42) west, of the fifth principal meridian, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres more or less according to the United States government survey thereof.

Dated Crookston, July 3d, 1884.

JOHN CROMB,
Mortgagee.

JOHN LEO,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [10-16]

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication July 3d, 1884.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of ninety-two and 75-100 dollars ($92.75-100,) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by James Ryan, a single man, to James Barton, bearing date the 11th day of December A. D. 1883, and, with a power of sale therein contained duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on the 11th day of December A. D. 1883, at 5:25 o'clock p. m., in book "N" of mortgages, on page 319, that an action at law in which said James Barton was plaintiff, and said James Ryan was defendant, was instituted in the District Court, in and for Polk County, Minnesota, on March 14th, 1884, to recover said debt and that on June 25th, 1884, a judgment was duly rendered in said action for the sum of $102.81 in favor of the plaintiff therein, and against the defendant therein, which said judgment was on the 25th day of June 1884, duly entered in the office of the Clerk of said Court, and that on the 26th day of June 1884 an execution was duly issued from said court in said action and that on June 26th 1884, said execution was returned wholly unsatisfied, and that said sum of $102.81 is now justly due and owing from the defendant in said action to the plaintiff therein.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: Lot number nine (9,) in block number two (2,) in Hurlbut's addition to the townsite of Crookston, according to the recorded plat thereof now on file in the office of the Register of Deeds of Polk County, Minnesota, also an undivided one-half (½) of lot ten (10) in block twelve (12) in Davis Addition to the townsite of Crookston, according to the recorded plat thereof now on file in the office of the Register of Deeds, of Polk County, Minnesota; with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 16th day of August A. D. 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated Crookston, June 28th, 1884.

JAMES BARTON,
Mortgagee.

JOHN MCLEAN,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [10-16]

Notice of Mortgage Sale by Advertisement.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Theophile Patnode and Cordelia Patnode, his wife, mortgagors, to John Cromb, mortgagee, dated the fourth day of September A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of September A. D. 1882, at 1:45 o'clock p. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 248 on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of fifty-six and 17-100 dollars, and there is yet to become due thereon four hundred and twenty-five dollars and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction by the Sheriff of said County, on Saturday the 30th day of August A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold, are the lots, pieces or parcels of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: Lots number four (4) eleven (11) and twelve (12,) and the southeast quarter (se¼) of the southeast quarter (se¼,) all in Section number eighteen (18,) in Township number one hundred and fifty-one (151) north, of Range number forty-three west, of fifth principal meridian, containing one hundred and seventeen (117) acres more or less, according to the United States survey thereof.

Dated July 2d, 1884.

JOHN CROMB.
Mortgagee.

MONTAGUE & WIGHT,
Attorney's of Mortgagee. [10-18]

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss.
County of Polk. } In Probate Court.

In the matter of the estate of Paul C. Sletten deceased.

Notice is hereby given to all persons having claims and demands against the estate of Paul C. Sletten late of the County of Polk deceased, that the Judge of the Probate Court of said County will hear, examine, and adjust claims and demands against said estate, at his office in the City of Crookston, in said County, on the first Monday of each month, and that six months from the 11th day of August 1884, have been limited and allowed by said Probate Court for creditors to present their claims.

Dated this 30th day of July A. D. 1884.

OLAUS H. LUCKEN,
Executor of the estate of Paul C. Sletten deceased.

ROBERT J. MONTAGUE,
Judge of Probate. [15-18]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., July 5th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given, that the following named settler has filed notice of her intention to make final proof in support of her claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Aug. 15th, 1884, viz: JOHAN GUDMUNDSEN, Pre. D. S., No. 8581, for the ne¼ S. 20, T. 148, R. 41. She names the following witnesses to prove her continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Andrew Anderson, Hulbert Anderson, Richard Olson, Even Brindleson, all of Fertile, Polk Co., Minn.

[11-16] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., July [illegible], 1884.

Notice is hereby given, that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on Aug. 25th, 1884, viz: DAMASE LEDUC, H'd No. 8,819, for the [illegible] of S. 32, T. 148, R. 45. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Louis [illegible], Peter Genereux, Theodore [illegible] and Edward [illegible], all of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn.

[11-16] JOHN CROMB, Register.

N. F. CHINIQUY'S

Chicago Dry Goods House.

JUST RECEIVED,

Full Lines Of

Dress Sstins, Lawns, Organdies.
Percales, Cambrics, Buntings, Piques
Marsailles, Prints, Embroideries.
Gloves, Hosiery, Handkerchiefs.
Hoop Skirts, Bustles, Corsets.
Parasols, Collars, Cuffs, Ruchings.
Lacesand Lace Goods, Gauze.
Underwear, Etc., Etc., Etc.
Cretonnes and Fringes.
Gent's Furnishing Goods.

The above goods were bought late in the season at very Low Prices and I will make it an aim to sell those goods very cheap.

No Trouble TO Show Goods

At N. F. CHINIQUY'S

Chicago Dry Goods Store.

JEROME'S ADDITION

TO THE

CITY OF CROOKSTON

IS NOW

Offered for Sale

This is the finest Residence Property in the City. High and dry, good cellars, water, and well sheltered. Enclosed on three sides by the river, and only three blocks from the heart of the city and Post Office.

Pure Drugs, Reliable Medicines,

LOWEST LIVING PRICES,

AT

Medical Hall,

CROOKSTON.

Beecher & George, Prop's.

E. D. Schreader

LIVERY,

Feed and Sale Stable.

BEST TURNOUTS
IN THE CITY.

Single or Double Rigs, with or without driver or

SADDLE HORSES

Always ready at a moments notice by day or night. If you want a Nobby Turnout call at the Red Barn, Corner Main and Third Streets,

CROOKSTON, - - - MINNESOTA.

NEW

DRUG STORE

IN GARFIELD

DR. A. NELSON, Prop.

The citizens of this town and vicinity are respectfully invited to call at my new Drug Store in the town of Garfield and examine my stock of

DRUGS, MEDICINES, PAINTS, OILS AND YANKEE NOTIONS.

It is no longer necessary to go 40 or 55 miles for anything in this line, as I have a full supply at prices as reasonable as any town in the Northwest. Call and see

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON

I am also ready to answer all calls by day or night, for the practice of my profession. Call, or leave orders at my Drug Store in Garfield, Polk Co., Minn.

DR. A. NELSON.

NEW LIVERY,
Feed and Sale

STABLES.,

CORNER MAIN AND FOURTH STS.,
CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA.

TERRY & COLLINS, Prop's.

☞ Good Turnouts at all times a reasonable prices. Good Hearse and careful driver when needed.

WM. WATTS,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
AND DEALER IN
REAL ESTATE;
OFFICE OVER MERCHANTS' BANK.

W. L. Sargeant
Veterinary Surgeon.
CROOKSTON, - - - - MINN.

Diseases of horses and cattle a specialty. [9-tf]

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON.

PAID IN CAPITAL,	$100,000
SURPLUS,	1,400

Money to loan on long or short time on approved security

Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.

GEO. O. ERSKINE, President.
K. D. CHASE, Vice President.
ANSEL BATES, Cashier.

A. YVERNAULT.

Dealer in

General

Merchandise,

—MAIN STREET,—

Crookston, - - Minn.

All of my friends, both old and new, are cordially invited to call and examine my stock and get prices.

The Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Proprietor. DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. TERMS---$1.50 Per Annum.

VOL. VIII. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, AUGUST 21, 1884. NO. 17

Polk County Journal.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Dollar and Fifty Cents if paid in advance, to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

ADVERTISING RATES.

SPACE.	1w.	2w.	3w.	1m.	2m	6m.	1year
½ inch	.50	$1 00	$1 15	$1 50	$3 00	4 50	$ 6 00
1 inch	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	5 50	6 00	10 00
2 inches	1 00	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 50	9 50	15 00
3 inches	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	9 50	18 50	20 00
4 inches	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 50	10 00	10 00	25 00
5 inches	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 00	20 00	30 00
¼ column	3 50	5 00	5 00	6 50	15 00	25 00	35 00
½ column	6 00	7 00	10 00	12 00	20 00	35 00	50 00
1 column	9 50	12 50	15 00	18 00	35 00	60 00	100 00

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

Republican Ticket.

For President.
JAMES G. BLAINE,
of Maine.

For Vice President.
JOHN A. LOGAN,
of Illinois.

For Representative in Congress.
HON. KNUTE NELSON,
of Alexandria.

CHANNEL DRIFT.

What the Papers are Saying on Political Matters.

THE PROHIBITION VOTE.

Hardly any members of that party regard the election of Mr. St. John as possible in any imaginable contingency. They know that every vote for a candidate on that ticket amounts to a vote for Cleveland; and it is only fair to ask those of them whose sympathy is with the Republican party to consider how far they are prepared to contribute to a Democratic victory. Ex-Gov. Gibbs, of Oregon, in a recent speech at a prohibition meeting in New York, stated the case with much force. He said: "The moral effect of electing a President on a Prohibition ticket would be great; but practically he could not do as much for temperance as a policeman in the smallest ward in New York. The President cannot pass a law, nor vote for one. Nor has Congress as much power over intemperance as the smallest State in the Union. It can only pass a law prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating beverages in the Territories and in the District of Columbia, as well as their importation from abroad. All the President could do would be to sign such a measure or veto it, and a President elected on a Democratic platform would be bound to do the latter. Every vote for Mr. St. John is half a vote for Mr. Cleveland. The Prohibition sentiments of Mr. Blaine are paraded before the liquor dealers to induce them to support Mr. Cleveland; but I have been working side by side in the temperance ranks for several years with Democrats, and as many of them will vote for Mr. Blaine as will offset any losses to the Republicans from the Prohibitionists."—[Philadelphia American.

WILL ADMIT THEY SLIPPED UP.

The Democracy may not be willing to acknowledge to the world that they made a mistake in nominating Mr. Cleveland, but in the inmost recesses of their hearts they will not deny that they slipped on a banana peel at Chicago.—[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

MORE THAN THEY BARGAINED FOR.

Early in the campaign the nice and elegant "Independents" declared that the issues were to be "moral, not political." They are getting more of the moral issue than they included in their original calculations.—[Chicago Journal.

PRACTICAL "REFORM."

Mr. George William Curtis yesterday addressed the meeting of the National Civil Service Reform League a Newport, R. I. As regards civil service reform Mr. Curtis at present occupies the position of the man who rows his boat in one direction while intently looking in the opposite direction. He advocates civil service reform before the National Reform League, and writes editorials for Harper's Weekly in favor of the only political party in this country which is notoriously opposed to civil service reform, both in theory and practice.—[Chicago Journal.

BITTER PILLS.

The "Independents," as the Republican bolters are fond of calling themselves, are compelled to swallow a good many bitter pills. They all profess the greatest devotion to civil service reform, but joined a party which exists solely for the sake of the spoils. They insist upon running the present campaign upon an issue of personal morality instead of party differences, and in doing this they support a candidate whose character is tainted with the most disgusting scandal which has ever attached to any public man in this country.—[Chicago Tribune.

THE MULLIGAN STORY.

Jeremiah S. Black, one of the greatest jurists and greatest Democrats ever in this country, on one occasion referred to the Mulligan attack on Mr. Blaine, and gave it as his opinion that "Mr. Blaine's letter proved that the charges were not only untrue, but impossible, and would so continue to prove, until the Georgian calendar could be turned around and October be made to precede April in the stately procession of the year." We commend this Democratic opinion to the attention of the Democrats, and of the Independents as well.—[Indianapolis Journal.

A SOUTHERN PROTECTION UTTERANCE.

The New Orleans German Gazette, one of the leading German papers of the State, denounces the Democratic [illegible] tariff plank as "unworthy quibble, incapable of deceiving anybody as to its true meaning." The Gazette asks if the sugar and rice planters are going to carry out their promise to guide their political action by their material interests or to take the back track and train with a party whose platform is ardently approved by rampant Free Traders, like Morrison, Carlisle and Hurd.—[New York Tribune.

PUCK'S FLOP.

In its issue of March 14, 1883, Puck had a full-page cartoon entitled "The new member of Monopoly Lodge has taken his 'First Degree.'" In this cartoon, Mr. Cleveland was represented with a cable tow around his neck and a fool's cap with the inscription, "5c. Veto," on his head. Now it is beslobbering this same Mr. Cleveland with all the polychromatic praise at its command. "What fools these mortals be."—[New York Tribune.

THAT HISTORIC BAR'L.

The Democratic National Committee expects to draw $50,000 out of Tilden's bar'l before the end of the campaign. The Great Defrauded is said to have squarely promised a contribution of that amount. W. H. Barnum is ready to buy "mules" again, in Indiana or elsewhere, and all in all "reform" bids fair to be pushed with supreme disregard of decency.—[St. Louis Globe Democrat.

HENDRICK'S PEDIGREE.

Mr. Hendricks was an aggressive Copperhead throughout the war. He sympathized with that treasonable organization known as the Knights of the Golden Circle, and did all that lay in his power to retard the war for the Union. Such is a part of his treasonable record, and in its face the Civil Service Record has the cheek to pronounce it "honorable."—[Cleveland Leader.

A PREDICTION.

The Herald wants to go on record as making the prediction that the time is not far distant when, in spite of Watterson's preaching, the entire South, east of the Mississippi River, will, with one voice, imperatively demand the enforcement of a strong Protective Tariff policy.—[Cleveland Herald.

POSING AS ANANIAS.

Mr. Vilas is trying very hard, and with amazing success, to make Eastern Democrats believe that Wisconsin is a doubtful State this year. Why Mr. Vilas should have an ambition to be called the Ananias of politics it is indeed hard to understand.—[Minneapolis Tribune.

Of Interest to Workingmen.

The following extracts from the platforms of the two great parties show very conclusively the tendencies of each in the matter of protection to American industries:

REPUBLICAN TARIFF PLANK.	DEMOCRATIC TARIFF PLANK.
1876—Duties upon importations * * should be adjusted to promote the interest of American labor and advance the prosperity of the whole country.	1876—We denounce the present tariff, levied upon nearly 4,000 articles, as a masterpiece of injustice, inequality and false pretence. We demand that all custom house taxation shall be only for revenue.
1880—Duties, levied for the purpose of revenue should so discriminate as to favor American labor.	1880—A tariff for revenue only.
1884—The imposition of duties on foreign imports shall be made, not for revenue only, but that in raising the requisite revenues for the government such duties shall be so levied as to afford security for our diversified industries and protection to the rights and wages of the laborer, as well as capital, may have its just reward, and the laboring man his full share in the national prosperity.	1884—We denounce the abuse of existing tariff and * * * demand that federal taxation shall be exclusively for public purposes.

Farmers' Prosperity Under a Protective Tariff.

To the Editor of the Toledo Blade.

Farm help has never been so well paid as in the last 10 or 15 years; 20 to 25 years ago many foreigners, mostly Germans, come to the West, and their expenses were paid by friends accompanying them. They went to work as farm hands at low wages until they could learn to talk English. They paid their passage money and earned more to send for their friends; their friends came, earned other money, and sent for other friends. Many of them purchased farms at from $45 to $75 per acre, have paid for them and made many improvements. They drive good horses and ride in good style; they have educated their children, and now have a competency. They are influential people in the community. Twenty-four years ago farmers paid farm hands 50c. to 75c. a day for common labor on the farm and $1 to $1.25 per day in harvest. For the last 10 to 15 years they have paid $1 to $1.25 for common labor and have paid farm hands $2 to $3 per day in harvest, and all this under a high protective tariff. Laboring men in the farmers' tenant houses are clothed better, afford themselves more luxuries, spend more time in pleasure, dress and educate their children better than farm tenants in any other nation on the globe. They have furnished their houses really better than ever before, and those that abstain from intoxicants are now laying aside money with which to purchase homes.

One German, a neighbor of mine, worked two years to pay his passage money, sent money to Germany to bring over his father and mother, purchased an 80 acre farm at $75 per acre, has his farm well stocked and owns all the utensils necessary for farming. He has raised and educated a family of six children, owes nothing and has $9,000 at interest. Yet the free traders claim that such men as he have been wonderfully damaged by a protective tariff. Many others have done as well, in proportion to the time they have been here. Now talk of protection injuring the farmers! They have supported the merchants and mechanics better than ever before. How eagerly all others watch the prosperity of the farmers! Seeing the prosperity of the farmers for the last 15 years, it is plain that protection is a benefit, the opinion of other nations to the contrary notwithstanding.

Metomen, Wis. E. REYNOLDS.

The Farmers' Hallucination.

Minneapolis Evening Journal.

The farmers of the Northwest, and probably the farmers of the whole world, are victims of a pitiful hallucination which takes possession of their judgment each year with the return of the ides of June, and does not loose its grip until about the same period in October. On or about the date first mentioned the enterprising daily newspaper, through its corps of correspondents interviews the farmers on the crop prospects, and in the published reports we find sanguine predictions of at least 20 bushels to the acre. In July twenty-five bushels is gravely said to be a conservative figure, qualified, however, with the usual "ifs," including rust, storms, chinch bugs, etc. In August, right up to the time of beginning harvest, this latter figure is still maintained, and more stoutly, too, since the danger period from the evils above mentioned is practically over. After the first few days of cutting have passed supplemental reports usually begin to flow in, of the general tenor that "Wheat is not turning out as well as was expected. The straw is rank and heavy, but the heads are small and meagrely filled out." And thus comes the first harvest disappointment, and the farmer who has been reckless in purchases of expensive machinery, and the dealer who has been lavish in extending credit, institute measures of retrenchment, and the bright prospects of their own creation fade away. Our State statistician finds the average wheat yield of Minnesota to be something less than fourteen bushels per acre, and the total yield from nearly 2,500,000 acres to be 35,000,000 bushels. Every farmer's good sense teaches him that Minnesota with her present acreage cannot produce 65,000,000 bushels of wheat, yet every farmer, after going out and viewing his own field of wheat in all its luxuriant promise of June and July, will honestly predict twenty or twenty-five bushels to to the acre, although the same field, which looked equally as well the previous year, yielded but twelve or thirteen bushels. This hallucination appears to emanate from the dark green blades waving softly in the passing breeze, the sight of which fills the husbandman's heart with hope, and makes of him a false prophet year after year. Experience is useless; disappointment teaches him nothing, and the farmers who are now mentally figuring on "fourteen bushels at the outside, although I thought it would go twenty at least," will blindly embrace their ignis fatuous again a year hence.

Brains or Beef.

From the Toledo Blade.

So far as the two most prominent candidates for the Presidency are concerned, the question is apparently one of brains or beef. Senator Voorhees, of Indiana, recently said regarding Cleveland, that "it is rather providential that we have nominated a young, vigorous man, weighing 250 pounds, with a neck as big as my thigh, and a head like a bull." Mr. Voorhees went on to explain this startling statement by saying, "in case he is elected, he will be able to stand up against the horde of office-seekers and live. The pressure would have killed Hendricks or Thurman in ninety days, and as for Tilden, he would have been snuffed out instantly."

There could be no better exposition of the Democratic idea than that unconsciously made by Mr. Voorhees. The one aspiration of the party is to get office. They want control of the National Government to put themselves in position to feed at the public crib. For office they howl like ravening wolves, and a party leader gleefully likens the candidate to a bull, because he has strength to resist the onslaught of office seekers! Mr. Voorhees says nothing about the mental qualifications of his candidate. Probably no special ones are needed. The ability to stand the strain of distributing offices is all that is required. Statesmanship is superfluous; National policy is nothing; all question of principle are relegated to the background to consider plans for a rapid distribution of the spoils.

Nothing could better show the difference between the two parties. The Republicans have put in nomination one of the greatest statesmen that America has ever produced, a man of affairs, familiar with weighty matters of state, with questions of National policy and international law, a man known and respected not only in our own wide land, but in every foreign country with which we have dealings; in short, the foremost statesman of his time. He is emphatically a brainy man. He is a gentleman of commanding presence and fine physique, but there is nothing about him that suggests a horned quadruped. His neck and head do not recall those of a bull. Strength of intellect is stamped on every feature, but there is nothing to suggest Taurus. Mr. Blaine is mental, not animal, in temperament and appearance. He will make his mark for brains, not for beef, as President.

The Great Exposition.

The Exposition at New Orleans is attracting the attention of the press in all parts of the country and abroad. Almost every newspaper has something to say about the preparations that are being made to further the work of State or local associations. The special representatives of the Exposition commissioned by President Arthur, for the purpose of procuring exhibits have found the newspapers ready to report speeches and print the latest news relating th the World's Fair. This circumstance no doubt springs from the fact that the people throughout the land read with much interest all that is printed concerning this great enterprise. By the wide-spread influence of the press the Exposition is known and talked about in India, Australia, on the banks of the Congo, in the South American republics, and in the frozen regions of the North. Seeming impossibilities have been overcome, and the scheme limited to a cotton exhibition at first, has been enlarged by degrees till it now embraces a grand exposition of arts, manufactures, mines, agriculture, and in fact about everything in which the people of to-day are interested. This Exposition to be opened in December next, covers more ground, has more exhibits entered, than can be recorded of any other World's Fair ever attempted.

Aside from the pecuniary means furnished, the untiring industry of its directors, this marvel of the nineteenth century owes much of its renown to the power of the newspapers.

The American Agriculturist for September embraces over two hundred different editorials, prize papers, and plain, practical, common sense articles, and topics pertaining to the farm, garden, and household, written expressly for this journal by over 40 different writers. The New Elm Tree Pest; The New Swine Poisoner; The New Early Cherry; The New Narcissus; The New Destroyer of the Cabbage Worm; The New Method of Blanching Celery; A Little Known Grass; together with all other fresh subjects are fully treated and illustrated. Joseph Harris gives a world of information in his "Walks and Talks," and discusses the Apple Barrel War. Dr. George Thurber writes on horticultural topics. Col. Mason C. Weld narrates at length the results of his experiments in testing famous butter cows. Andrew S. Fuller discourses upon the influence and effects of Pollen. Prof. Thompson, of Nebraska, tells how to most advantageously raise cattle in the West. Elias A. Long presents full instructions for making handsome lawns. Henry A. Haigh gives valuable suggestions in making farm contracts. Professor Slade, of Harvard University, tells how to successfully treat animal ailments. Col. F. D. Curtis writes of weaning and feeding young pigs. R. G. Newton, Dak., turns the farmer's grindstone. Alfred Trumbull analyzes the harvest of the Sea. Timothy Bunker descants upon the "yaller dog" in his usual facetious vein. Dr. Byron D. Halsted points out the value of buckwheat as a farm crop. David W. Judd, describes the far-west. The illustrations and engravings, by leading artists, number over a hundred. Of the full page illustrations, the one representing "a gathering storm" is most vivid and life-like. Price $1.50 a year. Single numbers 15 cents; 751 Broadway.

Peterson's Magazine for September opens with a perfectly idyllic steel-engraving, "In Arcadia; 'Guess Who It Is?'" The double-sized fashion-plate is also from steel, colored by hand; Mrs. Lucy H. Hooper is "Peterson's" fashion correspondent in Paris: the only one, we believe, who keeps a correspondent there, hence the fashions are always the latest and most stylish. The stories in this number are unusually good, even for "Peterson," and range from love stories like "Lord Avalon" to comic ones like "Juba at the Wake," and tragic ones like "Creole Blossoms." How such a magazine can be supplied for only two dollars a year, and much less to clubs, is a miracle; we can only explain it by its enormous circulation. Specimens are sent gratis to get up clubs with. Address CHAS. J. PETERSON, No. 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Norman County Index: Jack McLaren has a still larger force of men at work on the elevator this week, and expects it will be finished so as to receive grain in three or four weeks. The elevator will be a fine one when it is finished.

John Knuppe.

General Agent in the Red River Valley of the Netherlands American Land Company of Amsterdam, Holland.

Money to loan on good real estate security on time to suit the borrower. Office over Merchants Bank. [1-tf]

Stewart & Lawrence,

DEALERS IN

Lumber, Sash, Doors, Mouldings,

Building Paper, &c.

1st Com. Dim's and Boards, rough, $18	Siding, dry $18
2d " " " " 16	Flooring, " 21
3d " " " " 14	Lath, 3
Ship Lap, dry 17	Shingles 2

☞ A full stock of Sash, Doors, Casings, Mouldings, Eve Trough and Building Paper constantly on hand.

NEW YORK STORE!

Dry Goods, Notions, Shawls.

Ladies' Fine Pebble Goat Slippers, Opera cut, reduced to $1.00

Ladies' extra-fine American kid hand turned sole slippers, $1.50

These slippers are genuine bargnins.

We have a full line of Ladies' and Misses Grey Bro's

FINE SHOES!

Spring heel shoes for men ana children.
Gents hand sewed shoes.
" " " walking shoes.
" " " hunting boots.

We carry a full line of Forepaugh & Tarbox custom made goods for Gents', Ladies' and Misses'.

We have a few odd sizes in Men's Heavy Boots that we are closing out Cheap.

PROUD & MACDONELL.

Johnson & Stevens,

FISHER AND CROOKSTON,

WILL NEGOTIATE LOANS

Through the Corbin Banking Co., New York,

SELL MINNESOTA CHIEF

Threshers and Engines,

Deering and Esterly Binders,
Studebaker Wagons,
and a variety of Rakes, Mowers,
Plows, Etc., Etc.

KEEP A MORE

COMPLETE LINE OF REPAIRS

than any agency in the County.

Twine and Wire In Season.

BROADWAY

Meat Market.

FRANK JEROME & CO.,

Fresh and Salt Meats

OF ALL KINDS

VEGETABLES

In their season. All goods delivered if requested.

CITY ICE HOUSE!

E. D. SCHRAEDER & CO., Proprietors,

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Having purchased the ice house business of Ruedy & Kindler, and put up during the past winter from 75,000 to 100,000 tons of ice, we are now prepared to supply the trade the coming summer at reasonable figures.

E. D. SCHRAEDER & CO.

DENTISTRY.

J. H. THOMAS, D.D.S.,

ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

Artificial Teeth from one to an entire set inserted. Gold, Silver or Artificial Filling used as desired. Regulating Children's Teeth a specialty. ALL WORK WARRANTED.

EIKEN BROS.,

Corner of Fletcher and Main Street,
Crookston, Minn.

Dealers in

HARDWARE, TIWARE,

STOVES,

AND SHELFWARE.

WE KEEP A

FULL & COMPLETE

STOCK,

AND

Invite the Patronage

OF ALL.

A. H. DUNLOP M. D.,

Graduate McGill University, Montreal.

LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON QUEBEC.

Office on Robert Street, Crookston.

I have a good Hotel for sale, located right in the business part of the city.

H. W. LEWIS.

ELLIS & JOHNSON,

AGENTS FOR THE

WALTER A. WOOD

Mowing and Reaping

MACHINE COMPANY.

A Full Line of Repairs and Twine constantly on Hand.

Robert Street. Opposite Old Mill. CROOKSTON, MINN.

AIME GABOURY,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Graduate Doctor in Medicine Laval University Canada. Licensed Coll. Phy. Surg., Quebec Late of Michigan University, U. S.

Office over the "Arcade" Clothing Store,
CROOKSTON MINN

M. M. VAN DYKE,

Physician and Surgeon,

Corner of Main and Second Streets,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

Will attend to all professional calls promptly.

MERCHANTS' Bank of Crookston.

H. B. MONTGOMERY.........President,
St. Paul, Minn.
M. R. BROWN,............Vice President,
Crookston, Minn.
J. KELSO.........Second Vice President,
Bellevue, Iowa.
Wm. ROSS..........................Cashier,
Crookston, Minn.

CASH CAPITAL, $32,000

SURPLUS, $16,533.82.

Will receive deposits and allow interest by special contract.

Buy and Sell Foreign and Domestic Exchange, make collections, and do a strictly legitimate business.

Agents for foreign passage tickets.

De Skandinaviske Sprog tales her.

WM. ROSS, Cashier.

ATTENTION

Now is the Time to Build

While you can buy

Cream Brick

at Very Low Figures. The Best Brick ever made in the Red River Valley. Manufactured by

SWANSON & KORPPE,

[11-13] Crookston, Minn.

SECOND STREET

MEAT MARKET

STANTON & CO., Proprietors.

Choice meats of every description. Fish and game in their season. Everything of the very best quality and lowest prices. Call and see us.

STANTON & CO.

Dobson's Block, Second Street.

The Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Proprietor. DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. TERMS—$1.50 Per Annum.

VOL. VIII. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, AUGUST 21, 1884. NO. 17

Polk County Journal.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Dollar and Fifty Cents if paid in advance, to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

ADVERTISING RATES.

SPACE.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	2 m	6 m.	1 year
½ inch	50	$1 00	$1 15	$1 50	$2 00	$4 00	$6 00
1 inch	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	3 50	6 00	10 00
2 inches	1 50	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 50	9 50	15 00
3 inches	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	9 50	13 50	20 00
4 inches	2 00	3 50	4 50	5 00	10 00	16 00	25 00
5 inches	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 50	12 00	20 00	30 00
¼ column	3 50	5 00	5 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	35 00
½ column	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	20 00	35 00	50 00
1 column	9 50	12 50	15 00	18 00	35 00	60 00	100 00

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

Republican Ticket.

For President,
JAMES G. BLAINE,
of Maine.

For Vice President,
JOHN A. LOGAN,
of Illinois.

For Representative in Congress,
HON. KNUTE NELSON,
of Alexandria.

CHANNEL DRIFT.

What the Papers are Saying on Political Matters.

THE PROHIBITION VOTE.

Hardly any members of that party regard the election of Mr. St. John as possible in any imaginable contingency. They know that every vote for a candidate on that ticket amounts to a vote for Cleveland; and it is only fair to ask those of them whose sympathy is with the Republican party to consider how far they are prepared to contribute to a Democratic victory. Ex-Gov. Gibbs of Oregon, in a recent speech at a prohibition meeting in New York, stated the case with much force. He said: "The moral effect of electing a President on a Prohibition ticket would be great; but practically he could not do as much for temperance as a policeman in the smallest ward in New York. The President cannot pass a law, nor vote for one. Nor has Congress as much power over intemperance as the smallest State in the Union. It can only pass a law prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating beverages in the Territories and in the District of Columbia, as well as their importation from abroad. All the President could do would be to sign such a measure or veto it, and a President elected on a Democratic platform would be bound to do the latter. Every vote for Mr. St. John is half a vote for Mr. Cleveland. The Prohibition sentiments of Mr. Blaine are paraded before the liquor dealers to induce them to support Mr. Cleveland; but I have been working side by side in the temperance ranks for several years with Democrats, and as many of them will vote for Mr. Blaine as will offset any losses to the Republicans from the Prohibitionists."—[Philadelphia American.

WILL ADMIT THEY SLIPPED UP.

The Democrats may not be willing to acknowledge to the world that they made a mistake in nominating Mr. Cleveland, but in the inmost recesses of their hearts they will not deny that they slipped on a banana peel at Chicago.—[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

MORE THAN THEY BARGAINED FOR.

Early in the campaign the new and elegant "Independents" declared that the issues were to be "moral, not political." They are getting more of the moral issue than they included in their original calculations.—[Chicago Journal.

PRACTICAL "REFORM."

Mr. George William Curtis yesterday addressed the meeting of the National Civil Service Reform League at Newport, R. I. As regards civil service reform Mr. Curtis at present occupies the position of the man who rows his boat in one direction while intently looking in the opposite direction. He advocates civil service reform before the National Reform League, and writes editorials for Harper's Weekly in favor of the only political party in this country which is notoriously opposed to civil service reform both in theory and practice.—[Chicago Journal.

[illegible] BITTER PILLS.

The Independents, as the Republican bolters are fond of calling themselves, are compelled to swallow a good many bitter pills. They all profess the greatest devotion to civil service reform, but joined a party which exists solely for the sake of the spoils. They insist upon running the present campaign upon an issue of personal morality instead of party differences, and [illegible] they support a candidate whose character is [illegible] scandal [illegible] to any public man in this country.—[Chicago Tribune.

[illegible]

Jeremiah S. Black, one of the great [illegible] in this country [illegible]

[illegible]

tariff plank as "unworthy quibble, incapable of deceiving anybody as to its true meaning." The Gazette asks if the sugar and rice planters are going to carry out their promise to guide their political action by their material interests or to take the back track and train with a party whose platform is ardently approved by rampant Free Traders, like Morrison, Carlisle and Hurd.—[New York Tribune.

PUCK'S FLOP.

In its issue of March 14, 1883, Puck had a full-page cartoon entitled "The new member of Monopoly Lodge has taken his 'First Degree.'" In this cartoon, Mr. Cleveland was represented with a cable tow around his neck and a fool's cap with the inscription, "Sc. Veto," on his head. Now it is beslobbering this same Mr. Cleveland with all the polychromatic praise at its command. "What fools these mortals be."—[New York Tribune.

THAT HISTORIC BAR'L.

The Democratic National Committee expects to draw $50,000 out of Tilden's bar'l before the end of the campaign. The Great Defrauded is said to have squarely promised a contribution of that amount. W. H. Barnum is ready to buy "mules" again, in Indiana or elsewhere, and all in all "reform" bids fair to be pushed with supreme disregard of decency.—[St. Louis Globe Democrat.

HENDRICK'S PEDIGREE.

Mr. Hendricks was an aggressive Copperhead throughout the war. He sympathized with that treasonable organization known as the Knights of the Golden Circle, and did all that lay in his power to retard the war for the Union. Such is a part of his treasonable record, and in its face the Civil Service Record has the check to pronounce it "honorable."—[Cleveland Leader.

A PREDICTION.

The Herald wants to go on record as making the prediction that the time is not far distant when, in spite of Watterson's preaching, the entire South, east of the Mississippi River, will, with one voice, imperatively demand the enforcement of a strong Protective Tariff policy.—[Cleveland Herald.

POSING AS ANANIAS.

Mr. Vilas is trying very hard, and with amazing success, to make Eastern Democrats believe that Wisconsin is a doubtful State this year. Why Mr. Vilas should have an ambition to be called the Ananias of politics it is indeed hard to understand.—[Minneapolis Tribune.

Of Interest to Workingmen.

The following extracts from the platforms of the two great parties show very conclusively the tendencies of each in the matter of protection to American industries.

REPUBLICAN TARIFF PLANK.	DEMOCRATIC TARIFF PLANK.
1876—Duties upon importations * * should be adjusted to promote the interests of American labor and advance the prosperity of the whole country.	1876—We denounce the present tariff, levied upon nearly 4,000 articles, as a masterpiece of injustice, inequality and false pretence. We demand that all custom house taxation shall be only for revenue.
1880—Duties levied for the purpose of revenue should so discriminate as to favor American labor.	1880—A tariff for revenue only.
1884—The imposition of duties on foreign imports shall be made, not for revenue only, but that in raising the requisite revenues for the government such duties shall be so levied as to afford security for our diversified industries and protection to the rights and wages of the laborer, as well as capital, may have its just reward, and the laboring man his full share in the national prosperity.	1884—We denounce the abuse of existing tariff and * * demand that federal taxation shall be exclusively for public purposes.

Farmers' Prosperity Under a Protective Tariff.

To the Editor of the Toledo Blade.

Farm help has never been so well paid as in the last 10 or 15 years. 20 to 25 years ago many foreigners, mostly Germans, came to the West and their expenses were paid by friends accompanying them. They went to work as farm hands at low wages until they could learn to talk English. They paid their passage money and earned more to send for their friends; their friends came, earned other money and sent for other friends. Many of them purchased farms at from $5 to $7 per acre, have paid for them and made many improvements. They drive good horses and ride in good style; they have educated their children, and now have a competency. They are influential people in the community. Twenty-four years ago farmers paid for farm help 50c to 75c a day for common labor on the farm and $1 to $1.25 per day in harvest. For the last 10 to 15 years they have paid [illegible] for common labor and have paid [illegible] at interest. Yet the free traders claim that such men as he have been wonderfully damaged by a protective tariff. Many others have done as well, in proportion to the time they have been here. Now talk of protection injuring the farmers! They have supported the merchants and mechanics better than ever before. How eagerly all others watch the prosperity of the farmers! Seeing the prosperity of the farmers for the last 15 years, it is plain that protection is a benefit, the opinion of other nations to the contrary notwithstanding.

Metomen, Wis. E. REYNOLDS.

The Farmers' Hallucination.

Minneapolis Evening Journal.

The farmers of the Northwest, and probably the farmers of the whole world, are victims of a pitiful hallucination which takes possession of their judgment each year with the return of the ides of June, and does not loose its grip until about the same period in October. On or about the date first mentioned the enterprising daily newspaper, through its corps of correspondents interviews the farmers on the crop prospects, and in the published reports we find sanguine predictions of at least 20 bushels to the acre. In July twenty-five bushels is gravely said to be a conservative figure, qualified, however, with the usual "ifs," including rust, storms, chinch bugs, etc. In August, right up to the time of beginning harvest, this latter figure is still maintained, and more stoutly, too, since the danger period from the evils above mentioned is practically over. After the first few days of cutting have passed supplemental reports usually begin to flow in, of the general tenor that "Wheat is not turning out as well as was expected. The straw is rank and heavy, but the heads are small and meagrely filled out." And thus comes the first harvest disappointment, and the farmer who has been reckless in purchases of expensive machinery, and the dealer who has been lavish in extending credit, institute measures of retrenchment, and the bright prospects of their own creation fade away. Our State statistician finds the average wheat yield of Minnesota to be something less than fourteen bushels per acre, and the total yield from nearly 2,500,000 acres to be 35,000,000 bushels. Every farmer's good sense teaches him that Minnesota with her present acreage cannot produce 65,000,000 bushels of wheat, yet every farmer, after going out and viewing his own field of wheat in all its luxuriant promise of June and July, will honestly predict twenty or twenty-five bushels to to the acre, although the same field, which looked equally as well the previous year, yielded but twelve or thirteen bushels. This hallucination appears to emanate from the dark green blades waving softly in the passing breeze, the sight of which fills the husbandman's heart with hope, and makes of him a false prophet year after year. Experience is useless; disappointment teaches him nothing, and the farmers who are now mentally figuring on "fourteen bushels at the outside, although I thought it would go twenty at least," will blindly embrace their ignis fatuous again a year hence.

Brains or Beef.

From the Toledo Blade.

So far as the two most prominent candidates for the Presidency are concerned the question is apparently one of brains or beef. Senator Voorhees, of Indiana, recently said regarding Cleveland that "it is rather providential that we have nominated a young, vigorous man weighing 250 pounds, with a neck as big as my thigh, and a head like a bull." Mr. Voorhees went on to explain this startling statement by saying, "in case he is elected he will be able to stand up against the horde of office-seekers and live. The pressure would have killed Hendricks or Thurman in ninety days, and as for Tilden, he would have been snuffed out [illegible]"

There could be no better exposition of the Democratic idea than that unconsciously made by Mr. Voorhees. The main purpose of the party is to get control of the National Government to put themselves in position to feed at the public crib. For office they howl like ravening wolves, and the party leaders fitly liken their candidate to a bull because [illegible] Mr. Voorhees says nothing about his mental qualifications [illegible] quadruped. His neck and head do not recall those of a bull. Strength of intellect is stamped on every feature, but there is nothing to suggest Taurus. Mr. Blaine is mental, not animal, in temperament and appearance. He will make his mark for brains, not for beef, as President.

The Great Exposition.

The Exposition at New Orleans is attracting the attention of the press in all parts of the country and abroad. Almost every newspaper has something to say about the preparations that are being made to further the work of State or local associations. The special representatives of the Exposition commissioned by President Arthur, for the purpose of procuring exhibits have found the newspapers ready to report speeches and print the latest news relating to the World's Fair. This circumstance no doubt springs from the fact that the people throughout the land read with much interest all that is printed concerning this great enterprise. By the wide-spread influence of the press the Exposition is known and talked about in India, Australia, on the banks of the Congo, in the South American republics, and in the frozen regions of the North. Seeming impossibilities have been overcome, and the scheme limited to a cotton exhibition at first, has been enlarged by degrees till it now embraces a grand exposition of arts, manufactures, mines, agriculture, and in fact about everything in which the people of to-day are interested. This Exposition to be opened in December next, covers more ground, has more exhibits entered, than can be recorded of any other World's Fair ever attempted.

Aside from the pecuniary means furnished, the untiring industry of its directors, this marvel of the nineteenth century owes much of its renown to the power of the newspapers.

The American Agriculturist for September embraces over two hundred different editorials, prize papers, and plain, practical, common sense articles, and topics pertaining to the farm, garden, and household, written expressly for this journal by over 40 different writers. The New Elm Tree Pest; The New Swine Poisoner; The New Early Cherry; The New Narcissus; The New Destroyer of the Cabbage Worm; The New Method of Blanching Celery; A Little Known Grass; together with all other fresh subjects are fully treated and illustrated. Joseph Harris gives a world of information in his "Walks and Talks," and discusses the Apple Barrel War. Dr. George Thurber writes on horticultural topics. Col. Mason C. Weld narrates at length the results of his experiments in testing famous butter cows. Andrew S. Fuller discourses upon the influence and effects of Pollen. Prof. Thompson, of Nebraska, tells how to most advantageously raise cattle in the West. Elias A. Long presents full instructions for making handsome lawns. Henry A. Haigh gives valuable suggestions in making farm contracts. Professor Slade, of Harvard University, tells how to successfully treat animal ailments. Col. F. D. Curtis writes of weaning and feeding young pigs. R. G. Newton, Dak., turns the farmer's grindstone. Alfred Trumbull analyzes the harvest of the Sea. Timothy Bunker descants upon the "yaller dog" in his usual facetious vein. Dr. Byron D. Halsted points out the value of buckwheat as a farm crop. David W. Judd describes the far-west. The illustrations and engravings by leading artists, number over a hundred. Of the full-page illustrations, the one representing "a gathering storm" is most vivid and life-like. Price $1.50 a year. Single numbers 15 cents. 751 Broadway.

"Peterson's Magazine" for September opens with a perfectly idyllic steel engraving, "In Arcadia." "Guess Who It Is!" The double-sized fashion-plate is also from steel, colored by hand. Mrs. Lucy H. Hooper is "Peterson's" fashion correspondent in Paris, the only one, we believe, who keeps a correspondent there, hence the fashions are always the latest and most stylish. The stories in this number are unusually good, even for "Peterson," and range from love stories like "Lord Avalon" to comic ones like "Juba at the Wake" and tragic ones like "Creole Blossoms." How such a magazine can be supplied for only two dollars a year, and much less to clubs, is a miracle we can only explain by its enormous circulation. Specimens sent gratis to get up clubs with. Address CHARLES J. PETERSON, No. 306 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, Pa.

[illegible] County Index. Jack [illegible]

Stewart & Lawrence,

—DEALERS IN—

Lumber, Sash, Doors, Mouldings,

Building Paper, &c.

1st Com. Dim's and Boards, rough,	$18	Siding, dry	$18
2d " " " "	16	Flooring, "	21
3d " " " "	14	Lath,	3
Ship Lap, dry	17	Shingles	2

☞ A full stock of Sash, Doors, Casings, Mouldings, Eve Trough and Building Paper constantly on hand.

NEW YORK STORE!

Dry Goods, Notions, Shawls.

Ladies' Fine Pebble Goat Slippers, Opera cut, reduced to $1.00

Ladies' extra-fine American kid hand turned sole slippers, $1.50

These slippers are geouine bargnins.

We have a full line of Ladies' and Misses Grey Bro's

FINE SHOES!

Spring heel shoes for men ana children.

Gents hand sewed shoes.

" " " walking shoes.

" " " hunting boots.

We carry a full line of Forepaugh & Tarbox custom made goods for Gents', Ladies' and Misses'.

We have a few odd sizes in Men's Heavy Boots that we are closing out Cheap.

PROUD & MACDONELL.

Johnson & Stevens,

FISHER AND CROOKSTON,

WILL NEGOTIATE LOANS

Through the Corbin Banking Co., New York,

SELL MINNESOTA CHIEF

Threshers and Engines,

Deering and Esterly Binders,
Studebaker Wagons,
and a variety of Rakes, Mowers,
Plows, Etc., Etc.

KEEP A MORE

COMPLETE LINE OF REPAIRS

than any agency in the County.

Twine and Wire In Season.

BROADWAY

Meat Market.

FRANK JEROME & CO.,

Fresh and Salt Meats

[illegible]

VEGETABLES.

[illegible]

CITY ICE HOUSE!

E. D. SCHRADER & CO., Proprietors,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

Having purchased the ice house business of Rued & Kindler, and put up during the past winter from 75,000 to 100,000 cakes of ice, we are now prepared to supply the trade the coming summer at reasonable figures.

E. D. SCHRADER & CO.

DENTISTRY.

[illegible]

EIKEN BROS.,

Corner of Fletcher and Main Street, Crookston, Minn.

Dealers in

HARDWARE, TIWARE,

STOVES,

—AND—

SHELFWARE.

WE KEEP A

FULL & COMPLETE

STOCK,

—AND—

Invite the Patronage

OF ALL.

A. H. DUNLOP, M. D.,

Graduate McGill University, Montreal.

LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON QUEBEC.

Office on Robert Street, Crookston.

I have a good Hotel for sale, located right in the business part of the city.

H. W. LEWIS.

ELLIS & JOHNSON,

AGENTS FOR THE

WALTER A. WOOD

Mowing and Reaping

MACHINE COMPANY.

A Full Line of Repairs and Twine constantly on Hand.

Robert Street.
Opposite Old Mill, CROOKSTON, MINN.

AIME GABOURY,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Graduate Doctor in Medicine Laval University Canada. Licensed Coll. Phy. Surg., Quebec Late of Michigan University, U. S.

Office over the "Arcade" Clothing Store,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

M. M. VAN DYKE,

Physician and Surgeon,

Corner of Main and Second Streets,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

Will attend to all professional calls promptly.

MERCHANTS'

Bank of Crookston.

H. B. MONTGOMERY.........President,
St. Paul, Minn.
M. R. BROWN,.........Vice President,
Crookston, Minn.
J. KELSO.........Second Vice President,
Bellevue, Iowa.
Wm. ROSS.........Cashier,
Crookston, Minn.

CASH CAPITAL, $32,000

SURPLUS, $16,533.82.

Will receive deposits and allow interest by special contract.

Buy and Sell Foreign and Domestic Exchange, make collections, and do a strictly legitimate business.

Agents for foreign passage tickets.

De Skandinaviske Sprog tales her.

WM. ROSS, Cashier.

ATTENTION

Now is the Time to Build

While you can buy

Cream Brick

at Very Low Figures. The Best Brick ever made in the Red River Valley. Manufactured by

SWANSON & KOPPE,

[illegible] Crookston, Minn.

SECOND STREET

MEAT MARKET

[illegible] & CO., Proprietors.

[illegible]

Polk County Journal.

Crookston, Minn., Thursday, August 21

'ROUND HOME.

Mr. M. Gjerberg lost three children last week by diphtheria.

Prof. Gray gave an able lecture at the Congregational church last evening.

The best five cent cigars is at the Red Star Grocery, Broadway. [51-tf]

There will be more tight rope walking at the Park Grounds next Sunday.

Prof. Farnsworth is up this week in attendance on the Teachers' Institute.

Dave Robinson has returned from his exile in St. Paul and is glad to get back.

There will be services in the M. E. church on Sabbath morning at 11 o'clock.

Prof. Kiehle's lecture on Tuesday evening was well attended notwithstanding the rain.

Mrs. R. P. Shoemaker and son Roy, of Duluth, are visiting with relatives in the city this week.

Al. Wells, formerly of this city, and who is now in business in Portland, was in the city this week visiting his brother Bert.

Rev. A. C. Anderson will conduct services in the Norwegian Lutheran church next Sabbath at 11 a. m., and at 8 p. m.

Geo. C. Miln will open at the Grand Opera House in Crookston on Sept. 19th and 20th. Dickson's Sketch Club sometime in October.

The teachers' institute is in full blast this week and very largely attended. About 60 teachers are in attendance and the exercises are very interesting.

Robert Bonner has bought Maud S. for $40,000. It is said that Vanderbilt has had offers of $100,000 for her but but did not want to sell her to a jockey.

W. D. Hurlbut goes about wearing a smile that is child-like and bland all because of the advent of a little lady into his household, which event occurred on Friday last.

Scarcely a self-binder is to be seen around the agricultural halls, where not long since were hundreds. They have all been purchased and are at work in the No. 1 Hard.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Hawley have been called upon to mourn the loss of their little daughter, Blanche, aged nine years and ten months, who died on Friday, Aug. 15th.

Parties wishing to make personal exhibits at the World's Fair, should address for information, Oliver Gibbs, Lake City, or D. E. Bailey, 257 First Ave. South, Minneapolis, Minn.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Rauenbuehler have been called upon to mourn the loss of one of the twins, a bright little boy aged 14 months and 19 days, who died on Tuesday of summer complaint.

The State Fair, which commenced at Owatonna, on Sept. 8th lasting to and including the 13th bids fair to eclipse every former effort in its numerous attractions. We trust that Polk County will have a large exhibit of its cereal and vegetable productions.

Mr. Peter Huss has returned from a trip along the shores of Lake Superior where he went to look for business in lumbering towns. He found business dull and flat wherever he went. He extended his trip to Yankton and other Dakota towns and did not find business prospects any better.

Mr. A. M. Stewart returned last week from an extended trip to Dakota. He has established yards on the new branch line of the St. P., M. & M. R. R., one at Kensington and the other at Inkster. He says there is some pretty good land in that country and the two villages referred to above are building up rapidly.

The Baptist Sunday school and its friends will have a basket picnic, Friday afternoon next. Friends and children will please meet at the chapel at 1:30 o'clock, and from there will proceed to the grounds. Should Friday be wet the picnic will occur Saturday, to meet at the same place and hour. Let there be a big rally of scholars and friends.

Take Notice.

We the undersigned are now prepared to do all kinds of work pertaining to the tailoring business, cheap, substantial and promptly. Would especially recommend our mode of cleaning and dyeing clothes which is done through a chemical process, thereby enabling us to thoroughly and effectually withdraw all kinds of grease and paint spots without injury to the cloth. All work guaranteed, and patronage solicited.

GJERBERG BRO'S,
Adjoining T. H. Bjoin's livery stable
Main Street, Crookston, Minn.
[10-18]

To The Public.

We wish to state to the people of Crookston and vicinity, that we have purchased the stock of groceries owned by J. L. Bailey on Broadway, opposite the post office. We purpose to carry on the trade at the old stand, and will keep on hand at all times a fresh stock of groceries, provisions, etc., and we [illegible] a share of the patronage of the general public.

[illegible] BAUCHMAN & MILLETTE.

NOTICE.

As I still own my share of Crookston Nurseries, and purpose to continue the business, I will annouce to our former customers and all that are desirous of obtaining trees and Plants the coming spring that I will sell said stock at prices below any competition. Call and see me before making purchase elsewhere. Residence on second block north of Court House, or address P. O. Box 754.

Most Respectfully,
[88-tf] E. W. HASELTINE.

I have some of the best located residence and business lots in the city that I will sell on easy terms.

H. W. LEWIS.

I would say to the people of Polk County that I have on sale some of the most desirable lots in the city o Crookston.

H. W. LEWIS.
Office in JOURNAL building.

A BARGAIN.

A choice business location on Broadway 100x140 feet, for sale at a bargain. For particulars address the JOURNAL.

Money to Loan.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS to loan on improved farms from THREE to FIVE years time at very reasonable rates. Apply at my office on Broadway, in U. S. Land Office building.

[14tf] H. STEENERSON.

Just received. A car-load of Buggies selected by an experienced carriage-builder all warranted. Call early and select one. McKinnon Bros.

The United States Internal Revenue Special Tax is due May 1st. Any information and a full line of blanks can be had by calling on or addressing.

JOHN McLEAN,
Attorney at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

Notice to Farmers.

C. Kretzschmar's Grist Mill, at Red Lake Falls, is again open for business. Flour will be exchanged for wheat, or your wheat will be ground on shares. A good feed mill is run in connection with the mill and satisfaction in all cases is guaranteed. Flour and feed on hand at all times and sold at lowest market rates.

[16-tf] C. KRETZSCHMAR.

To Rent.

Ready for grain in the spring 100 acres on Section 12 Township 148 Range 46 and 250 acres on Section 11 Township 148 Range 46. Both track have a good house and barn. Apply to

PETER CORNELIUS,
[88-tf] Crookston, Minn.

PIANO TUNING.

Any parties having pianos or organs that need tuning or repairing can have their work satisfactorily done by leaving orders at the Linton House. Satisfaction guaranteed.

[9-tf] E. F. WHEELDEN.

Mrs. I. U. Jennings has just received a large stock of Spring and Summer Millinery Goods and guarantees to sell at prices 25 per cent lower than the same goods can be purchased at any other place in the Northwest. [51-tf]

LIST OF LETTERS

Remaining uncalled for in the Crookston Post Office, for the week ending August 11th, 1884. Persons calling for these letters will please say "advertised."

Ars, Knute Simonson
Adsbol, Peter Hauren
Biron, Henry
Beaton, Charles
Brown, S F
Urinetto, Wm
Brisnan, C
Burnett, J C
Dale, Tolo D
Erickson, Andrew
Flower, Mrs Henry
Flenry, Herni
Gates, Mrs Mary
Rorfnes, Karen N
Hovlend, Ole O
Jensen, T
Johnson, Matilda
Johnson, John
Kohne, August
Lariolette, Julia
Landry, P N—2
Lorah, W G
Larson, Betsie I
Lcrow, Vitile
Lerotte, Vatae
Loche, John O
Lussier, Ricard
Masedalen, Peter
Olberg, Mary
Peterson, Gartvig
Ranx, Edward
Sauvig, Johanne H
Senley, Daniel
Severson, Sever B—2
Score, Ole E
Sloman, Thos
Smith, Frank B
Strom, Gust
Sverd, L E

D. JACOBUS, P. M.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon.
Rooms corner Main street and Fletcher Avenue, over Eiken Bros. Hardware Store,
CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINN.

JOHN N. IVES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
Collection and Land Office Business made a specialty. Money secured for final proofs on short notice.
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

NEW LIVERY,
Feed and Sale
STABLES.,
CORNER MAIN AND FOURTH STS.,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.
TERRY & COLLINS, Prop's.
☞ Good Turnouts at all times a reasonable prices. Good Hearse and careful driver when needed.

WM. WATTS,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
AND DEALER IN
REAL ESTATE.
OFFICE, OVER MERCHANTS' BANK.

W. L. Sargeant
Veterinary Surgeon.
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Diseases of horses and cattle a specialty.

Crookston Tonsorial
PARLORS.
[illegible] PROF. THOMPSON, Proprietor. [illegible]
Robert Street, [illegible] Crookston, Minn.
[illegible] all work in my line promptly attended to [illegible]

THE DUTCH FRIESIAN

OR

HOLSTEIN!

—o—

The Best Breed of Cattle in the World.

—o—

The Dutch Friesian, or Holstein is without doubt constitutionally the most robust and vigorous race of cattle in America. It has never been pampered by over-feeding, nor weakened by direct in-breeding, and it possesses wonderful capabilities of still greater improvement at the hands of skillful breeders.

FRIESIAN'S FOR MILK.

It is generally conceded that the Dutch Friesians excel all other breeds in quantity of milk. Records of 40 to 60 pounds per day, and 7,000 to 11,000 per year for heifers with their first calves, and 60 to 90 pounds per day, and 12,000 to 18,000 pounds per year for mature cows, being quite common. No such records have been shown by other breeds.

But it is not necessary to show that Friesians, with high feeding and milking three times a day, will give from 76 to 80 pounds of milk per day. If they give from 40 to 50 pounds per day for three months, and then from 20 to 40 pounds per day for the next three months, and from 20 to 25 pounds per day for the next three months, or an average of about four gallons per day for nine months, and then gradually become dry, they are by far the most valuable milch cows in the world; and this they will do without any forcing.

FRIESIANS FOR BUTTER.

It is the opinion of those who have thoroughly tested them in comparison with others, that the Friesans will AVERAGE MORE BUTTER PER COW FOR A YEAR THAN THE AVERAGE OF ANY OTHER BREED. THE GENERAL AVERAGE of whole herds is remarkably good, as these cows hold out longer than most others. There are well authenticated records of thirteen mature cows ranging from two to three pounds per day for one to ten days. Whole number of cows tested, 13. Average time, 6 8-13 days. Average per day, per cow, over two lbs. ten oz. The highest average, twenty lbs. for seven days. Ten heifers—four three years old, and six two years—averaged two lbs., three-quarter oz. per day for a week. Thos. B. Wales' cow "Mercedes," (723) produced recently ninety-nine lbs. six oz. in thirty days—the largest yield for the time ever reported.

FRIESIANS FOR BEEF.

The Dutch cattle are large. Calves frequently weigh 100 to 130 lbs. at birth and gain nearly 100 lbs. per month till six or eight months old, and weigh from 700 to 1000, or more, at a year old. They come in early. It is the rule in Holland to have heifers come at from twenty to thirty months old. At this age they usually make a growth of from 1,100 to 1,350 pounds, and at maturity range from 1,400 to 1,800. It is no uncommon thing to see whole herds of cows, in Holland, ranging from 1,500 to 1,800 pounds. The readiness with which they take on flesh when dry is not excelled by any other breed. Bulls and steers equal short-horns in weight at same ages. Dutch Friesian steers have proved very profitable for feeding. J. S. Lang, writing from N. Vassalboro, Maine, says: "My experiments with half-bloods have been very gratifying; they outstripped all others in growth on the same feed, steers averaging in girth, at eighteen months, 6 feet 7 inches. My experiments have been conducted with care, and my conviction is, that to institute an impartial test of Holsteins and Short-horns, it would be found that the Holstein stock would cost the least per pound." As Holsteins have but recently been introduced into the West, but little has been done in testing their value strictly for beef, as the best grade bulls have been kept for breeding; but as far as they have been tried, have given good satisfaction. Half-blood steers in Illinois have attained a weight of over 1,800 pounds at two years old, and 1,900 pounds at four years old. Gray & Van Waters, West Salem, Wis., report in 1881 as follows: "We sold one yoke of half-blood Holsteins, two years and three months old, weighing 2,050. Andy McEldowny sold thirteen head of half-bloods, average age two years and three months, average weight 1,845 lbs. The man who bought them said he had bought and shipped cattle for twenty years, and they were the best lot he had ever shipped. The oldest of the thirteen was two years and four months old and weighed 1,000 pounds. They were sold to Daniel Cargle, of Sparta, and brought in Milwaukee $5.50 per 100 pounds."

TO CROSS WITH NATIVES.

The great value of the Friesian cattle as a cross on native cows, is one great point in their favor. The purity of the blood, established by centuries of careful breeding gives the Friesian bull a prepotency—a power to transmit their qualities—far superior to that of any other known race. A Friesian, placed at the head of a herd of common cows [illegible] all colors, shapes, sizes and all degrees of coarseness, will reproduce his own form, color, disposition and peculiarities with such certainty that the owner may be perfectly sure beforehand that all his half-blood calves will have the marked characteristics of the Friesian cattle. The farmers of Polk County have now for the first time an opportunity to secure grade Holsteins as the thoroughbred bull, has been purchased of the Northwestern Importers and Breeders Association of Minneapolis, and brought to Crookston, where he may be seen on the old Jacobus farm (south half section 8, Crookston township.) As the season is considerably advanced only a limited number of cows will be allowed this year.

EVERETT

Pedigree of Everett.

Calved Jan. 9th, 1883; sire, Angus, (907, Holstein Herd Book, Imported.) EVERETT, in color is evenly variegated; head fine; neck and horns fine; shoulders low and well formed; body round and long; chine medium; hips broad; rump broad; quarters heavy; limbs fine; handling good; escutcheon best; dam, Beth, No. 1,743, H. H. B. Beth was bred by P. S. de Boer, Ostorierum, Friesland. Calved April 9th. 1880. Imported May 20th, 1881, by Wm Koch, of New York City.

DESCRIPTION: Black predominating, shield and rumps; horns fair; head medium; neck medium; shoulders good; chin straight; hips medium; rump best; handling good; escutcheon best; milk form.

Farmers and all who are interested in getting good stock into the county are invited to call at the farm and see EVERETT.

A. N. HOPKINS,
[15-tf] Manager.

MERCHANTS HOTEL
J. E. MITTON, Prop.,
WAHPETON, - - DAKOTA.

The Red Lake Falls
FLOURING
MILL
Has lately been enlarged and is now prepared to do curtom work without delay. Stable room free.
BUSE & COLBENTSON,
Proprietors, Red Lake Falls, Minn.

Groceries, Provisions,
Flour, Feed
SMOKED, DRIED AND SALT
MEATS,
TEAS,
COFFEES,
SUGARS,
SPICES,
ETC.
Highest Market Price Paid for
FARM PRODUCE.
Bauchman & Millette.
Broadway, Opposite the Post Office,
Crookston, Minn.

THE
St. Paul,
Minneapolis
—AND—
Manitoba
RAILWAY,
WITH ITS
1,400 Miles of Road
Is the only line extending through the
Park Region of Minnesota,
To all principal points in
Red River Valley,
Northern Minnesota,
Northern Dakota,
And to Devil's Lake and Turtle Mour- Districts.
—CONTAINING OVER—
9,000,000 Acres
GOVERNMENT LANDS!
The Land department of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has exclusive charge of the Company's Lands in Minnesota, and all correspondence relative to the purchase of lands, terms, description or price of any particular tract should be addressed to that department.
Maps and pamphlets describing the country and giving rates of fare to settlers, etc., mailed FREE on application.
JAS. B. POWER,
Land and Immigration Commissioner
C. H. WARREN,
General Passenger Agent,
St. P., M. & M. R'y., St. Paul, Minn.

HOW TO BE HEALTHY!
Drink LePage's
35c Tea and 35c pure Java Coffee
AND SMOKE MY NICKEL PILGRIM CIGAR.
HOW TO BE WEALTHY!
COME TO THE RED STAR GROCERY
And Save Money on everything you buy.
AND IF YOU ARE WISE
You will buy only Pure and Fresh Groceries. THE RED STAR GROCERY is the place to get them and there you will find Prices the Lowest. Farmers and others bring in your Butter and Eggs and get highest prices for them. Remember the RED STAR, one door south of Montreal House.
E. LEPAGE, Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

E. D. CHILDS & CO.,
Proprietors of
CARMAN TOWNSITE,
AND
Dealers in Real Estate!

Why Don't You wait?
Wait till Crookston has ten thousand people. Three years!
Wait till Crookston is the largest and most important manufacturing town in the Northwest. Two years!
Wait till Crookston has two more large saw mills, and is cutting 75,000,000 feet a season. One year!
Wait till lots in SOUTH CROOKSTON are selling for twice their present valuation (six months) and THEN purchase
South Crookston Property.
But if you have time, just drop in and have a chat with
STEENERSON & McMANUS, Broadway.
JOHN IVES & SON, Broadway.
PALMER & BOND, Robert Street.
CROOKSTON IMPROVEMENT CO., Main Street.

Crookston City Bakery,
Peter Lorge, Prop.,
Keeps constantly on hand a full line of all goods usually found in a
First-Class Bakery.
Cigars and Tobacco, Nuts, Fruits, Candies; Pies, Cakes, Bread,
And everything to fill out a hungry man, constantly on hand.

MONEY! LAND!
$100,000 To Loan. 20,000 Acres of Land for Sale.
BRING IN YOUR PROPERTY
AND IT WILL BE SOLD.
Law and insurance, Collections Made,
CITY LOTS FOR SALE!
Houses, Rooms and Farms to Rent.
U. S. LAND OFFICE
Business promptly attended to.
CONTEST CASES A SPECIALTY.
Office Corner Broadway and Robert Street,
PALMER & BOND.

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP.
M. RAUENBUEHLER, Proprietor.
CORNER OAK AND THIRD STS., CROOKSTON MINN
Is ready for the Spring trade with a full supply of Work and Light Harness, Single and Double, saddles, Bridles, Whips, Blankets, etc. Give me a call before you purchase.

MERCHANTS'
BILLIARD HALL,
FRED. ANDERSON, Proprietor.
CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA.
The choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

Tom Morris,
—THE—
CITY
JEWELER
Represents the
CELEBRATED
Rockford Quick Train
WATCH
THE ONLY
Railroad
Watch
IN EXISTENCE.

Crookston Nurseries
ESTABLISHED IN 1879.
Tree Claim Stock.
I desire to inform my customers and others that I shall make a great reduction from former prices on forest trees and seeds for tree-claims. I have good thrifty two year old trees, such as Box Elder, Ash and Cottonwood to sell by the thousand: I also furnish the hardier varieties of
SMALL FRUITS,
Such as Currants, Gooseberries, Raspberries and Strawberry plants, and young, thrifty Transcendent and Hislop Crab Apple trees. The firm of Heseltine Bros. having dissolved, I still continue business on the
—OLD NURSERY GROUNDS—
in Crookston. Hoping by fair dealing and promptness with my customers to merit their patronage.
Don't fail to write for Catalogue and Prices.
☞ ALL COMMUNICATIONS PROMPTLY ANSWERED.
F. T. HASELTINE,
Proprietor of the Crookston Nurseries, Crookston, Minn.

JOHN LEO. H. STEENERSON.
LEO & STEENERSON.
ATTORNEYS AT LAW
Room 3., U. S. Land Office Building.
CROOKSTON. - - - MINNESOTA.

WANTED!
5,000 Men, Women and Children
—TO VISIT—
HACK & GALLASCH'
General Store, where you can buy
13 lbs. Pure Sugar for....$1.00
12 lbs. Turkish Prunes for.... 1.00
5 three lb. cans Table Peaches for.. 1.00
Japan Tea from....20 to 60 cts per lb
1 long bar of soap and 1 towel, all for.... .25c
Our stock of
DRY GOODS, NOTIONS, AND DRESS GOODS IS COMPLETE.
Don't fail to visit our Shoe and Slipper department before buying elsewhere New and complete stock of Groceries Crockery, Glassware, Flour and Feed.
☞ We pay the highest market prices for Butter, Eggs, Snake Root, Etc.
Call and see us. NO TROUBLE TO SHOW GOODS.
Cor. Main and Second Street,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN

Bigham & Olafson
(Successors to Juve & Bergland,)
THE POPULAR MERCHANTS ON
MAIN STREET, - - - CROOKSTON
Have on hand and are constantly receiving full lines of
DRY GOODS, GROCERIES,
CROCKERY,
CLOTHING,
BOOTS AND SHOES,
HATS AND CAPS
In fact everything usually found in a first-class general store.
☞ Our goods are bought with great care and will be sold at
LOW PRICES
☞ FOR CASH. ☜

Commercial Hotel,
W. H. TOPPING, Proprietor
SECOND STREET, - - CROOKSTON, MINN
—o—
First-class in all respects. Terms reasonable. A share of the public patronage solicited.

GREELY A CANNIBAL.

Members of the Greely Party Charged With Killing and Eating the Bodies of Their Comrades.

The New York Times of Tuesday morning says: Written documents now in the possession of the navy department at Washington add to the record of miserable human sufferings already published in connection with the finding of the Greely relief expedition, the most shocking stories of inhumanity and cannibalism. All the facts have been in the possession of Secretary Chandler for nearly three weeks, but so closely have they been guarded, and so strictly have the naval officers and sailors maintained the silence imposed upon them, that not even an inkling of the true and horrible condition of affairs has yet reached the public ear. The sufferings and privations of the men in their canvas hut, during the long, bitter winter of 1884, have not half been told. It has been published that after game gave out early in February they lived principally on seal skins, lichens and shrimps.

As a matter of fact they were kept alive on human flesh. When the rescuing party discovered the half-starved survivors, their first duty was to look to the men who were insensible from cold and privation even to the point of death. One of them, a German, was wild. In his delirium he shrieked, "Oh!" as the sailors took hold of him to lift him tenderly, "Don't let them shoot me as they did poor Henry. Must I be killed and eaten as Henry was? Don't let them do it, don't." The sailors were horrified, but at once reported the man's words to Commander Schley.

When the horrible reality was brought out before an investigating committee, Commander Schley intrusted two or three gentlemen, among whom was Dr. Ames, the surgeon of the Bear, to make a careful examination, and put their conclusions in writing. This was done, and the reports are now in the hands of the navy department. Lieut. Greeley was decidedly averse to having the bodies of the buried dead disturbed, but the bodies were dug from their graves. Most of the blankets contained nothing but heaps of white bones, many of them picked clean. By inquiries Commander Schley discovered many of the seventeen men who are said to have perished from starvation had been eaten by their famishing comrades. It was the one last resort. It is reported that the only men who escaped the knife were three or four who died of scurvy. The amputated limbs of men who afterward perished, were eagerly devoured as food. Whether the four bodies which were swept out to sea and never recovered would have added further evidence to this story of horrible cannibalism, cannot be learned now, though the papers in the possession of the navy department give all the particulars as told by the survivors.

Charles P. Henry's death was particularly tragic. Driven to despair by his frightful hunger, Henry saw an opportunity to steal a little more than his share of rations, and he made the attempt. He was found and shot for his crime. In the published official report the death of this man is set down as having occurred June 5. When the body was found his hands and face, though shrunken, were intact and recognizable; but nearly everywhere else the skin had been stripped from him and the flesh picked from the bones. Even his heart and lungs were eaten by his comrades. The body was in this condition when it was interred last Saturday. The letter from his friend Robert S. Oberfelder, of Sidney, Neb., which is daily looked for, will probably never come to light.

The Future King of England.

An inspired article has appeared in Lloyd's Weekly, the chief organ of the working classes, on the politics of the prince of Wales. The writer says the prince of Wales has no belief in the policy of effacement of the empire, and will not shrink, when necessary, from assertion or exension of imperial responsibilities, though opposed to aggression. He is, therefore, drawn to the radicals, who have broken from the traditions of the Manchester peace party. The article further recites the heir apparent to the throne of England is a free trader on principle, and regrets the existence of a protection policy in other countries on the ground that a hostile tariff begets other forms of international hostility. He considers that many of the ideas and plans now identified with socialism are thoroughly practical, Christian and constitutional. Respecting forms of government, he accepts the pope's dictum that what is best administered is the best constitutional monarchy, and is the most economical form of government because it keeps a check upon individual ambition, extravagance and jobbery. The republican idea, in the abstract, is very facinating, in practice, delusive and costly through waste and unstable, especially in its foreign policy, which should be permeated by fixed principles, common to all parties of the state. The prince believes the English monarchy will endure, because it is the nucleus of the real republic, and having what other republics need, a center of gravity apart from all, yet allied to all.

A Brother Unknowingly Assaults His Sister.

A young lady, the daughter of a highly respected merchant of Hackensack, N. J., had occasion to visit some friends about three-quarters of a mile distant from her own home. At about 8 o'clock she started on her way home. When about midway between her friend's house and her own, the young woman was suddenly seized from behind, and while one of her assailants (for there were two) pinioned her arms, the other placed his hand over her mouth to prevent an outcry. Thus handicapped the girl was unable to defend herself and was dragged into the bushes. She had scarcely been thrown to the ground, when the moon broke through the clouds and a terrible discovery was made. "Oh, brother, spare me!" the girl cried, and then fainted. "My God," ejaculated the horror-stricken young man, "it is my sister!" Then he sank down beside her on the grass and cried like a child. It was some time before the young lady returned to consciousness, and when she did a neighbor stood beside her, and when she was able to stand, accompanied her to her home. The young woman, upon arriving home recounted the particulars of the terrible ordeal through which she had passed to her parents, but carefully, in order to shield her brother, concealed the facts of the horrible discovery she had made. Both of the young men have heretofore been highly respected, and it it is thought they were under the influence of liquor at the time.

The Earthquake at a Funeral.

New York Special.—On Sunday, during the funeral of Lewis Ingler Jr., the young man who committed suicide at Amityville, L. I., an extraordinary scene occured. As the minister was about to kneel in prayer, the shock of the earthquake shook the house. A large mirror which reached from the ceiling to the floor was cracked into from the top to the bottom, and the walls of the room were bracked, in two places. The flowers were shaken from the coffin and the silver handles at the sides of the casket rattled. The minister and several of the mourners fainted. There was a stampede to get outside and one lady jumped through an open window and sprained her leg so that she had to be carried to her home. The minister was unable to go on with the service, and the mourners and others remained outside while the pall-bearers re-entered the house and carried the coffin out to the hearse. A broom handle can be laid into the creacks in the wall.

A Montana Mining Sensation.

Butte, Mont., Special Telegram:—A sensation has been caused here by the sudden and secret departure of Francis W. H. Medhurst, general manager of the Lexington company, the biggest silver mining enterprise in Montana. The immediate cause of his flight is that Judge Davis, a prominent mining man, some time ago attached property of the Princeton Mining company, and Medhurst, in whose name the title rested, could not raise the $10,000 necessary to recover possession. Medhurst was heavily in debt, caused by excesses at the gaming table here and in Salt Lake, where he once flourished. His gambling debts aggregate about $75,000. He did not touch the funds of the Lexington company. His salary was $12,000 a year. Baron Erlanger of Paris, who is at the head of the Lexington syndicate, will pay the $10,000 claim of Judge Davis against the Princeton company, and it was with this understanding that Medhurst was allowed to leave.

Death of a Prominent Scandinavian.

Lewis O. Storla, auditor of Clay county, Minnesota, and appointee of the receivership of the Crookston land office, died Tuesday morning at Moorhead of typhoid fever, aged fifty-one years. He was the most prominent man of his nationality in Northwestern Minnesota. His life was insured for $8,000 in the United Workmen, Mutual Aid, Northwestern and Hartford Life.

Paul Sletten, Mr. Storla's predecessor in the Crookston office, it will be remembered, died a few weeks ago. Mr. Storla was born in Alamakee county, Iowa, Nov. 30, 1833, of Norwegian parents. His early years were spent on the farm of his father, and attending school in the neighborhood. In 1870 Storla went to Clay county, Minnesota, and settled in the town of Eglow, purchased a farm and run it until 1880, when he was elected county auditor by an overwhelming vote. He had held the office ever since, being re-elected in 1882. A few weeks ago he received notice of his appointment to the receivership of the Crookston land office, had accepted, and was taking steps to qualify when he died.

Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America.

The fourteenth annual convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America began at Central Music hall Chicago, on the 6th, at which Rev. Father James Cleary of Wisconsin, president of the union, called the delegates to order and led in prayer.

President Cleary presented his annual report. After congratulating the union on its prosperous condition, Father Cleary recommended that a large campaign fund be collected for the purpose of spreading temperance literature and keeping interest alive by sending lecturers through the country. The secretary's report showed there are twenty-four subordinate and twenty-six detached unions, with 612 societies in all, and a total membership of 39,440, a gain of 2,448 during the year. Minnesota has 55 Societies with 2,700 members. A letter was read from Cardinal McCloskey congratulating the order on its progress. Bishop Feehan and Archbishop Elder made brief addresses, in the cause. Bishop Ireland was introduced and was received with tumultuous applause by a vast audience. He laid down the general principle that legislation on the subject should go just as far as the salvation of the people demanded. The liquor traffic was doing the cause of temperance much good by its very recklessness and lawlessness. The Catholic people should be freed from the denomination of the saloon element. Teach them how to vote. Rev. Archbishop Elder of Cincinnati, was introduced. He felt filled with courage and joy to know that they were all doing so much. The nation depended upon the individuals of the country. Laws would not be enforced unless the public sentiment of the people stood behind the law, and backed up those who enforce the law.

The second day the treasurer presented his financial report, which showed the total receipts to been $1,573.70 and the disbursements $1,260.35, leaving a balance in the treasury of $313.44. After some discussion, it was resolved that the convention should meet next year in New Haven, Conn., on the first Wednesday in August. Bishops Spalding and Ireland entered the hall. As the reverend prelates passed to the platform, the convention rose en masse and received them standing. When the amendments to the constitution were disposed of, the rules were suspended by unanimous consent, in order that Bishops Ireland and Spalding might address the convention which they did very elegantly. A resolution, in which prohibitory legislation was indorsed, was offered by Father McCoy. A prolonged debate followed, and when voted upon, the resolution was lost. The sentiment of the convention is that moral suasion is the only way in which to advance the cause of temperance. The election of officers was then proceeded with. Father James F. Cleary of Wisconsin, was elected president, Rev. James F. Meatie of Brooklyn, N. Y., vice president; Rev. J. B. Bowles, of Ohio, tresurer; Philip A. Nolan was re-elected secretary.

The report of the committee on the resolutions characterizes those who cause crime and misery by selling intoxicating liquors as criminals; holds that moral suasion alone cannot prevail against intemperance; that the law must be invoked, and that it is dire calamity to trust the management of public affairs to those who hold office at the good will of liquor dealers. It continues, "While we recognize moral suasion as the basis of temperance work, we nevertheless declare our confidence in legal restriction of the liquor traffic as a means of the advancement of that work. Such restriction may go to whatever extent seems best to us in our capacity of Catholic temperance citizens. We emphasize the fact, however, that we cannot countenance or in any way encourage the liquor interest. Much less vote for it."

The Charge of Cannibalism.

Washington Special: The terrible tale of the experiences of the party in their canvas hut during the winter of 1884 has been the one topic of conversation in naval circles here, and there is a general belief that although the horrible story of human butchery which was published may not be true in all its allegations the worst side of their life in the Arctic during that period has yet to be made public. The attitude assumed by Commander Schley and the other officers of the rescuing party certainly gives color to this belief. While some of them were inclined to be communicative when questioned on the subject to-day by reporters, most of them were reticent. Commander Scheley, when approached by your correspondent, was not at all in a communicative mood.

"Don't bother me with your questioning," he said, "for I will have nothing to communicate to the public till the story is told at the official investigation. There is no truth in the story at all—none whatever. If the survivors of the party ate the flesh of their dead comrades, I know nothing whatever about it. Did I know of anything of the kind having been done, I should refuse to gratify a morbid curiosity and create a sensation out of the sad misfortunes of these men by disclosing any knowledge to any but the proper authorities. Men in such a situation lost their reason and are not strictly human beings. Starvation reduces men to brutes pretty rapidly, and they will resort to means of sustaining life which to us would seem appalling. If you and I were reduced to such a state that one must eat the other or both die, then it is proper that only the fittest should survive."

Talk About Earthquakes.

Maj. J. W. Powell, of the geological survey at Washington, talked thus about earthquades:

"Earthquakes in the eastern portion of the United States have been comparatively infrequent and mild. The most important was that in the Mississippi valley known as the New Madrid. A late earthquake in Western Nevada made a fracture about two hundred miles long, and the displacement varied from five to seventy-five feet. The western portion of the United States, from the farther border of the plains to the Pacific, is a region of many and great earthquakes. It has also been in very recent geologic times a region of great volcanic activity. Thousands of now dead volcanoes are scattered over the country, and vast lava fields cover large areas of the land. Salt Lake City stands on the margin of an earthquake fracture, and geologists have more than once prophesied that it will be destroyed by an earthquake. Geologists have concluded from the consideration of a great variety of facts that the interior of the earth is in a fluid condition, due to pressure and great heat. We penetrate, from the surface toward the interior of the earth by mines and by boring for artesian wells and other purposes. The temperature is found to increase at such a rate that a degree of heat would soon be reached at which all known rocks would melt. Secondly, a vast number of volcanoes is distributed widely over the earth, through the rents of which enormous quantities of molten rock are poured out on the surface of the earth, showing that a vast reservoir of molten matter exists beneath the crust. Thirdly, it is known, experimentally, that all rocks would be crushed and caused to flow by the pressure of a few miles of superincumbent rock. Now, to understand the cause of an earthquake we must appreciate that a comparatively thin crust rests upon a vast fluid. The next thing to be considered is, that all the land portions of the earth is rapidly being transported to the sea by rains and rivers. Thus the land areas are being unloaded and ocean borders are weighed down. This loading of sea borders and unloading of land areas upon a crust which rests upon a fluid sets up enormous strains, but they accumulate until at last sufficient stress is established to cause fracture and displacement through the miles of solid crust. When such a rupture occurs an earthquake is the result. All earthquakes in regions where volcanoes do not exist, are thus caused by strains due to the degradation of some portion of the continent, and the loading of the material upon some other portion of the continent."

Three children on a farm near South Perry, Ohio, named Robert Wood, Louis D. Wood and Kate Shaw, all under ten years, were burned to death in a barn, having gone there to smoke, and in so doing set the building on fire.

SECRECY OF GREAT CITIES.

One Half the People Know Very Little About the Other Half.

From the New York Tribune.

Much surprise has been expressed that the employes of Scovil should have known nothing of his ways of life; that he should have lived as a rich man for years without attracting suspicion. But there is really nothing astonishing in this, for in all great cities similar things are continually going on. Business men as a rule seldom meet their employes out of business hours, and have no knowledge of their mode or scale of living. And there are many cases on record of defaulters, forgers and embezzlers who, though maintaining costly establishments on their stolen funds, have kept up for many years successfully appearances which ought to have challenged suspicion. Two of the most prominent of these cases are those of Robson and Redpath, the English railway forgers. Both of these men, though clerks on comparatively small salaries, lived most luxuriously. Both of them gave costly entertainments, kept horses and carriages, had town and country houses, subscribed liberally to charities, and in a word did everything they could do to attract attention and gain notoriety. Yet though their profuse style of living had been going on for years, their employers knew nothing of it until other circumstances had aroused their suspicions. Robson was the first to be caught, and the disclosures following his arrest naturally caused uneasiness among railroad directors generally.

It was while this uneasiness prevailed that one day a certain peer was standing on the platform at a Great Northern Railway station, talking to the chairman of the company. Just then Redpath passed and bowed to his chairman. The peer sprang forward and shook hands warmly with the subordinate. This surprised the chairman, who asked the peer, "What do you know of our clerk?" The reply was, "He is a capital fellow, and gives the best balls and entertainments in London." That set the chairman thinking, and the result was the discovery that this brilliant entertainer, patron of literature and the fine arts, and generous philanthropist, had by forgery stolen about $1,500,000 from the company. But it was by the merest accident that the facts were brought to light, and so it has been in plenty of other cases. The fact is that in great cities few people knew what their neighbors are doing and most are too busy to trouble themselves with inquiries. The world may be very small, as it has been the fashion to say of late years, but great cities still afford conditions of concealment so complete that it is necessary to elaborate precautions. The greater the population the greater the obscurity for the majority of the individuals composing it, is the rule which governs all such cases, and which explains what to the unobserving seems remarkable.

Life in Dakota.

Letters in Rural New Yorker.

It is pleasant to turn from these drunkards to a class who have been overtaken by some calamity and come out here to retrieve their fortune—steady-going, plucky fellows who make the most of everything, and are determined to succeed. Their mode of living is exceedingly frugal, and in that they are largely indebted to their wives. They tax their ingenuity to accomplish much with few tools, and in every way possible get along with as little expense as possible. A neighbor of mine went to town last Winter with his good lady inside a large packing case set on two runners made of a scantling. Had their friends back in Michigan seen them in such a rig, they would, no doubt, have been horrified; but they did their journeys quite comfortably and saved the expense of a sled. Then that class appear to have faith, a quality very much wanted now-a-days; faith that their Creator will not fail them in the hour of trial. Their tools, what they have, are well cared for, and their stock is well housed, especially in winter. Things prosper with them so well that the improvident class wonder how they get along so well. They ascribe their success to good luck, but I, for one, firmly protest in season and sometimes out of it, that there is no such thing as good or bad luck. If stock or crops do well, it is the direct result of care and attention; if they don't, it is the result of carelessness. That is a belief that nothing can shake, and it would be well if it were more generally acted on. Only this last winter, I have seen some striking examples of its truth. But to return to the class of which I have been speaking:—These men are the salt of Dakota, and I look for great results from their painstaking and systematic labors.

Nature is exceedingly lavish with her resources here, and poor farming lives on her bounties; but the time will come when these poor farmers will have to mend their ways, or, like the Indian, move further west. Every month sees some shiftless fellow sell out, and in some cases a better man takes his place, so that before long we shall have a good farming community. Most people are going into stock as fast as their means will allow, and the fact that heifer calves cannot be bought, shows how things are tending. Then there is the young man who "baches it." He has either been jilted by his girl back East, and has come out to make his fortune and go back and have his revenge in marrying some one of her friends, or his girl is true to him, and he has come out here to make a home for her. Living half Indian, half civilized, he leads a strange life. His shanty is very primitive, and his mode of living very simple; but he has a stout heart and great expectations. He sees everything through a rose colored medium, and has no doubt of the future. Dyspepsia and disbelief are unknown to him; he is possessed of a sound body, and if he has no great soul he is at least generous-hearted. He is the favorite at the store, as he is a large consumer of tobacco and other things on which there is a profit, and he never tries to beat down. My sketches of character would be incomplete without the "school-marm." Here she is a veritable queen, and rules her admirers with a despot's sway. She has no end of lovers, and has escorts, buggy rides, flirtations and fun ad libitum, but I may ask to what profit?—Clarke Co., Dak.

MEN OF MANY WIVES.

Gov. Ramsey's Retrospect of the Work Done By the Utah Commission—The Mormon Majorities.

Gov. Ramsey, who has just returned from Utah, in an interview yesterday related the progress made by the Utah commission. His prominent connection with the commission gives peculiar value to Gov. Ramsey's views. In response to an inquiry, he said:

The commission is still in Utah, and I shall return within a month to my duties in connection with it. As to our work, there is nothing particularly new, nor do we care to say much of what is being done. We stand in the relation of quasi-judges to those people, put there to enforce the Edmunds law. Last March the election of county officers took place. Judges, clerks, sheriffs, etc., were chosen and elected by the Mormons, but no polygamists received certificates of election, nor do I think they would presume to elect one; neither can those polygamists vote. In November next the election of a territorial delegate will take place."

After referring to the purport of the Edmunds bill, Gov. Ramsey continued:

"When the laws become so effective as to exclude all polygamists from the polls there will be enough Mormons left to elect their chosen candidates. We do not expect to accomplish much now, under our present law. The great, effective bill, of which great hopes are entertained, is the one now pending in congress. It passed the senate last winter, and awaits the action of the house at the next session. The Edmunds bill is fully executed in all its parts. That is undisputed. The new bill, of which we expect so much, is composed of twenty-four or twenty-five sections. The chief of these are those that exclude women from the polls—they now vote; makes a public record of every marriage, takes the management of church property from church authorities and puts it in the hands of a board of trustees, appointed by the president and appoints superintendents of schools.

As to the success of our present work it is hard to say. Sometimes we feel very much encouraged, and again, our efforts seem unavailing. The more active the goverment is in its opposition to the vices of Mormonism, the more the heads of the church press upon the people."

In closing, Gov. Ramsey said that he expected papers to-day from Utah giving full information of the status of affairs at present.

In connection with the above, Gov. Ramsey gave from the last report of the commission valuable information from a statistical point of view. In 1883 the Utah legislature was entirely composed of polygamists, with the exception of two or three, but since the commission entered on its duties, 1,351 officers have been elected, not one of whom is a polygamist. In this number 390 municipal officers are included. By reason of polygamy fully 12,000 voters have been disfranchised. Of schools, there are seventy-nine denominational ones, with an average daily attendance of nearly 6,000 pupils. The population of the territory is estimated at 160,000, four-fifths of whom are Mormons, most of them accepting pologamy as a divine revelation, though only a small per cent have entered into that relationship.

Rattlesnake Jake's Death.

From the Portland Oregonian.

On Big Spring creek, in Meagher county, a few days ago, Rattlesnake Jake and his partner O'Fallon, two desperadoes and reputed horse-thieves, attempted to run a small place called Lewiston, and meeting with some opposition they declared they would clean out the town, and commenced shooting at everybody in sight. There were only three guns in the town and they were placed in the hands of men of undaunted courage, who used them with such good effect that both of the supposed horse thieves were run down in a short time, O'Fallon being shot first, through and through with a Winchester rifle, and Rattlesnake served in a like manner a short time afterward. Both men showed great pluck. O'Fallon, after being shot through, rode back to his partner and asked him if he was hurt. Jake said that he was. "Well," said O'Fallon, "I am shot and I am a dead man, but I will stay with you." At that moment he fell from his horse, then raised himself upon his knees, took deliberate aim with a Winchester at a young man named Smith, an outsider, who was trying to get away from the fracas, and shot him through the head, killing him instantly.

The citizens saw that there would be more men killed if the thing was not ended quickly and shooting of pistols of all sizes commenced in earnest. O'Fallon took five shots in the body before he fell the second time and then he raised himself on his side and continued shooting until he had not strength enough to support himself, and after lying down he kept shooting as long as there was life in him.

Rattlesnake Jake, after he was shot through the body, kept shooting; then his right arm was broken by a ball and he changed to his left hand and kept shooting; another ball broke his left leg and, supporting himself by the other, kept shooting; another ball struck his chin, carrying away half his jaw, when he fell on the ground, raised himself on his side and kept shooting. From weakness he could not support himself any longer and he fired lying flat on the ground. There were nine balls in him before he gave up. Just before he drew his last breath he made an effort to draw his pistol again, but had not strength enough, and it fell by his side.

Decline of Wheat in England.

A correspondent of the Country Gentleman, living it England, notes the gradual decline in the value of the wheat crop and the necessity for a change. He says: "Our crops of wheat for the past nine years have been deficient, for the acreage produce has been only 24½ bushels. The main cause of this low average was the disasterous season of 1879, when the crop was estimated at but 18 bushels per acre. The most productive wheat crop of the present generation was in the hot and dry summer of 1868. The difference between the last harvest and that of 1868 is very striking indeed, and it shows in bold relief the changed position of the farmer. The price of wheat of the former period was 64 shillings per quarter, and 34 bushels at that price is £13 12s per acre. Last year the average yield is placed at 26 bushels per acre and the price 36 shillings. The farmer would therefore pocket £5 17s per acre. Thus it is plain that wheat cannot be grown at the money, far the English farmer asserts that he cannot grow wheat at less than about £9 per acre. The decrease of wheat cultivation in ten years amounts to upward of 1,000,000 acres, and about double the quantity of what is now grown at home has to be imported. More land is being laid down to grass and the alteration of the times obviously points in that direction. One result of the times appears that a great reduction of rents is imminent. Many of the large owners are granting reductions of rent which range from 10 to 40 per cent, but a reduction of less than 30 per cent is of little avail, and very lately a number of farmers have sunk under their burdens. The agricultural situation would have been much worse but for the good prices obtained for cattle and sheep."

On the point regarding the shipment of store cattle from the United States he says: "The idea of bringing store cattle from the western states of America is entertained by some British farmers, especially those in Scotland, but it looks somewhat Utopian. It is granted that stores are too high; then why should not the British farmer rear and get the high price for himself. A one-year-old and under pays as much, counting the value of food consumed, as a two-year-old or a three-year-old."

A Somnambulist's Danger.

The Cleveland Leader of Monday says: While one of the through expresses was standing in the Union Depot last night an old gentleman in partial dishabille climbed down from one of the steps of the sleeper, and started to walk across the tracks. His eyes were open, but glared vacantly about, although he apparently picked his way toward the stairs leading out of the depot. He had walked about half way across the track when a young man rushed out of the car and caught him by the arm. The younger gentleman was minus his coat and shoes, and his toilet had evidently been a hasty one. He led the old genteman back to the car, which he entered without a word. "Father is a somnambulist," explained the young man, as he stepped from the platform of the car, "and frequently walks in his sleep. He requires constant attention while traveling and it is never safe to leave him alone, even at home. He had just lain down in his berth without completely preparing for the night, and I had almost fallen asleep myself. He is just as likely to wander out of the car and down and off the steps when the train is in motion as he is when it is standing still." But few passengers were in the depot at the time, and the occurrence was not noticed by more than a half dozen.

What there is in a Bottle.

Sufficient to stop in five minutes the smarting, stinging pain of 100 burns or scalds. It will stop the pain as soon as applied.

Abundance to cure a score of colds and the coughing that often leads the way to Consumption. IT WILL POSITIVELY ease a Cough in fifteen minutes.

More than enough to save a dozen children Choking with CROUP. One minute after the first dose the hardest attack of Croup will be relieved.

Plenty to relieve the oppression and wheezing of the most severe case of Asthma. The direct cure of Asthma by this medicine is proof that Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has no equel as an Asthma cure.

In the above cases Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil can be relied upon. It has given relief to thousands. Keep it in your house. There is hardly a week of the year it will not be useful.

THE BEST IS THE CHEAPEST—therefore use Frazor Axle Grease.

The will of T. S. McManus was filed for probate at St. Paul. His estate goes to the widow and children.

"Woman and Her Diseases"

is the title of an interesting illustrated treatise (96 pages) sent, post-paid, for three letter stamps. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N Y

Dix, Becker county, is the latest Minnesota postoffice.

"Delays are Dangerous."

If you are pale, emaciated, have a hacking cough, with night-sweats, spitting of blood and shortness of breath, you have no time to lose. Do not hesitate too long—'till you are past cure; for, taken in the early stages, consumption can be cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," as thousands can testify. By druggists.

Commander Schley says the alleged interview with him is a lie.

"Yes; I shall break the engagement," she said, folding her arms and looking defiant; "it is really too much trouble to converse with him; he's as deaf as a post, and talks like he had a mouthful of mush. Besides, the way he hawks and spits is disgusting." "Don't break the engagement for that; tell him to take Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. It will cure him completely." "Well, I'll tell him. I do hate to break it off, for in all other respects he's quite too charming." Of course, it cured his catarrh.

A $50,000 statue has been erected to the memory of Mozart in Vienna.

"A Case of Eczema."

I have been afflicted for about three years with Eczema. I think I had a good doctor: he did all he could for me, until he was baffled; he could do nothing more and gave me up. I have tried many ointments which did me no good. I have used your Papillion Skin Cure for four months; used four bottles, and am nearly cured. I give you perfect liberty to publish this if it will help any one else. I have recommended it to all my friends. Another bottle will completely cure me. With many thanks.

JULIA CALLOW,
15 Grant St., Cleveland, O.

Allen's Iron Tonic Bitters is the grand appetizer of the age. All genuine bear the signature of J. P. Allen, Druggist, St. Paul, Minn.

If a cough disturbs your sleep one dose of Piso's cure will give you a night's rest.

Plain as The Nose on Your Face.

What is the difference between a persons nose and Carboline the Great Petroleum Hair Renewer. Ans:—one is the center of the head and the other is a head-scenter.

Piles! Piles! Piles!

Sure cure for Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles. Single box has cured worst chronic case of twenty years standing. No one need suffer five minutes after applying. William's Indian Pile ointment. It absorbs the tumors, allays the itching (praticularly after getting warm in bed). Prepared only for piles and itching for the private parts. Noyes Bros. & Cutler, St Paul. Wholesale Agents.

A firm of Helena tailors are in trouble for smuggling.

"Buchu-Paiba." Quick, complete cure, all annoying kidney and urinary diseases. $1.

I have been using Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) and find it to be the best remedy of the kind I have ever been able to get, and I have tried hem all. JOHN TISCHER, 3d U. S. Cavalry.

The prince of Wales' second son is at school at Heidelberg, Germany.

"Rough on Itch" cures humors, eruptions, ringworms, tetter, salt rheum, frosted feet, chilblains.

Older than Emperor William.

Dr. Warner's German Hop Bitters, the great German Remedy. None genuine that do not bear Dr. C. D. Warner's name on bottle and label.

Don't Be Swindled.

The only genuine German Hop Bitters and White Wine of Tar Syrup are Dr. C. D. Warner's, whose name appears on every bottle, label and wrapper of the genuine.

A large number of spurious dimes are in circulation in New York.

"Rough on Rats." Clears out rats, mice, flies, roaches, bed-bugs, ants, vermin, chipmunks. 15c.

Three burglars who depredated in Hastings, were captured with their plunder at Red Wing.

An Invaluable Remedy.—None except those who have suffered all the horrors of Dyspepsia can fully appreciate the value and efficacy of Perry Davis' Pain Killer, a sovereign remedy for this distressing disease in all its forms is used internally and externally, test its virtues.

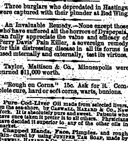
Taylor, Mattison & Co., Minneapolis were burned $11,000 worth.

"Rough on Corns." 15c. Ask for it. Complete cure, hard or soft corns, warts, bunions.

Pure Cod-Liver Oil made from selected livers, on the sea-shore, by CASWELL, HAZARD & CO., New York. It is absolutely pure and sweet. Patients who have once taken it prefer it to all others. Physicians have decided it superior to any of the other oils in market.

Chapped Hands, Face, Pimples, and rough Skin cured by using JUNIPER TAR SOAP, made by CASWELL, HAZARD & CO., New York.

Cole's Carbolisalve instantly relieves the pain of Burns and Scalds and never leaves a Scar. It is the best salve in the world for general family use. 25c. and 75c. At druggists or by mail.
J. W. COLE & CO., Black River Falls, Wis.



ST. JACOBS OIL
TRADE MARK
THE GREAT GERMAN REMEDY FOR PAIN.
CURES
Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica,
Lumbago, Backache, Headache, Toothache,
Sore Throat, Swellings, Sprains, Bruises,
Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites,
AND ALL OTHER BODILY PAINS AND ACHES.
Sold by Druggists and Dealers everywhere. Fifty Cents a bottle.
Directions in 11 Languages.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO.
(Successors to A. VOGELER & CO.) Baltimore, Md., U.S.A.

"I owe my Restoration to Health and Beauty to the CUTICURA REMEDIES."
Testimonial of a Boston lady.

DISFIGURING Humors, Humiliating Eruptions Itching Tortures, Scrofula, Salt Rheum and Infantile Humors, cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new blood purifier, cleanses the blood and perspiration of impurities and poisonous elements, and thus removes the cause.

CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, instantly allays Itching and Inflammation, clears the Skin and Scalp, heals Ulcers and Sores, and restores the Hair.

CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier and Toilet Requisite, prepared from CUTICURA, is indispensable in treating Skin Diseases, Baby Humors, Skin Blemishes, Chapped and Oily Skin.

CUTICURA REMEDIES are absolutely pure and the only infallible Blood Purifiers and Skin Beautifiers.

Sold everywhere. Price, Cuticura, 50 cents; Soap, 25 cents; Resolvent, $1. POTTER DRUG AND CHEMICAL CO., BOSTON, MASS.

PAIN!

Pain is supposed to be the lot of us poor mortals, as inevitable as death, and liable at any time to come upon us. Therefore it is important that remedial agents should be at hand to be used in an emergency, when we are made to feel the excruciating agonies of pain, or the depressing influence of disease. Such a remedial agent exists in that old Reliable Family Remedy,

PERRY DAVIS'
Pain-Killer
It was the first and is the Only Permanent Pain Reliever.
ITS MERITS ARE UNSURPASSED.
There is nothing to equal it for curing
Colic, Cramps, Spasms, Heartburn, Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Flux, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache.
CURES CHOLERA!
When Cholera prevailed in the years 1849 and 1850,
"PAIN-KILLER"
Was used with such wonderful success, that it is considered an unfailing cure for all Bowel Complaints. It has stood the test of Forty Years' Constant Use in all Countries.
WHEN USED EXTERNALLY AS A LINIMENT, nothing gives quicker ease in Burns, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Stings from Insects and Scalds. Those suffering with Rheumatism, Gout or Neuralgia, if not a positive cure, they find the PAIN-KILLER gives them relief when no other remedy will. In sections of the country where
FEVER AND AGUE
Prevails, there is no remedy held in greater esteem. Persons traveling should keep it by them.
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

LADIES Pennyroyal and Steel Pills, absolutely safe, sure and effectual. Full particulars on application. Lachine Chem'l Co., Lachine, Can.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS
The feeble grow strong when Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is used to promote assimilation of the food and enrich the blood. Indigestion, the chief obstacle to an acquisition of strength by the weak, is an ailment which infallibly succumbs to the action of this peerless corrective. Loss of flesh and appetite, failure to sleep, and growing evidence of premature decay, are speedily counteracted by the great invigorant, which braces up the physical energies and fortifies the constitution against disease. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

CURES ALL DISEASES OF THE KIDNEYS, LIVER, BLADDER, AND URINARY ORGANS, DROPSY, GRAVEL, DIABETES, BRIGHT'S DISEASE, PAINS IN THE BACK, LOINS OR SIDE, NERVOUS DISEASES.
HUNT'S KIDNEY & LIVER REMEDY NEVER KNOWN TO FAIL
By the use of this REMEDY, the Stomach and Bowels speedily regain their strength, and the blood is purified.
It is pronounced by hundreds of the best doctors to be the ONLY CURE for all kinds of Kidney Diseases.
It is purely vegetable, and cures when other medicines fail. Over 100 Physicians in the State of Rhode Island on record testifying in its favor and who prescribe it regularly.
It is prepared expressly for these diseases, and has never been known to fail. One trial will convince you. For sale by all druggists. PRICE $1.25.
Send for Pamphlet of Testimonials.
HUNT'S REMEDY CO.,
PROVIDENCE, R. I.
A. W. Brown, M.D., of Providence, R. I., says: "I have used HUNT'S [Kidney and Liver] REMEDY in my practice for the past sixteen years, and cheerfully recommend it as being a safe and reliable remedy." 8

TUTT'S PILLS
TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.
From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect
ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.
Sold everywhere, 25c. Office, 44 Murray St., N.Y.
TUTT'S HAIR DYE.
GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed instantly to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.
Office, 44 Murray Street, New York.
TUTT'S MANUAL OF USEFUL RECEIPTS FREE.

RULES For self-measurement and price list sent free by BIG BOSTON, Minneapolis.

NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, MUSIC, Vocal and Instrumental and Tuning. ART, Drawing, Painting, Modeling and Portraiture. ORATORY, Literature and Languages. HOME, Elegant accommodations for 500 lady students. FALL TERM begins Sept. 11th. Beautifully Ill'd Calendar free. Address E. TOURJEE, Director, FRANKLIN SQUARE, BOSTON, MASS.

U.S. STANDARD. JONES OF BINGHAMTON
5 TON WAGON SCALES, Iron Levers, Steel Bearings, Brass Tare Beam and Beam Box, $60 and JONES he pays the freight—for free Price List mention this paper and address JONES OF BINGHAMTON, Binghamton, N. Y.

A Great Problem.
—Take all the Kidney and Liver Medicines,
—Take all the Blood Purifiers,
—Take all the Rheumatic remedies,
—Take all the Dyspepsia and indigestion cures,
—Take all the Ague, Fever, and bilious Specifics,
—Take all the Brain and Nerve force revivers,
—Take all the Great Health restorers,
—In short, take all the best qualities of all these, and the best
—Qualities of all the best medicines in the world, and you will find that —Hop
—Bitters have the best curative qualities and powers of all —concentrated —In them, and that they will cure when any or all of these, singly or—combined
—Fail. A thorough trial will give positive proof of this.

Hardened Liver.
Five years ago I broke down with kidney and liver complaint and rheumatism.
Since then I have been unable to be about at all. My liver became hard like wood; my limbs were puffed up and filled with water.
All the best Physicians agreed that nothing could cure me. I resolved to try Hop Bitters; I have used seven bottels; the hardness has all gone from my liver, the swelling from my limbs, and it has worked a miracle in my case; otherwise I would have been now in my grave. J. W. MOREY, Buffalo, Oct. 1, 1881.

Poverty and Suffering.
"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring.
I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I commenced using Hop Bitters, and in one month we were all well, and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost. I know it."—A WORKINGMAN.
☞ None genuine without a bunch of green Hops on the white label. Shun all the vile, poisonous stuff with "Hop" or "Hops" in their name.

LEARN TELEGRAPHY on our lines. Particulars free. GLOBE TELEGRAPH CO., St. Paul.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

WHITE BEAVER'S COUGH CREAM Heals Diseased Lungs.

LEARN TELEGRAPHY, or SHORT-HAND and TYPE WRITING HERE. Situations furnished. Address Valentine Bros., Janesville, Wis.

STOCKS of goods wanted in exchange for Minneapolis Real Estate. E. H. Steele, Minneapolis.

GUNS ShotGuns Revolvers, Rifles, Etc. Large Ill. Catalogue free. Address Great Western Gun Works, Pittsburgh, Pa.

SOLDIERS. NEW LAWS. Officers pay from commissions, deserters relieved, pensions and increase. Experience 19 years, write for circulars and laws. A. W. McCormick & Son, Cincinnati, Ohio.

MORPHINE and CHLORAL HABITS EASILY CURED. BOOK FREE. Dr. J. C. Hoffman, Jefferson, Wisconsin. OPIUM

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.

DON'T BUY AN ENGINE
Until you have seen our Circulars and Prices. $250 for 15 Horse Power, to $550 for 60 Horse Power. Engines complete with Governor, Pump, Heater, and Throttle Valve, and Sight Feed Cylinder Lubricator. More than 1,000 in use. Send for circular giving testimonials from every State in the Union. Perfect satisfaction guaranteed.
HERALD & MORRIS,
[Mention this paper.] Baldwinsville, N. Y.

PAPILLON BLOOD CURE
ABSOLUTELY CURES
ALL DISEASES OF THE BLOOD, STOMACH, Liver, Bowels and Kidneys; Sick Headaches, Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, and all kinds of Female Complaints. This medicine contains no mineral; is absolutely a vegetable composition.
FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

Dr. Spinney & Co.
Treat all Chronic and Nervous Diseases. Young men who may be suffering with Weakness, Nervous Debility, Despondency, Aversion to Society, Kidney troubles, or any similar diseases, can here find a safe and speedy cure. There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are often troubled with uncomfortable symptoms, accompanied by weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. Examination reveals the fact that the patient's system is undergoing a depletion which rapidly exhausts every vital function. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause. The doctor will guarantee a cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration. Pamphlet, with full particulars, sent free to any address. Call on or address DR. SPINNEY & CO., 37 S. Third st., Minneapolis, Minn.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND
IS A POSITIVE CURE FOR
All those painful Complaints and Weaknesses so common to our best FEMALE POPULATION.
Price $1 in liquid, pill or lozenge form.
Its purpose is solely for the legitimate healing of disease and the relief of pain, and that it does all it claims to do, thousands of ladies can gladly testify.
It will cure entirely all Ovarian troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Falling and Displacements, and consequent Spinal Weakness, and is particularly adapted to the change of life.
It removes Faintness, Flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves Weakness of the Stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. Send stamp to Lynn, Mass., for pamphlet. Letters of inquiry confidentially answered. For sale at druggists.

DEDERICK'S HAY PRESSES.

are sent anywhere on trial to operate against all other presses. the customer keeping the one that suits best.
Order on trial, address for circular and location of Western and Southern Storehouses and Agents.
P. K. DEDERICK & CO., Albany, N. Y.

20 Years!

The reports from the use of Swift's Specific (S.S.S.) in the treatment of Cancer continue to be wonderful. There seems to be no doubt that it is a positive specific for Skin Cancer or Epithelioma.

"For twenty years I suffered from a Cancer on my neck. 'Patent Potash and Mercury Mixtures' fed instead of curing the Cancer. I lost the use of my arms and the upper part of my body. My general health was broken down, and my life was despaired of. S. S. S. cured me sound and well. This new lease of life it gave to me cannot be measured by any monetary value. I owe my life and the support of my family to Swift's Specific."

W. R. ROBISON, Davisboro, Ga.

"Mr. Brooks near Albany, was hopelessly afflicted with Cancer. It had eaten through his nose into his mouth and throat. The time of his death was only a question of a very short time. He prayed for death, his suffering was so great. S. S. S. has had a wonderful effect on him. His improvement is so great that we all feel sure of his being perfectly cured in time.
W. H. GILBERT, Albany, Ga.

Our Treatise on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed free to applicants.

SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga. N. Y. Office, 159 W. 23d St. Philadelphia Office, 1205 Chestnut St.

N. W. N. U. 1884. No. 34.

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS
MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD
Positively cure SICK-HEADACHE, Biliousness, and all LIVER and BOWEL Complaints, MALARIA, BLOOD POISON, and Skin Diseases (ONE PILL A DOSE). For Female Complaints these Pills have no equal. "I find them a valuable Cathartic and Liver Pill."—Dr. T. M. Palmer, Monticello, Fla. "In my practice I use no other."—J. Dennison, M.D., DeWitt, Iowa. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cts. in stamps. Valuable information FREE. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., BOSTON, MASS.

CULCHAW.

Miss Pallas Eudora von Blurky
She didn't know chicken from turkey,
High Spanish and Greek,
She could fluently speak,
But her knowledge of poultry was murky.

She could tell the great uncle of Moses,
And the dates of the Wars of the Roses;
And the reasons of things,
Why the Indians wore rings
In their red aboriginal noses.

Why Shakespheare was wrong in his grammer
And the meaning of Emerson's "Brahama;"
And she went chipping rocks,
With a little black box,
And a small geological hammer.

She had views upon conduction,
And the principal needs of the nation;
And her glasses were blue,
And the number she knew
Of the stars in each high constellation.

And she wrote in a handwriting clerky,
And she spoke with an emphasis jerky;
And she painted on tiles
In the sweetest of styles,
But her knowledge of poultry was murky.
—The Judge.

THE BROKEN VOW.

"So, Harry, you are about to leave us. How can I exist during the next year without your presence or your love?"

"Hush, darling, how can you speak so? You well know that my love you will always posses; and, as time flies fast a year will not be long passing."

Such were the words spoken one beautiful, balmy night in July, 186—.

Both were seated near an open window which faced the sloping lawn, and through which the soft beams of the rising moon entered, thus producing a soft, mellow light and somber shade, more beautiful than the chiarescuro of of a Rembrandt picture.

Harry Temple was a young man, apparently about 23 years old—neither handsome nor otherwise—but in whose breast no spark of falsehood or dishonor could be found.

He was a great favorite with all who knew him for his frank, generous, and confiding disposition, and quiet, unassuming manners—quick to resent an insult, he was always ready to apologize when he happened to be in the wrong.

He had known Agnes Crawford for many years, and soon manifested a preference for her society.

She, too, although then only a romantic school-girl of 16, was proud of the homage paid her, and soon learned to love him with all the affection of her nature.

About three months previous to the conversation alluded to they went on a pleasure excursion with some friends. Early in the afternoon, being tired of dancing, they proceeded to a retired nook, which was sheltered from observation by the overhanging branches of trees.

At their feet glided the river calmly by, and while gazing at their reflection in the water Harry Temple told her of his love, and besought her to answer him truly and faithfully whether she could return it.

She, of course, though she often expected such a question, became embarrassed, cast down her eyes, and blushed excessively. But that was evidence enough in her lover's estimation, so, drawing her close to him, he imprinted the first kiss on her lips and addressed her in every endearing expression of love and rapture.

From that day they were acknowledged as betrothed lovers.

Now, however, they were about to be severed from each other's society.

Harry had received a letter from his uncle the day before requesting him to go immediately to Cincinnati and enter his office. A liberal salary was offered to him, and he determined to accept it. He therefore called on his betrothed, explained the necessity of their separation for a time, and promised to marry her in a year, if she would consent to wait till that time. She wept bitterly at first, but seeing the advantages which her lover would derive, she consented.

After some time passed in the conversation which young lovers delight to indulge in, Harry drew his affianced to his breast and imprinted a passionate, loving kiss on her lips as he exclaimed: "Now, darling, I must bid you adieu. The cars for Cincinnati leave at 9 o'clock, and I have but one hour to make arrangements for my departure. Remember, Agnes, that I will certainly claim you in a year from this day—that is, if you do not in the meantime find some person who will win your affections from me."

"Oh, Harry, how cruel of you to mention such nonsense. You know I have given you my first and last love, and I never can love another," she sobbed, as she clung to his shoulder and hid her blushing face on his breast.

After one last embrace he gently released himself and, with a fond look at the object of his love, departed.

For several months they corresponded regularly. Each letter written was couched in language breathing the most endearing expressions of affection and fidelity.

They regretted the cruel fate which separated them, but they looked forward to the time when they should meet to part no more.

In the last letter Agnes had written to her lover she used four pages closely written in explaining her plans for the coming wedding—the dress she intended to wear, the places she desired to visit after her marriage, and even alluded to the manner in which she would conduct her future household.

But it appears she forgot the old adage, which says:

The best laid plans of mice and men
Oft gang agley.

As the postscript of a lady's letter usually contains the most important information, here was no exception to the general rule. [illegible] She stated in a careless manner, that a young gentleman, [illegible] had been introduced to her a few evenings previous [illegible]

Harry Temple received [illegible] a week after it was written [illegible] and he had hopes of soon becoming a member of the firm.

He waited in vain for a reply, but none came. His mind was filled with conjectures as to the cause of the unusual silence of his affianced. He imagined that some accident had befallen her—that she was ill or perhaps dead. Being faithful himself, he could not believe her faithless. Accordingly he determined to postpone his visit no longer, and, having obtained his uncle's consent, he set out.

On his arrival at W— he immediately proceeded to the residence of Miss Crawford, and was shown into the parlor.

In a few minutes, which to him seemed hours, Mrs. Crawford entered and welcomed him sorrowfully.

"Mrs. Crawford, tell me for God's sake, how is Agnes?" he exclaimed, excitedly.

"My dear friend, endeavor to calm your feelings while I explain the cause of her absence."

She then told him how devotedly Agnes had loved him until about a month previous, when she met a young gentleman at a party, who was assiduous in his attentions to her—that he called upon her frequently, and at length Agnes appeared unhappy unless when in his presence.

She also stated that she frequently warned her daughter on the subject, and besought her to abstain from flirting with a person about whom they knew nothing.

But all her warnings were disregarded, and three weeks ago, on the day after she had received his letter informing her of his intended visit, she had eloped, and since that time nothing had been heard in regard to her whereabouts.

Harry received this information silently. Not a single word escaped him, but a close observer might have noticed a nervous twitching of the lips and the deadly pallor of his countenance.

When Mrs. Crawford concluded he arose, and, although she endeavoured to prevail on him to remain, he merely thanked her and departed.

He returned to Cincinnati the same evening, and, observing his uncle's surprise, he told him he had changed his mind and concluded to return to his desk.

About two years subsequent Harry Temple, who was now a junior partner, visited New York on business connected with the firm.

One evening, while walking along the Bowery, he observed a female wretchedly dressed, whose features seemed familiar. In her arms she carried a poor, sickly-looking child, whose piteous wailing she endeavoured in vain to appease. He approached, and, as the light from one of the street-lamps disclosed her features, he beheld the woman he once loved, but so wan and dejected had she become as to be scarce recognizable.

He had no desire to speak to her, but he resolved to render her some assistance before he left New York for his home in the west.

He followed her without being observed to her home in a dilapidated-looking tenement building, and, having ascertained all the informrtion he desired to know from one of the lodgers, he left.

The next day he sent her without giving his name) a sum of money sufficient to keep her from immediate want.

Teaching Deaf Mutes.

The only deaf-mute college in the world is the one at Washington, D. C., which Congress has endowed as a national institution. Associated with it is a primary school, to which the most experienced teachers are assigned. For the primary desk is thought to be the post of honor, as at it the deaf mute learns how to learn and lays the foundation of all future progress.

A writer in Harper's Magazine publishes several anecdotes which illustrate how these primary-school children express themselves.

An exercise among the more advanced scholars required them to write sentences introducing words from the day's lesson. An example of the use of the word "astonished" was amusing. It was:

"A boy went to the woods; he astonished some apples on a tree"—meaning, he took them by surprise.

Here are some of their plurals that make us blush for our illogical language. Singular, Ox; plural, oxen. Singular, Box; plural, boxen. Singular, Mouse; plural, mice. Singular, House; plural, hice.

A girl wrote a sketch of Job's history, with the startling information that "the Lord boiled him." But the most touching of all the anecdotes is that of a little fellow who, when asked what George Washington did when his father inquired about the cherry tree, wrote on the blackboard:

"He took his hatchet in his left hand, and told his father he did it."

"Why did he take the hatchet in his left hand?" asked the teacher, surprised at the expression; and the answer came promptly,—

"Because he had to use his right hand to tell his father."

The child thought George Washington was deaf and dumb, and was therefore compelled to use his right hand to tell his father in the sign langauge.

Things in General.

It is proposed to organize, under the auspices of the American Social Science Association, during its next annual session at Saratoga, September 8-12, 1884, an American Historical Association, consisting of professors, teachers, specialists, and others interested in the advancement of history in this country.

An exchange says that New York is the center of the cigar-making trade. She has nearly 4,000 factories and turns out 1,000,000,000 cigars a year. Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Illinois rank after New York. There were made in this country last year 3,177,660,952 cigars, [illegible]

A NEW SURGICAL LAMP.

Remarkable Electrical Apparatus for Examinating the Interior of the Human Body.

One of the newest adaptations of electric illumination is the shape of a very small lantern, which can be introduced into the mouth, throat, and in some cases, the stomach, for the purpose of aiding surgical and dental operations which can not be carried on without light and for which it has been extremely difficult herefore to obtain light by mirrors or other means. Experiments have been making for some years to perfect apparatus of this kind. Since 1881 E. T. Starr, an expert in electrical science, has been working at intervals upon minute electrical lamps in his rooms, in White's dental establishment, at Twelfth and Chestnut streets, and at last has succeeded in getting highly satisfactory results. Patients have been obtained. The instrument has been critically examined by dentists and surgeons and has already been used in practice.

The lamp primarily consists of a delicate glass bulb, from which the air has been withdraw and as nearly a perfect vacuum created as possible. The bulb varies in shape, being spheroidal, flat and compass shaped, and also cylindrical, with a conical termination. Through the thin walls of the lantern run the conducting wires, connected by a carbon arc, on which the electricity centers, and which thus becomes the place of light. The glass lantern is very small, the cylindrical shaped being scarcely half an inch in length, and with a diameter not nearly so great as that of an ordinary lead pencil. The compass shaped lamp is about one-quarter of an inch thick, and has a diameter of three-quarters of an inch, while the spheroidal seems scarcely larger than a good-sized pea. The lamp is attached to a handle, from 7 to 9 inches long and about half an inch thick, through which run the wires connecting with the battery. The handle and the lamp can be separated, and thus but one handle is necessary for use with the different forms of the lamps. The intensity of the power, and hence the brilliancy of the arc, can be regulated by moveing along the handle a ring which connects with the wires. The handle has several joints, and its position can be arranged in almost any way so as to adapt it to the shape of the cavity which it is proposed to illuminate. Mirrors can also be fastened to the lamp and light reflected to places where the lamp cannot be introduced. To prevent the too great diffusion of light and the radiation of heat, the lamp may be partially covered with a hard rubber or gutta-percha case.

When the lamp is placed in the mouth of a patient every portion of the throat, even to the lowest parts, and every recess of the upper places can be plainly seen. This will greatly facilitate the work of surgery and dentistry, and enable an operator to conceive a much more thorough diagnosis of a case than the use of any other means previously known. Placed behind the teeth, the intense light renders not only the teeth, but even the gum above, highly transparent. If the teeth are good and undecayed no lines will be visible—but the presence of filling or of the mere beginning of decay may at once be seen. When the lamp is placed within the mouth and the lips are closed the entire front structure of the mouth is brought to view. The bone and tooth formations are easily discoverable, and even the interior of the nasal passages. In the same way the instrument is of great value in the treatment of obstetrical diseases, and in studies of the stomach. No unpleasant sensations are experienced by patients, even in cases of protracted use, no other effect being noticeable than that which follows the drinking of a hot cup of coffee.

The difficulties of bringing this application of the electric light to practical use were due principally to the fact that none of the electrical mannufacturing companies in America could make the right kind of a lamp. Mr. Starr tried them all, and, not getting what he wanted in the very best shape, was compelled to go to Europe. More than a score of different lamps, carbons and means of conveying power had to be tried before the best were found.—Philadelphia Press.

ALL ABOUT HORSES.

An Interesting Chat With an Expert in Equine Excellence.

From the Boston Globe.

"I suppose," said a well-known horse dealer yesterday, "that for carriage horses there's nothing finer than English 'Cleveland bays.' We have some in this country, though they're scarce an' gen'ally called coach hosses. They are called as they are cause of their bay color and black points, an average of sixteen to seventeen hands high. The first one I ever see I see in Canada, an imported one. They are high steppers, have small head an' arching necks, an' are of good style an' appearance, their trotting action is from the shoulders, and a pair of 'em'll rattle of a heavy barouche in fine shape I tell you. A good pair would bring from $2,000 to $4,000; but you can't get many of them for they're not to be had. Have the right kind matched up close, and they would bring almost any price—such fellows as Vanderbilt would buy 'em."

"Some people say that the French coaching stallions that are brought to this country have too much of the Percheron, or cart horse strain, in them. Do you think so?"

"No, I don't. There is no better bred horse than a genuine French coaching stallion, an' I believe Dahlman, of New York, has done as much as any man in the country to improve American hosses, both coach and draft. He's brought over this year thirty-one coaching stallions, besides his Norman stallions. They are mostly chestnuts, and very high knee actors, standin' 16 to 16½ hands high. He has 'em in New York State, Ohio, Illinois, and Michigan. They sold as high as $3,500 each. [illegible] of the French [illegible] the very best [illegible] what the French like. They was all blood hosses; every one that handles hosses knows what they are. When I was in New York I seen the French working stallion Incroyable, which Dahlman sold to Vanderbilt. He was three years old, 16 hands high, gentle as a kitten, and as fine a horse for his age as I ever saw in my life. Good stallions don't amount to much, however, if you havn't got good mares. A good many people don't seem to bear this in mind."

"How about lighter blooded stock?"

"Well, some of the finest 15 to 15.3 hands high hosses for such vehicles as T-carts, dog carts, phaetons, etc., come from Kentucky. They are better than most of the others, because they have the blood. That'll tell every time. Some very fair ones of this class, cob built, come from Maine. Everybody likes that build of hoss if he had good action. They are an easy kept hoss, an' a hoss that wears better than these long legged, loose make hosses. They are just the kind for four-in-hands—in fact they are good anywhere; fine-general-purpose hosses. They are worth from $800 to $2,500 a pair, according to style, action, and quality. For a lady's phaeton you want a hoss a little smaller, one about 14½ or 15 hands high, o Morgan built. A fast hoss that is tof small for racing is very good for this purpose."

"Too small?"

"Yes, a good many fast horses are too small to stand the work of a race course. You occasionally find very fast small horses, but where you'll find one fast one 14½ hands high, you'll find ten a hand higher. They hain't got the foot to carry 'em; they can't get there as a bigger hoss. Good looks is mighty important consideration in a lady's phaeton hoss. A lady is sure to want a hoss with a long mane an' tail, archin' neck, silky coat, etc., an' such hosses is rare. Maine is a good place to look for 'em and they'll bring from $300 to $600 apiece."

"How about trotting horses?"

"Well, a man needn't pay so much for a trotter, unless he wants one that can go better'n 30. If he's satisfied with one that will trot in the neighborhood of 2:45, he can get one for $100 or less. When you get below 2:30, there ain't no regular price, it's regulated by the customer. Of course, you know some of the fastest of 'em have brought enormous prices as high as $50,000.

LONGEVITY AND LABOR.

Work Preserves the Health Idleness Weakens It.

Philadelphia Bulletin.

Ericsson, the veteran inventor, was eighty-one years old yesterday. He is in excellent health, and works, it is said, sixteen hours a day, thus proving an exception to the general rule that old men are incapable of great exertion. But perhaps this general rule, like many others that are received without question, is a fallacy. Perhaps it might be fairly asserted that busy men live longer than idle men: that work is, after all, the true elixir of life. Many noteworthy instances where longevity coincides with remarkable mental activity will easily occur to the reader.

Was not Sophocles more than ninety when, to prove that he was not in his dotage—as his heirs claimed, in order to get his money—he wrote one of his greatest tragedies? Did not Humboldt do more work at fourscore than many bright men do at forty? Goethe, as every one knows, died with pen in hand at the age of eighty-two. Von Rank, the foremost of living historians, has just published another volume of his Universal History; he will be eighty-nine years old next December. Carlyle and Emerson lost none of their vigor until they reached three score years and ten.

And to-day, who imagines that Oliver Wendell Holmes, already on the verge of seventy-five, is old? Longfellow did some of his best work shortly before his death, at seventy-five, and Whittier is now two years older than that. The vast energies, whose sum in many directions are known as Victor Hugo, show no signs of decrepitude, although it is more than eighty-two years since Victor Hugo was born. Historians, it may be remarked, have usually been longlived.

Voltaire died at 84, Thierry and Michelet at 76; Mignet and Guizot at 87. George Bancroft is now 84, and George Tichnor lived to be 80. In public life we have had several recent examples of great men whose power for statesmanship did not diminish through age. Gladstone is nearly 75, and Palmerston was Prime Minister at the time of his death, two days before he had completed his eighty-first year. Benjamine Franklin in the last century, lived to be 84.

These instances suffice to show that there are constitutions which not only can bear, but which actually need the stimulus of hard work up to a very advanced period. Of course, on the other hand, might be cited the remarkable men who died young, but even from their experience the fact might be brought out, not that they were killed by overwork, but by irrational work. Usually, as in the case of Keats, early death is the result of chronic disease. Shelley, who is always mentioned among those who lives stretched but a span, was drowned accidently, and there is good reason to believe that but for this he would have lived to old age, because he was physically strong.

Raphael, Mozart, Byron, Burns and Schubert succumed just at an age when most men reach their prime, but it must not be forgotten that the last three undermined their health by excesses. Shakspeare, Napoleon, Cæsar and Beethoven, recognized as the unrivaled giants in their respective departments, died at between fifty and sixty.

But on the other hand Michel Angelo, than whom no man ever expended more energy upon his vast achievements, lived to be ninety, and Titian was ninety-nine. It is evident, therefore, that while [illegible] Work preserves the health, while idleness tends to weaken it.

Henry George in the nineteenth century draws a terrible picture of life in Scotland. [illegible]

FARM, FIELD AND FIRESIDE.

Milk Setting.

A writer in the Tribune has been experimenting with cream and has come to the conclusion which seems quite reasonable, that the ripening of cream does not consist in, or necessarily include, souring. He says:

"When I set a sample of milk for twenty-four hours at sixty-three degrees in an atmosphere of pure oxygen, and another equal sample from the same mess of milk for the same time and at the same temperature, in an atmosphere containing no oxygen, both soured exactly alike and both samples produced exactly the same quantity of butter. If the ripening of cream and development of butter-flavor depend on souring alone, these two samples of butter should have been alike, since the milk and cream were sour alike in both samples; but they were not alike. They were very different, and the churning was different. The cream from the milk set in oxygen gas churned in two thirds of the time required for churning the cream of the milk from which oxygen was excluded by enveloping it in carbonic acid gas. The butter from the former was very highly flavored and delicious, and remarkable for its long keeping. The butter from the latter was less flavored and equally remarkable for being short-lived. The milk-fats in the latter case appeared to have acquired no new flavor from the act of souring, but to have retained unchanged the new-milk flavor they had when the milk was first set. This experiment, repeated till the results were demonstrated to be uniform, is interesting as showing the fallacy of the current opinion that souring is the patent agent in ripening cream, either for the purpose of heightening the flavor of butter or to give it long keeping, or to make churning easy, for it proves positively that something else than souring is necessary to these ends, and that something is free oxygen. Airing, not souring, is the efficient agent for effecting these purposes, but even if well aired, the effect will be but feeble if the temperature is kept too low."

Raise Your Own Strawberries.

For the first time probably in the history of Iowa the principal cities have been bountifully supplied, in their season, with an abundance of choice strawberries. The demands at the smaller towns are not met. But two-thirds of the farmer's tables, from their own productions, are not supplied. This fruit is so healthy, so easily raised, no farmer should be without strawberries for three meals per day while the season lasts, and a plenty more for canning, jam, jellies, etc., which the prudent wife so much desires to have.

But the great trouble is, the farmer, apparently, has no time to attend to the production of small fruits, and especially at the exact time when it should be attended to. Where plants can be had in the neighborhood, which can be done in most any county in Iowa, they can be set out profitably any time from this date until the middle of September. But the sooner the better prospect for a crop of berries next year. But if it be the intention to send to some other State for new, or fabulous varieties, hot weather is not the time to do it. If you have none on your farm already, and a more enterprising neighbor has, do not go to him begging plants. Liberal men do not like to deny a neighbor such a favor, and yet it may seriously interefere with his own operations. Pay for what you get, and then get what you want. In putting out beds in hot weather, we have always found better success by taking new plants from this year's runners. Thoroughly wet the plants and the soil down to the roots, and take up the plants separately with a good lump of earth, and then handle them so carefully that they will be set out without disturbing the dirt on the roots. And then set them no deeper than they were originally. In no case allow the earth to cover the crown of the plant, or where the leaves come out. Brains and trowel are all of the aids needed in successfully setting out plants.

What varieties will you choose? The most uniform in size, and we understand they were almost the prolific, supplied to the Des Moines market this year, were the Crecent Seedling fertilized with the Downer Prolific. The Society recommend for central Iowa, Crescent, Charles Downing and Downer's Prolific. For the northern district they recommend Wilson, Red Sacket, Crescent, Green's Prolific, and for southern district they leave Red Jacket. But we urge farmers not to let this season pass away before a safe foundation is laid for an ample strawberry patch.—Des Moines Register.

Household Miscellany.

A rule among house-furnishers is that of having one color prevail throughout the room, beginning with as dark a shade as is permissible for the carpet or its wooden border, whether painted or inlaid, then choosing a lighter tone for the dado, with a still lighter hue for the middle wall, a very pale shade for the frieze, and the lightest tint of all for the plafond or ceiling.

Rice dissolved in water and finished as white soup is excellent for a kind of astringent diet. Custard seasoned with a little butter and salt. Savory herbs are often acceptable.

Tea-cups are now made to represent roses, petals, and all very natural, and the accompanying saucers imitate the leaves. Tea-pot, sugar-bowl and pitchers are carried out in the same style.

Bread, biscuit, rolls, and the crust of pies are all greatly improved in flavor and color if they are lightly brushed over with milk just before they are put into the oven. A little sugar dissolved in the milk is an addition also.

An ordinary pail may be lined with silk or satin and painted upon the outside with pretty selections of vines and flowers, and used as a paper receptacle or scrap receiver. [illegible] cord.

The American Garden says: "In order to cultivate the pansy to perfection and to secure the finest flowers, it should be given a strong, rich, deep soil. The soil should be dug as deeply as possible, and an abundance of well-decayed stable or cow manure thoroughly incorporated with the soil. In preparing the beds, it is well to take into consideration the time that we wish to have a display of bloom, for it is our intention to have a fine display during the summer, the bed should be given a partially shaded situation, while for spring or autumn the plants do best when fully exposed to the sun.

Remedy for Cramp.—A writer in the British Medical Journal says, "The best remedy for cramp—the simplest and the most efficacious that I know of—is a band of cork. It is easily made by cutting a small new wine cork into thin slices, which must be sewn close together upon ribbon or tape an inch wide. It can be tied around any part affected and worn during the night."

Cure for Hiccough.—Sit erect and inflate the lungs fully. Then, retaining the breath, bend forward slowly until the chest meets the knees. After slowly rising again to the erect posture exhale the breath. Repeat this process a second time, and the nerves will be found to have received an access of energy that will enable them to perform their natural functions.

The Beginning of Ensilage.

From the Popular Science Monthly.

Nearly thirty years ago, Adolph Reihlen, who owned a sugar factory near Stuttgart, in Germany, preserved a crop of fodder corn which had been injured by frost, by burying its branches or pits and covering with the soil to protect it from the atmosphere. This method of preserving corn-fodder was suggested by the well-known process of making "brown or sour hay" by packing newly-cut grass in pits, which had been practiced for many years by farmers in Europe.

When the pits were opened, several months afterward, the fodder-corn had a greenish color and a peculiar odor, but its value as cattle-food was not apparently diminished. M. Reihlen was so well pleased with the results of his experiment that he made a practice of "pitting" a quantity of fodder-corn every year, to obtain a supply of succulent feed for his cattle during the winter.

In 1870 M. Vilmorn called the attention of French farmers to the advantages of this method of preserving green fodder, which M. Reihlen had then successfully practiced for many years. The new method was so favorably received and successfully introduced in France that it soon became known as the French system of ensilage. The application to a new crop of the old system of curing grass as "brown or sour hay" was in fact accepted as a practically new method, which was designated as the ensilage of maize.

Woman as a Helpmeet.

"A perfect woman nobly planned
To warn, to comfort and command."

The high vocation of women as monitors of the family circle seems never to have received the attention it deserves. Advice so commonly given to women in regard to the physical comforts of their household is, for the most part unnecessary. A true womanly instinct prevents the majority from neglecting these minor matters. It is their higher duties which they often fail to appreciate and for which they are so illy prepared. "To warn," to keep bright the moral armor of husband, son, father or brother, is a work worthy of the noblest women. It is a work, the influence of which is wide and ever increasing, and which is seen in its fullness when some great social reform is accomplished. And this grand work is the special duty and privilege of women whose interests are confined chiefly to their own homes. Working women, so called, like all other bread winners, are compelled to think much about sordid things and are themselves constantly exposed to multifarious and subtle temptations. The fact that frequent contract with evil tends to blunt human sensibilities makes a strong counteracting influence a necessity. This can only be provided in the pure and noble atmosphere of a true home. So trite a statement would hardly bear repeating, were there not so many family circles in which the moral influence is by no means the strongest. Few women doubt their capacity for home-making and home-keeping. They learn how to sew and to cook. They prepare themselves carefully for teaching and other occupations, and they seek to become accomplished, culturedand refined, that they may shine in society. But God and nature seem to be expected to prepare woman, without her knowledge or interference, for the most important duties of home life. The truth is, this field of labor, more than all others requires skilfully trained laborers. To really succeed here women must know how to observe, to consider, and to act. They must have only their own moral sense thoroughly aroused, but must keep it in constant cultivation. And if they are in the highest sense progressive, if they seek immeasurable assistance of intellectual culture and refinement, they may lead the van of reform movements without stepping from the modest retirement of their own homes. It is their separation, in a sense, from the world that gives to domestic women a peculiarly favorable opportunity for moral culture. They alone, as personally disinterested observers, are able to weigh the world's many temptations and note the terrible results of its great and small immoralities. They alone, comparatively free from the blinding influence of the glitter and false colors of evils, can, if properly enlightened, look upon sin with the horror it merits.

Such women never connive at, or condone, wrong, though the guilty person be their nearest friend. For love's own sake they are unsparing in their condemnation of all immoral doings, and shrink almost with terror from the blood guiltiness found in the pseudo charity which makes too light of sin because of a morbidly sentimental feeling for the sinner. Moreover it is morally enlightened women who [illegible] and whose sympathy and mercy are most unselfishly offered.

Strong moral support is an absolute necessity for the success of any good cause. Every man without an earnest purpose can almost look with certainty for the attainment of his object if he has some one to hold up his hands. So fully is this realized that no one is surprised to hear how this or that great reformer received his strongest inspiration from a good wife or mother, of whom the world knows nothing further.

Indeed there seems to be no reasonable doubt that the greater part of the purifying influences exerted upon the world springs from comparatively obscure wives, mothers and sisters who have learned to noble duties of their positions. And their vocation cannot be too highly exalted; it demands the exercise of heart and brain, it asks for the highest qualities a woman can possess, but success in it means the greatest reward obtainable—a pure home, a world made better, power and influence a queen might envy, and eternal happiness assured.—Mary E. Caldwell in the Current.

TESE WHITE'S REPLY.

The Details of the Tragedy on Otsego Lake.

A Richfield Springs, N. Y., dispatch says:—The guests and residents here were startled this morning on learning that Edward C. Steers, a young society man, son of Schuyler B. Steers, the richest man in Louisiana, who has an income of $40,000 a year, had committed suicide on the dock at Hyde hall, on account of the refusal of Miss Tese White to marry him. Miss White is a tall and pretty girl, 21 years of age, and above all a cousin of Pell Clarke and Hyde Clark, who inherited 60,000 acres of land from George Clark, who received it from George III. through his father's wife, who was a countess. The Clarkes go in the very best society here. They are courted and invite dozens of people to their mansions on Otsego lake. Hyde hall is a stately old mansion nestling in a nook and surrounded with forests of fruit and shade trees. Miss Tese White has been a frequent visitor at her cousin's. Steers has been furnished with everything he wished by his father.

The suicide was dramatic in the extreme. Yesterday was the twenty-first birthday of young Steers, and inviting Wilson Curtis, son of Judge Curtis of Cooperstown, they visited Miss White. With her and two lady companions they went across the lace to enjoy a picnic in the grove opposite Hyde hall, with the subsequent intention of taking tea at Hyde Clark's. After their meal Steers got into his boat with Miss White, while Curtis took the other two young ladies. Steers hurried across the bay and jumping on the dock assisted Miss White to alight. He then said:

"Tese White, I ask you once for all will you marry me?"

"You know I cannot," she replied.

"Then I will shoot myself," and pulling a revolver from his pocket he shot himself under the right eye, the ball passing out the top of his skull, death being instantaneous.

The lady rushed up to Hyde hall for help and Curtis jumped to the dock. The body was covered with leaves and evergreens and left lying on the dock nearly all the afternoon as it fell with pistol in hand until the coroner from Cooperstown could be summoned by boat eight miles distant. Steers' mother is prostrated with grief. He was her only child.

All the above facts were furnished by Miss White's mother to-day. Miss White lies in a critical condition.

The Chinese Army.

Blackwood Magazine.

When, in the engagement at the Peiho in 1860, the Chinese succeeded in capturing a gunboat, they determined to turn their prize to account. Having, with this intention, lit the fires, and produced the amount of smoke from the funnel which they had been accustomed to see, they expected the vessel to move, and were much astonished to find that it remained motionless. We fear that this is but an illustration of the land and sea forces at the present time.

They have the best weapons, ships and armaments procurable, but they do not know how to use them. The mandarins labor under the delusion that European soldiers and sailors are, man for man, no better than their own defenders; and they believe that the possession of equally good arms would, in any future war, turn the scale in favor of their own overwhelmingly large battallions. They entirely ignore the fact that the success of the weapon depends on the power and the will of the soldier to turn it to the best account. Only lately we have seen Egyptian soldiers armed with rifles slaughtered like sheep by savages carrying only spears.

We do not believe that Chinese soldiers would ever present so abject a picture of cowardice as these Egyptian troops did at Teb; for though they are not men likely "to snatch bright honor from the pale faced moon," they are by no means devoid of courage, and have shown on occasions that they can fight bravely and with determination. But the Chinese have no liking for the profession of arms. They despise it, and regard their soldiers as inferior beings, and as being fit only to be food for powder.

It is obvious, therefore, that a complete change must come over the national mind on this subject before the necessary radical reforms in the army can be thoroughly carried out. But this is not the only direction in which there must first be a complete change of front. The iron of reform must enter deeply into the whole corporate life of the Empire; the public service must be chastened and purified; the laws must be justly administered; and the egregious folly of despising everything which is not Chinese must be given up—before China will ever be able to place an army in the field which will face the foe with the strength and steadiness of trained soldiers.

The extent of some of the vast ranches in Los Angeles County is even beyond the imagination. Baldwin's Santa Anita Ranch is situated in that county, and is probably the largest. Its natural decorations are marvelous, and the immense amount of different products almost fabulous. The farm comprises 1200 acres in grapes, 16,000 orange and lemon trees; 2000 pomegranates; 3000 English walnut trees, 2000 almond trees, 2500 peach trees, 4000 pear trees, 3000 apricot trees, 100 fig trees, and subsistence is furnished for 25,000 head of sheep, 2000 cows and pigs, and several hundred horses and mules, and this year can be seen 17,000 acres of golden grain.

THE ADOPTED CHILD.

The two thatched cottages stood side by side at the foot of a hill, not very far from a well-known bathing resort. The two peasants worked very hard in their unfertile fields to earn enough for the support of their children. There were four to each household. Before the two adjoining doors the little swarm of children frolicked from morning till evening. In both families the oldest two were 6 years and the youngest 15 months old; for in both houses the marriages and births took place almost simultaneously.

The two mothers could scarcely distinguish their respective children in the general mix-up; ond the two fathers always made mistakes. The eight names became entangled in their brains, always got confounded with one another; and when they wanted to call any particular child, each father would call a wrong name three times before getting a right one.

The first of the two dwellings—that nearest to the railroad station at Rolleport, where the baths were—was occupied by the Tuvache family, who had three girls and one boy; the other building sheltered the Vallin family, who had three boys and one daughter.

The whole of them lived with difficulty upon soup, potatoes and fresh air. At 7o'clock in the morning, at noon, and at 6 o,clock in the evening, the housewives assembled their little ones to give them pap—just as herders of geese call their birds together. According to age the children took their places in a row at the wooden table, made shiny by fifty years of usage. The youngest child of all could hardly get its mouth to the level of the table. Before them were then placed deep platters full of bread steeped in the same water that the potatoes, half a cabbage and three onions had been boiled; and the whole rank ate until fully satisfied. The mother herself fed the little one with a spoon. A little bit of meat in the pot on Sunday was a regular feast; and on such occasion the father would always stay later at the table, and exclaim: "I'd be mighty glad to have this every day!"

One August afternoon a light carriage suddenly drew up before the two cottages, and the young woman, who held the reins herself, said to the gentleman seated beside her:

"Oh! Henry, just look at that lot of children! Isn,t it pretty to see them tumbling about in the road like that?"

The man answered nothing, being accustomed to these sudden bursts of admiration, which were a pain and almost a reproach for him.

The young woman said again:

"I must really kiss them! Oh! how I should love to have one of them; that little one there, the little tiny one!"

And leaping lightly from her carriage, she ran to the children, seized hold of one of the youngest—Tuvache's baby—and, lifting him in her arms, she kissed him passionately on his dirty face, on his blonde, curly and dust-covered hair, on his little fists, which he brandished convulsively in the effort to free himself from her tiresome caresses.

Then she got into her carriage again, and drove off at full speed. But the next week she returned, and sat right down in the road herself, took the little one in her arms, stuffed him with cakes, gave sweetmeats to all the other children, and played with them just as if she were a child herself—while her husband waited patiently for her all the time in the elegant carriage.

She returned after that, got acquainted with the parents, visited them every day, came always with her pocket full of sweetmeats and small change.

She was a Madame Henri d'Hubieres.

One morning she came; and her husband also descended with her from the carriage. This time, without stopping to notice the children, all of woom knew her well now, she advanced into the peasant's dwelling.

They were both there, the parents, busy cutting wood for cooking their soup; they arose in surprise, offered chairs, and waited to see what was going to happen. Then the young woman, in a broken and trembling voice, began:

"My good people—I have come to see you because—because I would like—I would like to take your—your little boy home with me."

The two peasants, utterly stupified and unable to comprehend, answered not a word.

She paused for breath, and went on:

"We have no children, we are all alone—my husband and I. We would cake good care of him. Are you willing?"

The peasant woman began to understand. She asked:

"You want to take Charlot from us? Ah ben non!—no indeed!"

Then M. d'Hubiers broke in:

"My wife has not explained herself well. We want to adopt him; but he will come to see you. If he should turn out well, as we have every reason to believe, he will be our heir. If, by any possible chance, we should have other children he will share our property equally with them. But if he should not turn out according to our expectations, then, upon his coming of age, we would settle on him a sum of 20,000 francs, which would be at once placed to his credit in notary's hands. And as you have of course been taken into consideration you will receive regularly during your whole life an allowence of 100 francs a month. Now, do you understand?"

The farmer's wife had already risen to her feet in high fury.

"You want me to sell you Charlot? Ah! I should say not!—that is a nice thing to ask of a mother!—Ah! I should say [illegible] That would be an abomination!"

The man himself, serious and thoughtful, said nothing; but he approved his wife's speech by a continuous nodding of his head.

Madame d'Hubieres, quite confused, began to cry, and, turning to her husband, stammered out in a voice broken by sobs, the voice of a child whose ordinary wishes are always gratified:

"They won't do it, Henry!—they won't do it!"

Then he made a last effort:

"But, my friends, think of the future of your child;—think of what is offered to him,—of [illegible]"

Exasperated, the peasant woman cut him short:—

"It's all thought over, it's all understood, it's all considered. Get out of here—and what's more don't let me ever see you here again. To think people's allowed to want to take a child from folks like that?"

Then Mme. d' Hubieres, as she was going, remembered there were two little ones; and with the tenacity of a self-willed and petted darling who never can endure refusal, she asked through her tears:

"But the other little one—it doesn,t belong to you?" Father Tuvache replied:

"No; it belongs to the neighbors. You can go and ask them if you like."

And he returned into the house, where the loud-echoing voice of his angry wife could still be heard.

* * * * * * * *

The Vallin family were sitting at the table—eating very leisurly some big crusts of bread, which they rubbed parsimoniously with a little butter, each taking an almost imperceptible bit of butter at a time on the end of a knife, from a plate between them in the middle of the table.

M. d'Hubieres recommended his propositions, but this time more insinuatingly, with oratorical precautions, with astuteness. The two country people at first shook their heads in sign of refusal; but when told that they would receive 100 francs a month, they looked at one another; they began to consult one another's eyes, with their resolution considerably shaken.

They kept silence a long, long time, feeling tortured; hesitating. At last the woman asked:

"Here! man, what do you say about it?"

He answered with sententious pronunciation:

"I say that it's worth thinking about."

Then Madame d'Hubieres, quivering with anxiety, began to talk to them about the fortune of the child, about the money he would be able to give them some day.

The peasant asked:

"And that allowance of 1,200 francs you talk about, will be pledged to us before the notary?"

M. d'Hubieres:

"Why, of course, to-morrow you draw it."

The woman, who had been very thoughtful, spoke again:

"—A hundred francs a month isn't enough for giving up the child; that there child can work in a few years; we must git a hundred and twenty francs."

Stamping her little foot with impatience, Madame d' Hubieres acceded to the sum at once; and as she wanted to take the child away at once, she gave them a present of 100 francs, while her husband commenced to draw up the necessary papers. The Mayor and one of the neighbors being sent for, gladly gave their service as witnesses.

And the young woman all beaming with delight, carried off the screaming child—just as a much-longed for toy is triumphantly carried home from a toy store.

Standing at their own door, the Tuvaches watched them go; they said nothing, looked serious—regretting, perhaps, that they had refused.

* * * * * * *

Nothing more was heard of little Jean Vallin. Every month the parents went to draw their 120 francs from the notary; and they fell out with their neighbors because Mother Tuvache "agonized them with ignominies," incessantly going from door to door to reiterate that one must be inhuman to sell one's child—that it was "a horror," "a dirty low thing," a "corromperie."

And occasionally she would take up her Charlot in her arms, ostentatiously, and scream out to him as if he was able to understand.

"I didn't sell thee, I didn't! I didn't sell thee, my little soul! I don't sell my children, I don't. I'm not rich, but I don't sell my children."

And for two years and more it was the same thing every day—every day coarse allusions vociferated before the doorway, so that the neighbors could not help hearing them. Mother Tuvache at last really came to think herself the finest woman in the whole country, just because she had not sold Charlot. And people would say, when speaking of her:

"Of course, we know the offer was tempting; but anyhow she acted like a good mother.

They held her up as an example, and when Charlot—brought up with these ideas perpetually dinned into his ears—got to be 18, he also learned to believe himself superior to all his comrades, just because he had not been "sold."

* * * * * * *

The Vallins meanwhile lived very comfortably, thanks to their monthly pension. The unappeasable fury of the Tuvaches, who remained wretchedly poor and miserable, was chiefly due to that.

The eldest son joined the army. The second son, died. Charlot alone remained to help the old father to work, and to support his mother and his two younger sisters.

He was just 21 years old, when one morning a shining carriage drew up before the two houses. A young gentleman, wearing a gold watch chain, descended from the vehicle, giving his arm to an old lady with white hair. The old lady said to him:

"It is there, my child, the second house."

And the young gentleman entered the Vallin residence as if he were entering his own home.

The old mother was washing her aprons; the father, now infirm, was dozing beside the great hearth. Both looked up and the young man said:

"Good day, papa! good day mamma!"

They rose to their feet almost in affright. The old peasant woman, in her sudden emotion, even let her soap fall into the water, and stammered out:

"C'est-te m'efant? Is it thou, my child?? is it thou, my child?"

He took her in his arms and kissed her—repeating, "Bonjour, mamma,"—while the old father, though trembling in every limb, exclaimed in that calm accent which never deserted him: "So thou art come back, Jean." As if he had been gone only a month or less!

And when they had got to know each other a little better, then the parents insisted on going out with their son, to show him all the country folk. They took him to see the mayor, the deupty, the priest, the schoolmaster—[illegible]

And Charlot, standing at the threshold of his father's cabin, looked as he went by. [illegible]

That evening at supper time he said to the old folks: [illegible]

"What idiots you must have been to let them take Vallin's child!" [illegible]

His mother obstinately responded:

"I wouldn't sell our baby! [illegible]"

The father said not a word. The son went on:

"And you think it isn't miserable to be sacrificed like that?"

Then Father Tuvache stuttered out in a voice of wrath:

"Art thou going to reproach us for having kept thee?"

Brutally the young man burst out:

"Yes, I reproach you—louts that you both are! Parents like you are good only to give bad luck to children. And I'd serve you right if I'd quit you."

The poor woman was crying in her plate. She sobbed while trying to swallow some spoonfuls of soup, half of which she spilled in the effort:

"And is this what I killed myself for—to raise my sons?"

Then, roughly, the great lad thundered out:

"I'd better never been born than be what I am? When I saw the other one, just a while ago, it just gave my blood one turn!

"I said to myself: That's what I'd be, now."

He leaped up from the table.

"See here! I've just made up my mind that it's best for me not to stay here, for I'd be reproaching you with it from morning till night, and I'd make life miserable for you. You may just as well know it—I'll never forgive you, never forgive you for that! Never!"

The old couple, tearful, dumbfounded, held their peace.

He went on again—

"No!—just the thought of it is too much to stand. No, I perfer to go and make my living somewhere else!"

He opened the door. A gust of voices entered. The Vallans were having a jollification in honor of the returned son.

Then Charlot stamped his feet with rage, and turning to his parents, shouted at them:

"Louts! clowns!—look to yourselves!" And he disappeared in the night.

THE LEGEND OF GLEN PLYM.

An Indian Maiden's Love for an unfortunate Scout.

In 1868, when the Indians made a raid into Douglass and El Paso Counties, they sought hiding places in this country, but the cayon of Deer Creek is too small for a covert. Turkey Creek canyon gives more secure hiding places. In the earlier days this country was traveled more than it is at present. A coach used to run to what is now known as Villa Park, (P. T. Barnum's subdivision) from Denver and continue on the Morrison and adjoining roads until it reached a ranch owned by Judge Reed, better known as the old Pennsylvania House. The coach went south through the foot hills that adjoin Morrison to Fairplay. Among other interesting matters connected with Deer Creek and the Platte country is the legend of an old Indian chief and his daughter. Blazing Star, a war chief of the Arapahoes, had attained the greatest influence among his tribe. Stern and implacable in battle, earnest and invincible in council, he cared little for women, and was accustomed to regard all squaws as very inferior creatures. The Colorado pioneers had reached the country, and the great chief felt very jealous of their approach. But doubt and uncertainty prevailed among the tribe, and Blazing Star believed they were about to yield to the white man.

Noted for his boldness and unheard of intrepidity, the war chief resolved to reconcile the opposing factions by a grand coup d'etat. Calling all chiefs and warriors to assemble on a certain day, he suddenly appeared before them on the topmost point of a great crag which rises above the most romantic and beautiful part of the canyon, a spot known as Glen Plym, where through groves of cottonwood Deer Creek, clear as crystal, dashes along with a sound that is wonderfully musical. How he got up to that height no one knows, but it was to be tried again soon after, as the story will show. Assuming that the Great Manitou inspired him to stand there the warrior addressed those in the glen below him, urging them to a relentless war against the pale face. His cries for the white man's blood were heard and answered, and many spears flashed in the sunlight at his appeal. But one old chief returned from the pow wow sad and disheartened. Laughing eyes, the chief's daughter, was as beloved by Waguila as if she had been his own child. He knew that one of the pale faces, a young scout, who, a mere boy had come West in the days of Kit Carson, loved and was beloved by the Indian maiden. He knew that Blazing Star had contracted a special hatred for the young scout. Hence he resolved to warn the young girl. His warning came none to soon, but when the maiden started for the settlement to warn her lover she was beset by highwaymen, and after a thousand perils escaped to find the settlement burned and her lover a prisoner in the hands of her father. She soon knew the worst. On the crag above Glen Plym was the body of her lover, who had been laid there to die of starvation and exposure. She attempt to scale the perilous rock, but slipped and fell into the canyon beneath, a corpse. The father, finding his daughter dead, and arriving in the same way at the cause, succeeded by the means he knew in reaching the top of the crag. But his aid came too late, the young scout had breathed his last.

Since that time it is said that in the dead of night cries are heard as of the old Indian chief bewailing the loss of his daughter, and other and feebler cries as of an Indian maiden weeping for her lover. So runs this legend, hardly old enough to be called so, for the old pioneers are so near to the Coloradoans of to-day that it is not at all unlikely that the legend had some foundation in the love of a young man named Walters for an Indian chief's daughter.—Denver News.

Mrs. Lockwood, the Washington lawyer, who makes her way from her house to the courts on a tricycle, is no longer an object of curiosity on that account. According to a writer in the Critic, of that city, there are seven other Washington ladies who have adopted the tricycle, beside two young lady artists who have a double machine, and ride side by side to and from their studies and on sketching tours. A gentleman also rides one of these machines, with his wife beside him and his daughter behind him. There is a young physician who constantly shares his tricycle with his sister, and there is a lawyer who has his tricycle so provided as to allow his two dogs to ride with him, one on each side.

FARM AND HOUSEHOLD.

Sunshine in Stables.

Sunlight is the great vivifier and purifier of nature. "It is pleasant to behold the sun," and the cruellest punishment is to be immured in a dark dungeon. We should think of this when arranging stables and pens for our animals. Horses have lost their sight by having been kept in dark stables from which they have been brought out suddenly into the glaring sunlight, perhaps to the snow, which has reflected it with blinding force. My cow stable faces the south and has broad windows all along the front, which let in the sun, and on a cold winter's day the warm sun shines in full on the cows, which lie and bask in it. If let out they will hasten back from the yard and will go direct to their stalls and lie down. I don't know precisely how much more butter this sunshine makes, but as my winter dairy has averaged me 10 pounds per week per cow for some years past, I give some of the credit to the bright, sunny stable and the contentment of the cows. There is no other animal that so delights in the bright warm sunshine as a lamb. A poor week, wailing thing unable to stand, if only left in the warm sunshine will gain strength, and in an hour or two will be dancing around the pen. The shepherd would do well to make a note of this, for it is worth to him, beyond a question, at least 10 per cent. of his crop of lambs, which the warm sunlight, let into the pens, even in January, would save from an early grave.—A Practical Stockman.

Pig-feeding Experiments.

Professor J. W. Sanborn devotes his tenth bulletin of the Missouri Agricultural College, at Columbia, to report of pig-feeding experiments. It is an interesting and useful document from which—in the absence of ability to quote in full—we make the following suggestive extract:

"These shoats had the stinting influence of being taken from roaming and confined in a pen where they could view other pigs at large. I have found that, approximately, 2 pounds of food per day per 100 pounds of live pig is used as maintenance fodder, and that about 2 pounds more are used for each pound of growth. A careful view of the figures shows only 44 pounds per ton saved by grinding corn. The rates of toll are just twice as high as in the East, and on low-priced corn about force the use of whole corn. Excessive fatness has restricted consumption to such an extent as to demand the attention of the feeder. Population has gone, in 33 years, from 23 to 55 millions, and swine from 30 to 44 millions only. Our people are not lard nor grease eaters. Grease and wealth and culture are not companions. No animal converts so much of its food into growth as the pig, and none has so little waste of carcass. One hundred pounds of corn are good for 20 pounds of pig carcass. We are not realizing 10 pounds of steer carcass from this amount of food. The ship stuff fed pig carried less fat even in the fibres of lean meat than the corn meal fed lot. Experience convinces me that the exclusive use of corn meal for a feeding ration is detrimental to a vigorous and healthy muscular development, producing a pig easily sujbect to disease, distasteful to our consumers, and more costly than is necessary."

Cooked Food for Swine.

Starch, which constitutes the bulk of our cereal grains, consists of globules or grains and heat must be applied to burst them. It has been maintained by high authority that to render starchy substances digestible they must be cooked to break or crack the grain. It is well known that starch will not dissolve in cold water, and it is evident that the grains containing the largest proportion of starch will be in better condition by cooking; grains of this description are those most used for fattening pigs. Cornmeal, which contains about 64 per cent. of starch, is liable to be more than double in bulk when cooked, on account of the bursting of the grains, which cause it to swell, and it has been regarded by some as valuable, bulk for bulk, as it was before the cooking. Actual tests have conclusively shown that pigs fatten more quickly on cooked meal than that fed in its raw state. According to Stewart, the general feeder may reach, with raw corn, eight pounds; with raw meal, 10 pounds; with boiled corn, 12 pounds, and with boiled meal, 15 pounds of live weight of pork per bushel. Much of the difference between boiled corn and meal is accounted for by the fact that the corn is not boiled long enough to burst the kernel and break all the starch grains. Heat acts more rapidly and effectually upon the starch grains after the tough skin of corn is broken and ground to powder.—Farmer's Review.

Farm Notes.

A weak solution of carbolic acid used as a wash on horses will save them much torment from flies.

If all hands have worked hard all the week, and Saturday noon you happen to be out of a job, don't look up another; give the boys a half-holiday, and don't fail to help them to enjoy it!

Several Bamboo canes from Burmah, shown at the Forestry Exhibition in Edinburgh, range in length from 80 to 100 feet.

The Washington County, Kan., Horticultural Society report Snyder as the hardiest and most productive blackberry for that section.

"Nothing from nothing comes." Remember as the weather gets hot and dry, and the feed short, that the cows can't give a good mess of milk on bare ground, and give them a bountiful feed of that sowed corn that every good provider has now growing; it will pay in milk and in the flesh of the cows; yes, and in the satisfaction of seeing how well they enjoy it.

WHITEWASH FOR FENCES.—For one barrel of wash: Take half a bushel white lime, three pecks hydraulic cement, ten pounds umber, ten pounds ochre, one pound Venetian red, one-quarter pound lampblack. Slake the lime, cut the lampblack with vinegar, mix well together, add the cement, and fill the barrel with water. Let it stand twelve hours before using, and stir frequently while putting it on.

The profit and wealth of the cattle business may be realized in figuring up the value of the Texan drive of this year, estimated at from 500,000 to 750,000 head. At the smaller estimate and $10 per head, there are $20,000,000 as the income of Texan stock owners for one year from one branch of their business only. Farmers need very much to realize this fact, which has more than usual force when the wheat crop now harvesting promises more than 500 milion bushels, and 75 cents a bushel seem to be a possible price. The most money made on farms henceforth will be made by the stock farmers.

The Correct Style of Weddings.

Clara Belle in the Cincinnati Enquire.

How shall she get married is the question asked me by an Indiana correspondent. Presuming that she means the dress and usages now in vogue in New York on wedding occasions, I will briefly instruct her. It is impossible to lay down any strict rule regarding wedding cards, as the size, shape of the cards and envelopes, and the forms of invitation are constantly varying. They should be printed on the finest white English note paper. In large cities a card of admission to the church is now found necessary. Chalk-white mull, of the finest quality, profusely trimmed with chalk-white Valenciennes forming the flounces or the greater part of them—that is to say, very wide borderings on each flounce—when it is not all lace, and worn with orage blossoms and bridal roses, put on in bunches and sprays, and a tulle veil and orange flowers in the hair, is the prettiest and most appropriate Summer wedding dress; but if you wish to be married in your traveling dress, let it be of pale gray silk, with draperies of pale gray nun's veiling, and made in a quiet, simple style. The hat, of fine gray straw, should match in color and trimming; the gloves, fan, and all the accessories chosen in pale tints of gray; if your hair is blonde you could wear white flowers in a knot under the brim of your hat against a front lined with black or blue velvet. The wrap to be put on after the ceremony should be a gray cloth or mohair ulster cut long, and with a full Fedora fastened down at the waist under gray satin ribbons, clasped with a cut-steel buckle. A bride's bouquet is always of white flowers only, azaleas, gardenias, camellias and roses, mingled with orange buds and blossoms. The bridesmaids' bouquets may be of delicately-tinted but not bright flowers. Forget-me-nots and voilets, pansies and rosebuds are the proper flowers for them to carry or wear. These are generally given by the parents of the bride.

A Good Wife's Influence.

A judicious wife is always nipping off from her husband's moral nature little twigs that are growing in wrong directions. She keeps him in shape by continual pruning.

The wisest thing a man commonly does are those which his wise counsels him to do. A wife is a grand wielder of the moral pruning-knife.

If Johnson's wife had lived, there would have been no hoarding up of orange peel, no touching all the posts in walking along the streets, no eating and drinking with a disgusting voracity. If Oliver Goldsmith had been married he never would have worn that memorable and ridiculous coat.

Whenever you find a man whom you know little about, oddly dressed, or talking absurdly, or exhibiting eccentricity of manner, you may be sure that he is not a married man, for the corners are rounded off—the little shoots pared away—in married men.—Ruskin.

Ironing Shirt Bosoms.

New York Tribune—This standing question we answer again for the fiftieth time. Starch the bosoms after they pass the rinse water in starch made thus: Dissolve starch in cold water, and pour boiling water on the solution, stirring all the time, till it is of the consistency of molasses and perfectly clear and smooth. Add a little white soap dissolved in water and a little butter. Boil two or three minutes. Wring the Bosoms from the hot starch and dry. Then wring them from thin cold starch or starch dissolved in cold water (a tablespoonful of starch to a quart of water), with a half teaspoonful of powdered borax added to it. Roll tightly and put away for two or three hours or over night. Then iron in the usual way. Then lay the bosom on a plain board with one thickness of muslin over it, pass a damp cloth over the bosom, and polish with a polishing iron, which may be bought at any hardware store for $1. Try on an old shirt-bosom first. Experience will soon teach what points are to be guarded. Have a clean linen cloth and a bowl of clean water at hand to remove any possible smooch from the linen. A bit of beeswax inside a folded leaf of paper is good to give a smooth surface to the iron.

What Fairs Should Be.

Rural New Yorker.—Our fairs instead of being held merely for social intercourse and amusement, they should be a series of object lessons, from which much useful information could be derived. The best products of the soil grown by different persons and processes should be shown side by side, and careful statements be made showing just how each was grown. Fine animals, both thoroughbred and grade, should be shown, and accounts should be given of how they were bred, fed and cared for. The same animals shown as yearlings, two-year-olds and older, in different years should be carefully weighed each year, and statements made showing how much feed had been consumed to produce the gain. The best fruits of different kinds should be placed side by side, correctly labeled; specimens of healthy and diseased trees, cabinets of insect enemies, carefully arranged, should be shown with the fruits or grains on which they feed. The ground should be tastefully laid out and ornamented, and kept neat and tidy. A thousand ways will suggest themselves by which the people can be both interested and benefited. Every convenience should be provided for the comfort and happiness of the visitors, such as plenty of good drinking water, seats and shade. The refreshment department should either be under the control of the managers or should be let to responsible parties, and a committee should see to it that the people are supplied with good, wholesome, clean food at reasonable prices.

Household Hints.

Don't regale your visitors with the short-comings of your servants.

Put your clothes in warm water overnight; in the morning wring them from this into a boiler containing strong hot suds, to which is added salsoda the size of a small hickory nut. Boil them one-half hour, dip them into cold water, rub them out, rinse in clear, cold water, then in water slightly blued, and you will be surprised to see how easily your washing is done.

Preserving time is here. For currant jelly, I mash the currants and strain the juice from them before cooking. Boil the juice 20 minutes, add sugar—which should be hot in the oven—cup for cup, and boil eight minutes longer. It is very nice, and has such a lovely color.

Hot milk is recommended as a restorative, and as exerting a most beneficial influence over mind and body when exhausted by labor or mental strain. Its effects are more invigorating and enduring than those of alcoholic stimulants.

A free application of soft soap to a fresh burn almost instantly removes the fire from the flesh, according to a medical man himself. If the injury is very severe, as soon as the pain ceases apply linseed-oil and then dust over with fine flour. When this last covering dries hard repeat the oil and flour dressing until a good coating is obtained. When the latter dries, allow it to stand until it cracks and falls off, as it will do in a day or two, and a new skin will be found to have formed where the skin was burned.

The small Fanchon that looks like a half-handkerchief has returned after long oblivion, and is like a bed of flowers. One of the most graceful is covered all over with violets, shaded from the palest to the most intense purple, and there are others blooming with the faint greenish yellow of masses of jonquils or crocuses from hue of creamy lace.—New York Times.

The Significance of Rings.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

It is understood that a gentleman who desires to marry wears a plain or chased gold ring upon the first finger of the left or heart hand. When he becomes engaged the ring passes to the second finger. After marriage it passed to the third finger. If, however, the gentleman desires his lady friends to clearly understand that he is not "in the market" and does not wish to marry at all, he wears the signet upon his little finger. This will inform all ladies that he is beyond reach. With the ladies a plain or chased gold ring on the little finger of the left hand indicates "not engaged," or ready for an offer. When engaged the ring passes to the third finger of the right hand. When married the third finger of the left hand receives the ring. When a young lady desires to defy all suitors she places rings one on the first and one on the fourth finger. A writer on the subject of rings says: "Though the ring of gold has long been looked upon as a necessity in the marriage ceremony, it is by no means indispensable, and civil marriages may be contracted without it. The Puritans abolished the ring, or, rather, tried to do so; they looked upon its use as superstitious and of heathen origin. Quakers generally object to the ring on account of its heathen origin, but the ladies of that persuasion have shown a decided preference for its continuance on account of the invidious position in which a married lady might be placed for the want of it. Wedding rings are placed on the left hand to typify obedience. The converse is probably the reason why the engaged band is placed on the third right-hand finger of a fiance, who still posseses a large amount of freedom, and frequently exercises her power in an arbitrary manner."

The World a Thousand Years Ago.

A thousand years ago, and for a long time after, the world was not all the geologized, botanized, zoologized and mapped-out earthly ball it is now. There it lay, according to the imagination of the men and women of those days (or rather according to the ideas of monks; for the men, and far less the women, of those distant times troubled themselves very little about matters of this kind, but left it to the church-men to meddle with such dangerous book-learning), a flat plain, full of things mysterious and unknown; and out of the four corners, through the gaps of four mountain ranges, which were placed there to keep it steady, blew the four winds of heaven! Of course, the center of it all was the little town, or county, parish, manor, barony or kingdom where they dwelt; but outside of that was no man's land. It was looked upon by our remote forefathers in much the same light as it is by the Chinese, who, while making maps of the flowery land on a scale so large as to show the ground plan of every town and village, mark all the countries outside of that magic boundary of theirs as "inhabited by barbarians." "It was the land of the infidel," the people said, as they piously crossed themselves at the thought. All mysterious to the travelers of that age. The unknown lands were full of dragons and giants, rocs, orcs, witch-whales, griffins, chimeras, enchanters, paynims, Saracens, emirs and sultans, kaisers of Constantinople, of Ind and Cathay and Cipango. What a choice was there then for a young traveler, a good knight and a proper man withal! If he had a mind, he could steer his way to Lapland, where (as all the world knew) dwarfs forged chain-armour of magic links, and where witch-whales and ice-mountains roamed about the chilly sea; or go south, and join the Varangiad Guard in Constantinople, or beard the Turk in Palastine; or into Egypt, and win the prince's daughter by killing a great dragon, as did St. George; or down to Cordova, where there were dire magicians; or into the forests of Brittany, where beauteous faries sported—kindly immortals who loved to be wedded to mortality—who emptied his water-jars at night and filled them with good Rine wine ere dawn of day. He might even marry one, as did Sir Thomas, and pass a few years in fairyland!—Countries of the World.

DARK MADAGASCAR.

Strange Customs and Superstitions—A Picturesque Dance.

A correspondent of the Springfield Republican, writing from the interior of Madagascar, says:

One of the most curious customs practiced by the Sakalavas is a kind of incantation and dance, called the Salamanga, to induce the spirit of evil, which they believe possesses every one who is ill, to leave the body in which it has entered. To drive out this spirit many forms are gone through under the direction of a sorcerer. In all Sakalava towns there is a place arranged for the driving out of evil spirits. A platform about seven feet long and three feet broad is supported about twenty-five feet in the air by a straight up-and-down ladder constructed on one of the poles. Two more perpendicular poles stand at either end of the platform, and about twelve feet from it.

At the tops of these last two poles charms are tied, and on the ground leaning against them, two wooden idols are placed. When a spirit is to be driven out, wood is brought to this place and arrangements are made for building fires round the circle inclosing the scaffolding and idols. Oxen and bullocks are also brought and secured near scaffolding, the number depending upon the rank of the sick person. As night approaches the invalid is brought out, arranged in full dress, and hoisted upon the platform. The cattle are then killed and their blood smeared over the bodies of the people collected about the place. As the sun goes down the fires are lighted, and drums and bamboos are beaten. A circle is then formed around the scaffolding and idols, and the people, shouting and screaming, begin to circle around in a kind of dance, first slowly, then faster and faster, until they are nearly crazy. At the same time spears are thrown high in the air and the idols are struck at again and again in order to force the gods to act.

All have on their dress ornaments, and the sorcerer, under whose direction the affair is being conducted, usually wears a very high hat, gorgeously trimmed and decked with leaves and flowers. As the dance continues the screaming suddenly stops, and women and girls begin to sing in a monotonous refrain. After the general dance the people fall back out of the ring, and a woman of rank, throwing off nearly all her clothing, steps within the circle of fire and begins to dance, keeping time with the drums and bamboos, which make a terrible din. This performance is often repeated several times before the sick person is given up. Upon one occasion in order to keep in the good graces of the people, your correspondent was obliged to take part in this dance. An invalid who does not get any better after repeated attempts to drive out the evil spirit, is often treated in a most barbarous manner; poison is either administered or a spear driven through the breast. This last cure from misery is usually resorted to by the request of the invalid.

The Sakalavas have another peculiar and picturesque dance which takes place by moonlight—usually upon the nights of the full moon. Drums are beaten, bamboos and horns are blown, and the whole village is turned out. All the men then form in an open space, which serves as a kind of parade ground. The music continues and the dance begins, the men in their actions representing the various movements assumed in battle. There is the attack, the conflict, the pursuit and the victory. All are shown by a kind of acting. Their spears, which are very long and light, glisten in the moonlight as they are repeatedly hurled up in the air and caught again in one hand, while a colored scarf of some kind is waving in the other. To me the performance was strange and exciting, and, undoubtedly, it is very inspiring to the savage Sakalavas. Later in the evening the women and children join in the dance, and singing and chanting begins. Upon these war-dance nights a large amount of native rum is consumed, and sometimes several people are killed. This dancing, singing and spreeing always lasts throughout the whole night.

In this land, where superstition, treachery and murder predominate, it is not strange that funerals are constantly occurring, and that the strangest and most revolting performances are indulged in upon these occasions. The first funeral which I witnessed was that of a man of no particular rank or position. As the corpse was being carried along it was followed by a rabble of mourners, who were all screaming or yelling. At intervals along the road the corpse was placed on the ground and a series of athletic games were commenced, in which spear exercise was the most prominent. When the place of burial was reached the corpse was thrown naked into a shallow grave and then covered up with earth. A large pile of rocks was then placed over the grave. Some pieces of silver and a few other articles were buried with the body in order to give the ghost a start in the next world. When people of rank are buried the ceremony is more extensive and somewhat different. At the death of a chief the great bulk of his cattle are killed and his wives are obliged to cut of their hair and otherwise disfigure themselves.

A coffin is made by cutting a log somewhat longer than the corpse. This log is split lengthwise, hollowed out, and the body placed within. The funeral ceremonies are never complete until the succeeding chief has captured a town or fought a battle in which blood has been shed. Whenever a great sorcerer, or a person of more than ordinary distinction, departs this life, his body is allowed to decompose before burial. It is covered with aromatic substances and placed on a bamboo platform in the sun, where it is left for several days. The decomposition produces a putrefying liquid which is caught in earthen vessels placed under the platform. This horrible liquid is then divided among those present. Each receives the liquid in his hand and quickly rubs it all over his body. After this revolting performance the body is wrapped in a kind of cloth and buried with various ceremonies.

Caroline Perry, aged 17 years, the English nursemaid charged on her own confession with murdering Lotty Marian Scott, aged one year and 11 months, by strangling the infant in a perambulator, has been committed for trial for wilful murder. The murdered child was beautiful and the only heir to a rich family.

Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Publisher.

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

With all the turmoil in Wall street and the occasisnal tippling of business houses, New York City is constantly advancing in cosmopolitan greatness. For the first six months of 1884 the total value of new buildings in New York is placed at $29,308,756, against $26,695,619 in a like portion of 1883 and $26,443,245 in the first six months of 1882. The low price of building materials, and particularly of iron, undoubtedly had a good deal to do with the increase.

Recent figures show that the consumption of liquor in the United States has far outstripped the growth of populaion. The number of gallons of liquor consumed yearly has increased as follows: 1840, 71,000,000; 1850, 94,000,000; 1860, 202,000,000; 1870, 293,000,000; 1880, 506,000,000; 1883, 655,000,000. While the population has only trebled in the last forty years the consumption of liquor is nearly ten times greater than it was in 1840, and the amount of money expended in its purchase shows a still greater proportional increase. The annual expenditure for liquor now exceeds $800,000,000.

Life at the fashionable watering places is said to be more demoralizing to children than to many parents. There are many ridiculous accounts of their society pretensions. Little ones of eight or ten, or even younger, are dressed in foolish flimsy costumes to gratify their mother's vanity, and are allowed to join evening parties and share all festivities with their elders. It is not strange that they lose the brightness and freshness of childhood and become self-conscious, assertive and prematurely developed. The same may be said in a degree, of hotel life generally where children are often petted to death."

The gold reserve in the United States treasury is drained down very near to the legal limit of the reserve; and when that is reached the Treasurer must make his payments in other funds, which means silver. If the Sub-Treasury here has to pay its balance at the clearing house in silver the banks must take it; but it has been said that thirty days thereafter they would suspend gold payments. The fear of this has already given rise to speculative contracts to "call" gold at a given figure for the rest of the year. As soon as the banks suspend gold payments, gold commands a premium, and depreciated silver becomes the common standard currency. A "bank president," name not given, is quoted as saying: "There is more danger from a discussion of the falling off of the gold in the hands of the Treasurer, as it is likely to cause a panic, than from the operation of any law of finance it may set in motion. He referred to the propensity for hoarding, which inevitably follows the appreciation of metals over paper or one metal over another used as calculating mediums.

The present agitation in Great Britain over the extension of the electoral franchise will form one of the most important epochs in English history, whatever be the result—and a brief statement of the question at issue will interest readers of foreign news. The franchise in Great Britain is limited to certain described classes. In 1832 the number of voters was less than a million, which was increased by the franchise bill of that year, to about 1,200,000. In 1866 the total number of voters was 1,364,000, which was raised by the franchise bills passed in 1867-69 to 2,450,000. The present number of voters is about 3,000,000. Under the present law only a few of the farm laborers of the United Kingdom are permitted to vote. For parliamentary purposes all of Great Britain is divided into boroughs (the populous town) and counties (which include the districts outside the towns). In the counties only those who own property or pay an annual rent of $60 can vote. Small as this sum is, it is very high rent in Great Britain, where the majority of farm laborers pay from $15 to $25 a year rent for their dwellings. The object of the bill which is the occasion of the existing excitement is to give the country people the same privileges which the town people enjoy. The provisions of the bill were outlined at length by Gladstone in one of the greatest speeches of his life delivered the last day of February last. In that speech he declared that the bill, if it passed, would add to the English constituency over 1,300,000 persons; to the Scotch constituency—Scotland being at present rather better provided than either of the other two countries—over 200,000 persons, and to the Irish constituency over 400,000; or, in the main, to the present aggregate constituency of the United Kingdom of 3,000,000 it will add 2,000,000 more—nearly twice as much as was added since 1867, and more than four times as much as was added in 1832. The manifest justice of the bill caused it to pass the House of Commons by an almost unanimous vote, most of the Conservatives apparently favoring it as enthusiastically as the Liberals. The only obstruction to its passage was in the House of Lords, and the result cannot be doubted. The Lords must concede eventually, for fear of consequences.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Washington News.

Postal bulletin: Postoffices established: Dakota—Brainard, Brown county. Montana, Sahara, Meagher county; Truly, Meagher county. Postmasters commissioned: Joseph E. Keppler, Glendale, Mont. Postoffice name changed: Gustav Grisy, Minguaville, late Keith, Mont. New offices: Wilson W. Wright, Dickey county, Dak.

The chief signal officer says that while certainly Lieut. Kislinbury's remains might indicate that there had been cannibalism among members of the Greely party, he had heard nothing from Lieut. Greely or any of the survivors that would lead him to believe it. No doubt there were bickerings and differences among the members of the party, but he would not believe it led to violence or extreme measures of any kind except in the case of Henry.

Washington Special: Indian commissioner Price has tendered his resignation to take effect upon the appointment of his successor. His friends claim that Secretary Teller has not treated the old gentleman with the consideration due to his position, but this is denied. There are good reasons on both sides why the troubles between these two officials will never be made public. It is said that the loss of Price's prestige in political circles here was caused by his failure to interest himself in behalf of the republican party at home. The selection of a successor to Mr. Price is a matter of some difficulty, as the commissionership of Indian affairs is controlled by religious influences.

Casualties of the Week.

Bathdrum, Idaho, had a $61,000 sawmill fire.

Nearly all the citizens of Lifford, Ont., are in search of Miss Colvin, who is believed to have been devoured by bears in the woods last week.

Mrs. Charles Scheller of Plainfield N. J., who had been sick for two years with chills, was so affected by the earthquake that she died within a few hours.

Oscar Page was drowned at Medina, N. Y., He was thirty years of age and a brother of ex-Congressman Page of California, also of George F. Page of the postoffice department at Washington and Josiah Page of Michigan.

The Galveston News' Lampass, Tex., special says: Another destructive fire has visited this city. Two entire blocks, embracing fifteen places of business, including several saloons with all contents were burned. The loss is estimated at $200,000. The insurance estimated at $100,000. The origin of the fire is believed to be incendiary.

Later reports indicate that the thunder storm which swept over the North of England and Scotland Tuesday was almost unexampled in severity. Many buildings in Edinburgh, Leith and other cities were partially demolished by lightning. Dundee was enveloped in dense darkness and traffic was suspended. Several persons were killed by lightning, among the number Earl Landerdale, who was overtaken by the storm while riding.

Rail and River News.

As agreed upon by the committee of fifteen, the rates to the World's Exposition, which opens at New Orleans Dec. 1, and continues six months, will be upon a basis of $30 from Chicago, and $25 from St. Louis. There will be a rebate of $10 on each ticket, which will be paid at the office where the ticket was purchased, upon the return of the passenger from New Orleans. These rebate tickets will include a certificate of identification and order for reimbursement with certain stipulations, which will have to be strictly complied with to enable the original purchaser to claim the amount of rebate within the specified time.

Crimes and Criminals.

Bob Ford and Dick Liddell, of Jesse James fame, landed in Las Vegas quod for riotous conduct.

Richard Cowlthorp of Lake George, Stearns county, Minn., committed suicide by cutting his throat.

John Scott, brother of ex-congressman Thomas B. Scott, committed suicide by hanging himself with a check line at his home in Smithfield, Ohio. The cause is unknown.

Anton Bacciocc, indicted for murder in the second degree for killing Adam Doller at Cincinnati October, 1882, was found guilty. The penalty is imprisonment for life.

E. N. Rowell, who shot and killed James Lyrick of Albany in his wife's bedroom at Batavia, N. Y., has withdrawn proceedings for divorce as a reconciliation has been effected with his wife.

Christian Hans, a farmer at South Belleville, Ill., committed suicide yesterday forenoon by shooting himself through the head. Cause, financial trouble. He leaves a wife and four children.

Fred F. Punchon of Jacksonville, Wis., has been convicted of adultery. The young woman with whom he had been intimate, Gustie Luckow, drowned herself after she had confessed her ruin by Punchon.

Frank Punchon, the alleged murderer and seducer of Gustie Luckow, at Janesville, Wis., was sentenced to state prison for two years and nine months, being convicted of adultery. This is the third time he goes to the penitentiary.

Bill Dougherty and Zach Gray, young ranchers residing on Sand Prairie, in the southeastern part of Kaufman county, Tex., were principals in a desperate duel fought on Sunday evening, in which both men were wounded, Gray fatally.

A young man who gave his name as C. F. Skinner, and who is said to be the son of a well known Methodist minister in Iowa, was sentenced to jail, in Janesville, Wis., for theft of jewelry from a residence in the outskirts of that city.

A Chicago coroner's jury, inquiring into the death of the man Heck, killed in the stove molders' riot of Wednesday evening, held thirteen of the non-union moulders to the grand jury, and censured their employers, Cribben & Sexton, for furnishing them with arms.

An unconfirmed report is current at Kansas City that Alfred Sheldon, the missing Englishman, has been seen in Trenton, Mo. It is stated that Andrew H. Finlay, a restaurant keeper of Trenton, made overtures to the authorities for the reward, saying he had seen Sheldon there and conversed with him.

The latest news from Lewis county, Tex., makes it certain that in Sunday's affray at least five persons were killed, viz.: Young Cordon, David Hinson and three Mormon elders. The other elder, who escaped was seen near the Hickman county line, and is supposed to have made his way to Shady Grove, a Mormon settlement. Cordon's wife who was shot when an elder ran behind her, will die.

Russell H. Lewis, of St. Louis, shot and killed himself in St. Louis. He was a young man of thirty-two years, and of a very nervous temperament. His wife is a daughter of Gen. Reese, U. S. A., and was involved in the unfortunate affair with young Iglehart two years ago, for which her husband obtained a divorce, but some months later they met in Chicago, became reconciled, remarried, and since have been living together.

The knowledge of the killing of Kitty, the seventeen-year-old daughter of Heck Mitchell, a farmer living three miles west of Sycamore, Ill., by Louis Taylor, a farm hand, created the greatest excitement in Sycamore. The murdered girl's parents had left the house after dinner, leaving the daughter at home alone with Taylor, who was working near the house. Alice Dennis, the daughter of a neighbor, was to pass the afternoon with Kitty. When she later arrived at 2:30 p. m. she made the horrible discovery that Kitty was a corpse, and that [illegible] had been set on fire by Taylor, who had evidently attempted to outrage her. Two hundred men set out upon his trail and finally discovered him near a creek of water. Taylor was seen to run into the stream and killed himself with a pistol shot in the head. His body was recovered. The mother of the murdered girl is insane.

[illegible] Personal News Notes.

A monument of granite [illegible] to mark the grave of Thurlow Weed in Albany Rural cemetery.

Rev. Dr. John Brown, the oldest Episcopal clergyman in New York state is dead, at Newburg. He was ninety-three.

Measures have been taken to place a monument over the grave of Gen. James Shields, the hero of three wars and senator of the United States at different times from three states.

General News Items.

Adams, Hackland & Co., woolen manufacturers, of Paris, Ont., have been granted an extension. Liabilities, $100,000; assets $80,000.

Max Gremin, of Omaha, disappeared on his wedding morning, leaving a letter for his affianced saying he left her because he had lost all his money.

The schedule of Jeremiah Steelman, the insolvent New York commission merchant, show liabilities $55,000, nominal assets $58,000, actual assets $10,000.

Mrs. Emily S. Wempy of Norcross, Ga., who had not stepped for twenty-two years, was cured by faith; and almost immediately arose and walked to church.

The United States vice consul has left the consulate at Sierra Leone on account of the fever raging there. The disease has killed ten of the sixty white inhabitants.

The strike of the Union Pacific shop employes, which began at Ellis, Kans., and extended to Kansas City, Denver, Cheyenne and North Platte, has ended satisfactorily, the terms having been conceded by General Manager Clark.

Following are the officers of the grand order of Druids for the coming year: J. L. Courney of Richmond, Mo., M. N.: G. A. Nichols Berge, St. Louis, D. G. A.; Henry Freudetthral, Albany, N. Y., R. W. G. S.; Philip Reichevine, Indianapolis, R. Y. W. Y. F. Minnesota news.

The senate special committee, consisting of Senators Dawes, Cameron (Wis), Morgan, Harrison and Walker, or Coke, appointed to visit certain Indian tribes, will leave Chicago about the 11th prox. The committee will visit tribes in upper and lower California and the Zuni Indians. A month will be spent among different tribes in the Indian Territory.

The first run of shot has been made in the St. Paul shot tower, just completed. The shot made is drop and buck shot. Bar lead will also be run. The present capacity of the St. Paul foundry is 15,000 pounds per day. The establishment of a foundry in St. Paul is for the purpose of supplying and controling the Northwestern trade, and the works here will be run in co-operation with those at Dubuque and Omaha.

Foreign Flashes.

Camille Farcy, editor of La France, is dead at Paris.

There were forty deaths from cholera in two days at Les Omergues, a hamlet in the department of the Basses Alpes.

Persons in Alsace and Lorraine who intend to make a pilgrimage to Lourdes this season were warned that they will be subjected to quarantine when they return.

The Russian government has decided to purchase of its English owner, the celebrated "Adoration of the Magi" by Paul Veronese. Price £12,000. The picture will adorn the cathedral now building on the site of the assassination of the late czar.

Count Saburoff, late Russian ambassador at Berlin, sold his collection of antiquities. The St. Petersburg hermitage palace bought the terra cotta collection for £32,000. The Berlin museum purchased forty-nine vases and sixty sculptures for £15,000. The British museum secured a variety of magnificent bronzes and other objects for £40,250.

The Cross Gazette gives a semi-official explanation of the expulsion of Russians from Berlin, saying it was the result of an inquiry into many complaints of German merchants that a systematic form of swindling was pursued by Russian traders who had settled in Berlin. As they traded under aliases they escaped legal processes. Inquiry also showed that numbers lived by mendacity and by theft. Honest Russians, the Gazette asserts, were not expelled.

Henry M. Stanley, now in London, declares that the Congo free state will soon be recognized by the whole world. The state proposes to be given open commerce to all nations and expects to become a great federation of native chiefs, under control of the European and American commission. Stanley states that he will shortly visit London and convert the English, who now stand alone in opposition to his project. He praised De Frazza, the French explorer, who, he said, was destined to render great service to the French.

A special telegram from the City of Mexico says: A conspiracy against the government has been discovered here. It embraces a plot to depose President Gonzales and put in his place Jose Maria Iglesias and to assassinate Gen. Diaz and all the ledors of what is known as the Tuxtepec party. The plot is said to be widely spread in the states of Vera Cruz, Pueblo, Morlos, and Queretaro, and that there is great public anxiety. A number of arrests have been made in the City of Mexico during the week, embracing several prominent persons.

Canibalism Better than Starvation.

C. L. Clark, of Detroit, guardian of the children of Lieut. Kislingbury, in an interview said: "If brought to such a point of starvation, I think the unfortunate men would have been thoroughly justified in doing so. It may be, before he died, Kislingbury was forced to do likewise. It is, to say the least, cruel to criticise in the manner that has been done the unfortunate party on its return from the horrors of their exile. The friends of Lieut. Kislingbury made a sad mistake, in my judgement, when they permitted his body to be exhumed." He stated that the relations of Greely and Kislingbury were most cordial, and stories to the contrary were unjust and untrue. He bases his belief in this on conversations with different survivors.

Jay Gould Predicts Good Times.

Regarding the financial situation, Jay Gould said to a reporter the other day:

"We have exceptionally good crops; that of wheat will be the largest we have ever harvested. The corn crop, which is now virtually assured, is also the largest for years. The news from Arkansas and Texas goes to show that the cotton crop will be a first-rate one. Money is piling up, and soon there will be enough bonds and stocks to go around, if indeed there are not now. Everything in the country is at hardpan prices. Railroad building has virtually stopped. Capitalists are putting no money in new roads, consequently the old lines will necessarily be benefited thereby. The effects of the flurry following the failure of Grant & Ward and the Maine bank have all passed away. I think the stock market is in a healthy condition. The crops and the low prices of stocks and bonds, at the present time, are two conditions that govern operations at the present time, regardless of the result of the presidential election. The exceptionally large crops will bring an enormous business to the various railroad lines, and stocks and bonds are selling so low that the outcome of the political campaign will, in my opinion, have no bearing upon the course of the markets."

Market Reports.

ST. PAUL.—Wheat, No. 1 hard, 95; No. 2, 70c.

Corn, No. 2, 52c; No. 3, 48c.

Oats, No. 2 mixed, 25c; No. 3 white, 27c.

Barley, No. 2, 55c; No. 3 extra 45c; No. 3, 40c.

Rye, No. 2, 54c.

Baled Hay, wild, $7.00; timothy, $12.00.

Eggs, 12@13c.

MILWAUKEE.—Wheat, No. 2, 78c.

Corn, rejected, 49@50c.

Oats, No. 2, white, new, 34c; old, 37c.

Rye, No. 1, 62c.

Barley, No. 2, old, 55c.

Mess Pork, $15.50.

Lard, $7.40.

Butter, choice, creamery, 20@22c; fair to good, 17@19c; best dairy, 15@16c.

Eggs, 13½@14c.

CHICAGO.—Wheat, No. 2 Chicago spring, [illegible]

Corn, 50@[illegible]

Oats, 24½@[illegible]

Rye, [illegible]

Barley, [illegible]

Flax Seed, $1.34.

Pork, $15.50@16.00.

Lard, $7.40@7.45.

Butter, creamery, 17@18½; dairy, 14@14½.

Eggs, 13@14c.

ARMY OF THE TENNESSEE.

Annual Meeting at Lake Minnetonka—Oration by Ex-Gov. C. K. Davis—General Proceedings.

The Seventh Annual meeting of officers representing the army of the Tennessee, was held at Lafayette Hotel, Lake Minnetonka, Minnesota. There were many prominent men present, among them Gen. Sherman, Gen. Belknap, and Gov. Rusk of Wisconsin, and Gen. Chetlain of Chicago, and a host of others more or less known to the public. The hotel was handsomely decorated. On the walls of the rooms were potraits of Gens. Sherman, Grant, Thomas and Logan, and also the national shield enclosed in evergreens bearing the inscriptions: "Corinth," "Nashville," "Savannah," "Jackson," "Donelson," "Belmont," "Shiloh," "Chickasaw," "Port Gibson," "Raymond," "Champion Hill," "Big Black River," "Vicksburg," "Kenesaw," "Atlanta," "Missionary Ridge," and "Iuka."

At the business meeting held on the first day Gen. Sherman presided, and Col. L. M. Dayton acted as recording secretary. In calling the meeting to order Gen Sherman delivered the opening address and read a letter from Gen. U. S. Grant, stating that he was unable to be present, on account of his recent injury, and conveying his best wishes. Gen. Sherman then stated that Ex-Gov. C. K. Davis, on short notice, had consented to deliver the address. The report of the treasurer was read, showing the financial transactions of the society for the past year, and its present financial condition was reported good. Gen. Sherman explained that a monument was being erected for Frank P. Blair, and one had been erected for Gen. Ranson by his friends. After the transaction of some routine business, the guests had an excursion on one of the fine steamers on the lake.

In the evening, after the assembly, by the drum corps, Gen. Sherman introduced Gov. Hubbard of Minnesota to the audience, who delivered the address of welcome in which he stated that Minnesota felt an especial pride in its record, as she regards it a part of her own. She had a much larger representation of her stalwart patriotism in this array than in any other similar organization. Gen. Sherman responded, and in announcing the piece, "Marching through Georgia," General Sherman said it was a piece which had followed him around the world and he hoped the audience would enjoy it better than he did. After its rendition he introduced ex-Gov. C. K. Davis to the audience, and explained that Gen. Grant had been expected to deliver the oration, but he was not able to attend. Gov. Davis delivered an elaborate and able address, closing as follows:

I have endeavored to show the mission of war in general, and this war in particular; that its end is not mere conquest, nor personal glory; that its consequences are never-ending; that in the great average of human concerns beneficent; that it extirpates error; that it establishes what is good; that it makes nations. I have said little of your battles, nothing of your personal glory. The battles are known to the world; your glory is secure. It was a sublime conception of the German poet Zedlitz, that before the statute of the great Napoleon in the Place Vendome the hosts of the empire muster for review. While Paris sleeps, the disembodied cohorts of the dead conqueror break the marble calm of death and are marshaled upon the fields of air. The armies of twenty years stand embattled on that aerial plain. They come from the slime of the Nile, from the sands of Arabia, from the snows of Russia, from Alpine ice, from German plains, from the fields of Italy, from Spanish sierras, from the waves of Trafalgar. The imperial marshals are there: Murat, with his squadrons; Davoust, with the victors of Auerstadt; Massena, with the famine stricken defenders of Genoa; MacDonald, sword in hand, and on foot at the head of the 18,000 immortals who broke the Austrian center at Wagram; slaughtered Ney, with the apparition of the despairing guard which broke in vain in bloody surges upon the English squares at Waterloo. The specters of auxiliary kings, their brows goldbound with phantom crowns bestowed by him, career before their shadowy legions, and far off upon the confines of the night the phantasma of vanquished armies in full retreat is dimly seen upon a hundred fields. Martial music is faintly heard beneath the stars, and upon the spirit banners of the pallid and evanescent host, as it sweeps in dark review before the bronze emperor, who has also taken a ghostly life, gleam the words, "Ave Imperator! Morituri te salutant," and then the armies of a lost cause melt into the air, and the emperor becomes bronze again.

The applause which followed the oration was long and loud. Miss Alice S. Mitchell, of Chicago, sang the "Battle Hymn of the Republic," and received round after round of applause for the rendition. Following the song by Miss Mitchell was impromptu speeches by Bishop Fellows, of Chicago, and others, interspersed with music.

On the second day was chiefly given to pleasure. The breif business session in the morning simply disposed of the routine business, the most important features of which was the selection of Chicago as the next place of meeting, a result fully anticipated and the election of officers as follows:

President—Gen. W. T. Sherman.

Recording secretary—Col. L. M. Dayton.

Corresponding secretary—Gen. A. Hickenlooper.

Treasurer—Gen. M. F. Force.

Vice presidents—Col. John S. Cavender, Missouri; Gen. W. T. Clark, Dakota; Lieut. Col. Rood, Iowa; Capt. W. McCrary, Minnesota; Gen. Schuyler, Hamilton, New York; Capt. C. Riebsame, Illinois; Lieut. S. Stillwell, Kansas; Capt. George H. Heaford, Wisconsin; Maj. Edgar T. Miller, Pennsylvania; Capt. Josiah Barber, Ohio; Capt. Logan H. Roots, Arkansas.

After the business had been disposed of nearly one hundred accepted Col. McCrory's invitation, and went to Minneapolis via the motor line, viewed in that city the chief points of interest, and returned in the afternoon. Another excursion on the lake, with the successful regatta as a prime object of interest occupied the remainder of the day.

In the evening there was a grand banquet. Four long tables filled the hall. These were spread simply with the cut glass and silver. Tropical plants and blooming flowers were center pieces in each table, and the snowy linen was strewn with smilax and cut flowers. At the table at the head of the room, on an elevated platform, was seated the master of ceremonies, Gen. W. T. Sherman; on his right, Gov. L. F. Hubbard on his left, ex-Senator Ramsey; Mayor O. D. O'Brien, Col. Taylor, Senator D. M. Sabin, Lieut. Col. Plunkett, Gen. J. H. Hammond, Maj. John C. Smith occupied seats at the table, which was faced with a bank of cut flowers.

The feast was ended at half past ten, at which hour the hall was ordered cleared of the servants and the speaking was commenced. Gen. Sherman introducing each speaker in a pleasant and characteristic way. The following were the toasts, and the names of speakers:

First Toast—"The President of the United States." Response by Colonel C. P. Dyer. In the absence of Gen. Gresham, P. M. General, Thirmew said the committee was obliged to take the most good-natured man they could find—Gen. Dyer from Pike, Mo., and of course all old soldiers knew of that locality.

Second Toast—"The State of Minnesota." Response by Governor F. L. Hubbard.

The third toast was the "State of Wisconsin," to which Gov. J. M. Rusk was to have responded, but was not present. In lieu thereof Gen. Sherman expressed his regret at his absence, and bore testimony to the gallantry of the soldiers of Wisconsin, many of whom were members of the Army of the Tennessee.

Fourth Toast—"Our Country." Response by General A. L. Chetlain, of Chicago.

Fifth Toast—"The men of '76—their spirit inspired the men of '61." Response by General Schuyler Hamilton.

Sixth Toast—"The Victories of Peace—no less renowned than those of war." Response by Mgr. Capel.

Seventh Toast—"The Army of the Tennessee." Response by General W. W. Belknap.

Eight Toast—"The Unreturning Dead. Green be their memories. They did not die in vain." Response by Capt. Henry A. Castle, of St. Paul.

Ninth Toast—"The Golden Northwest." Response by Rt. Rev. Bishop Ireland, of Minnesota.

Eleventh Toast—"The Thinking Bayonet—A Product of Universal Education." Response by Hon. Ignatius Donnelly.

Twelfth Toast—"The Loyal Governors of 1861." Response by Hon. Alexander Ramsey.

Thirteenth Toast—"The Loyal Volunteers." Response by Gen. John W. Noble.

Fourteenth Toast—"The Rank and File." Response by Col. August Jacobson.

Fifteenth Toast—"The Ladies." Response by Prof. C. V. Tousley.

The speeches, without exception, were pertinent to the sentiments of the toasts, full of bright thoughts, and not lacking in eloquence, and were enthusiastically received. The banquet lasted until long after midnight, and was the end of the reunion, save excursions to nearer or more distant points of the Northwest.

THE ARCTIC EXECUTION.

President Greely's Official Report of the Killing of Private Henry.

The following is Lieut. Greely's official report on the execution of Private Henry.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 11.—To the Adjutant General of the United States Army, Through the Chief Signal Officer of the United States Army—Sir: I have the honor to report that on June 6, 1884, at Camp Clay, near Camp Sabine, Grinnell Land, it became necessary for me to order the military execution of Private Charles B. Henry, of the Fifth cavalry, for continued thieving. The order was given in writing on my undivided responsibility, being deemed absolutely essential for the safety of the surviving members. Ten had already died of starvation, and two more lay at the point of death. The facts inducing my action were as follows: Provisions had been stolen in November, 1883, and Henry's complicity therein was more than suspected. On March 24, 1884, the party nearly perished from asphyxa. While several men were unconscious, and efforts were being made for their restoration, Private Henry stole about two pounds of bacon from the mess stores. He was only seen by the Esquimaux, John Edwards, but his stomach being overloaded he threw up the undigested bacon. An open investigation was held and every member of the party declared him guilty of this and other thefts. A clamor for his life was raised, but it was repressed by me. I put him under surveillance at once, for our waning strength rendered his physical services indispensable. Later he was found one day intoxicated on hand for general issue. A second time his life was demanded, but I again spared him. On June 5 the thefts of provisions on his part was reported to me. I had a conversation with him in which I appealed to his practical sense, pointing out that it was necessary to our preservation. He promised an entire reformation, but, distrusting him, I issued a written order that he should be shot if detected stealing. On June 6, he not only stole part of the shrimps for our breakfast, but visiting, unauthorized, our winter camp, stole certain sealskins reserved for food. I then ordered him shot. On his person I found a silver chronograph abondoned by me at Fort Conger and stolen by him. In his bag was found a large quantity of sealskin and a pair of sealskin boots stolen a few days before from the hunter. Suspecting complicity on the part of several, I ordered his execution by the most reliable men. After his death the order was read to the entire party and concurred by every member as being not only just, but essential to our safety. To avoid a public scandal I ordered that no man should speak of this matter until official report was made of the facts. I have to request that a court of inquiry be ordered or a court martial convened should the honorable secretary of war deem either advisable. In this case I have thought it best not to ask written statements of the surviving members for appendices to this report, lest I might seem to be tampering with them. I have not asked since the rescue June 22, whether their opinions concurring in my action have changed or not, leaving such questions to your action if deemed requisite. I naturally regret that circumstances imposed such a terrible responsibility on me, but I am conscious that I should have failed in my duty to the rest of my party had I not acted promptly and summarily.

HAVING STOLEN LIQUOR

[Signed.] A. W. GREELY,
First Lieut. Fifth Cav., A. S. O., and Asst. Com. of L. F. B. Expedition.

Destructive Fire at Anoka, Minn.

Nearly all the business portion of Anoka, Minn., was destroyed by fire on Saturday morning. The flames started about two o'clock in a privy adjoining Van De Welde & Page's roller skating rink, and when first seen were spreading up the hill toward the high school. The efforts of firemen and volunteers to narrow the course of the conflagration were unavailing. Every piece of wood, every box and plank, fences, blinds and cornices were as dry as a bone, and instantly caught fire as the flaming current approached.

The fire showed no signs of stopping as long as there was anything for it to feed on, and it cut a clean swath to the river, taking in its course the magnificent Washburn flouring mills as well as the opera house, block, First National bank building, and four score buildings, some of them finer buildings than are usually to be seen in such a small city as this. There was no "partial damage" except to one building—the school house. All the rest are total loss.

As Anoka now looks there is a wide level gap from the bridge north to the court house, except the standing ruins of the First National Bank, the Opera House block and the tall, round chimney of the Lincoln mill. A rough estimate of the figures foot up as follows: Buildings burned, 80; loss on buildings, $341,650; loss on contents, $277,540. Insurance on buildings $191,350; insurance on contents, $124,875; total loss, $629,190; total insurance, $316,225.

W. D. Washburn's loss was roughly estimated by him at $175,000, with $145,000 insurance. The principal buildings destroyed, besides Mr. Washburn's are Jackson's Hotel, Anoka Club House, Anoka Bank, R. Taylor's store, Bean & Guderain's store, A. L. Ticknor's stores; H. L. Plummer's stores; J. A. Foote's buildings, skating rink, Postoffice Block. Of these buildings destroyed, 15 were on Jackson street; 133 on Maine street; and others on Monroe street and others, besides those on the river bank.

Steam engines from St. Paul and Minneapolis were sent by rail to Anoka and rendered effective service in staying the flames, though the destruction had been accomplished previous to their arrival. The Mississippi river, crossed by a handsome wagon bridge, is one mile west of the city and its tributary, the Rum river, runs through and pretty equally divides the corporation through the business portion. Where the destruction occurred is north of the Rum. In 1870 Anoka had not more than 1,000 inhabitants; now a fair and low estimate is 5,000, and with its street cars, electric lights, and other metropolitan paraphernalia, the city (incorporated in 1878) has an air of activity impressive and surprising.

THE GREELY SHADOW.

Shooting of Henry—Cannibalism Denied.

A special from Portsmouth, N. H., says: Early this morning Col. Kent obtained an interview with Lieut. Greely, who admits that Henry had a military execution on the 6th of June. As early as March it was suspected that Henry was stealing the limited food which was apportioned out to the survivors, and this fact being finally positively ascertained Lieut. Greely had thereafter hard work to protect the man's life. It became necessary, in order to keep up the discipline, to inform Henry that he would be shot if the practice continued, and that a similar fate would be meted out to any other member of the party detected in a like crime. If Henry had been permitted to continue his stealings unmolested, the balance of the party would surely have starved to death and Henry alone survived. After and in spite of these warnings, Henry was again detected stealing provisions, among the food taken being two pounds of bacon, the eating of so much of which made him sick. Search was then instituted, when it was found that Henry had, among other articles, stolen and secreted a pair of sealskin boots which had belonged to a hunter of the party. Lieut. Greely was therefore forced, in order to maintain military discipline and protect the lives of his other comrades, to issue a written order that Henry be shot, which order was carried into effect June 6. As to the alleged cannibalism, Lieut. Greely says if there was anything of the kind it must have been an individual act, and not general. Nothing of the kind however, came under his personal observation. Sergeant Brainard, who is in the hospital at the navy yard, confirms Greely's statements. More than a week ago Lieut. Greely forwarded to the secretary of war a detailed report of Henry's execution. Upon proper representations to Secretary Chandler, a court of inquiry will undoubtedly be ordered.

Official Investigation Demanded.

The horrible recital of the death of Henry, one of the Greely expedition, by one of the survivors, has caused William Helms, a cousin of the deceased and a resident of Chicago, to request of Secretary Chandler an official investigation into the circumstances of his death. The real name of the deceased was Henry Bock. Mr. Helms' letter to Secretary Chandler is as follows:

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 12.—To the Secretary of the Navy, Washington—Sir: As one of the near relatives of the late Private Charles B. Henry, of the Greely Arctic expedition, I hereby request an official investigation of the circumstances of his death and also of the state in which the remains were received for interment. I cannot bring myself to imagine that he was killed and eaten by his comrades, as alleged in the newspapers; but as the assertion is so confidently made, it behooves both yourself, on behalf of the honor of the United States service, and myself, as a near relative of deceased, to set the matter at rest. I make this an open letter. Simultaneously with mailing it to you I give it to the press here for publication.

I have the honor to be your obedient servant,
WILLIAM HELMS.

REPUBLICAN POLITICAL NOTES.

Blaine Retaliates.

Indianapolis, Ind., Special Telegram, Aug. 14.—The following dispatch was received here this morning:

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 14.—Col. W. R. Halloway: I have this morning received the atrocious libel of the Indianapolis Sentinel. The story is utterly and abominably false in every statement and in every implication. Political slanders I do not stop to notice, but this editor assails the honor of my wife and children. I desire you, without an hour's delay, to employ the proper attorney and have the responsible publisher of the Sentinel sued for libel in the United States district court of Indiana. It is my only remedy, and I am sure that honorable Democrats, alike with honorable Republicans, will justify me in defending the honor of my family, if need be, with my life. [Signed],
James G. Blaine.

The matter has been placed in the hands of Senator Harrison, who, in obedience to the request, in connection with Messrs. Miller and Eden, attorneys, this evening filed the following complaint with the clerk of the circuit court: James G. Blaine, plaintiff, vs. the Indianapolis Sentinel company and John C. Shoemaker, defendants for libel. Excluding the legal verbiage, the gist of the libel is found in an article copied from the Sentinel in which it is stated that there is hardly an intelligent man in the country who has not heard that James G. Blaine betrayed the girl whom he married, and then only married her at the muzzle of a shotgun. If Mr. Blaine was a scoundrel to betray an innocent girl, and if after despoiling her he was a craven to refuse her legal redress, giving legitimacy to her child, until a loaded shotgun stimulated his conscience, then there is a blot on his private character more foul, if possible, than any of the countless stains on his political record."

In the Fourth Iowa district W. E. Fuller is the man chosen by the republicans for congress.

At the Seventh Iowa district republican convention H. G. Smith and E. H. Conger were nominated for congress, the former for the short and the latter for the long term.

Gen. J. L. Chamberlain, president of Bowdoin college, Me., who has been claimed as a Cleveland man, is out in a card saying he shall vote for Blaine.

Encouraging reports have been received at the Wisconsin republican headquarters at Milwaukee from the strong German districts. The defection of which the democrats speak is nowhere visible.

Col. P. J. Condon of Topeka, Kans., who is well informed regarding the political feeling of his countrymen in that state, says that a large proportion of Irishmen are for Blaine in all towns throughout Kansas.

Ex-Senator George E. Spencer of Alabama, says of Blaine's chances in the south: "The prospect of carrying Louisiana is first-rate, and there is a strong probability of West Virginia and North Carolina going Republican. We shall, at any rate, gain some Republican congressmen in the South on the protective issue.

The Wisconsin Republicans will have a rally at Madison, Sept. 3, the date of the state convention. Gen. Logan, Gov. Long of Massachusetts, Gov. Dick Oglesby of Illinois are the speakers who have promised to be present. This will be the principal meeting of the campaign of Wisconsin.

Cassius M. Clay, of Kentucky, comes out for Mr. Blaine, being much moved by the Copiah outrages, which he thinks a part of the general policy of the South: "This is not a conflict," he says, "between parties, but between two distinct civilizations which cannot coexist."

The Cincinnati Commercial Gazette sums up the argument against Governor Cleveland very concisely as follows: "Grover Cleveland was a professed lawyer who had found running for the office of sheriff more profitable than the law, and from that had been elected mayor. This in a large city indicates the managing politician of a lower order, rather than a man of ability and character."

Secretary McPherson has received a letter from Buffalo, the home of Cleveland, which portrayed in glowing colors the prospects of Republican success. The Republicans are thoroughly organized in every ward, there being also a number of independent Democrat Blaine and Logan clubs, having a large membership. The writer predicts that Buffalo will give Blaine fully 5,000 majority.

The Wisconsin State Journal will publish a card to-morrow from James Burke, a prominent Irish-American, who has been a pronounced Democrat for thirty years past, in which he earnestly advises his fellow Irish citizens to support Blaine and Logan and to repudiate Cleveland, whom he denounces as a monopolist and gross insulter of Irishmen.

The Kennebec (Me.) Journal, discussing the charge that Blaine once belonged to the Knownothing party, says: "Mr. Blaine was never a member of a Knownothing organization. The riotous preceedings against Catholic priests in Bath and Ellsworth in 1854, which, it was asserted, were excited, or at least not disapproved by the Kennebec Journal, of which Mr. Blaine was editor, took place months previous to Mr. Blaine becoming a resident of the state, and months prior to his becoming the editor of the Kennebec Journal."

The papers heretofore Republican that do not support Blaine and Logan are very few in number. They are the Boston Advertiser, the Springfield Republican, the New York Times, Harper's Weekly and the New York Independent. These comprise all of them.

Prof. J. M. Gregory of Howard university, has just returned from Ohio, where he has spoken at Cleveland and other places. In Ohio, he said, there appeared to be better organization and more enthusiasm among the Republicans than in the Garfield campaign. The liquor question was not involved in this campaign, and the Germans, who are Republicans at heart, would support Blaine. Prof. Gregory had no doubt that Ohio would be carried for Blaine and Logan. The friends of Garfield are stronger, he said, and they are attached to Blaine.

In a dispatch to the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette Murat Halstead says: The fact that Gen. Grant has not ceased to believe that the welfare of the republic depends upon the continued ascendency of the republican party is testimony of the integrity of his judgment. He has had differences with Mr. Blaine, but does not remember them in any narrow and captious spirit, and while he does not think that he should go to the front in the presidential campaign, he does not hesitate to make known that the republican ticket has his good wishes, and so far as his personal influence can go, his earnest support. John Finerty, the Irish congressman from Chicago, says: Blaine is a brilliant man—everybody knows that. He is the boldest living representative of the democratic Monroe doctrine. I don't believe Blaine would lead us into war with any nation. He is too shrewd for that, but I believe he would make the power of America felt and respected in a proper way everywhere. It is singular that he has made his greatest reputation by expounding a democratic doctrine."

At the Michigan Republican State convention, R. A. Alger and C. A. Luce were put in nomination for governor. Alger was nominated on the first ballot. Luce was then nominated by acclamation for lieutenant governor. Luce declined, and Archibald Butters was nominated on the first ballot. The rest of the ticket stands as follows, the incumbents being renominated in each case: Harry A. Conant, secretary of state; Edward H. Butler, state treasurer; William C. Stevens, auditor; Gen. Miners Novell, commissioner of the state land office; Moses Taggart, attorney general; Herschell Gass, superintendent of public instruction; James M. Ballou, member of the state board of education.

Secretary McPherson, of the Republican congressional committee, believes the Republicans will make large gains in congressmen, although he is not yet willing to say he believes they will be able to capture the house.

Hon. John C. New, is especially pleased with the outlook in Indiana. "I think the situation is better than it was in 1880," he said. "I am not one to be carried away by enthusiasm. I have given them careful thought and attention, and have come to the conclusion that we can carry the Hoosier State, despite the candidacy of Gov. Hendricks. The tail of the ticket is not big enough to wag the head even of our state. Of course, the fight will be a close one, but I feel no doubt of the result. Butler's candidacy does not count on anything out there, but St. John may capture some of our forces."

MINNESOTA NEWS NOTES.

ON AN INVESTIGATING TOUR.

Minnesota Doctors Look up Cholera, Cattle Desease, Glanders and Other Matters of Vital Interest—A Report from Dr. Hand of the Chicago visit.

Drs. Hand and Hewitt, of the state board of health, have returned from Chicago where they have been prosecuting an investigation of several matters which are of vital interest and importance to the people of the Northwest. Prominent among them were cholera and the cattle disease, which have been agitating the country and the world of late. A reporter called on Dr. Hand and obtained from him a statement of the results of the trip which were substantially as follows: The primary object of our visit to Chicago was to look up the matter of cholera and make some provisions for an emergency. So far as we can learn, the general feeling and expectation is that the disease will not reach this country this season in time to do any serious damage; but that the probabilities are that we will catch it another season. The danger this season is considered so far past that the conference I expected to attend at Washington was postponed sine die, but subject to call. Nevertheless, we thought best to confer with the health officer of Chicago and the state authorities there, and make some arrangement for meeting the emergency if it should unexpectedly arise. We find Chicago thoroughly roused over the matter, and I believe that any amount of money could be raised to carry through the scheme that we agreed upon. This was to have inspectors appointed, whose duty it should be to go through every incoming and outgoing train, in the event of a first case being reported in New York, and spot every case where there was even the least supcion. Our authorities here are to be kept constantly informed of suspicious cases, and we hope that we will be able to keep cholera out of Minnesota, if it should strike the country. As I said, however, the danger is considered practically over for for this season. Chicago is being cleaned up pretty generally, and the river certainly is in better condition than it has been for years.

THE CATTLE DISEASE.

We also made a thorough investigation of the precise facts of the recent scare in Chicago over the cattle disease, and the possibility of its affecting Minnesota. The cases of the disease—Texas fever—were confined to one herd of 500 cattle, shipped from Kansas City. Twenty-three were found dead on their arrival in Chicago; fifty more were found dead the next morning, and 300 were shot by order of the health authorities. The rest were slaughtered under careful surveillance, and thirty-six more found to be diseased. We found that there had been no diseased cattle among those in transit, nor in yards with those in transit; so that we think there is no danger of the disease reaching Minnesota. The fever is contagious, and frost kills it. No Texas cattle are driven into Minnesota; so that there seems to be no cause for alarm. Another matter we investigated was glanders. We found the health department wide awake on this subject. Every horse known to be diseased is instantly shot and every one suspected is isolated. It is a very difficult matter to detect the disease. One main thing I was anxious to do was to learn to diagnose it, but I don't know as I have fully done so yet. We are trying to pursue the same course here. There have been no new cases reported for ten days. By the way, while in Chicago we were invited to visit an almshouse in Kane county, where there is a woman who has glanders, having caught the disease from a horse.

Minnesota State School Board.

At a meeting of the State Board of education, the work of the following schools, as it appeared in their term reports, written reports and examiners' reports, was examined and approved, and the appropriation of $400 was voted to each, viz., Stillwater, Montevideo and Kasson. The applications of the following high schools for acceptance under the supervision of the high school board for the coming three years, were considered and granted, viz.: Albert Lee, Anoka, Austin, Blue Earth City, Cannon Falls, Chatfield, Duluth, Faribault, Farmington, Hastings, Henderson, Howard Lake, Hutchinson, Kasson, Lake City, Le Sueur, Mankato, Monticello, Ortonville, Plainview, Red Wing, Rochester, Rushford, St. Cloud, St. Peter, Sauk Center, Spring Valley, Stillwater, Wabasha, Waterville, Willmar, Winnebago City, and Zumbrota. The report of the faculty of the state university submitting the form of a manual for the use of high schools in organization and instruction was received and accepted.

Articles of incorporation have been filed with the secretary of state for the Northwestern Trust company (limited.) The company will buy and sell lands and deal in mortgages, bonds, stocks and other securities. Its place of business is St. Paul; the incorporators and first board of directors are A. F. Eden, Winnipeg, and Robert C. Wright, John J. Thompson, Joseph H. Lawrence and T. H. Brydges, of St. Paul. The capital is $1,000,000, divided into $10,000 shares.

Capt. W. G. and George F. Telfer, proprietors of the Lyndale hotel at Lake Calhoun, near Minneapolis, have made an assignment to George H. Warner for the benefit of creditors.

Ole Setter, who has a claim in the Thirteen Towns, Polk county, left home with his gun, leaving a note saying he was tired of life and would not be seen again, and diligent search has thus far failed to discover his whereabouts.

"B. G. N.," in the New York Sun, calls Faribault "the model town of Minnesota."

Gov. Hubbard and Architect Buffington made light of the injury to the capital.

This is not a good year for the Minnesota Boat club. It got into bad water at Detroit, and was swamped in the first heat of the senior four-oar race at Watkins.

Richard Wells, unmarried, aged twenty-five, and an Englishman, was shot accidentally Sunday at Fox Lake, Martin county, while duck hunting, by Percy Frosby. His brains were blown out killing him instantly.

In a thunder storm at Duluth, the Heisler hotel and West End hotel, at Rice's Point, and the Matthews house in the central portion of the city, were struck and windows broken, chimneys knocked down and otherwise shaken up. The planing mill of the Barnhart Lumber company was struck and a large hole torn in the roof, which caught fire but was put out before any great damage was done. A small dwelling house at Rice's Point was also struck.

Mill owners in Stillwater evince no intention to shut down Sept. 15, as has been urged by down-river parties. The mill men, as one expressed it, are each waiting for the other, and consequently no concerted action will be taken.

Ole G. Spitten, a farmer living in the town of Nidaros, Otter Tail county, while attempting to stop his team from running away, while attached to a self-binder, was thrown in front of the sickle and his right leg so badly lacerated that amputation was necessary.

The suit of the state vs. the Northern Pacific railroad, brought in 1881 to cause payment of taxes on the leased line from Sauk Rapids to St. Paul, having been decided in favor of the state, caused a special report of the earnings to be made for the years 1881, 1882 and 1883, which the railroad company now has completed. The earnings for 1881 were $415,967.68; taxes and penalty, $13,090.38; for 1882, $623,418.09; taxes and penalty. $19,637.70; for 1883, $717,140.34; taxes and penalty, $22,587.92. Total earnings for the three years, $1,756,127.01: total tax and penalty received by state, $55,310.

The St. Pauls again met defeat at Quincy—score 4 to 3.

The Mankato dairy and produce exchange proposes to make a large display of dairy products at the New Orleans international exposition, and its managers are confident that its members can take more than its proportion of the $12,000 of prizes offered for products of the dairy.

Plans for the foundation of the new Catholic convent to be erected at the west end of the city of Winona have been prepared by J. A. Seinfelder, the architect. The main building will be 227 feet long, with wings at each end 127 feet in length. The basement will be occupied for dining rooms, kitchen, pantries, laundries, storerooms, fuel rooms, cellars, etc. The building will be of brick with stone trimmings, three stories in height above basement, with towers at each end and one in the middle.

At Beardsley, O. D. Heurley received $167.50 bounty for 3,350 gophers.

We find the following excellent article in the Raymond (Clark Co., D. T.) Gazette, which will be found excellent food foa thought for Minnesota farmers:

"The inhabitants of Dakota themselves do not begin to realize the enormity of the crop that is now being harvested, and only when the facilities of the railroads and grain elevators prove inadequate to take care of it will they understand the real amount of the products of their summer's work. Dakota is destined to excel as a dairy country and in mixed farming in the not far distant future, just as it does in grain at present. It is only when the farmers forsake the mistaken idea of being wheat 'specialists' and turn their attention to raising more stock, that their success will approximate that which so fertile a country and so industrious a people deserve. Trying to live through and meet the expenses of a whole year by the proceeds of a single crop is not only unprofitable but very risky. Another great mistake is made by trying to cultivate too much land. Good farming brings no greater results anywhere than in Dakota and inversely proportionate is the yield of poor farming."

POLITICAL NOTES.

New York Sun: Had the Democratic convention nominated Thomas F. Bayard or Samuel J. Randall or Allen G. Thurman—notwithstanding the objection against taking a candidate from an October state—all would now be plain sailing for the Democracy and victory would be already assured.

New York Tribune: From the beginning the Tribune has had faith that Republican principles would ensure the success of Republican candidates this year. The stories and the humors of the campaign count for but little. The people have enough intelligence to defend their industries by their votes, and can therefore be trusted to uphold the party which has faithfully defended those industries for twenty-three years.

Kansas City Journal: People who told about the solid Democratic vote of New York for Cleveland don't know what they are talking about. The feud in the party in that State is as much a Know Nothing fight as it was thirty years ago, when the party sailed under an open flag. The leaders understand it, and the masses know all about it. The nomination of Cleveland is the triumph of the faction opposed to Tammany—and his success would be death to that organization. Butler will poll more votes in the down-town wards of New York than Cleveland.

Cincinnati Commercial: The Republican prospects in this State are all that could be desired. The ticket is a popular one. Almost everywhere great activity has been exhibited; but so far, and for the most part, this has been largely superficial. It would not be policy to flood the State with ordinary speakers—with men anxious to advertise themselves at the expense of the party. The services of such will no doubt be abundantly tendered. They should in all cases be respectfully declined. The foremost men in the party—men to whom the people look with confidence for instruction, and whose words will be weighty, should be the foremost on the stump in Ohio.

Few Settlers Returning East.

Ten years ago, when dazzling fabulous stories allured many people from the older States to the Far West, without sufficient funds, great suffering ensued. Then scorching drouths and grasshoppers sent thousands of them back to their old homes, broken in spirit and poverty-stricken. Now, with a better knowledge of what is required, people are not disposed to migrate to the Northwest without sufficient funds to tide them over the first year or two. Furthermore, there have been but few drouths and fewer grasshoppers these later years; but yet there are those who have returned because of the severe hardships they experienced during last winter in Dakota. Those must have indeed been trying times for the settlers in some portions of this vast territory, when the snow at times completely enshrouded their rude dwellings. But these experiences and vicissitudes the settler must expect. If he is not willing to encounter them with a stout, brave heart, he had better not go West. If, however, full of resolution, pluck, and determination, he goes to the front and surmounts these earlier difficulties, a few years, at the longest, will place him at a point of prosperity which perhaps he could not have attained in a life-time further East. Push and patience be your motto.—[American Agriculturist.

PROFIT OF SHEEP KEEPING.

It is questionable whether there is any other farm stock so profitable as a little flock of good sheep well kept. A Michigan farmer gives an account of his flock of eighteen ewes, which, with the year's keeping, cost him in all $147.25. The total returns for the flock, including $56.52 for wool, and a reasonable value for the increase of the flock retained, which was estimated at the same as the prices realized for what was sold, was $269.07, leaving a net profit of $121.82 or eighty per cent. on the amount invested. There are several points that are worthy of notice. First, these sheep were good ones. It costs no more to keep a good sheep than a poor one worth $2.50, and no more to feed a good ram worth $25 than a poor one worth $4. But the produce of a good animal is worth several times as much as that of a poor one, although it costs no more to feed and rear. Second, these good sheep were well kept. A good sheep pays better for good keeping than a poor one, but good keeping pays better than poor keeping, even for poor animals. A good sheep cannot thrive well on poor keeping; its goodness does not lie in that direction; nay, it may suffer more from neglect than a scrub, just because of its better breeding, which calls for equally good feeding. And the better the animal is, generally, the better it will pay for good keeping. Third, labor costs just the same when expended upon poor material as upon good, as it costs no more when expended upon good, and costs no more when expended upon good material than upon poor. A man may build a house of sun-dried bricks and finish it with a great deal of labor. But when the frosts and storms of winter come, the walls melt down and the house falls in ruins. It would cost no more to have used good burned brick, and the house would have lasted 200 or 300 years. It is precisely the same with farm stock. A farmer wastes food and fodder upon poor stock, because not only does it give less increase for the food and labor spent upon it, but the poor quality of this increase gives a less value to it. The moral of the Michigan farmer's little story is obvious, and it is well worthy of note by farmers who are improving their stock. And the way to improve is to begin with what we have, feed and care for it in the best manner, for this is the first step, and then select the best of what we have, feed those animals which show the greatest aptitude for improvement; weed out the poor ones; go on feeding and caring still better for these better animals, and in a few years the herd or flock will pay handsomely for the work expended upon them. This is precisely how the popular breeds of cattle of which we hear so much have been built up—[New York Times.

The New "Holstein" Cattle Furore.

The cattle of the Netherlands are attracting more attention from the dairy farmers of the country than any other breed. For many years they have been carefully bred, with an aim to produce large quantities of milk. Doubtless the quality of milk has been less an object with the breeders of Holland; but when well-fed cows give enormous quantities of milk, and the milk can be disposed of as such, the profit is almost invariably greater to the producer than if the quality were better and the quantity less. Besides, milk of "low" quality is poor in fat, but not necessarily poor in cheese substance. The districts whence they come, have always been famous for both cheese and butter, so that without further evidence our farmers might safely assume, that the milk was really rich in both butter and cheese. But we have other facts. The famous cow Mercedes, now dead, was the especial rival of the Jersey cow Mary Anne, of St. Lambert, for the honor of being the greatest butter cow in the world, and the no less worthy and scarcely less famous heifer Jamaica, is credited as giving one hundred and three and one-quarter pounds of milk a day, and in a week as yielding twenty-six pounds three ounces of butter, while Ethelka gave eighty-one and one-half pounds of milk a day. These cows were neither of them four years old, and with their second calves. A breed with such possibilities, even though the average fall far below, is one upon which too great care cannot be spent, with a view to both preservation of these inbred qualities, and to render them the more uniform inheritance of the race.—[Col. Weld, of N. J. in American Agriculturist.

Differing Views of Duty.

From the New York Sun.

Our able contemporary the St. Paul Daily Globe informs us that after the National Democratic Convention had made its nomination, "it was evidently the duty of The Sun to assist in electing Cleveland."

This is not our view of the subject. We hold, on the contrary, that if a nomination seems to us weak, inadequate, mistaken, undeserved, and replete with danger to the existence and welfare of the Democracy it is our duty to resist it afterward as well as before.

But, we are told, to oppose Cleveland is to work for Blaine. Well, those who are frightened by that bugbear, seem to us rather deficient in their reasoning process. "Had a known scoundrel been nominated," says the St. Paul Globe, "no one would have expected The Sun to support him." It is, then, our right to act upon our own judgment; and while Mr. Cleveland cannot be described by the violent epithet of the Globe, we are profoundly convinced that his election, like his nomination, is against the interests of the Democracy; and we contend against it accordingly.

If Blaine is finally elected because the Democratic Convention refused to hear argument and wilfully preferred the one aspirant who was sure to disrupt and break down the Democracy, whose is the fault? Is it ours? Is it the fault of those who raised their voices earnestly against it before the fatal error had been consummated? No, no, a thousand times no! It is the work of the blinded and misguided manipulators of the convention, deaf to reason, and obstinate in their purpose.

If Blaine is finally elected, the deed is theirs. On them, and not on The Sun, nor on the thousands of earnest Democrats whom they trameled down at Chicago, the responsibility will rest.

Waiting for the Country to Catch Up.

David W. Judd, of the American Agriculturist, who is making his annual tour through the far Western States and Territories, writes in the September issue: When a new country experiences a boom in emigration, it brings along with it doctors, lawyers, bankers, dry goods merchants, grocers, and mechanics generally. They locate at the nucleus of a village, and the land buyers at first have generally to employ all of them in one way or another. Business is consequently brisk for them. When, however, the tide of emigration recedes, and the land buyers have scattered to their various prairie homes and become settled, the demand for the services of professional, business and trades-people diminishes. The village becomes dull, the hurly-burly and excitement which characterized the boom are gone, and the villagers who rely on the farmers complain of very dull times, and begin to question whether the far West is such a great place after all. As the surrounding country, however, begins to develop, and the virgin soil yields crops to the tillers, money begins to flow into the villages. At first it was the money brought by the land-buyers from the older States; now it is the money made there "on the spot,"—domestic money, so to speak, as contrasted with imported. It continues to increase with the increasing agricultural development of the new region, and the villages and towns regain the activity which characterized them at first; that is, such towns and villages as pull through the reactionary period and are not abandoned. Every new region experiences this transition state. The villages have to wait for the surrounding country to catch up, as it were, and during the waiting-period it is dull indeed.

Raising Early Lambs for the Butcher.

So far as my experience goes, there is no more trouble in raising an early lamb than a late one. In fact, our earliest lambs are almost invariably our best lambs. I would rather have lambs come in January and February than in April and May, and if I could have them earlier, I should prefer it.

Merino ewes will take the ram earlier in the autumn than the English breeds of mutton sheep. For this reason, if for no other, in raising early lambs for the butcher, I should select common Merino ewes, or at any rate ewes having more or less Merino blood in them. There are other reasons why I should select such ewes. There are more of them in the country, and they can be obtained cheap. They are healthy, hardy, thoroughly acclimated, and will stand rougher treatment than the English mutton sheep. They are smaller, eat less, and occupy less room in winter quarters. They will bear crowding better than the large English sheep—or rather, they suffer less, for it is a mistake to keep any sheep in too close quarters. Common Merino ewes, like Jersey cows, when well-fed, give rich milk, and if you want early, fat lambs for the butcher, the mothers, no matter what breed you may select, must have plenty of nutritious food.

I do not say that common Merino ewes are, in themselves, the best for raising early lambs. They are not. I have had grade ewes, the offspring of a mixed Merino ewe, and a Cotswold ram, that would produce larger lambs, give more milk, and the lambs would fatten more rapidly, and mature earlier. But it is not always easy to find such ewes for sale. Those that you find in market are apt to be culls. The butcher, if he has a chance, gets the best lambs. A good plan is to go to some large market and buy a carload of sheep, or three or four times as many as you want. Bring them home, and pick out the best ewes, and then sell the other ewes and wethers to the butchers.—[Joseph Harris, of N. Y., in American Agriculturist.

A. Allen,

AGENT

—FOR THE—

HOWE

SCALE

COMPANY.

Fortier's Place,

Corner Broadway and Robert Street

EVERYTHING NEW, NEAT

—AND NOBBY—

Billiards, Pool and the Choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars. The purest High Proof Whiskies at wholesale prices.

PURE IMPORTED GOODS ON DROUGHT.

DR. M. S. WATTS

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.

OFFICE ON ROBERT STREET.

Professional calls by day or night attended to with promptness.

P. A. DUFOUR,

Attorney and Counselor at Law,

—MAIN STREET—

CROOKSTON, MINN.

The Old Brick Block

IS THE PLACE

To Buy Dry Goods, Groceries. Clothing, Boots and Shoe Hats and Caps, or anything you want.

Fontaine & Anglim

IS THE FIRM

Who are ready, with a corps of affable clerks to show you their NEW FALL and WINTER STOCK and quote prices to astonish the natives.

Great Bargains

Don't forget to visit Fontaine & Anglim's Emporium, in the Old Brick Block,

MAIN STREET. CROOKSTON, MINN.

THE

J. I. CASE

THRESHING MACHINE COMPANY

The Dennet or Beloit

HARVESTING MACHINE COMPANY

And the Van Brunt & Davis

SEEDER COMPANY,

Are Represented

BY

STEENERSON BROS.,

CROOKSTON, MINN.

MONEY TO GIVE AWAY

IN BARGAINS AT

MARKHAM'S

THE LEADING GROCERY HOUSE

AND THE LARGEST BOOT AND SHOE STORE

IN CROOKSTON.

Goods Delivered to any Part of the City

FREE OF CHARGE

FARMERS, FARMERS,

WE ARE

Selling Lower Than Ever!

You will always find it to your advantage to

Trade with Us!

We Sell the Best for the LOWEST LIVING PRICES. Remember the place,

Broadway, bet. 2d and Robert Sts.

D. BUCHANAN.

THE NEW ERA MANUFACTURING CO.

Exclusive manufacturers of the

—NEW ERA—

Wagon Road Grader!

AND DITCHING MACHINE.

Manufactory 625 to 631 south Halsted street, Chicago, Illinois.

Having established our headquarters for the Red River Valley at CROOKSTON, MINN., all inquiries addressed to us will receive our personal attention. All machines fully warranted and free trial given upon application. Address all Red River Valley correspondence to the NEW ERA MANUFACTURING CO., Box 851, Crookston, Minn.

McKINNON BROS.,

Carriage Works

Robert Street,

Crookston, - Minn.

AGENTS FOR THE

J. I. CASE THRESHING MACHINES!

And Manufacturers of

Carriages, Wagons,

BUGGIES,

Cutters, Sleds, &c.

Axles, Springs, and all Repairs kept in stock,

DEALERS IN

FARM MACHINERY.

In Farm Machinery we have the Champion Seeder, Fargo Diamond Tooth Harrow, Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow, Davenport and Grand Detour Sulky and Walking Plows, Buford Gang Plows, Field Rollers of all sizes, Warrior Mowers, the leading Hay Rake and first-class Harvesters and Binders, the Webber Wagon and McKinnon Bros. Wagon, In fact we have everything in machinery, from

A Wheelbarrow to a Threshing Machine!

—EXTRAS—

For all Machines constautly on hand

E. M. Walsh,

DEALER IN

Hardware, Tinware

BAR IRON, STEEL,

BLACKSMITHS SUPPLIES,

BUILDING PAPER,

&c., &c. Also Agent

For the Celebrated Monitor Plows.

CROOKSTON, MINN.

A Big Bonanza!

JOSEPH BARRETT

Has decided to Put on the Market his

ADDITION

TO THE

City of Crookston,

Next adjoining the Crookston Driving Park. Parties desiring to purchase

—CHOICE LOST—

NOW IS YOUR TIME!

LOTS

For Sale Separately, or in

BLOCKS

TERMS EASY!

Apply to the undersigned or at the office of C. B. Palmer, U. S. Land Office Building. Both English and French spoken.

JOSEPH BARRETT.

Polk County Journal.

Crookston, Minn., Thursday, August 21

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

GOING NORTH.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 1 Passenger	10:45 p. m.	10:55 p. m
" 9 Passenger	10:10 a. m.
" 19 Freight	12:30 a. m.
" 15 Freight	4:00 p. m.
" 23 Freight		10:30 a. m.

GOING SOUTH.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 2 Passenger	4:00 a. m.	4:15 a. m.
" 10 Passenger		5:35 p. m
" 20 Freight		7:00 a. m
" 12 Freight		6:15 p. m
" 21 Freight	5:00 p. m.

DEVIL'S LAKE LINE.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 9 Passenger		10:20 a. m.
" 10 Passenger	5:30 p. m.
" 45 Freight		6:00 a. m.
" 46 Freight	7:00 p. m.

ST. HILAIRE BRANCH.

Trains leave Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 10:15 a. m., and arrive same days at 4:00 p. m

☞ Passenger Trains No's 1 and 2, Main Line, run daily except Sunday. No's 3 and 4 run daily. Devil's Lake Passenger runs daily. Freights No's 23, 20 and 21 run daily. Freights No's 15 and 22, and Freights on Devil's Lake Line run daily except Sunday.

'ROUND HOME.

T. B. Walker arrived in the city last Monday.

Mr. W. H Gilbert, of Warren, registered at the Commercial last Thursday.

Swanson & Koeppe started a fire under a kiln of 300,000 brick on Saturday last. They will have brick ready for delivery about the first of next week.

Mr. M. F. Roberts, one of the pioneer traveling men of the Northwest, interviewed our merchants last Monday in the interest of Smith & Rosbach, Minneapolis.

W. L. Sargent came down from Warren last Saturday evening. He reports everything lovely in that locality and says that he has nearly all of his grain cut and shocked.

Lawyer Shannon has a thoroughbred pup which is a daisy. No use trying to buy him (the pup) as money is no object with Shannon. He believes in diversified husbandry.

Mr. Milton, proprietor of the Merchants' hotel, of this city, is painting, papering and fixing that house up generally. He has the office already fixed up very tastefully.

Mrs. J. Dohaney and daughter Delia, who have been visiting the family of G. W. Lewis, of this city, for the past month, left Saturday evening for their home in Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Mr. Macdonell, of the firm of Proud & Macdonell, started east last Monday evening to purchase a full stock of goods. Look out for a fine stock of goods at their store inside of 30 days.

It is reported by some of our citizens here that Carl Kretzschmar, of Red Lake Falls, came to this city last week and purchased a hand pump and extinguisher to use in Red Lake Falls in case of fire.

G. W. Lewis, of this city, received a telegram last Saturday noon that his brother, H. C. Lewis, of Coldwater, Michigan, was dying. He, accompanied by his wife, left on the train the same evening for that city.

The game of base ball at the Park Garden last Saturday between Red Lake Falls and Crookston was won by the former. The Crookston boys would probably have won the game had it not been that their catcher got hurt in the commencement of the game and had to quit.

Uncle Damon Dodge brought in some fine samples of White Fife, Scotch Fife and Saskatchewan Fife wheat one day last week. On the stool of White Fife were 111 stalks, all said to have come from one kernel. Uncle Damon says the White Fife is the coming wheat. We should have said the samples were all garden growth.

Uncle Damon Dodge brought us a sample of his garden truck on Saturday last which shows that he knows something about raising something else besides wheat. He had some large cabbages, some fine radishes and some of the finest sweet corn we have sampled in years. He has been enjoying that sort of foolishness for several weeks already.

The chickens have had to suffer extensively since the 15th. We have seen hundreds of parties (more or less) of at least a dozen or so returning from the sanguinary chase with at least three or four chickens to the squad as the result of their day's work but then they probably had no end of fun, which cannot be reckoned by the head, to say nothing of the good exercise it affords the hunting dogs that have been laying round idle during the year. The boys seem to think it is not good policy to kill off all of the chickens all of a sudden like and thus spoil the fun for the future.

Ole Bang and Geo. Crooker returned from a trip up Thief River as far as Thief Lake on Thursday last. They were accompanied on their trip by a party from St. Hilaire. Ole Bang said to our reporter that they saw a good deal of [illegible] country and some that was good only for tamarac timber, of which there was abundant supplies. [illegible] thousands of ducks and geese [illegible]

B. F. Bushee, of Grand Forks, was at the Commercial last Monday.

Mr. Nathan Butler, one of the old pioneers of the Northwest, was in the city last week.

Sheriff Zwickey has been quite ill for several days, but we are glad to state that he is improving.

Dunk Morris brought a stool of wheat from Euclid last Monday on which were 68 healthy stalks.

It is said that there were more prairie chickens brought into Crookston last Friday than ever before in one day.

Berthiame Bro's, have just received a lot of guns, shells, etc., in fact everything pertaining to a sportsman's outfit. Call early and see them.

Fred Schwark and Dunk Morris left for Euclid last Saturday on a hunting trip and returned Monday. The boys had a good time and shot a goodly number of birds.

There has been several robberies committed of late at some of the boarding houses and hotels in our city. It is to be hoped that some of these raiders will be taken in and example made of them.

The electric light started up again last Monday night. It seems that the people in Crookston never appreciated it so much until they had to do without it for a few nights, and now they see what it is.

Mr. D. E. Bailey, of Minneapolis, gave us a pleasant call last week. He is one of the State Board appointed to collect material for exhibition at the World's Fair, that commences at New Orleans on Dec. 1st. He came to interview our Board of Trade with a view to getting a big exhibit from Polk Co. All the world is going to be at that fair and Minnesota will make a grand exhibit. The County of Polk should not, and we believe will not, be behind in her efforts to secure a good showing.

Once upon a time a certain man got mad at the editor and stopped the paper. The next week he sold his corn at four cents below the market price. Then his property was sold for taxes, because he didn't read the sale. He was arrested and fined for going hunting on Sunday, simply because he did not know it was Sunday; and he paid three hundred dollars for a lot of forged notes that had been advertised two weeks, and the public cautioned not to negotiate them. He then paid an Irishman with a foot on him like a forge hammer, to kick him all the way to the newspaper office, where he paid for four years in advance, and made the editor sign an agreement to knock him him down and rob him if he ever stopped his paper again. Such is life without a paper.—[Ex.

A New Railroad.

Fargo Republican: A movement was developed yesterday, which has for its object the building of a new railroad from Crookston, Minn., to this city. The business men of Crookston have long desired a closer rail connection with Fargo than they now enjoy, and have been looking over the ground with a view to the early formation of a company to build such a line as they desire. A party, whose name it is not necessary to mention, is looking up a route by which entrance into the city may be effected as desirably and cheaply as possibly without damage to abutting property. Mr. Keeney informed a Republican representative that he had reason to believe that right of way for the new road, through certain streets, would be asked of the city council at one of their early meetings. The advantages of another railroad into Fargo are too obvious to need extended mention here, but it behooves the business men of Fargo to lend the new enterprise all the encouragement possible, because upon the establishment of a railroad center here, depends Fargo's future prosperity.

Burglars About.

On Saturday night a burglar effected an entrance to the Carman House and entered the room where Mr. Geo. M. Swift, of Maple Lake, was sleeping. Mr. Swift was awakened just as the robber had taken his coat and vest from the hook and started out. He sung out to the thief to "drap dat kaliker" and sprang out of bed to emphasize his demand. The thief did not drop worth a cent but fled into an adjoining bedroom and shut the door. Mr. S. thinking he had the bird caged sure enough, aroused the clerk and together they went into the bed-room and there found the room empty. The thief had quietly raised the bedroom window, climbed out onto the shed roof and quietly slid down, dropping safely to the ground, a distance of eight or ten feet. In the morning the coat and vest were found near the railroad track, but a gold watch that had been in the vest pocket was not found. The watch was an Elgin movement, numbered 713,876, and was valued very highly by Mr. S. We are told that an attempt was also made on the same night to burglarize the hotel on Sampson's Addition but have no particulars of the affair.

Binding Twine.

Somebody is neglecting a golden chance to make an overgrown fortune in this city. We allude to the thousands of pounds of twine which is used in this county alone for binding purposes, the money for which goes out of the country and into the hands of eastern manufacturers. Is there any good reason why all the twine used could not be made right here and the hundreds of thousands of dollars that are now sent outside [illegible] be retained at home? Farmers have made money in this country raising flax for the seed alone, and if there was a twine factory to use up the flax straw then the raising of flax would soon become a very important industry. Crookston contains all of the necessary facilities for a twine factory, and a sure fortune awaits the man who will undertake the enterprise.

County News.

East Grand Forks Courier:

Auditor McGuire has listened to reason and common sense, and in answer to a numerously signed letter from some of the principal men in the county asking him to be a candidate for re-election has consented.

Our devil, through the courtesy of Z. M. Hunt—which we hope will not be extended again in like manner—got hold of a mammoth cucumber, and for two days lay 'neath the trees, with his stomach in his hands, and praying to Divine Providence for one more chance. He reported for duty this morning saying, "I'm awfully weak."

A young man residing in Grand Forks drove over to the ball at Franken's on Tuesday night and hitched his animal to a post. Two boys reeking for excitement untied the beast and stepped into the buggy, which was a handsome one, and started on a drive through the city. A few moments after the buggy and a part of the harness were found in a ditch, much the worse for wear, while the horse with the other portion of the harness pulled up in Grand Forks some time later. The result of the whole affair may be summed up as follows: buggy broken, harness ruined, two fights, one arrest, one night in jail, $4.50 and costs, and a whole neighborhood alarmed.

Halvor Gunderson, a farmer, while driving to town on Wednesday last stopped at W. C. Nash's pump along the roadside to water his cattle. A gentlemanly appearing young man who was passing at the time taxed him 10 cents for the water privilege, claiming the well was his own. Now, Mr. Gunderson, being a Red River Valley farmer, does not carry so small a piece of money about, but from the inner recesses of a plethoric purse he drew forth with the calmness of a millionaire a crisp one dollar bill, which he presented to the young man in a manner which left no doubt as to Halvor's etiquette. The young man—strange too, wasn't it! could not change the bill, but he would walk over, he said, to his residence and get the change. He walked over sure enough, while Halvor, like the Babes in the Wood, awaited the return of that man; but he ne'er came back, and Mr. Gunderson weepeth, not for the value of 100 pennies, but because he was a stranger, and a stranger "took him in!"

$100,000

To Loan on improved claims in sums of $250 to $2,000. Cash paid for school bonds. Call on or address,

JOHN McLEAN, Att'y at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

Just received a large lot of rubber, hemp and soap stone packing, for threshing machines and engines, also lace leather belting and cotton waste.
[13-15] E. M. WALSH.

Send Money by American Express or Money Orders. Receipts given. Money refunded if Orders are lost. Sold at all offices of the Company. Payable at 6,500 places. RATES: To $5-5c.; $10-8c.; $20-10c.; $30-12.; $40-15.; $50-20c.
[2-27]

A good farm for sale two miles from Euclid. Seventy acres in crop. Will sell at a low figure. H. W. LEWIS.

NOTICE.

Any man investing in property at Red Lake Falls or vicinity who loses by the investment, I will pay five dollars where he looses five cents.
[3-28] ALFRED GERVAIS.

A fine residence on Broadway for sale, enquire of H. W. Lewis. Office in JOURNAL building.

Christening and Wedding Cakes Made upon Shortest Notice in the Best Style.

A Choice and Well Selected Stock of Confectionery Always on hand.

John Crawford & Son,
Proprietors of Crawford's
Bakery,
SECOND STREET,
Crookston, Minn.

CONFECTIONERY
Fresh Bread, Buns, Cakes and Biscuits. All Articles in the Fancy Baking Line.

FURNITURE STORE,
BROADWAY, CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.
[illegible] BATAGLIA, PROP.
[illegible]

BERG & OLSON,
PRACTICAL WATCHMAKERS,
AND DEALERS IN CLOCKS,
WATCHES,
JEWELRY,
ROBERT STREET,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

Wentzel & Rauch,
Sample Rooms.
MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

For a fine mixed or straight drink call on the boys. The choicest liquors and cigars in stock. [9-tf]

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss.
County of Polk. } In Probate Court.

In the matter of the estate of Paul C. Sletten deceased.

Notice is hereby given to all persons having claims and demands against the estate of Paul C. Sletten late of the County of Polk deceased, that the Judge of the Probate Court of said County will hear, examine, and adjust claims and demands against said estate, at his office in the City of Crookston, in said County, on the first Monday of each month, and that six months from the 11th day of August 1884, have been limited and allowed by said Probate Court for creditors to present their claims.

Dated this 30th day of July A. D. 1884.

OLAUS H. LUCKEN,
Executor of the estate of Paul C. Sletten deceased.
ROBERT J. MONTAGUE,
Judge of Probate. [15-18]

Notice of Mortgage Sale by Advertisement.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Theophile Patnode and Cordelia Patnode, his wife, mortgagors, to John Cromb, mortgagee, dated the fourth day of September A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of September A. D. 1882, at 1:45 o'clock p. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 218 on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of fifty-six and 17-100 dollars, and there is yet to become due thereon four hundred and twenty-five dollars and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction by the sheriff of said County, on Saturday the 30th day of August A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold, are the lots, pieces or parcels of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: Lots number four (4) eleven (11) and twelve (12) and the southeast quarter (se¼) of the southeast quarter (se¼) all in Section number eighteen (18) in Township number one hundred and fifty-one (151) north, of Range number forty-three west, of fifth principal meridian, containing one hundred and seventeen (117) acres more or less according to the United States survey thereof.

Dated July 2d, 1884.

JOHN CROMB.
Mortgagee.
MONTAGUE & WIGHT,
Attorney's of Mortgagee. [13-18]

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication July 31st, 1884.]

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Joseph Piquette, a married man, and Mary Piquette, his wife mortgagors, to John Cromb, mortgagee, dated the 27th day of October A. D. 1882, and recorded as a morgage, together with the power of sale therein contained in the office of the Register of Deeds, of the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on the 31st day of October A. D. 1882, at ten o'clock and twenty-five minutes a. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 250, which said mortgage authorized the holder thereof in case of such default to declare due and foreclose the same for the whole amount secured to be paid thereby, and whereas there is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the amount of five hundred ninety-one and 25-100 dollars ($591.25-10) being the whole amount secured to be paid thereby and still unpaid, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof and whereas by such default the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become and is operative.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of such power of sale contained in and recorded with said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises herein described, which sale will be made at the west front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county or by his Deputy, on Saturday the 13th day of September A. D. 1884, at ten o'clock in the forenoon to satisfy the amount that shall then be due on said mortgage with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold are all that tract or parcel of land lying and being in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and described as follows, to-wit: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section twenty-one (21,) in Township number one hundred and fifty (150) north of Range number forty-four (44) west, of the fifth principal meridian, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres, according to the United States government survey thereof.

Dated Crookston July 31st 1884.

JOHN CROMB,
Mortgagee.
JOHN LEO,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [14-20]

MORTGAGE SALE

[First publication August 7th, 1884.]

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Alex Allerdyce, mortgagor, to Paul C. Sletten and John Cromb, mortgagees, dated the first day of August A. D. 1882, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 25th day of August A. D 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "H" of mortgages on page 218, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of four hundred and eighty-four 90-100 dollars, according to the terms and conditions of one promissory note of even date therewith, and whereas Paul C. Sletten one of the mortgagees above named, on the 8th day of July A. D. 1884, at the City of Crookston, in said County, died testate, and the last will and testament of said deceased, which was by the Probate Court of said County duly admitted to probate and allowed as such on July 10th A. D. 1884, appointed and constituted Olaus H. Lucken the sole executor thereof, who accepted the trust and duly qualified as such and letters testamentary under said will was then by said Court to him duly issued, and whereas an attested copy of said will was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for said Polk County, on July 31st, 1884, in book "P" of deeds on pages 257 and 258, and no action or proceedings has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by the sale of the mortgaged premises, therein described at public auction, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County of Polk, on Saturday, the twentieth day of September A. D. 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m., to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, and the costs and expenses of sale together with $25.00 attorneys fees as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure. The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold, are the pieces and parcels of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, known and described as follows, to-wit: Lots one (1,) two (2) and three (3) of block six (6) in Sletten & Cromb's subdivision of Hurlbut's addition to the townsite of Crookston according to the recorded plat thereof now on file in the office of Register of Deeds for said Polk County.

Dated August 5th A. D. 1884.

JOHN CROMB, Surviving Mortgagee.
OLAUS H. LUCKEN, Sole executor of Paul C. Sletten, deceased, mortgagee.
[illegible] STEENERSON, Attorney for surviving and for executor of deceased mortgagee.
[15-21]

N. F. CHINIQUY'S

Chicago Dry Goods House.

JUST RECEIVED,

Full Lines Of

Dress Satins, Lawns, Organdies.
Percales, Cambrics, Buntings, Piques
Marsailles, Prints, Embroideries.
Gloves, Hosiery, Handkerchiefs.
Hoop Skirts, Bustles, Corsets.
Parasols, Collars, Cuffs, Ruchings.
Laces and Lace Goods, Gauze.
Underwear, Etc., Etc., Etc.
Cretonnes and Fringes.
Gent's Furnishing Goods.

The above goods were bought late in the season at very Low Prices and I will make it an aim to sell those goods very cheap.

No Trouble to Show Goods
At N. F. CHINIQUY'S
Chicago Dry Goods Store.

JEROME'S ADDITION.

TO THE

CITY OF CROOKSTON

IS NOW

Offered for Sale

This is the finest Residence Property in the City. High and dry, good cellars, water, and well sheltered. Enclosed on three sides by the river, and only three blocks from the heart of the city and Post Office.

Pure Drugs,

Reliable Medicines,

LOWEST LIVING PRICES,
AT
Medical Hall,
CROOKSTON,
Beecher & George, Prop's.

E. D. Schreader
LIVERY,
Feed and Sale Stable.

BEST TURNOUTS
IN THE CITY.

Single or Double Rigs, with or without driver or

SADDLE HORSES

Always ready at a moments notice by day or night. If you want a Nobby Turnout call at the Red Barn, Corner Main and Third Streets,

CROOKSTON, - - - MINNESOTA.

NEW
DRUG STORE
IN GARFIELD
DR. A NELSON, Prop.

The citizens of this town and vicinity are respectfully invited to call at my new Drug Store in the town of Garfield and examine my stock of

DRUGS, MEDICINES, PAINTS, OILS AND YANKEE NOTIONS.

It is no longer necessary to go 40 or 55 miles for anything in this line, as I have a full supply at prices as reasonable as any town in the Northwest. Call and see

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON

I am also ready to answer all calls by day or night, for the practice of my profession. Call, or leave orders at my Drug Store in Garfield, Polk Co., Minn.

DR. A. NELSON.

NEW LIVERY,
Feed and Sale
STABLES.,
CORNER MAIN AND FOURTH STS.,
CROOKSTON, - - MINNESOTA.
TERRY & COLLINS. Prop's.

☞ Good Turnouts at all times a reasonable prices. Good Hearse and careful driver when needed.

WM. WATTS,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
AND DEALER IN
REAL ESTATE:
OFFICE OVER MERCHANTS' BANK.

W. L. Sargeant
Veterinary Surgeon.
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.
Diseases of horses and cattle a specialty.
[9-tf

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON.

PAID IN CAPITAL,	$100,000
SURPLUS,	1,400

Money to loan on long or short time on approved security.

Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.

GEO. O. ERSKINE, President.
K. D. CHASE, Vice President.
ANSEL BATES, Cashier.

A. YVERNAULT,
Dealer in General
Merchandise,
—MAIN STREET,—
Crookston, - - Minn.

All of my friends, both old and new, are cordially invited to call and examine my stock and get prices.

Crookston Tonsorial
PARLORS.
PROF. THOMPSON, Proprietor.
Robert Street, Crookston, Minn.

Shaving, hair-dressing and all work in my line promptly attended to the latest style of the art. Give me a call.

The Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Proprietor. DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. TERMS---$1.50 Per Annum.

VOL. VIII. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, AUGUST 28, 1884. NO. 18

Polk County Journal.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance, to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

ADVERTISING RATES.

SPACE.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	2 m	6 m.	1 year
½ inch	50	$1 00	$1 15	$1 50	$3 00	4 50	$ 6.00
1 inch	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	5 50	6 00	10 00
2 inches	1 50	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 50	9 50	15 00
3 inches	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	9 50	13 50	20 00
4 inches	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 50	10 00	10 00	25 00
5 inches	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 50	20 00	30 00
¼ column	3 50	5 50	5 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	35 00
½ column	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	20 00	35 00	50 00
1 column	9 50	12 50	15 00	18 00	35 00	60 00	100 00

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

Republican Ticket.

For President,
JAMES G. BLAINE,
of Maine.

For Vice President,
JOHN A. LOGAN,
of Illinois.

For Representative in Congress,
HON. KNUTE NELSON,
of Alexandria.

Marshall County Banner.

CROOKSTON, August 4th, 1884.

In the POLK COUNTY JOURNAL of July 31st, I find an article bringing forward Mr. H. G. Palmer, of Warren, Marshall County as a candidate for the Legislature who is fully alive to the interests of the farmers and business men of the district, I am not so positive that Mr. H. G. Palmer is the man. I do not purpose at this time, to go through the entire record of his long and active business life, which the JOURNAL article points to, as proof positive of his capacity of that position of trust and honor.

There is such a thing as trust betrayed, and I have heard of honor among thieves, but am afraid it is a very rare article. The JOURNAL goes on to say: "His record in the past few months shows him to be deeply interested in that which most clearly concerns every other farmer in the land—an open market." Judging from the untiring zeal with which he has worked for this elevator scheme for the past few months, we should presume he is deeply interested in something. Whether it is his brother farmer, in whom he has taken such a sudden and all absorbing interest, or the wealth that may possibly drop into his own pocket, together with the popularity he expects to gain, (both to be used as stepping stones to the Legislature,) remains to be seen.

I will here give the cost of an elevator similar to those being built by Palmer & Company, which will probably help explain the deep interest taken by Mr. Palmer:

Lumber delivered on ground	$1,000 00
Belting, cups and belt bolts	120 00
Shafting, pulleys, horsepower, boxes, valves for spouting, and all other hardware except nails	150 00
Dig for elevator pit	100 00
Nails	175 00
Cost of putting up elevator	650 00
Total amount	$2,195 00

The above is the cost of a single elevator. In buying material for twenty-five, (which I believe is about the number being built,) the cost would undoubtedly fall below this, but giving them the benefit of this, we find the total cost of twenty-five elevators to be $54,875.00. Of this amount the farmers furnished $50,000.00, the other half of the firm, the balance, or $195.00 each elevator, besides their valuable experience. Now for this magnificent piece of scheming Mr. Palmer asks the people to send him to the Legislature. Comment is unnecessary. This is surely a matter in which farmers can afford to make no mistake, but let them look out for schemers who are watching for a chance to gull, defraud and cheat.

I think there can be no question as to what has been done, in this one item of independent line of elevators. As to the balance of the items in the count, I am not yet informed. His other plans to benefit the farmers will probably develop in the course of time. They will be recognized and treated in their regular order as they are made manifest.

INVESTIGATOR.

Farmers' Union Elevators.

Warren Sheaf.

Seldom will one find a weaker article than the one published in last weeks Banner signed "Investigator." No wonder the writer tried to mislead the public as to the place where the article was concocted, by dating it at "Crookston, August 4th, 1884." The supreme cheek of insinuating that such an article should eminate from any resident of Crookston is an insult to the intelligence of the residents of that city. The very assertion that a crib elevator, of 30,000 bushels capacity, completed according to plans and specifications, and ready for work can be built for $2,196, is, to our way of thinking, an absurdity. Why does not "Investigator" accept Mr. Locke's offers of $4,000 or Mr. Sharpe's offer, if he knows that these elevators can be built for a little more the $2,000 each. Two thousand dollars profit on each elevator is no small item, and on 25, the snug little sum of $50,000 could be pocketed. If it were true that such profit could be made, there would be plenty of contractors ready to take all such soft snaps. But such talk as to the cost of these elevators is all bosh—mere twaddle, and can do no harm save to show the ignorance of those who make the assertions. Had "Investigator" placed the cost at $2,500 or $3,000 or even $3,500 each, there might have been some chance of thinking that he had investigated the cost, but when it is claimed that they cost but $2,000 and a profit of $2,000 made on each one or $50,000 on the entire lot, it becomes ludicrous and spoils what effect it otherwise might have had. The article simply proves that a thing may be overdrawn. Stick to the truth. If there is a "nigger in the fence" stick to the "nigger," but don't lie about the Farmers' Union Elevator. What is the real object in publishing such articles as the one referred to in the Banner. Evidently not to benefit the farmers. Is it not to spite someone, or written in hopes that it might prejudice some voter against a man who has been active in getting the elevators built? If the above is the real object, the writer has signally failed in his designs. Is there a man living who really hopes that this system of elevators will be a failure, and that farmers may be injured rather than benefitted by them. If such a man can be found he is really to be pitied. We hope they may prove beneficial and give us an open market, and add from one to five cents per bushel to the price wheat would otherwise have been. We all know that the farmers in this valley need all such benefits—they work hard enough for it, and the men who oppose this simple justice is no friend to the farmer. Instead of kicking and endeavoring to throw cold water upon this movement, everyone who has a cent invested in the Red River Valley should lend his aid and support to the successful carrying out of this plan, and thus secure if possible, something like justice to the toiling thousands of wheat raisers. Let us see how these elevators propose to benefit the farmers. For every bushel of wheat that goes through the Farmers' Elevator the stockholders get one cent. If a hundred thousand bushels passes through then there will be $1,000 to divide among the share holders, if 200,000 bushels is handled then there will be $2,000 to divide. The beauty of this plan is that the farmers get their share of the profits while they are not called upon to pay any part of the losses, if any is had. The chances are all in favor of the stockholders making something, and if the elevator handles any wheat at all they will make something or we have failed in our figuring. Farmers will bear in mind that for every bushel they deliver at the Farmers' Union Elevator is one cent added to the price they receive, which will be declared a dividend to the stockholders. If, as claimed, these elevators will give an open market let the farmers do what they can to give them a fair trial. It will be time to attack them when they fail to do the square thing.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Knoxville (Tenn) Chronicle: An "Independent" is a man who will neither dig bait nor hold the pole, but wants to eat all the fish caught.

Boston Pilot: If Gen. Butler runs for President on the labor and anti-monopoly nominations he can not be elected, perhaps, but most assuredly neither can Cleveland.

New York Sun, (Dem): Our grievance is of the simplest and plainest nature. There is nothing about it to require investigation. We have published it repeatedly, and will publish it again whenever it is asked for. We hold that Grover Cleveland is not fitted to be President, and that he has done nothing to merit such promotion.

Portage Register: James G. Blaine is not simply a Republican who has stood foremost at all times, and under all circumstances, in defeat as well as victory, in advocacy of an advanced republicanism, but he is also the best representative of American sentiment of all our public men. Even his political opponents are constrained to admit this and the worst criticism they can make is that his intense American sentiment might lead the nation to conflict with others. Never fear. No nation ever suffered because it had a man at its head ready at all times to assert its rights and maintain its dignity. With James G. Blaine at its head, the United States would challenge the respect of any other nation on the globe, and peace and justice would reign.

Brooklyn Eagle (Dem): Our valuable contemporary the Sun is convinced that Gen. Butler will run for the presidency. We are sorry to hear it. Gen. Butler is a Democrat. He can not, therefore desire the election of Mr. Blaine. And yet the only effect of his running would be to improve Mr. Blaine's chances.

Kansas City Journal (Rep): We find no fault because Mr. Cleveland did not go to the Union army. All could not go, but, while remaining at home Mr. Cleveland did nothing to aid the Union cause. For the latter reason he is not entitled to the support of the men who were loyal to their country in its hour of peril.

Chicago News: Gov. Cleveland's opponents will have to go no further than the convention hall to find arguments for his defeat. They can say, and truthfully, here are all sufficient objections to Cleveland's election uttered on the floor of the convention by regularly accredited delegates, and they passed unchallenged. What more could they ask? The platform is a monstrosity. As a literary production it would insure the instant dismissal of any reporter of the Daily News who should present it as printers' copy. As a declaration of principles it is beneath contempt. Butler said enough, in his way to condemn it. But he did not say half as much as can be said. Finally, the nomination of Hendricks as vice-president will weaken the ticket. Senator Joseph E. McDonald, and not Thomas A. Hendricks, was the man presented to the Democratic convention by the State of Indiana.

Gainsville (Ga) Southern (Dem): "Tariff for revenue only" crushed a good man weighing 250 pounds, and this year a "tariff for public purposes exclusively" will crush a 250 pounder not quite as good. To our wormwood, mossback contemporaries, our most deferential salutations. To all the world justice. To enemies charity. To friends gratitude. To Blaine and Logan success.

Buffalo Commercial Advertiser (Rep): Here in Buffalo Cleveland is best known, and he is known to be what we have described him. Hence it is that in the very city where he was elected Mayor there is not one Republican of any prominence who has declared an intention to vote for him for President. Nine-tenths of the "Independents" are actively at work for Blaine and Logan. And in Western New York, which did so much to help his "boom" for Governor, not a leading Republican is on Cleveland's side—not one.

The internal commerce of our thirty-eight States and nine Territories is carried on without let or hindrance, without tax, detention, or government interference of any kind whatever. It spreads freely over an area of 3,500,000 square miles—almost equal in extent to the whole continent of Europe. Its profits are enjoyed to-day by 56,000,000 of American freeman, and from this enjoyment no monoply is created. According to Alexander Hamilton, when he discussed the same subject in 1790, "the internal competition that takes place does away with everything like monopoly, and by degrees reduces the prices of articles to the minium of a reasonable profit on the capital employed. It is impossible to point to a single monopoly in the United States that has been created or fostered by the industrial system which is upheld by the Republican party.—[James G. Blaine.

Chicago Tribune: It was not the Republican press or leaders who set the "dog" upon Cleveland. The scandal was first started by one of the most prominent Democrats in the State of New York, who has since refused to support Cleveland, assigning the reason that he is "a moral leper." It was talked by anti-Cleveland leaders in the Democratic national convention, and as they nominated him in spite of all warnings it is evident they determined to run him in spite of the scandals. It was next taken up by the clergy of Buffalo, Cleveland's home, where he is best known. It first appeared in print in all its shocking details in the columns of a Buffalo Independent Democratic—not a Republican—newspaper, and then it appeared in an Independent paper of Democratic leanings in Detroit and in another in Pittsburg, and then it was published in all its odious and disgraceful details in the Cincinnati Enquirer—the chief organ of the Ohio Democracy. Thus it appears that it was privately and then publicly set upon its travels upon Democratic authority and with Democratic endorsement.

Two Documents.

New York Sun.

Read Cleveland's letter of acceptance, and then read Butler's speech at Rocky Point. They were both printed yesterday.

All of the little organs in the United States together can't make a little, dull candidate seem anything but little, dull and common-place.

All the chattering abuse in the world can't make the man of big brains anything but interesting, instructive, full of attention and admiration.

That's the difference.

Making Known the Great West.

With a view of affording direct and correct information to people in the Eastern, Middle, and Southern States, the American Agriculturist will issue in its October number a large supplement contraining the names of farmers in the Western States and Territories who are willing, in the expectation of attracting emigration, to answer communications sent them regarding their respective localities. Here is a splendid opportunity for the Great West to communicate with the other portions of the United States without cost. The October number of the American Agriculturist will be mailed post-free to every person who sees fit to write, stating his willingness and desire to answer inquiries that may be made. Immediately address the American Agriculturist, at 751 Broadway, stating in brief the following, among other facts:

1st.—Your name and Post Office address in full.....2d.—The character of the land in your neighborhood...3d.—Is there any Government land unsold in the vicinity?.....4th.—What is the price of improved land?.....5th.—What is the price of wild land, if any?.....6th.—Is there any railroad near you, and if so, how near?.....7th.—The population of your county.....8th.—The character of the population.....9th.—Is there any foreign population, and if so, from what countries, mainly?.....10th.—Are there any churches in your neighborhood, and if so, what churches?.....11th.—Are there any schools in your vicinity?.....12th.—What is the cost of lumber in your neighborhood?.....13th.—Can purchasers buy land on time, and if so, how much time is given?.....14th.—Are there any railroad lands in your vicinity, and if so, on what conditions are they sold? Address your letter to American Agriculturist, 751 Broadway, New York.

P. S.—Names must be sent immediately to ensure their being duly enrolled in the list.

The Country Newspaper.

Referring to the country journalists George Peck, of Milwaukee, says:

When we think of the hard drudgery that these enterprising, indefatigable workers do in a week, and the small amount of cash and thanks received in return, we feel as though something was wrong somewhere. Why is it that in some localities the people do not appreciate the importance of a good newspaper, and sustain it by a liberal patronage, is one of the most nuacountable things in the world. We have no urgent call now to say what we do; but we tell the people in every locality where a paper is published, no matter how small and insignificant the paper may be, that every dollar they pay it for subscription or judicious advertising puts two dollars in cash in their pockets. We have figured on it and we know. It may not look so on its face, but is very deceiving. Lots of schemes that look as though they had millions in them like the man who is sure he can pick out the right card in three card monte, fail to return anything like millions, while other schemes that do not seem to amount to anything scarcely, pan out handfuls of nickles unexpectedly. And the country newspaper is of this class. Subscribe for your paper and pay for it in advance, and if you feel at the end of the year that you have not had your money's worth, then your fortune is made. You can go to a museum and get $5,000 a year as a curiosity.

Perham Bulletin: We were greatly surprised to see it announced that Bro. Underwood of Fergus Journal fame is to be the next Receiver at the Crookston land office. It was expected however that Knute Nelson would be sending friend Tuesley to fill that responsible position, but Tuesley says his "turn will come." We trust that Nelson may give him a "soft snap" for the service rendered in this section.

The Hillside Standard has unearthed the following horrible transaction: "Mrs.——away, while cleaning house, asked her husband to nail up some []; he refused, she looked †† at him, told him his conduct was without ‖, then beat him with her ☞ until he saw .. He now lies in a , tose state and may be a subjet for dis‡." A man must be an * his life and limb in such a way as that.

NEW LIVERY,
Feed and Sale
STABLES.,
CORNER MAIN AND FOURTH STS.,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.
TERRY & COLLINS, Prop's.
☞ Good Turnouts at all times a reasonable prices. Good Hearse and careful driver when needed.

Stewart & Lawrence,
DEALERS IN
Lumber, Sash, Doors, Mouldings,
Building Paper, &c.

1st Com. Dim's and Boards, rough,	$18	Siding, dry	$18
2d " " " "	16	Flooring, "	21
3d " " " "	14	Lath,	3
Ship Lap, dry	17	Shingles	2

☞ A full stock of Sash, Doors, Casings, Mouldings, Eve Trough and Building Paper constantly on hand.

NEW YORK STORE!
Dry Goods, Notions, Shawls.
Ladies' Fine Pebble Goat Slippers, Opera cut, reduced to $1.00
Ladies' extra-fine American kid hand turned sole slippers, $1.50
These slippers are geouine bargnins.
We have a full line of Ladies' and Misses Grey Bro's
FINE SHOES!
Spring heel shoes for men ana children.
Gents hand sewed shoes.
" " " walking shoes.
" " " hunting boots.
We carry a full line of Forepaugh & Tarbox custom made goods for Gents', Ladies' and Misses'.
We have a few odd sizes in Men's Heavy Boots that we are closing out Cheap.
PROUD & MACDONELL.

Johnson & Stevens,
FISHER AND CROOKSTON,
WILL NEGOTIATE LOANS
Through the Corbin Banking Co., New York,
SELL MINNESOTA CHIEF
Threshers and Engines,
Deering and Esterly Binders,
Studebaker Wagons,
and a variety of Rakes, Mowers, Plows, Etc., Etc.
KEEP A MORE
COMPLETE LINE OF REPAIRS
than any agency in the County.
Twine and Wire In Season.

BROADWAY
Meat Market.
FRANK JEROME & CO.,
Fresh and Salt Meats
OF ALL KINDS
VEGETABLES
In their season. All goods delivered if requested.

CITY ICE HOUSE!
E. D. SCHRAEDER & CO., Proprietors,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.
Having purchased the ice house business of Ruedy & Kindler, and put up during the past winter from 75,000 to 100,000 tons of ice, we are now prepared to supply the trade the coming summer at reasonable figures.
E. D. SCHRAEDER & Co.

DENTISTRY.
J. H. THOMAS, D. D. S.,
ROBERT STREET, - CROOKSTON, MINN.
Artificial Teeth from one to an entire set inserted. Gold, Silver or Artificial Filling used as desired. Regulating Children's Teeth a speciality. ALL WORK WARRANTED.

EIKEN BROS.,
Corner of Fletcher and Main Street
Crookston, Minn.
Dealers in
HARDWARE, TIWARE,
STOVES,
—AND—
SHELFWARE.
WE KEEP A
FULL & COMPLETE
STOCK,
—AND—
Invite the Patronage
OF ALL.

A. H. DUNLOP M. D.,
Graduate McGill University, Montreal.
LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON QUEBEC.
Office on Robert Street, Crookston.

I have a good Hotel for sale, located right in the business part of the city.
H. W. LEWIS.

ELLIS & JOHNSON,
AGENTS FOR THE
WALTER A. WOOD
Mowing and Reaping
MACHINE COMPANY.
A Full Line of Repairs and Twine constantly on Hand.
Robert Street.
Opposite Old Mill. CROOKSTON, MINN.

AIME GABOURY,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
Graduate Doctor in Medicine Laval University Canada. Licensed Coll. Phy. Surg., Quebec Late of Michigan University, U. S.
Office over the "Arcade" Clothing Store,
CROOKSTON - - - - MINN

M. M. VAN DYKE,
Physician and Surgeon,
Corner of Main and Second Streets,
ROOKSTON, - - - MINN
Will attend to all professional calls promptly.

MERCHANTS'
Bank of Crookston.
H. B. MONTGOMERY..........President,
St. Paul, Minn.
M. R. BROWN,............Vice President,
Crookston, Minn.
J. KELSO........Second Vice President,
Bellevue, Iowa.
Wm. ROSS..........................Cashier,
Crookston, Minn.
CASH CAPITAL, $32,000
SURPLUS, $16,533.82.
Will receive deposits and allow interest by special contract.
Buy and Sell Foreign and Domestic Exchange, make collections, and do a strictly legitimate business.
Agents for foreign passage tickets.
De Skandinaviske Sprog tales her.
WM. ROSS, Cashier.

ATTENTION
Now is the Time to Build
While you can buy
Cream Brick
at Very Low Figures. The Best Brick ever made in the Red River Valley. Manufactured by
SWANSON & KOEPPE,
[11-18] Crookston, Minn.

SECOND STREET
MEAT MARKET
STANTON & CO., Proprietors.
Choice meats of every description. Fish and game in their season. Everything of the very best quality and lowest prices. Call and see us.
STANTON & CO.,
Dobson's Block, Second Street.

Polk County Journal.

Crookston, Minn., Thursday, August 28

'ROUND HOME.

C. W. Palmer is in the city for a visit with C. B. for awhile.

Conductor J. B. Copeland is taking a lay-off for a few days.

Ellis & Johnson are doing a rushing business in oils of all kinds.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Walters died yesterday, aged about three months.

Auditor McGuire and his gentlemanly clerk, Cornelius, are wrestling with the assessment books.

Ash Street has been graded to the river and several new houses have been recently built thereon.

Another washout has occurred at the wheel house, and this one is said to be more serious than the first, requiring some time to fix.

Fine harvest weather this week. Much of the wheat is already cut and in the stack and the harvest of '84 will soon be garnered.

Mr. T. Thompson met with a severe loss on Tuesday. His residence near Beltrami took fire and burned up, together with all its contents.

Mrs. I. U. Jennings will return from the East on or about September 1st, with a full and complete line of Millinery Goods for the fall trade.

Sheriff Zwickey has been very sick, but is said by his physician to be gaining slowly, and strong hopes are now entertained of his ultimate recovery.

Billy Edwards, the genial New Era Grader man, has gone to Nebraska in the interest of the New Era. He reports a good business here this summer.

John Jacobson, of St. Paul, is in the city a few days this week. He came up to adjust the matter of the life insurance of the Hon. Paul C. Sletten, and leaves Mrs. Sletten $1,500 in cash.

Seldom does a man experience such a day as was the 15th inst. to John Moser. It was his birthday, the fifteenth anniversary of his marriage and his wife presented him with a bouncing baby girl.

A. Yvernault finds that he has not room enough to accommodate his large trade, so he is building on an addition 20x30. Mr. Y. is one of the pioneer merchants of Crookston and right well does he deserve the success this movement indicates.

The new Receiver, Mr. L. K. Aaker, is expected at the Land Office about Sept. 10th. Register Cromb has received official notification of Mr. Aaker's appointment with orders to turn over to him all books and papers belonging to the Receiver's office upon demand.

The tramps that were fired out of Grand Forks reported promptly in this city on Sunday and on Monday fifteen of them were invited to interview Esq. Lilly, who, after taking an inventory of the lot and not liking the sample, invited them to continue their tramp. They tramped.

The reason why we could not find Bert Duntley last week is thus explained: His first little son and heir, which appeared last week in time for publication was a girl, and Bert was not able to walk as far as the printing office to report it. Bert, is, however, on the mend, and all other interested parties are doing nicely.

Dept. Sheriff Hopkins has been very busy the past week serving papers—prescription papers issued by the doctor on the druggist. It is a fine little girl and in a few years from last Tuesday week she will be old enough to attend school at the fine new school house which is the pride of our city, erected at a considerable expense, (the school house.)

Leonard A. Sprague and wife and Barney Sprague, residents of Brooklyn, N. Y., have been on a visit to Judge Spendley. They are fully convinced that Crookston is the coming city. They have been on a trip to the Pacific coast, returning via the Northern Pacific, and they pronounce Crookston the finest and most substantial place they have seen on their travels.

J. B. Berthiaume, one of the proprietors of the well known firm of Berthiaume Bro's, jewelers of this city, will leave for Chicago next Monday to purchase their fall holiday stock of goods, which in all probability will be the finest in that line ever brought to the Red River Valley. After finishing his business in Chicago he will go to Philadelphia to visit relatives. He will be gone about a month.

It begins to look as if we were to have no county Fair this fall, and this suggests the thought that now will be a good time for those who last fall found so much fault with the management of the county fair to come to the front and get up a good one. It does seem a pity that with the magnificent showing in grain, vegetables and stock that the county could make that there should be no fair. We cannot blame those who took so active a part last fall and did all they could to make our fair successful if they do not feel particularly encouraged to try it again, but the fact remains that we should have a fair all the same and we could have a good one if there was anyone to lead off. All of the elements necessary to success [illegible]

A. G. Gallasch has returned from his trip below.

Mr. A. Allen has gone to Duluth for a few days.

Dr. Cable is pushing the work on his Broadway office.

Mr. Baker, Lee & Herick's head miller, has returned from his visit east.

A lively runaway in the city livened things up a bit on Sunday. Nobody hurt.

Some party from Minneapolis is putting up a store building on Sampson's Addition.

The proprietor of Lake Superior hotel is putting up a large barn near the county wagon bridge.

Duluth had a big fire on Saturday. Several saw mills and millions of feet lumber went up in smoke.

Mr. Chase informs us that the second washout is not as bad as reported, and that it will be repaired inside of ten days.

Service will be held in the Norwegian Lutheran church Sunday August 31st, at 11 o'clock a. m., by Rev. A. C. Anderson.

Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Page are spending the week at Maple Lake. That beautiful little lake is becoming a favorite resort.

Mine host Mitton, of the Merchant's hotel has caused a handsome sign to be placed over his door, guiding the weary traveler to rest and refreshment.

This fine weather will see thousands of acres of grain in the stack this week and soon thresher will be humming merrily, pounding out the No. 1 Hard.

Octave Montreilo, the rope-walking farmer of Black River has been giving exhibitions of his skill as a rope-walker to the citizens of Crookston. He is said to be an expert.

Grand Forks has secured a saw mill. Arrangements have been completed to move one up from New York Mills and it is expected that it will be on deck in a short time.

We are told that Lee & Herrick intend putting in steam to use in low stages of the water and that Mr. Baker left for Minneapolis on Wednesday evening to procure an engine.

The first of Sept. is nearly at hand and as yet no move toward calling a County Convention is made. The convention should be called sometime between the middle and last of Sept.

Mrs. R. P. Shoemaker, of Duluth, after a pleasant visit with relatives in this city left for Mapleton, D. T., on Monday morning from whence she will return to her home on Saturday next.

Mitchell & Co., will open out a fine stock of Millinery and fancy goods on the corner of Broadway and Robert Street on or about Sept. 5th, where the ladies are invited to call for choice goods.

Hon. B. Sampson rejoices in the arrival of a fine bouncing boy this week, and come to think of it, it don't seem to be much of a week for such items—there being less than 100 already reported.

The Fourth ward school house is being fixed up in good shape. It sits up high and dry on a fine brick wall and if the "elevation" of the pupils is an object the foundations are well laid to that end.

John Monroe smiles quietly to himself (and with his friends) over the event—a robust girl kicking the beam at the ten pound notch or thereabouts, Last Saturday. John is still able to pound iron with the help of his striker.

Rumors of the appointment of a receiver have filled the air of late and several have been accused of being the lucky man. We believe that official notice has been received at the U. S. Land Office here that L. K. Aaker, of Alexandria is the man.

We have received from the State Geologist, N. H. Winchell, a copy of the report of the State Geologist on the Geological and Natural History Survey of the State. We have not had time to fully examine it as yet but should judge it to be a very valuable work.

Elsewhere appears the card of the new Merchants' Hotel, to which we call the attention of our readers. Mr. Mitton is a landlord of large experience, is one of those jolly good fellows who know how to keep hotel, and those who try his house once always make it a point to come again.

Mr. B. La Bree was in from Thief River yesterday. He reports Kretzschmar's new townsite up there booming. Several new buildings are in process of erection and still there's more to follow. He says that wheat is nearly all cut and the yield promises to be good. Threshing will soon be commenced.

The fair at Minneapolis that is to come off next week bids fair to be very attractive. In addition to Ben Butler and other celebrated runners Jay Eye See and other noted trotters will be there. Shouldn't wonder if they would trot out Donnell and maybe Dr. Mary Walker in which event the runners trotters and walkers would all be well represented.

Landlord Mitton of the Merchant's hotel is bound to do the square thing by the traveling public if he don't slip up. A stroll through the Merchant's hotel recently convinced us Mr. Mitton has [illegible] refurnished his house throughout and now has [illegible] you can find in the New Northwest. The public are quick to appreciate the fact judging by the patronage [illegible]

The Teachers Institute, held in this city last week was a grand success and the numbers in attendance shows that the teachers of Polk County are fully alive to the importance of this work. The following is the list of teachers present.

Geo. Ralph, Red Lake Falls.
Peter Turnblade, Crookston.
S. A. Farnsworth, Ada.
Mary Murphy, Edna.
Minnie Murphy, Edna.
Minnie Milne, Carman.
Mary Milne, Carman.
Nellie Soule, Newton Falls, O.
Terry Shelly, Red Lake Falls.
Mary Humphry, Warren.
Clara P. Wood, Warren.
Inez McGrew, Crookston.
Mary A. Chase, Crookston.
Mary E. Sprague, Fisher.
Lillie McKinzie, Crookston.
Helen Wallin, Rockstad.
Mrs. Emily Peterson, Valley.
Martha Hovey, Carman.
Anna Anderson, Crookston.
Della Streeter, Crookston.
Edwin A. Knight, Crookston.
John Moore, Crookston.
Janette Brownlee, Fisher.
Mary Stack, Fisher.
Alice M. Childs, Carman.
Jennie Ayers, Crookston.
Maude Hemck, Fisher.
Hattie S. Stone, Carman.
Emily McKenzie, Crookston.
Mrs. J. H. Lockwood, East Grand Forks.
Bella G. Hunt, Mallory.
Josie C. Ames, Fisher.
Maggie C. Gunnis, East Grand Forks.
Nellie E. Stone, Warren.
Mrs. M. B. Hayes, Crookston.
Minnie A. Tomson, Fisher.
Anna Sauer, Ada.
Christina Hoyland, Rindal.
Lottie Denison, Maple Bay.
Lizzie A. Ralph, Red Lake Falls.
Nellie H. Perry, Crookston.
Charles L. Brainard, Red Lake Falls.
Sarah Breyet, Wylie.
Lizzie Miller, Angus.
Grace M. Page, Crookston.
Margaret L. Brown, Crookston.
Thomas Casey, Fisher.
Miss A. M. Wasson, Crookston.
Sup. P. O. Stroomme, Ada.
W. B. Pinkerton, Crookston.
Lizzie C. Ryan, Grand Forks, D. T.
Mary Ryan, Grand Forks, D. T.
George W. Morgan, St. Hilaire.
John P. Mattson, Supt., Warren.
Albert W. Thornton, Carman.
Eva M. Bullan, Crookston.
Henry Gondreau, Gentilly.
Miriam Carruth, Crookston.
Lola Box, Crookston.
Anna F. Davis, Edna.

The best five cent cigars is at the Red Star Grocery, Broadway. [51-tf]

The United States Internal Revenue Special Tax is due May 1st. Any information and a full line of blanks can be had by calling on or addressing.

JOHN McLEAN,
Attorney at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

To Rent.

Ready for grain in the spring 100 acres on Section 12 Township 148 Range 46 and 250 acres on Section 11 Township 148 Range 46. Both track have a good house and barn. Apply to

PETER CORNELIUS,
[38-tf] Crookston, Minn.

PIANO TUNING.

Any parties having pianos or organs that need tuning or repairing can have their work satisfactorily done by leaving orders at the Linton House. Satisfaction guaranteed.

[9-tf] E. F. WHEELDEN.

John Knuppe,

General Agent in the Red River Valley of the Netherlands American Land Company of Amsterdam, Holland.

Money to loan on good real estate security, on time to suit the borrower. Office over Merchant's Bank. [1-tf]

LIST OF LETTERS

Remaining uncalled for in the Crookston Post Office, for the week ending August 25th, 1884. Persons calling for these letters will please say "advertised."

Aasen, G N	Larssen, Ludvig
Bacon, Peter	Lawding, Anna
Bjorkquist, P O	Lee, John
Bourgeois, Leon	Larsh, Will G
Boucor, David	Montague, Napolien
Borger, Dainat	Olsen, Emma
Boodwin, Frank	Olson, Maria K
Brew, J W	Peterson, Christian
Burdick, Willid	Ploss, Albert
Chisholm, John	Provost, Charles
Erpe, Christian, O	Peterson, P S
Engestad, Lis E	Pattrson, Hugh
Einand, T H	Rathstock, Henry
Fellorata, John	Rea, Mrs E D
Flor, Henry	Sor, John Johnson
Gerrals, Alpred	Telgesen, Tellef
Hansen, H Chr	Thornton, A W
Hamlin, James M	Torske, Erik J
Hanson, John	Teroupeau, Miss L
Laplante, Hubert

D. JACOBUS, P. M.

THE DUTCH FRIESIAN OR HOLSTEIN!

The Best Breed of Cattle in the World.

The Dutch Friesian, or Holstein is without doubt constitutionally the most robust and vigorous race of cattle in America. It has never been pampered by over-feeding, nor weakened by direct in-breeding, and it possesses wonderful capabilities of still greater improvement at the hands of skillful breeders.

FRIESIANS FOR MILK.

It is generally conceded that the Dutch Friesians excel all other breeds in quantity of milk. Records of 40 to 60 pounds per day, and 7,000 to 11,000 per year for heifers with their first calves, and 60 to 90 pounds per day, and 12,000 to 18,000 pounds per year for mature cows, being quite common. No such records have been shown by other breeds.

But it is not necessary to show that Friesians, with high feeding and milking three times a day, will give from 76 to 80 pounds of milk per day. If they give from 40 to 50 pounds per day for three months, and then from 20 to 40 pounds per day for the next three months, and from 20 to 25 pounds per day for the next three months, or an average of about four gallons per day for nine months, and then gradually become dry, they are by far the most valuable milch cows in the world; and this they will do without any forcing.

FRIESIANS FOR BUTTER.

It is the opinion of those who have thoroughly tested them in comparison with others, that the Friesans will AVERAGE MORE BUTTER PER COW FOR A YEAR THAN THE AVERAGE OF ANY OTHER BREED. THE GENERAL AVERAGE of whole herds is remarkably good, as these cows hold out longer than most others. There are well authenticated records of thirteen mature cows ranging from two to three pounds per day for one to ten days. Whole number of cows tested, 13. Average time, 6 8-13 days. Average per day, per cow, over two lbs. ten oz. The highest average, twenty lbs. for seven days. Ten heifers—four three years old, and six two years—averaged two lbs., three-quarter oz. per day for a week. Thos. B. Wales' cow "Mercedes," (723) produced recently ninety-nine lbs. six oz. in thirty days—the largest yield for the time ever reported.

FRIESIANS FOR BEEF.

The Dutch cattle are large. Calves frequently weigh 100 to 130 lbs. at birth and gain nearly 100 lbs. per month till six or eight months old, and weigh from 700 to 1000, or more, at a year old. They come in early. It is the rule in Holland to have heifers come at from twenty to thirty months old. At this age they usually make a growth of from 1,100 to 1,350 pounds, and at maturity range from 1,400 to 1,800. It is no uncommon thing to see whole herds of cows, in Holland, ranging from 1,500 to 1,800 pounds. The readiness with which they take on flesh when dry is not excelled by any other breed. Bulls and steers equal short-horns in weight at same ages. Dutch Friesian steers have proved very profitable for feeding. J. S. Lang, writing from N. Vassalboro, Maine, says: "My experiments with half-bloods have been very gratifying; they outstripped all others in growth on the same feed, steers averaging in girth, at eighteen months, 6 feet 7 inches. My experiments have been conducted with care, and my conviction is, that to institute an impartial test of Holsteins and Short-horns, it would be found that the Holstein stock would cost the least per pound." As Holsteins have but recently been introduced into the West, but little has been done in testing their value strictly for beef, as the best grade bulls have been kept for breeding; but as far as they have been tried, have given good satisfaction. Half-blood steers in Illinois have attained a weight of over 1,300 pounds at two years old, and 1,900 pounds at four years old. Gray & Van Waters, West Salem, Wis., report in 1881 as follows: "We sold one yoke of half-blood Holsteins, two years and three months old, weighing 2,650. Andy McEldowny sold thirteen head of half-bloods, average age two years and three months, average weight 1,345 lbs. The man who bought them said he had bought and shipped cattle for twenty years, and they were the best lot he had ever shipped. The oldest of the thirteen was two years and four months old and weighed 1,600 pounds. They were sold to Daniel Cargle, of Sparta, and brought in Milwaukee $5.50 per 100 pounds."

TO CROSS WITH NATIVES.

The great value of the Friesian cattle as a cross on native cows is one great point in their favor. The purity of the blood, established by centuries of careful breeding gives the Friesian bull a prepotency—a power to transmit their qualites—far superior to that of any other known race. A Friesian, placed at the head of a herd of common cows, all colors, shapes, sizes and all degrees of coarseness, will reproduce his own form, color, disposition and peculiarities with such certainty that the owner may be perfectly sure beforehand that all his half-blood calves will have the marked characteristics of the Friesian cattle. The farmers of Polk County have now for the first time an opportunity to secure grade Holsteins as the thoroughbred bull, has been purchased of the Northwestern Importers and Breeders Association of Minneapolis, and brought to Crookston, where he may be seen on the old Jacobus farm (south half section 8, Crookston township.) As the season is considerably advanced only a limited number of cows will be allowed this year.

EVERETT

Pedigree of Everett.

Calved Jan. 9th, 1883; sire, Angus, (907, Holstein Herd Book, Imported.) EVERETT, in color is evenly variegated; head fine; neck and horns fine; shoulders low and well formed; body round and long; chine, medium; hips broad; rump broad; quarters heavy; limbs fine; handling good; escutcheon best; dam, Beth, No. 1,743, H. H. B. Beth was bred by P. S. de Boer, Ostoriorum, Friesland. Calved April 9th, 1880. Imported May 20th, 1881, by Wm Koch, of New York City.

DESCRIPTION: Black predominating, shield and rumps; horns fair; head medium; neck medium; shoulders good; chin straight; hips medium; rump best; handling good; escutcheon best; milk form [illegible]

Farmers and all who are interested in getting good stock into the county are invited to call at the farm and see EVERETT.

A. N. HOPKINS,
[15-tf] Manager.

HOW TO BE HEALTHY!

Drink LePage's

35c Tea and 35c pure Java Coffee

AND SMOKE MY NICKEL PILGRIM CIGAR.

HOW TO BE HEALTHY!

COME TO THE RED STAR GROCERY

And Save Money on everything you buy.

AND IF YOU ARE WISE

You will buy only Pure and Fresh Groceries. THE RED STAR GROCERY is the place to get them and there you will find Prices the Lowest. Farmers and others bring in your Butter and Eggs and get highest prices for them. Remember the RED STAR, one door south of Montreal House.

E. LEPAGE, Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

E. D. CHILDS & CO.,

Proprietors of

CARMAN TOWNSITE,

AND

Dealers in Real Estate!

Why Don't You wait?

Wait till Crookston has ten thousand people. Three years!

Wait till Crookston is the largest and most important manufacturing town in the Northwest. Two years!

Wait till Crookston has two more large saw mills, and is cutting 75,000,000 feet a season. One year!

Wait till lots in SOUTH CROOKSTON are selling for twice their present valuation (six months), and THEN purchase

South Crookston Property.

But if you have time, just drop in and have a chat with

STEENERSON & McMANUS, Broadway.
JOHN IVES & SON, Broadway.
PALMER & BOND, Robert Street.
CROOKSTON IMPROVEMENT CO., Main Street.

Crookston City Bakery,

Peter Lorge, Prop.,

Keeps constantly on hand a full line of all goods usually found in a

First-Class Bakery.

Cigars and Tobacco, Nuts, Fruits, Candies; Pies, Cakes, Bread,

And everything to fill out a hungry man, constantly on hand.

MONEY! LAND!

$100,000 To Loan. 20,000 Acres of Land for Sale.

BRING IN YOUR PROPERTY

AND IT WILL BE SOLD.

Law and insurance, Collections Made,

CITY LOTS FOR SALE!

Houses, Rooms and Farms to Rent.

U. S. LAND OFFICE

Business promptly attended to.

CONTEST CASES A SPECIALTY.

Office Corner Broadway and Robert Street,

PALMER & BOND.

THE PIONEER HARNESS SHOP.

M. RAUENBUEHLER, Proprietor.

CORNER OAK AND THIRD STS., CROOKSTON, MINN.

Is ready for the Spring trade with a full supply of Work and Light Harness, Single and Double, Saddles, Bridles, Whips, Blankets, etc. Give me a call before you purchase.

MERCHANTS' BILLIARD HALL,

FRED ANDERSON, Proprietor.

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

The choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

Tom Morris,

—THE—

CITY

JEWELER

Represents the

CELEBRATED

Rockford Quick Train

WATCH

THE ONLY

Railroad

Watch

IN EXISTENCE.

Crookston Nurseries

ESTABLISHED IN 1879.

Tree Claim Stock.

I desire to inform my customers and others that I shall make a great reduction from former prices on forest trees and seeds for tree-claims. I have good thrifty two year old trees, such as Box Elder, Ash and Cottonwood to sell by the thousand. I also furnish the hardier varieties of

SMALL FRUITS,

Such as Currants, Gooseberries, Raspberries and Strawberry plants, and young, thrifty Transcendent and Hislop Crab Apple trees. The firm of Heseltine Bros. having dissolved, I still continue business on the —OLD NURSERY GROUNDS— in Crookston. Hoping by fair dealing and promptness with my customers to merit their patronage.

Don't fail to write for Catalogue and Prices.

All Communications Promptly Answered.

F. T. HASELTINE,

Proprietor of the [illegible] Nurseries, Crookston, Minn.

JOHN LEO. H. STEENERSON.

LEO & STEENERSON.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW

Room 3., U. S. Land Office Building,

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

WANTED!

5,000 Men, Women and Children

—TO VISIT—

HACK & GALLASCH'

General Store, where you can buy

13 lbs. Pure Sugar for...$1.00
12 lbs. Turkish Prunes for...1.00
5 three lb. cans Table Peaches for...1.00
Japan Tea from...20 to 60 cts per lb
1 long bar of soap and 1 towel, all for...25c

Our stock of

DRY GOODS, NOTIONS, AND DRESS GOODS IS COMPLETE.

Don't fail to visit our Shoe and Slipper department before buying elsewhere New and complete stock of Groceries Crockery, Glassware, Flour and Feed.

We pay the highest market price for Butter, Eggs, Snake Root, Etc.

Call and see us. NO TROUBLE TO SHOW GOODS.

Cor. Main and Second Street,

CROOKSTON, MINN

Bigham & Olafson

(Successors to Juve & Bergland.)

THE POPULAR MERCHANTS ON

MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON

Have on hand and are constantly receiving full lines of

DRY GOODS, GROCERIES,

CROCKERY,

CLOTHING,

BOOTS AND SHOES,

HATS AND CAPS

In fact everything usually found in a first-class general store.

Our goods are bought with great care and will be sold at

LOW PRICES

FOR CASH.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,

Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon.

Rooms corner Main street and Fletcher Avenue, over Eiken Bros. Hardware Store,

CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINN.

FRIGHTFUL CARNAGE.

A Confederate Private's Graphic Recollections of Malvern Hill—Slaughter of Thousands of Boys in Gray by Federal Artillery—Discomfiture of Lee, Jackson, and Longstreet.

Letter to Washington Republican.

In a former letter, published in The Republican, the writer stated that the brigade to which he belonged (Kemper's of Longstreet's grand division) had been defeated and more than decimated in killed, wounded, and captured the day before at Frazier's farm. Accordingly, in order to give the brigade a chance to get together all its available men, stragglers, cooks, and even baggage guards who had been left behind—all were to take their places in the ranks, for the coming battle—it was placed a good distance in the rear of the right wing, which early in the morning began to take position as rapidly as the dense pine and scrub oak forests would permit. So that the men of the brigade had a good chance to guess, by noting the bulk of the troops passing and the direction taken, where the storm of battle would be most likely to burst forth—that is to say, on our right.

Finally, late in the afternoon, the order for the assault was passed along the right wing, and the deadly work began, with the preliminary cannon shots and thowing forward of skirmishers, and instantly a crash and yell arose—

> "As if the fiends from heaven that fell
> Had pealed the banner cry of hell"— as the first line of the confederates swept forward in the charge.

In order to properly appreciate the desperation of this battle it is necessary breifly to describe the position held by Gen. McClellan's army. The River road, which at that time was a very well built and wide road for that part of the country, for a couple miles runs along Malvern hill, which is a high bluff of a hundred feet or so, and which abruptly drops into the plain below. Along the crest the federal general had planted cannon as thickly as could be done to work them effectively. Both of his wings were refused, in military parlance, toward the river, and were protected by gunboats so anchored as to obtain a partial enfilading fire on an assaulting force. In fact, the position taken up by the federal army was a natural fortress, so to speak.

When, as above stated, battle was joined on the right Kemper's brigade was moved up to be within supporting distance of the fighting line, and here it remained, sheltered by a point of woods through which only an occasional shell crashed during the battle. As the roar of the battle increased the curiosity of the men to know what was being done became almost frantic, and numbers, the writer among them, sought permission to "shin up" the tallest trees in the vicinity to obtain a view of the scene of action. A good view of the plain above described was here obtained, and it was easy to perceive that the batteries on the heights were having things all their own way. The cannon fire of the confederates was fitful and feeble at that point, while the batteries on the heights were in a continued roar, which was rapidly accentuated by the deeper boom of the heavy artillery of the gun-boats as they pitched their "camp kettles" into the opposing lines. Line after line of confederates swept across the plain with the charging step, but they seldom attained the foot of the blazing volcano whose fire they were endeavoring to quench, and when they came running back defeated in a confused mass, their retreat was even more disastrous to them than their orderly advance. And this useless hurling of these devoted brigades against a position even more impregnable than Marye's heights at Fredericksburg continued at intervals until the sun went down. The confederate batteries, which succeeded in deploying from the woods onto the plain, were invariably knocked into smithereens by the time they had fired twoor three rounds.

From time to time flying aid-de-camps, as they dashed by us, would shout, "All going well on the right." "Their left wing is doubled up." "Jackson is driving them," and so on, but for the life of us we couldn't see, if all this were true, why the sacrifice of men plainly visible in the center was necessary. Thus matters went on until sundown, when the brigade was ordered attention, and we supposed that we were to be ordered into instant action; and from the streams of wounded going to the rear, and their statements that our troops had not gained a foot of ground and were much used up, we augured most unfavorably for the result, should McClellan throw forward his left wing in full force. However, he didn't do so, and when darkness closed in we were ordered to stack arms and go to sleep. Save now and then a rattling volley at various points of the line, the musketry had at this time ceased, although the batteries shelled the woods and each other until 9 or 10 o'clock, when they too were hushed.

We passed into sleep that night with the unpleasant consciousness that our arms had sustained a bloody repulse, and that in all probability we should have another sanguinary battle on the morrow with the issue thereof very doubtful. It will not be doubted that this feeling was somewhat a damper upon our martial enthusiasm.

The next morning at sun up we received the welcome intelligence that the federal army had retreated from its strong position in the night. As our brigade was in reserve the day before, it was ordered into what might be termed a technical pursuit—very technical, indeed, it proved to be, as no very energetic attempt was made so far as I could see to tackle the rear guard of the retreating army. In order to gain the line of retreat the brigade, followed by the other brigades of the division, made a detour, passed over the road through the pines leading into the plain. Here the effect of the concentrated fire of the federal batteries was awful to contemplate. On either side of the road for a hundred yards the trees were mowed down and splintered up as if a tornado had passed. Overturned guns, exploded caissons and ammunition wagons, dead horses and dead artillerists, were heaped in promiscuous confusion, and it was with great difficulty that the infantry could force a pathway to the open space beyond. Here again on either side was a verita- [illegible] many battlefields, but never one so horrible and repulsive to the sight as this same one of Malvern Hill. I never had a nightmare for months afterward when all its features were not recalled, and the semblance in the dreams could not intensify the horror of the waking reality. From the thickets to the foot of the heights where McClellan's batteries were planted it is no exaggeration to say that for a mile and a half one might have walked on dead men without putting foot to earth. And such dead men! Heads cut off, limbs lopped, bowels torn out, legs torn from the trunks, trunks crushed into an undistinguishable mass—a heaped up mass of pounded flesh, that had been strong, breathing men twelve hours before. Oh! it was horrible! and this especially where the huge shells of the gunboats had exploded among the assaulting ranks. We crossed the plain, avoiding stepping on the dead as well as we could, and came to the road where Jackson had fought. Save that the dead were not lying so thickly as on the plain the same feature was observable, the skill with which the federal batteries had been massed, for nearly all were the victims of cannon shot or shell. The federal infantry bore, comparatively speaking, but a small share in this battle, while the confederate infantry, owing to the lay of the land, were very imperfectly supported by their artillery.

As I said, above, the pursuit was no pursuit at all, properly speaking, and the confederate army encamped a few miles beyond the fields, leaving Gen. McClennan to pursue his way unmolested to his shelter at Harrison's landing.

One thing I want to say, is that all the confederate wounded captured in this compaign, and who were recaptured in the pursuit, gave warm testimony to the humanity and kindness with which they were treated by the Yankee surgeons, and many a man is living at this day who would now be dead if it had not been for that kindness.

Thus ended the first battle, which showed the wonderful pluck and endurance of the army of the Potomac after repeated disaster—qualities which were maintained to the end of the struggle.

The Small Boy in Georgia.

Macon (Ga.) Telegraph.)—During the interval between the letting out and the taking in of school the small boy has been endeavouring to kill time with the varied amusements incidental to the life of the youth.

The school-house had not fairly closed their doors before the boys were batting and balling at the park and over the back streets. One could not leave the maddening crowd on the busy thoroughfares and step into the residence portion of the city without running afoul of a game of that national nuisance—bass ball.

But the sun grew hot as the summer solstice came on, and the balls and bats were laid away, and the boys took up kites. Every household was robbed of its papers, laid carefully away to read on Sunday, to be used up in the manufacture of kites. But the small boy of the period needs something more exciting than standing like a statue reeling up and watching the wriggle of a kite tail. Consequently the kite season was of short duration.

Then the firemaniac fever struck them, and everywhere knots of boys could be seen with minature hose-carts running at full tilt down the sidewalks. The merchants were robbed of their sprinkling hose and nozzles to supply the demand. This also had its run, and the hose-cart went the way of winter fuel.

Then came the walking match mania. Go where you would you would find a brace or so of coatless boys, panting as they strode around the blocks, whipping their bare calves with keen peach tree switches, and mopping brows with sponges stolen from the bath-tubs. In additional to these walking matches they had hurdle races by stretching cords at intervals in the alleyways and jumping over them.

These crazes having been thoroughly exhausted, the season is now on us when the small boy is ripe for Satan, who is said to be always ready to find something far idle hands to do. It is the time when, the legitimate amusements being pegged out, the small boy must tax his ingenuity to kill time. But day draws its weary length along with them. We mentioned yesterday how he trailed stuffed snakes across the sidewalk at night and frightened pedestrians out of their wits. But the stuffed snake racket has about subsided, and they are conjuring up other bedevilment. We hear from them in every direction. A gentleman on Academy square missed his favorite house cat the other day, and on going into the back yard he discovered his boys with the sprinkling hose. They had fastened the cat in the hencoop and with the nozzle through the cracks were giving pussy a shower bath that was not at all pleasant.

A College street father found his boys in a stable. They had partitioned off a small room, supplied it with counters and shelves, and had a regular grocery store, doing a thriving business. The father discovered that all the preserves, canned goods, sugar, pickles, and so on had been taken from his pantry, and were being bartered to the neighborhood boys. A brandied peach was worth two glass agates, and a top cord would command a match box full of peach preserves.

And so it goes. We could fill a column with the depredations upon the family pantry and pocketbook by these boys who are waiting for school to resume. As that time is nearly two months off, the prospect is that the town will not only be painted deep red, but turned upside down.

Electrical Science.

The international congress of electricians and exhibition of electrical apparatus, which is to be held in Philadelphia from September 2 to October 11, under the auspices of the Franklin Institute of that city, promises to be a very interesting affair. It is intended to bring together every known device to which electricity is applied for, in the service of which it is agent, and to discuss inventions and methods, forces, currents, generators and specific and general [illegible] displayed together, and to afford abundant opportunity for study by electricians. The President is authorized by a resolution of Congress to appoint a number of experts in electrical science to represent the Government at the exhibition.

INVENTOR EDISON'S WIFE.

Romance of Their Marriage Recalled by Her Death.

Mrs. Mary Stillwell Edison, wife of the inventor, Thomas Alva Edison, who died at 2 A. M. Saturday at Menlo Park, N. J., was twenty-nine years of age, and leaves surviving her three children. The story of her marriage to Mr. Edison is a singularly strange and romantic one. When he first formed her acquaintance he was about twenty-five years of age. He had just invented the chemical telegraph, by means of which could be transteansmitted, he claimed, on a single wire 8,000 words a minute. The telegraph, notwithstanding this, however, became subservient to the Morse system. While working on the chemical telegraph he employed several young women to punch the holes in the paper. Among them was Miss Mary Stillwell. One day he was standing behind her chair examining a telegraph instrument.

"Mr. Edison," remarked Miss Stillwell, suddenly turning around, "I can always tell when you are behind me or near me."

"How do you account for that?" mechanically asked Mr. Edison, still absorbed in his work.

"I don't know, I am sure," she quietly answered; "but I seem to feel when you are near me."

"Miss Stillwell," said Mr. Edison, turning round now in his turn, and looking his interlocutor in the face, "I've been thinking considerably of you of late, and if you are willing to have me I'd like to marry you."

"You astonish me," exclaimed Miss Stillwell. "I—I never—"

"I know you never thought I would be your wooer," interrupted Mr. Edison, "but think over my proposal, Miss Stillwell, and talk over it with your mother." Then he added in the same offhand business-like way, as though he might be experimenting upon a new mode of courtship:—"Let me know as early as possible if you consent to marry me, and your mother is willing, we can be married next Tuesday."

This was the extent of Mr. Edison's courtship. It is hardly necessary to add that the highly favored lady laid the abrupt proposal before her mother.

"Ma has consented," she told Mr. Edison the next day.

"That,s all right," said Mr. Edison in reply. "We will be married a week from to-day."

And so it was. The two were married in a week and a day from the beginning of Mr. Edison's novel and precipitate courtship. In connection with his marriage, however, a story is told quite as singular, but fully in keeping with the one already given touching his courtship. It is said that directly following the marriage he entered his laborator in his wedding suit, and hastily throwing his coat on a bench began work.

"Why, surely you are not going to work on your wedding night?" remonstrated his chief assistant.

"Suppose it is?" he quickly answered, setting to work with renewed zeal; "the Gold and Stock company don't care for that. They want their instruments tomorrow, and they've got to have them, marriage or no marriage; so here goes."

The wedding trip of Mr. Edison ran into the mysteries of inventions. His wedded life, however, is said to have been a singularly happy one.

They Went West!

We sometimes receive inquiries from young men and boys concerning opportunities for business in the West, and the best course to be followed in order to ensure success there. A brief account of two lads who, to mend their fortunes, went west from the city of New York, will give a general answer, that is applicable to all cases.

Frank Waldon and James Carr were employed in a retail store on Fourteenth Street, New York City. They had each saved over five hundred dollars with which to go West, and both of them left the store at the same time. Frank declared that he "might go to the backwoods, but he would always be a gentleman, and would travel and live like one." He spent his money freely for what he thought a proper outfit. He bought a first-class ticket to Denver and indulged himself in various ways on his way there.

Before he reached Colorado more than a third of his money was gone. After reaching there he bought land, and took up a claim at once. Knowing nothing whatever of farming, he was cheated on every hand, for the West is full of sharpers, ready to prey on the ignorance of strangers. He deserved credit for the industry he exhibited at this time, for he worked hard, but for the lack of knowledge and economy one failure after another was made.

His crops failed. The oxen he bought turned out unfit for use. Other hindrances and discouragements followed, until finally in despair, gentleman Frank sold his farm for a third of what it had cost, and after idling away a few months turned to gambling to make money enough to go home. He never did go home.

His fellow-clerk, in order to save the cost of his fare, found work as a porter in a Pullman car on the Northern Pacific Railway. He not only paid nothing for his passage to California, but earned money besides. Making his way to Southern California, he put his savings at interest, and found work on a sheep ranch at forty dollars a month. There he remained for three years, until he had thoroughly mastered the business.

He then purchased land and stock, taking each step cautiously and after close examination. He is now regarded as one of the most successful small ranchmen in Southern California.

Scrambled Eggs is a nice breakfast dish for a hot summer morning. Peel a large, firm, fresh tomato and chop it up small, chopping with a small bit of del- [illegible]

HOW SOLDIERS ARE MADE.

What a Recruit Has to Undergo to Get Into the Army.

An erect and good-looking young fellow of stalwart pro portions and muscular appearance presented himself on Saturday at the recruiting office, No. 1919 Market Street, for enlistment in the United States Army. Captain H. H. Humphreys, the officer in charge, was favorably impressed with the general appearance of the young man, who was of Scotch birth and about twenty-eight years old. The applicant passed the physical examination creditably. No defect in his anatomical structure was discovered to operate against his desire to become a soldier. In giving the final instructions Captain Humpreys noticed that the young man did not seem to comprehend their import. "I didna ken," was his explanation. He was rejected an account of his imperfect knowledge of the English language.

The general supposition would be that rejections on the ground of imperfect knowledge of the Eglish language were very rare, but the books of the recruiting officer show to the contrary. An average of one in fifteen persons fails to pass on this account. The records show that rejections on account of defective teeth and myopia exceed all others. It is required that the applicant shall have not less than eight good molar teeth, in addition to a fair number of incisors, which are considered necessary to a proper mastication of army fare.

The process of enlistment is of interest. When the applicant presents himself, the recruiting officer asks him a number of questions concerning his health, habits, and occupation. If the answers are satisfactory, the examination begins. Commencing with the head, which is closely examined for depressions, the examiner inspects the eyes, nose, mouth, and ears.

The would-be soldier then disrobes, and his body is thoroughly searched for physical defects. Every test is applied to learn the condition of the heart and lungs. The arms, hands, fingers, legs, feet, and toes are all minutely scanned. Stiffness in the joints of any of these members is fatal to the chances of an applicant for enlistment. After undergoing the examination, the aspirant to military fame is directed to jump as high as he can and alight fairly upon his feet. If he winces, the indications are that he is troubled with corns on the soles of his feet, which is a cause of rejection, as an affliction of that sort would be an obsticle in marching. If the applicant successfully passes the physical requirements, he mounts the scales. His weight, in order to be eligible, must not be under 120 and not over 180 pounds. He must not be less than five feet four inches high. He is then taken into an adjoining room, where he indulges in a bath.

After taking the oath and signing the papers, he is supplied with an outfit. This consists of a flannel shirt, cotton-flannel drawers, a dark blue blouse, grayish-blue pantaloons, a pair of suspenders, woolen socks, shoes and a bluish cap. Under the escort of two soldiers the new recruit is taken to David's Island, N.Y., where he enters upon his five years' service to the Government. Of the persons presenting themselves for enlistment only about eight out of a hundred succeed in passing the physical examination. About a year ago an applicant was discovered to have winged shoulderblades. The bones projected in shape of wings nearly two inches. He was considered entirely too angelic for the military service.—Philadelphia Record.

Cholera a Slow Traveler.

An Eastern pestilence which has mad its way on foot through Central Asia, which has crossed the Atlantic in the old days of sailing-ships, and crossed the Rocky mountains to the Pacific when San Francisco was no more than a white-walled Spanish mission, may certainly be described as an enterprising and perserving traveler. If cholera could thus travel in the years from 1828 to 1833, what may it not do in these days of rapid transit? But the fact is that the good old times of slow stages, of halting for the night, and of spending weeks and months on the journey, were so much more suited to the ways of cholera, that even the thousand-fold opportunities of the age of steam do not make it half so dangerous. If there is one thing less doubtful than another in the natural history of cholera, it is that it loves the ground; that the breeding-place of the poison is the soil, and that it is always most formidable when it drags its slow length along and leaves a trail behind it. No English invasion of cholera has gathered force which did not come to us across the continent, through Russia and Germany. It came by sea from Alexandria to Southampton in 1865, but it was quickly suppressed. It came next year with German emigrants on their way to America, and it became a considerable epidemic. We have always imported it from the opposite shore of the North Sea—into Sunderland from Hamburg in 1832, into Hull from Hamburg in 1848, into the Tyne ports from German ports in 1853, and into Yorkshire and Lancashire from Rotterdam in the early months of 1866. It would almost seem as if a long journey overland were necessary to consolidate its power and give vigor to its constitution. Although the events of 1865 to 1873 show clearly enough that railways and steamboats have not by any means driven cholera out of the field, yet we have learned that it mostly goes with a particular class of travellers. Panic-stricken fugitives, the poorest of emigrants, wayside tramps, and all kinds of hugger-mugger in motion are the favorite media of cholera diffusion. Unfortunately, these things are not yet out of date; the south of France is now witnessing worse scenes of that kind than ever disgraced antiquity or Europe's middle night of barbarism. It is a melancholy satire upon the age of science, on the "Cholera bacillus," and the refinements of technical skill, that the first approach of cholera to the shores of Europe should be met by attempts at concealment on the part of the authorities, and headlong panic on the part of the public.—London Standard.

The Supreme Court of Ancona, Italy, has rendered a decision by which the [illegible]

Living on His Dead Comrade.

Winnipeg Special: W. B. McBride of Chicago, who has arrived here from a trip to the Rocky mountains, brings word that a man named William Owens, a California miner, was found by some railway navvies near Kicking Horse river a few days ago in a famished and partially demented condition. Owens said he started June 13, with Joseph Williamson, from Kamloops on a prospecting trip, expecting to strike the Columbia river, but their supply of provisions gave out before reaching there. They traveled for six days and a half without food, when Williamson laid down and died. Owens then cut strips of flesh from his dead companion's legs, which he ate sparingly, and proceeded on his tramp. He had been living six days on human flesh when found and still had a quantity of the dried flesh in an old handkerchief. He was very weak and emaciated, and told his story with difficulty. He repeated the horrible details on several occasions and all who heard him are convinced that the story is true. He had a large roll of bills with him. The police have taken the matter in hand and will investigate it.

Given Up to Die.

Buffalo, N. Y. Oct. 2, 1883.

I had for 2 years been troubled with terrible sick headache and a horrible cough. My skin turned to a yellowish hue. I suffered the most excruciating pain of the bowels; small, dry, irritating humors broke out over my face; my stomach would not retain the simplest food; vomited great quantities of offensive, greenish mucus.

The Doctor Said, I Could not Live.

In April I commenced taking Burdock Blood Bitters, and in July was cured by this medicine alone. The stomach and bowels seemed the first acted upon, after which I rapidly improved. My appetite returned, the terrible sick head-ache left me, the hacking cough gradually abated, and from the first bottle I could sleep well at night.

I do not think there is a case of sick headache Burdock's Blood Bitters will not cure, (they cured my sister, Mrs. Thos. J. Haley, of this city). Those who saw me six months ago consider my recovery a miracle. I was no less astonished, and shall be pleased to reply to all letters of inquiry concerning my case.

Mrs. Adelaide O'Brien,
372 Exchange St., Buffalo N. Y.

The Oldest of English Families.

Lord Palmerston's country residence is well known to have been near Romsey, Hants. In the course of his accustomed rides in the New Forests he saw a laboring man burning lime and entered into familiar conversation with him, asking to be obliged with his surname. The man replied that it was Purkiss. Now, this was the reply that was sought, and Palmerston exclaimed. "I thought as much." He accordingly asked the man if he was descended from the lime-burner of that name who carted away the body of William Rufus after his unfortunate fall by the arrow of Sir Walter Tyrrel. The man answered in the affirmative. "Then give me your hand," said his lordship, "for though you are a laborer, I must not forget that you are a brother Hampshire man," at the same time handing the man (if my memory serves me) the medium of procuring some refreshments at his earliest cessation from toil. "Thus," said his lordship, in relating the incident, "I have had the great honor of conversing with an honest workingman who is descended from the oldest family and bears the oldest surname in England."—Notes and Queries.

The Big Brewery.

Mr. J. Hirsch, College Point Brewery, L. I., N. Y., writes that he employs a large number of horses and hands, and having tried St. Jacobs Oil, the great pain-cure, for rheumatism, aches and pains of his men, and for galls, splints, thrush, wind-galls and other affections of his horses, finds it superior to all remedies, and would not be without it.

The Matter of Thirty Years.

In 1854 John Hallock, a prominent farmer of the town of Mount Hope, Orange county, New York, went away from home and never returned. He left a wife and infant daughter. Mrs. Hallock long ago made up her mind that her husband was dead. She never married again. A few months ago Mrs. Hallock, who has lived near the village for several years, was notified that John Hallock had died in Spencer, Tioga county, New York, and left $5 to his daughter, Mrs. Carr. The rest of his property was left to his widow, who lived on the farm on which Hallock died. This led to an investigation by Mrs. Hallock. She learned that her husband had married a lady in Tioga county over thirty years ago and that she was ignorant that he had another wife living. The Orange county widow at once brought suit to recover her dower right in her deceased husband's property. Hallock's executors claimed that he had procured a divorce from his first wife in 1855 in Kentucky, but last week offered to settle with Mrs. Hallock No. 1 by paying her $1,500. She accepted the offer.

The Loan Association of Ashtabula, Ohio, has closed its doors, with liabilities of $50,000.

Rupture Cured

permanently or no pay. Our new sure cure method of treating rupture, without the knife, enables us to guarantee a cure. Trusses can be thrown away at last. Send two letter stamps for references, pamphlet and terms. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dickinson, cashier of the Wall Street bank, lost $160,000 in speculation.

"A Perfect Flood of Sunshine"

will fill the heart of every suffering woman if she will only persist in the use of Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription." It will cure the most excruciating periodical pains, and relieve you of all irregularities and give healthy action. It will positively cure internal inflammation and ulceration, misplacement and all kindred disorders. Price reduced to one dollar. By druggists.

Grenada, Miss., sympathizes with Anoka. Loss $300,000.

Consumption.

Notwithstanding the great number who yearly succumb to this terrible and fatal disease, which is daily winding its fatal coils around thousands who are unconscious of its deadly presence, Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" will cleanse and purify the blood of [illegible]

Young Men!—Read This.

The Voltaic Belt Co., of Marshall, Mich., offer to send their celebrated Electro-Voltaic Belt and other Electric Appliances on trial for thirty days, to men (young or old) afflicted with nervous debility, loss of vitality and all kindred troubles. Also for rheumatism, neuralgia, paralysis, and many other diseases. Complete restoration to health, vigor and manhood guaranteed. No risk is incurred as thirty days trial is allowed. Write them at once for illustrated pamphlet free.

Mr. Dodd, living on Buck creek, Mont., was run over by his wagon and killed.

Stinging, irritation, inflammation, all kidney and urinary complaints, cured by "Buchu-Paiba." $1.

LET TRUTH TELL ITS STORY.

A Minister and the Orphan Children.

Rev. L. B. Paine, Macon, Ga., writes: "We have been using Swift's Specific at the orphan's home as a general health tonic, and have had remarkable results from its use on the children and employes of the institution. It is such an excellent tonic, and keeps the blood so pure, that the system is less liable to disease. It has cured some of our children of Scrofula."

Fire at Greenville, Tex., destroyed the new court house and forty buildings.

Bed-bugs, flies, roaches, ants, rats, mice, cleared out by "Rough on Rats." 15c.

Baldheaded men are informed that there is but one avenue of escape from their affliction, and that is Carboline, the great hair renewer, which being recently improved, is more efficacious than ever and is faultless.

One reason why diseases of the bladder and urinary organs are so difficult to cure is that they frequently have no pronounced symptoms. Hunt's [Kidney and Liver] Remedy is peculiarly adapted to the cure of these complaints, and goes at once to the seat of the trouble giving relief at once.

Clements R. Markham, of the English Royal Geographical society, warmly defends Greely.

"Rough on Pain." Quick cure for Colic, Cramps, Diarrhœa, Aches, Pains, Sprains, Headache.

Older than Emperor William.

Dr. Warner's German Hop Bitters, the great German Remedy. None genuine that do not bear Dr. C. D. Warner's name on bottle and label.

Don't Be Swindled.

The only genuine German Hop Bitters and White Wine of Tar Syrup are Dr. C. D. Warner's, whose name appears on every bottle, label and wrapper of the genuine.

The best place to obtain a good business education is at the N. W. Business College, Madison, Wis. Send for Catalogue.

At New York the schedule of assets of Orange Judd, for $144,000 was sold at auction for $545.

An Invaluable Remedy.—None except those who have suffered all the horrors of Dyspepsia, can fully appreciate the value and efficacy of Perry Davis' Pain Killer, a sovereign remedy for this distressing disease in all its forms is used internally and externally, test its virtues.

The Garfield Memorial hospital at Washington has twenty patients.

Nervous Weakness, Dyspepsia, Sexual Debility, cured by "Wells' Health Renewer." $1.

Mensman's Peptonized Beef Tonic, the only preparation of beef containing its entire nutritious properties. It contains blood-making, force-generating and life-sustaining properties; invaluable for Indigestion, Dyspepsia, nervous prostration, and all forms of general debility; also, in all enfeebled conditions, whether the result of exhaustion, nervous prostration, overwork, or acute disease, particularly if resulting from pulmonary complaints. Caswell, Hazard & Co., Proprietors, New York. Sold by Druggists.

Without a Scar.

Is the way that Veterinary Carbolisalve cures Galls, Cuts and Wounds. Always brings the hair in its original color. In 50c. and 1.00 cans at Druggists or by mail. J. W. COLE & CO., Prop's, Black River Falls, Wis.

RULES For self-measurement and price list sent free by BIG BOSTON, Minneapolis.

PAIN!

Pain is supposed to be the lot of us poor mortals, as inevitable as death, and liable at any time to come upon us. Therefore it is important that remedial agents should be at hand to be used in an emergency, when we are made to feel the excruciating agonies of pain, or the depressing influence of disease.

Such a remedial agent exists in that old Reliable Family Remedy,

PERRY DAVIS'

Pain-Killer

It was the first and is the Only Permanent Pain Reliever.

ITS MERITS ARE UNSURPASSED.

There is nothing to equal it for curing

Colic, Cramps, Spasms, Heartburn, Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Flux, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache.

CURES CHOLERA!

When Cholera prevailed in the years 1849 and 1850,

"PAIN-KILLER"

Was used with such wonderful success, that it is considered an unfailing cure for all Bowel Complaints. It has stood the test of Forty Years' Constant Use in all Countries.

WHEN USED EXTERNALLY AS A LINIMENT, nothing gives quicker ease in Burns, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Stings from Insects and Scalds. Those suffering with Rheumatism, Gout or Neuralgia, if not a positive cure, they find the PAIN-KILLER gives them relief when no other remedy will. In sections of the country where

FEVER AND AGUE

Prevails, there is no remedy held in greater esteem. Persons traveling should keep it by them.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

Sold everywhere, 25c. Office, 44 Murray St., N.Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

Gray Hair or Whiskers changed instantly to a Glossy Black by a single application of this Dye. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.

Office, 44 Murray Street, New York.

TUTT'S MANUAL OF USEFUL RECEIPTS FREE.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE!

BEST IN THE WORLD. Get the Genuine. Sold Everywhere.

"See What Cuticura Does for Me!"

INFANTILE and Birth Humors, Milk Crust, Scalled Head, Eczemas, and every form of Itching, Scaly, Pimply, Scrofulous and Inherited Diseases of the Blood, Skin, and Scalp, with Loss of Hair, cured by the Cuticura Remedies. Absolutely pure and safe. Cuticura the great Skin Cure, 50 cts.; Cuticura Soap, an exquisite Skin Beautifier and only Medicinal Baby Soap, 25 cts. and Cuticura Resolvent, the new Blood Purifier, $1; are sold by druggists. Potter Drug and Chemical Co., Boston. Send for "How to Cure Skin Diseases."

ROCKFORD WATCHES

Are unequalled in EXACTING SERVICE.

Used by the Chief Mechanician of the U. S. Coast Survey; by the Admiral commanding in the U. S. Naval Observatory, for Astronomical work; and by Locomotive Engineers, Conductors and Railway men. They are recognized as THE BEST for all uses in which close time and durability are requisites. Sold in principal cities and towns by the COMPANY'S exclusive Agents (leading jewelers,) who give a Full Warranty.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

The feeble grow strong when Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is used to promote assimilation of the food and enrich the blood. Indigestion, the chief obstacle to an acquisition of strength by the weak, is an ailment which infallibly succumbs to the action of this peerless corrective. Loss of flesh and appetite, failure to sleep, and growing evidence of premature decay, are speedily counteracted by the great invigorant, which braces up the physical energies and fortifies the constitution against disease. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

THE TIFFIN Well Boring & Rock Drilling MACHINERY!

For Horse or Steam Power

Hundreds of the best men in 30 States and Territories use it and will have no other!

RELIABLE! DURABLE! SIMPLE!

Established over 35 years, we have ample facilities to fill orders promptly, and to satisfaction of our customers. Catalogue FREE. Address LOOMIS & NYMAN, Tiffin, Ohio.

WHITE BEAVER'S Heals Diseased Lungs. COUGH CREAM

CHEAP DRESS Fine Black Silks 65c and up per yd. Send for samples. Box 294, Northwest Purcha'ng Co.

LEARN TELEGRAPHY, or SHORT-HAND and TYPE WRITING HERE. Situations furnished. Address Valentine Bros., Janesville, Wis.

MORPHINE and CHLORAL HABITS EASILY CURED. BOOK FREE. Dr. J. C. Hoffman, Jefferson, Wisconsin. OPIUM

SOLDIERS or heirs send stamp for circulars showing who is entitled to pension, bounty, &c. L. C. WOOD, Pension Atty., Washington, D. C.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. Dr. J. Stephens, Lebanon, Ohio.

STOCKS of goods wanted in exchange for Minneapolis Real Estate. E. H. Steele, Minneapolis.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

25 CENTS 25 CENTS

ALLEN'S IRON TONIC BITTERS

The most Elegant Blood Purifier, Liver Invigorator, Tonic, and Appetizer ever known. The first Bitters containing Iron ever advertised in America. Unprincipled persons are imitating the name; look out for frauds. See that the following signature is on every bottle and take none other:

J. P. Allen
Druggist & Chemist

ST. PAUL, MINN.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

IS A POSITIVE CURE FOR All those painful Complaints and Weaknesses so common to our best FEMALE POPULATION.

Price $1 in liquid, pill or lozenge form.

• Its purpose is solely for the legitimate healing of disease and the relief of pain, and that it does all it claims to do, thousands of ladies can gladly testify. • It will cure entirely all Ovarian troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Falling and Displacements, and consequent Spinal Weakness, and is particularly adapted to the change of life. • It removes Faintness, Flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves Weakness of the Stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. • Send stamp to Lynn, Mass., for pamphlet. Letters of inquiry confidentially answered. For sale at druggists.

Dr. Spinney & Co.

Treat all Chronic and Nervous Diseases. Young men who may be suffering with Weakness, Nervous Debility, Despondency, Aversion to Society, Kidney troubles, or any similar diseases, can here find a safe and speedy cure. There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are often troubled with uncomfortable symptoms, accompanied by weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. Examination reveals the fact that the patient's system is undergoing a depletion which rapidly exhausts every vital function. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause. The doctor will guarantee a cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration. Pamphlet, with full particulars, sent free to any address. Call on or address DR. SPINNEY & CO., 37 S. Third st., Minneapolis, Minn.

IT IS NOT

A CURE ALL, but as a tonic and health renewer, and for Blood and Skin Diseases, and troubles dependent on impure or impoverished blood, Swift's Specific is without a rival.

"My baby six months old broke out with some kind of skin humor, and after being treated five months by my family physician, was given up to die. The druggist recommended Swift's Specific, and the result was as gratifying as it was miraculous. My child soon got well, all traces of the disease is gone, and he is as fat as a pig."
J. J. KIRKLAND,
Minden, Rusk County, Texas.

"I used Swift's Specific on my little daughter, who was afflicted with some Blood Poison which had resisted all sorts of treatment. The Specific relieved her permanently, and I shall use it in my practice."
W. R. BRONTE, M. D., Cypress Ridge, Ark.

Our Treatise on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed free to applicants.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO.,
Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.

N. Y. Office, 159 W. 23d St., between 6th and 7th Aves. Philadelphia Office, 1205 Chestnut St.

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS [illegible]

TARDY LOVERS.

A Great Problem.

London Standard.

We must confess that we do not often feel much admiration for popular songs, but one was warbled by a damsel in our presence not long ago which struck us as being one of the most clever concoctions for young lady consumption which we had ever met with. In simple diction, and with much pathos, not unmingled with humor, it embodied the feelings of a maiden who had worked herself up to this desperate resolution that her lover must either "come up to the scratch" or be shown to the front door, and then came in the appeal:

> So if there is nothing you're waiting to say,
> Don't you think we had best say adieu!"

with a minor third for the last syllable positively melting in its plaintiveness. She thus puts the young man into a corner, and though we do not get his answer, we trust that he is thoroughly ashamed of himself, and runs off to be "asked" forthwith. Now this song ought to command a large market, because the situation it depicts is that of a great many more maidens than would like to confess it; and if sung with the right intonation, the proper color of waistband, the due amount of negligence in the hair, the right play of the eyelashes, a suggestion of heartless desertion in the high-heeled shoes, the proper number of candles in the room, the right sort of supper cooking below, and nobody to listen but the right young man—well, it ought, at least, to be worth more than the customary 2s. net.

This serious situation in life is far too common indeed, it ought never to occur at all. Our young men, who have so many more opportunities for culture and enlightment than we had when we were young—monthly magazines, eight hours at the sea-side, Mr. Matthew Arnold's lectures, compulsory vaccination, and so many others—ought really to know better than to place a young lady in this dilemma. When young Jones goes to see young Brown three times a week regularly, besides calling in the morning to walk with him to business, is not his object transparent? How can he imagine that any one supposes he does so for the sake of Brown's company, or that it is not Miss Brown who is the real attraction! When he sings duets with the the young lady, asks for his fafavorite pieces from her fair hands, and actually goes the length of presenting her with music, how can he suppose that any one will imagine it is simply for the satisfaction of his musical ear? The Monday Pops or the Christy minstrels, according to his taste, are open to him, if that was all. If he has no "intentions," why does he send round orders for the theatre for young Brown and his sister, meeting the pair at the door and paying for a ticket, instead of going with a friend himself? It is of no use for him to think that it is a mere recognition of the hospitality he receives, for none with a grain of sense could take it in that light. Why does he accompany the younger members of the family to the local dances, and waltz thrice with Miss Brown? The subterfuge that he addresses to himself, that he "must dance with somebody," is too transparent and too contemptible for refutation. Then why on earth does he kiss the younger Brown children, if it is not by way of gentle hint that he is only too prepared to salute, under proper conditions, Miss Brown herself? Young men are not in the habit of kissing children without a reason for it, and there is no adequate reason but an elder sister. Why is he so hearty with Brown senior, sitting out with unwearied countenance that gentleman's longest stories, if he is not really meditating a short story of his own, in return, conveying necessary personal particulars, and concluding with an offer to cement! Why does he smile at the servant, and the servant smile at him, when he asks if young Mr. Brown is in, if there is really nothing more "in it" than an attachement to Brown junior! And when, after all these signs and tokens which point to only one issue, young Jones keeps on coming and coming but never comes to the point, is not his conduct shocking, and has not every one a right to be offended? is not the whole household necessitated to take the matter up, and even the maid, forced by sympathy to smile no longer at Jones when he appears on the door-step? Here is indeed a distressing family situation brought about by a thoughtless young man, who, no doubt, would not harm a fly, or needlessly set foot on a worm, or give any man a bad cigar, or shut any railway carriage door against a mother and infant, if he knew it. And this situation also repeats itself mutatis mutandis in very many households. The tardy lover obtrudes himself with indifference into the castle and the cottage. There he is, a problem for every one to deal with, and he must be dealt with; but how to deal with him?

The men, cowards as they are, act in the meanest manner, and say with brazen countenances that it is plainly a woman's business; but this suggestion is received on the feminine side with disapprobation, if not disgust, and though attacked with much flattery, they remain obdurate in their refusal to carry it out. Eyes, rather than tongues suggest whether something cannot be done by Matilda herself, but when Matilda folds her hands and casts her wan eyes up to the ceiling, declares that she would rather die first, and leaves the room with a gush of tears and the slightest slam to the door, every one frowns upon every one else for having dared to intimate such a thing. No, some one else must be chosen. Then young Brown feels the eyes of all turned upon him. He is Jones's bosom friend, and knows more about him and his disposition than any one else, and could put the matter delicately. But young Brown rebels. He can tell them all about Jones as far as that goes, knows he is quite right as to position, prospects, habits, and so forth, is sure he [illegible] drawn Jones's attention in the most delicate manner to Matilda's manifestly declining health, has warned him of heart disease and threatened him with a decline, at which he was evidently much concerned, but still did not speak out. So the gentle hint was eventually to be abandoned.

Possibly the next stratagem that suggests itself is a change of demeanor on the part of the whole family toward Jones. This is considered at the first blush a happy thought. If they all turn cold to him at once, it must make him reflect—if he has any reflection in him! But then arises the harassing fear that Jones may reflect too much, may take the coldness in all sincerity, think they are tired of him, and so say good-bye and lose forever the chance of being happy. Besides, it is rather repugnant to the feelings, and so it is abandoned too. Likewise is abandoned the idea of getting a friend of both families to speak to Jones "on his own responsibility," and of course of his own initiative, because one after another friend of the family who is thought of, is rejected for one good reason or another. One is too abrupt in his style, another is more a friend of the Joneses than she is of theirs, while a third has been a bit of a trifler himself and does not think severely enough on such matters. Then it is a very thankless office for an outsider to take, for even if the stratagem is successful the lovers are sure to look upon it as an interference, and if the match never comes off the failure will always be laid to the family friend. After all, faute de mieux, the matter is practically left in the hands of poor Matilde herself, who possibly takes counsel of her own instincts, and decides that a little flirtation with another gentleman would have more effect upon the masculine tardiness than anything else. But it must be confessed that this is but a desperate and dangerous expedient. Flirtations are double-edged weapons without a handle. What, then, ought to be done? Matilda ought not to pine away, nor ought Jones, who is a good fellow at heart, and likely to make a good husband, to miss his happiness through the fatal facility of dallying. Who shall guide us? Now, if our great observers of the emotions of the jellyfish, our measurers of interstellar space, our investigators into the fungi of old boots, the origin of the myth of Little Jack Horner, and the moral significance of A flat, would only apply their remarkable brains to the solution of this homely problem, we might at last get something useful out of them.—London Standard.

A Blighted Race of Women.

From the New York Sun.

"If there was ever a blighted race of women," said a gentleman of this city, recently returned from a visit to Cape Cod, "it exists in the peninsular villages of Massachusetts, villages which depend on the fisheries, for the support of their inhabitants. Nowhere else in all New England will one see so high an average of female beauty, especially in symmetry of form and freshness of complexion, as is noticeable among the young girls of these Cape Cod fishermen's towns, girls ranging from 15 to 20 years of age. But it will not take one long to discover the startling and melancholy fact that if this girlish beauty and freshness is unusual and unexpected, it is also only too apparent that its duration is brief. The change produced in these girls by the lapse of a few years is painful in the extreme. No matronly graces are to be seen among them after their girlhood days are past. The charming middle stage of maturing womanhood, between the freshness and buoyancy of the girl of 20 and the woman of 35 or 40, is entirely absent. The heightened color of the cheeks is gone. The eyes are sunken and wear a look of sadness and anxiety. Gray hair in heads over which a score and a half of years have scarcely passed, and deep are lines in faces which should show no trace of age for 25 years to come, rather the rule than the exception. These women, besides suffering from all the inevitable sorrows which fall to woman's lot, no matter in what station she may be placed, have an added intense and perpetual sorrow all their own. Theirs is a life of continual suspense and anxiety, which is almost certain to be in time embittered by an overwhelming grief.

"The most obtuse observer needs not to ask the cause of this lack of complete matronly beauty among these women whose budding days open with the greatest promise of a superb physical womanhood, and for the utter extinction of that light-heartedness and brightness which marked their girlish life. The cause suggests itself at once to one who sees the congregations of women on the beaches and in the quiet streets of the sleepy villages. He will notice occasionally a feeble old man among them, generally supported on the arm of some female companion, who, most likely, carries on her other arm a chubby-faced child of lusty lungs. But in these groups, or anywhere about the village, the observer will look in vain for the presence of males between tottering years of these relics of the past and the prattling days of babyhood. It is the fishing season, and there are no men or boys on shore. Their smacks are tossing on the treacherous waters of the fishing banks, and their return, if they return at all, is as uncertain as the weather, which forms the one great subject of conjecture and apprehension among the villagers. Husbands, sons, fathers, brothers and sweethearts are somewhere on the bosom of the sea, probably homeward bound, perhaps steering for still more distant waters, perhaps struggling for life among the waves. Fair weather keeps hope warm in many an anxious woman's heart; the howling northeaster chills it with doubt and despair. Constantly watching by day, waking in the night to listen to sounds from the sea whether they may be the roaring of the dreaded tempest or merely the moan of the surf on the beach, is it any wonder that the torture of mind and heart and strain of nerve and vital force that must follow this perpetual suspense and longing should destroy the fountains of youth and beauty in these patient, suffering women and place upon them the marks of [illegible]

The idea that there might be any other future for them than the one which is to come to them as fishermen's wives, or that the life of a fisherman's wife is anything different from the natural sequence of married life never seems to occur to them.

Looking at one of these bright, happy girls, chatting and romping amid half a dozen sad-eyed young wives and mothers on the beach, or at the landing, where some one is always waiting and watching for a sail in the offing, one cannot prevent his imagination from seeking a most melancholy channel. There is the girl now. It will not be long now before she will be a wife. Imagine her two years married, sitting alone in her little home, her baby in the cradle, and the north wind howling without. She knows too well that at that moment the one for whose return she is longing and praying may be struggling with the breakers, while the highland light, which she can see, is shining pitilessly on his agony, for she has only to climb a spur of land that rises behind her house to see the skeleton of a ship which foundered only a few months ago, and all her crew were lost in sight of home. The grave-stones in the little church-yard recall to her every Sunday how, in one night, by the wreck of fishing craft homeward bound, over 70 women of her own village were widowed or those already widowed left childless, and nearly every home made desolate. It is to a future attended with painful suggestions such as these, and with increasing suspense and ever present agony of mind, that these bright, fair young girls sacrifice all their youth and beauty and buoyancy of spirits, pass voluntarily within the pale foa blighted womanhood.

Getting Married in England.

A London letter to the Hartford Times says: Getting married being so much more pleasant an operation than being either born or buried, I have reserved my notes on this subject for a climax. To begin with, I think it would be safe to say that no woman was ever wedded in England, or would ever think of being, without a ring. This emblem on the third finger of the left hand is the universal badge of the connubial state, and the absence of it the universal sign of single blessedness. A lady who has been twice married will usually wear both wedding rings. Married American ladies who come over here minus this outward mark of their relation, are often looked upon by English matrons with suspicion.

Another remarkable thing about English marriages is that they are nearly all celebrated in some place of worship and nearly all, too, before 12 o'clock of the day. To get married at any hour, and in any other place than in a church or chapel, or at the register's office, a special license, costing $150, must be procured. An ordinary license, which confers only the privilege of getting married without a previous publication of the "banns," costs $25. As a matter of course this expensive method of getting spliced is a luxury left to the enjoyment of the rich and few, the many going through the ordinary process of having the banns announced. This is done by the clergyman who declares, in making his notices at the morning service, that so and so, and so and so are about to become husband and wife, winding up by calling upon anyone who may know of any lawful impediment to the union to declare the same or forever thereafter hold his peace.

The banns must be published thus on three successive Sundays. Then the wedding can take place. In the case of dissenters who purpose being married in their chapel, the names, ages, residence, occupations, etc., of the parties must be exhibited for three weeks at the office of the register for the district and to make the chapel marriage valid the register must be present at the ceremony. Considering that nothing of the kind is required at church weddings, this is great injustice to dissenters, and doubtless it will soon be done away with. The register is competent to tie the knot himself, and is the only person, outside of the ministry, who enjoys this privilege.

In wishing the couple good luck, the old custom still prevails of throwing a slipper or old shoe after them when on the way to the church—this, however, being varied in some places by strewing rice before them. It is nothing unusual for protests to be made when the banns are published. The objection is made in public, and the clergyman hears the statement or cause in the vestry at the close of the service. Most frequently it is the parents who object, but occasionally cases of a different kind occur.

At a church near Manchester, a few Sundays ago, the banns of marriage were being published for the "third time of asking." When a gentlemen arose in a conspicuous part of the congregation and said, according to the usual form, "I forbid the banns." Subsequently it transpired that the man who had been "asked" was eighty-two years of age. The woman, who was forty-five, had recently nursed him through an illness, and had ordered the publication of the banns without his consent, her object in thus attempting to force him into matrimony being to get possession of the old gentleman's property. The wedding I need scarcely add, did not come off.

A contributor to Longman's Magazine is disposed to the opinion that old stories of long-distance shooting with bow and arrow were told by persons who drew a long bow in their own imaginations. He writes: "Nowadays I imagine that 400 yards is beyond the power of man to compass. I have but seldom tried my hand at flight-shooting, but with light flight-arrows and a bow pulling sixty-two pounds I shot 286 yards last April. The air was nearly calm, and there was but three or four yards' difference in shooting up and down. With a little practice I fancy that I could reach 300 yards. There are strong men who can pull a bow of seventy pounds or seventy-five. With such a weapon they could probably reach 350 yards, and possibly more. But when it is measured out 280 yards it seems a long way to send so slight a thing as a flight arrow, and those who [illegible]

THE DOCTOR'S STORY.

FROM THE FRENCH OF GUY DE MAUPASSANT.

She was a Russian lady, the Countess Marie Baranow, a very great lady, exquisitely handsome, you know how beautiful they seem to us, with their fine noses, delicate mouths, eyes rather close together and of indiscribable grayish blue, and that cold grace of theirs, a little severe. They have something about them at once wicked and seductive, haughty and gentle, tender and harsh, which is very charming to a Frenchman. But, after all, it may be only the difference of race and type which causes me to see so much in them.

Her physician had for several years tried to induce her to settle in the south of France, as he observed that she was threatened with consumption. But she obstinately refused to leave St. Petersburg. Finally, last autumn, believing her life at stake, the doctor warned her husband, who immediately ordered his wife to leave for Menton.

She took the train, choosing to remain all by herself in the car, while her servants occupied another compartment. She leaned out at the door, a little sad, as she watched the fields and villages passing by—feeling herself very isolated, very lonely in that life of hers, without children, almost without relatives, with a husband whose love had grown cold, and who was sending her thus far away to another part of the world, without as much as offering to accompany her—just as he would send a sick patient to the hospital.

At each station her servant Ivan regularly came to the door to find if his mistress needed anything. He was an aged domestic, blindly devoted to her, and ready to fulfill any order that she could possibly give him. Night came on, and the train was rushing forward at full speed. She could not sleep, for excess of nervousness. Suddenly the idea occurred to her to count the money her husband had placed in her hand at the last moment, in gold coin of France. She opened her little bag and emptied the shining mass of metal into her lap.

Just then a whiff of cold air smote her in the face. She lifted her head in surprise. The door of the railroad car had just opened. Hastily the Countess Marie dropped her shawl over the money lying in her lap and waited. A second later a man entered, bareheaded, wounded in his hand, panting violently and attired in evening full dress. He closed the door, sat down, gazed at his neighbor with glittering eyes and commenced to bind a handkerchief about his bleeding wrist.

The young woman felt herself ready to faint with fear. That man certainly must have seen her counting the gold, and he had come in only to rob and murder her.

He kept his gaze upon her, still out of breath as he was, his face working strangely, as though he were preparing to leap upon her.

Then he said sharply:

"Don't be afraid, madam!"

She could not speak; there was a sound of buzzing in her ears, and she could hear her own heart beat.

He spoke again. "I am not a criminal, madam."

Speechless with fear, she could answer nothing, but in the sudden movement of her start at the sound of his voice her knees coming together caused the gold to trickle down upon the floor piece by piece, as the water trickles from a spout.

The man observed with surprise the falling stream of gold pieces, and suddenly bent down to pick them up.

Then, wild with fear, she rose to her feet, dropping all her fortune on the floor, and rushed toward the entrance to leap out upon the track. But he comprehended what she was going to do, and turning, seized her in his arms, reseated her by force, and grasping her wrists, exclaimed:

"Listen to me, madam. I am not a robber; and the proof is that I am going to pick up all your money and give it back to you. But I am a lost man—I am a dead man—if you do not aid me to pass the frontier. I can tell you nothing more. In another hour we shall reach the last Russian station; in one hour and twenty minutes we shall cross the frontier line. If you do not succor me, I am lost. And nevertheless, madam, I swear to you that I have not killed anybody, stole anything, or done one dishonorable act. This I swear to you. But I cannot tell you anything more."

And, going down upon his knees he picked up every coin to the very last, seeking the gold pieces under the benches, and grasping after those which had rolled into obscure places. Then, when the little leather bag was full again, he handed it to his neighbor without a word, and retired to a corner of the car, where he sat down. Neither of them made the least movement. She remained motionless and dumb, still faint with terror, but gradually becoming calm. As for him, he made not a gesture, not a sign; he remained sitting erect and immobile, with eyes looking straight before him, and so pale that he seemed to be dead. From time to time she cast a quick side glance at him, which was as quickly turned away. He was a man of about thirty, very handsome, with all the outward appearance of a gentleman.

The train rushed on through the darkness, flinging out its piercing shriekes to the night, sometimes slackening its pace a moment, only to start off again under full steam. But at last its course became steadily slow, it whistled several times, and stopped short.

Ivan appeared at the door to receive orders.

The Countess Marie gave a final look at her strange traveling companion, and then said brusquely to her servant:

"Ivan, thou will now return to the count; I shall have no more need of thee."

Stupefied, the man opened his eyes enormously. He began to stammer out [illegible]

Again the train started, making for the frontier.

Then the Countess Marie said to her neighbor:

"These things are for you, sir. You are now my servant, Ivan. I place but one condition upon what I do—namely, that you never speak to me, that you do not utter one single word, neither to thank me, nor for any other cause whatsoever."

The stranger bowed without speaking.

Soon they stopped again; and uniform officials entered the train. The countess showed them her papers, and pointing to the man seated in the further end of the car, said:

"This is my servant Ivan, and this is his passport."

The train moved on.

For the rest of the night they sat alone together, without speaking.

At dawn, as they halted at a German station, the stranger got out. Then, standing near the window of the car door, he said:

"Pardon me, madam, for breaking my promise, but as I have deprived you of your servant, it is just that I should replace him. Do you need anything?"

She replied, coldly:

"Go and tell my waiting maid to come."

He did so, and disappeared.

But later on, when she got out to take some refreshments, she saw him standing at a distance, watching her. And they arrived at Menton.

The doctor paused at this stage of the story. After a few moments, he resumed:

Well, one day, as I was receiving clients in my office, a fine, tall man came in, who said to me:

"Doctor, I come to ask you for news of the Countess Marie Baranow. I am—although she does not know me—a friend of her husband."

I replied:

"There is no hope for her, I regret to say. She will never return to Russia."

And all of a sudden the man burst into a passion of sobs; then he rose, and staggered from the room like a drunken man.

The same evening I told the Countess that a stranger had called at my office to inquire about her health. She seemed to be affected, and then told me the whole story just as I told it to you. And she added:

"That man, whom I do not know, now follows me everywhere, like my own shadow. I meet him every time I go out; he looks at me in a strange way, but never speaks."

She paused thoroughly a moment, and then exclaimed:

"See! I am willing to wager that he is this moment before the window."

She rose from her reclining chair, went to the window, lifted the curtain aside, and there, sure enough was the man who had come to my office—sitting on a bench of the public promenade, with eyes fixed on the windows of the residence. He observed us, rose, and walked away without once turning to look.

Then I became the witness of a very astonishing thing—the mute love of those two beings, neither of whom knew the other.

He loved her with the devotion of a rescued animal—grateful and devoted to the death. He came every day to see me, with the question, "How is she?"—comprehending that I had divined his secret. And he used to weep fearfully at seeing her passing by, whiter and weaker every day.

She would say to me:

"I only spoke once to that singular man, and it seems to me as though I had known him for twenty years."

And whenever they met she returned his salute with a grave and tender smile. I felt that she was happy, all lonely as she was, and knowing herself doomed to die—I knew that she felt happy just at being loved in that strange way, with such respect and such constancy, with such romantic exaggeration, with such supreme devotion. And for all that, still obstinate in her exaltation, she persistently and desperately refused to receive him, to learn his name, or to speak to him. She would always say:

"No, no! it would spoil this strange friendship. We must always remain unknown to each other."

As for him, he was certainly Quixotic; for he never tried to bring himself any nearer to her. He had resolved to keep to the very end the absurd promise he had made her in the railroad car.

Very often during her long hours of weakness, she would get up from her reclining chair and peep through the curtains to see if he was there—under her window. And when she had seen him, always, sitting motionless on his bench, she would go back and lie down with a smile on her lips.

She died at last one morning—about 10 o'clock. As I was leaving the house I saw him hastening to me, with agony in his face—he already knew all.

"I would like to look at her for one second," he said, "in your presence."

I took his arm and re-entered the house.

When he found himself beside the death-bed he seized her hand and kissed it with an interminable kiss, then he rushed away like a mad man.

The doctor paused again, and added:

"This is certainly the strangest railroad adventure I ever knew. And I must say it taught me what queer fools men can be."

"Then a woman murmured in a half-audible voice:

"Those two people were not so foolish as you thing—they were—they were—"

But she cried so that she could not speak. And as they changed the subject of conversation in order to calm her, no one ever knew what she had been trying to say.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A Town Run by Natural Gas.

"Our glass factory and our residences are heated and lighted with natural gas," said Captain James B. Ford, the veteran plate glass manufacturer, a few days ago, to your correspondent at the Monongahela House, Pittsburg.

"Do you mean that the furnaces of your foundry and the grates of your houses consume only gas?" [illegible]

so familiar years ago in the cities about the falls, met me, and, without ceremony, escorted me through the town of Creighton. I will use his explanation without quotation marks. Three years ago, believeing that a natural flow of gas could be obtained in the valley of the Allegheny north of Pittsburg sufficient to serve the purposes of fuel and light for any manufactory, two hundred acres were purchased and a well was sunk. A well defined coal vein was on the property, but coal was not wanted; gas was, and gas was struck at 1200 feet, in a five-inch bore. A stream, a torrent of pure hydrogen gas, burst out with a force of 250 pounds to the square inch, and the establishment of plate glass works on an economical basis became a fixed fact. Last November the Pittsburg Plate Glass Company was organized.

What I saw is what I wish to speak about. No coal, no wood, no cinders, no ashes, no smoke (think of that), no debris of a factory to be seen anywhere. In the furnaces a lurid, steady heat, regulates like clock work. Overhead, in the vast works, were gas burners ablaze in the broad day, because, as Captain Ford said, "it was not worth while to turn the burners off and on, as there was plenty of gas, and to spare.

All through this vast establishment, with its great whirling tables loaded with plate glass undergoing the several processes of polishing, was observable the supreme power of the five-inch pipe of natural gas. The great engine throbbed and moved in perfect regularity all the mechanism of the establishment, actuated by the same simple, natural power. No coal, no ashes, no cinders, no smoke!

"Come to the house and I'll show you how we get along without coal," said Captain Ford.

Wonderingly I followed.

In a charming cottage residence of large capacity, with grate and gaslights in every room and hall, and in the kitchen stove, even, were nothing but fringes of gas jets.

"Last winter, as cold as the winter was we didn't know what cold was," said a lady in this delightful home.

Why should they? A thumbscrew on a gas pipe regulated the temperature to absolute perfection. We live in a fast age. To primitive people, dependent upon coal and wood for heating purposes, whether we get it through cheap stoves, grates, or costly furnaces, what a revelation this nature's gas company is. I am inclined to have a mighty poor opinion o our local gas companies with their millions of capital, when I think of Captain Ford's five-inch pipe stuck in the hills, just beyond the town of Creighton, on the Allegheny river. Nature has quietly been pressed into the most practical and utillitarian methods for man's profit and luxury. The only cloud that arises from this community is formed from steam.

"We don't need to use this steam at all," said Captain Ford. "The natural pressure of the gas, 350 pounds to the square inch, will drive our engines, and we can use the escaping gas just as well for fuel and light. They are doing it below us, and we will soon adopt the same method."—Pittsburg, Pa., Correspondence of Louisville Courier Journal.

Beautiful But Dirty.

The Indian of Cooper's novels no longer exists, if he ever did live. The red man of the forest has his good traits, no doubt, and some of his bad ones are either copied from his white brother, or have been developed by two centuries of unjust treatment. But he is not a romantic being. Nor is his squaw. Nor is his pappoose. Nor is the Indian maiden, a pappoose no longer, but not yet a squaw. The United Service describes one of these latter, and one feels as though her photograph would be more acceptable than her bodily presence.

She was not too tall, and was finely formed, though want of food had marred the once rounded contour of her young and shapely limbs. Her hair was long and of a rich purplish-black. Her eyes were large, lustrous, full of nature's fire and brightness.

Her eye-brows were dark as her hair, and perfectly arched. Her lips were full and of a vivid red.

Her teeth, like those of most Indians, were beautifully regular and brilliantly white, though tooth-brush had never touched them. They seemed, however, like all Indian teeth, to have been made to eat raw flesh. I cannot better describe the appearance of Indian teeth.

Her cheeks and forehead were touched with the vermilion dye the squaws use for the purpose of personal adornment; for they too, like too many of their white sisters, endeavor to improve upon nature. Her matted hair fell in long, elf-locks and inextricable tangles; it knew nothing of a comb. She looked like a savage edition of a head I have seen among Julian's crayon studies.

Her dusky arms were bare. A few brass rings ornamented her wrists. Her dress was composed of two rectangular pieces of a dark and coarse woolen stuff, bordered with red, the latter is a favorite color of Indians. These pieces were joined at one end, a place being left open for the head to pass through. A piece of buckskin bound them around her waist.

Her feet were small and well-formed, but truth compels me to confess that they were thickly incrusted with the yellow mud of the Cienega. The nearest approach to a washing they ever made was when her path lay across a brook which she had to ford.

Her hands, alas! were covered with dirt and clay, for it was my poor little no-heroine's daily labor to dig up the papa, or Navajo potato, with her young fingers.

I should have hesitated to lend her my cloak or my shawl if I intended to wear it again. And if I were compelled to don it again after she had worn it, I should cause it to do duty for some days as a horse-cloth first. This, I have learned from old frontiersmen, from Mexican scouts, guides, etc., removes the unpleasant consequences of Indian wear.

The perfume of the wild red rose was not remarkably agreable. [illegible]

Christine Nilsson, who has got socially higher than any other prima donna of her time, is to spend a week as the guest of the King of Sweden at Tadmouth Castle, the seat of Lady Breadalbane.

OATHS AND THEIR MEANING.

Affirmation Upheld by the History and Character of Swearing.

The new volume of the Encyclopædia Britannica, just published, contains a remarkably interesting article on the subject of "Oaths," which is particularly seasonable at the present moment in connection with Bradlaugh discussion, and the information contained in which, from a historical point of view, ought to strengthen the position of Mr. Gladstone and the Liberal party in their desire to carry an Affirmation bill. The author, Dr. E. B. Tylor, makes it abundantly evident that the oath originally had no connection whatever with sacred matters. It is simply a relic of barbarism, "an asseveration or promise made under nonhuman penalty or sanction." The idea of its having been at the first an appeal to the Divine Being is quite a mistake. The invocation of the Diety to punish was learned by the savage tribes from their civilized neighbors. An example of the "curse oath" is seen among the Nagas of Assam, where two men lay hold of a dog or fowl by head or feet, the animal being then chopped in two by a single blow as emblematic of the fate which is expected to befall the perjurer. Sometimes the person taking the oath would hold in his hand a spearhead or a tigers tooth, by which act he virtuously said. "If I do not faithfully perform this, my promise, may I fall by these." Another stage in the history of all oaths was reached when the swearer called upon some fierce beast to punish him if he lied, believing that somehow it knew what he said, and had power to interfere in human affairs. Between the Russians and the wild Ostyaks of Siberia, for example, the head of a bear was brought into court, and the Ostyak, making a gesture to imitate eating, called upon the bear to devour him if he did not speak the truth. In the earlier stages of natural or rather nature religeon, natural objects were invoked, being looked upon as animate and personal. Thus, the old Romans swore by the Styx or the Tiber, the Hindoo by the Ganges, while in New Guinea oaths are still taken by an appeal to the sun, the mountains, or weapons of war. The Romans had another custom, in the form of killing a hog by the sacred flint, with the invocation of Jupiter so to smite the people who did not keep their oath. Dr. Taylor has ho hesitation in saying that the modern forms of adjuration can all be traced back in some way or other to these barbaric practices, while he dwells with emphasis upon the fact that among Christian nations there has been much difference of opinion upon the taking of oaths. St. Crhysostom and most of the Fathers—founding their teaching on the words of the Divine Author of Christianity—violently denouncing the practice as "a snare of Satan." The Christian custom of taking the oath upon a copy of the Gospels seems to have been derived from the late Jewish practice, in which the oath was taken, holding in the hand the scroll of the law, or the phylacteries, this ceremony itself being possibly adapted from the Roman custom. The practice of kissing the book appears first in the Middle Ages, at the time when it became customary to touch the relics of the saints upon the altar, the cross, or a bishop's crozier. Such an oath, where a sacred object was touched, was called a "corporal" or bodily oath, as distinguished from a merely spoken or written oath. The English word to signify this sacred object was "halidome," and this "halidome" is now for Christains the New Testament, for Jews the old Testament, for Mohammedans the Koran, and for Hindoos the Vedas. Dr. Tylor further reminds us that the official and judicial oaths in England were at one time very numerous, but that they have been greatly reduced by modern legislation, and that the concluding words of the oath, "So help me God," "have not for ages had any precise signification." On the general subject he contends that there is a growing feeling that only the ignorant and superstitious are bound by an oath; that it increases temptations to perjury, and encourages the inference that a man need not speak the truth unless he is upon his oath. The whole article is one of much ability and value, and deserves to be carefully read, especially in connection with the present miserble Bradlaugh conflict, which is undoubtedly one of prejudice rather than principle, and which ought to have been settled long ago on the lines laid down by the Prime Minister in one of the noblest speeches he ever made—a permanent contribution to the literature of civil and religious liberty.—Liverpool Mercury.

A Susceptible Dude's Mistake.

From the Harrisburg Patriot.

A pair of tight trousers, a cutaway coat, a late style hat and a pair of kid gloves contained yesterday afternoon what is known as a dude. The object was found posed against the Trust Company Building on Market street. A small mustache that had just gone through the hands of the barber was being curled by himself, while a light cane was found under his arm.

"Watch him," remarked a by-stander, "he's on the mash."

The reporter looked across the street, but could see no females.

"Mashing what?" he inquired.

"The woman in Einstein's window. See her?"

Such proved to be the case. The dude kept up his flirtation for some time, but the woman gave no signs of answering. She was rather a prepossessing damsel, dressed in the latest style, and it was evident she was not engaged, as the dude supposed, rearranging the articles for show.

"Are you not tired flirting with that woman?" the reporter inquired.

"Not much!" replied the dude. "I do think she's so haundsome.

"But she can't talk."

"Cawn't she? That's awful bawd."

"Has it appeared to you that it is a dummy, simply dressed to show off the latest fashions?"

"Well, by Jove; I never thought of that. I'm left," and he pulled his cane from under his arm and moved on, amid the laughter of a number of persons who had been watching him.

Those were very old cigars which were given the other day to the Spanish consul at Portland, Me. They were a lot of 2000 sent to his predecessor thirty-eight years ago, but which failed to come into his hands before he was transferred from his post.

THE MISER'S THREE GIFTS.

Once upon a time there dwelt upon the surface of the errth—no matter where—an old miser named Donald McDee.

He lived alone in a little cabin, and never spent a penny more than he could help. His room was full of odds and ends that he had picked up in his wanderings, and never could bring himself to part with. Old ropes, rusty nails, crooked hooks, tatters of old shawls, tin pans with holes in them; even a little box full of crooked pins, for good luck.

The children called him a wizard, and threw stones at him as he passed through the village in his queer high-crowned hat and old coat with long, flapping tails, and he sometimes begged them for bits of the dinners they carried in their school-bags. Indeed, he was in the habit of begging of anyone who would listen to him. But when night came and everyone had gone to bed, Donald would close his shutters and bar his door, and lifting a stone in the floor, would take from beneath it a pot of gold and silver and count it over and over, over and over, as if he could never have done.

One night, as he sat thus telling his money and expecting nothing so little as an interruption—for a terrible storm was raging,—he suddenly heard a rap at his door, and gathering up his treasure, crammed it away out of sight in a hurry, and, placing his chair over the stone, pushed the table to it and set on it a dry loaf and mug of water and an old newspaper, so that if he had to open the door there would seem to be some reason for his being up and dressed.

"Who knows but it is robbers?" he cried, "What may you be wanting without there?"

"Shelter from the rain," said a voice.

It was a woman's, and though Donald was a miser, he was an Irishman.

He opened the door, and a figure all in white glided in. Her clothes were dripping, so that the water ran from them down upon the floor as she stood before the scanty peat fire burning on the miser's hearth; but there was something about her that made him tremble and feel very strangely as he said, "May I make bold to ask what brings you here, my lady?"

"I come to beg for the poor," said the woman. "I come to ask you for a guinea or two, Donald McDee."

"A Guinea or two!" screamed the miser. "Why, woman, I'm the poorest man alive myself. If you said a guinea, I haven't got it to give. And, besides, if the poor had been saving and thrifty they'd have it laid by. If I had it I—I——No! I can't! I won't!"

"A shilling then, Donald McDee," said the white woman. "A shilling for the poor."

"Would I live like this if I had a shilling to give away?" cried Donald.

"Sixpence," persisted the woman, "for the poor."

"No, no, I tell you!" yelled the miser.

"Sure you've gone mad, woman! Do I want to die in the poor-house?"

"A penny," said the woman; "only a penny. It's for your soul."

This time the miser only shook his head and turned his pockets inside out.

"Me with pennies to give!" he groaned; "a poor crayther like me!"

"Then," said the woman, stooping and lifting a piece of wood from the floor where it lay, "give me this."

"That?" faltered the miser. "It's a useful bit of good board."

"Will you give it to me for humanity's sake?" cried the woman. "I may save some poor creature from freezing to-night."

The old man looked hard at her, and fought hard with his longing to snatch it from her. At last, as though battling with some unseen foe, he gasped. "Take it, and go—take it, and go quickly!"

It was the first thing he had ever given away in his life.

The woman took her prize and went out at the door. The miser drew it to and bolted it, and hurried to his bed, terrified and trembling. But, strangely enough, after that, whenever he counted his treasure over, he used to take credit to himself for having been generous.

"The board was worth a good dale," he used to say—"quite a good dale. It's a fine thing to be charitable, that it is. I don't begrudge it as some would."

And so he magnified his generosity, until one night the low, soft voice came again; and as once more he hid his treasure, the voice called out, "It is I Donald McDee; let me in."

He opened the door, though it was against his will. The starlight shone behind the figure, and the sky was clear.

"It's yourself again!" said Donald, in a low voice. "What do you want now for the poor, from the poorest of them all?"

"What will you give?" asked the woman.

Donald looked about him. A little coil of rope hung on a nail; he had begged it of some sailors. He snatched it down and crammed it into her hands.

"There! It's worth a good dale," he said. "It's a good bit of a rope; take it, and go."

Without a word the woman took it from him and vanished.

Something seemed to shimmer between Donald's eyes and the stars, but what it was he knew not.

He hurried in, and hurried to bed, and dreamed all night that he had given away all his treasured gold. It was a horrible dream; but still from that time on he spoke of the board and the rope to himself, when he counted up his good deeds.

"I'm not a miser, as they say," he would mutter over his money, "I am always giving ropes and boards to the poor."

At last poor Donald McDee fell very ill. He stayed in bed, unable to get out of it. Under him, in the mattress, all his money was hidden. Good neighbors brought him food and drink, and peats for his fire; but he would not have a doctor for fear of the expense. But one day, as he waked from a doze, there, sitting by his side, was the white woman with her old cry, "Give me something for the poor."

"I'm sick now and poorer than ever," said Donald, "but mind this, ye never went from my door empty-handed. There's a brass key, it's a good front-door key. The marine store dealer will give you fourpence for it. Take it and go."

"[illegible]," said the white woman. "You will see board and key and rope again, and rejoice that you gave them."

She seemed to fade as mist or smoke vanishes from sight.

"I shall die in the poor-house!" moaned the old man. "Very Well. I'll try to save in light. I'm a very poor man."

He turned with a groan, blew out the candle, and left himself to die gasping in the dark.

Donald McDee's spirit found itself standing on the margin of a black river awful to look upon. Beyond lay something too glorious to look upon, that seemed made of gold and precious stones.

An angel stood beside him.

"Do you know what light that is yonder?" he said.

"I do not," replied Donald, trembling.

"It is the gate of heaven," said the angel.

"May I enter?" asked Donald.

"If thou canst ford the river, climb the steep hill, and unlock the golden gate," said the angel.

"How can I do that?" asked Donald.

"Remember all your good actions," said the angel.

"Let me see," said Donald. "I drove the Widow Dunn's cow for rent, and made a pretty penny of it, and I took her pig myself."

The angel frowned.

"I picked up the money the ould blind squire dropped, and him none the the wiser," said Donald.

The angel sighed.

"It seems all wrong now," said Donald.

"I thought it right. I've never given a thing away, but a rope and a board and a bit of a kay. I wish I had given money now. Sure, there she is again!"

For the white woman stood near him and held out a bit of a board.

"It returns to you again," she said; "a bridge to cross the river;" and, indeed, as he laid it on the bank, it upheld him, and seemed to lengthen so that on it he crossed the shining river.

There stood the mountain, high and steep, but he saw the rope dangling over the side, and a voice from above cried, "It is the rope that you gave. Hold it fast and climb, climb, climb."

Donald stood before the gate of heaven at last, and, looking through its bars of gold, saw the beautiful land within, but the gate remained fast locked.

"I cannot win heaven," he moaned; "I have been too wicked."

But then a hand was on his arm, and the white-robed woman was beside him again. She held a key in her hand.

"Your voluntary gift, Donald," she said. "Take it and unlock the gate."

But Donald stood clasping his hand upon his brow.

"I am trying to remember what my mother taught me," he said. "What was it? 'It is more blessed to give than to receive.' That was it.

As he spoke a mantle of sin seemed to fall from him, the golden gates turned upon their hinges, and he entered heaven.

Spirited Indian Girl.

The Indian school at Carlisle, Penn., under the charge of Capt. Pratt, is working hard to answer the question, What shall we do with our wild wards? Its pupils, selected from the savages of the plains, are given a common-school education and taught a trade or housewifery. An important part of their education is derived from association with white men and women. How thoroughly this has revolutionized some of them may be seen from the following anecdote:

There is a very bright and interesting Indian girl, named Lizzie Spider, the last being her father's name, which she assumed, a custom the girls nearly all follow.

A few years ago, she was at the Indian school at Carlise, a pupil, where she acquired considerable knowledge.

When she went back, during the summer vacation, her father sold her to a young Indian brave for a number of ponies, which is the accustomed form of marriage among the Sioux.

She had just received enough education to revolt against the savage life that was to be thrust upon her, so she ran away and lived for many months hidden in the woods, going by stealth occasionally to the hut of friends to get supplies of food.

During his last visit to Yankton, Capt. Pratt heard of her, and after a search found her and brought her back with him and put her in the Lincoln school, where she now is. She says she doesn't want to be sold for ponies, and cook and work for a savage lazy-boots.—Philadelphia Times.

Moncure D. Conway, a highly cultured American minister, went to England more than a dozen years ago. He had become dissatisfied with existing religions, and so he invented one that seemed to him to have merits far beyond any of the traditional faiths. With an extraordinary lack of sense he went to England, and attempted to put his invention on the market. He has been trying for many years, and has now given up discouraged, and says that the new religion must take root in the fresher soil and newer air of America. Almost any one could have told Mr. Conway at the outset that America, and not England, was the place to start a new religion. Still, it might not thrive very well even here. It is easy enough to invent a new religion, but it is difficult to get it into general use. Mr. Conway has made his formal farewell to his congregation of cultured philosophers in London, and will soon take up his residence in Washington, where almost everything, including religions, depends for success upon official recognition in some form or other.

Minot Tyrrell, of Lynn, Mass., will be disgruntled when he gets back from Europe, and it would not be strange if he sues the cable company. He ran over home from Europe and cabled his wife and daughter, whom he had left behind: "I shall return immediately." Mrs. Tyrrell and her daughter are now in Lynn, and Mr. Tyrrell is on the other side, they having passed each other on the ocean.

[illegible]

FARM, FIELD AND FIRESIDE.

Well-Tested Recipes.

If you have no pan expressly for baking fish you can arrange one in this way: Get a piece of heavy wire netting such as is commonly used in cellar windows; have it cut just large enough to cover the top of your dripping-pan, but not to extend over the sides; the fish may be laid upon this, and it will drain nicely and will be far more likely to brown as you like to have it than if it were laid in the bottom of the pan.

BRINE PICKLES.—Take a stone jar and sprinkle some coarse rock salt on the bottom; then put in a layer of cucumbers, then a layer of salt until you have the jar full. They will make a brine for themselves. As they settle down, fill up if you wish to. When wanted for use, take out what is required, and pour boiling water over them; soak until fresh enough, then put into vinegar. To keep pickles free from scum, they must be washed clean and the little black prickles removed.

BIRD'S-NEST PUDDING.—The following is one of the nicest simple puddings that I know of, and is quite harmless for children: Pare tart cooking-apples, core—leaving the apple whole—fill the bottom of a pudding dish with them, set into a steamer and steam until tender. Pour over a custard made of one quart of milk, four beaten eggs, sugar and flavoring to taste. Continue steaming until the custard has "set."

CUCUMBER PICKLES.—Pick and wash clean with a cloth, put them in a wooden tub or pail, make a strong brine of rock salt, enough to cover them well, and pour on scalding hot. Let stand 24 hours, then take out and put them in good, sharp cider vinegar; add a tablespoonful of pulverized alum to a gallon of vinegar; spice to taste. Never cut or bruise a cucumber for a pickle. I have pickles that were made a year ago, that are now as free from scum as the day they were made. They are in the same vinegar, and never have been scalded.

GRAPE WINE. Mash the grapes, and strain them through a cloth; put the skins in a tub after squeezing them, with barely enough water to cover them; strain the juice thus obtained into the first portion; put three pounds of sugar to one gallon of the mixture; let it stand in an open tub to ferment, and for a period of from three to seven days skim off what rises every morning. Put the juice in a cask, and leave it open for twenty-four hours; then bung it up, and put clay over the bung to keep the air out. Let your wine remain in the cask until March, when it should be drawn off and bottled. [Virginia Cookery Book, by Mary Stuart Smith.

GRAHAM BREAD.—Bread that can be started after breakfast and baked before dinner is made of one pint and a half of sour milk, two scant teaspoonfuls of soda dissolved in a little hot water, half a cup of New Orleans molasses, a teaspoonful of salt, and as much sifted graham flour as can be stirred in with a spoon. Grease a large bread tin very evenly, as the molasses in the bread renders it liable to stick, put into the oven and bake for two hours. Have the oven hot when the bread is put in, and towards the last hour let it cool gradually. Or, this bread may be steamed for an hour and three-quarters, and be dried off in the oven 20 minutes. When it is taken from the oven wrap a towel around the loaf, the tin and all, and in 10 minutes remove from the tin, and keep the loaf wrapped in the cloth until it is sent to the table.

Farming Paragraphs.

The Bucks county Intelligencer states that Mr. Louis Williamson, of Delaware county, keeps 1,200 fowls. They roost in several large houses, which are warmed and well lighted with large glass windows. He feeds well, gives them extra attention, and was so well pleased with his success last season as to nearly double the number to be kept next year.

The shrinkage in weight of cattle after being placed on grass in spring is well known to the experienced grazers, but we have found intelligent farmers who were not aware that this was the rule. If more grain or hay is fed for a few days after the cattle are put on grass the tendency to lose weight may be counteracted. It is often wiser to keep fattening cattle on dry feed in the spring, even though it be desired to keep them two or three weeks after the grass is in good condition. When the system of the cattle has become accustomed to the change the gain is often remarkably great. At no season of the year are so great gains usually made as during June.—Breeder's Gazette.

Among the means of preventing sunstroke the most important are avoidance of extraordinary muscular exercise to raise the temperature of the body above its natural limit, and the drinking of plenty of water to supply the loss from the blood by the way of the skin, lungs and kidneys. The food should be mostly vegetable, the clothing should be light, the sleep should be regular, and the body should be frequently bathed.

For years, writes a correspondent of the Country Gentleman, I have cured warts very easily on animals, no matter where located, by applying butter of antimony with a feather two or three times, at intervals of two or three days. If the warts are dry, scaled, I scrape them lightly at first. It simply dries the warts down to hardness, when it drops off without leaving soreness or irritation. The best milking cow which I own I purchased out of a drove of beef cattle on account of her superiority in having all the excellent milking points, and the discovery that her teats were literally covered with pointed warts, which I had no doubt was the reason why she had been fatted and sold.

Any sort of manure infused in water, which is then poured over the soil containing the roots of the plants to be fed, constitutes liquid manuring. Nature manures similarly with the water of rain which, falling on the surface, dissolves a small portion of whatever plant food may be there and carries it to the roots. It will be seen that there is great advantage in [illegible] the surface [illegible] plant food [illegible] that plants [illegible] usually have reduced crops, and good ones after dry seasons; or (with water) in dry countries. Liquid manuring is largely used in pot culture of plants and fruits. As in feeding animals, moderation and dilution are advisable. It is a means of supplying at any moment, and in any degree, what nature feeds irregularly, and often slowly. With it pure sand alone is a sufficient and excellent soil.—N. Y. Tribune.

Preventive of Mortification.

A sarcastic writer upon the subject of woman's education recently said that "a part of the drill of every young ladies' school should be the reception by a wife in an old dress, at a dinner of boiled beef and carrots, of an unexpected guest brought home by her husband." Technical training is, doubtless, a good thing in its place, but any education, which would render it an easy matter for a woman to appear at her best in circumstances that are discreditable to her ought not to be encouraged. The broader culture aimed at in all worthy schools, would render it impossible for her to welcome her own family, not to speak of a guest, at a table which was not neatly spread, and it is not at all unlikely that the unexpected visitor might find there an illustration of high thinking with plain living that would be much more rare and enjoyable than an elaborate dinner. The self-respect which is one of the best results of broad culture is a great preventive of mortification. A woman of liberal education will hesitate to put poorly cooked or improper food before her husband and children. She knows too much about the process of digestion, and the probable transformation of perfectly digested food into the bright thought and hearty laugh, as well as its traces in the clear eye and fair complexion. By all means give the girls technical training if you choose, but do not undervalue or sneer at the discipline and development gained by a study of subjects for which they have no immediate or apparent use.

Adjustment of Food.

Indigestion is the source of a multitude of diseases. In fact, disease necessarily follows long-continued derangement of the digestive organs. The stomach is the laboratory in which the most wonderful chemical processes are constantly going on. Whatever is taken into the stomach is at once acted upon chemically and the wholsome and nutritious portions go to build up and strengthen the system, while the effete matters are expelled through the various channels. Now, when the food is crude and indigestible, or when good food is not properly masticated and mingled with the saliva before it enters the stomach, it lacks a very important element, and the digestive organs are subjected to great fatigue in efforts to prepare it for its work of sustaining life. When we consider the difficulties with which the stomach has to contend; of improper food forced into the stomach in a crude state and frequently in excess of the requirements of the body; of liquor drinking and tobacco using; the fact that three adult persons out of every four are of unsound health, and that the average term of human life is less than half what it should be under correct methods of living, should surprise no one.

There is not one person in ten who thinks of or seems to care for his health until he loses it.

The most absurd excuse for neglect of duty to one's self is that he cannot always be looking after his health. In other words, he has not the moral power to abstain from excesses that weaken the body and shorten life, as surely as night follows the day.

What a man eats and drinks habitually has much to do with the condition of mind and body.

The stomach is the fountain-head from whence the body draws its supplies. The old Roman idea of manliness was a "sound mind in a sound body." It is encouraging to know that the more intelligent of the present generation are adopting this view, and it is this class that is now paying the most attention to the law of health. All colleges encourage to-day what they condemned twenty years ago; as boat racing, ball playing and regular systems of exercise. If an engineer were to load the safety valve and build a fire under a steam boiler, and keep the fire replenished for a time without starting the engine, he would produce an explosion. If a man eats heartily, and leads an indolent life, a similar trouble occurs; his body is filled with the products of digestion; fat and fluids accumulate, and the muscles become soft and weak; more blood is made than the system requires, and the excess becomes a dangerous obstruction in the current of life, and the explosion may come in the form of apoplexy. The remedy is to adopt the quality and the quantity of the food to the daily requirements of the body. Remember that labor, or active and sufficient exercise every day, is imperatively demanded if we expect to keep well. Let the food be plain but nutritious, and avoid rich pastry and other indigestible foods. Adjust the food supply to the bodily activities.—Hall's Journal of Health.

Swine.

Young pigs should be pushed for the early market. They much enjoy a run in the clover. The orchard is a favorite place for pigs when they can eat the fallen fruit and grow fat upon the worms destroyed.

The Yorkshire swine are divided into three classes the large Yorkshire, small Yorkshire and middle Yorkshire. Except as regards size the large and small Yorkshires are very similar, but the middle class may be said to be quite distinct in appearance, shape and quality from the others.

While it is true that as a rule the pig is one of the most profitable of our domestic animals, it is also evident that the amount of profit he can be made to bring will be governed largely by the difference in methods of keeping and the intelligence or skill with which he is handled.

Swine breeders have not sufficiently borne in mind the variation in the amount of lean meat found in the carcasses of different hogs. The Berkshire is universally credited with having more lean than any other breed, but they, as well as other classes, vary, and [illegible] By judiciously [illegible] the cut carcasses giving preference to certain families showing liberal presence of muscular substances, these to be used as breeders, the relative quantity of lean could be increased in any family or breed.

Put in the Horse's Place.

"It is worry and not work that kills." Let every owner of a horse think when he brings his team to the stable at night how much vital force has been expended in work and how much in worry, and then strike a balance. And let him consider himself to be put in the horse's place, so that he may better know how it is himself. As thus:

A man goes out to work in the morning after having all night fought flies of the pestilent kind, breathed hot, foul air, reeked in the sweat and dust of the previous day's work, eaten a breakfast in haste, without any sufficient cleansing of his skin, and with boots and clothing ill-fitting and galling the tenderest spots upon his person.

He is then, from the filthiness of his body, exposed all day to the venomous attacks of flies, which he fights with hands and feet, but which, from the exigencies of his work, he can only drive off for the slighest moment, after which a cloud of them settle upon his face and exposed parts and sting him severely.

He works on from hour to hour in the broiling sun without water to moisten his mouth or to quench his raging thirst until midday, when he rushes home, swallows a drink of dirty water and hastily eats a dinner in the foulest-smelling and worst ventilated part of his premises.

The afternoon is like the forenoon, and after this has been occupied in the same way, the man, all foul with gathered dust and sweat, eats his evening meal as he dined, and lies down to rest(?), if he can, on a filthy floor, in an apartment that it hot, close and swarming with flies, which he vainly fights as he catches an odd wink or so of sleep.

And so, de novo, from day to day, he fights it out on this line all summer. Then how much of the resulting wear and tear is due to the worry and how little of it to the work?

Something like this is the weary condition of the average farm horse. No note is taken of the cruel lashings, the over-working, the injudicious feeding and watering, the torment of check-reins, the hindrances of blinders, the bad treatment of the feet by the blacksmith and other mistakes which produce actual disease, nor of the truly horrible nostrums and poisonous stuff which are made use of as "remedies" for these complaints.

Thinking of all these things, who can wonder that the average farm horse, whose useful life is naturally twenty-five to thirty-five years, gets into a hole in the corner of the farm and is consumed by prowling dogs in less than half his allotted term of life.—New York Tribune.

White Clover for Sheep.

From the Farm, Field and Fireside.

Sheep delight in short grass, and graze very close to the ground. It is an old remark that a sheep would starve in the midst of a fine, tall, luxuriant pasture. It is fond of the short, tender herbage, and carefully traverses every portion of the pasture in order to make such selection. But few farmers have considered the importance of providing a special pasture for sheep. Every farmer who keeps sheep necessarily has a good pasture, but every farmer does not possess a pasture suitable for sheep. As care is given the selection of grasses for cattle and horses, it should also be done in the case of sheep. There is no grass better for that purpose than white clover. It is hardier than the red variety and grows upon soil that can not support the other. In many places it comes up voluntarily, crowding out less disirable grasses, and is highly relished by all classes of stock. It is richer in some respects than the red variety, and although not so well adapted for a hay crop is an excellent grass when mowed and stored in the barn as hay. Sheep, like cattle, perfer the richest and most nutritious food they can procure, and reject that, at times, which is hard and woody in growth. White clover is not easily destroyed, nor is it injured greatly by the feet of animals. It is the best grass for the sheep pasture, but should be seeded down if it is to be of the right kind. In connection with white clover several other grasses may be sown, but the clover will doubtless supplant them, while at the same time a mixed pasture is more desirable. Where a pasture is not composed of mixed grasses the best single grass is the white clover, but in order to derive the best results from it the clover should be allowed to make a good stand before turning on the sheep.

Brood Mares.

A correspondent of an English paper gives the following sensible advice to purchasers of brood mares. They should commence their inspection at the ground and work upward. This is a good plan, as sometimes a buyer is attracted by a showy-topped animal with a fine symmetrical outline, and is so facinated that he neglects the more important points—the feet and legs. A brood mare should be young and vigorous; her constitution not impaired by continuous years of excessive toil and hard feeding. It is next to impossible to find a horse possessing as many good qualities and as few bad ones as one would wish, but it is well to remember that a mare should be free from all hereditary diseases to be suitable for breeding purposes.

Big Doses of Physic.

The southern negro does not take kindly to the pellets of the homeopathist. He believes in the largest doses of the old-school practice, and will toss off a tumberful of castor-oil with a smack of the lips. Even a glass of salts and senna will be swallowed with gusto, while a bolus is taken without a moment's hesitation. An Englishman, who hunted in the Soudan says that nothing gives an African savage greater pleasure than a good dose of medicine. He found his medicine-chest more useful in making the negroes friendly than his revolver and breech-loading rifle.

But the medicine must be strong and rapid in its effects. For the savage is too impatient to wait several hours for the medicine to operate, and too much influenced by his sight and taste to be satisfied with a small dose. He is never so happy as when he has taken a good dose of croton-oil and colocynth, or four or five grains of tartar emetic.

Holloway's pills were as popular in the Soudan as in London, and the sportsman found that the more liberal he was with these powerful cathartics, the more willing were the natives to serve him. Whenever he opened his medicine-chest the natives respected him as a great "medicine-man." The more he physicked them, the better they liked it. But willing as they were to be doctored internally, not one of them would submit to an operation with the knife.

Wheat Harvest in California.

California, having, like the tropical countries, only two seasons, is peculiarly adapted to the culture of wheat in its interior valleys. The valley of the San Joaquin with the Sacramento furnishes some of the largest wheat fields in the United States, being rivalled only by those of the Red River Valley. The soil is what is called "adobe," which when wet becomes very sticky, and on drying becomes like stone. Roads almost impassable in the wet season become in summer as hard and smooth, as the finest macadamized roads. Crops other than wheat cannot be raised except by irrigation. As the wheat is fully grown by the time the dry season commences, it is very nice to have the grain ripened sufficiently dry for threshing at the time it is cut. Combined machines for cutting and threshing wheat at the same time are increasing in number very fast.

On reaching a grain field one's attention is drawn to an object which has an appearance similar to a house of small size moving by its own power through the field, which stretches as far as one can see in all directions. On its near approach it is found that instead of moving by its own force it is propelled by twenty very large mules, which were hidden behind its huge proportions. The mules are fastened in two lines, ten abreast, to long whiffle-trees attached to a heavy timber, at the back end of which is the wheels which steers the machine. As one sits on top of the machine and looks behind he sees the ears and backs of the mules, and it seems much like putting the cart before the horse, a habit the people have here. The pilot sits in front of the wheel steering, and the sensation to a passenger is as if at sea, except as the crack of the whip warns some laggard mule to move faster.

Close to the knives stands a man who raises or lowers them according as the grain is tall or not, as all that is wanted is to cut just below the heads. Passing by an endless belt the heads are carried to the cylinder or picket; the grain is threshed, and through a set of sieves is cleaned and sent along by a set af scoops to the sack-sewer, who fills the sacks. Then sewing them; they are ready for market, and sliding down an inclined plane lie ready for the wagon, on which they are carried to a pile of other sacks all ready to be hauled to market. As the price at present is very low, only $1.35 per cental, mamy farmers will leave the grain in the fields for many weeks, knowing that there is no danger of rain. This immunity from wet makes the farmers (or as they are called here, ranchers) careless, and many show the inprovident way af the country by leaving a machine which cost $2,000 without cover through the winter. As these machines weigh three or four tons each, their use is only possible in a country where the soil bakes hard like a pavement. To give a minute description of one of these machines would trespass to much on your columns, but this may give a general idea.—Stockton, Cal., Corsespondence of the Hartford Courant.

An Old Sea Captain's Romance.

There is now stopping at the Hotel Vendome in this city, writes the Boston correspondent of the Hingham (Mass.) Journal, one of the most remarkable characters connected with New England commerce since the war of 1812. I refer to Captain Maxwell. Had Marryatt come across him he would have found a legitimate subject for a three-volume novel, which would have made Mudie's fortune. Captain Maxwell is now fully 90 years of age, and is the loving object of care by a sister. His fortune is immense, and this word in the proper vernacular means much. A native of Maine, he was wed to the life of a seaman, and in time he reached the elevation of master. I knew him forty years ago, when he was comparatively an old man, but he was a splendid specimen of physical perfection, and he must have been more than that twenty years previous. There is no romance without a love story and no love story without a woman.

The Pattens of Bath were the great ship-builders of Maine sixty years ago. Captain Maxwell was in their employ. The females of the Patten family for generations had been noted beauties, but they were as eccentric as beautiful. Captain Maxwell, in the pride of his vigorous manhood, made love to one of these beauties, and was rejected. By the way, the marriage ties formed by the Patten girls were not always of the pleasantest kind. One married Jarvis Slade, of the well known firm of Lawrence, Stone & Slade, the great dry goods commission merchants, which went down in the financial crash of 1857-58. Another, and an equal beauty, married Wildes P. Walker, whose business and finacial record in Boston and New York were very well known. After Captain Maxwell was rejected he became soured and turned his attention to accumulating wealth. For a long time he lived in Charlestown, in the most penurious manner, till his mind gave way, and to-day he is a complete imbecile, a wreck; and yet when he dies the bank records and the safety vaults of State street will have to proclaim him one of the richest, if not the richest, man in Boston. I have an idea that his investments are different from most of the so-called millionaires who have died within twenty years. The shrinkage in most of the reputed wealth of deceased men is attributable to investments which they could take care of, but, left to executors or trustees, dwindles fearfully. Captain Maxwell's wealth might belong to the family of hereditary monarchs. It is so invested that no financial panic can shake it, and yet, looking at the Captain Maxwell of sixty years ago and the Captain Maxwell of to-day, who would accept the change at the price of all his ducats?

Dr. Edwin Shippen, acting as the representative of his fellow-surgeons in the navy, has had a beautiful brass tablet, 3½ by 2½ feet, cut by a firm in Philadelphia for erection in the village church at Culpepper, Va. The tablet bears the following inscription: "James Markham Ambler, passed assistant surgeon U. S. Navy, died on the banks of the Lena river, during the memorable retreat of the ship's company of the U. S. Arctic steamer Jeannette, in the year 1881. His sense of duty was stronger than his love of life. In memory of his noble example and heroic death this tablet is erected by the medical officers of the United States Navy."

The Old "Circuit Riders."

Among the memories of the West of forty years ago, no figures loom up with more prominence than those of the "circuit riders." They are almost extinct now, but at that time they were mighty men who went about in the name of the Lord and John Wesley, and smote the children of Belial hip and thigh, with many a goodly stroke. Their memory has been handed down, mostly of tall, gaunt men, with straggling locks, nasal voices and meagre purses, allowed defects neither in education nor surroundings to interfere with the energetic prosecutions of their chosen work. Regardless of fatigue and hunger they journeyed through "blazed" paths in the forests and by dead reckoning over treeless prairies, preaching and praying. They stopped not for storm or torrent, or the roughs or the heathen, but went on enduring to the end. The grass by the wayside fed their shabby ponies and gave a place of rest to their weary limbs. A Bible was often their sole property, and the succulent corn dodger formed their staff of life. They were the newspapers and physicians, both of body and soul, in that rude time.

When the iron horse commenced assisting empire on its westward way, and affording men better oppotunities for dodging their creditors, the circuit-rider's fame began to fade. Fleeing toward the setting sun did no good—with the railroad their glory departed forever. People ceased to care for circuit preaching. It was not the rider's fault. He had not changed. His audiences had, however. In the old days the pioneers were of a different stamp from now—brave, hardy men, who went on in the van of civilization, seemingly for the pleasure of going, for, having toiled and suffered to improve a country, they moved on to commence the struggle over. These were the material for the circuit rider's ministrations; men who took their religion as they did their whiskey—straight.

True, there are missionaries to-day who go out on the world's edge, backed by a comfortable home-mission fund, to preach to waiting audiences of Eastern people who have been lured West by enterprising railway companies and the advance guard of real-estate agents. The towns grow up so quickly as to be able soon to support permanent pastors. Permanency would have been unendurable to the circuit rider. So perhaps it is just as well that he is dead. When the rider was in his glory, meetings were held anywhere, houses, barns or the open air doing duty as churches, though these were built as soon as possible. The great extent of country covered by the average made his visits ofttimes like those of angels, and his coming was a great event among the people, who would assemble at an early hour. The waiting time was passed pleasantly in various ways; the women gossipping and knitting, while the men swapped yarns and horses, while some one watched for the parson. When the latter hove in sight, the waiting, watchful brother struck up some such hymn as "Alas! and did my Savior bleed," and gossip and business ceased for the moment. Then came the sermon—a marval of matter and delivery, strongly impregnated with brimstone, and withal a little molasses; a true "hickory sermon," plain and practical, in which the little failings of the auditors were plainly noted and the consequence marked. After this there was a little friendly social discourse, perhaps a brief stay, and then on to the next little' flock.

The riders were autocratic in their ways, and held in fear neither man nor Satan. They worked for almont nothing and boarded themselves; hence they had rights which their people were bound to respect, and exercised them.

In addition to the mania of local hoodlums for disturbing meetings, the riders had to contend with boys whose parents were of the Dunkard faith, who were hostile to the Methodists, and, if anything, encouraged the youths in disorder. Many fierce contests, both of words and blows, between the rivals are on record, wherein the riders usually triumphed. A famous man to disturb was Elder Finlay, a preacher of much note in his day, who once wrote a book in prose on the descent of the Indians from the ten tribes of Israel. He was quick of wit as well as strong of voice and limb, and at times could make things very interesting. Once, while holding services in a picturesque locality, known as Hog Creek, his discourse was interrupted by some juvenile roughs. Said he with much emphasis, "I want those Hog Creek shoats to shut up!" The shoats were abashed and kept silence for a moment and then the racket recommenced. Then, without more ado, the elder shook out his long white hair, and stepping into the aisle pointed out the shrinking culprits, and addressed the local guardian of the peace next: "Constable, I want you to take those Hog Creek shoats out and pen them up!" Then the officer fell upon them and the Hog Creek shoats were duly collared, locked up in the Hog Creek pen and left to kick at its oaken walls until morning, while the elder, having disposed of the Amalekites, went on to portray the pleasing difference between glory and the other place.

Rude as these men were, they did much that was good; indeed, all they did was meant for good. They were breaking-up ploughs of religion and education, and as such, and for what they did and suffered deserve to be remembered kindly.—Brooklyn Eagle.

A correspondent says that Barnum did more for Shakespeare's home than any living man. This sounds passing strange, but it is true. If it had not been for Barnum the birthplace of the great bard would not be in a state of preservation as it is to-day. When Barnum was in England in 1847 in search of curiosities, he learned that Shakespeare's birthplace was for sale and it was proposed to tear it down and put a store on the site. The great showman thought he saw a chance to secure a prize, and at once offered what was equivalent to $13,000 for the house. His idea was to bring the structure bodily to America, and put it on exhibition. The owner of the house wanted $15,000 for the property, and struck at that price. Before Barnum had a chance to raise his offer, several Englishmen, admirers of the immortal William, concluded it would be a shame for the house to go out of Stratford, and accordingly purchased it at once.

It is estimated that Phil Armour, of Chicago, cleared a million dollars in his recent pork deal.

Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Publisher.

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

The number of arrivals during the year ending with June 30, was 509,884, which is 82,490 less than during the preceding year, and 260,586 less than during the year ending with June, 1882, in which the tide reached high-water mark. Though immigration continues to fall off, the new-comers are sufficient in number for healthy assimilation with our people and institutions. An excess is quite as much to be deplored as a brief suspension of immigration for a brief period.

The last spike of the Union Pacific and Central Pacific Railways was driven at Ogden, Utah, only fifteen years ago on the 12th of last May, and the railway mileage of the United States was then less than 44,000 miles, whereas Poor's Manual for 1883, recently issued, gives the mileage at the end of that year as 120,552 miles. The vastness of the railway traffic is expressed in the statement that in addition to 312,688,641 passengers, the roads carried 400,453,489 tons of freight, or eight tons per capita of population, at an average rate of only 1.24 cents per ton.

The agricultural department's latest estimate of the wheat crop to the first of the present month is given as 485,000,000 bushels. The average is estimated at 37,000,000 to 38,000,000. At 13 bushels to the acre this would give a crop of 494,000,000. But in reality the highest average of late years was in 18,79, which was 13.08 bushels; while the lowest was 10.10 bushels in 1881. Last year the average was 11¼ bushels. If the average this year be 12¼ bushels, it would make the crop of 1884 475,000,000 or 485,000,000 bushels, which would be a fair crop. The trouble, however, is that the crop is not so remunerative to the farmer by nearly $100,000,000 as that of last year on account of low prices, and it is this last fact that promises to unfavorably affect the business and general industries of the country.

A dispatch from St. Petersburg states that the "Russian government has issued a circular to the principals of the schools in Russia, holding them responsible for any revolutionary tendencies their scholars may have, and enjoining them to maintain strict supervision over their pupils in order to dissipate the slightest flavor of nihilistic sentiments." By nihilistic sentiments is meant anything that impairs public acquiescence in the present form of despotic government that prevails in Russia, or anything that favors a government "of the people, by the people and for the people," such as we have in the United States, or even a constitutional monarchy. And yet there are snobbish aristocrats in the United States who never tire of extolling "the mild and beneficent reign of the czar of all the Russias."

It is said that one day in this month wheat in Chicago reached the lowest point known in the United States for years, 79 cents per bushel. It was down the same day to $1.04 in Liverpool, the lowest point ever known there in the memory of man. If the lowest point is reached at Liverpool ever known in the memory of man, corresponding low prices are to be expected in other grain markets of the world. The Liverpool market is overstocked, the prospect for a good harvest throughout Europe was never better, and the increase in the product of India has been enormous. There seems be no present remedy for this disagreeable fact by producers, save withholding wheat from the market, and that is attended with risk. But the future can be made brighter by diversifying the products of the farm.

It appears by a supplement of the London Gazette that in February, 1883, the amount of unclaimed legacies in England was seventy-seven million, six hundred and ninety-three thousand, seven hundred and sixty-nine pounds, an increase of more than twelve million pounds—some three hundred and eighty million dollars of our money. The increase in ten years, much more than twelve million pounds, is particularly observable. The list of legatees embraces more than six thousand names, those of all ranks in public and private life, of all social conditions, and has been constantly increasing in volume. At length, after much persuasion, the Chancery Court of England has turned over a new leaf in its long book of dilatoriness. It has appointed an experienced gentleman, Sir George Kellner, a man of financial ability, to prepare the list for 1887. He is to give the exact amounts to which the several legatees are entitled, and is to determine and find those who are entitled to the locked-up treasure, [illegible]

THE PITH OF THE NEWS.

Washington News.

R. F. Crowell of Minnesota is mentioned as Judge Ela's successor.

The free delivery system will be established Oct. 1 at Elgin, Ill., five carriers; La Crosse, Wis., five carriers; San Jose, Cal., five carriers; Sioux City, Iowa, four carriers; Sedalia, Mo., five carriers; Fort Worth, Tex., five carriers; Eau Claire, Wis., five carriers.

Dr. Nagle, registrar of the bureau of vital statistics, has received from the navy department a certified copy of Lieut. Greely's report on the execution of Henry. On the authority of this report the record in the bureau has been changed to read: "Shot by order of Lieut. Greely."

The secret service division is in possession of a new counterfeit $10 note on the Third National bank of Cincinnati. It is of the series of 1882, with a chocolate-colored back. The vignettes on the face of the note have a coarse, scratchy appearance, but the back is well executed and calculated to deceive.

Judge Jacob A. Ela, auditor of the treasury for the postoffice department, has died of erysipelas. Judge Ela served two terms in congress from New Hampshire. Mr. Ela's death occurred at the Whitney place, near the Soldiers' Home, where he and his wife were spending the summer. The cause was erysipelas, for which he had been suffering about a week. His remains will be taken to Rochester N. H., for interment.

The postmaster general to-day annulled the government contract with P. W. Kellogg of Springfield, Mass., for furnishing official dead-letter and registered package envelopes and tags. This action is based upon the recent investigation made by the postmaster general himself, who says he found the envelopes of inferior quality and not up to the standard contracted for. The contract amounted to $80,000. A further examination of the stationery of the postoffice is to be made.

Dr. Salmon, of the United States agricultural department, reports that the outbreak of pleuro-pneumonia among Jersy herds in Illinois is the most serious that has occurred in a long time, and that there is danger of extermination of the Jersey cattle throughout the West. He is endeavoring to trace the origin of the disease, and has been authorized by the department to use all leagal means to exterminate the scourge. It would seem that, in view of the gravity of the situation, it would not be amiss for neighboring states to begin to consider the subject of quarantine.

Record of Casualties.

Mrs. P. Jameson of Rock Island, was trampled by a herd of frightened cattle, receiving fatal injuries.

Near Albion, N. Y., seven boys, Fred Taylor, Willie Taylor, Judson Bunn, Edward Swaim, M. Garrett and Will Ford, were drowned by a boat capsizing.

E. M. Lewis, president of the Farmers' and Mechanics' Bank of Philadelphia, was stricken with paralysis Wednesday night, and is considered beyond recovery. Mr. Lewis was the assignee in bankruptcy of the Jay Cooke estate, and in 1881 was appointed one of the directors of the Reading railroad.

The Criminal Calendar.

Nicholas Good, a well-known resident of Oil City, forty years of age, shot himself in the region of the heart.

A colored man of Madison, Ind., who married a white girl has been sent to the penitentiary for miscegenation.

Edward Conkling, aged seventy years, has been arrested at Hannibal, Mo., for ravishing an eleven-year-old girl.

Albert M. Ham, a traveling salesman for John Ulrich, a wholesale grocer, committed suicide at Decatur, Ill., by shooting himself through the heart.

Inquiry into the history of Green McCullough, who was hanged by vigilantes in Texas on the night of the 19th inst., reveals a record of a series of eight bloody murders in which McCullough has figured as "getting the drop" on his victims.

A Boonesville, Mo., special says Frank James has arrived here to stand trial on charge of complicity in the Otterville train robbery on the Missouri Pacific in 1876. The case will be called shortly. It is said the defense will move for a continuance.

Three suicides occurred in St. Louis, Tuesday morning. J. S. Jones, a Kansas City dry goods clerk, took morphine and died at the Everett house. Edward Groker, aged seventy-three, shot himself through the body and died instantly. Frank Bliss entered Tony Faust's saloon, poured two ounces of morphine into a glass of water and drank it, dying in an hour.

Thomas Murphy, a mechanic employed at the Smith Middling purifier, at Jackson, Mich., lately in bad health, became excited recently at thinking there were burglars in the house, and attacked his wife with a slender-pointed pair of shears. He stabbed her five times. One wound through the throat severed the arteries, and the unfortunate woman bled to death in ten minutes.

The body of a man with a bullet through the abdomen was found at Little Falls, N. J., under the bridge. A paper in his pocket shows his name to be Samuel Lasner and states that he is fleeing from murderers. A pistol, one chamber empty, was found in the top of a neighboring tree. Murder is suspected, as there were indications of a scuffle and the body was dragging in the vicinity. Lasner is a Jewish rabbi, and judging from the contents of his pocket, belonging to Chicago.

At Brattleboro, Vt., Miss Ella Ames, a very lovely young woman, employed in Bunting's large shoe factory as forewoman, attempted to commit suicide by taking poison but was saved by the stomach pump. She admitted that William Bunting, her employer, had led her astray shortly after she entered his factory, and that by threats he had forced her to submit to his desires ever since. When he heard she was about to be married, he made threats against her which she says drove her to attempt suicide. The case creates great excitement, as Bunting is a man of family and one of the leading manufacturers of New England. Miss Ames has hitherto bore a good reputation.

Miscellaneous News Notes.

Anthony Wolder, a preacher executed at Marshall, Tex., preached his own funeral sermon in the jail.

Property of the Sprague Manufacturing company which two years ago cost $2,000,000 sold at Augusta, Me., for $200,000.

A special act gives Simpson Harris of North Carolina a pension of $50 a month for services rendered in 1814. He is 104 years old.

The solar heat on Monday is reported to have baked apples in the open air at 105 deg., near Eagle Bridge, Mass. Numerous prostrations occurred at Dover, N. H.

Another order of arrest was obtained in the superior court of New York, against Ferdinand Ward, in the suit against Ward, U. S. Grant, U. S. Grant, Jr., James D. Fish and William C. Smith, by William H. Bingham, a broker, to recover $48,000.

J. I. Case is said to have been offered $45,000 by New York parties for Jay-Eye-See. He has telegraphed the Turf, Field and Farm, however, to withdraw the horse from sale, adding, "I wish to keep the best." He also denies any knowledge of the alleged offer of $100,000 by a syndicate called the Jay Eye See crowd, for Maud S. [illegible]

Gov. [illegible] of Tennessee has been asked to issue a proclamation offering a reward for the [illegible] of the men who killed the Mormon proselyters on Cane Creek. Elder Roberts declares [illegible] local authorities will probably pass a law making it a punishable offense for convicts to be brought within corporate limits.

[illegible]

At Keokuk, Iowa, the Law and Order league caused the seizure of a stock of liquors belonging to John S. Wolf, under the prohibitory law now in effect. The liquors were being sold under the name of "mum" and tea. After several postponements the case came to trial, and after some days' legal wrangling, the case went to the jury. They returned their verdict, which in effect declares the fluid to be wine, beer and whisky, which, when seized, was kept by the defendant for the purpose of being sold in violation of chapter 6, title 11, of the code of Iowa. The defendant appealed to the district court.

Personal Points.

Mr. H. C. Barnett, renominated by the Georgia democrats for secretary of state, is ninety years old, and has held his present office since 1843.

John Leisemang died at Philadelphia. He was a well-known engineer, president of several coal companies and a presidential elector on the Republican ticket.

H. B. Norton of Dallas, Tex., attracts considerable attention at Waukesha, Wis., having allowed his hair and beard to remain uncut in keeping with a vow to never shave or cut his hair until Henry Clay was elected president.

Commander Schely, of the Greely relief expedition, stated privately that the remains of the late Edward Israel of Kalamazoo, meteorologist of the Lady Franklin bay expedition, were intact. The relatives did not allow them to be exhumed.

John C. Calhoun, nephew of the great nullifier, was married four years ago to a young lady in St. Louis, whom he left after a few months, she going to the Sisters of Charity. Now John has returned to his wife and a reunification has occurred.

The marriage of Francis Stout of New York to Miss Emily Meredith Read, daughter of Gen. J. Meredith Read, ex-minister to Greece, at the residence of the latter, was an exceptionally brilliant affair. Both parties have distinguished ancestry and high station.

Gen. Leroy Pope Walker, dead at Nashville, was first secretary of war in the Jefferson Davis Confederate cabinet, and gave the order for firing on Fort Sumter. He was president of the constitutional convention of 1875 which framed the present state constitution of Albama.

Mrs. Kate Smuskey of Belle Plaine, N. Y., is lying at death's door, having, according to her father's solemn assertion, abstained from food for 160 days. She occasionally takes a little water in her mouth, but does not swallow it as it causes convulsions. She is terribly emaciated. She recognizes her callers and carries on conversation with them, and is perfectly conscious. Her body is in constant motion, so much so that the bed upon which she lies has to be supported for fear that it will fall to pieces by the constant vibration.

Nuggets of Foreign News.

Postmaster General Fawcett of Great Britain has informed the various steamship companies that the present arrangements for carrying the mails to New York will be continued another year.

The infant duke of Albany is to be christened at Osborne before the queen leaves for Scotland. The prince of Wales and the crown prince of Germany are to be godfathers and the queen will be godmother.

A London dispatch says: Salvation army riots occurred recently at Worthing, the disturbance being so great that the riot act was read. Dragoons from Brighton were ordered to Worthing, and succeeded in dispersing the assailants of the Salvation army. Several arrests were made.

An Ottawa special says that in a few days Sir David MacPherson, minister of the interior, will leave for the Northwest in great pomp, and be accompanied by a large retinue of servants, the majority of whom will be government officials. After visiting the Northwest he will probably resign his portfolio, now that he has been knighted, the height of his ambition.

The Pall Mall Gazette says: "China will not issue a declaration of war, but will inform France and the neutral powers that she will regard a repetition of the Kelung incident or any attack on Chinese territory, as an 'ipso facto' declaration of war. China will ask the other powers, and especially England, to be strictly neutral. The English colony at Hong Kong has been the base of operations against Tonquin. China expects that in case of a French attack the English colonists will be warned and their duties as neutrals quite sustained. The Chinese will immediately cross the southern frontier and invade Tonquin."

Found a Pass.

Omaha, Special Telegram:—News has been received that the Burlington & Missouri road has found a tunnel on the Greeley, Salt Lake & Pacific road, at Dart pass, northwest of Caribou, Col. This pass is the lowest and most feasible for a railroad over the range for a distance of seventy miles north and south. The Burlington & Missouri have a force of men at work in the tunnel, and have cut over ten miles of timber on the grade of the Utah, Salt Lake & Pacific, and will have the line cleared from Rollinsville to the tunnel, and ready for the graders in a short time, and will then push westward.

St. Vincent Happy.

St. Vincent, Minn., Special Telegram:—After a suspension of two months the Manitoba will resume the running of trains into St. Vincent on the 25th, giving the town the same railroad privileges it had before the petition for the removal of the custom house. The rescinding of the petition has been the means of getting the road back and the question of removing the custom house will, it is to be presumed, never again cause St. Vincent any trouble.

The Mutilated Arctic Dead.

New York Special: The secretary of the navy and the secretary of war have been in consultation at the navy yard, Brooklyn, with Commander Schley, concerning the Greely relief expedition. From them the following statement relative to the recent reports of the treatment of bodies of the dead of the Greely polar expedition is derived: From revelations made by exposing some of the bodies, inferences have been drawn that incisions have been made in all bodies, and that portions of the flesh have been used either for food or for bait for catching shrimps. The following authentic extract from Commander Schley's report, now being prepared for the secretary of the navy, shows a portion of the remains to have been so treated; but that of those of Lieut. Lockwood, Sergeant Israel, Sergeant Linn, Private Schneider, Sergeant Cross and the Eskimo Christianson, were absolutely whole and untouched. Extract: "In preparing the bodies of the dead for transportation at St. John's, it was found that the bodies of six of them (Lieut. Kislingbury, Sergeant Jewell, Private Whistler, Private Henry, Private Ellis and Sergeant Ralston) had been cut and the fleshy parts removed to a greater or less extent. All the other bodies were intact."

Market Reports.

St. Paul—Wheat, No. 1 hard, 95; No. 2, 70c.
Corn, No. 2, 52c; No. 3, 45c.
Oats, No. 2 mixed, 28c; No. 3 white, 27c.
Barley, No. 2, 55c; No. 3 extra, 45c; No. 3, 40c.
Rye, No. 2, 54c.
Baled Hay, wild, $7.00; timothy, $12.00.
Eggs, 12@13c.
Milwaukee—Wheat, No. 2, 78c.
Corn, No. 2, rejected, 49@50c.
Oats, No. 2 white, new, 34c; old, 37c.
Rye, No. 1, [illegible]
Barley, No. 2, old 60c.
Mess Pork, $16.50 [illegible]
Lard, $7 [illegible]
Butter, choice creamery, 20@23c; fair to good, 17@19c; best dairy, 15@16c.
Eggs, 15@16c.
Chicago—Wheat, No. 2 Chicago spring, [illegible]
[illegible]

WHEAT GRADES AND PRICES.

New Inspection Rules at Duluth—Prices and Grades Fixed at Winona.

SOUTH.

At a meeting of grain operators, held in Huff's hotel, in Winona, on Monday, all dealers on the Winona & St. Peter, Southern Minnesota and the River division of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, were represented. It was determined to adopt the Minneapolis standard prices on hard wheat, and the Chicago standard of prices on soft varities of wheat, barley and seeds. The fact was brought out that there is no smut in hard wheat this year. It was decided to make the price of hard wheat five cents per bushel more than No. 1 soft wheat. The following grades were established for wheat and barley:

No. 1 hard wheat must be Scotch Fife.

No. 1 regular wheat may be hard and soft wheat mixed, weighing fifty-eight pounds, and must be reasonably clean.

No. 2 consists of the best varieties of soft wheat.

No. 3 consists of soft wheat containing more or less smut.

No. 1 barley must be free from stain, sound, plump and free from other grain.

No. 2 barley may be slightly stained, but must be sound, plump and free from other grain.

No. 3 barley may be considerably stained, but sound, plump and reasonably free from other grain.

No. 4 barley must be sound and healthy, but may be deeply stained, and may contain more or less oats.

NORTH.

Following is the substances of the inspection rules at Duluth:

No. 1 Hard Spring Wheat—Must be sound, well cleaned and weigh not less than 58 pounds to the measured bushel, and be composed mostly of Scotch Fife wheat.

No. 1 Northern Spring—Be sound, well cleaned, weighing not less than 58 pounds to the bushel and be composed of hard and soft varieties.

No. 1 Spring—Be sound, well cleaned and weigh 58 pounds to the bushel.

No. 2 Hard Spring—Be sound and reasonably clean, composed mostly of Scotch Fife wheat and weigh 56 pounds to the bushel.

No. 2 Northern spring—Be sound, reasonably clean and weigh not less than 56 lbs to the bushel and be composed of hard and soft varieties of wheat.

No. 2 Spring—Be sound and reasonably clean and weigh 56 lbs to the bushel.

No. 3 Spring—Comprises all wheat fit for warehousing and not good enough for No. 2, weighing not less than 52 lbs to the bushel.

Rejected Spring—Comprises all wheat fit for arehousing but too low in weight or otherwise for No. 3. All wheat slightly damp will be reported as "no grade," with inspector's notations as to quality and condition. All wheat in heating condition, or too damp be considered safe for warehousing, or has any considerable admixture of foreign grain or seeds or badly bin-burt, whatever grade it might otherwise be, is pronounced "condemned," with inspectors' notions as to quality and condition. Rice wheat will in no case be inspected higher than rejected. Wheat containing any mixture, however light, of rice wheat (sometimes termed goose wheat, or "California"), shall be graded rejected however high it might otherwise grade. No. 1 and No. 2 Northern spring are new grades here. No. 1 and No. 2 hard rules are closer drawn than before. There is no change in winter wheat rules.

Pleuro Pneumonia in Illinois.

The Chicago Breeder's Gazette says: At last the unwelcome truth is forced upon us that contagious pleuro-pneumonia has found a lodgement in the prairies of Illinois. The evidence of its baleful presence in not less than five Jersey herds in Illinois is overwhelming, and grave fears are felt that the extent of the infection has only dawned upon us. In view of those developments the following order has been issued:

Department of Agriculture, Washington, Aug. 20, 1884.—To the cattle Owners of the United States: Owing to the existence of a disease supposed to be pleuro-pneumonia, in several herds of Jersey cattle in the State of Illinois, I hereby request owners of all herds of Jersey cattle in the United States, into which new animals have been introduced since Jan. 1, to stop the shipments of cattle until after Oct. 1. The disease seems to have been introduced by animals sold at Virginia, Cass county, Ill., in February, 1884, and these animals were widely distributed throughout the Western States. It is hoped, therefore, that persons owning cattle tracing to this sale, and all others having cattle affected with disease of the lungs, will at once communicate with Dr. De Salmon, chief of the bureau of animal industry, care of Breeder's Gazette, Chicago, and clearly state the condition of these herds, and the symptoms of disease. The attention of owners of cattle and railway and other transportation companies is called to section 7 of the act establishing the bureau of animal industry, which makes it a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not less than $100 nor more than $5,000, or by inprisonment of not more than one year, or both, for shipping cattle with a contagious, infectious, or communicable disease, and especially the disease known as pleuro-pneumonia, from one state or territory into another. The condial co-operation of the state authorities and all persons interested in the welfare of our cattle industries is earnestly desired, in order to avert a danger which menaces the herds of the country.

[Signed] GEORGE B. LORING,
Commissioner of Agriculture.

Death of Hon. Grove B. Cooley at Minneapolis.

Hon. Grove B. Cooley of Minneapolis, Minn., died on Wednesday last. Mr. Cooley was born at Utica, N. Y., Dec. 10, 1827, and was therefore nearly fifty-seven years of age. In 1848 he began the study of law at Canandaigua, and two years later moved to Wisconsin, where he was a professor in Ripon college from 1853 to 1858, teaching the dead languages and the higher branches of mathematics. In the autumn of 1858 he removed to Minnesota and located at Mantorville, Dodge county, where he engaged in the practice of law. He was elected to the legislature in the fall of 1871, and was chairman of the judiciary committee in the house. During his period of residence in Mantorville he was for two years the law partner of Judge A. J. Edgerton, now of Dakota, and four years the partner of Hon. Samuel Lord, afterward circuit judge and now deceased. He removed to Minneapolis immediately following the expiration of his term of office in the house of representatives in 1872, and entered into partnership with Thomas Lowry, and subsequently served several years as judge of the municipal court. Judge Cooley was prominent in the Masonic order. He was made a Master Mason in the Ripon lodge in 1856, and at the time of his death was past grand master and the illustrious grand master of the grand council of the State of Minnesota, past grand secretary of the grand council of Minnesota, and past high priest of St. John's chapter. Few men had more warm friends than did the deceased, and none fewer enemies.

Mrs. Parnell's Mission.

In Boston, a few days ago, Mrs. Parnell of Ireland, held a conference with a number of Catholic bishops and leaders of the Irish National league concerning the means by which the coming political contest in this country could be turned to the advancement of Ireland's cause. It is understood Mrs. Parnell represented her son at the conference. Mrs. Parnell submitted details of a scheme for the benefit of Irish home industry which she stated had been conceived by her son.

Mr. Parnell's proposition was that a direct offer be submitted to the political parties of the United States as follows: If, in accordance with the friendly feeling expressed toward Ireland in America by Americans, one of the political parties will incorporate a plank in its platform in favor of admitting goods of Irish manufacture free of duty, specifying such goods as cannot be manufactured elsewhere than in Ireland, and the importation of which will not complete with American productions, then such party will receive the organized support of the Irish-American vote. Even if direct organization is not made, yet the Irish vote can be directly influenced in favor of the party which shall champion the cause of Irish industry.

Indian Agent McGillicuddy, of the Pine Ridge agency, in a letter to the commissioner of Indian affairs, says that Son-of-No-Water recently attempted to take the agent's life. An article in a cheap publication, saying the Indians had a right to kill McGillicuddy, caused the Indian to make the attempt. He was arrested and held subject to the order of the Indian office. [illegible]

France has reduced her indemnity demand from China to $40,000,000, and threatens [illegible] if it is refused. [illegible]

REPUBLICAN POLITICAL NOTES.

The Irish bolt for Blaine continues at Dubuque.

Connecticut Republicans nominated Henry B. Harrison for governor.

The Dubuque Telegraph, Irish Catholic, has gone back on Cleveland.

At the Dayton soldiers' home investigation, Gen. Patrick exposed correspondence between Gen. Rosecrans and Gen. Franklin showing the investigation was ordered largely to aid the Democratic party this fall.

A. G. Pierce (colored) was nominated at Greenville for congress in the Third Mississippi, or what is known as the "Shoestring" district, by the republicans, defeating Hon. John R. Jefferds, present representative. It is thought ex-Gov. James L. Alcorn will be the Independent republican candidate.

George W. Lucas, president of the Young Men's Democratic club of Dubuque, and also a member of the executive committee of the Cleveland and Hendricks club, sent in his resignation for the reason that he intends to support Blaine and Logan. The club of which he is president, containing 140 young Irishmen, intends to organize into a Blaine and Logan club.

Gen. Grant: The letter of acceptance written by Mr. Blaine is a document which all republicans should take a great deal of pride. I have read it over carefully, and I regard it as one of the most remarkable political papers ever written. It is like the writer, frank and open. It is beyond doubt one of the ablest papers ever given to the public.

A Saratoga special says: Several of the leading financiers of the country have been in secret consulation here during the past few days. They have resolved to trust Blaine through at any cost. A plan of operation has been practically agreed upon, and all the heavy work is to be done in the last twenty days of the campaign.

The New York Herald expressed the following opinion of Governor Cleveland, in its issue of March 3, 1883: Governor Cleveland has cast his lot on the side of the great corporations and corporate manipulators, and staked his chances for futur political preferment on their favor.

There were conventions in all Nebraska congressional districts last week. In the First, at Beatrice, J. M. Weaver was renominated by acclamation; Second, at Hardings, James Laird renominated by 89 votes to 33 votes for Francis L. Burr of Harlan fot presidential elector; Third, at Columbus, G. W. E. Dorsey was nominated on the fourth ballot, after a spirited contest.

General Daniel Sickles, who did effective campaign work for the Democrats four years ago, says that Cleveland is a dead weight on the Democracy, and adds: "I must confess I have little confidence of Democratic success, and certainly, no enthusiasm. How can any Democrat be enthusiastic over Cleveland?"

Smith M. Wood, of New York City, has been officially appointed as one of a star-chamber, dark-lantern committee to conduct the inside management of the Democratic campaign. He is a fit member of such a cabal. He was one of the authors and most active conspirators engaged in the infamous cipher dispatches of 1876-77.

The New York Sun says of Grover Cleveland's letter: It has the merit of comparative brevity, but no other, that we can discern. With this spiritless and ineffectual writing of the feeblest and most unstatesmanlike document that a like occasion of our history has inspired, will it dispel the feeling of disorganization which is abroad, and allay the doubts and the discords that rend the democratic party? Is there anything in it that will gather Grover Cleveland the strength of the party, reconcile its factions, and carry it to victory in this memorable contest? We think not. Grover Cleveland's letter of acceptance is from every point of view an unfortunate production.

John I. Davenport publishes his official report upon the Morey letter forgery, in book form, just in time to remind the country what kind of people the Democratic party continues to entrust with the management of its national campaigns.

"It is a fact"—says the Providence Journal—"that nearly every one—we do not know of a single exception—of the so-called Independent newspapers which now advocate Cleveland as the exemplar and candidate of reform, can be, and has been, quoted as declaring this same Cleveland the ally of monopoly and political corruption, and the enemy of the laboring classes and economical administration, as shown by his course in treating New York legislative bills in 1883. What has happened in one short year to change the opinions of these pretentiously 'independent and impartial' journals we have not been able to discover, that is, so far as concerns reasons and consistency and honor."

Albany Journal's New York Special: I learn from unquestionable authority that Mr. Tilden is far from enthusiastic over Cleveland's nomination. He thinks it was not the part of wisdom to pass over experienced and honored men in the party to try an untried quantity in politics. My informant, who is an intimate friend of Mr. Tilden and his frequent guest, says the democracy is sick at heart over the outlook, and that Mr. Tilden shares in the general apprehension of defeat. The disclosure of Cleveland's weakness with a large body of democrats, and other disclosures concerning the candidate, are having an effect so wide spread and so amazing that the campaign managers are despondent and distressed.

The Irish World, Irish Nation, the Tablet, Freeman's Journal, Weekly Union, United Irishmen of New York, the Catholic Herald of Boston, the Catholic Telegraph of Albany, the Catholic Universe of Cleveland, the Celt and Citizen of Cincinnati, the Chicago Citizen, the Rocky Mountain Celt of Denver, the American Celt of St. Louis, support Blaine. The Catholic Review of Brooklyn, the Catholic Union of Buffalo, the Catholic Mirror of Baltimore, and the Northwestern Chronicle of St. Paul, refuse to support Cleveland and give a quasi-support to Blaine. The only Irish-American journals that support the democratic nominee are the Pilot and Republic of Boston, the Irish American of New York, and the Connecticut Catholic.

Edward McPherson, for many years clerk of the house of representatives, gives Gov. Hendricks' record on war measures while he was in the senate:

Gov. Hendricks served as a senator from Indiana from March 4, 1863, to March 3, 1869. During that period and in the crisis of the war three very important acts were passed by which to raise money and carry on military operations. Two of these were for raising money, and were the tariff act of 1864, and the internal revenue taxation act of 1864. Mr. Hendricks was one of the five Democrats who voted against the former of those measures; and this on the 17th of June, 1864. His colleagues in this voth were Buckalew of Pennsylvania, McDougall of California, Powell of Kentucky, and Richardson of Illinois. Mr. Hendricks was one of the three senators who voted June 6, 1864, against passage through the senate of the internal revenue taxation act of 1864. His colleagues in this vote were Messers. Davis and Powell of Kentucky. Thus he opposed the two great tax measures which passed during his term of service. He also voted against the supplement to the enrolment act passed in February, 1864. This bill he antagonized in every shape. He was one of the ten senators who voted against its original passage through the senate, and one of the sixteen who opposed it when on final passage, after amendment and report by a committee of conference of the two houses. Thus he opposed the only legislation passed oy congress, during his term of service, which proposed to draft men into the service of the United States as the public exigencies should require. He generally antagonized the legislation of the Lincoln administration, and was unrelenting in his hostility to its anti-slavery policy, to the employment of colored troops and the perfection of the civil rights of the colored people.

Col. John P. Sweeney, chairman of the Massachusetts executive committee of the Democratic state central committee, has resigned. He has been an ardent Butler man, which perhaps accounts for his action. Some of the Democratic leaders affect to believe that Butler will not receive more than 12,000 or 15,000 in the state, and that he will draw as largely from Blaine as from Cleveland; but others frankly admit that he will get from 40,000 to 50,000, and that they are votes which would otherwise go for Cleveland. [illegible]

The republicans of the Second Nebraska congressional district nominated James Laird.

MINNESOTA NEWS NOTES.

Superintendent Kiehle has issued a circular of instruction to institute conductors for the fall of 1884. After urging that everything possible be done to promote good and systematic teaching, he announces that the course of study to be found in the "Outlines of Institute Work" will form the basis of the institutes. Reading, writing, spelling, arithmetic, language, hygiene, school management, morals and drawing are commended to be included in the programme of each institute. Appleton's series and Mark Bailey's method are recommended as text books in reading; in language, Mrs. Knox's "How to Speak and Write," and in drawing, "White's Teacher's Assistant." Finally, Prof. Kiehle suggests that displays of school work be made, so that teachers may see what other schools have done.

Articles of incorporation of the Arrow River Mining and Manufacturing Company of Minneapolis were filed with the secretary of state yesterday. The incorporators are W. W. Braden, and J. H. Baker, of St. Paul, John McGuire of Duluth, and Samuel Leavitt and Freeman P. Love, of Minneapolis. The capital stock is $2,500,000, divided into 250,000 shares.

The adjutant general has returned from Duluth, where he went Monday to muster in the Duluth guards. The company has fifty-two members, with E. A. Barnes captain, and O. C. Harbinson first lieutenant.

Hon. Grove B. Cooley, died at Minneapolis on Wednesday. He formerly lived at Mantorville.

At Anoka, the several public opinions seem to have settled with the belief that the fire was not only incendiary, but the object of the criminal was plunder. Already the police have discovered several wagon loads of stolen property. No suffering whatever is reported. Drink seems to be plentiful for all. Mr. Vanderbilt, proprietor of the skating rink, says the story that hostility to him on the part of hoodlums or others was the cause of the incendiarism is utterly without foundation. There were no hand-bills printed as alleged, nor was his family ever spoken of by any one in the public manner reported.

Colben Anderson, living near Benson, Minn., invited a tramp home with him to spend the night. On the way, the evening being cool, the tramp insisted upon Colben giving him his coat, he having none of his own. Upon Colben's refusal he was attacked and shockingly cut about the face, head and neck, the wonder being that he was not killed outright, as was the evident intention of the cutthroat.

The body of Ben Kendleim of Minneapolis was found in the river.

C. A. Pillsbury of Minneapolis, says wheat prices will probably be raised.

The inspection committee of the Minneapolis chamber of commerce decide on new rules for wheat grading.

A disgusting and scandalous report comes from a family, in the north part of the county of Rock, by the name of Tuline. Tuline had made complaint to the county attorney that a man in his employ had committed a rape on his daughter living in the family. Before any arrest could be made, the hired man, on the advice of his friends, left the country, and his present whereabouts are unknown. Since the happening of the above, the young woman has charged Tuline, her father, with the same crime; that he made her submit to his desires by brandishing knives at her.

Minnesota reports to Washington from nearly all of the state speak of crops as excellent, and say they have never known them better. Corn is fully three weeks ahead of last year. Wheat is all of 8 per cent. better than the crop of 1883. Oats, rye and barley are also considerably above a good average, and the two former better than last year. Rye and barley are harvested, and the wheat and oats harvests are now progressing. Timothy hay is lighter than the average, but mostly saved in good condition. Clover is reported as better than the average in quality. Apples and grapes promise better than last year. Sorghum (amber cane), much more forward than 1883, is not equal in condition to what it usually is. Buckwheat falls below the average, though better than last year. The season has not been favorable as usual for potatoes on level lands, though they promise better than last year. They have been more than usually injured by bugs.

Ignatious Donnelly was nominated for Congress from the Third Minnesota district at a convention of the Farmers' Alliance delegates. The vote stood Donnelly 32; W. M. Campbell, Litchfield, 10.

Stanley Waterloo, late managing editor of the St. Louis Globe, Democrat, in connection with J. S. Dickerson, formerly night editor of the St. Paul Pioneer Press and late managing editor of the Minneapolis Evening Journal, are arranging to publish a new evening paper in St. Paul, to be called "The Day." The first number will be issued about Sept. 30. It is to be a two-cent paper.

Bernard McConville of Caledonia township, one of the oldest residents and one of its most respected citizens, died after a lingering illness.

James Scott, colored, has been committed to jail at Wabasha to await the action of the grand jury for assaulting and stabbing Frank Haines with a knife. Haines is lying at the house of his father in a critical condition, but it is thought his injuries will not prove fatal. He was recently released from the asylum for insane at Rochester, and his mind is still considered unsound. It is rumored that there is a woman at the bottom of the difficulty.

Mr. R. C. Judson, secretary of the state agricultural society, in company with Col. Clark Chambers, of the local committee, made a thorough examination of the buildings, track and stalls on the state fair grounds, at Owatonna and has ordered all necessary improvements made. They find, upon investigating the hotels at Owatonna and the preparations made by the boarding houses, that every one intending to attend the fair can be accommodated, as since last year the hotel accommodations have been more than doubled.

The assessors' returns for Mower county show that there are in the country 789 one-year-old horses, 720 two-yeas-old horses, 5,700 horses three years' old and over, 4,617 one-year-old cattle, 2,959 two-year-old cattle, 8,433 cows, 412 other cattle, 113 mules and asses, 7,402 sheep, and 11,994 hogs.

Mrs. Elizabeth Shaw was found dead in her room at Mrs. Frank Kelly's residence on East Fourth street, St. Paul, where she was visiting. She was housekeeper at the American house, and, not feeling well, had gone to Mrs. Kelly's for a day or so to rest. On her person was found $105 in gold, $465 in bills and a bank book showing deposits to the amount of $348.90. Mrs. Shaw was the widow of Col. J. J. Shaw, proprietor of the Merchants hotel from 1860 until about 1873, when he sold out to Col. Allen, the present proprietor.

The Rt. Rev. Anthony Wilson Thorold, D. D., lord bishop of Rochester, one of the oldest sees of England, is expected to spend Sunday, the 24th of August, in St. Paul. He will be the guest of Rev. E. S. Thomas.

A terrible death occurred at Detroit, Becker Co., supposed to be the deadly work of the disgusting pork worm. A family named Heath—husband, wife and two little children—were taken violently ill, and the youngest, about two years old, died in horrible agony. On being interviewed, they say the sausage in question was sold them by a St. Paul firm. They think the sausage healthy, and still continue its sale. Dr. Ehert, the attending physician, is making a careful analysis of the sausage.

At St. Vincent, the Metropolitan hotel and the post office building were burned. R. G. Desantel, the proprietor and manager of the Metropolitan hotel, had an insurance of $4,470 on the building and furniture. He will rebuild at once. Postmaster J. A. Vanstrum had an insurance of $550 on the building alone, and estimates his loss at $500.

The Minnesota & Northwestern is securing right of way through Mower county.

An important arrest was made in Minneapolis by S. G. Seaton, the chief detective of Des Moines, Iowa, who has been employed by the American express company in tracing up the whereabouts of one A. D. Sly, who stole last September the sum of $10,850 from the company, while serving them in the capacity of a driver of their delivery wagon from their office to the railroad depot in the city of St. Joseph, Mo.

Only favorable reports are received from the harvest fields of Northern Dakota and Minnesota. By the close of this week the crops the entire length of the Red River valley will be in shocks. Stacking has already commenced in the southern portion of the territory and is general in Southern Minnesota. The wheat yield in Dakota, as reported by the agents of elevator companies and other grain men who are competent judges, will not exceed the first estimate of sixteen bushels per acre.

Bliss & Elliot, a lumbering firm with an office in the Academy of Music, Minneapolis made a voluntary assignment for the benefit of their creditors, with liabilities at $170,000 and nominal assets at $200,000. The firm consists of A. S. Blake and Dr. A. F. Elliot, but the latter gentleman has been connected with the firm but a limited time. The action which precipitated the assignment was an action brought by the Citizens' bank to recover on a note for $6,000.

At New Ulm Charles Heers of New Ulm and Harry Winters and J. C. Porter, of Mankato, were at work on the public school building, standing on a scaffold thirty-five feet from the ground. Suddenly the scaffold gave way, hurling Heers and Porter to the ground, the former striking a sharp-edged stone, cutting a large gash in the back of his head, beside receiving internal injuries. Porter fell upon some stones, giving him a severe shock.

Mr. E. R. Caine, of the Commercial hotel, at Owatonna, while hunting in company with F. Roskoff, one of Owatonna's best marksmen, while looking for a shot bird in the tall grass received the whole charge of Mr. Roskoff's gun in his face and breast at short range the latter not being aware of his presence. The wounds are not fatal, but he may lose the use of one eye.

Richard Wells, an Englishman about twenty years of age, who has been in this country only two or three years, was accidentally shot and killed by his companion and friend, Mr. Frostbie, in Fox Lake, Minn. Frostbie tripped his foot and fell, and as he went down his gun was accidentally discharged, the entire volley taking effect in his companion's head, and killing him almost instantly.

Near Lansing, a number of calves have been lost by a mysterious disease called bloody murrain. The calves are taken sick and die, some within sixteen hours, there being no cure. The disease is contagious.

A soldier of the war of 1812, Mr. Isaac De Courcey, died in Faribault, at the home of his granddaughter, Mrs. Ray.

Peter McClosky of Carrollsville lost his barn and granary being set on fire by children playing with matches.

A new 18,000 bushel elevator will be erected at Eagle Bend, Todd county.

Mrs. A. W. Fountain celebrated her hundredth birthday on Sunday, at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Stephen Francisco, in Florence township, Wabasha county.

Carleton college opens Sept. 10. The attendance promises to be large.

Judge Mitchell of the supreme court has handed down his decision in the suit of Stephen F. Bueneman vs. the St. Paul Minneapolis and Manitoba railway, affirming the order of the lower court denying a new trial to the railroad. The suit was for $10,000 for damages to Bueneman growing out of injuries sustained by him, by falling off the depot platform at Alexandria, Minn., some five years ago.

The officers of the Northwestern Lumberman,s association re-elected at the meeting in Chicago are:

President, A. G. Van Shaick; vice president, O. C. Merriman; treasurer, A. A. Biglow; secretary, E. S. Hotchkiss; directors, E. E. Crepin, White Lake, Mich.; A. Lay, Traverse City, Mich.; E. W. Durant, Stillwater, Minn.; O. H. Ingram, Eau Claire, Wis.; R. G. Peters, Manistee, Mich.; W. O. Goodman, Menominee, Mich.; J. H. Swan, Muskegon, Mich.; P. M. Musser, Muscatine, Iowa; W. J. Young, Clinton, Iowa; G. S. Shaw, Davenport, Iowa; C. L. Coleman, La Crosse, Wis.; J. M. Gould, Moline, Ill.; G. W. Rody, Ludington, Mich.; S. W. Farnham, Minneapolis; C. M. White, Montrose, Iowa.

Theodore Kaupang, aged twelve years, of New Sweden, Minn., was killed by the kick of a horse. Louis Edwards, aged fifteen, of Denver, Minn., was thrown from a horse and received injuries from which he died soon after.

Anna Fildman, a child fourteen years old, a daughter of Henry Fildman, living near Grafton, Minn., accidentally shot herself dead with her brother's gun.

Levi W. Stewart, son of Elder Stewart of Le Sueur county, Minn., was arrested at Le Sueur after a severe struggle, charged with burglarizing the Kasota eating house. It is believed he is the man who has been doing an active business in burglary and petty thieving at Le Sueur and in the vicinity for some time past, as well as at Le Sueur Center and elsewhere in the county during the past year.

At St. Paul Hugh Gallagher was run away with and killed.

The liabilities of F. E. Schenck, of the Brunswick, Minneapolis, aggregated $6,649. Net assets, $2,742.

At Winnebago City, the postoffice and American Express office was broken into Thursday morning at one o'clock, and the safe drilled open. The loss to the postoffice is about $200 in stamps and $25 in silver. The express office lost $19 in currency, and among other valuable papers thirty blank express money orders. B. F. Goodwin's office was entered and $8 taken from his safe. The contents of the safe was carried a block, where they broke open the iron chest and sorted the papers, taking only part of them.

At Willmar, two tramps, named Frank Dignow and Thomas Quigley, confined in the county jail on charge of burglary, made their escape by crawling through one of the ventilators but were soon captured.

The Austin Transcript speaking of the prospects of the Minnesota & Northwestern, says: "The distance from Mona, Iowa, to St. Paul, via the new line is only 110 miles, instead of 115 as has been stated, and from Austin to St. Paul 98 miles, which is five miles less than by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul. The route selected north of Austin is the line west of Brownsdale. It will cross the Southern Minnesota railroad about two miles east of Ramsey. The reason given for selecting this route in preference to via Brownsdale, is that it saves the company over a mile in distance, and will cost less money for grading and bridging. Tracklaying will commence in the spring just as soon as the ground is in proper condition, probably about May 1, and will not consume over forty days for the entire line."

Material for the Minnesota & Northwestern railway at Cascade, Minn., is now arriving at Waterville. There will be about eight hundred car loads. A spur track will be built from the Minneapolis & St. Louis at Cascade, and the rails unloaded ready for track laying in the spring. There are strong grounds for believing that the work will be run in the interest of the Illinois Central. Work on the Wisconsin, Minnesota & Pacific between Mankato and Waterville has not yet commenced, although the survey is completed.

Montgomery & Morley have purchased 8,000 acres of swamp land in Ham Lake and Columbus, Anoka county, and have already put in fifty miles of ditches. It is expected to make 5,000 or 6,000 acres of the amount hay land before operations shall be suspended.

Mrs. W. R. Murray, of Lake city, delighted numerous friends with an exhibition of a night-blooming cereus with six magnificent blossoms upon it. The same plant unfolded two blossoms on the previous evening.

During the heavy thunderstorm on last Saturday afternoon the house of John Remier, a farmer of Eden Prairie, Hennepin county, was struck by lightning and the owner, just entering the building by the front door, was violently thrown to the ground and seriously injured. The bolt finally entered the cistern.

William R. Kinder, of Waseca, died of consumption at Vevay, Ind., Aug. 14, and was buried Aug 16, beside his father at his home at Hamilton, Ohio. He studied law in the office of Louis Brownell at Waseca, and graduated at the Cincinnati law school, and for several years past practiced law as a member of the firm of Brownell & Kinder, at Waseca, being the son-in-law of his partner, Louis Brownell.

A man named Millette, was drowned about one and one-half miles northwest of Crookston last Saturday evening while fishing.

"WHAT'S IN A NAME?"

For The Chicago Tribune.

As all the rulers of our land
In grand array before us stand,
None of their honored Christian names
Come as oft as that of James.
One George there was, as all well know:
His name stands first—It heads the row;
Then John the first, and Thomas the same;
Then James the first, and James again;
When John the second and Andrew appear,
Followed by Martin, with William next near;
Then John the third, and James the same,
And Zachary, Millard, and Franklin came;
Then James the fourth, who ruled the land
Ere Abraham fell by th' assassin's hand;
Then Andrew the second, and Ulysses the chief,
Who duly had come to his country's relief;
Then Rutherford, followed by James the fifth,
And Chester, who soon must go adrift
To make a place for the name of names—
To make a place for another James!

A. P. S.

Dr. Jacob H. Stewart died at his residence in St. Paul on Monday evening last, of apoplexy. Dr. Stewart was well known and highly respected throughout the State, not only as a doctor, but as a politician. He has served several terms in the Legislature and one in Congress. He was as highly respected as he was widely known throughout the whole State and his death will be deeply regretted by thousands.

Elsewhere we publish a communication to the Argyle Banner, (said to be) from Crookston and an able answer to it from the Warren Sheaf. The article in the Banner reads so very near like the way we have heard a venerable resident of Warren talk that while we were reading it we almost thought we could hear the tones of the v. r's voice. No one can read the Banner article without being fully convinced that the sole end and aim is to down Palmer. If there was a grain of truth in the assertions made as to the cost of those elevators is it not a little singular that some shrewd business man among the farmers who are personally interested have not discovered the "African in the wood-pile," ere this? There seems to be a few parties in Marshall County who would not scruple at anything to beat Mr. Palmer but still the stubborn fact remains that he early identified himself with the farmers movement and that he has done noble service in the cause. Try some other dodge, boys, the more you harp on that business the brighter shines Mr. P's record.

DIVERSIFY.

As if to give emphasis to our oft repeated advice under this head, the price of wheat this fall is low and very liable to remain so, at least until this crop is all marketed. The farmer who has his own pork, with a few pigs and shotes to sell occasionally, who has raised a few sheep and had wool to sell in its season, with now and then a carcass for the butcher, who has made butter enough for his own use with now and then a few pounds to take to the store to procure groceries with, and who has had now and then an animal to sell to the butcher, and in addition has a few hundred bushels of wheat to sell (when the proper time comes) will find that his account balances on the right side of the ledger, and he will be proportionately happy, while the farmer who has bent every energy to produce an immense crop of wheat to the neglect of every other interest, who has paid ten per cent. interest on everything he buys—and he always buys everything, even to feed for his horses—although now he has secured a fine crop, will find that his account will balance on the wrong side of the ledger and leave him in debt if, indeed, he does not find the Sheriff ready to sell him out entirely. He has made a big crop, yet he has not made big money. Suppose he had suffered an entire or a partial failure from drouth, or hail, or one of the many things liable to happen any year, what then? We have only to take the history of Southern Minnesota as an example to illustrate the two systems. A few years since they were all raising wheat and were on the verge of bankruptcy, until they "brought the cow to the front," and what was the result? Peace, prosperity and plenty reigns. To-day there is to be found no better stock in the United States than will be exhibited at the fair this fall from Southern Minnesota. Can it be done here? It has been done, and successfully, by a few, and "what man has done man can do." Land is cheap—and that land of the very best quality in the world—hay is cheap, in many instances can be had simply for putting up; grain can be raised as cheaply as anywhere in the world and nowhere can better prices be obtained for beef, mutton and pork than here. But, says one, "I have my machinery, teams and everything ready to raise wheat, and I cannot change to stock!" So said our brethren in Southern Minnesota, but when driven by stern necessity they found that they could, and they did. The chances for getting into good stock were never better than now. During the past year or so there has been some of the best animals in existence brought to Polk County, Short-horns, Jerseys, Polled Angus and Holsteins, or Dutch Friesians, and the man who is too poor to buy a thoroughbred of either, can procure grade of the kind he prefers at a very small cost, and when he has a small herd growing he has something that is increasing in value, instead of something which, like the interest on his machine and other debts, is constantly devouring his substance. Butter is always cash, and a good heavy beef animal is always cash. Does the country need any harsher hints than she has got for the past two seasons to convince us of the fallacy of the one-crop idea? If she does she will continue to get it until there is a radical change in our system of farming. Nature has made one of the grandest countries in the universe right here, where a very fertile soil is united to a very healthy climate; yet even in this country man can thwart her designs and make a wretched failure by everlastingly pursuing the one crop idea. Combine forces with Nature, work with her, and everything is all right; attempt to thwart her and everything is all wrong. Diversify, and be happy.

Mr. Blaine's Appearance.

Physically, Mr. Blaine is a perfect man. You may see him almost any day strolling along the avenue going to or coming from the capitol with the strength of a giant. He is a strong man, and it is a good walker who can keep up with him. He bounds up the steps, two at a time, talking and laughing with his companion. He is wonderfully preserved, and is just in the height of full physical strength. He does not know what fatigue is; and a session of fifty hours without a break turns him out as fresh as a lark, while nearly all his colleagues are badly used up. He is in appearance a very striking man—large, full, straight and erect; an immense head; gray beard, cut close; hair fast whitening, and indeed nearly white and somewhat thin on the top of his head, and a fresh, eager, zealous face. This is as near as I can come to describing a man who is the first to attract attention wherever he goes—[Boston Journal.

Pa, what is the Democratic platform?

It is an indifinite essay on the visionary ambiguity of the vague, the amplified whatness of the whence as applied to the Democratic party policy, my son.

Of what does it consist?

One whereas, six therefores and twenty resolveds.

In what does its great strength consist, pa?

In non-essentials, my son.

What does it denounce, pa?

The slave trade, the English policy in the Soudan and the murder of Abel, my son.

What does it uphold, pa?

Civil service reform, Cleveland, the free pass system, excursion rates and "turn the rascals out," chiefly.

What is the Democratic definition of civil service reform, pa?

More offices and higher salaries, my son.

What portion of the Democratic platform relates to the tariff, pa?

That portion which is omitted, my son.

What is the spirit of the Democratic platform on prohibition, pa?

It is opposed to the use of intoxicants as a beverage, but believes that for purely campaign purposes "a little goes very good," my son.

Wherein does the Democratic platform of 1884 differ from that of 1860, pa?

In the date, my son.

Farmington Tribune: A meeting of millers was recently held in Minneapolis "to determin the price of wheat." Just think of it! The millers who absolutely must have the wheat to keep their mills from being idle property on their hands, dictating the price thereof. Who ever heard of a meeting of farmers to determine the price of binding twine or barbed wire; or of people generally to fix the price of sugar or calico. And yet it would not be more absurd or unjust in fact, only more difficult to carry out.

Raise Horses, Cattle and Hogs.

The Jamestown Capital draws this sensible moral from the low wheat rates: "The lessons of the past and the present should teach the north Dakota farmer that diversified interests are essential to permanent success. With the magnificent crops grown this year has come more than corresponding low prices, and the farmer who has watched his broad acres of the best wheat in the world grow and ripen for the sickle is now faced with the ominous threat of a low market and unprofitable sales. Dakota is no longer dependent upon grain for a profitable use of her fertile acres. Anything that will grow in any of the northern States thrives in Dakota, and in the growing of stock there is now no place in the world which offers better advantages. The length of the winter season here is no argument whatever against stock-growing. The abundance of nutritious grasses which can be cheaply secured is abundant compensation for the long winter. There is no reason why Dakota should not become as great a pork-producing country as she now is a grain growing State, and why such places as Jamestown should not have vast packing establishments."

Teachers' Fall Examinations.

Examinations will be held as follows:

East Grand Forks, on Thursday and Friday, September 4th and 5th, at the School House.

Crookston, at the Court House, Monday and Tuesday, September 8th and 9th.

Red Lake Falls, at the School House, Thursday and Friday, September 11th and 12th.

V. D. CARRUTH,
County Supt. Schools.
Crookston, Aug. 27th, 1884.

OFFICE OF COUNTY AUDITOR,
POLK COUNTY, MINN.
Crookston, Aug. 20th, 1884.

Bids will be received by the Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners for supplying this county with three carloads of Stove Coal, to be delivered at the Court House in this city on or before October 1st, 1884.

The right to reject any or all bids is reserved.

By order of the Board of County Commissioners.

P. J. McGUIRE,
Clerk of the Board.

MERCHANTS' HOTEL,
J. E. MITTON, Proprietor,
CORNER BROADWAY AND ROBERT STREET,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

The new Merchants' Hotel, recently re-fitted and re-furnished is now ready to accommodate the travelling public, who are cordially invited to stop at the Merchants' when in the city.

THE
University of Minnesota
Will open its Fall Term
Wednesday, Sept. 3, 1884.

Entrance examinations will begin at 8 a. m. Recitations and lectures will begin Tuesday, September 9. Courses, Classical, Scientific and Modern, and sub-freshman, preparatory. Tuition free in all classes. For information and catalogues apply to

CYRUS W. NORTHROP, President.
Minneapolis, Aug. 16, 1884.

DR. M. WATTS,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
OFFICE ON ROBERT SREET.
Professional calls by day or night attended to with promptness.

THE
St. Paul,
Minneapolis
—AND—
Manitoba
RAILWAY,
WITH ITS
1,400 Miles of Road
Is the only line extending through the
Park Region of Minnesota,
To all principal points in
Red River Valley,
Northern Minnesota,
Northern Dakota,
And to Devil's Lake and Turtle Mour. Districts.
—CONTAINING OVER—
9,000,000 Acres
GOVERNMENT LANDS!

The Land department of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has exclusive charge of the Company's Lands in Minnesota, and all correspondence relative to the purchase of lands, terms, description or price of any particular tract should be addressed to that department.

Maps and pamphlets describing the country and giving rates of fare to settlers, etc., mailed FREE on application.

JAS. B. POWER,
Land and Immigration Commissioner.
C. H. WARREN,
General Passenger Agent,
St. P., M. & M. R'y., St. Paul, Minn.

Groceries, Provisions,
Flour, Feed
SMOKED, DRIED AND SALT
MEATS,
TEAS,
COFFEES,
SUGARS,
SPICES,
ETC.
Highest Market Price Paid for
FARM PRODUCE.
Bauchman & Millette.
Broadway, Opposite the Post Office,
Crookston, Minn.

MERCHANTS HOTEL
J. E. MITTON, Prop.,
WAHPETON, DAKOTA.

The Red Lake Falls
FLOURING
MILL
Has lately been enlarged and is now prepared to do custom work without delay. Stable room free.
BUSE & COLBENTSON,
Proprietors, Red Lake Falls, Minn.

JOHN N. IVES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
Collection and Land Office Business made a specialty. Money secured for final proofs on short notice.
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

WM. WATTS,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
AND DEALER IN
REAL ESTATE.
OFFICE OVER MERCHANTS' BANK.

W. L. Sargeant
Veterinary Surgeon,
CROOKSTON, MINN.
Diseases of horses and cattle a specialty.
10-17

Crookston Tonsorial
PARLORS.
PROF. THOMPSON, Proprietor.
Robert Street, Crookston, Minn.
Shaving, hair dressing and all work in my line promptly attended to the latest style of the art. Give me a call.

The Old Brick Block
IS THE PLACE
To Buy Dry Goods, Groceries. Clothing, Boots and Shoe Hats and Caps, or anything you want.
Fontaine & Anglim
IS THE FIRM
Who are ready, with a corps of affable clerks to show you their NEW FALL and WINTER STOCK and quote prices to astonish the natives.
Great Bargains
Don't forget to visit Fontaine & Anglim's Emporium, in the Old Brick Block,
MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

THE
J. I. CASE
THRESHING MACHINE COMPANY
The Dennet or Beloit
HARVESTING MACHINE COMPANY.
And the Van Brunt & Davis
SEEDER COMPANY,
Are Represented
BY
STEENERSON BROS.,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

MONEY TO GIVE AWAY
IN BARGAINS AT
MARKHAM'S
THE LEADING GROCERY HOUSE
AND THE LARGEST BOOT AND SHOE STORE
IN CROOKSTON.
Goods Delivered to any Part of the City
FREE OF CHARGE

FARMERS, FARMERS,
WE ARE
Selling Lower Than Ever!
You will always find it to your advantage to
Trade with Us!
We Sell the Best for the LOWEST LIVING PRICES. Remember the place,
Broadway, bet. 2d and Robert Sts.
D. BUCHANAN.

THE NEW ERA MANUFACTURING CO.,
Exclusive manufacturers of the
NEW ERA
Wagon Road Grader!
AND DITCHING MACHINE.
Manufactory 625 to 631 south Halsted street, Chicago, Illinois.

Having established our headquarters for the Red River Valley at CROOKSTON, MINN., all inquiries addressed to us will receive our personal attention. All machines fully warranted and free trial given upon application. Address all Red River Valley correspondence to the NEW ERA MANUFACTURING CO., Box 851, Crookston, Minn.

McKINNON BROS.,
Carriage Works
Robert Street,
Crookston, - Minn.
AGENTS FOR THE
J. I. CASE THRESHING MACHINES!
And Manufacturers of Carriages, Wagons,
BUGGIES,
Cutters, Sleds, &c.
Axles, Springs, and all Repairs kept in stock,
DEALERS IN
FARM MACHINERY.

In Farm Machinery we have the Champion Seeder, Fargo Diamond Tooth Harrow, Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow, Davenport and Grand Detour Sulky and Walking Plows, Buford Gang Plows, Field Rollers of all sizes, Warrior Mowers, the leading Hay Rake and first-class Harvesters and Binders, the Webber Wagon and McKinnon Bros. Wagon, In fact we have everything in machinery, from

A Wheelbarrow to a Threshing Machine!
—EXTRAS—
For all Machines constantly on hand

E. M. Walsh,
DEALER IN
Hardware, Tinware
BAR IRON, STEEL,
BLACKSMITHS SUPPLIES,
BUILDING PAPER,
&c., &c. Also Agent
For the Celebrated Monitor Plows.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

A Big Bonanza!
JOSEPH BARRETT
Has decided to Put on the Market his
ADDITION
TO THE
City of Crookston,
Next adjoining the Crookston Driving Park. Parties desiring to purchase
CHOICE LOST
NOW IS YOUR TIME!
LOTS
For Sale Separately, or in
BLOCKS.
TERMS EASY!
Apply to the undersigned or at the office of C. B. Palmer, U. S. Land Office Building. Both English and French spoken.
JOSEPH BARRETT.

"WHAT'S IN A NAME?"

For The Chicago Tribune.

As all the rulers of our land
In grand array before us stand;
None of their honored Christian names
Come as oft as that of James.
One George there was, as all well know;
His name stands first—it heads the row;
Then John the first, and Thomas the same;
Then James the first, and James again;
When John the second and Andrew appear,
Followed by Martin, with William next near;
Then John the third, and James the same,
And Zachary, Millard, and Franklin came;
Then James the fourth, who ruled the land
Ere Abraham fell by th' assasin's hand;
Then Andrew the second, and Ulysses the chief,
Who duly had come to his country's relief;
Then Rutherford, followed by James the fifth,
And Chester, who soon must go adrift
To make a place for the name of names—
To make a place for another James!

A. P. S.

Dr. Jacob H. Stewart died at his residence in St. Paul on Monday evening last, of apoplexy. Dr. Stewart was well known and highly respected throughout the State, not only as a doctor, but as a politician. He has served several terms in the Legislature and one in Congress. He was as highly respected as he was widely known throughout the whole State and his death will be deeply regretted by thousands.

Elsewhere we publish a communication to the Argyle Banner, (said to be) from Crookston and an able answer to it from the Warren Sheaf. The article in the Banner reads so very near like the way we have heard a venerable resident of Warren talk that while we were reading it we almost thought we could hear the tones of the v. r's voice. No one can read the Banner article without being fully convinced that the sole end and aim is to down Palmer. If there was a grain of truth in the assertions made as to the cost of those elevators is it not a little singular that some shrewd business man among the farmers who are personally interested have not discovered the "African in the wood-pile," ere this? There seems to be a few parties in Marshall County who would not scruple at anything to beat Mr. Palmer but still the stubborn fact remains that he early identified himself with the farmers movement and that he has done noble service in the cause. Try some other dodge, boys, the more you harp on that business the brighter shines Mr. P's record.

DIVERSIFY.

As if to give emphasis to our oft repeated advice under this head, the price of wheat this fall is low and very liable to remain so, at least until this crop is all marketed. The farmer who has his own pork, with a few pigs and shotes to sell occasionally, who has raised a few sheep and had wool to sell in its season, with now and then a carcass for the butcher, who has made butter enough for his own use with now and then a few pounds to take to the store to procure groceries with, and who has had now and then an animal to sell to the butcher, and in addition has a few hundred bushels of wheat to sell (when the proper time comes) will find that his account balances on the right side of the ledger, and he will be proportionately happy, while the farmer who has bent every energy to produce an immense crop of wheat to the neglect of every other interest, who has paid ten per cent. interest on everything he buys—and he always buys everything, even to feed for his horses—although now he has secured a fine crop, will find that his account will balance on the wrong side of the ledger and leave him in debt if, indeed, he does not find the Sheriff ready to sell him out entirely. He has made a big crop, yet he has not made big money. Suppose he had suffered an entire or a partial failure from drouth, or hail, or one of the many things liable to happen any year, what then? We have only to take the history of Southern Minnesota as an example to illustrate the two systems. A few years since they were all raising wheat and were on the verge of bankruptcy, until they "brought the cow to the front," and what was the result? Peace, prosperity and plenty reigns. To-day there is to be found no better stock in the United States than will be exhibited at the fair this fall from Southern Minnesota. Can it be done here? It has been done, and successfully, by a few, and "what man has done man can do." Land is cheap—and that land of the very best quality in the world—hay is cheap, in many instances can be had simply for putting up; grain can be raised as cheaply as anywhere in the world and nowhere can better prices be obtained for beef, mutton and pork than here. But, says one, "I have my machinery, teams and everything ready to raise wheat, and I cannot change to stock!" So said our brethren in Southern Minnesota, but when driven by stern necessity they found that they could, and they did. The chances for getting into good stock were never better than now. During the past year or so there has been some of the best animals in existence brought to Polk County, Short-horns, Jerseys, Polled Angus and Holsteins, or Dutch Friesians, and the man who is too poor to buy a thoroughbred of either, can procure grade of the kind he prefers at a very small cost, and when he has a small herd growing he has something that is increasing in value, instead of something which like the interest on his machine and other debts is constantly devouring his substance. Butter is always cash, and a good heavy beef animal is always cash. Does the country need any harsher hint than she has got for the past two seasons to convince us of the fallacy of the one crop idea? If she does she will continue to experiment until [illegible] Diversify and be happy.

Mr. Blaine's Appearance.

Physically, Mr. Blaine is a perfect man. You may see him almost any day strolling along the avenue, going to or coming from the capitol with the strength of a giant. He is a strong man, and it is a good walker who can keep up with him. He bounds up the steps, two at a time, talking and laughing with his companion. He is wonderfully preserved, and is just in the height of full physical strength. He does not know what fatigue is; and a session of fifty hours without a break turns him out as fresh as a lark, while nearly all his colleagues are badly used up. He is in appearance a very striking man—large, full, straight and erect; an immense head; gray beard, cut close; hair fast whitening, and indeed nearly white and somewhat thin on the top of his head, and a fresh, eager, zealous face. This is as near as I can come to describing a man who is the first to attract attention wherever he goes—[Boston Journal.

Pa, what is the Democratic platform?

It is an indifinite essay on the visionary ambiguity of the vague, the amplified whatness of the whence as applied to the Democratic party policy, my son.

Of what does it consist?

One whereas, six therefores and twenty resolveds.

In what does its great strength consist, pa?

In non-essentials, my son.

What does it denounce, pa?

The slave trade, the English policy in the Soudan and the murder of Abel, my son.

What does it uphold, pa?

Civil service reform, Cleveland, the free pass system, excursion rates and "turn the rascals out," chiefly.

What is the Democratic definition of civil service reform, pa?

More offices and higher salaries, my son.

What portion of the Democratic platform relates to the tariff, pa?

That portion which is omitted, my son.

What is the spirit of the Democratic platform on prohibition, pa?

It is opposed to the use of intoxicants as a beverage, but believes that for purely campaign purposes "a little goes very good," my son.

Wherein does the Democratic platform of 1884 differ from that of 1860, pa?

In the date, my son.

Farmington Tribune: A meeting of millers was recently held in Minneapolis "to determin the price of wheat." Just think of it! The millers who absolutely must have the wheat to keep their mills from being idle property on their hands, dictating the price thereof. Who ever heard of a meeting of farmers to determine the price of binding twine or barbed wire; or of people generally to fix the price of sugar or calico. And yet it would not be more absurd or unjust in fact, only more difficult to carry out.

Raise Horses, Cattle and Hogs.

The Jamestown Capital draws this sensible moral from the low wheat rates: "The lessons of the past and the present should teach the north Dakota farmer that diversified interests are essential to permanent success. With the magnificent crops grown this year has come more than corresponding low prices, and the farmer who has watched his broad acres of the best wheat in the world grow and ripen for the sickle is now faced with the ominous threat of a low market and unprofitable sales. Dakota is no longer dependent upon grain for a profitable use of her fertile acres. Anything that will grow in any of the northern States thrives in Dakota, and in the growing of stock there is now no place in the world which offers better advantages. The length of the winter season here is no argument whatever against stock-growing. The abundance of nutritious grasses which can be cheaply secured is abundant compensation for the long winter. There is no reason why Dakota should not become as great a pork producing country as she now is a grain growing State, and why such places as Jamestown should not have vast packing establishments."

Teachers' Fall Examinations.

Examinations will be held as follows:

East Grand Forks, on Thursday and Friday, September 4th and 5th, at the School House.

Crookston, at the Court House, Monday and Tuesday, September 8th and 9th.

Red Lake Falls, at the School House, Thursday and Friday, September 11th and 12th.

V. D. CARRUTH,
County Supt. Schools.

Crookston, Aug. 27th, 1884.

OFFICE OF COUNTY AUDITOR,
POLK COUNTY, MINN.,
Crookston, Aug. 20th, 1884.

Bids will be received by the Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners for supplying this county with three carloads of Stove Coal to be delivered at the Court House in this city on or before October 1st, 1884.

The right to reject any or all bids is reserved.

By order of the Board of County Commissioners.

[illegible]
Clerk of the Board.

MERCHANTS' HOTEL,
[illegible]
CROOKSTON, MINN.
[illegible]

THE
University of Minnesota
Will open its Fall Term
Wednesday, Sept. 3, 1884.

Entrance examinations will begin at 8 a. m. Recitations and lectures will begin Tuesday, September 9. Courses, Classical, Scientific and Modern, and sub-freshman, preparatory. Tuition free in all classes. For information and catalogues apply to

CYRUS W. NORTHROP, President.
Minneapolis, Aug. 16, 1884.

DR. M. WATTS,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
OFFICE ON ROBERT STREET.
Professional calls by day or night attended to with promptness.

THE
St. Paul,
Minneapolis
AND Manitoba
RAILWAY,
WITH ITS
1,400 Miles of Road
Is the only line extending through the
Park Region of Minnesota,
To all principal points in
Red River Valley,
Northern Minnesota,
Northern Dakota,
And to Devil's Lake and Turtle Mountain Districts.
CONTAINING OVER
9,000,000 Acres
GOVERNMENT LANDS!

The Land department of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has exclusive charge of the Company's Lands in Minnesota; and all correspondence relative to the purchase of lands, terms, description or price of any particular tract should be addressed to that department.

Maps and pamphlets describing the country and giving rates of fare to settlers, etc., mailed FREE on application.

JAS. B. POWER,
Land and Immigration Commissioner
C. H. WARREN,
General Passenger Agent,
St. P., M. & M. R'y., St. Paul, Minn.

Groceries, Provisions,
Flour, Feed
SMOKED, DRIED AND SALT
MEATS,
TEAS,
COFFEES,
SUGARS,
SPICES,
ETC.
Highest Market Price Paid for
FARM PRODUCE.
Bauchman & Millette.
Broadway, Opposite the Post Office,
Crookston, Minn.

MERCHANTS HOTEL
J. E. MITTON, Prop.,
WAHPETON, DAKOTA.

The Red Lake Falls
FLOURING
MILL
Has lately been enlarged and is now prepared to do custom work without delay. Stable room free.
BUSE & COLBENTSON,
Proprietors, Red Lake Falls, Minn.

JOHN N. IVES,
ATTORNEY AT LAW.
Collection and Land Office Business made a specialty. Money secured for final proofs on short notice.
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

WM. WATTS,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
AND DEALER IN
REAL ESTATE.
Office over Merchants' Bank.

W. L. Sargeant,
Veterinary Surgeon,
CROOKSTON, MINN.
[illegible]

Crookston Tonsorial
PARLORS.
[illegible]

The Old Brick Block
IS THE PLACE
To Buy Dry Goods, Groceries. Clothing, Boots and Shoe Hats and Caps, or anything you want.
Fontaine & Anglim
IS THE FIRM
Who are ready, with a corps of affable clerks to show you their NEW FALL and WINTER STOCK and quote prices to astonish the natives.
Great Bargains
Don't forget to visit Fontaine & Anglim's Emporium, in the Old Brick Block,
MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

THE
J. I. CASE
THRESHING MACHINE COMPANY
The Dennet or Beloit
HARVESTING MACHINE COMPANY
And the Van Brunt & Davis
SEEDER COMPANY,
Are Represented
BY
STEENERSON BROS.,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

MONEY TO GIVE AWAY
IN BARGAINS AT
MARKHAM'S
THE LEADING GROCERY HOUSE
AND THE LARGEST BOOT AND SHOE STORE
IN CROOKSTON.
Goods Delivered to any Part of the City
FREE OF CHARGE

FARMERS, FARMERS,
WE ARE
Selling Lower Than Ever!
You will always find it to your advantage to
Trade with Us!
We Sell the Best for the LOWEST LIVING PRICES. Remember the place,
Broadway, bet. 2d and Robert Sts.
D. BUCHANAN.

THE NEW ERA MANUFACTURING CO.,
Exclusive manufacturers of the
NEW ERA
Wagon Road Grader!
AND DITCHING MACHINE.
Manufactory 625 to 631 south Halsted street, Chicago, Illinois.
Having established our headquarters for the Red River Valley at CROOKSTON, MINN., all inquiries addressed to us will receive our personal attention. All machines fully warranted and [illegible] given upon application. Address all Red River Valley correspondence to the NEW ERA MANUFACTURING CO., Box 851, Crookston, Minn.

McKINNON BROS.,
Carriage Works
Robert Street,
Crookston, - Minn.
AGENTS FOR THE
J. I. CASE THRESHING MACHINES!
And Manufacturers of Carriages, Wagons,
BUGGIES,
Cutters, Sleds, &c.
Axles, Springs, and all Repairs kept in stock,
DEALERS IN
FARM MACHINERY.
In Farm Machinery we have the Champion Seeder, Fargo Diamond Tooth Harrow, Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow, Davenport and Grand Detour Sulky and Walking Plows, Buford Gang Plows, Field Rollers of all sizes, Warrior Mowers, the leading Hay Rake and first-class Harvesters and Binders, the Webber Wagon and McKinnon Bros. Wagon, In fact we have everything in machinery, from
A Wheelbarrow to a Threshing Machine!
EXTRAS
For all Machines constantly on hand

E. M. Walsh,
DEALER IN
Hardware, Tinware
BAR IRON, STEEL,
BLACKSMITHS SUPPLIES,
BUILDING PAPER,
&c., &c. Also Agent
For the Celebrated Monitor Plows.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

A Big Bonanza!
JOSEPH BARRETT
Has decided to Put on the Market his
ADDITION
TO THE
City of Crookston,
Next adjoining the Crookston Driving Park. Parties desiring to purchase
CHOICE LOST
NOW IS YOUR TIME!
LOTS
For Sale Separately, or in
BLOCKS.
TERMS EASY!
Apply to the undersigned or at the office of C. B. Palmer, U. S. Land Office Building. Both English and French spoken.
JOSEPH BARRETT.

Polk County Journal.

Crookston, Minn., Thursday, August 28

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

GOING NORTH.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 1 Passenger	10:45 p. m.	10:55 p. m.
" 9 Passenger	10:10 a. m.
" 19 Freight	12:30 a. m.
" 15 Freight	4:00 p. m.
" 23 Freight		10:30 a. m.

GOING SOUTH.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 2 Passenger	4:00 a. m.	4:15 a. m.
" 10 Passenger		5:35 p. m.
" 20 Freight		7:00 a. m.
" 22 Freight		6:15 p. m.
" 24 Freight	5:00 p. m.

DEVIL'S LAKE LINE.

	ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 9 Passenger		10:20 a. m.
" 10 Passenger	5:30 p. m.
" 45 Freight		6:00 a. m.
" 46 Freight	7:00 p. m.

ST. HILAIRE BRANCH.

Trains leave Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 10:15 a. m., and arrive same days at 4:00 p. m.

☞ Passenger Trains No's 1 and 2, Main Line, run daily except Sunday. No's 3 and 4 run daily. Devil's Lake Passenger runs daily. Freights No's 23, 20 and 24 run daily. Freights No's 15 and 22, and Freights on Devil's Lake Line run daily except Sunday.

The Representative.

The people of this legislative district, especially in the northern counties, are evincing a great interest in the selection of a man to represent them in the next legislature. And well they may. Questions of great importance will come up for consideration, and the people should be careful to select a man who does truly represent them. The most important questions to farmers in this district are those relating to the wheat business and its transportation. In many of the districts throughout the State the campaign will be fought entirely with the view to securing favorable legislation on these subjects. This district should not be behind in this matter. No man should be elected who is in any manner whatever connected with any elevator or elevator company, as the questions which will come up in the legislature for decision are directly antagonistic to the elevator people. All will agree that the selection of an elevator man would be height of folly, yet it is significant that of the three most prominent candidates—the Hon. A. H. Baker, H. G. Palmer and Capt. Donaldson—the two latter are elevator men. Now while these elevator men stand scarcely any show of being nominated, the farmers should not rest satisfied that such will be the case. They are in the field to win if they can and they propose to use every means in their power to attain their ends. To defeat their plans it will be necessary for the farmers throughout the district to unite upon any man and stand by him. The farmers can elect their man with ease if they will. Let them unite upon a man who has been tried and found true, a man who is not now nor ever has been connected with any of the monopolies which the farmers are so earnestly striving to rid themselves of. Such a man is the Hon. A. H. Baker. Unite upon him and the battle is already won.—[Ada Index.

The above article starts off bravely and truly, and we heartily endorse every word of it until the Index, after saying "this district should not be behind in the good word," switches off and takes a very narrow, one-sided and untruthful position. We do not blame the Index in its efforts to aid the Hon. A. H. Baker, but we think it makes a great mistake when it attempts to build up his reputation by attacking such well-known and prominent gentlemen as H. G. Palmer and Capt. H. W. Donaldson, both of whom every farmer knows as well as does the Index, have taken an active part in this fight of the millers' monopoly against the farmer. The selection of a representative this fall is an important question, a question on which we cannot afford to make any mistakes, as very important interests are at stake. We would call the attention of the Index to the fact that in this matter of candidacy every tub must stand on its own bottom, and if Mr. Baker's record in the House has shown him to be the man best calculated to aid the farmers in their efforts to obtain their rights, the Index need have no fears but what they will see and understand it as quick as anybody, and Mr. Baker will be returned to finish his good work. The farmers are not to be so easily misled by any such transparent sophistries as the Index indulges in. They know full well that it was the efforts of the Minneapolis Millers' Monopoly to put the gag upon the wheat trade of the Northwest that brought such men as Mr. Palmer and Capt. Donaldson to the front. They know that for weeks and months before the friends of those two gentlemen mentioned their names for the legislature, that they were both at work like beavers to defeat the plans of the Millers' Monopoly, with no further hope of a reward for their personal services than their own share in the benefits conferred by an open market would bring them. That Mr. Palmer early got interested in the farmers' elevator business the Index knows was due to the fact that that seemed the best way to procure an open market, and after all that he has done and expended to develop and test the theory it is the part of the craven to backbite him and try to belittle his work the more especially before it has been tried to see whether it be for the best or not. The Index, if it knows or cares to know anything of the facts knows that those gentlemen have done honest effective work in the cause and that they are entitled to credit for it and the foolish attempt to build up Mr. Baker by trying to pull them down will be seen at a glance by every sensible honest farmer. If the Index expects to [illegible] backed up by the proposed candidate's own public record. We believe that the time has come when the farmers should select one of their own number to represent them. A man who is a thorough business man, honest, upright and not too radical—a man who thoroughly understands what the farmers need and who will command a sufficient amount of influence to obtain what he is after. Radical, because intemperate legislation at this time would be more than useless, and injure the farmers' cause far more than it would advance it. If we were to choose a man he would be chosen from among the number of those who went early into the fight and who have the sticking qualities of the slayer. We should allow no motives of personal friendship to influence us, but our motto should be "the best man for the place," and when we had found one honest, earnest, capable incorruptible—a man whom money cannot buy—we should say "thou art the man." The signs of the times indicate a big fight in the legislature next winter, and we cannot afford to make any mistake in our man. The needs of our district demands the very best man in it for the position, and it is a time when demagogues and office-seekers should be set aside for the public good. There never has been a time, nor is there likely to be in years to come, when more careful attention to this matter is or will be necessary, and any aspirant should be ready and willing to have the most searching examination into his public and private life made, and he should be able to shine out the more conspicuously thereby. If a man is fit to serve the people well and faithfully, he will be willing to wait until he is called upon to do so, and he will not whimper if the people don't happen to be as unanimous that he is the only man worthy of the trust as he may be himself. As to the Hon. A. H. Baker, he is a gentleman whom we hold in very high esteem. We believe that he is honest and incorruptible, and should the choice fall on him we could heartily render him our support; as to his being the best man we could send, we believe that if the verdict of the people says nay, he will be the last man to kick against that decision, notwithstanding that precedent always accords the sitting member a re-election. Mr. Baker is so thoroughly identified with the interests of this Northwest as to rise above all sordid selfishness and be willing to serve its interests to the best of his ability in whatever capacity he is called upon to act, whether in public or private life. That is our opinion of that gentleman. Now a word to the Index. Do not try to build up your man by tearing down the reputation of others equally as good, because, if you do, you will surely come to grief. The Index will do well to recognize the fact that this new line of elevators is the work of the farmers in their efforts to obtain an open market—they have created it and they are determined to try it—they have instructed their active agents in all said agents have done, and they will stand behind them to uphold until future events shall justify or condemn. As war is said to be the last resort of kings, so may the new line of elevators be said in a certain sense to be the last resort (so far) of the farmers, driven to desperation by a grasping, soulless monopoly, which exacts the last pound of flesh and the last drop of blood. The farmers are sanguine that through these same farmers' elevators must come relief if it comes at all, for it certainly can come by no other agency under the canopy this fall. We welcome any and every agency that promises relief from the intolerable burden thrust upon the people by a soulless monopoly, and we say God bless the men who have labored so long and earnestly to effect that relief. It shows that they are made of the right kind of stuff, and it shows that in a tight place, where a desperate fight is sure to come, they are pretty good timber to tie to. These same farmers' elevators belong to the people and they are going to take care of them and those who have so faithfully labored to establish them, and don't you let it slip from your memory, Mr. Index.

Pioneer Press: Henry C. Lewis, of Coldwater, Mich., died on Monday. He had the finest private art gallery in the world, containing 1,000 subjects, including 400 originals, the whole worth over half a million dollars.

Mr. Lewis was a brother to Mr. G. W. Lewis, of this city, whose departure for Coldwater we noticed in our last issue.

County Gleanings.

St. Hilaire Spectator.

Harvest has commenced in earnest this week.

Mrs. Major Mix returned from Crookston Thursday.

Mr. John Knuppe, of Crookston, was looking over our village a short time Thursday.

Miss Carrie Mix departed for Oxford Ohio, yesterday, where she will attend school during the coming year.

Darling & Morse's mill has been shut down until after harvest, except the lath mill. They are turning out several hundred bunches of lath daily.

Mr. Paul Bataglia the Crookston furniture man, was seen on our streets the other day gun in hand, evidently bent on making it hot for prairie chicken.

Some unprincipaled [illegible] of Crookston told a gentleman who was thinking of investing here, that St. Hilaire was dead and that the railroad company would take up the rails before fall. For pure cussedness the Crookston [illegible]

Take Notice.

We the undersigned are now prepared to do all kinds of work pertaining to the tailoring business, cheap, substantial and promptly. Would especially recommend our mode of cleaning and dyeing clothes, which is done through a chemical process, thereby enabling us to thoroughly and effectually withdraw all kinds of grease and paint spots without injury to the cloth. All work guaranteed, and patronage solicited.

GJERBERG BRO'S,
Adjoining T. H. Bjoin's livery stable
Main Street, Crookston, Minn.
[16-18]

NOTICE.

As I still own my share of Crookston Nurseries, and purpose to continue the business, I will annouce to our former customers and all that are desirous of obtaining trees and Plants the coming spring that I will sell said stock at prices below any competition. Call and see me before making purchase elsewhore, Residence on second block north of Court House, or address P. O. Box 754.

Most Respectfully,
[88-tf] E. W. HASELTINE.

To The Public.

We wish to state to the people of Crookston and vicinity, that we have purchased the stock of greceries owned by J. L. Bailey, on Broadway, opposite the post office. We purpose to carry on the trade at the old stand, and will keep on hand, at all times, a fresh stock of groceries, provisions, etc., and we ask a share of the patronage of the generous public.

[5-tf] BAUSCHMAN & MILETTE.

I have some of the best located residence and business lots in the city that I will sell on easy terms.

H. W. LEWIS.

I would say to the people of Polk County that I have on sale some of the most desirable lots in the city o Crookston.

H. W. LEWIS.
Office in JOURNAL building.

A BARGAIN.

A choice business location on Broadway 100x140 feet, for sale at a bargain. For particulars address the JOURNAL.

$100,000

To Loan on improved claims in sums of $250 to $2,000. Cash paid for school bonds. Call on or address,

JOHN McLEAN, Att'y at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

Send Money by American Express or Money Orders. Receipts given. Money refunded if Orders are lost. Sold at all offices of the Company. Payable at 6,000 places RATES: To $5-5c.; $10-5c.; $20-10c.; $30-12.; $40-15.; $50-20c. [2-27]

A good farm for sale two miles from Euclid. Seventy acres in crop. Will sell at a low figure. H. W. LEWIS.

NOTICE.

Any man investing in property at Red Lake Falls or vicinity who loses by the investment, I will pay five dollars where he looses five cents.

[3-28] ALFRED GERVAIS.

Notice to Farmers.

C. Kretzschmar's Grist Mill, at Red Lake Falls, is again open for business. Flour will be exchanged for wheat, or your wheat will be ground on shares. A good feed mill is run in connection with the mill and satisfaction in all cases is guaranteed. Flour and feed on hand at all times and sold at lowest market rates.

[16-tf] C. KRETZSCHMAR.

Money to Loan.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS to loan on improved farms from THREE to FIVE years time at very reasonable rates. Apply at my office on Broadway, in U. S. Land Office building.

[14tf] H. STEENERSON.

Just received. A car-load of Buggies selected by an experienced carriage-builder all warranted. Call early and select one. McKinnon Bros.

A fine residence on Broadway for sale, enquire of H. W. Lewis. Office in JOURNAL building.

Christening and Wedding Cakes Made upon Shortest Notice in the Best Style.

A Choice and Well Selected Stock of Confectionery Always on hand.

John Crawford & Son,
Proprietors of
Crawford's Bakery,
SECOND STREET,
Crookston, Minn.

CONFECTIONERY.
Fresh Bread, Buns, Cakes and Biscuits. All Articles in the Fancy Baking Line.

FURNITURE STORE,
BROADWAY, CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.
P. BATAGLIA, Prop'r.

Keeps constantly on hand a well selected stock [illegible] Bureaus, [illegible] Lounges, [illegible] Chairs, Rocking Chairs, Stands, [illegible] REPAIRING DONE TO ORDER [illegible]

BERG & OLSON,
PRACTICAL WATCHMAKERS,
AND DEALERS IN CLOCKS,
WATCHES,
JEWELRY,
—ROBERT STREET,—
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

Wentzel & Rauch,
Sample Rooms.
MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

For a fine mixed or straight drink call on the boys. The choicest liquors and cigars in stock. [9-tf]

NOTICE TO CREDITORS.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss.
County of Polk. } In Probate Court.

In the matter of the estate of Paul C. Sletten deceased.

Notice is hereby given to all persons having claims and demands against the estate of Paul C. Sletten late of the County of Polk deceased, that the Judge of the Probate Court of said County will hear, examine, and adjust claims and demands against said estate, at his office in the City of Crookston, in said County, on the first Monday of each month, and that six months from the 11th day of August 1881, have been limited and allowed by said Probate Court for creditors to present their claims.

Dated this 30th day of July A. D. 1881.

OLAUS H. LUCKEN,
Executor of the estate of Paul C. Setten deceased.
ROBERT J. MONTAGUE,
Judge of Probate. [15-18]

Notice of Mortgage Sale by Advertisement.

DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN THE conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Theophile Patnode and Cardelia Patnode, his wife, mortgagors, to John Cromb, mortgagee, dated the fourth day of September A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-two, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 4th day of September A. D. 1882, at 1:45 o'clock p. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 248 on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice, the amount of fifty-six and 17-100 dollars, and there is yet to become due thereon four hundred and twenty-five dollars and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Notice is hereby given, that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises therein described, which sale will be made at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction by the Sheriff of said County, on Saturday the 20th day of August A. D. eighteen hundred and eighty-four, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees, as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold, are the lots, pieces or parcels of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and known and described as follows, to-wit: Lots number four (4) eleven (11) and twelve (12) and the southeast quarter (se¼) of the southeast quarter (se¼) all in Section number eighteen (18,) in Township number one hundred and fifty-one (151) north, of Range number forty-three west, of fifth principal meridian, containing one hundred and seventeen (117) acres more or less according to the United States survey thereof.

Dated July 2d, 1884.

JOHN CROMB,
Mortgagee.
MONTAGUE & WIGHT,
Attorney's of Mortgagee. [10-15]

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication July 31st, 1884.]

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Joseph Piquette, a married man, and Mary Piquette, his wife mortgagors, to John Cromb, mortgagee, dated the 27th day of October A. D. 1882, and recorded as a mortgage, together with the power of sale therein contained in the office of the Register of Deeds, of the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on the 31st day of October A. D. 1882, at ten o'clock and twenty-five minutes a. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 350, which said mortgage authorized the holder thereof in case of such default to declare due and foreclose the same for the whole amount secured to be paid thereby, and whereas there is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the amount of five hundred ninety-one and 25-100 dollars ($591.25-10) being the whole amount secured to be paid thereby and still unpaid, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof and whereas by such default the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become and is operative.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of such power of sale contained in and recorded with said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises herein described, which sale will be made at the west front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county or by his Deputy, on Saturday the 13th day of September A. D. 1884, at ten o'clock in the forenoon to satisfy the amount that shall then be due on said mortgage with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold are all that tract or parcel of land lying and being in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and described as follows, to-wit: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section twenty-one (21,) in Township number one hundred and fifty (150) north of Range number forty-four (44) west, of the fifth principal meridian, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres, according to the United States government survey thereof.

Dated Crookston July 31st 1884.

JOHN CROMB,
Mortgagee.
JOHN LEO,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [14-20]

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication August 7th, 1884.]

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Alex Allerdyce, mortgagor, to Paul C. Sletten and John Cromb, mortgagees, dated the first day of August A. D. 1882, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 25th day of August A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "H" of mortgages on page 218, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of four hundred and eighty-four 90-100 dollars, according to the terms and conditions of one [illegible]

N. F. CHINIQUY'S
Chicago Dry Goods House.

JUST RECEIVED
Full Lines Of

Dress Sstins, Lawns, Organdies.
Percales, Cambrics, Buntings, Piques
Marsailles, Prints, Embroideries.
Gloves, Hosiery, Handkerchiefs.
Hoop Skirts, Bustles, Corsets.
Parasols, Collars, Cuffs, Ruchings.
Lacesand Lace Goods, Gauze.
Underwear, Etc., Etc., Etc.
Cretonnes and Fringes.
Gent's Furnishing Goods.

The above goods were bought late in the season at very Low Prices and I will make it an aim to sell those goods very cheap.

No Trouble to Show Goods
At N. F. CHINIQUY'S
Chicago Dry Goods Store.

JEROME'S ADDITION
TO THE
CITY OF CROOKSTON
IS NOW
Offered for Sale

This is the finest Residence Property in the City. High and dry, good cellars, water, and well sheltered. Enclosed on three sides by the river, and only three blocks from the heart of the city and Post Office.

Pure Drugs,
Reliable Medicines,

LOWEST LIVING PRICES,
AT
Medical Hall,
CROOKSTON.
Beecher & George, Prop's.

E. D. Schreader
LIVERY,
Feed and Sale Stable.

BEST TURNOUTS
IN THE CITY.

Single or Double Rigs, with or without driver or
SADDLE HORSES
Always ready at a moments notice by day or night. If you want a Nobby Turnout call at the Red Barn, Corner Main and Third Streets,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

NEW
DRUG STORE
IN GARFIELD
DR. A NELSON, Prop.

The citizens of this town and vicinity are respectfully invited to call at my new Drug Store in the town of Garfield and examine my stock of

DRUGS, MEDICINES, PAINTS, OILS AND YANKEE NOTIONS.

It is no longer necessary to go 40 or 55 miles for anything in this line, as I have a full supply at prices as reasonable as any town in the Northwest. Call and see

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON

I am also ready to answer all calls by day or night, for the practice of my profession. Call, or leave orders at my Drug Store in Garfield, Polk Co., Minn.

DR. A. NELSON.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON.

PAID IN CAPITAL,	$100,000
SURPLUS,	1,400

Money to loan on long or short time on approved security
Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.
GEO. O. ERSKINE, President.
K. D. CHASE, Vice President.
ANSEL BATES, Cashier.

A. YVERNAULT,
Dealer in General Merchandise,
—MAIN STREET.—
Crookston, Minn.

All of my friends, both old and new, are cordially invited to call and examine my stock and get prices.

Fortier's Place,
Corner Broadway and Robert Street

EVERYTHING NEW, NEAT
—AND NOBBY.—

Billiards, Pool, and the Choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars. The purest High Proof Whiskies at wholesale prices
PURE IMPORTED GOODS ON DROUGHT.

DR. M. WATTS,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
OFFICE ON ROBERT STREET.
Professional calls by day or night attended to with promptness.

P. A. DUFOUR,
Attorney and Counselor at Law,
—MAIN STREET,—
CROOKSTON, MINN.

Commercial Hotel,
W. H. TOPPING, Proprietor
SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN

First-class in all respects. Terms reasonable. A share of the public patronage solicited.

The Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Proprietor. DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. TERMS---$1.50 Per Annum.

VOL. VIII. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, SEPTEMBER 4, 1884. NO. 19

Polk County Journal.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance, to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

ADVERTISING RATES.

SPACE.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	2 m.	6 m.	1 year.
½ inch	50	$1 00	$1 15	$1 50	$3 00	4 50	$6 00
1 inch	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	5 50	6 00	10 00
2 inches	1 50	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 50	9 50	15 00
3 inches	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	9 50	13 50	20 00
4 inches	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 50	10 00	10 00	25 00
5 inches	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 50	20 00	30 00
¼ column	3 50	5 50	5 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	15 00
½ column	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	20 00	25 00	50 00
1 column	9 50	12 50	15 00	18 00	35 00	60 00	100 00

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

Republican Ticket.

For President,
JAMES G. BLAINE,
of Maine.

For Vice President,
JOHN A. LOGAN,
of Illinois.

For Representative in Congress,
HON. KNUTE NELSON,
of Alexandria.

LEGISLATIVE CANDIDATES.

The Ada Index, in its reply to our comments on its article urging the Hon. A. H. Baker for legislative candidate, lacks candor, to say the least. Instead of publishing what we said entire, thus giving its readers an opportunity to judge for themselves, it took only disconnected portions of the article and from them argues that we are in favor of every proposed candidate in the business. That's like the good old Methodist preacher you read of, who took for his text "Top-not, come down!" and preached a sermon from it. It had one good effect, however, as it caused a great many who were strangers to the words of holy writ to search the scriptures, while the text, disconnected, was utterly meaningless. We gave the Index credit of possessing, at least, common sense enough to read a newspaper article understandingly, but as it appears by the last issue of that paper that we were mistaken, we will ask that paper point blank to tell its readers what the Hon. A. H. Baker has done for the farmers to deserve this honor at their hands. The exigencies of the case demand the very best man we have to represent the people, and it is no more than fair that when a paper urges a man for the position that his claims should be definitely stated. It will not answer for a paper simply to say that the man is the only one fit for the position, giving no reasons why. It will not do for a paper to tackle such workers as Mr. Palmer and Mr. Donaldson are, attempting to murder their reputation to build up its own candidate. Every tub must stand on its own bottom, Mr. Index. We have shown the good works of those two men whom you have attacked, and if you have a better man to propose you must not hesitate to come out and say wherein he is a better. Our position was clearly defined in our previous article. We described the kind of a man that is needed and that is the kind of a man we want to see nominated. There are men having so many negative qualities that they could not do any particular harm while they would accomplish no particular good, men who, while they are honest enough not to be bribed to perform any dishonest action, are not yet positive enough, have not sufficient influence or force of character to do the business that should be done, men who, in ordinary times, might fill the bill passably, but who in such a time as this would be of no earthly use. While we should far prefer such a man to a dishonest rogue, we should also prefer to see an honest, capable, driving, energetic, thorough-going business man, a farmer, come to the front. Such a man is absolutely needed, and there should be no difficulty in finding him for many such have been developed in this fight against the Millers' Monopoly. We do not, as the Index persists in asserting, "hurrah for everybody." We are earnestly seeking to represent this district in the legislature in the interest of the farmers and business men. When we have fully decided who that man is, we shall urge his nomination to the best of our ability. Meanwhile we want the Index to confine itself to the truth—state solid facts (if possible) and let its readers know what its candidate has done to be deserving of the high honor it asks for him at the hands of the people. If the Index thinks to help its candidate by misrepresenting other candidates, the JOURNAL or any man who speaks a good word for those other candidates, that is where it makes a serious mistake as it will doubtless find sooner or later.

THE BEST MAN

Capt. H. W. Donaldson defines his position.

Kittson County Enterprise.

GENTLEMEN:—As the time approaches when some one is to be selected to represent this district in the next legislature of Minnesota, I am constantly asked the question, whether or not, I propose to be a candidate? After mature deliberation I have concluded to stand for election, and I take this method of so informing my friends, and the voters generally, throughout the district. I deem it a matter of the highest right; that, when a man presents himself as a candidate for an office in the gift of the people, his views and position with reference to the duties, and matters effecting the office he aspires to fill, should be clearly and unequivocally enunciated, and this should be emphatically so in the selection of candidates for the legislature. Holding these views, I feel bound to put myself squarely on record, so that any one honoring me with his support may do so knowingly and intelligently.

I would greatly have prefered to meet you in conventions and mass meetings, where I could talk to you personally, but at this particularly busy season of the year it is utterly impossible for me to leave my farm, so I am constrained to reach you in this way. Let me say at the outset that I have, in asking your support, no selfish ends in view, or special "axe" of my own "to grind." I hold in common with most men, that a desire to represent an intelligent and worthy constituency in the State legislature, is a laudable ambition and a distinction that any man may feel justly proud of; but there are motives of far more importance. In consequence of the deplorable condition of affairs by which our farming community is oppressed, there are measures to be adopted and laws to be enacted that ample and speedy relief may be had. I think the farmers of the Red River Valley ought to have all the true representatives of their interests in the next legislature that it is possible to secure, and I feel, with an extensive experience in this part of the country, and appreciating and sympathizing with its needs, as I do, that I could as earnestly work for and protect its interests as any man in the valley. The farming community is by no means the only sufferer, for it is well known that all other branches of business depend, to a great extent, upon the prosperity of the farmer, and what effects one member, likewise affects the body politic.

If nominated and elected as your representative I pledge my best efforts and utmost endeavors to have laws passed compelling the great railroad and other monopolies to "render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's." They must be made to understand that they are mere creatures of the State, with limited powers and privileges, and under no pretext will they be tolerated to exceed their defined bounds. The fact has been clearly demonstrated that it is the merest folly to petition and beg of them to accord us even simple justice, so our only alternative is to demand and compel them to grant it by legislative enactments. I would not support or advocate unreasonable or cranky legislation, neither the farmers, or any other class expect to want it, all they ask is justice, and that they will, and shall have, be it sooner or later.

The grading of our wheat is a matter vital to our success which should be taken out of the hands of those who are liable to be controlled or bought by the Millers' Association or other purchasers, and put in the hands of a committee of as good and reliable men as can be secured, to be appointed by State authority, receive a fair compensation for their services and be held rigidly accountable for their official actions. The man who steps in as arbiter between the wheat raiser and the wheat buyer, should be a person of unimpeachable character, a person who would mete out that exact justice between man and man with the same partiality that our judges upon the bench are supposed to act. I claim also, that railroads are arrogating to themselves rights and privileges never contemplated by the laws creating them; they should not as common carriers, presume to say that one man may buy and ship wheat, and to another, that he shall not. The buying and shipping of grain and other farm products should be open and free to all alike, whether in an elevator of 30,000, 8,000 or 800 bu. capacity. I am also unalterably in favor of low taxes and a rigid economy in the administration of our State government. Public officers are but the servants of the people, and as such should labor faithfully and industriously for the people's good.

And now in conclusion let me say that I have endeavored to place [illegible] before you in a plain straightforward way the principal motives that induced me to become a candidate for the legislature. I neither ask nor expect the support of any man who thinks I cannot represent the people [illegible] honestly, faithfully and intelligently. I will not stoop to political tricks and chicanery to secure the nomination or election, but will remain quietly at home attending to my business, and will abide the people's decision with the utmost good grace. If I shall be so fortunate as to secure the nomination and election as your next representative, I will go to St. Paul entirely untrammelled and independent, free to act for the passage and enactment of such measures and laws as will result to the best interests of all classes of my fellow citizens.

Very respectfully,
H. W. DONALDSON.
Kennedy, Aug. 26th, 1884.

The Kind of a Halrpin we Want.

The St. Vincent New Era, in commenting on the style of the man for representative, among other things says: "What do we require in the man who shall represent us in the hall of our legislature? Let us measure men by measures, and not let men measure men by men. The opportunity has come for a square honest fight, when corrupt legislation shall receive its death blow, and be trampled beneath the heel of freemen; when the halls of our Assembly shall ring with the pleas for life from the inhabitants of the Red River Valley. We are freemen! We dare assert our rights! The sovereign power is in our hands, and must find its exponent at the hand of a man who dares to stand up and denounce the unjust legislation obtained by a gigantic railroad corporation, and demand justice though the heavens fall. Compare the two office seekers; read the lines in their faces; study well the character as defined in these lines, and then decide which is the fitting man for our franchise. We want men of irreproachable character; men who can stand the fierce blaze of public opinion; men who can defy the foul breath of slander and stand unmoved; whose lives are morally pure without any stain or reproach on them. Let us look to the names sent in for nomination at the convention, and put into the offices coming vacant this fall men of whom Dr. Holland said:

"Men whom the lust of office does not kill;
Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy;
Men who possess opinion and a will;
Men who have honor; men who will not lie;
Men who can stand before a demagogue,
And damn his treacherous flatteries without winking;
Tall men, sun-browned, who live above the fog
In public duty and in private thinking."

PROTECTIVE DUTIES AND PRICES.

From the Independent.

The theory of all protective duties is to defend home industry against being undersold in its own market by the products of foreign labor. The necessity for this protection is founded on the fact that without it the home producer cannot, in his own market, compete with the foreign producer, owing to a difference in the cost of production, arising from a difference in the price of the raw material, or the rate of wages, or both put together. Where such a difference exists, there the cost of production must be virtually equalized, or the foreign product, by reason of its greater cheapness, will drive the home product out of its own market, destroy the domestic industries which create the latter, and take the monopoly of the market to itself. The object of a tariff based on the simple idea of protection is virtually to increase the cost of foreign product, and in this way enable the home producer, who pays higher wages, to compete with the foreign producer. Its direct effect is to bring up the price of the foreign article in the home market to the point at which it can be profitably produced and sold in this country. Its indirect effect is to foster all the domestic industries engaged in such production.

Now, the common allegation of the free trader against such protection consists in saying that, by lifting the price of the foreign article to the mark at which the domestic product of the same kind can be furnished, it so far enhances the money cost to the consumer. He has to pay more for the article than he would if there were no tariff. Some who profess to believe in a tariff for revenue, but not for protection, urge the same objection, not perceiving that the objection is just as applicable to a revenue tariff as it is to one that is protective. All tariff duties, whether levied for revenue or protection, just so far put the foreign product under a disadvantage, as compared with the domestic.

Let it then be granted that the effect of a protective tariff, in the outset, is to raise the money price of the foreign product to the point at which home industry can successfully compete with it in its own market, and where is the harm to the country imposing the tariff. It should be remembered that this question of prices, as represented by money is purely one of relations. High prices for commodities, with their equivalent in high wages and ample employment for labor, are certainly better for the people than low prices for commodities with low wages and a vast amount of [illegible] labor, starving for the want of employment. If they pay [illegible] more money [illegible] one another for what they consume, they have more to pay with and far greater facilities for earning money. If tariff duties foster domestic labor and create a demand for it, and keep wages up to a living rate (as is the fact,) then the increased cost of commodities is met by an abundant equivalent. Even if labor permanently pays more for what it consumes, it just as permanently earns more.

Consumers and producers, in this country are not different and antagonizing classes, but to a large extent identically the same persons, holding this two-fold relation to each other. They produce and consume at the same time. If, therefore, a protective tariff increases the cost of what they consume, it also fosters, enlarges, and diversifies the industry by which they produce, while at the same time it diminishes the competition for the sale of labor in the home market be the greater demand for labor, and in this way guards against a reduction of wages. It makes one set of men the producers of what another set consume, and defends all against injurious invasions by the poorly-paid labor of other countries. If in the outset it takes more from the consumer than would otherwise be taken, it gives more to the producer and, since producers and consumers are, in nine cases out of ten, the same person—one consuming what another produces—a protective tariff places them in helpful relations to each other.

It should be added that this early enhancement of money prices by no means represents the final and permanent result of a protective tariff. It destroys, in the first instance, the monopoly of the home market by the foreign producer, and always keeps the market price of the foreign product down to the point at which domestic industry can afford to supply the same article. This point is the maximum above which the foreign commodity cannot rise without at once being undersold by the domestic commodity, and in this way driven out of the market. A protective tariff always has the merit of holding the foreign producer under restraint as to prices by the capabilities of home production. Having put him under this permanent check, from which he cannot escape by the very laws of trade, it then brings into existence a large amount and variety of home production to supply the wants of the home market. As this production increases in quantity, and cheapens in its cost processes, it can be afforded at a less rate of prices; and, hence, by a natural law of competition among home producers, it ultimately comes down to its appropriate price level with other things in the home market. The history of all well-adjusted protective tariffs is this: first, a temporary enhancement of prices during the period in which domestic production is struggling with foreign; secondly, a gradual and ultimate reduction of prices to the point at which domestic production, with all the skill and improvement of processes which it naturally begets, can afford to supply the home market. Just as soon as the rivalry between foreign and domestic production is ended, by the victory of the latter, the laws of trade forthwith begin to reduce prices to the proper point; and surely any reduction below this mark is not for the interest of the community. Wages will grade themselves to other things, and the prices of home products will grade themselves to wages. Thus the profits of capital invested in production and the wages of labor engaged in production will reciprocally seek and come to their natural level under the general laws of competition. Any reduction of prices below this level, so far from being a benefit, is a serious evil to the community.

In a word, a protective tariff leaves the question of prices to regulate itself in the home market, without interference by the disturbing rivalry of other countries in which wages are cheaper, capital more abundant, and productive skill in a more advanced stage. It takes out of the home market the incubus of this foreign power, and prepares it to act freely under its own domestic impulses. Those who regard this as an evil, which they would correct by free trade, are sadly mistaken in their estimate of facts. Their theory simply makes a community largely composed of paupers and beggars, while the opposite gives one of self-supporting producers and consumers, mutually contributing to each other's prosperity. About the worst thing for itself that this nation could do would be to abandon the theory of protection and adopt that of free trade. Foreign countries would at once flood this country with various commodities at cheaper rates than can be produced here, unless we adopt their system of wages and can at once extemporize their skill in production. We must either transfer the European standard of wages to these shores or protect certain departments of our [illegible]

Stewart & Lawrence,

—DEALERS IN—

Lumber, Sash, Doors, Mouldings,

Building Paper, &c.

1st Com. Dim's and Boards, rough,	$18	Siding, dry	$18
2d " " " "	16	Flooring "	21
3d " " " "	14	Lath	3
Ship Lap, dry	17	Shingles	2

☞ A full stock of Sash, Doors, Casings, Mouldings, Eve Troughs and Building Paper constantly on hand.

NEW YORK STORE!

Dry Goods, Notions, Shawls.

Ladies' Fine Pebble Goat Slippers, Opera cut, reduced to $1.00
Ladies' extra-fine American kid hand turned sole slippers, $1.50
These slippers are geouine bargnins.
We have a full line of Ladies' and Misses Grey Bro's

FINE SHOES!

Spring heel shoes for men ana children.
Gents hand sewed shoes.
" " " walking shoes.
" " " hunting boots.

We carry a full line of Forepaugh & Tarbox custom made goods for Gents', Ladies' and Misses'.

We have a few odd sizes in Men's Heavy Boots that we are closing out Cheap.

PROUD & MACDONELL.

Johnson & Stevens,

FISHER AND CROOKSTON,

WILL NEGOTIATE LOANS

Through the Corbin Banking Co., New York,

[illegible]

SELL MINNESOTA CHIEF

Threshers and Engines,

Deering and Esterly Binders,
Studebaker Wagons,
and a variety of Rakes, Mowers, Plows, Etc., Etc.

KEEP A MORE

COMPLETE LINE OF REPAIRS

than any agency in the County.

Twine and Wire In Season.

BROADWAY

Meat Market.

FRANK JEROME & CO.,

Fresh and Salt Meats

FOR ALL KINDS OF

VEGETABLES

In their season. All goods delivered if requested.

CITY ICE HOUSE!

E. D. SCHRAEDER & CO., Proprietors,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

Having purchased the ice house business of Ruedy & Kindler, and put up during the past winter from 75,000 to 100,000 tons of ice, we are now prepared to supply the trade the coming summer at reasonable figures.

E. D. SCHRAEDER & CO.

DENTISTRY.

J. H. THOMAS, D. D. S.,
ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

Artificial Teeth from one to an entire set, inserted. Gold, Silver or Artificial Filling used as desired. Regulating Children's Teeth a specialty. ALL WORK WARRANTED.

EIKEN BROS.,

Corner of Fletcher and Main Stree
Crookston, Minn.

Dealers in

HARDWARE, TIWARE,

STOVES,

—AND—

SHELFWARE.

WE KEEP A

FULL & COMPLETE

STOCK,

—AND—

Invite the Patronage

OF ALL.

A. H. DUNLOP M. D.,

Graduate McGill University, Montreal.

LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON QUEBEC.

Office on Robert Street, Crookston.

I have a good Hotel for sale, located right in the business part of the city.
H. W. LEWIS.

ELLIS & JOHNSON,

AGENTS FOR THE

WALTER A. WOOD

Mowing and Reaping

MACHINE COMPANY.

A Full Line of Repairs and Twine constantly on Hand.

Robert Street.
Opposite Old Mill. CROOKSTON, MINN.

AIME GABOURY,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Graduate Doctor in Medicine Laval University Canada. Licensed Coll. Phy. Surg., Quebec Late of Michigan University, U. S.

Office over the "Arcade" Clothing Store,
CROOKSTON MINN.

M. M. VAN DYKE,

Physician and Surgeon,

Corner of Main and Second Streets,
ROOKSTON MINN

Will attend to all professional calls promptly.

MERCHANTS'

Bank of Crookston.

H. B. MONTGOMERY.........President,
St. Paul, Minn.
M. R. BROWN..............Vice President,
Crookston, Minn.
J. KELSO.........Second Vice President,
Bellevue, Iowa.
Wm. ROSS..........................Cashier,
Crookston, Minn.

CASH CAPITAL, $32,000

SURPLUS, $16,533.82.

Will receive deposits and allow interest by special contract.

Buy and Sell Foreign and Domestic Exchange, make collections, and do a strictly legitimate business.

Agents for foreign passage tickets.

De Skandinaviske Sprog tales her.

WM. ROSS, Cashier.

ATTENTION

Now is the Time to Build

While you can buy

Cream Brick

at Very Low Figures. The Best Brick ever made in the Red River Valley. Manufactured by

SWANSON & KOEPPE,

[11-18] Crookston, Minn.

SECOND STREET

MEAT MARKET

STANTON & CO., Proprietors.

Choice meats of every description. Fish and game in their season. Everything of the very best quality and lowest prices. Call and see us.

STANTON & CO.
Dobson's Block, Second Street.

The Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Proprietor.
DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY.
TERMS—$1.50 Per Annum.
VOL. VIII.
CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, SEPTEMBER 4, 1884.
NO. 19

Polk County Journal.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance, to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

ADVERTISING RATES.

SPACE.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	2 m.	6 m.	1 year.
½ inch	50	$1 00	$1 15	$1 50	$3 00	4 50	$6 00
1 inch	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	5 00	6 00	10 00
2 inches	1 50	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 50	9 50	15 00
3 inches	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	9 50	13 50	20 00
4 inches	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 50	10 00	10 00	25 00
5 inches	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 50	20 00	30 00
¼ column	3 50	5 50	5 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	35 00
½ column	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	20 00	35 00	50 00
1 column	9 50	12 50	15 00	18 00	35 00	60 00	100 00

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

Republican Ticket.

For President,
JAMES G. BLAINE,
of Maine.

For Vice President,
JOHN A. LOGAN,
of Illinois.

For Representative in Congress,
HON. KNUTE NELSON,
of Alexandria.

LEGISLATIVE CANDIDATES.

The Ada Index, in its reply to our comments on its article urging the Hon. A. H. Baker, for legislative candidate, lacks candor, to say the least. Instead of publishing what we said entire, thus giving its readers an opportunity to judge for themselves, it took only disconnected portions of the article and from them argues that we are in favor of every proposed candidate in the business. That's like the good old Methodist preacher you read of, who took for his text "Top-not, come down!" and preached a sermon from it. It had one good effect, however, as it caused a great many who were strangers to the words of holy writ to search the scriptures, while the text, disconnected, was utterly meaningless. We gave the Index credit of possessing, at least, common sense enough to read a newspaper article understandingly, but as it appears by the last issue of that paper that we were mistaken, we will ask that paper point blank to tell its readers what the Hon. A. H. Baker has done for the farmers to deserve this honor at their hands. The exigencies of the case demand the very best man we have to represent the people, and it is no more than fair that when a paper urges a man for the position that his claims should be definitely stated. It will not answer for a paper simply to say that the man is the only one fit for the position, giving no reasons why. It will not do for a paper to tackle such workers as Mr. Palmer and Mr. Donaldson, are, attempting to murder their reputation to build up its own candidate. Every tub must stand on its own bottom, Mr. Index. We have shown the good works of those two men whom you have attacked, and if you have a better man to propose you must not hesitate to come out and say wherein he is a better. Our position was clearly defined in our previous article. We described the kind of a man that is needed, and that is the kind of a man we want to see nominated. There are men having so many negative qualities that they could not do any particular harm, while they would accomplish no particular good; men who, while they are honest enough not to be bribed to perform any dishonest action, are not yet positive enough, have not sufficient influence or force of character to do the business that should be done, men who, in ordinary times, might fill the bill passably, but who in such a time as this would be of no earthly use. While we should far prefer such a man to a dishonest rogue, we should also prefer to see an honest, capable, driving, energetic, thorough-going business man, a farmer, come to the front. Such a man is absolutely needed and there should be no difficulty in finding him, for many such have been developed in this fight against the Millers Monopoly. We do not, as the Index persists in asserting, "hurrah for everybody." We are earnestly seeking THE BEST MAN to represent this district in the legislature in the interest of the farmers and business men. When we have fully decided who that man is we shall urge his nomination to the best of our ability. [illegible]

Capt. H. W. Donaldson defines his position.

Kittson County Enterprise.

GENTLEMEN:—As the time approaches when some one is to be selected to represent this district in the next legislature of Minnesota, I am constantly asked the question, whether or not, I propose to be a candidate? After mature deliberation I have concluded to stand for election, and I take this method of so informing my friends, and the voters generally throughout the district. I deem it a matter of the highest right, that, when a man presents himself as a candidate for an office in the gift of the people, his views and position with reference to the duties, and matters effecting the office he aspires to fill, should be clearly and unequivocally enunciated, and this should be emphatically so in the selection of candidates for the legislature. Holding these views, I feel bound to put myself squarely on record, so that any one honoring me with his support may do so knowingly and intelligently.

I would greatly have prefered to meet you in conventions and mass meetings, where I could talk to you personally, but at this particularly busy season of the year it is utterly impossible for me to leave my farm, so I am constrained to reach you in this way. Let me say at the outset, that I have, in asking your support, no selfish ends in view, or special "axe" of my own "to grind." I hold in common with most men, that a desire to represent an intelligent and worthy constituency in the State legislature, is a laudable ambition and a distinction that any man may feel justly proud of, but there are motives of far more importance. In consequence of the deplorable condition of affairs by which our farming community is oppressed, there are measures to be adopted and laws to be enacted that ample and speedy relief may be had. I think the farmers of the Red River Valley ought to have all the true representatives of their interests in the next legislature that it is possible to secure, and I feel, with an extensive experience in this part of the country, and appreciating and sympathizing with its needs, as I do, that I could as earnestly work for and protect its interests as any man in the valley. The farming community is by no means the only sufferer, for it is well known that all other branches of business depend, to a great extent, upon the prosperity of the farmer, and what effects one member, likewise affects the body politic.

If nominated and elected as your representative I pledge my best efforts and utmost endeavors to have laws passed compelling the great railroad and other monopolies to "render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's." They must be made to understand that they are mere creatures of the State, with limited powers and privileges, and under no pretext will they be tolerated to exceed their defined bounds. The fact has been clearly demonstrated that it is the merest folly to petition and beg of them to accord us even simple justice, so our only alternative is to demand and compel them to grant it by legislative enactments. I would not support or advocate unreasonable or cranky legislation, neither the farmers, or any other class expect to want it, all they ask is justice, and that they will, and shall have, be it sooner or later.

The grading of our wheat is a matter vital to our success, which should be taken out of the hands of those who are liable to be controlled or bought by the Millers' Association or other purchasers, and put in the hands of a committee of as good and reliable men as can be secured, to be appointed by State authority, receive a fair compensation for their services, and be held rigidly accountable for their official actions. The man who steps in as arbiter between the wheat raiser and the wheat buyer, should be a person of unimpeachable character, a person who would mete out that exact justice between man and man with the same partiality that our judges upon the bench are supposed to act. I claim, also, that railroads are arrogating to themselves rights and privileges never contemplated by the laws creating them; they should not, as common carriers, presume to say that one man may buy and ship wheat, and to another [illegible] honestly, faithfully and intelligently. I will not stoop to political tricks and chicanery to secure the nomination or election, but will remain quietly at home attending to my business, and will abide the people's decision with the utmost good grace. If I shall be so fortunate as to secure the nomination and election as your next representative, I will go to St. Paul entirely untrammelled and independent, free to act for the passage and enactment of such measures and laws as will result to the best interests of all classes of my fellow citizens.

Very respectfully,
H. W. DONALDSON.
Kennedy, Aug. 28th, 1884.

The Kind of a Hairpin we Want.

The St. Vincent New Era, in commenting on the style of the man for representative, among other things says: "What do we require in the man who shall represent us in the hall of our legislature? Let us measure men by measures, and not let men measure men by men. The opportunity has come for a square honest fight, when corrupt legislation shall receive its death blow, and be trampled beneath the heel of freemen; when the halls of our Assembly shall ring with the pleas for life from the inhabitants of the Red River Valley. We are freemen! We dare assert our rights! The sovereign power is in our hands, and must find its exponent at the hand of a man who dares to stand up and denounce the unjust legislation obtained by a gigantic railroad corporation, and demand justice though the heavens fall. Compare the two office seekers, read the lines in their faces, study well the character as defined in these lines, and then decide which is the fitting man for our franchise. We want men of irreproachable character; men who can stand the fierce blaze of public opinion; men who can defy the foul breath of slander and stand unmoved; whose lives are morally pure without any stain or reproach on them. Let us look to the names sent in for nomination at the convention, and put into the offices coming vacant this fall men of whom Dr. Holland said:

> "Men whom the lust of office does not kill;
> Men whom the spoils of office cannot buy;
> Men who possess opinion and a will;
> Men who have honor; men who will not lie;
> Men who can stand before a demagogue,
> And damn his treacherous flatteries without winking;
> Tall men, sun-browned, who live above the fog
> In public duty and in private thinking."

PROTECTIVE DUTIES AND PRICES.

From the Independent.

The theory of all protective duties is to defend home industry against being undersold in its own market by the products of foreign labor. The necessity for this protection is founded on the fact that without it the home producer cannot, in his own market, compete with the foreign producer, owing to a difference in the cost of production, arising from a difference in the price of the raw material, or the rate of wages, or both put together. Where such a difference exists, there the cost of production must be virtually equalized, or the foreign product, by reason of its greater cheapness, will drive the home product out of its own market, destroy the domestic industries which create the latter, and take the monopoly of the market to itself. The object of a tariff based on the simple idea of protection is virtually to increase the cost of foreign product, and in this way enable the home producer, who pays higher wages, to compete with the foreign producer. Its direct effect is to bring up the price of the foreign article in the home market to the point at which it can be profitably produced and sold in this country. Its indirect effect is to foster all the domestic industries engaged in such production.

Now, the common allegation of the free trader against such protection consists in saying that by lifting the price of the foreign article to the mark at which the domestic product of the same kind can be furnished, it so far enhances the money cost to the consumer. He has to pay more for the article than he would if there were no tariff. Some who profess to believe in a tariff for revenue, but not for protection, urge the same objection, not perceiving that the objection is just as applicable to a revenue tariff as it is to one that is protective. All tariff duties, whether levied for revenue or protection, must so far put the foreign product under [illegible] other for what they consume, they have more to pay with and far greater facilities for earning money. If tariff duties foster domestic labor and create a demand for it, and keep wages up to a living rate (as is the fact,) then the increased cost of commodities is met by an abundant equivalent. Even if labor permanently pays more for what it consumes, it just as permanently earns more.

Consumers and producers in this country are not different and antagonizing classes, but to a large extent identically the same persons, holding this two-fold relation to each other. They produce and consume at the same time. If, therefore, a protective tariff increases the cost of what they consume, it also fosters, enlarges, and diversifies the industry by which they produce, while at the same time it diminishes the competition for the sale of labor in the home market be the greater demand for labor, and in this way guards against a reduction of wages. It makes one set of men the producers of what another set consume, and defends all against injurious invasions by the poorly-paid labor of other countries. If in the outset it takes more from the consumer than would otherwise be taken, it gives more to the producer and, since producers and consumers are, in nine cases out of ten, the same person—one consuming what another produces—a protective tariff places them in helpful relations to each other.

It should be added that this early enhancement of money prices by no means represents the final and permanent result of a protective tariff. It destroys, in the first instance, the monopoly of the home market by the foreign producer, and always keeps the market price of the foreign product down to the point at which domestic industry can afford to supply the same article. This point is the maximum above which the foreign commodity cannot rise without at once being undersold by the domestic commodity, and in this way driven out of the market. A protective tariff always has the merit of holding the foreign producer under restraint as to prices by the capabilities of home production. Having put him under this permanent check, from which he cannot escape by the very laws of trade, it then brings into existence a large amount and variety of home production to supply the wants of the home market. As this production increases in quantity, and cheapens in its cost processes, it can be afforded at a less rate of prices; and, hence, by a natural law of competition among home producers, it ultimately comes down to its appropriate price level with other things in the home market. The history of all well-adjusted protective tariffs is this: first, a temporary enhancement of prices during the period in which domestic production is struggling with foreign; secondly, a gradual and ultimate reduction of prices to the point at which domestic production, with all the skill and improvement of processes which it naturally begets, can afford to supply the home market. Just as soon as the rivalry between foreign and domestic production is ended by the victory of the latter, the laws of trade forthwith begin to reduce prices to the proper point, and surely any reduction below this mark is not for the interest of the community. Wages will grade themselves to other things, and the prices of home products will grade themselves to wages. Thus the profits of capital invested in production and the wages of labor engaged in production will reciprocally seek and come to their natural level under the general laws of competition. Any reduction of prices below this level, so far from being a benefit, is a serious evil to the community.

In a word, a protective tariff leaves the question of prices to regulate itself in the home market without interference by the disturbing rivalry of other countries in which wages are cheaper, capital more abundant, and productive skill in a more advanced stage. It takes out of the home market the incubus of this foreign power, and prepares it to act freely under its own domestic impulses. Those who regard this as an evil which they would correct by free trade are sadly mistaken in their estimate of facts. Their theory simply makes a community largely composed of paupers and beggars, while the opposite system [illegible]

Stewart & Lawrence,

—DEALERS IN—

Lumber, Sash, Doors, Mouldings,

Building Paper, &c.

1st Com. Dim's and Boards, rough,	$18	Siding, dry	$18
2d " " " "	16	Flooring, "	21
3d " " " "	14	Lath,	3
Ship Lap, dry	17	Shingles	2

☞ A full stock of Sash, Doors, Casings, Mouldings, Eve Troughs and Building Paper constantly on hand.

NEW YORK STORE!

Dry Goods, Notions, Shawls.

Ladies' Fine Pebble Goat Slippers, Opera cut, reduced to $1.00
Ladies' extra-fine American kid hand turned sole slippers, $1.50
These slippers are geouine bargnins.
We have a full line of Ladies' and Misses Grey Bro's

FINE SHOES!

Spring heel shoes for men ana children.
Gents hand sewed shoes.
" " " walking shoes.
" " " hunting boots.

We carry a full line of Forepaugh & Tarbox custom made goods for Gents', Ladies' and Misses'.

We have a few odd sizes in Men's Heavy Boots that we are closing out Cheap.

PROUD & MACDONELL.

Johnson & Stevens,

FISHER AND CROOKSTON,

WILL NEGOTIATE LOANS

Through the Corbin Banking Co., New York,

SELL MINNESOTA CHIEF

Threshers and Engines,

Deering and Esterly Binders,
Studebaker Wagons,
and a variety of Rakes, Mowers,
Plows, Etc., Etc.

KEEP A MORE

COMPLETE LINE OF REPAIRS

than any agency in the County.

Twine and Wire In Season.

BROADWAY

Meat Market.

FRANK JEROME & CO.,

Fresh and Salt Meats

VEGETABLES.

[illegible]

CITY ICE HOUSE!

E. D. SCHRAEDER & CO., Proprietors.
CROOKSTON MINN

Having purchased the ice house business of Ruedy & Kindler, and put up during the past winter from 75,000 to 100,000 tons of ice, we are now prepared to supply the trade the coming summer at reasonable figures.

E. D. SCHRAEDER & CO.

DENTISTRY.

J. THOMAS, D.D.S.

[illegible]

EIKEN BROS.,

Corner of Fletcher and Main Stree
Crookston, Minn.

Dealers in

HARDWARE, TIWARE,

STOVES,

—AND—

SHELFWARE.

WE KEEP A

FULL AND COMPLETE

STOCK,

—AND—

Invite the Patronage

OF ALL.

A. H. DUNLOP M. D.,

Graduate McGill University, Montreal.

LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON QUEBEC.

Office on Robert Street, Crookston.

I have a good Hotel for sale, located right in the business part of the city.
H. W. LEWIS.

ELLIS & JOHNSON,

AGENTS FOR THE

WALTER A. WOOD

Mowing and Reaping

MACHINE COMPANY.

A Full Line of Repairs and Twine constantly on Hand.

Robert Street.
Opposite Old Mill.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

AIME GABOURY,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Graduate Doctor in Medicine Laval University Canada. Licensed Coll. Phy. Surg., Quebec Late of Michigan University, U. S.

Office over the "Arcade" Clothing Store,
CROOKSTON MINN

M. M. VAN DYKE,

Physician and Surgeon,

Corner of Main and Second Streets,
ROOKSTON MINN

Will attend to all professional calls promptly.

MERCHANTS'

Bank of Crookston.

H. B. MONTGOMERY.........President,
St. Paul, Minn.
M. R, BROWN,............Vice President,
Crookston, Minn.
J. KELSO.........Second Vice President,
Bellevue, Iowa.
Wm. ROSS............................Cashier,
Crookston, Minn.

CASH CAPITAL, $32,000

SURPLUS, $16,533.82.

Will receive deposits and allow interest by special contract.

Buy and Sell Foreign and Domestic Exchange, make collections, and do a strictly legitimate business.

Agents for foreign passage tickets.

De Skandinaviske Sprog tales her.

WM. ROSS, Cashier.

ATTENTION

Now is the Time to Build

While you can buy

Cream Brick

At Very Low Figures. The Best Brick ever made in the Red River Valley. Manufactured by

SWANSON & KOEPPE,
[11-18] Crookston, Minn.

SECOND STREET

MEAT MARKET

STANTON & CO., Proprietors.

Choice meats of every description. Fish and game in their season. Everything of the very best quality and lowest prices. Call and see us.

STANTON & CO.
Dodson's Block, Second Street.

Polk County Journal.

Crookston, Minn., Thursday, September 4.

'ROUND HOME.

Sheriff Zwickey still continues to improve.

Peter A. Huss has gone to Yankton to live.

Our city schools take up next Monday for the fall term.

Mr. F. Bivins has his grain all cut and is now ready to pound it out.

A sidewalk is being built on Robert Street, from Ash Street to the wagon bridge.

The wheat of Polk County is nearly all cut and threshing out of the shock commenced.

A few loads of new wheat have appeared in this market and sold for No. 1 Hard at 66 cents.

But little new wheat has appeared in this market as yet the prices offered does not encourage a rush.

Lee & Herrick have not purchased an engine for their flouring mills but intend doing so at an early date.

Tom Box has the western fever. He expects to go to Dakota, out on the new branch, as express messenger.

Montague & Wight have moved into Nolan's building on Robert Street, two doors west of Fortier's place, up stairs.

Rev. T. F. Allen of Grand Forks will occupy the pulpit of the Methodist church next Sunday, morning and evening.

Bert Bivins rode in on Tuesday. He is recovering slowly from the effects of his wrestle with the keester of ye drummer.

John Wyand finished cutting 475 acres of grain on Tuesday. He has 300 acres of wheat which he thinks will pan out splendidly.

Frank Gooding's restaurant is a very neat and attractive place. Frank is bound to keep a neat place if he don't lay up a cent and he deserves a good trade.

The new Receiver, L. K. Aaker, is expected on Saturday or Monday next. The Land Office has notice that he will come as soon as his commission is received from Washington.

We would not strike a woman under any circumstances, but we must acknowledge that when we see a girl wearing one of those horrible garments known as "Mother Hubbards," we feel inclined to give her a belt.

A drive into Fairfax on Monday showed the wheat to be nearly all cut and in the shock. A few are making preparations to thresh out of the shock, which, as the season is a wet one seems to us to be a risky thing to do.

Chris Sather has the finest piece of timothy meadow we have ever seen in this (or any other) country. It is a perfect mat of green grass with a good, even, thick sod. That piece is good for over two tons of fine timothy hay in its season.

The little 4 year old son of Michael Horton at Maple Lake, while playing in the yard with his older brother fell and broke his leg. Dr. Nelson, of Fertile, was called who patched up the boy in good shape. This same lad broke his arm last winter.

Reports from several parties who are are threshing out of the shock show a falling off from last year's yield of from four to six bushels per acre. When the returns are all in we predict that the yield of '84 will not exceed that of '83, if indeed it reaches that figure.

A. E. Cooke has rented the ground on Ash Street of Wm. Ross to build a skating rink. He left on the train Saturday evening for material. The work will be commenced immediately and be pushed as fast as possible. The size of the rink will be 75x150.

Mr. Chalmers Potter, of Vail, Iowa, has purchased Mr. Beecher's interest in the firm of Beecher & George, and the firm name will now be Potter & George. The new firm will carry on the business at the old stand and bespeak a share of the public patronage.

Ehle Allen, son of Col. Allen, of the Merchants hotel, St. Paul, has organized a show, consisting of Sitting Bull and family and a number of Sioux Indians which will take the road soon traveling through Eastern States and if successful then will extend the trip to Europe.

Rev. S. Currie said to a JOURNAL reporter last week: "The great bugbear of grain raising is threshing, but I have a tread horsepower thresher that reduces the expense very materially." This machine Mr. Currie has successfully used upon his own farm near Euclid to his entire satisfaction. He usually threshes from the shock.

A threshing machine with a tread horsepower went through on Saturday bound for Angus, consigned to A. E. Brush. Mr. S. Currie is the agent for these machines and the cost is $800. If our farmers generally had barns these machines would work in very handy, as the threshing could then be done in the winter when help is cheap. They are also said to work in handy in threshing out of the shock, requiring less help. An ordinary farmer can handle them with the amount of help required in harvesting. We should think, however, that they would be [illegible]

Mayor Walsh is taking in the great Minneapolis Fair this week.

See the new ad of Potter & George in this issue and drop in and see what they offer.

Auditor McGuire has 80 acres of fine wheat on Section 10, Fairfax. Mac makes a good granger.

Peter Cornelius finished cutting 700 acres of grain on Monday. He will thresh the bulk of it from the shock.

Terry & Collins have recently purchased a fine young team, of the famous Star Bashaw stock. They are dandies and no mistake.

Johnie Hack, of the firm of Hack & Gallasch, left for St. Paul last Monday evening to lay in a large stock of goods for the fall and winter trade.

St. Paul Globe: P. J. Lachapelle, of Crookston, has brought to the fair a pair of elk, an antelope, and a peculiar animal which he says is a cross between an elk and a moose. On Friday he will give an exibition trot with his elk, hitched to a sulky.

On Sunday night, during the storm, five cattle, belonging to the Hemmelsback brothers, in Fairfax were struck by lightning and killed. They were lying down near a wire fence at the time. The fence posts for several rods were shivered to smithereens.

Bakken and Johnson have purchased of Johnson & Stephens a Minnesota Chief Thresher and engine and will take the field in the neighborhood of Maple Lake this fall. They intend to do work as reasonable as any and lots of it.

A man was brought in from the country last Friday evening who had his left hand badly mashed in a harvesting machine. He was taken to Dr. Van Dyke's office where the wound was dressed, all the hand being saved except the forefinger, which was amputated. At last accounts the man was getting along nicely.

Mr. Wm. W. Payne, Director of the Carleton College Observatory, was in the city on Monday with a view to the establishment of a signal service station at Crookston. He met with much encouragement from prominent citizens and we trust the plan will be made a success as it deserves. It will cost but a trifle and will be worth many times its cost.

Mr. Beecher, who has recently returned from a trip up in the Thief River country reports that the new hotel that Kretzschmar & Kratke are building was blown down in the high wind that prevailed on Wednesday night August 20th. He says that he saw some excellent country during his travels and as he did not go outside of Polk County we are prepared to believe it.

Ernest Moeckel went out in the country last Thursday, and while there he was soliciting insurance. He went to see a farmer by the name of Daniel Gerlach Thursday afternoon, and tried to persuade him to take out some insurance, but the farmer was so busy with his work that he did not have time to talk about it, so Mr. Moeckel told him he would call again in the morning, which he did, and found the farmer's property all burned up.

Elsewhere we publish an able address to the voters of the District from Capt. H. W. Donaldson, of Kennedy, which seems to have a ring of the true metal and we hereby extend a cordial invitation to the other aspirants to come to the front and show their hand. Place yourselves squarely on record, gentlemen and let the people know who you are, what you are and what you intend to do. That's what they are interested in knowing, and the columns of the JOURNAL are open to such communications.

Mr. I. B. Van Housen went out to Section 4 in Fairfax on Monday to see Bob Houston's reapers at work in a hundred acre field of wheat that is good for 25 bushels No. 1 Hard per acre, after which he went out to the Corser farm to see 13 reapers at work in a string on the same kind of wheat. He says we have a grand, great country up here. The sight of 18 reapers at work on a section of wheat, with the golden sheaves lying around thicker than the bodies on a hotly contested battle-field was a novel sight to him and far more agreeable. He informed our reporter that he should not blame us much if we bragged about this country considerably. He says it will stand lots of it.

The Pioneer Press has a long article endeavoring to show that farmers will actually make more money now out of their wheat than they did last year because everything they purchase now is cheaper than it was then. But it figures upon the basis of a large increase of wheat of '84 over '83. If we had more wheat this year than last this theory might be true, but we have [illegible]. The threshing machine in Iowa and Missouri lowered the estimates made on winter wheat on an average of at least one third and so it will be in the Northwest. We predict that events will show that we have raised no more wheat this year than we did last, then wherein will we make more money on a lower than a higher price. [illegible]

Dr. Jacobus has gone down to take in the big Minneapolis fair.

Mr. C. Churchill has painted the Baptist chapel in fine style.

Miss Josephine Sletten has gone to a convent school at St. Paul.

Mr. I. U. Jennings has his house newly painted. It looks nicely.

C. C. Ulzinger and family went up to the farm at St. Hilaire on Wednesday.

Friend Bigham, of Bigham & Olafson, is taking in the great Minneapolis Fair this week.

S. P. Norton has finished cutting 600 acres of grain and is pounding out the No. 1 Hard.

Toby Valcar went out fishing on Sunday and caught only one bullfrog. Toby says he will fish no more on Sunday.

Phil Porger brought us a sample of cabbage that lays over anything we have seen. Phil always has great success raising vegetables.

Mr. Cook, the man who is going to put up the large skating rink here, has returned, and work on the building will soon be commenced and pushed as rapidly as possible.

The C. C. Band went out to the residence of Chas. Wiedenhoeffer on Sunday. On that same day a little 13 pound boy arrived who will call Charlie daddy, as soon as he gets old enough to speak.

Mr. I. B. Van Housen, arrived from Prattsburgh, Steuben Co., N. Y., on Saturday on a visit to his son, Clark. He has been looking the country over and expresses himself highly pleased with what he has seen of Crookston and vicinity. He will carry back a good report to the old country. On Tuesday he went out to the Devil's Lake country with Fred Chapin, returning on Wednesday. He will probably start for home the first of next week.

A three days Sunday School Institute will be held at the Baptist chapel Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. General Sunday School Missionary Bostwick, of Dakota, and "Uncle Boston" will be here. Special service Sunday morning and evening by D. E. Bostwick. Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock "Uncle Boston" will preach a sermon to all the children of the city. This is his sermon with the magnet. Don't fail to come, children, and for particulars all good folks open your ears on Sunday.

A good story is told of a prominent citizen who was at the Park Garden rather late and who, starting out for home about an hour or so before his companions struck the race course and mistaking it for the road home stretched out at about a 2:00¼ pace for home. When the companions aforesaid came out to go home they met him, and in a dazed sort of a way he inquired of them if he had not got about home yet. He was quite sure he had walked fast and far enough. They gathered him in and took him along reaching home before morning.

To Rent.

A good house containing ten rooms, located in the center of the city. Good cellar, well and stables. Inquire of H. W. Lewis.

For Sale Cheap.

A complete set of bar fixtures. Call on August Weutzel for particulars. [19-tf]

The best five cent cigars is at the Red Star Grocery, Broadway. [51-tf]

The United States Internal Revenue Special Tax is due May 1st. Any information and a full line of blanks can be had by calling on or addressing.

JOHN McLEAN,
Attorney at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

PIANO TUNING.

Any parties having pianos or organs that need tuning or repairing can have their work satisfactorily done by leaving orders at the Linton House. Satisfaction guaranteed.

[9-tf] E. F. WHEELDEN.

LIST OF LETTERS

Remaining uncalled for in the Crookston Post Office, for the week ending September 1st, 1884. Persons calling for these letters will please say "advertised."

Anderson, Edward
Buvin, Joseph
Cabulla, Johanna
Carmichall, Robert
Dale, Gulik
Espe, Nellie O
Fredrickson, John
Fletcher, Lawrence R
Farley, W K
Hensen, Torsen
Halvorson, R.
Haskell, Moses
Kaarstad, Peder R
Larson, Ludvig
Langlas, Johanny
Lindholm, Gustaf A
Munson, Peter
Mollo, Lars
Michels, C & J
Mesedalen, Peder A
Merriam, Will
McGregor, Mrs A
Netteland, Haakon
Oleson, G N
Pilon, Maggie
Parlmahsimer, John
Rud, E.
Raid, Mrs. Maria
Stenstrud, Julia
Saley, Gunda Olson
Sandmoen, Christopher
Sell, William
Sandoden, Halvor A
Selsuble, George
Stenlund, Kristen P
Skare, K.
Trombley, John P
Teabow, John

REGISTERED LETTERS.

JoDanion, Maria L
Nerland, Sevrand L.
Hunt, J M.

D. JACOBUS, P. M.

THE DUTCH FRIESIAN OR HOLSTEIN!

The Best Breed of Cattle in the World.

The Dutch Friesian, or Holstein, is without doubt constitutionally the most robust and vigorous race of cattle in America. It has never been pampered by over feeding, nor weakened by in and in breeding, and possesses a wonderful capability of still greater improvement at the hands of skillful breeders. [illegible]

Dutch Friesians excel all other breeds in quantity of milk. Records of 40 to 60 pounds per day, and 7,000 to 11,000 per year for heifers with their first calves, and 60 to 90 pounds per day, and 12,000 to 18000 pounds per year for mature cows, being quite common. No such records have been shown by other breeds.

But it is not necessary to show that Friesians, with high feeding and milking three times a day, will give from 70 to 80 pounds of milk per day. If they give from 40 to 50 pounds per day for three months, and then from 20 to 40 pounds per day for the next three months, and from 20 to 25 pounds per day for the next three months, or an average of about four gallons per day for nine months, and then gradually become dry, they are by far the most valuable milch cows in the world; and this they will do without any forcing.

FRIESIANS FOR BUTTER.

It is the opinion of those who have thoroughly tested them in comparison with others, that the Friesans will AVERAGE MORE BUTTER PER COW FOR A YEAR THAN THE AVERAGE OF ANY OTHER BREED. THE GENERAL AVERAGE of whole herds is remarkably good, as these cows hold out longer than most others. There are well authenticated records of thirteen mature cows ranging from two to three pounds per day for one to ten days. Whole number of cows tested, 18. Average time, 6 8-13 days. Average per day, per cow, over two lbs. ten oz. The highest average, twenty lbs. for seven days. Ten heifers—four three years old, and six two years—averaged two lbs., three-quarter oz. per day for a week. Thos. B. Wales' cow "Mercedes," (723) produced recently ninety-nine lbs. six oz. in thirty days—the largest yield for the time ever reported.

FRIESIANS FOR BEEF.

The Dutch cattle are large. Calves frequently weigh 100 to 130 lbs. at birth and gain nearly 100 lbs. per month till six or eight months old, and weigh from 700 to 1000, or more, at a year old. They come in early. It is the rule in Holland to have heifers come at from twenty to thirty months old. At this age they usually make a growth of from 1,100 to 1,350 pounds, and at maturity range from 1,400 to 1,800. It is no uncommon thing to see whole herds of cows, in Holland, ranging from 1,500 to 1,800 pounds. The readiness with which they take on flesh when dry is not excelled by any other breed. Bulls and steers equal short-horns in weight at same ages. Dutch Friesian steers have proved very profitable for feeding. J. S. Lang, writing from N. Vassalboro, Maine, says: "My experiments with half-bloods have been very gratifying; they outstripped all others in growth on the same feed, steers averaging in girth, at eighteen months, 6 feet 7 inches. My experiments have been conducted with care, and my conviction is, that to institute an impartial test of Holsteins and Short-horns, it would be found that the Holstein stock would cost the least per pound." As Holsteins have but recently been introduced into the West, but little has been done in testing their value strictly for beef, as the best grade bulls have been kept for breeding; but as far as they have been tried, have given good satisfaction. Half-blood steers in Illinois have attained a weight of over 1,800 pounds at two years old, and 1,900 pounds at four years old. Gray & Van Waters, West Salem, Wis., report in 1881 as follows: "We sold one yoke of half-blood Holsteins, two years and three months old, weighing 2,650. Andy McEldowny sold thirteen head o half-bloods, average age two years and three months, average weight 1,845 lbs. The man who bought them said he had bought and shipped cattle for twenty years, and they were the best lot he had ever shipped. The oldest of the thirteen was two years and four months old and weighed 1,600 pounds. They were sold to Daniel Cargle, of Sparta, and brought in Milwaukee $5.50 per 100 pounds."

TO CROSS WITH NATIVES.

The great value of the Friesian cattle as a cross on native cows is one great point in their favor. The purity of the blood, established by centuries of careful breeding gives the Friesian bull a prepotency—a power to transmit their qualities—far superior to that of any other known race. A Friesian, placed at the head of a herd of common cows, all colors, shapes, sizes and all degrees of coarseness, will reproduce his own form, color, disposition and peculiarities with such certainty that the owner may be perfectly sure beforehand that all his half-blood calves will have the marked characteristics of the Friesian cattle. The farmers of Polk County have now for the first time an opportunity to secure grade Holsteins as the thoroughbred bull, has been purchased of the Northwestern Importers and Breeders Association of Minneapolis, and brought to Crookston, where he may be seen on the old Jacobus farm (south half section 8, Crookston township.) As the season is considerably advanced only a limited number of cows will be allowed this year.

EVERETT

Pedigree of Everett.

Calved Jan. 9th, 1883; sire, Angus, (907, Holstein Herd Book, Imported.) EVERETT, in color is evenly variegated; head fine; neck and horns fine; shoulders low and well formed; body round and long; chine medium; hips broad; rump broad; quarters heavy; limbs fine; handling good; escutcheon best; dam, Beth, No. 1,743, H. H. B. Beth was bred by P. S. de Boer, Ostorierum, Friesland. Calved April 9th, 1880. Imported May 20th, 1881, by Wm. Koch, of New York City.

DESCRIPTION. Black predominating, shield and rumps; horns fair; head medium; neck medium; shoulders good; chin straight; hips medium; rump best; handling good; escutcheon best; milk form [illegible]

Farmers and all who are interested in getting good stock into the county are invited to call at the farm and see [illegible]

A. N. HOPKINS,
[15-tf] Manager.

CHANGE IS THE ORDER OF THE DAY!

POTTER & GEORGE

SUCCEED BEECHER & GEORGE OF

MEDICAL HALL.

The reputation of the old firm will be kept up for good goods and moderate prices. Don't forget us.

POTTER & GEORGE,
Proprietors of Medical Hall.

E. D. CHILDS & CO.,

Proprietors of

CARMAN TOWNSITE,

AND

Dealers in Real Estate!

Why Don't You wait?

Wait till Crookston has ten thousand people. Three years!

Wait till Crookston is the largest and most important manufacturing town in the Northwest. Two years!

Wait till Crookston has two more large saw mills, and is cutting 75,000,000 feet a season. One year!

Wait till lots in SOUTH CROOKSTON are selling for twice their present valuation (six months) and THEN purchase

South Crookston Property.

But if you have time, just drop in and have a chat with

STEENERSON & McMANUS, Broadway.
JOHN IVES & SON, Broadway.
PALMER & BOND, Robert Street.
CROOKSTON IMPROVEMENT CO., Main Street.

Crookston City Bakery,

Peter Lorge, Prop.,

Keeps constantly on hand a full line of all goods usually found in a

First-Class Bakery.

Cigars and Tobacco, Nuts, Fruits, Candies; Pies, Cakes, Bread,

And everything to fill out a hungry man, constantly on hand.

MONEY! LAND!

$100,000 To Loan. 20,000 Acres of Land for Sale.

BRING IN YOUR PROPERTY AND IT WILL BE SOLD.

Law and Insurance, Collections Made,

CITY LOTS FOR SALE!

Houses, Rooms and Farms to Rent.

U. S. LAND OFFICE

Business promptly attended to.

CONTEST CASES A SPECIALTY.

Office Corner Broadway and Robert Street,

PALMER & BOND.

THE PIONEER

HARNESS SHOP.

M. RAUENBUEHLER, Proprietor.
Corner Oak and Third Sts., Crookston Minn.

Is ready for the Spring trade with a full supply of Work and Light Harness, Single and Double, Saddles, Bridles, Whips, Blankets, etc. Give me a call before you purchase.

MERCHANTS'

BILLIARD HALL,

FRED ANDERSON, Proprietor.
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

The choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

Tom Morris,

THE

CITY

JEWELER

Represents the

CELEBRATED

Rockford Quick Train

WATCH

THE ONLY

Railroad Watch

IN EXISTENCE.

Crookston Nurseries

ESTABLISHED IN 1879.

Tree Claim Stock.

I desire to inform my customers and others that I shall make a great reduction from former prices on forest trees and seeds for tree-claims. I have good thrifty two year old trees, such as Box Elder, Ash and Cottonwood to sell by the thousand. I also furnish the hardier varieties of

SMALL FRUITS,

Such as Currants, Gooseberries, Raspberries and Strawberry plants, and young, thrifty Transcendent and Hislop Crab Apple trees. The firm of Heseltine Bros. having dissolved, I still continue business on the

—OLD NURSERY GROUNDS—

in Crookston. Hoping by fair dealing and promptness with my customers to merit their patronage.

Don't fail to write for Catalogue and Prices.

All Communications Promptly Answered.

F. T. HASELTINE,

Proprietor of the Crookston Nurseries, Crookston, Minn.

JOHN LEO. H. STEENERSON.

LEO & STEENERSON.

ATTORNEYS AT LAW

Room 3., U.S. Land Office Building,

CROOKSTON. - - - MINNESOTA.

WANTED!

5,000 Men, Women and Children

—TO VISIT—

HACK & GALLASCH'

General Store, where you can buy

13 lbs. Pure Sugar for..............$1.00
12 lbs. Turkish Prunes for.......... 1.00
5 three lb. cans Table Peaches for.. 1.00
Japan Tea from.........20 to 60 cts per lb
1 long bar of soap and 1 towel, all for..............................25c

Our stock of

DRY GOODS, NOTIONS, AND DRESS GOODS IS COMPLETE.

Don't fail to visit our Shoe and Slipper department before buying elsewhere New and complete stock of Groceries Crockery, Glassware, Flour and Feed.

We pay the highest market price for Butter, Eggs, Snake Root, Etc.

Call and see us. NO TROUBLE TO SHOW GOODS.

Cor. Main and Second Street,

CROOKSTON, MINN

Bigham & Olafson

(Successors to Juve & Borgland,)

THE POPULAR MERCHANTS ON

MAIN STREET, - - CROOKSTON

Have on hand and are constantly receiving full lines of

DRY GOODS, GROCERIES,
CROCKERY,
CLOTHING,
BOOTS AND SHOES,
HATS AND CAPS

In fact everything usually found in a first-class general store.

Our goods are bought with great care and will be sold at

LOW PRICES

FOR CASH.

NEW LIVERY,

Feed and Sale

STABLES.,

CORNER MAIN AND FOURTH STS.,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA

TERRY & COLLINS, Prop's.

Good Turnouts at all times at reasonable prices. Good Hearse and careful driver when needed.

Agricultural Fairs.

The following state, district and county fairs have been announced:

MINNESOTA.

State Fair—Owatonna, Sept. 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13 and 14.

Southern Minnesota Fair—At Rochester, Sept. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6.

Wright County—Howard Lake, Sept. 16, 17, 18, and 19.

Hastings Union Industrial Association Fair—Hastings, Sept. 16, 17, and 18.

Mankato Live stock and Fair Association—Mankato, Aug. 26, 27 and 28.

Crow Wing County Fair—Brainerd, Sept. 11 and 12.

Mower County—Austin, Sept. 16, 17, and 18.

McLeod County—Hutchinson, Sept. 24. 25 and 26.

Morrison County—Little Falls, Sept. 24, 25 and 26.

Todd County—Long Prairie, Sept. 24 and 25.

ELSEWHERE.

Montana Teritorial Fair—Helena, Sept. 8, 9, 10 and 11.

Wisconsin State Agaicultural Society—Madison, Sept. 15, 16, 17, 18 and 19.

Southwestern Wisconsin Industrial Association—Mineral Point, Sept. 4, 5, 6 and 7.

Central Wisconsin Agricultural and Mechanical Association—Watertown, Sept. 17, 18, 19, 20 and 21.

St. Croix County, Wis.—Hudson, Sept. 12, 13 and 14.

La Crosse County, Wis.—Salem, Sept. 25, 26 and 27.

Jackson County, Wis.—Black River Falls, Sept. 27, 28, and 29.

Chippewa County, Wis.—Chippewa Falls, Sept. 11, 12, 13 and 14.

Private Henry a Bad Fellow.

A letter from an officer at Fort Buford, Dak. says: Private Charles B. Henry, who was shot at Cape Sabine for theft, would never have been accepted as a member of the Lady Franklin Bay expedition had his character been as well known to the authorities who organized it as it was to some of the members of the Seventh United States cavalry. He joined Troop G, of that regiment, in 1876, under his proper name—Charles Buck. In the fall of 1877 the regiment camped at Fort Buford for a while, after its return from the Nez Perce campaign, during which time Buck employed his spare time in forging checks for a considerable amount on the post traders Leighton, and Jordon. For some unaccountable reason he was not punished for this offense. Being emboldered for having escaped punishment for his offense at Buford, he again engaged in the same business while the Seventh cavalry was camped at Camp Sturgis, where Fort Meade now stands, during the summer of 1878. He operated this time on the field traders, Fanoheim and Roberts, and was again detected, tried by court martial, convicted and sentenced to be dishonorably discharged from the service, with a forfeiture of all pay and allowances, and to be confined at hard labor, under charge of a guard, for one year. He served his sentence, I believe, at Fort Meade, Dak. He again enlisted, under the name of Charles B. Henry, and was assigned to the Fifty cavalry, from which he was detailed for the arctic expedition, where his conduct was in keeping with his former acts. He was a plausible rascal, ready of speech, and could easily impose himself upon unsuspecting persons.

Results of Greely's Expedition.

Lieut. Greely had a cordial reception from the British Science Association at Montreal. He was surrounded and welcomed in an expressive manner by Sir Henry Lefroy. Sir Henry said he, as well as all geographers and scientific men of Great Britain and the whole of Europe had followed with great interest the efforts made to effect the release of his party, and hailed with the keenest delight their rescue.

In reply to Sir Henry's inquiries Lieut Greely stated that the meteorological observations have not been reduced. In an animated manner he proceeded to speak of some of the work done on the expedition. One of the most interesting results will be a comparison of the swinging of a pendulum at the furtherest point north reached with that at Washington. He explained that although most of their instruments had to be abandoned, the pendulum apparatus which weighed ninety pounds, was brought back and has been sent to Washington. He remarked with evident pride that he had told his party that the pendulum was a very important instrument, but that if one man of the twenty-five complained he would immediately abandon it. None would hear of this and a very important comparison is thus made possible. Speaking of the observation of temperature, he stated that the lowest temperature ever recorded was experienced in February last, when the mean temperature was 50 below zero. After a short stay Lieut. Greely returned to his hotel.

Hurricane in Manitoba.

A terrific storm of cyclone character prevailed at Winnipeg Wednesday night, doing incalculable damage to property in towns and villages throughout the province, and damaging crops to an extent not yet ascertained, although believed to be large. Rain poured, lightning followed, and tremendous crashes of thunder prevailed all the evening.

Clouds driven by wind advanced upon each other like opposing armies. They burst in the fearful onset upon each other, and for an hour or more waged war attended by disastrous results. The roof was wrenched off the Hudson Bay stores and torn to pieces, damaging surrounding buildings.

No less than fifty buildings in the city of Winnipeg were damaged by the storm. Roofs were carried away, ends were blown out of houses, chimneys were blown down, plate glass windows were broken, signs were knocked endwise, telephone and telegraph wires were prostrated, and general havoc committed. Reports from twenty or thirty points in the province show that the storm caused results much similar to those witnessed in Winnipeg.

Tornado near Huron Dak.

Huron, Dak., Special:—Between 3 and 4 Thursday afternoon a funnel-shaped cloud was seen a mile and a half northwest of this city going southeasterly. At Bisdon's, a large stock barn and sheds were torn to atoms and scattered over the prairie. His loss is $2,000. Crossing the Jim river, six large stacks of grain belonging to C. E. Lyman, were carried away. The house of Joseph Bloodgood, two miles east of town, was torn into kindling wood. It was a new building nearly ready for occupancy. Crossing the railroad, the Cook farm, three miles southeast of here, was struck. Two houses standing about twenty feet apart were lifted from their foundations, carried three rods and torn to slivers. Mrs. G. W. Cook and eight-year-old daughter, in the house at the time, were carried several rods and left in a field. When found Mrs. Cook was badly injured about the head, and a thigh broken. The girl was also severely hurt.

American Naval Officers' Views.

Washington, Special:—Naval officers here are discussing the war between France and China, and comment upon the easy destruction of the vessels of the latter. "The French are after commercial advantages," said one naval officer, "and they propose to get them at any cost. That is the policy of England and Germany. There is no consideration of morality, of human justice of human right that will prevent these nations from pursuing a policy favorable to their commerce. I recollect once that the Japanese government wanted to establish a quarantine in order to prevent the spread of cholera. Our minister, Gen. Bingham, consented, but the English and German minister refused because it would interfere with their commerce, and when the Japanese stopped one of their vessels, a man-of-war went down and brought the ship up to the harbor. There is no use, when the interests of a nation like England or Germany are involved, to talk about justice or even mercy, for they recognize nothing of the sort."

W. F. Story's Imbecility.

The imbecility of W. F. Storey, proprietor of the Chicago Times, was established beyond question Thursday, and Judge Knickerbacker appointed Austin L. Patterson conservator of his estate, which consists mainly of the Chicago Times. Patterson has been business manager of the Times for a good many years, and is technically the fittest person for the position. Mrs. Storey, however, wanted to get rid of him and manage the property herself. To this end charges were made against his integrity, which the court seems not to have credited. The medical experts say: "At the medical examination last Saturday Dr. Lyman said, 'As to the condition I found him in, physically, it was what is medically termed paresis, or partial paralysis, tending toward complete paralysis and dementia. I found him in a state of complete dementia.' The tests applied were [illegible] [illegible] he has no notion of what is said to him [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Greely of which [illegible]

The Cattle Disease—Interesting Interview With Prof. Stalker on the Cattle Disease at Le Mars.

Des Moines Special: Prof. M. Stalker, state veterinarian, was found in the city the other day, and was immediately corralled for an explanation of the cattle disease outbreak at Le Mars:

"I found," he said, "that a large number of cattle had died; that in almost every case the attack was fatal. In company with the resident physicians, I at once set about ascertaining the cause. We made thorough clinical examination, followed by post mortem. I found the disease was true Texas fever. The next step was to ascertain the source of infection. Inquiry disclosed the fact that nearly all the cases were those of town cows, which were driven every morning to a certain range to feed through the day, and were returned at night. Knowing that the disease could only be comunicated in one way, further inquiry showed that nearly two months ago a herd of cattle from abroad was fed on the range several days. Examination of the records at the office of the railroad company showed that several cars of cattle shipped from the southern part of Mississippi were unloaded at Le Mars and fed several days, when they were reloaded and sent to Dakota. From the date of their feeding on this range to the time of the outbreak of the disease among the native cattle was fifty-two days, which I have found is the incubation period of this disease. How much further south those cattle came from I cannot trace; but they were evidently Southwestern cattle."

"Were any of them sick; or did any of them die?"

"No; it is a singular fact that such cattle—in fact, all these Texas cattle—are apparently in perfect health. This particular herd were fat, sleek and in prime order for the butcher. Their meat is, in fact, wholesome and healthful. They are never sick, and do not impart the disease by contact. The disease is not infections, but in a certain sense it is contagious. They carry the disease in their body, in their spleen and kidneys. From the fecal and urinary discharges, on the ground where they feed, is transmitted the disease to Northern or native, or unacclimated cattle, to use that term to express my idea. The virtue ends with a single transmission. Northern or native cattle attacked with the disease will not transmit it to the other cattle by contact. Sick and well cattle may be stabled together with no danger. A herd of other Southern cattle might have been driven on that same range and they would not have been affected at all. The people there were disposed to discredit my statement of this anamolous condition and nature of the disease. To satisfy them one of those Southern cattle was found. He was in splendid condition. Arrangements were made for disposing of his carcass to a butcher, and, in the presence of the local physicians and health authorities, he was killed and a post mortem examination made. Before commencing, I described minutely what I expected to find. The examination verified my diagnose precisely. The spleen was quadruple the usual size, and other organs were in the condition found in all these Texas cattle. It is the effect of the climate in which they live and the water and food they get."

"Is there no cure for it among native cattle?"

"I have found medication of little or no avail. It is uniformly fatal. One or two frosts seems to destroy the virus on ground where these cattle have fed."

"How about that herd sent out to Dakota; will they not cause the same results they did here?"

"It is not improbable; still going so far north they may become changed in physical condition, so that the virus they leave behind may lose its destructive force. However, I would not be surprised to hear of trouble from that section."

"What have you determined as to the cause of the recent mortality among horses in Pottawattamie county?"

"I have not yet arrived at a satisfactory conclusion. After a very careful clinical examination I decided the fatality was the result of some toxicant; that the animals were all affected alike, and that they all had been feeding in a certain locality on bottom land. I spent several days searching the locality where they grazed for some known poisonous weed, being satisfied that the trouble came from something eaten. I could find nothing to which to attribute it, but I did find a weed growing quite luxuriantly which belongs to the family of a very poisonous weed and of which the horses there eat quite freely and seem to like it. I gathered a quantity of it, found that the horses in other sections, or on the college farm would not eat it, or even taste it, so I could not test its effects. I think, therefore, the taste and liking of it is acquired, like that for tobacco or opiates by man. It begins with frequent nibbling of it. I shall further test it, as I have a useless horse at my infirmary to which I propose to give a decoction of that weed. So soon as the nature is correctly determined, a remedy can be suggested. Prevention can be had by keeping horses from grazing in that locality. Prevention is better than cure—in fact, the chances of cure are very slight."

French Bombardment of a Chinese Port.

Dispatches from English sources confirm the news of the French success at Foo Chow, and even carry the story to a later hour of Saturday. When Admiral Courbet ordered his ironclads to open fire he was gallantly responded to by a squadron of ten Chinese gunboats on the River Min. These were officered by Europeans, and the Chinese gunners served their pieces well, but the caliber of the guns was too small for the shot to inflict serious injury on the French. The latter fired with terrible effect, and the discipline was perfect. From the moment the French guns got the range on the Chinese boats, a pitiless rain of iron was kept up. In vain the Chinese craft steamed hither and thither. One by one they went down with great gaping holes in their sides, until seven of the well-fought gunboats had sunk, with the dragon flag still flying. The remainder were captured for want of unwounded men to serve the guns. The French fleet now moved up the river and took position opposite the great arsenal of Foo Chow. Its flanking forts and water batteries replied at first with some spirit, but the French shells were dropped beyond them in the arsenal itself. A tremendous explosion that shook the earth showed that a French shell had fallen into a powder magazine. From that moment the Chinese firing ceased. For three hours the French guns poured a storm of shells upon the arsenal, which was now on fire in several places. The signal to cease firing was at length given, and it was seen that the place was utterly destroyed. Toward nightfall several detachments of sailors and marines landed without opposition. The Chinese batteries were deserted, and the place was in the hands of the French. No advance was attempted on the city of Foo Chow itself. The French fleet cannot ascend the river any further.

Another Proposed North Pole Hunt.

The New York Yacht club, of which James Gordon Bennett, Jay Gould and Cyrus W. Field, Jr., are members, entertained the officials of the Greely relief expedition at dinner a few days ago. Chief Engineer Melville of this city made a long speech, in which he set forth the feasibility of settling once for all the question of an open arctic sea, and that, too, without loss of life. He stated his willingness to take command of such an expedition, and that a moderate sum would be sufficient to cover all the expenses. Young Mr. Field, in answer, said that he was convinced of the truth of the theory advanced by Chief Engineer Melville, and that he was perfectly willing to advance half the sum required to meet the expenses of the expedition, provided the other members of the yacht club present would put their names down for the remainder. This they at once agreed to. The money was subscribed on the spot, and there is no doubt that an arctic expedition under Melville's command will sail from an American port in the fall of 1885. Lieut. Melville will obtain leave of absence from the navy without pay for two years for this purpose.

Important to Dairymen.

Hon. C. K. Marvin, of Rochester, Olmsted Co., Minn., general superintendent of the dairy department of the world's exposition, has issued a circular letter to the dairymen of the world, stating the amount and division of premiums and the conditions of competition therefor. In the agricultural department $86,000 is offered in premiums, of which $15,000 is appropriated for the dairy division—$5,000 for dairy stock, and $10,000 for dairy products, appliances, etc. All entries of dairy machinery and appliances must be made by [illegible] goods received by [illegible] dairy products must be made by [illegible] goods received [illegible] [illegible]

AT THE RIGHT TIME.

The case pending before our court interested the people deeply. A few months previously Jacob Ames had died, leaving property to the amount of $50,000 to $60,000, all of which was readily available. At first it was supposed that the old man—he was 87—had died without making his will, as he had often been heard to remark that making a will seemed like a preparation for death, and as there could be no question about the inheritance of his property, he did not choose to make any such, to him, ghostly testament. His direct and only legitimate heirs were two orphans, both girls, children of his only daughter. One of them was a cripple, requiring almost the undivided care and attention of the other, and both were beloved by all who knew them. While people were feeling glad that the orphan sisters were to be thus grandly provided for, a man named James Arnold presented a will for probate, said to be the last will and testament of Jacob Ames, made several years before. This Arnold was a nephew-in-law of old Jacob; the child of a wife's sister, and had for several years been employed as business agent and general accountant of the deceased; and, when he caused the will to be presented, he produced a number of witnesses who declared that they had often heard old Ames say that he had made the only will he should ever make, and that James Arnold was his heir; and, what seemed to make the matter sure, two witnesses to the will, former servants or employes of the testator, swore point-blank to having seen Ames place signature to the document, after which they signed their own names.

I entered the court-room late in the afternoon of the third day, just as the last witness was about to leave the stand; and this witness was Thomas Cloudman, the servant just alluded to. He had been questioned by a juryman, and had made a plain statement. Everything was against the poor, deserving orphans, and all in favor of the despised nephew. In fact, no honest man, under the evidence, could have brought in a verdict against Arnold's claim.

The juryman who had questioned this witness sat at the end of the box, and close by him, among the spectators, stood old Harvey Goodrich, who was at that time engaged in the paper-mill of Day & Lyon, at Portland. I had known him years before, when he worked for Rice, of Newton. The juror held the will in his hand, open, and Goodrich cast his eyes upon it. I saw the old paper-maker start and tremble.

"Let me look at that!" I heard him whisper, for I stood close by.

The juror, without considering, handed him the document, and before the council could interpose and regain it Goodrich had seen all he desired, and his first movement after relinquishing the will, was to hasten to the side of the orphans' attorney and whisper, hurriedly and excitedly in his ear. I saw the attorney, whose name was Shipman, bend his head attentively and then start to his feet. What was it? In these few brief moments the whole audience had caught the fever of excitement, for it was clearly evident that something of importance was on the tapis.

"May it please your honor," said Shipman, very quietly—so calmly and quietly that we feared it could be nothing of importonce after all—"I must ask the indulgence of the court, I wish to present new and important testimony."

There was a slight war of words between the opposing counsel, after which, by permission of the court, the old paper-maker took the stand. He gave his name, residence, occupation, etc., and then Mr. Shipman placed the will in his hands.

"Mr. Goodrich, will you please examine that document?"

"I have done so, sir."

"What is the written date of that will?"

"Sept. 5, 1841," answered the witness, reading from the instrument.

"Now Mr. Goodrich, will you please inform the Jury and the court if you observe anything else in or upon that paper which you hold in your hand that would positively affect the reliability of that written date? Make your own way; only make it concise and clear."

"Your honor, and gentlemen of the jury," commenced the witness, "this piece of paper which I now hold in my hand was manufactured by myself, and was calendered on a machine of my own invention. The water-lines, in place of the ordinary blue ruling, were included in my improvement. You will also observe, upon close inspection—though the ink upon the surface has somewhat obscured it—my own stamp in water-marks. Your honor can examine it for yourself."

The judge took the document, and held it up against the strong light, and involuntarily he read aloud, so as to be heard by all in the room—for every breath was hushed: "H. Goodrich's patent. Eighteen hundred and forty-three!"

The paper was given to the jury, who were all upon their feet. Arnold's counsel demanded to see it. Mr. Cloudman and his wife got up and tried to leave the room, but were prevented. Judge and bar were in a state of ferment, while the dense audience swayed to and fro in eager, painful suspense. Would this old man's testimony have its legitimate weight? Ah! how could it be otherwise? There was a witness more potent to an intelligent court and jury than speech of tongue. The contested will bore in its very utmost part—in its heart of hearts—the emphatic evidence of the base lie written upon its face. Other witnesses were called—one paper maker and two paper dealers—but the thing was settled. The water-lined date of the paper was evidence enough. A little while and the judge gave his charge—about as brief a charge as I ever heard. A little longer and we knew that the orphans were the true and legally established heirs to Jacob Ames's fortune.

Dr. Cornelius Herz, an American, has been made a Commander of the Legion of Honor in Paris for services in the cause of electrical science.

[illegible]

Some Facts About Peppermint.

It may not be generally known, but it is nevertheless the fact, that the United States is the leading producer of peppermint and peppermint oil in the world. It is principally grown in the state of Michigan and in Wayne County, N. Y. Our production of the oil in 1878 reached as high as 150,000 pounds, but in 1883 the yield was computed as not more than 85,000 pounds. This year a larger acreage has been planted, but prices have advanced on account of the decreased stocks. The usual annual consumption of the world is about 100,000 pounds, but it is expected there will be a considerable increase this year, as also in other essential oils, on account of apprehension of cholera. Peppermint is grown to best advantage in good garden soils, but requires an abundance of moisture. An acre will grow plants enough to yield from eight to fifteen pounds of oil, according to the age of the plant and the locality, and the price is from $3.25 to $3.75 a pound. There are no large farms entirely devoted to this product, but it is cultivated in small quantities by many farmers. It is used in medicine, confectionery and for perfumery, and is diluted with alcohol and water to to make essence of peppermint. It is also largely used by sanitary engineers for testing joints and traps, a few drops poured in a wash bowl or closet making its presence sensible to smell at any imperfect joints in a pipe leading therefrom, its pungent order not being apparently at all affected by the sewer gases. Peppermint is to a considerable extent adulterated with castor oil, oil of turpentine and oil of pennyroyal, but the adulterations can be detected without much difficulty.

The Cheekiest Girl.

The Brooklyn Union-Augus has an account of the "cheekiest" servant girl on record. There are some in Troy who nearly equal her, however:

Bridget Gildea, an eighteen-year-old servant girl, sued Mrs. Edward Byer before Justice Courtney this morning to recover $10, one month's wages. Mrs. Ryer said: "It took the girl three hours to iron five pillow cases. When I would wake her up at 5 o'clock on Monday morning to do the washing she would tell me that she didn't want to get up before daylight, and the washing could wait. I told her to press the water out of some vegetables, and she answered me: 'Oh, put them in the oven to dry.' I asked her what had become of two breakfast knives that I missed, and she said she thought the cat must have swallowed them. When I told her that she couldn't go out on Sunday afternoon she said she must have the fresh air or she'd die before she had time to get married. I asked her to bake some biscuits, and she said that she didn't come as cook, but that she could recommend me one. The trouble I had with that girl, judge, was ruining my health, and I had to discharge her." Mr. Ryer said that he had offered Bridget $5 on account of her wages, and she let the money lay on the table. Judge Courtney took this $5 offered into account and gave judgment for the other $5 for Bridget.

Heed the Warning.

By not heeding the warnings of nature many persons are laid up on a bed of sickness and suffering for weeks, months or years. There is hardly a disease that attacks the system which is not preceded by symptoms. Let these symptoms be attended to and the disease will be nipped in the bud. Note the following:

Dyspepsia.

Variable appetite, faint gnawing feeling at pit of stomach, bad taste in the mouth, feeling of weight and wind in the stomach, bad breath, headache and constipation. Burdock Blood Bitters will positively relieve any of above sy'pt's & cure Dyspepsia.

Kidney Disease.

Pain in small of back, pain in loins, flushes of heat and chills with disordered stomach and bowels, headache, weakness, &c. In fact Kidney Complaint appears in so many different ways, it is impossible to name them all.

Burdock Blood Bitters has cured some of the most stubborn forms of Kidney Disease; in fact has never been used without good effect.

Any one of the above symptoms is not sufficient to cause any alarm, and many persons do not pay any attention to it until the symptoms multiply and they discover disease has made great inroads, and possibly firmly established itself in the system.

Heed the signals of Nature before it is too late. Burdock Blood Bitters will assist you.

The Candidates Mistake.

"Madam, may I kiss these beautiful children?" inquired the candidate, as he leaned over the front gate.

"Certainly, sir; there is no possible objection."

"They are lovely darlings," said he, after he had finished the eleventh, "I have seldom seen more beautiful babes. Are they all yours, marm?"

The lady blushed deeply.

"Of course they are," he continued; "the sweet little treasures! From whom else, marm, could they have inherited these limpid eyes, these rosy cheeks, these profuse curls, these comely figures and these musical voices?"

The lady continued blushing.

"By the way, marm," said he, "may I bother you to tell your estimable husband that a candidate for——called upon him this evening?"

"Alas! good sir," quoth the lady, "I have no husband!"

"But these children, madam—you surely are not a widow?"

"I feared you were mistaken, sir, when you first came up. These are not my children. This is an orphan asylum."

White Beaver, or Dr. Frank Powell, the above well-known plainsman, author and wonderfully gifted physician and surgeon, has opened an office in St. Paul, Minn., where he will spend the second and fourth weeks of every month. His remarkable success in the treatment of female diseases, especially, has made his name famous throughout the north-west. [illegible]

The island of Ceylon has made remarkable progress during the last 50 years. Its revenue in 1837 was only £372,000 and its population did not exceed 1,300,000. Last year its revenue was £1,800,000 and its population nearly 2,778,000. Nine years ago it exported only 1,200 pounds of Cinchona bark, while the amount exported a last year was 7,000,000 pounds. The number of Buddhists in Ceylon is 1,790,000, of Hindoos 600,000, of Mohammedans 200,000, [illegible] 220,000 [illegible]

A TOUCHING INCIDENT.

A Young Girl's Dementia—How it was Occasioned—Some New and Startling Facts.

The St. Louis Express, on the New York Central road, was crowded one evening recently, when at one of the way stations, an elderly gentleman, accompanied by a young lady, entered the cars and and finally secured a seat. As the conductor approached the pair, the young lady arose, and in a pleading voice said:

"Please, sir, don't let him carry me to the asylum. I am not crazy; I am a little tired, but not mad. Oh! no indeed. Won't you please have papa take me back home?"

The conductor, accustomed though he was to all phases of humanity, looked with astonishment at the pair as did the other passengers in their vicinity. A few words from the father, however, sufficed, and the conductor passed on while the young lady turned her face to the window. The writer chanced to be seated just behind the old gentleman and could not forego the desire to speak to him. With a sad face and a trembling voice the father said:

"My daughter has been attending the seminary in a distant town and was succeeding remarkably. Her natural qualities, together with a great ambition, placed her in the front ranks of the school, but she studied too closely, was not careful of her health, and her poor brain had been turned. I am taking her to a private asylum where we hope she will soon be better."

At the next station the old man and his daughter left the cars, but the incident so suggestive of Shakspeare's Ophelia, awakened strange thoughts in the mind of the writer. It is an absolute fact that while the population of America increased thirty per cent. during the decade between 1870 and 1880 the insanity increase was over one hundred and thirty five per cent for the same period. Travelers by rail, by boat, or in carriages in any part of the land see large and elaborate buildings, and inquire what they are?

Insane asylums!

Who builds them?

Each state; each county; hundreds of private indivuals, and in all cases their capacity is taxed to the utmost.

Why?

Because men, in business and the professions, women, at home or in society, and children at school overtax their mental and nervous forces by work, worry and care. This brings about nervous disorders, indigestion and eventually mania.

It is not always trouble with the head that causes insanity. It far oftener arises from evils in other parts of the body. The nervous system determines the status of the brain. Any one who has periodic headaches; occasional dizziness; a dimness of vision; a ringing in the ears; a feverish head; frequent nausea or a sinking at the pit of the stomach, should take warning at once. The stomach and head are in direct sympathy and if one be impaired the other can never be in order. Acute dyspepsia causes more insane suicides than any other known agency and the man, woman or child whose stomach is deranged is not and cannot be safe from the coming on at any moment of mania in some one of its many terrible forms.

The value of moderation and the imperative necessity of care in keeping the stomach right must therefore be clear to all. The least appearance of indigestion, or mal-assimilation of food should be watched as carefully as the first approach of an invading army. Many means have been advocated for meeting such attacks, but all have heretofore been more or less defective. There can be little doubt, however, that for the purpose of regulating the stomach, toning it up to proper action, keeping its nerves in a normal condition and purifying the blood, Warner's Tippecanoe The Best, excels all ancient or recent discoveries. It is absolutely pure and vegetable; it is certain to add vigor to adults, while it cannot by any possibility injure even a child. The fact that it was used in the days of the famous Harrison family is proof positive of its merit as it has so thoroughly withstood the test of time. As a tonic and revivifier it is simply wonderful. It has relieved the agony of the stomach in thousands of cases; soothed the tired nerves; produced peaceful sleep and averted the coming on of a mania more to be dreaded than death itself.

The village of Adams, N. Y., was burned out. Loss, $200,000.

A New Way to Pay Old Debts.

Shakespeare tells how this can be accomplished in one of his immortal plays; but debts to nature must be paid on demand unless days of grace be obtained through the use of Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." It is not a "cure-all" but invaluable for sore throat, bronchitis, asthma, catarrh, consumption, and all diseases of the pulmonary and other organs, caused by scrofula or "bad blood." Scrofulous ulcers, swellings and tumors are cured by its wonderful alterative action. By druggists.

Speculations in the navy department, it is estimated, will reach $100,000.

Don't Wear Cumbersome Trusses

when our new method without use of knife, is guaranteed to permanently cure the worst cases of rupture. Send two letter stamps for references and pamphlet. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

Mrs. A. T. Stewart is reported to have made Judge Hilton her heir.

Dr. Pierce's Compound Extract of Smart Weed combines French Brandy, Jamaica Ginger, Smart-Weed and Camphor Water, the best possible agents for the cure of diarrhea, cholera morbus, dysentery or bloody-flux and to break up colds, fevers and inflammatory attacks.

Allen's Iron Tonic Bitters cause food to assimilate. All genuine bear the signature of J. P. Allen, Druggist, St. Paul, Minn.

ST. JACOBS OIL

TRADE MARK

THE GREAT GERMAN REMEDY FOR PAIN.

Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, [illegible]

Just So.

A lady reader writes to say that she has been losing her hair and wants to know what she shall do to prevent it. Either keep your bureau-drawer locked or get a bottle of Carboline the great Petroleum Hair Renewer.

It costs the United States $5,456,389,31 to take care of the Indians this year.

An Invaluable Remedy.—None except those who have suffered all the horrors of Dyspepsia, can fully appreciate the value and efficacy of Perry Davis' Pain Killer, a sovereign remedy for this distressing disease in all its forms is used internally and externally, test its virtues.

Older than Emperor William.

Dr. Warner's German Hop Bitters, the great German Remedy. None genuine that do not bear Dr. C. D. Warner's name on bottle and label.

The Manitoba reports a surplus of $610,677 for the fiscal year ended June 30.

Skinny men. "Wells' Health Renewer" restores health and vigor, cures dyspepsia, impotence. $1

During the last five years New Yorkers in Paris purchased $7,882,000 worth of paintings.

"Rough on Tooth-ache." Ask for it. Instant relief, quick cure. 15c. Druggists.

ECZEMA OF SCALP.

Cuticura

A POSITIVE CURE for every form of SKIN & BLOOD DISEASE.

FROM PIMPLES to SCROFULA

ITCHING, Scaly, Pimply, Scrofulous, Inherited, Contagious, and Copper Colored Diseases of the Blood, Skin, and Scalp, with loss of Hair, are positively cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new blood purifier, cleanses the blood and perspiration of impurities and poisonous elements, and removes the cause.

CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, instantly allays Itching and Inflammation, clears the Skin and Scalp, heals Ulcers and Sores, and restores the Hair.

CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier and Toilet Requisite, prepared from CUTICURA, is indispensable in treating Skin Diseases, Baby Humors, Skin Blemishes, Chapped and Oily Skin.

CUTICURA REMEDIES are absolutely pure and the only infallible Blood Purifiers and Skin Beautifiers. Sold everywhere. Price, Cuticura, 50 cents; Soap, 25 cents; Resolvent, $1. Prepared by POTTER DRUG AND CHEMICAL CO., BOSTON, MASS.

☞ Send for "How to Cure Skin Diseases."

Thirty Years Record.

HUNT'S KIDNEY & LIVER REMEDY NEVER KNOWN TO FAIL

Endorsed by Physicians.

IT IS A SPECIFIC FOR Kidney & Liver Troubles, Bladder, Urinary and Liver Diseases, Dropsy, Gravel and Diabetes.

IT IS RELIABLE in curing Bright's Disease, Pains in the Back, Loins or Sides, Retention or Non-Retention of Urine.

HIGHLY RECOMMENDED,

It cures Biliousness, Headache, Jaundice, Sour Stomach, Dyspepsia, Constipation and Piles.

IT WORKS PROMPTLY

and cures Intemperance, Nervous Diseases, General Debility, Excesses and Female Weakness.

USE IT AT ONCE.

It restores the KIDNEYS, LIVER and BOWELS, to a healthy action and CURES when all other medicines fail. Hundreds have been saved who have been given up to die by friends and physicians.

Price $1.25. Send for Illustrated Pamphlet to

HUNT'S REMEDY CO., Providence, R. I.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

PAIN!

Pain is supposed to be the lot of us poor mortals, as inevitable as death, and liable at any time to come upon us. Therefore it is important that remedial agents should be at hand to be used in an emergency, when we are made to feel the excruciating agonies of pain, or the depressing influence of disease.

Such a remedial agent exists in that old Reliable Family Remedy,

PERRY DAVIS'

Pain-Killer

It was the first and is the Only Permanent Pain Reliever.

ITS MERITS ARE UNSURPASSED.

There is nothing to equal it for curing

Colic, Cramps, Spasms, Heartburn, Diarrhoea, Dysentery, Flux, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache.

CURES CHOLERA!

When Cholera prevailed in the years 1849 and 1850,

"PAIN-KILLER"

Was used with such wonderful success, that it is considered an unfailing cure for all Bowel Complaints. It has stood the test of Forty Years' Constant Use in all Countries.

WHEN USED EXTERNALLY AS A LINIMENT, nothing gives quicker ease in Burns, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Stings from Insects and Scalds. Those suffering with Rheumatism, Gout or Neuralgia, if not a positive cure, they find the PAIN-KILLER gives them relief when no other remedy will. In sections of the country where

FEVER AND AGUE

Prevails, there is no remedy held in greater esteem. Persons traveling should keep it by them.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED

STOMACH BITTERS

The reputation of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as a preventive of epidemics, a stomachic, an invigorant, a general restorative, and a specific for fever and ague, indigestion, billous affections, rheumatism, nervous debility, constitutional weakness, is established upon the sound basis of more than twenty years experience, and can no more be shaken by the claptrap nostrums of unscientific pretenders, than the everlasting hills by the winds that rustle through their defiles. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

Sold everywhere, 25c. Office, 44 Murray St., N.Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed instantly to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.

Office, 44 Murray Street, New York.

TUTT'S MANUAL OF USEFUL RECEIPTS FREE.

A Great Problem.

—Take all the Kidney and Liver Medicines,

—Take all the Blood Purifiers,

—Take all the Rheumatic remedies,

—Take all the Dyspepsia and indigestion cures,

—Take all the Ague, Fever, and billious Specifics,

—Take all the Brain and Nerve force revivers,

—Take all the Great Health restorers,

—In short, take all the best qualities of all these, and the best

—Qualities of all the best medicines in the world, and you will find that —Hop

—Bitter have the best curative qualities and powers of all —concentrated

—In them, and that they will cure when any or all of these, singly or—combined

—Fail. A thorough trial will give positive proof of this.

Hardened Liver.

Five years ago I broke down with kidney and liver complaint and rheumatism.

Since then I have been unable to be about at all. My liver became hard like wood; my limbs were puffed up and filled with water.

All the best Physicians agreed that nothing could cure me. I resolved to try Hop Bitters; I have used seven bottels; the hardness has all gone from my liver, the swelling from my limbs, and it has worked a miracle in my case; otherwise I would have been now in my grave. J. W. MOREY, Buffalo, Oct. 1, 1881.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring.

I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I commenced using Hop Bitters, and in one month we were all well, and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost. I know it."—A WORKINGMAN.

☞None genuine without a bunch of green Hops on the white label. Shun all the vile, poisonous stuff with "Hop" or "Hops" in their name.

Piles! Piles! Piles!

Sure cure for Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles. Single box has cured worst chronic case of twenty years standing. No one need suffer five minutes after applying. William's Indian Pile ointment. It absorbs the tumors, allays the itching (praticularly after getting warm in bed). Prepared only for piles and itching for the private parts. Noyes Bros. & Cutler, St Paul. Wholesale Agents.

FRAZER AXLE GREASE is the best. Sold everywhere.

Don't Be Swindled.

The only genuine German Hop Bitters and White Wine of Tar Syrup are Dr. C. D. Warner's, whose name appears on every bottle, label and wrapper of the genuine.

The Bartholdi statue committee have $150,000, and need $125,000 more.

"Rough on Pain." Porous Plaster, for backache, pains in the Chest, Rheumatism. 25c.

The Davidson hotel, at Evansville, Minn. was damaged by fire to the amount of $1,200.

"Rough on Dentist" Tooth Powder. Fine, smooth, cleansing, refreshing, preservative. 15c.

For Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, also as a preventive against Fever and Ague, and other Intermittent Fevers, the "Ferro-Phosphorated Elixir of Calisaya" made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by all Druggists, is the best tonic, and for patients recovering from Fever or other sickness, it has no equal Carbolisalve cures Itchings and Irritations of the Skin & Scalp, Poisons, Bites of Insects, Piles, Ulcers, &c. Cures Burns and Scalds without a scar. Small boxes 25c; large 75c. Get the genuine. Sold by Druggists. J. W. COLE & CO., Black River Falls, Wis.

STOCKS of goods wanted in exchange for Minneapolis Real Estate. R. H. Steele, Minneapolis.

WHITE BEAVER'S COUGH CREAM Heals Diseased Lungs.

GUNS Shot Guns Revolvers, Rifles, Etc. Large Ill. Catalogue free. Address Great Western Gun Works, Pittsburgh, Pa.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

LEARN TELEGRAPHY, or SHORT-HAND and TYPE WRITING HERE. Situations furnished. Address Valentine Bros., Janesville, Wis.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION. CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. 25 CTS.

SOLDIERS. NEW LAWS. Officers pay from commissions, deserters relieved, pensions and increase. Experience 19 years, write for circulars and laws. A. W. McCormick & Son, Cincinnati, Ohio.

MORPHINE and CHLORAL HABITS EASILY CURED. BOOK FREE. Dr. J. C. Hoffman, Jefferson, Wisconsin. OPIUM

RULES For self-measurement and price list sent free by BIG BOSTON, Minneapolis.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

IS A POSITIVE CURE FOR All those painful Complaints and Weaknesses so common to our best FEMALE POPULATION.

Price $1 in liquid, pill or lozenge form.

Its purpose is solely for the legitimate healing of disease and the relief of pain, and that it does all it claims to do, thousands of ladies can gladly testify.

It will cure entirely all Ovarian troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Falling and Displacements, and consequent Spinal Weakness, and is particularly adapted to the change of life.

It removes Faintness, Flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves Weakness of the Stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, and backache, is always permanently cured by its use.

Send stamp to Lynn, Mass., for pamphlet. Letters of inquiry confidentially answered. For sale at druggists.

The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued Sept. and March, each year: 224 pages, 8½ x 11½ inches, with over 3,300 illustrations—a whole picture gallery. Gives wholesale prices direct to consumers on all goods for personal or family use. Tells how to order, and gives exact cost of everything you use, drink, eat, wear, or have fun with. These invaluable books contain information gleaned from the markets of the world. We will mail a copy Free to any address upon receipt of the postage—8 cents. Let us hear from you. Respectfully,

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.

227 & 229 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Dr. Spinney & Co.

Treat all Chronic and Nervous Diseases. Young men who may be suffering with Weakness, Nervous Debility, Despondency, Aversion to Society, Kidney troubles, or any similar diseases, can here find a safe and speedy cure. There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are often troubled with uncomfortable symptoms, accompanied by weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. Examination reveals the fact that the patient's system is undergoing a drain which rapidly exhausts every vital function. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause. The doctor will guarantee a cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration. Pamphlet, with full particulars, sent free to any address. Call on or address DR. SPINNEY & CO., 278 Third st., Minneapolis, Minn

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS

MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD

[illegible]

A DINNER AND A KISS.

"I have brought your dinner, father,"
The blacksmith's daughter said,
As she took from her arms a kettle
And lifted its shining lid.
"There's not any pie or pudding,
So I will give you this,"
And upon his toil-worn forehead
She left a childish kiss.

The blacksmith took off his apron
And dined in happy mood,
Wondering much at the savor
Hid in his humble food.
While playing about him were visions
Full of prophetic bliss;
But he never thought of the magic
In his little daughter's kiss.

While she, with her kettle swinging,
Merrily trudged away,
Stopping at sight of a squirrel,
Catching some wild bird's lay.
And I thought how many a shadow
Of life and fate we would miss,
If always our frugal dinners
Were seasoned with such a kiss.—Anon.

A LEAP-YEAR EPISODE.

"I wouldn't marry John Marryatt not for £1000!" said Avice Mere.

And she said it, too, exactly as if she meant it, with reddened cheeks, eyes full of hazel fire, and two small, dimpled fists clinched tightly.

"My dear," said Penelope Paxton, one of those jovial old maids who are privileged to say anything, "you remind me of a famous historical character."

"I?" said Avice, momentarily off her guard.

"Yes," said Penelope. "Miss Betty Baxter, who refused Captain Jones before he axed her."

"Oh, it isn't that!" protested Avice, rosier than ever. "Of course Mr. Marryatt has no idea of asking me; why should he have? And if he did, I shouldn't accept him."

"Miss Betty Baxter," monotonously chanted Penelope, "—who refused—"

"Penny, do be quiet!" said Avice, stamping her foot in genuine annoyance. "You know what I mean!"

"No, I don't," said Penny, "and I don't believe you know yourself."

"He said it was leap year," pleaded indignant Avice.

"So it is," said Penn. "Get the almanac and look for yourself. Four into eighteen hundred and eighty-four goes—"

"Penelope, can you not talk common sense?"

"To be sure I can, if you will set me the example!" gravely responded Miss Paxton.

"And he told Dr. Darien he wasn't coming to our party tomorrow night because he didn't want to be married against his will."

"Well, after all there's something in that," said Penelope, reflectively. "I never was a man myself; but I can imagine that, under such circumstances, a cold shiver would go all through me."

"Penny," said Avice, solemnly, "do you really, seriously think that one of us girls ever thought of marrying John Marryatt!"

"That is a question that I am not prepared to answer," said Miss Paxton.

And Avice ran out of the room, and was surprised to find herself crying over the clover-scented blossoms of her favorite carnations in the bathroom window.

"I'm sure I don't know why," sobbed she; "I hate John Marryatt, and I think it was horrid of Dr. Darien to go and repeat what was said to him in confidence! And if John Marryatt really believed that—that—there, I won't think of it any more!"

"Leap year, indeed! Why do people talk such a string of nonsense because the month of February happens to have twenty-nine days in it instead of twenty-eight?"

In the meantime Mr. Marryatt had packed his valise and gone off to visit an old uncle who was at the point of death.

"It won't be a very cheerful visit," said he to himself, "but it will be better than a state of siege—for I have been told, on good authority, that every one of those girls mean to get engaged at the leap-year party."

"It will be the old story of the Sabines over again, with the sexes reversed. And when I marry—if I marry—I intend to have at least the privilege of choice. So I'll just go up to Uncle Origen's."

Uncle Origen's farm house was on top of a bleak hill, where a few dwarfed cherry trees shook and shuddered in the wintry blasts, and the cows huddled in the shelter of the hayricks to keep from being blown away.

"I think we're going to have a storm," said Mr. Marryatt. "I'm quite certain that I smell snow in the air. And there are more cheerful places during a northeast wind than Uncle Origen's house."

In fact he was almost disposed to be sorry that he had come, when he stood there, knocking and thumping with the handle of his umbrella at the shrunken panels of the front door.

Pretty soon a crooked old man, with his garments fastened with tow strings, instead of buttons, came shuffling to the door, and peeped suspiciously around it.

"Eh?" said he, with one hand back of his poor old purple ear. "Pears to me I heard somebody knocking, didn't I?"

"Yes, it's me," said our hero. "John Marryatt, don't you know?"

"Married?" squeaked the old man. "To whom?"

"John—Mar—ry—att!" distinctly repeated the visitor. "How is my Uncle Origen?"

The crooked old man sheltered his candle flame with one hand and stared as if he were gradually being transformed into one huge eye.

"Land sakes alive," said he. "Didn't you know? He was buried yesterday!"

Here was a cheerful welcome for a city visitor.

"But what can I do?" said Marryatt, with helpless gaze down the darkening hillside. "I came to visit him. I had not heard—"

"Walk in, walk in," said the old man, holding the flaring candle high above his head and flattening himself against the whitewashed wall. "It's gusty lonesome here, but there's the deceased's chamber; you can sleep in it, and I trapped a rabbit in the [illegible] this morning, and that Isabella's just a-laying it up."

"Isabella," repeated John Marryatt.

"She's the old woman that keeps my sister," explained [illegible] [illegible] glassy eyes. "Eh?" said he. "Why not? You don't believe in sperritooalism, do you?"

"Nonsense!" cried Marryatt.

"Then why ain't one room as good as another?" asked the old man, stolidly.

"Nevertheless, I would much prefer to go on to the nearest hotel," impatiently uttered John.

"Ain't none short o' seven mile," said the old man. "And that's only a summer machine. They don't run it arter the waterfalls friz up. But there's a freight train, with a passenger caboose hitched on, that stops at Cutting Corners at midnight."

"Where is Cutting Corners?"

"And how the dickens do you suppose I am to get eight miles from here, when it is pitch dark already?" cried Marryatt, with not unnatural irritation.

"There's Jenkins' one-hoss wagon," mildly suggested the old man. "I'm goin' to Jenkins' d'rectly arter a box o' stove-blacking, a paound o' taller dips and a quarter of a paound o' green tea for Isabella. I can tell Jenkins to come raound and cart ye to the station, ef ye don't begrudge o crown."

"By all means," said Mr. Marryatt, hurriedly. "And while you are gone, Isabella, as you call her can give me me some supper."

He sat down in the old, low-ceiled room, where the rag carpet seemed neither brighter nor dimmer than it had done twenty years ago, and warmed his chilled feet before a blaze of snapping logs; while old Isabella, who might have appeared creditably at any tableau as the "Witch of Endor," crept around an iron pot which swung from a prodigious crane and got supper, after a slow inefficient manner.

"Pretty gay in town this winter?" said old Isabella, brandishing her spoon over him, in the manner of an incantation, as she watched him eat the rabbit stew, after it was dished.

"I suppose so."

"I'm a-thinkin' of goin' there myself," said Isabella, mumbling her toothless jaws.

"To take a situation?" asked Marryatt, inwardly thinking that he could not conscientiously give h er a recommendation as cook.

"Bless your 'art, no!" said Isabella. "I knew a sea Captain there as ain't married; and they tell me the gals is all pickin' and choosin' for themselves, now that leap year has come round. Anyhow, I'm tired o' this place and I don't see why my chance ain't as good as another's."

Mr. Marryatt stared at her in mute amazement, while he secretly deplored the sad case of the unsuspecting sea Captain.

"P'raps you wouldn't mind keepin' a heye on the fire," said the gentle Isabella, "while I just go over and look to see if Simon has locked the hen house. Simon's dreadful forgetful."

And she hobbled away.

At the same time there came a loud and emphatic knocking at the outer door, and a stout country girl, with cheeks of that peculiar red which shines as if it had been varnished, very black eyes and coarse black hair, walked in, well wrapped up in a red-and-green plaid shawl and a fearful felt hat which looked like a damaged helmet.

"I come for Mr. Marryatt," said she without and ceremony of introduction.

Instinctively our hero backed against the wall.

"What!" cried he.

"You're Mr. Marryatt, ain't you?" said she.

"That's my name," retreating still further behind the stiff wooden-backed chair, where Uncle Origen used to sit and smoke his pipe.

"Well, I'm come for you. You ain't deaf, be you? I'm—come—for—you!"

"Yes; but—I—I"

"There ain't no time to lose," bawled this daughter of solitudes, seizing him by the arm. "This here's your baggage?" grasping the valise in the other hand.

This was leap year with a vengeance, thought our dispairing hero.

With one desperate struggle he freed himself.

"I won't go!" said he. "Nothing can compel me to go against my will."

"You won't?" said the red-cheeked damsel.

"No, I won't," replied Mr. John Marryatt.

"Then you will miss the train, as sure as serpents!" said the red-cheeked damsel. "And it wont be no fault of mine. Father has had the rheumatics, and I promised him I would come for you."

"Oh, the train—I see," cried Mr. Marryatt. "I didn't quite comprehend your meaning at first. Yes, I'll come immediately."

And the red-cheeked damsel, who proved to be no despicable chaioteer, rattled down the frozen mountain road, with considerable skill and energy, reaching the solitary station just as the freight train came in sight around a curve.

So Mr. Marryatt arrived in town just in time to see the sunrise glow irradiate the red brick chimney tops behind the Delaven House.

"Not married yet," he said to himself; "but I will be as soon as possible, if she will have me. I'll run no more such risks as this!"

That very afternoon he called at Dr. Mere's house and proposed to Avice—and Avice actually accepted him. Yes, she actually accepted him!

"But did you really say that?" asked Avice, feeling that it was her duty to admonish her swain a little—"that—that you didn't want to be married against your will?"

"Of course I said it," answered Marryatt, "and I meant it. I don't intend to be married against my will; I intend to be married with it. And did you really say you wouldn't marry John Marryatt for a thousand pounds?"

"And I wouldn't," cried Avice, looking up with sparkling eyes. "Not for twice that money, but—just because I love him!"

So they were both happy and laughed heartily over the adventure at Uncle Origen's house.

And when Penelope Paxton next saw the bride-elect, she chuckled and said: "So it isn't to be a case of 'Miss Betty Baxter,' after all."

And Avice colored and said she didn't know what Miss Penny could possibly mean!

Senator Anthony's diet for more than twenty weeks has been Graham bread and skimmed milk.

General O. O. Howard has been camping on Waterloo battlefield and [illegible]

[illegible] Chautauqua county [illegible] 50,000.

THE WIDOW'S FORTUNE.

Where Tom Crittenden's Widow Got Her Profits.

The Pittsburg Commercial Gazette tells the following: Innumerable stories are told of Jim Keene's rise in the world and of those he helped to better fortunes, and I shall try to tell one of these as it was told to me at Saratoga two years ago. "Do you see that little woman with the India shawl who is just going to drive?" inquired an ex-senator from California of the writer, as we sat together on the great hotel piazza one afternoon. "She has had a wonderful experience. Would you like to hear how Jim Keene helped her to a fortune?" Relighting his cigar the forty-niner proceeded; "I remember very well in 1856, when Tom Crittenden came back from New York with a pretty little wife. He was a daring operator then, and, for a while, all he undertook succeeded. But times changed. Crittenden got on the wrong side of the market and could not get right. One day he came home ruined, and, after a brief illness, died, some said, of a broken heart. It was hard lines for his wife. She had been gently reared, and was no more fitted to battle with poverty and the world than is a turtle dove. A few friends who had known her husband in his better days, interested themselves in her and their wives gave her enough work in the shape of plain sewing to keep the wolf hunger from the door.

"In 1847 Flood, O'Brien, Mackey and Fair organized the largest scheme of mining speculation ever known on the Pacific slope. The stock of bonanza mines was then very low —about twenty-eight, I believe. One afternoon Mackey, who was the general superintendant of the mines (all a part of the Comstock system), came in a hurry to San Francisco, and went at once to Flood and O'Brien. He said that they had struck the most wonderful lot of 'bonanzas' or pockets, full of almost pure gold that he in all his experience had ever seen. He proposed to the two gentlemen named and Fair that they should quietly get hold of all this stock that could be had before the news of this wonderful 'strike' was made public. This was on Thursday. By Saturday evening they had three-fifths of all the stock. Only two outsiders—Sharon and Bill Ralston—were allowed to come in, and the only reason the latter was told, they wanted the bank of California to carry them thorough. Keene, shrewd and sharp, felt that something was in the air, but for the life of him he could not tell what it was. One afternoon a little woman, in rusty black came into the office and, with a timid air, asked a clerk if she could see Mr Keene.

"The young man addressed was very busy just then telling a story to another clerk of how he and several others had painted the town red the night before. He looked over her head and everywhere, and finally saw it was only a shabby-looking woman. He supposed it was some one who was begging, and insolently answered that Mr. Keene was very busy then and could see no one. She waited a moment and modestly said: 'Will you take my name in to him?' Just then a tall, slender man came out of a back office with two or three others, and hearing the conversation, said: 'I am Mr. Keene; did you wish to see me? Come into my office, madam.' She went with him. He offered her a chair with as much courtesy as if she had been the reigning belle of San Francisco, and waited for her to speak. 'Mr. Keene,' she said, I am the widow of Tom Crittenden of whom you once knew, and I have been used to hearing of mining operations all my married life. Yesterday I was at the house of—naming one of the bonanza set— and I heard a conversation that convinced me that a great operation is being engineered by Flood, O'Brien, Mackey and Fair. They say that they have made a wonderful discovery that will put up the Comstock certificates of stock 300 or 400 per cent.' She then opened a little box and, handing it to Keene said: 'These diamond ear ornaments were my mother's present to me the day I was married. Throughout all my distress and poverty I have kept them. They are worth $800. Will you take them as security and buy for me on margin all this mining stock they are good for?'

"Keene saw it all in a second. Here was the clew he had so vainly tried to find. 'You have rendered me a most important service, Mrs. Crittenden,' said he. 'Keep your diamonds. I will buy you a line of shares in the mining stock you mention, and carry it for you. Whenever you want your profits come to me,' and he bowed her out. There was no time to lose, but by working diligently he had stock enough to make $1,000,000 profit if the stock went above 200. Four days after the wonderful news became public. At first the brokers thought it was a job, but the experts they sent down to examine said that nothing like such a deposit had ever been known in mining history. The stock started. From 28 it jumped to 60 in one day, then to 80, 100, 120, 160, 200, 285. The little woman watched the upward rise with feelings that can only be imagined. She scarcely slept; she could not work. At 285 she sent Mr. Keene a note to sell whatever he had bought for her. She had no idea how much it was, but thought it might be perhaps 200 shares—maybe not more than 100. This would give her at least $25,000 after all commissions were paid. That afternoon she went down to his office. The smart young clerk remembered her, and was more civil this time. He said Mr. Keene was out just then, but was momentarily expected. Would she take a seat and wait for him? She sat down in a sort of daze, hardly knowing what she did. How long she waited she has no idea to this day. Mr. Keene's voice awakened her faculties, and he was standing before her. 'I got your note, Mrs. Crittenden,' he was saying, 'and I've sold your stock to-day. Come into my office. Mr. Quill, see how much money Mrs. Crittenden has with us,' continued the great mining millionaire. In a moment the clerk replied, 'Mrs. Crittenden has $870,000 less commissions, making her profit on 2,000 shares $852,870.' 'Will you have a check for it now?' asked Keene. [illegible] 'Get some water here quickly, she has fainted,' said he, lifting her up from the chair she had been sitting in. Well, my story is ended,' said the California [illegible] 'The lady you see yonder made a [illegible] money. She was [illegible] Keene, who [illegible] good hands, and now there is no happier person anywhere than Tom Crittenden's widow. She has diamonds, horses and pretty clothes, some of them so pretty that when she comes into the parlor at the States the envious women wish she was dead."

General Twigg's Swords.

At the Bureau of Engraving and Printing in Washington the visitor is shown, as one of the objects of interest, a wooden case containing three swords sheathed in scabbards of rare and costly workmanship. A single glance is sufficient to convince him that they are in all respects a superior article, but he opens his eyes to their full extent, when the guide assures him in an oracular tone that those swords cost $35,000. The most elaborate of the three bears the following inscription:

Presented by the president of the United States, agreeable to a resolution of congress, to Brigadier-General David E. Twiggs, in testimony of the high sense entertained by congress of his gallantry and good conduct at the storming of Monterey, May 8 and 9, 1846. Resolution approved March 2, 1857.

It is evident that Congress in those days had an appreciation of soldierly valor, as it appropriated $20,000 for this sword presented to General Twigs. It s beautifully ornamented with precious stones, and various devices, suggestive of military exploits. Engraved upon it is a representation of the battle of Monterey. Another of the swords bears an inscription showing that it was presented to General Twigs by his fellow citizens of Augusta, Ga., where he lived. This one is said to have cost $10,000. The third was a testimonial to General Twiggs from the State of Georgia, its value being fixed at the more moderate sum of $5,000. It has engraved upon it the names of Monterey, Palo, Alto, Cerro Gordo, and other battles in Mexico in which General Twigs was engaged. It is well known how Twiggs lost the good name he gained by fighting for the flag in Mexico. Just prior to the late war he was in command of the department of Texas, with his headquarters at San Antonio. With the first rumblings of the approaching conflict he made haste to cast his fortunes with the rebellious States. Nearly two months before the war was actually begun by the attack on Fort Sumter he turned over to the rebel authorities of Texas all the arms, ammunition and government property under his control, and surrendered his soldiers as prisoners of war. The records of the army show that for this traitorous action he was dismissed the service on March 1, 1861. Twiggs was then an old man—nearly seventy. He was too infirm for active field service, and he did nothing thereafter to make him conspicuous. Indeed the great destroyer was upon his track, and left him but little time to "set his house in order." He returned to his old home in Augusta and died broken-hearted, it is said, Sept. 1, 1862. His swords, mementos, and his former glory were deposited for safe keeping in the vaults of a bank in New Orleans. They fell into the hands of General Butler when he captured that city, and were by him "confiscated" and sent to President Lincoln in 1862. They were turned over to the Treasury Department for safe keeping. Their custodian became connected with the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, which is a branch of the treasury. When the bureau was removed to the new building, near the Smithsonian, he took the swords with him, and there they remain, even unto this day. A few years ago the heirs of General Twiggs filed with the Government a claim for the swords, placing their value at $35,000. They want either the swords or the money—the latter preferred, as they probably would not bring by auction a quarter of that sum.

A striking illustration of the freaks wrought by the "whirligig of time" is found in the fact that General Butler is the attorney for the claimants. He has been trying for years to secure a restoration of the swords or their value in currency of the realm, but has not yet succeeded. [Chicago Inter-Ocean.

How Edwin Forrest Frightened a Supernumerary.

One of the best known American actors, who is now living in modest retirement in Philadelphia, sat down the other day and told stories of the stage to a party of friends. Here is one:

"I began my professional career as a supernumerary at one of the New York theatres," said he, "and I never shall forget my first speaking part. Forrest was playing Macbeth and I was 'supporting' him by carrying a spear. At the last moment the utility man who was to announce that Birnam Wood seemed approaching Dunsinane was nowhere to be found. I was very ambitious and had often besought the stage manager to let me essay a speaking part. The golden opportunity had come. I was selected to go on in the utility man's place. A few moments sufficed to make me perfect in the one line I had to speak. When I heard my cue I marched on the stage and boldly announced to Mr. Forrest: 'As I stood looking toward Birnam, anon me thought the wood began to move.' Quick as a flash Forrest had seized me by the throat, forced me down upon my knees and roared out in his most terrible voice: 'Liar and slave!' Being taken wholly unawares, I really thought my last hour had come and that Macbeth was going to kill me. My face was blanched with fear, my knees knocked together and I had just strength enough to articulate, 'Forgive me Mr. Forrest, I didn't mean to tell a lie and I only said what the stage manager told me.' Like the difficult passages in novels the shout that went up from the audience may be better imagined than described. The situation was too much for even Forrest himself and, for once even old Metamora's stern features relaxed."

At a recent meeting of the Concord School of Philosophy, so called, Mrs. Isabella Beecher Hooker, sister of Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, had something to say. The Boston Herald alludes to her as follows: "Mrs. Hooker, who, in the opinion of many, seemed more fit for the insane asylum than for the platform, made an earnest, touching and painfully interesting speech wholly concerning her own beliefs and doings as a Spiritualist, but did not go beyond the woman's reason—her personal experiences. She is a specimen of the diseased individuality that always, more or less, gathers around any company of honest people who are trying to do real thinking in the world."

MRS. BATTERBY'S CRAZY QUILT.

BY AMELIA SULLIVAN.

Chicago Tribune.

Mrs. Batterby was a model wife and mother.

Please to remark, dear reader, I say was, because after careful observation and deep consideration of the subject, I am convinced that a woman who allows herself to fall under the baleful spell of "crazy" patchwork, becomes surely and swiftly lost to every other influence and heedless of every appeal either to her conscience or her affections.

Well, Mrs. Batterby was a dear little roly-poly of a woman, with dark blue eyes, and a soft gurgling laugh that was perfectly infectious, and which had the added charm of suddenly bringing into view two rows of little white teeth and some hitherto unsuspected dimples. Her bright brown hair waved naturally on either side of her smooth white forehead, and Mr. Batterby who had the reputation of being quite a connoisseur in female beauties, and given to admiring showy, brilliant women, thought there never was anything in these days of bangs and frizzes, so exquisitely feminine, and bewitching, and suggestive of home and happiness, as that tiny white parting in his wife's bounteous brown hair, and the little rippling waves on her white brow. However, he simply remarked that he "liked that way of wearing her hair," and let it go at that. In his instantaneous mental conceptions of her there was always distinct in his mind, her bright, loving glance, her pretty brow and hair, her dark dress and white apron, and plump, white hands; and generally he thought of her with a baby in her arms. They had been married ten years, and there had been three children, so that Mr. Batterby had good cause to remember his wife as holding a babe.

Such a woman it was who fell a victim to that "crazy quilt" mania, which is now insidiously undermining the moral and intellectual character of the females in all ranks of life throughout the whole country.

It was Mme. Pumpernickel, who, being herself demented, introduced the contagious mania, into this hitherto happy household. Who is Mme. Pumpernickel? Everybody asked that the moment they saw her. With her gray hair coiled like a coronet on her well-poised, head, and her air of good breeding, and her lively wit, and her gracious manner, one almost expected to hear she was a duchess. But in reality she was only a woman of defeated possibilities. She might have been a world-renowned pianist if she had been born to poverty. She might have been a Senator's wife, if she had married her first love. She would have been a great writer if she had been a better talker, and she would have been celebrated as a wonderful conversationalist if she had been born to wealth, and in Boston, instead of spending her first twenty years in learning and teaching music in a Western State.

But despite her disadvantages Mme. Pumpernickel's consciousness of her own superiority to criticism never deserted her, and never failed to impress, with more or less intensity, those with whom she came in contact.

So when Mme. Pumpernickel opened her valise, and from every part of it came tumbling out silk rags, snippings and clippings of every shade and shape, she said in her gay way:

"I travel like an æsthetic ragman. It's my 'crazy quilt.' You must have one. They are elegant." And Mrs. Battery immediately decided to have one.

That night, when Mr. Batterby, who as one of Chicago's prominent men, had been requested to attend "a ratification meeting" down town, arrived home at 10:30 p. m., he looked over the banisters into the dining room, and involuntarily exclaimed:

"Up yet? Why, what in the world are you doing?"

Well might he exclaim.

The floor of the room into which he looked was strewn with rags; the dining table was strewn with them; and bending over the table, arrayed in loose wrappers, their cheeks flushed and their hair dishevelled in their eagerness, were his wife and her guest, pulling about and tossing around the heap of silk scraps.

"Oh, I'm making a 'crazy quilt!'" abstractedly returned his wife, scarcely raising her eyes from her work. "Mme. Pumpernickel is helping me plan squares."

Mr. Batterby looked on a moment, his habitual abiding sense of a man's inability to comprehend the mysterious workings of the feminine intellect enabling him to maintain a becoming composure of manner.

"Well, good night!" he said, with the air of one who was giving up a problem.

But as he turned to go his eyes was caught by the familiar pattern of one silken fragment. He drew it from the heap.

"My old necktie! another of my scarfs!"

"Now, Gustave!" cried Mrs. Batterby, snatching it away; "you gave up wearing that years ago!"

"Here is one I bought in Paris," said Mr. Batterby, giving another pull at the pile, and bringing out a rich blue satin scarf.

And she is so close and stingy with them she won't cut one!" cried Mme. Pumpernickel, gayly.

"Here, Mme. Pumpernickel, I'll give you this for your quilt," very gallantly responded Mr. Batterby, handing over the bright silken ribbon.

"Oh!" involuntarily gasped his wife. "Why Gustave! and I've been saving that to use in some such way as this these five years!"

"Oh, thank you Mr. Batterby! Now I shall always have something to remind me of you in my quilt. Now you see how your wife feels about it! But I shall not divide with her!"

"No, you keep it all!" jocosely advised Mr. Batterby, keeping up the joke; and he betook himself to bed, leaving the two women delving into the rags.

They finished their squares, though Mrs. Batterby had to let the baby cry a little while, till she pieced out a corner; but there was not the same cordiality between them as before Mr. Batterby's entrance. Mrs. Batterby's good sence was all that restrained her from jealousy.

She knew what a belle and flirt Mme. Pumpernickel used to be, and "really," she was mentally saying, "gray hairs and wrinkles would not prevent her being a coquette yet. Will she really take advantage of Gustave's fun and carry away that scarf she knows I was hoarding."

But Mme. Pumpernickel, who had a keen sense of humor, and read Mrs. Batterby's mind like a book) really did carry the scarf away to her room and valise, and poor little Mrs. Batterby (who lay awake that night planning squares, and thought about that beautiful tie, and Gustave's reckless generosity) never saw again the treasure of which her husband and her guest had so ruthlessly despoiled her.

Immediately after breakfast the next morning the two women sat down to their work.

"I'm going to let Mary dress the baby and pick up the house. I'll just let things go, and devote myself to you."

"Yes, and we'll see how many squares of your quilt we can finish while I'm here."

"We must go to the opera matinee this afternoon, you know."

"Dear me! I hardly feel as if we could take the time," cried Mme. Pumpernickel, who was a musician by nature and training, and adored the opera.

They worked on their respective squares till the last minute, barely allowing themselves time to dress and swallow a cup of tea each.

"We shall be a little late," said Mrs. Batterby, when they were almost at their destination. The next moment she gave a little cry of consternation.

"Oh, mercy! If I didn't leave our tickets on the mantelpiece!"

"How long will it take for us to go for them?"

"Forty minutes, and forty back. Call it an hour and a half. The opera will be nearly over. How stupid of me!"

"Never mind. We can stop and buy that pink satin for your quilt, and then go home and plan two more squares before we go to bed."

"I know you only say that to relieve me. You must be dreadfully disappointed! Oh, they're well named 'crazy quilts!'"

"Yes; but you see I must leave you Friday, so there is only one day more for us to work on the quilt. Dear child," pleaded Mme. Pumpernickel, earnestly, and laying her hand on Mrs. Batterby's arm, "don't, don't stop until your quilt is finished!"

"Not even to eat and sleep?"

"Oh, I suppose you'll be obliged to stop for those things," returned Mme. Pumpernickel half in jest, half in earnest; "but you must not let anything else hinder you. Delay would be fatal. Your ardor would soon cool."

But Mr. Batterby, in the goodness of his heart, brought home theatre tickets for that night, and the ladies tore themselves away from their rags and accompanied him, but the play being a society drama, gave great display of costumes, and afforded the two demented creatures many occasions to whisper asides, such as:

"Look at that elegant brocade she has on. Wouldn't I just like a piece of that in my quilt!"

"See that rich purple velvet in that page's cloak! Wouldn't that show in your square?"

"I'd just like to snip a piece of that lady's bonnet strings. We haven't any green to light up at night."

Fortunately Mr. Batterby did not hear these remarks or he might have feared for his wife's mental condition, and as he sat between the ladies in the car returning home they were obliged to make an attempt at least to speak on other topics besides crazy quilts. The next day, to the great delight of the ladies it stormed.

"We shall have no callers, and we can't go out," they said. So they sat in the midst of rags, snipping, clipping, basting, too busy to comb their hair or change their morning dresses until the daylight began to wane.

"O, dear! It's to bad I have to stop, but I suppose we must," said Mme Pumpernickel. "We must make ourselves decent before Mr. Batterby comes."

And just then there was a ring at the door and a telegram from Mr. Batterby that business would keep him down town till between 9 and 10 oclock.

"And now we needn't dress," joyously cried Mme. Pumpernickel. "I shall finish this square before I go to bed. I am determined on it."

But it did seem to Mrs. Batterby as if the children were never so worrisome before. What was the reason 3 year-old Edith should be so tiresome about getting to bed? And then after she was there she wanted the pillow fixed, and the sheet smoothed, and a drink of water, and at the last moment she called her mamma back because she hadn't said her prayers. Then when the patient mother again reached the stairs the little voice called:

"Mamma, mamma, Edie wants dollie."

The usually gentle mother, becomes frantic at separation from her "crazy quilt," returned, and snatching up the battered, bald-headed object of Edie's affections tossed it into the crib.

"There, dollie, get into bed with you," she said, crossly. "You haven't got to say any prayers, because you haven't got any soul."

Edie snatched up her child and turned on her mother with flashing eyes.

"Tee hab dot tum toul too!" she roared.

Mrs Batterby, smitten with remorse, kissed her child and smoothed her, and yet it did not occur to the mother how strong and baleful must be the influence which could render her thus hard and petulant to her darling Edith, patient and tender and considerate of the feelings of dollie's mother as she generally was.

The next day Mme. Pumpernickel departed, but the evil which she had disseminated remained. Mrs. Batterby grew worse daily until she became a hopeless crazy quilt maniac. The devoted husband, his attention now drawn to the subject, was alarmed to observe how fixed a hold the terrible mania had taken upon his poor wife's aberrated mind. It was only Sunday she abstained from creative work upon this destroyer of domestic unhappiness. But it was, after all only a physical abstinence, for her husband marked her long memorizing gaze upon the illuminated texts above the pulpit wherein the grayhaired minister was impressing upon his hearers the spiritual darkness of the Jews. He noted her roving, abstracted gaze over the congregation, and he divined the envy and covetousness in her soul as her eye caught the beauty of some new tint in bonnet-trimming.

One cold morning Mrs. Batterby's mother came in from the suburbs, and surprised her daughter with a visit. But no sooner were the old lady's wrappings off than the crazy quilt was brought to notice, and the daughter could not be induced to make any but a momentary digression on any other subject; but there she sat, only stopping reluctantly for lunch, "feather-stitching" on her "square" as if her next day's bread depended on getting it done before night.

"Well, goodbye," said the old lady at parting. "If they conclude to send you to the asylum at Batavia, tell them to let me know immediately."

And she went back to the suburbs with a little chill of disappointment at her heart.

But while Mr. Batterby was racking his brain to know how he could surreptitiously minister to his wife's diseased mind, a kind Providence was sending a blessing in disguise. It was something like the sensational society drama where the sickness of the child recalls the erring wife to virtue.

Little Philip fell ill. It was only the chicken pox, but as the family physician said, "It was not once in a hundred times that there was such a severe case."

The morning of the fourth day of his illness, as the mother sat holding in her gentle arms the little sufferer, whose swollen face was covered with the confluent eruption, and whose beautiful blue eyes were closed by the disease, little Edie came and looked at her blind baby brother very thoughtfully.

"Philip doin' to die?" she lisped.

"O no, mamma hopes not."

"Mamma wouldn't feel so very bad, Mamma could work all zo time on her tazy twilt zen," rejoined Edie gravely.

The unconscious reproach went straight to the mother's awakened conscience.

As soon as her arms were temporarily freed from their beloved burden she gathered up all the material of her crazy quilt and put them in a bureau drawer in the sewing-room. In the drawer lay the five yards of dark-green plush for the border, for the squares were all ready to be put together. Five yards at two dollars a yard, ten dollars! And now there was all the expense of Philip's sickness to meet. She half regretted the spending of the ten dollar gold piece Gustave had given her. He had told her to buy a comfortable house dress with it. But now she really needed the dress. And ten dollars just for the border of the quilt seemed a good deal. Satin would have been cheaper, of course. But then, plush was the thing. Still she sighed a little perplexed sigh as she shut the drawer.

The next Monday morning Bridget left her wash in the tubs, declaring she was sick and must go home to her aunt's.

"An' shure ye wouldn't be payin' back a week's pay for a week's warnin' whin I'm that sick I can't stand on my two fate!"

So she got her full pay and she went, and when the strange washerwoman hired to finish the wash was gone, it was found that all the towels, and handkerchiefs and stockings had vanished.

Then the intelligence office began to send its Bedouins through the kitchen of poor Mrs. Batterby.

It was the same old tribe. In the course of three weeks they had them all—the girl who broke everything from the largest platter down to the handle of the furnace door, the girl who served her hair up with various dressings at each meal, the girl who put her potatoes on to cook when she heard Mr. Batterby's voice in the hall, and baked all the griddle-cakes before the breakfast bell rang. And so forth and so on.

But they lived through it all, as people do, and nothing ever really came of it all except a secret change of Mr. Batterby's views on the subject of a Purgatory, and his growing conviction of such a place as a necessary adjunct to celestial housekeeping.

In the meantime the crazy quilt was almost forgotten. One day, however, when Mr. Batterby was enjoying a days vacation in the bosom of his family, a lady visitor came in, and somehow the new style of patchwork became the topic of conversation.

"Ah, but you just ought to see my wife's quilt! Go get it, dear, and let Mrs. Smith see it."

"It's not quite finished. Baby's sickness made me lay it away," demurred Mrs. Batterby, who felt a strange reluctance to take out her old enslaver.

"Never mind. Show the squares."

"O don't! I should so like to see them."

Mrs. Batterby rose and left the room. As she went slowly through the hall and up the stairs she suddenly vividly recalled that $10 worth of plush. It seemed a pity not to let Mrs. Smith see the quilt, and get a clear idea of the whole effect of the quilt. But it might set Gustave thinking. Of course, the [illegible] had been her [illegible]. But it might [illegible] think it extravagance. [illegible] he would. [illegible] At least he would be astonished at her extravagance. [illegible]

So thinking she opened the drawer. It was empty!

Mrs. Batterby stood confounded. The other [illegible] half-worn garments to be remade. No quilt in them. Gone —plush and squares. Also the gingham for aprons, and her unmaid calico dress.

With a lightning flash she recalled sending Bridget to the bureau one Sunday afternoon for flannel for Philip. The next Monday she left.

Mrs. Batterby went back to the sitting-room. She was pale, but dry-eyed. She told her woe.

"Never mind, my darling!" said her husband, putting his arm about her. "I'll buy you a handsome Marseilles spread."

Her hours and days and weeks of slavish work rose up before Mrs. Batterby's mind, the tears gushed from her eyes.

A Marseilles spread! What does a man know about a woman's feelings?" she sobbed.

Blarneyed an Old Lawyer.

By "blarney" is usually understood fluent power of persuasion—the faculty to "talk over" a person to one's own way of thinking by good words, often containing more flattery than truth. An apt illustration of it is related by an old Western lawyer, as a joke on himself, in some reminiscences of his early practice. The incident would make a curious appendix to "Betsey and I are Out," bringing laughter in the place place of tears. The narrator says,—

I was sitting in my office one day, when in stepped an Irishman whom I will call John Wood, of Union County, and told me he had been recommended to me for sound counsel in an important case. He had arrived directly from Cork, Ireland, only a few years before, bringing with him his wife and several children as far as Hamilton County, Ohio, where by pure accident he and his "ould woman" had somehow got separated, and had not lived together since, and his business with me was to employ me to file a bill for a divorce in the Union Circuit Court. The fee was twenty dollars, which he agreed to pay, and left.

I immediately filed the bill, and had the notice published in the paper for the next term. The old woman accidentally saw the advertisement, and thereby found out for the first time where the man had stopped after he had left her, and came directly over to the old man's residence. The whole matter was soon reconciled between them.

Soon after this settlement, the old man called at my office in fine humor.

"Misther Smith, the ould woman an' meself 'av made up!"

"Indeed! Well, I am very glad of it. You are both too old to separate."

"I know you're glad; you're a good man; I jist came over to see what yo'll charge a poor man like meself that's jist made up with me 'ould woman.'"

"I charge you twenty dollars, Mr. Wood."

"Ah, sure, Mr. Smith, ye'll not charge a poor body twenty dollars. The minute I landed at New York, I heard of you Misther Smith, that yo was a kind-hearted man, and a distinguished sargeant in the law, as yo are, Misther Smith."

"I charge you only ten dollars, Mr. Wood."

"Surely, Misther Smith, yo'll not charge a poor body tin dollars for a little matther like this. Misther Smith I've been acquainted with all the great barristers of Ireland,—with the Ponsonbys, the Emmets, the Grattans, the Currans, an, the Burkes—but there's not one of thim that's yer aqual Misther Smith—you are so approachable in coort, and can take such grand distinctions in the law, Misther Smith."

"I charge you nothing Mr. Wood."

"Ah, you are a gintlemanly man, Misther Smith. Sure, an' you will pay the printer."

A Plain Mr. for Grant.

Grand Army Scout and Mail.

The following is a copy of a letter recently sent to a friend in this country by Sir Garnet Joseph Wolseley of her majesty's service. The letter appears in the May number of the "Southern Historical Society Papers:"

WAR OFFICE, LONDON,
8th December, 1883.

MY DEAR MISS S.: I am very grateful for yor kind letter and for the valuable autographs it contains. I have long been collecting the letters of eminent people, but have had much difficulty in obtaining those of the great men on your side of the Atlantic. I have only known two heroes in my life and General R. E. Lee is one of them; so you can well understand that I value one of his letters. I believe that when time has calmed the angry passions of the "north" General Lee will be accepted in the United States as the greatest general you have ever had and second as a patriot only to Washington himself. Stonewall Jackson I only knew slightly. His name will live forever also in American history when that of Mr. U. S. Grant has been long forgotten. Such, at least, is my humble opinion of these men when viewed by an outside student of military history who has no local prejudices.

* * * * * * *

Again thanking you most sincerely for your kindness to me in this matter believe me to remain very faithfully yours,

WOLSELEY.

Laws of Humanity in a Back Seat.

From the Cleveland Plaindealer.

Rev. R. E. Macduff, pastor of St. Mary's church, was arrested yesterday by Patrolman Seibel for riding a bicycle on Wilson avenue. This morning Mr. Macduff appeared in the police court and pleaded guilty.

"I desire to make an explanation," he said. "I reside at No. 1232 Slater avenue, and my parish is a very large one. I am often called to the bedside of a sick or dying person and must get there as fast as I can. I hope I am a law abiding citizen, but when I receive a call of this kind I am going to respond at all hazards. I consider that in following my calling as a minister I am obeying the law of humanity, a higher law, even though I violate the law made by man."

"Where is your church?" asked the court.

"At the corner of Woodland avenue and Wallingford court."

"I have frequently heard of you," said the judge, "although never on wheels. I am much pleased with your discourse and must go out soon and hear you preach."

Mr. Macduff looked pleased and smiled.

"But I want to say to you," continued the judge, "that when the laws of humanity, or higher laws, as you call them, conflict with the laws of this state and city, the higher laws are going to come off second best. I respect your calling—it is a noble one; but the laws to enforce which I am placed here are applicable to everybody without distinction as to person or occupation. For the present I'll stand by the ordinance. My advice to you is to 'keep in the middle of the road.' If you take to the sidewalk you must go afoot."

The Rev. Mr. Macduff was fined the costs, and walked up to the captain's desk and settled.

Where She Drew the Line.

Portland Press. Israel Pinkham and wife moved from Maine many years ago to Utah Territory. They passed through Salt Lake the other day on their way to their old home, and the old lady made no secret of the cause of their return. To the reporter for a Gentile newspaper she said: "My husband and I have lived together these forty-three years, and though we joined the Mormons twenty years ago, nothing was ever said about polygamy until this spring. Then some sneaking priests came round and got the old man worked up with the idea that he must have two or three more wives. 'Not much, Israel Pinkham,' says I; we've traveled together thus far, and no Mormon will separate us now. We've got two sons and a darter back East who shan't have anybody poking fun at them; and there's the two little boys that we buried back in Maine who wont have no ocasion to pint their fingers at us when we cross over to the other side. This thing has gone just as far as it's going, Israel Pinkham we're going back to Maine,' says I, 'and whether we've got one year or ten years to live, we'll end this here pilgrimage decent, as we begun it.' Ain't that what I told you!" said she, addressing the old man, who had been a silent listener. He smiled in a faint way, and nodded assent. "We're going back to Maine," continued the old lady, "poorer than when we came out here, but wiser and no wuss, so far as I know. There'll be no more Mormon in this family."

NO TRESPASSING.

By Emily F. Wheeler.

It was painted in very black letters on a very white board. He who ran could read, and Ruth Bennett was only walking very fast when she came on it. But she knew it by heart already. For the last month she had read it every day, and every day meekly turned into the dusty road and made the long detour needed to get past Mr. Hale's grounds and into his next neighbors. A fivem inutes' walk through that beautiful park would have brought her to Mrs. Alexander's hedge, and saved a modicum of strength and temper sorely needed for her trials as day governess to the three little Alexanders. But she had never ventured on the liberty, though she wanted to every day, and the impulse had grown greater since she had asked Mrs. Alexander if it was quite impossible.

"There's never a soul about, and it's an eighth of a mile certainly to the house. I don't believe any one would ever see me, and if they did I could tell them I was your governess." For it seemed to the young girl a sufficient distinction to be that to Mrs. Rufus Alexander, leading lady of the pretty town where her summer home was located.

"I would not venture it if I were you," Mrs. Alexander answered kindly. She was always kind to her governess, despite her wealth and her Mayflower blood, and she had a special liking for this bright-faced eager girl. Mr. Hale is very particular. He is a new comer here and disposed to make every one respect his rights." It had been on the lady's lips to call him parvenu, but she would not throw scorn at her neighbor before her governess.

"Why, Miss Bennett," Harry Alexander had added as she turned away, "do you know that last summer his gardener ordered my nother off the grounds? Of course Mr. Hale excused it afterward—said the man had his orders to make no discrimination; but fancy—my mother!" And Harry's accent was more than the words.

Little Miss Bennett bowed her head and before the rights of a good democrat who had made all his money in the last twenty years, and was therefore more aristocratic and exclusive than an English nobleman would have been with respect to his possessions. Half the village would have been grateful had Mr. Hale allowed a foot-path to traverse his splendid park, but of course an American can not make concessions to the lower classes, and he stood on his rights and dignities. But to-day Ruth paused. She was late for her lessons; she had lingered to put the last touches to the pretty new dress she wore, and there was a thunder storm coming. Should she run the risk of offending Mrs. Alexander and spoiling her dress, or should she trespass? No one was in sight as she looked about, and a nearer roll of thunder helped her to a decision. She stepped through the little gate which all these days had mocked her with its invitation to forbidden ground, and hurried across the lawn. In the distance she could see the stately house, the leaping fountans and bright flowers. She kept her eye on that, fearing some servant on the watch. She never looked the other way, and so, when a step suddenly came beside her, she started in conscience-smitten guilt.

"Are you aware, madam," a clear-cut voice said, "that you are on private grounds?"

She looked up. A stout, bald man stood beside her, a man whom her prophetic soul assured her was Mr. Hale. He had deigned to touch his hat, but not out of respect for her, she was sure. He saluted rather his own dignity and sense of the proprieties. He had a pompous air, as of one who feared his simple personality was not impressive enough, and the neat perfection of his costume made more prominent his commonplace features.

"Yes, sir," she answered meekly; "but I am doing my best to get out of them."

"You came in by the lower gate. You saw the sign, of course?" he went on in the same magisterial tones.

"Yes; but I was in a hurry, and I—I was afraid it was going to rain. I'm Mrs. Alexander's governess." She ventured a glance at him as she said this, but it evidently made no impression. "I—I beg your pardon; and I can go back, I suppose. I thought that for once—and I didn't want to spoil my dress," she finished impetuously, as a great drop of rain fell on her hand.

She looked up with eyes whose appeal might have softened him. It seemed to her a very ample excuse, but there was no relenting in his face. In his own mind, indeed, he was making a concession. As she was his neighbor's governess, he would not carry the matter further, and so he stiffly said, as he stood back to let her retrace her steps.

"I am sure I—or, Mrs. Alexander—will be much obliged for your—your unexpected consideration," Miss Bennett answered, as she took up her skirts and prepared to beat a dignified retreat.

There was no use of hurrying; she was sure to be caught in the storm now, and so she turned and swept Mr. Hale a profound reverence, whose disdain he could not understand. But there was a dimness in her eyes as she raised them to his.

After all, she was only a child, and so far the world had smiled into her pretty face and treated her indulgently. That was not Mr. Hale's attitude, but as she walked away, something—perhaps the pride of self-assertion over this intruding governess, perhaps the thought of those eyes—made him relent. In five minutes it would be pouring and he was not quite a brute. He stepped forward and called: "Madam!"

Miss Bennett heard, hurried her steps an instant, and then stopped. She would like to be proud to the bitter end, and anyway she could not go back till she was told [illegible]

Mr. Hale had to take a half dozen more steps before he was near enough to say, "As it is raining, miss, it will shorten your walk. I have no objection [illegible] this one."

"O I shall not do it again," Ruth cried; "I'd sooner go through a wilderness."

"But that is not the shortest way," he went on; "it is much nearer by the coach-house. Here—let me show you."

"Oh, I couldn't think of troubling you. Thank you, but you'll get wet yourself."

"Since I have undertaken it," answered Mr. Hale, as if apologizing to himself for his concession; and with the words he spread his neat umbrella and walked with her. It was only two minutes. The path he took was shorter, and Miss Bennett hurried all she could. She spoke no word till she reached the Alexander hedge; then she said as hastily: "I am very much obliged—and—I shall not trespass again."

"A pretty little girl," Mr. Hale said, to himself as he watched her flying toward the shelter of the porch. "Mrs. Alexander's governess! Hum!" But what this last word meant in his thought he could hardly have told. Peraps it only reminded him that his three motherless children would soon be needing one.

"Miss Bennett," Mrs. Alexander said a week later," where did you meet Mr. Hale? He seems to know you; and last night at the garden party he deigned to say that if it would save you time and fatigue, you might go through the park. He has noticed you, perhaps coming up from the village." And when Ruth had told her story, she lifted her eyebrows a little. "It's a concession—a great concession from him," she said.

"But I don't want it," cried Ruth, "I'd rather go miles around now. You can't think how his manner humiliated me. I felt as though I'd committed the unpardonable sin."

Mrs Alexander smiled at her vehemence, but she had her own reasons for not encouraging it."

"It's quite on another footing now, since he permits it," she said, "and really I wish you would. Since the hot weather came I notice you are sometimes very tired with the walk. Anything that will save your strength for your work, you know." And to that Ruth yielded.

She need not have been so fierce about it, she said to herself, after a week. She had the park all to herself; and it was certainly pleasanter than the dusty road. At first she hurried through as if a dragon haunted every bush; but gradually she moderated her pace, and at last she made it a gentle saunter and even stopped on the brink of the little stream which crossed one end of the park to cool her hot head in its breath of freshness, and soothe her eyes in the soft green depths of the wood beyond. Once or twice she saw Mr. Hale's children with their French nurse in the distance, once Mr. Hale himself met her, touched his hat stiffly, and stood aside to let her pass. She wondered afterward if he expected her to thank him for his great concession. But the burden of gratitude was not overwhelming to her proud little heart.

But a few days later she met him again, and this time she repented enough to give him a very frank smile and greeting. She felt like smiling on all the world that day, this poor little governess who had youth and hope as her portion; and was content therewith. Perhaps a letter which she had thrust into her pocket at sight of him—a letter she had herself taken from the office and lingered under the trees to read—had something to do with her radiant face just then.

"You find this way much pleasanter than the road, Miss Bennett?" Mr. Hale said, made affable by that smile.

"Very much pleasanter, thank you," Ruth answered, demurely.

"I might perhaps allow others to go through," he went on, "if I could be sure they would not abuse the liberty. But it is always dangerous to give people an inch; they take in all instead."

"Oh, I've no doubt you are quite in the right—from your side of the matter," Ruth answered, and if there was the faintest touch of irony in her limitation, Mr. Hale did not see it.

"Certainly I am in the right," he declared, in his most magisterial manner; but having thus, so to speak asserted his dignity, he sought to unbend and be properly graciors to so discreet a person as she had proved herself. Ruth answered all his remarks with proper modesty, deepening the good impression she had already made, and forgot all about him when she had crossed the hedge.

But the next day, as she sauntered along the path, a sudden sharp cry startled her—a child's cry for help. It came from the river bank, and as she ran towards it she understood its meaning. The youngest of the children, the little heir of the house, had slipped and fallen into the stream. The nurse was running up and down, wringingher hands, and the two children were screaming for help. The water was not deep, but a child can drown in very little, and when she had reached the bank he had gone under for the second time. "Run to the house for help," she cried to the children; but even as she spoke she had herself seized the readiest means of aid, and was climbing down the bank. It would ruin her dress—even then she thought of that—but she waded in bravely, half supporting herself by clinging to a vine that curtained the slope. It might give way—it certainly would if the boy struggled and she lost her balance; but it was the best she could do. She was not conscious of any special heroism. Other people would doubtless come to pull them both out later, but the moments were precious, and the child—and here he came up again, just out of her reach. She dropped the vine, took the step needed to catch him, and fell with him to the muddy bottom.

Ruth Bennett was chiefly concious of her ruined dress and mud-bespattered face when, a minute later, she climbed up the bank with her burden. The gardener and coachman were there; Mr. Hale was there too, but he let the others help her up, and his paternal raptures did not extend to taking his dripping son and heir in his arms.

"Carry him up to the house, Bates," he said, after a glance had assured him that the child was unhurt, "and put him in a bath-tub at once. And you, Miss Bennett—"

"I need to go into one too," she gasped, trying to wring the water from her skirts. Her ears were roaring with the water in them; she felt as if she had been drowned and come to life again, but it was the comedy of the situation which chiefly occupied her even then, and Mr. Hale's divided mind between his wish to be properly grateful and his disgusted sense of her dripping condition. And then, womanlike, she tried to [illegible] up her dress with some [illegible]

"I—I hope you haven't hurt yourself," Mr. Hale said, evidently not knowing what to say. "I—I am deeply grateful, Miss Bennett—more than I can express—and I should be very sorry—for any consequences to yourself."

"Oh, it's nothing," Ruth answered, as soon as she could speak. "The only consequences to myself are a ruined dress, and that's a proper revenge of fate. It was to save this dress—it was so new then, and so pretty," she added, pathetically—"that I trepassed on your grounds six weeks ago. I hope you appreciate the fact of the Nemesis." And therewith she held up the torn and streaming silk to his astonished eyes.

"You won't exaggerate my heroism," she went on, "if I tell you that I thought more of this than anything else when I went into the river. I knew there was no real danger if I kept a steady head. But I hope the little boy won't take cold; and as that is my only danger just now—" And before Mr. Hale could recover himself to find speech, she had swept him a mocking courtesy, and was flying toward the Alexander house much as he had seen her speed six weeks before.

"Miss Bennett," Mrs. Alexander said, a few days later, coming into the library after the children had gone, "I have a commission to discharge. It's rather a peculiar one, but I hope you won't mind such a thing coming through a third person. Of course the situation is peculiar and rather delicate for Mr. Hale. He thought he would rather put it into my hands; that is, rather let me find out first your—your feeling about it."

Miss Bennett looked up bewildered. "I don't understand, Mrs. Alexander. Is it about the little boy? Does Mr. Hale want to reward me"—a deep flush suffused her fairness—"for what I did? I couldn't take his money, of course."

"I don't know that he would look at it quite in that light." Mrs Alexanber answered. "It probably helped to bring matters to a climax with him. Indeed, he intimated as much. And perhaps it is a reward of virtue. Certainly it is quite after the story-book style, but you are pretty enough and bright enough, as I told him, for almost any position. He is a self-made man himself; it isn't such a wonderful condescension when one remembers that. He couldn't expect to marry into the Mayflower, for all his wealth."

Miss Bennett felt as if her senses were playing her false. "You don't mean—you can't mean," she cried, "that he wants to marry me?"

Mrs Alexander put her arm about her soothingly. "I suppose it is rather overwhelming, my dear. It was to me at first. But, after all, why should he not? There are three children, of course, and he's twenty years older, and he hasn't much besides his money to recommend him; but it would be a splendid home for you, dear. It seems he has watched you ever since that time you trespassed. And he has made inquiries of me. He began making them some time ago, but I didn't notice. I thought perhaps he wanted a governess. Of course I gave you the highest recommendations," she added, laughing, "though I didn't know the pesition he wanted you to fill. He seems quite sure of his own feeling, and it is certainly a great triumph for you, my dear."

Miss Bennett sank back into the chair from which she had half risen. Her mind plainly could not take in the new situation; but she came to herself when Mrs. Alexander went on: "Of course you may want time to think it over, but he would like to see you this evening, and—he hopes for an answer then."

"Oh! oh!" Miss Bennett cried, springing to her feet. "There's no use. I couldn't if my life depended on it, for—I'm engaged to some one else. And I never knew—indeed, I never knew, Mrs. Alexander, until a few days ago, that Philip was his nephew. you see," she went on, breathlessly, "his sister was with me at school, and that was the way I learned to know him. And Mr. Hale was very angry at his engaging himself to a 'down-East school-ma'am,' as he called me. He had promised to help him before, but—but they quarreled over me, and Phil went west, and I came here. And it was only a fortnight ago that I wrote him—because I hadn't much else to write—all about my trespassing, and what had come of it. And he answered—I had his letter last week. 'That's my own dragon of an uncle; and if you've won one concession from him, perhaps you could do more. If he learned to know you, he might think differently about our engagement, and though I don't need any of his help now, still he's my nearest relative, and I should like to be on good terms with him.' And I had been hoping—but now—now you see how impossible it is. And if Phil has his own way to make, we may have to wait a long time, and perhaps always be poor, I love him too much to mind."

The soul of young love and trust was in her eyes as she looked up at Mrs. Alexander, and the woman's heart in her was touched. It was the philosophy of the Babes in the Woods, indeed; she could have overturned it with a touch of worldly common sense; but she only bent nearer her, and then suddenly Ruth felt a kiss on her forehead, a kiss of a mother's comprehending love.

But when she had cooled a little from this unexpected touch of enthusiasm, Mrs. Alexander had her plans. She met Mr. Hale herself that evening; she confounded him with the news that the school-ma'am despised for his nephew was his own elect; and she followed up her advantage till he consented to express his gratitude to Miss Bennett by the gift of a home—of which he should not be master. And since young Philip was doing well at the west, and needed no more of his uncle's help, the new home was hardly ready before he could claim its mistress. Only one touch of romance Mr. Hale allowed himself—the wedding gown which replaced Ruth's unlucky dress.—Harper's Bazar.

[illegible] Like Some Railroads.

Wall Street News.

A religious denomination in a town in India, which felt that it must have a church, called in the services of a business man to tell him how it could be brought about. [illegible]

"The case stands like this," he began: "There are twenty of you, and you can raise $500 among you. You need at least $8,000. Organize a stock company, offer your shares at fifty cents on the dollar, and you'll have no trouble about getting the money." [illegible]

"But, Mr. Chairman," protested one of the brethren, "what about dividends on this stock?" [illegible]

"Dividends! dividends!" echoed the Chairman; "why, that's an after consideration. The first thing is to get rid of the stock and get the building up." [illegible]

FARM AND HOUSEHOLD.

Household Miscellany.

To remove sunburn, wash in buttermilk, in which a little fresh tansy has been steeped for a few hours.

An inventive woman advises when you drive a nail into a clothes-press to hang clothes upon, to drive it thorugh an empty spool up to the head. Select a spool with a hole large enough so that the nail will not split it.

Matting is not put down on floors now in straight breaths, a plaid colored piece being tacked all around the floor and a square of the same in the middle, the rest being filled with plain white, or any individual taste is carried out, to lay it in a rug-like manner.

A lady advises those who are troubled with little flies about their plants in winter to use separate saucers for the pots, and to water the plants from the bottom by filling the saucers with boiling water. Since begining this practice, she writes, she is not troubled by the flies, and thinks the plants do much better watered in this way than by pouring the water on top.

To produce a pure black upon wood the following receipt is given: Pour four quarts of boiling water over one ounce of powdered extract of logwood, and when the solution is effected add one drachm of yellow chromate of potassium, and stir the whole well. Repeat the application of this mixture until the wood is dark enough.

Dr. S. A. Brown, United States Navy, states in the Medical Record that he has found a specific to the troublesome eruption produced by the poison oak or poison ivy so common in our woods and along old fences. This specific he finds in bromine, which he has used with unvarying success in at least forty cases. He uses the drug dissolved in olive oil, cosmoline, or glycerine, in the strength of from ten to twenty drops of bromine to the ounce of oil, and rubs the mixture gently on the effected parts three or four times a day. The bromine is so volatile that the solution should be renewed every twenty-four hours. The eruption never extends after the first thorough application, and it promptly disappears within twenty-four hours if the application is persisted in.

Farming Paragraphs.

Clover hay will shrink about one-seventh from its weight at the time of making.

Milch cows cannot once be deprived of water without its telling on the milk flow.

Apples are expected to bring from $4 to $6 per barrel in New York this Fall. English and Scotch agents are already there buying them up in advance.

Should the present great corn crop of Nebraska come to marketable maturity, the year's yield in that state is estimated at 120,000,000 bushels.

Rotten chips or sawdust are good for lettuce and radishes, and if a top dressing is given where these are to be sown a decided improvement in the crop will follow. Night soil can be utilized to good advantage by applying it between the rows and hoeing in.

Grasshoppers have nearly ruined the Mexican grain crop. After all, the unusually cold weather of this country during the early Summer may have been a blessing in disguise, in that it checked the breeding of pets similar to those now impoverishing the farmers of our sister republic.

Common barrel salt is nearly all pure salt, though traces of other minerals exist. Fertilizing salt is prepared from the refuse salt of salt works, and contains the oxide of iron, potash, gypsum, sulphate and carbonate of lime, and grease, with which is mixed lime and wood ashes (all fertilizing materials) ground fine and mixed by machinery. It is unfit for any other purpose but fertilizing, and is sold either in bulk or in 200-pound sacks, though any quantity may be procured that may be desired.—Western Rural.

The Oleander.

The oleander is a favorite in and out-door plant, prized for its flowers, usually of red or rose color. The shrub belongs to the dog-bane family, and is poisonous. A guinea-pig-keeping boy gave to his pets leaves and twigs cut from the oleander plant. The pigs died in convulsions, also in great agony, apparently. We can testify to the fact. Nevertheless, the oleander flower is beautiful, and worth the culture bestowed upon it. There are many varieties—double dark purple, double vermillion, cherry crimson, white, pale yellow and pale sulphur, as to color of flowers. The oleander is found in the Levant and in some parts of Palestine. In Florida it grows in hedges and groves, and attains the height of twenty-five to thirty feet. Galveston is called the "Oleander City," on account of the abundant growth of the oleander. When the plant has grown to the height of eight or ten inches it should be cut back to the second or third joint, and these should be cut back after they have attained sufficient growth. The bush will be thick in foliage, and flower abundantly. The plant requires much moisture. Slips placed in a bottle of salt water, and kept in a sunny window, will put forth roots, and be ready soon for the pot.

Baltimore Fried Chicken.

A Newport correspondent asks how to fry chickens a la Baltimore. The ideal chicken for this dish is young and tender, and unless it is so, really, these directions are vain. Put the frying pan, and it should be a deep one, on the stove, with a large tablespoonful of lard and one of butter, after cutting up the chicken in the usual way. When the fat is hot lay the chicken in; sprinkle pepper and salt and flour over it; the flour should be dusted over it through a fine sifter; cover the frying pan, and let the chicken cook slowly but steadily; when one side is a delicate brown turn the chicken and sprinkle salt, pepper and flour over this side also. If the fat is absorbed add enough to keep the chicken from burning. Half to three-quarters of an hour is long enough to cook the chicken. Make a rich gravy in the pan, thicken it well. If it is your pleasure to add peas or mushrooms, put them into the gravy just before serving. They are of course to be cooked first. If you use canned ones heat them before adding them to the gravy. Pour the gravy around the chicken on a platter.—New York Post.

Precautions Against Cholera.

Cleanliness is one of the precautions; cleanliness of the person, the house, the entire premises, the neighborhood. All decaying substances should be covered deep with fresh, dry earth, all stagnant pools should be drained; a free use of copperas water, lime water, dilute sulphuric acid, carbolic acid, chloride of lime, one or all, will chemically cleanse foul places. Wholesome food, sufficient exercise, abundant sleep, should be insisted on. Under-ripe and over-ripe fruits and vegetables should be avoided. All strains of body or mind should be avoided. Fear, worry, nervous exhaustion, filth, gluttony, starvation—all invite cholera. A serene mind and sound body repel it and resist its attacks.

Melons, to Preserve.

Medium-sized melons are better than very large ones for preserving, and they should not be over-ripe. Peel them and press the juice from the pulp and seeds, which should be taken from the melons with a silver spoon, wash the melons after this, and add the water in which they have been washed to the juice obtained from the pulp and seeds. The melons should be cut lengthwise into eight pieces, if possible using a silver knife; allow them to soak a day and night in cold water with a little salt and vinegar, in the proportion of a teaspoonful of salt and two of white vinegar to half a gallon of water, throwing a clean cloth over during the time to keep out the dust. In the meantime prepare a syrup with the juice from the pulp and seeds, boiling a pound of good loaf sugar for 15 minutes to every half pint of the juice, and then letting it stand to become cold. After the pieces of melon have soaked for 24 hours—care being taken that they have been quite under the water all the time—place them in a preserving pan, and add the cold syrup as prepared; set it on the fire, and, after it comes to a boil, let it simmer for about a quarter of an hour, skimming it during the time; then remove the slices of melon into a bowl, taking care not to break them and pour the syrup over them. For three successive days pour off the syrup, give it a boil up and pour it over again; on the third day place the slices of melon in wide-mouthed bottles, adding some bruised ginger to each; fill the bottles with the hot syrup, let them remain until cold, and then tie tightly down with bladder.—N. Y. Tribune.

Co-Operation in Blood Stock.

There is no better method by which farmers may co-operate than in the matter of selecting stock. If a few farmers in each community would organize, and, with a small contribution from each, procure thoroughbreds for improvement, the expense borne by each individual would be but little, while the benefits to all would be very considerable. Individual effort is often insignificant, but co-operative effort is powerful. By union farmers may easily procure the finest specimens of Shorthorns, Devons, Jerseys, Holsteins, Herefords and Angus; the best strains of thoroughbred Clydesdale, Percheron and trotting horses; the fine-wooled Merinos, the massive Cotswolds and the elegant Shropshires. They may resort to the Berkshire, Essex, Chester or Poland China for improvement of their swine as they may prefer, while all the advantages pertaining to farm machinery may be secured and the cost of production made easier, and the crops increased. In fact, there is no limit to co-operation and the subject is well worthy the attention of farmers of all classes. To invest a few thousand dollars in a horse of well-known merit is not always within the province of some stock-raisers and farmers; but when by co-operation the investment becomes of a proportionate sum, the venture is an easy one. The small amount contributed by each becomes a factor in augmenting the wealth of the entire community, so as no estimate can be placed on the value of an animal used for the improvement of stock, the results attained immediately being followed by others that are lasting and permanent. By co-operation the value of our horses of all classes may be increased, the yields of milk greater, the clippings of wool larger, the carcasses of mutton and pork heavier and the general productions of the farm be more satisfactory in all other respects.—Farm Field and Fireside.

Accumulation of Rubbish in the House.

Rural New Yorker:—At a recent sale of the effects of a broken up household, I was astonished to see the accumulation of trash, that for 40 years had been gathering in the attics and lobbies of that house. There were broken chairs, bottomless baskets, broked-down bedsteads, old tinware, and a large closet full of garments worn by the ancestors of the family, whose original owners had, full 50 years ago, returned to their mother dust; and the relics had been preserved as heir-looms, to perpetuate their memory. They were exposed to the gaze of a thoughtless crowd, and struck off, by the auctioneer's hammer, to the highest bidder. Divested of the best claim to veneration or respectful memory, they were sold for the sum of 25 cents. The question arose, why such good-for-nothing articles of furniture should be kept, to cumber a house? When a chair or bedstead is broken, and cannot be repaired, why is it not burned and got out of the way, and not kept to gather dust, and occupy room in a dwelling? If anything can be mended and made useful, why of course it is best to save it; but if it is past redemption, there is no use in keeping it longer. Old baskets are neither useful nor ornamental, and the best use that can be made of them is to kindle fires. Tin dishes, too, are of no account when they are rusted so that solder cannot stop the leaks, and why they should be kept safe is a mystery. Cast-off garments only breed moths in a house and gather impurity in the air, and are much better in the rag-man's cart than hanging up in the way. Economy is essential to prosperity, but there is such a thing as carrying it to excess, and this "gathering up fragments" that are of no earthly use, is folly. Old worm-eaten boxes and barrels are far better burned than preserved, for they can be turned to account in that way. I would not advise to waste anything that can be made useful in any form; but this ever-increasing pile of rubbish in a house, is not economical or desirable.

My Experience With Holsteins.

Mr. John Mitchell of Orange county, N. Y., gives his experience with these cattle in the columns of the Country Gentleman:

My first purchase of a Holstein was attended by many misgivings. I had been brought up with Ayrshires in their native land, and always regarded them as the best for general dairy purposes. I had read of Holsteins, and had seen a number of them at fairs, but considered their records as exaggerations. My venture was most convincing, to me at least, for soon after calving, my cow easily surpassed the record claimed for her at the time of purchase, and by actual test gave more than the two best young graded cows in my dairy, her yield being 16,076 lbs. for the year, from two milkings a day. She repeated the next season with 14,185 lbs. to her credit, with only ordinary care, proving herself a remarkable butter animal, two days' milk at height of flow producing six pounds, eight ounces of butter. In 1880 and '81 my entire herd of six, comprising one cow, two three-year-old heifers, two two-year-olds and one which calved at twenty-one months old were milked twice a day, and without any grain during the summer season averaged 8,605 lbs. per head for the year. In 1882 and '83 my entire herd of twelve, (only two of which were four years old and seven were under three years old), with the same treatment averaged 8,213 lbs. per head.

I have more than twenty now in milk, which began their records in 1883, and have only one complete record to show, and that a heifer of the Aaggie family, which calved in February, 1883, just out of quarantine, and calved again January 27, 1884, not going dry at all. She scored 9,156 lbs. for the first season in America. When the herd records are completed, I expect to show an average of between 9,500 and 10,000 lbs. per head for the year and only two were over four years old at the beginning of their present record. These two will complete their fourth year in milk in May and June next. Their first three years show averages of 8,593 lbs., and 9,831 lbs. per annum, respectively, and the completion of their fourth year will increase the average considerably. I believe it to be quite within the mark to expect from herds of matured animals an average in excess of 5,000 quarts of milk per annum. When bred on the farm and properly fed and handled still greater results may be looked for.

I have step by step discarded all grades of every kind substituting thoroughbred Holsteins, and have yet to be disappointed either with the quantity or quality of their product. I have bottled and sold Holstein milk for the last three years, and have met with gratifying success. Notwithstanding great competition, I have always obtained the highest market price, and find the demand for it much greater than I can supply.

Gathering Rubber in Brazil.

Writing about the production and export of rubber in Brazil, Consul-General C. C. Andrews, formerly of Minnesota, says: "The rubber tree requires a growth of twenty to twenty-five years before it begins to produce, hence little or nothing has been done for its propagation. The milky sap which forms rubber is taken from the wild tree, which grows scattered through the forests of the Amazon, and many of its affluents. The industry, being principally in the hands of an uneducated and half-civilized nomad population of Indian mixture, is of a crude character. Nothing has been done to improve the system of labor. A wasteful and exhaustive system of labor has been followed for half a century, and the consequence is that millions of rubber trees have been destroyed and many others abandoned from premature and excessive use. There are instances of groves of trees, which, by careful use and by not permitting them to be tapped in the months of August and September, in which they change their leaves, have been yielding for thirty years, and still are in good producing condition; but the common place practice is so wasteful that many well-informed people apprehend that, unless some remedy is applied, this rich resource will before long suffer a serious and perhaps fatal decline.

"The rubber tree thrives only on soil which is annually overflowed to a depth of three or more feet, and prefers the lowest and most recent river-deposit. The rubber gatherers are temporary squatters, and their dwelling is a hut with a low roof of palms, beneath one end of which there is a raised floor or framework of lath, one or two yards from the ground, to which the occupants retreat at high water."

The following description of the process of gathering rubber was written by Franz Keller: "Narrow paths lead from the gatherer's hut through dense underwood to each separate tree, and as soon as the dry season seats in he betakes himself with his hatchet to the trees to cut little holes in the bark. The milk-white sap immediately begins to exude into pieces of bamboo tied below and having their ends in little clay cups set under the gashes to prevent its trickling down the stem. He travels thus from tree to tree. On the return visit he pours the contents of the bamboos into a large earthen vessel provided with straps, which he empties at home into a large turtle-shell. Without delay he sets to work to coagulate it with smoke of palm nuts, and pours a little of the milk evenly on a slight wooden shovel, which he throws into the thick smoke issuing from a little narrow chimney made by the neck of an earthen bottle. He moves the shovel several times to and fro with great rapidity, when the milk is seen to consolidate and to take a grayish-yellow tinge.

"Thus he puts layer upon layer, until at last the rubber on both sides of the wood has reached a thickness of two or three centimeters. Cutting on one side, he takes it off the shovel and hangs it in the sun to dry. A good workman can thus prepare five or six pounds of solid rubber in an hour. From its initial color of clear silver-gray it turns shortly into a yellow, and finally becomes the well-known dark brown of the rubber, such as is exported. The more uniform the denser and freer of bubbles the whole mass is the higher price it brings. Almost double the value is obtained for the first rate article over that of the most inferior quality, which is nothing but the drops collected at the foot of the trees."

A Lake of Fire.

A correspondent of the New York Times, writing from Waterloo, an extensive estate in Nassau, describes a curious body of water to be seen there. The lake is nearly one thousand feet long and two hundred to three hundred feet broad. It is an artificial lake, the former proprietor of Waterloo having built it to store green turtles in. The plan was to buy the turtles alive and put them in the lake and let them increase in size and numbers, when they would always be ready to be caught and eaten. Millions of fish could be kept in the lake at the same time, and thus the occupant of Waterloo would always have a good dinner waiting in the yard. The lake's bed is cut out of the solid rock, and is only a few hundred feet from the ocean. It is connected with the sea by a small canal, also cut through the rocks; and when the gate in this canal is left open the tide rises and falls in the lake.

It was one of the darkest nights I ever saw. We went into the boathouse and pushed out a heavy rowboat. I took the oars and we pulled off. The first stroke gave me a fine start. There had not been any unusual appearance of phosphorescence on the surface of the water more than is often seen on tropical seas; but as soon as the oars stirred it up they seemed to be dipped in melted gold. There was actually fire there, I was compelled to think. While I was wondering at it, a fish, srartled by our splatter, darted across the pond near the surface, and in his trail was left a streak of yellow fire. Then we saw at different places on the surface little vapory clouds of fire flashing and darting about like the northern lights.

"If you have a newspaper in you pocket," said my companion, "lay it on your lap and splash the water with both oars, to see whether you can get light enough to read by."

I did so, and was able to read the heading and all the large lines without difficulty. I took an oar then and splashed the water, and wherever a drop fell back into the lake was a round spot of fire. There was something startling in seeing so much fire floating about. And I had not the faintest notion where we were. I had gone out upon an unknown lake, in total darkness, and had no idea how large nor how deep it was, nor where the current—if there was any—might carry us.

"If you pull hard and watch the bow and stern of the boat, you will see something curious."

I did so, and was well paid for the exertion. When a boat moves fast there is always a cutting of the water at the bow, and a little eddy left just behind the stern. That outwater and that eddy were of flaming fire. More fish darted about, leaving fiery trails. Indeed, wherever the water was agitated it turned apparently into fire. When the agitation ceased the fire disappeared, except that there was always a little sparkling upon the surface. We splashed, and rowed, and watched. One of the most curious effects was to throw something from the boat to a distant part of the lake, and watch the fire splash. A fountain put in the centre of the lake would be a fountain of fire. We measured the depth with an oar, and found it to be four or five feet. It is mentioned as a curious circumstance that the water in the lake can be changed as often as desired without destroying its phosphorescence. Various analyses of the water have been made, but without any great results.

Millions of Dollars in the Treasury Await Owners.

A curious fact shown by the United States Treasury's balance sheet at the close of this year's business is that there is nearly $20,000,000 of outstanding Government securities on which the money is due and uncalled for, writes the Washington correspondent of the Louisville Commercial. On all these interest has been closed, and there can be no possible reasons for the holders to delay presenting them for redemption. Some of them have been due for many years. On some of them there are due large sums of interest, which have not been called for, so that the interest on these alone amounts to $347,000. What has become of these documents and why they are not presented is something no one can find out. Some of them matured a half a century ago, and are still unheard from and unpresented.

Of the old debt, which matured prior to Jan. 1, 1837, there is still outstanding $57,665 of principal and $64,174 of interest. Of the Texan indemnity stock, which matured twenty years ago, there are $20,000 yet outstanding not presented. Of the 5-20s of '62, which matured more than ten years ago, and on which interest ceased at that time, there is still outstanding $335,250. Of the 10-'40s of '64, which manured five years ago, there is yet unpresented $178,850, with interest of $15,460 also due and unpaid. Of the six per cent. consols, which matured two years earlier, there is $276,600 yet unpresented, and of the six per cent. consols matured in 1879 there is over half a million dollars yet uncalled for, with interest matured, $56,990.

Of the 5 per cents., which matured in 1881-82, there is still nearly $800,000 unpresented, though the interest ceased at maturity. Of the compound-interest notes of 1864, which bear 6 per cent. interest and which matured in 1867 and 1868, over $200,000 are still out and uncalled for, while at the 7-30s of the same year, which matured more than fifteen years ago, $133,800 has never yet been called for, nor has some $20,000 of interest on them been demanded. What has become of these bonds, which represent so much money, is hard to understand.

Some of them have probably been destroyed, perhaps the majority of them, though it is proper to add that the bulk of the $19,000,000 due and unpresented is of that which has fallen due within the past year, and which will doubtless be presented when the well-fed and leisurely coupon clippers realize that there are no more coupons to be clipped upon them, or that, if so clipped, they will not be honored because of the fact the bonds have been called. There are, however, large sums which have been due many years, and have not been paid simply because they have not been presented. Some of these have doubtless been lost by fire and flood, others laid away as permanent investments of some fund, or perhaps forgotten in some dusty safe or mouldy pigeon-hole. Why or how it is that such large sums are still outstanding and liable to continue so, is not even within the comprehension of the most experienced treasury official to answer.

Polk County Journal.

H. B. COOKE, Publisher.

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

Texas is making fast and long strides in progress. The growth of the state is extraordinary for the south, and is only rivaled by some of the newer commonwealths in the far west. The population increased during the decade between 1870 and 1880 from 818,579, to 1,591,749, or at the rate of almost ten per cent. a year, and the indications are that the growth has been even more rapid since the last census was taken. The state assessment for 1884 shows a gain of about $60,000,000 over that for 1883, and the total is now nearly $600,000,000, as against less than $312,000,000 in 1880.

Some years ago, a half crazy man named Thoreau, camped on the banks of Walden pond in Massachusetts, and wrote transcendental nonsense which bothered the brains of the people to understand, and is bothering them to this day, though Thoreau has been dead for a long time. He died at the comparatively early age of forty-five, after bathing every day, and as often denouncing those who thought that bathing, like many other things, might be carried to excess. Bathing is a good thing, and greatly to be commended, on many accounts, but it is not an essential to good health or long life, as the statistics of the countries where bathing is almost unknown abundantly show.

The London Economist, a leading authority, if not the very highest, in speaking, August 9th, of the wheat and other crops, says that the then recent weather is worth many millions (sterlings) a day to the country. And goes on with the declaration that the weather has settled the question of cheap wheat and other grain during the remainder of the year. The prospect is from a survey of home and foreign fields, that wheat in 1884 bids fair to be cheaper than at any time during the past one hundred years. This estimate includes of course the supply from the United States, Europe, and the East. In other words the price of wheat in Liverpool will be fixed by the competition of Europe, America, Australia and India.

The school-book question is one of the issues in the California election this year. A constitutional amendment is to be submitted to the voters, which, if ratified at the polls, will result in the State assuming entire charge of the business of printing all the text books used in the public schools. It is proposed that the State shall establish a printing office, buy its own paper and type and pay its printers and foremen fixed salaries; that there shall be a superintendent directly responsible to the administration, with a board of examiners to pass upon all bills and a veto power in the Comptroller, with full authority on the part of the Legislature to overhaul things biennially. It may safely be predicted that this latter prerogative will be called into regular use, if the amendment is ratified.

There is an interesting account in Harper's monthly of the government work now in progress on the dams designed as retaining walls for the great reservoirs at the headwaters of the Mississippi. There are to be seven of these dams and the principal one at Lake Winnebigoshish is already well advanced, work having been prosecuted continuously for eighteen months. It is to be fourteen feet high—that is, the water line in the reservoir when filled will be fourteen feet higher than now. The river winds among a great succession of marshes and now and then spreads out in broad shallow lakes so that the back water from this dam will cover an immense area. The theory is that the reservoirs formed by these dams will be sufficient to hold or store up a great share of the rainfall of a drainage area estimated at 7,400 square miles from November 1 to July 1 in each year. As a rule, the Mississippi below St. Paul falls so in July, that great difficulty is experienced by steamboatmen, and this low stage, so detrimental to navigation, continues through August, September and October. It is expected that from the reservoirs enough water can be discharged to at least double the ordinary minimum flow for one hundred days and that at no time during the summer will the stage between St. Paul and Lake Pepin fall below four feet when this system on the upper lakes is completed.

It is asserted and not contradicted that most, if not a very large majority of both houses of Congress habitually accept and use, if they do not actually solicit free passes from railway, telegraph and express companies. That the influence of such favors is most demoralizing and injurious upon the legislation of the country there is unfortunately no reason to doubt. Unhappily, too, the evil practice is not confined to Congress. Executive and judicial officials, both national and state, and the members of state legislatures, as well, are culpable in the same manner and degree, and the evil results following the practice are often apparent. The large number of Congressmen, who [illegible]

THE PITH OF THE NEWS.

Washington News.

The Swaim court martial has been postponed in Washington until Nov. 16, as Gen. Swaim's chief counsel will be unable to appear before that time.

Postoffices established: Minnesota—Lake Itasca, Beltrami county. Wisconsin—Shipps, Sawyer county. Postmaster Commissioned—Nathan S. Gilbert, Central City, Dak.

The following special examiners of the pension office were appointed recently under the civil service act to rate as clerks of Class 1: Iowa, S. W. McElderry, J. C. McKenzie; Minnesota, C. B. Rockwood, Miss Nathan Picard, Mrs. W. W. Dedric, A. C. Harding; Wisconsin, H. A. Richards.

It has been decided to postpone the meeting of the court martial for the trial of Judge Advocate Gen. Swaim from Sept. 10 until November 15, and notice in the date of assembling has been sent to the officers composing the court. It is not known whether this action is at the instance of Gen. Swaim's counsel, who has been urging delay, or is done to enable Maj. Gardner, the attorney for the government to prepare his case. Friends of Swaim say he means to fight to the bitter end, and the trial is likely to be protracted.

A curious case in the settlement of official accounts has just been brought to the notice of the solicitor of the treasury. Some twenty-nine years ago, Willis A. Gorman, as governor of Minnesota Territory, was ex-officio superintendent of Indian affairs. In this latter capacity he gave bond in September, 1853. His disbursements began the following year and ended in 1855. His accounts were not settled by the second auditor until February last, that is twenty-six years after he ceased to be a disbursing officer, when a deficiency appeared of $1,280. The comptroller passed the account March 8, and the case was sent to the auditor for suit on the bond of Gov. Gorman. The papers were forwarded to the United States attorney for Minnesota and they have just been returned with the information that all the bondsmen are dead and their estates distributed. It does not by any means follow that there was anything dishonest in this case. The chances are that if the Indian officer had undertaken a settlement while Gov. Gorman and the generation with which he acted were alive, the discrepancy could have been explained. The case, however, shows more promptness in settlement than that of Rev. J. P. Bardwell, a missionary well known in Ohio, who, thirty years ago made some disbursements of public funds, and whose accounts, by a late settlement, were found to show a balance due the government. Suit on his bond was ordered a few weeks since, but the solicitor stopped proceedings on the ground that all the responsible parties were long since dead.

Record of Casualties.

Fire at Ainsworth, Wash., cost the Northern Pacific $50,000.

Fire at Ainsworth, Wash., destroyed the sheds of the Northern Pacific air compressor pumps used in the construction of the Snake river bridge. Loss, $50,000.

Bannister's shoe factory at Newark, N. J., was almost totally destroyed by fire. The damage to the building and contents is estimated at fully $100,000; insurance unknown.

A large part of the business portion of the village of Adams was burned Thursday morning, including Ripley's harness shop, Clark's saloon, Gilby's clothing store, Chandler & Lamson's shoe store, J. O. Brown, grocery, arms, etc.; Hungerford, dry goods; Taylor, dry goods; Kelly, clothing; Ripley, shoe store; Overton, grocery; collegiate institute and many law and other offices. Loss, $200,000.

The Criminal Calendar.

Samuel Roberts, a Wilkesbarre, Pa., coal company paymaster and Sunday school superintendent, is short $75,000.

The defaulting paymaster, Samuel Roberts, ill at his summer residence near Wilkesbarre, Pa., attempted to shoot himself Wednesday.

Thomas C. Haworth, clerk at the Nashua & Lowell freight house at Lowell, Mass., is a defaulter and fugitive. He left a note, stating that he lost money in telephone stock.

E. Loomis of Algona, Iowa, was arrested for attempted rape on a child twelve years of age, an adopted daughter who has been keeping house for him since his wife left him.

J. O. Stratton, a prominent criminal lawyer of Fort Wayne, Ind., attempted suicide by cutting his throat with a penknife. He was discovered in a few moments, and his life saved by prompt surgical attendance.

Police Officer Henry Shepherd (evidently not a good shepherd) of Leavenworth, Kans., has been arrested on a charge of bastardy, sworn to by a young mulatto girl, Jennie Green, who gave birth to a child in Kansas City, a few days ago. Shepherd became acquainted with her and seduced her, she says, while he was teaching her class in Sunday school.

At the Redfield, Iowa, camp meeting, Thursday night, a man named Charles Evans was found, dying in a few moments after, only exclaiming that he did not know who shot him. The evidence tended to show that Charles Evans (the man killed) had started to let his horse go home, and in passing by a buggy jerked a whip out of it, when some one said "halt." The command not being obeyed, some one shot, the ball entering his back, under the right shoulder, passing through the body, and was plainly visible through the skin in his right breast. A policeman was arrested and held for examination in $8,000 bail.

Constable McCann of Glidden, Wis., went to a house of ill-fame in that place kept by one Lawrence Morran to arrest Tom Morran, his brother, for burglarizing a store at Glidden. Lawrence Morran had threatened to kill the constable, James McCann, if he ever attempted to arrest any of the inmates of his house, and as McCann entered the door the keeper of the house sprang upon him. They had a short struggle, when the officer, freeing himself, drew his revolver and shot Morran through the head, killing him on the spot. The citizens justified the officer in killing Morran, and consider it performing his duty.

Miscellaneous News Notes.

The grand lodge of Iowa Good Templars resolved not to ally itself with any political organization.

The house of C. M. Harrison on East Fourth street, Huron, Dak., was entered by thieves, who abstracted $250 in cash and a watch and chain valued at $50.

The Adrian (Mich.) Savings bank suspended Wednesday. H. Loomis the cashier, says the trouble was the inability of the bank on Monday to meet a check for $1,500.

The sale of A. E. Hayward's 400-acre farm, just outside the city limits, Yankton, for $25,000 cash has been fully consummated. The purchasers are J. B. Swinhoe of Swindon, England, and T. McClune of Canada.

The Central Wyoming association has shipped $10,000 worth of machinery from Pennsylvania to the oil fields north of Laramie. There will be a gang of men with derricks and machinery in that country within two weeks drilling oil wells. Several gangs are at work there now sinking shafts.

The Second National bank of Xenia, Ohio, closed its doors. There was a run on the bank Wednesday, but payments were made so promptly that confidence was restored, and [illegible] their deposits. Cashier L. S. Ankeny has gone west. The bank is in the hands of an examiner designated by the comptroller of the currency. [illegible] lines between Chicago and St. Paul, but that the lines put up for their use would probably be leased by the Western Union company from the parties who put them up.

Personal Points.

Richard Tweed, son of the late William M. Tweed, died recently in a Paris mad house. He does not seem to have left any property.

Sam Hing, a wealthy Chinese merchant of El Paso, Tex., and a respectable Creole young woman, Miss Louisa Sidonia Veque, were quietly married at New Orleans. The bride is beautiful.

Nuggets of Foreign News.

A woman in Canada has been fined for persistently wheeling a baby carriage in front of a neighbor's door.

A London Cable to the Toronto Globe says: The extraordinary strength of Germany's position is shown in the fact that, while the Berlin Press teems with insults, the journalism of London is tame in its replies.

Berlin Cable Special: The object of the interview of the three emperors is—First, drastic measures to suppress anarchists; second, the solution of the Egyptian question. There can no longer be the slightest doubt as to this programme. France has already given a declaration of satisfaction with the interview.

The Canadian government replying to reference from the privy council of the memorial of ranch holders of the western United States, asking for freedom to import cattle through Canada to England, refuse to grant the request on the ground that there will be risk of introducing disease both into Canada and Great Britian.

London was startled Tuesday afternoon by a wild rumor that Queen Victoria had suddenly died. All the vast machinery of the London press was promptly put in motion to ascertain the facts. A few inquiries showed that the rumor was only a hoax. The queen's health, however, is precarious, as evidenced by her long and continued fits of melancholia.

The Thames watermen who offered their services in the expedition for the relief of Gen. Gordon, represent that they were overlooked and assistance sought in Canada. Henry M. Stanley had a long conference with Gen. Lord Wolseley recently. Stanley favors the Nile route because a flotilla could always choose its own time and place for attack, there being no chance of rebels entering water to attack the British.

King Humbert and Prime Minister Depretis arrived recently at Busca, a city of 10,000 people, in the province of Cuneo, Piedmont. They visited the cholera patients at the hospitals, and left $2,000 for the relief of sufferers. Italian peasants in the cholera districts repel the doctors, and prefer to trust in their charms and superstitious observances. At Busca a girl was found dying in a filthy room, in which two sheep were feeding from a nasty trough. The sheep were allowed to be there because of a superstitious belief that wool absorbs the disease. There was a serious tumult yesterday at Lucca because the prefect prohibited a procession. It was necessary to call out the military to quell the disturbance. Several of the rioters were wounded.

The Paris correspondent of the Times says: Ferry, in a private conversation, complained with much vehemence of the strictures of the Times regarding Courbet's conduct at Foo Chow. The French press, he said, showed no such spirit when the English bombarded Alexandria. The English press, by egging China on, is siding against Europe. The confidence it gives the Chinese may next be turned against England. Commercial nations are naturally uneasy at our action, but once resolved on redress we must deal blows which tell. Ferry has disavowed the policy of colonial conquest.

"My whole duty," he declared, "is to finish enterprises originally ill-conceived and ill-managed. We want the the peaceful occupation of Tonquin, and we want to enforce on China the respect she owes us. European interests need not be alarmed at this. We are acting for the civilized world."

River Improvements.

A Memphis dispatch to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat says:

The board of government engineers, consisting of Maj. Amos Stickney of New Orleans, and Capt. C. R. Deans of Memphis, recently made the awards for the distribution of the $160,000 allotted by the Mississippi river commission. The claims of various districts were set forth by the practical engineers, and the following is the disposal of the funds named: For repairs and preservation of levees in Yazoo front, Second district, $20,000 providing that $500,000 be expended by the state levee board of that district; if not, this amount goes to the Yazoo front of the Third district. For the Tensas front in the Third district, $50,000. For the Tensas front in Fourth district, $90,000. An unsuccessful attempt was made to sink a large willow mattress recently in front of the city, where the banks are caving. The mattress was 270 by 400 feet. It broke in two before sinking and a portion of the mattress floated away.

The Course of Trade.

Bradstreet's Journal says the movement of merchandise has been lighter than a week ago. Trunk line troubles have foreshadowed a probable trunk line war of rates, and some heavy shippers have held back goods to take advantage of a break in rates. Grain has reached the seaboard more freely, but receipts have fallen away at primary market, the farmer having concluded to hold his grain for better figures than are ruling. The movement of goods is distinctly below that of former years, although from several western cities, notably St. Louis, St. Paul, Minneapolis, and Chicago, there is a fair volume of fall trade reported. The general feeling in mercantile circles appears more hopeful of an improved, though delayed, demand.

A Railroad Swindle.

A report of the alleged fraudulent attempt to induce English capitalists to invest in bonds of the New Castle & Middlesex railway, which has no corporate existence, has just been made public. Advertisements were inserted in London newspapers offering for sale 12,000 6 per cent first mortgage bonds of £100 each. The road was to be completed by Oct. 1, and the money thus obtained was to be used for rails and rolling stock. The prospectus in describing the new road exactly describes the line of the New Castle & Northern railway, and names the American Loan & Trust company of New York as the trustees and Messrs. Harper & Ballack, Road Lane, London, solicitors, and William Patterson, president of the Lawrence county bank of New Castle, Pa., William Van Kirk, president of the Tradesmen's National bank of Pittsburg, and John Todd, vice president of the New York, Pennsylvania & Southern road, Cleveland, Ohio, as directors. The New York office is given as No. 15 Courtland street. Secretary Sterger of the Commonwealth can find no trace of such a road as the New Castle & Middlesex, and Messrs. Van Kirk and Patterson deny all knowledge of it, and say their names are used without authority.

Market Reports.

ST. PAUL.—Wheat: old, No. 1 hard, 92@95c; No. 2, 87c. [illegible] Corn: No. 2, 49@50c; No. 3, 47@49c. Oats: No. 2, mixed, 28@25c; No. 2 white, 25c; No. 3 white, 24c; rejected, 20c. Barley: No. 2, 55c; No. 3 extra, 45c; No. 3, 40c. Rye: No. 2, 51c. Baled Hay: wild, $7.50; timothy $9.50@10.50. Eggs, 18@[illegible]

MILWAUKEE.—Wheat: [illegible]

[illegible]

CHICAGO.—Wheat: [illegible]

MINNESOTA NEWS NOTES.

Death of Dr. J. H. Stewart of St. Paul.

Minnesota at large and the entire Northwest will share in the shock St. Paul experienced in learning of the death of Dr. Jacob H. Stewart, which took place at his residence in St. Paul, on Monday evening at eight o'clock of apoplexy. Monday morning he attended his patients as usual and did not complain of much suffering until afternoon, when the intensity of pain in his head was such that the agony became unendurable. At 4 o'clock he went to bed, and an hour later Dr. D. W. Hand was summoned. The physician found his confrere unconscious, and he did not regain perfect consciousness before death. The knowledge of this unexpected public bereavement soon became general in St. Paul, and the estimation in which deceased was held by those among whom he has lived for thirty years was evidenced by the hearty, unfeigned and general sorrow felt and expressed on the streets and in all places of public resort. Dr. Stewart was born in Connecticut in January, 1829, and was therefore in his fifty-sixth year. While an infant his father—Dr. Philander H. Stewart, a practitioner whose skill gained him more than local fame—moved with his family to Peekskill, on the Hudson above New York. In 1849, he entered the University of New York, and graduated in 1851 with high honors and the degree of doctor of medicine. He came to St. Paul in 1855 and immediately had a large practice, which he pursued, save when prevented by public duties, until his death. In 1861 he was surgeon of the First Minnesota and was captured at Bull Run. Dr. Stewart served until the close of the war as examining surgeon for army recruits at St. Paul. In 1864 he was elected mayor of St. Paul, and was again elected to the mayoralty in 1869, 1871 and 1873. In 1864 he was appointed postmaster, and in this position also his executive talents bore fruit. Of legislative honors he had full share, serving terms both as state senator and representative, and always to the satisfaction of his constituency. In 1876 he was nominated by the Republicans for congress, and in the autumn of that year was elected over W. W. McNair, Democrat, by a large majority. Succeeded in congress in 1879 by W. D. Washburn, Dr. Steward returned to St. Paul and the same year was appointed surveyor general of Minnesota by president Hayes, succeeding Gen. J. H. Baker. He was president of the State Medical Society and had many other honorable positions.

Death of Minnesotians.

Hon. William Huey of Traverse, Nicollet county, Minn., died on Sunday of bright's disease, and was buried Monday evening. Mr. Huey was born in Pennsylvania in March, 1809. He came to St. Paul in 1851 and remained two years, and in the spring of 1853 went to Traverse and has been a resident of the county ever since. He assisted in organizing the county and was the first sheriff of the county, having been appointed by the governor April 7, 1853. He was also one of the judges of the first election held in the county. He served several years as county commissioner and in 1863 was elected to the legislature. Mr. Huey also served four years as a county treasurer. His last term expired in 1872, since which time he has led a retired life. Mr. Huey took an active part in all political matters in the early history of the county.

L. K. Aaker Receiver at Crookston Land Office.

Hon. L. K. Aaker of Alexandria, Douglas Co., has been appointed receiver of the Crookston Land Office, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Paul Sletten. It will be remembered that L. O. Storla of Moorhead was first appointed to fill the vacancy, but died before he had assumed the office. L. K. Aaker was senator from Douglas county in the last legislature of 1883-4, having been re-elected to a second term. He is a Scandinavian, fifty-eight years old, and a man of wide influence among his countrymen. He came to Minnesota in 1857, settled finally in Alexandria, and as a merchant has enjoyed marked success. He has always taken great interest in politics, and in the memorable Nelson-Kindred contest of 1882 was Congressman Nelson's first assistant in Douglas and Otter Tail counties.

St. Clair, who burned Sam Judd's house at Stillwater, was caught at Marine.

At Medford, Tuesday night, a burglar entered the store of John Bailey by removing a large pane of glass, and secured $50 or $60 in goods and money. The thief took, among other articles, a coat, a pair of shoes and two dozen silk handkerchiefs.

The treasury department has just discovered a technical shortage in Gov. Gorman's accounts as Indian agent in Minnesota thirty year ago.

The state historical society is about to issue a history of the Ojibway tribe of Indians, written thirty years ago by W. W. Warren, an educated half-breed belonging to the tribe.

The secretary of the state board of emigration is now engaged in the preparation of an exhibit for the board at the New Orleans international exhibition. He has partially completed a map of the state on a scale of three miles to the inch, which will represent everything which is contained on Warner & Foote's latest state map, and be colored to show the location of the pineries, the deciduous forests, groves of timber, mineral deposits, and quarries of building stone. Besides the map, he has in preparation three charts, 7x9 feet, one of which shows the agricultural statistics of each county in the state; the second one, the number and variety of animals in each county; the third the population, the assessable property, and acreage of unoccupied land. These will be displayed in the department allotted to the exhibits of the board.

Adjutant General McCarthy has received information that a new militia company had been formed at St. Cloud, seventy strong, which he will muster in next week.

Captain J. K. Arnold, was committed by the probate court, to the inebriate department for the insane, at Rochester, Minn., upon information filed by Charles E. Chappel, his guardian. This is the first commitment from Ramsey county under chapter 126 of the general statutes of 1883, which provides a special proceeding for drunkards under guardianship who are proper subjects for medical treatment on account of dissipation. The law requires the examination to be made by a jury consisting of three reputable physicians. In this case Drs. Stone, Owens, and Quinn composed the jury. Capt. Arnold is forty-five years of age. He was captain of a company at the time of the Sioux outbreak in 1862, and was afterward adjutant of the Seventh, Minnesota. After the war he was for some time clerk at the army headquarters in St. Paul, and then drifted into newspaper work, being connected with numerous ventures in the business. His latest attempt was the Crookston Northern Tier.

Secretary Young of the state board of immigration, has recently returned from a trip to the southeast part of the state, during which he visited Steele, Dodge, Freeborn, Waseca and Mower counties, inspecting the crops, etc. He reports that he found very little injury done by rains, none whatever when the grain was properly stacked. The wheat yield, he says, is very large, the largest, he thinks that has ever been in the state and at least 20 per cent. over that of 1877. Oats are very heavy and fine, and corn is forward and in ten days will be out of all danger of frost. This crop, however, has been slightly injured by drought. The wheat is of good quality and will grade as No. 1.

Thursday evening the house and barn of M. Tramm, situated between Northfield and Waterford, was burned. Very little was saved from the contents. Insurance $2,700.

Adolph, fifteen-year-old son of Mr. Bergstrom, living near Evansville, Minn., was accidentally shot and killed by his twin brother on Sunday last.

An unknown man aged about fifty years threw himself in front of the engine of a train at Twin [illegible] on the Second division of the Minneapolis & St. Louis road recently, and was instantly killed. He had never been seen before in this place and was undoubtedly a stranger. He was well dressed and appeared to have been a mechanic, but certainly was not a tramp.

Nearly all the losses sustained during the Anoka fire have been adjusted by the representatives of the insurance companies, with the exception of that on the Washburn mill, which will also be adjusted within ten days. This is a very creditable record for the companies, and will be gratefully appreciated by the people interested.

[illegible]

Samuel Gustavson went to bed in the Central house, Duluth, in a room with eight others, and during the night somebody nipped two checks on a St. Paul bank, one for $300 and the other for $200; one check on a Minneapolis bank for $300, together with $60 in gold and $30 in greenbacks.

In opinion of State Auditor Braden the Ramsey County Board of Equalization transcended their powers in changing the assessments of St. Paul banks.

While M. M. Prindle of Kasson was recapping a brass shell, it exploded with serious results to his left hand.

The long-expected report of the State capitol commission presented to governor Hubbard has been drawn up by Mr. Stevens, the architect on the committee, and though brief, effectually disposes of the question as to the capitol's solidity. Engineer Smith, in conversation after the report had been submitted, said there was no doubt that the capitol was perfectly safe, and that now that the iron pillar on the second floor of the south wing had been added to the supports of the upper story, the floors could stand any weight put upon them. Mr. Grace, whose long experience as a contractor and builder makes his opinion of value, carefully examined all the walls, especially those in the foundation of the building, and he says they are solid and all right.

D. P. Bloomer, a New York drummer, was nearly murdered in Room 91, at the Nicollet House, Minneapolis on Wednesday night. He was found with seven wounds on the head, inflicted with a Milwaukee & St. Paul coupling pin. No solution of the mystery has yet been obtained.

William Curran was badly burned at a Minneapolis fire.

Mahler & Thomson, St. Paul carriage dealers have arranged with their creditors.

Ground was broken Thursday for the St Paul club house, which promises to be the finest structure of the kind west of Chicago.

Edward Locke, Minneapolis grain dealer, sues the Bradstreet company for $25,000 for libel.

The sixteenth annual reunion of the Society of the Army of the Cumberland will be held at Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 17 and 18. The Second Minnesota infantry and Second battery did honorable service in the army of the Cumberland.

Dora Hulbert, a pantry girl at the International hotel, La Crosse, committed suicide at an early hour Monday morning by shooting herself through the heart with a small revolver which she purchased Saturday afternoon. She had been employed in the house about five weeks, and was a quiet, industrious girl. No cause is known. A post mortem examination shows nothing in her condition to lead to such an act. Letters from her sisters in Rochester, Faribault and Racine threw no light on the matter. Her parents and other friends live at Byron, Minn., where the body will be shipped.

At the offices of the Northern Pacific railroad company it is denied that there is any foundation for the statement telegraphed from St. Paul that Vice President Oakes was about to retire, or rather, to "be retired," from his position on account of differences with the president, Mr. Harris.

Mr. W. K. Vanderbilt arrived in St. Paul by special train, making a twelve-hours' run over the Royal route from Chicago, landing at union depot Saturday at 8 p. m. He was accompanied by Messrs. H. B. Hollins, E. S. Knapp, W. S. Hoyt of New York. On Sunday Messrs. Winter and F. B. Clarke, of the Omaha line, attended upon the party, and with them visited Minneapolis and the various local points of interest there, also Minnesota Transfer and Kittsondale. At the last-named they were the recipients of the courtesies of Mr. Woodmansee, by which they were able to look over the commodore's fast stock. The party then took in St. Paul, and afterward were entertained at dinner by Mrs. F. B. Clarke. At 8 o'clock yesterday morning they left by special over the Omaha for Pierre. They made the run to Mankato—nearly eighty-five miles—in two hours and forty-five minutes.

Edward Locke, of Minneapolis, began a suit against the Bradstreet company for $25,000 damages. The complaint states that the plaintiff is a grain dealer and the president of the Northwestern Grain Dealers' association. He was also one of the incorporators of the Duluth and Western Elevator company, and the main member of that corporation. Aug. 13, 1884, he alleges that the Bradstreet company published in their daily circular a defamatory matter concerning him and the elevator company.

The death of Sumner Chapman, proprietor of the Chapman house, upper lake Minnetonka, is announced. Mr. Chapman has been for some years afflicted with consumption, and it was in view of getting relief that he made his trip to Los Angeles. The past two weeks he has declined rapidly, being obliged to refrain from all duties at the hotel. He was thirty-five years of age, and leaves a wife and children.

The appointment of T. J. Gray as principal of the normal school at St. Cloud is officially announced. Mr. Gray was a student of the St. Cloud school, and for eleven years since he graduated has been its professor of natural sciences and mathematics. He has been the conductor of the institutes in that district, and has rendered valuable service to the cause of education in the department of philosophy. He is a close and careful student, and his appointment meets with the warmest approval and commendation from all who know him.

Total amount of personal property in Scott county, $859,084; total amount of real estate, $1,866,415. As equalized—Total amount of personal property in Scott county, $968,000; total amount of real estate, $2,535,394; total amount of banking capital, $118,000; total amount of goods and merchandise, $73,863; total amount of manufactured articles, $19,445; total amount of manufactured tools, etc., $14,040.

A militia company of forty members has just been organized at Perham, Otter Tail county, officered as follows: W. K. Gould, captain; C. H. Tuesley, first lieutenant; A. N. Pettingill, second lieutenant; R. J. Jung, first sergeant; Charles Roehl, second sergeant; E. H. Love, third sergeant; John Oswold, fourth sergeant; W. H. Johnson, fifth sergeant; H. Kelley, sixth sergeant. The new company is styled the Perham Light Guards, and will probably be attached to the Third regiment, if one is formed.

The large stock barn, property of Hartley Bros., four miles east of Brainerd, on what is known as the C. W. Kindred stock farm, was burned recently. The barn was full of hay, grain, machinery and logging outfits. The loss is about $5,000; insurance unknown.

A full-blooded Sioux from the Sisseton agency, has been spending the summer at Chester, Olmsted county, working for Hon. John Hyslop, of that place. He has furnished excellent satisfaction to his employer and has invested much more labor during the season than most of the help with a white skin.

The Lord Bishop of Rochester, England, preached in St. Paul last Sunday and lectured on temperance.

At Duluth, Miss Amelia Cornovow, living with her sister, Mrs. Kruschke, went to the lake and tied a large piece of iron to her neck and drowned herself.

Judge Wilkin and Flandrau of St. Paul, on a tour round the world have again been heard from. Letters bearing several dates, the latest July 28, and mailed at Suez, have been received. All of them were written on board the steamer Massilia, in which they traveled from Hong Kong to Suez, the overland trip through India having been abandoned by them. Judge Flandrau inquires anxiously who has been nominated by the Democrats for president, and gives as a specimen of American news which reaches the East this cablegram which they saw at Ceylon: "Bombay, July 7.—Gov. Cleveland has been elected by the Republican party in their attempt to unseat Mr. Blaine."

J. R. Goodnow, a farmer fifty-one years old, living eight miles from Ortonville, procured a gallon of alcohol and got crazy drunk, drove his family, consisting of a wife and five children, out of doors, and proceeded to have a good time all by himself. He was found by a neighbor lying on the floor dead.

Winona Tribune: The casket containing the remains of Mary Youmans arrived in this city at midnight from the Argentine Republic. It is a pleasant thought to her afflicted friends that the government of the Argentine Republic thoughtfully and voluntarily assumed all the expenses of the funeral and the expense of sending the body home.

REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN NOTES.

The Tariff.

Hon. Stewart L. Woodford, in a very able speech delivered in Brooklyn on Thursday night thus condensed the tariff question into a brief space:

"I come now to the tariff. And here I do not think the position of the two parties identical. Each admits that revenue is necessary. Each admits that our revenue is largely to be raised from tariff on imported articles. Each claims that it would so levy the tariff as to protect American labor and American productions. Democracy, however, says that tariffs should be laid not for revenue only, but also affirms the positive right and duty of the Government to protect American labor and create and foster American industries by positive, direct and sufficient tariffs. In a word, the Republican party affirms that tariff legislation should distinctly seek to give the advantage in the home market to that which is grown, produced, created and manufactured by American labor on American soil. I cannot help feeling that this is a very practical question. It is a question of wages of interest, of labor, of living. It is a bread and butter question. And it is in this canvass. Theorists may pooh-pooh. Critics may refine. But the men who work, and the men who eat, feel and know by the stern logic of stomach and muscle that it is here and must be considered and discussed and determined. The common people are going to vote upon it in November. Were I a free-trader I should certainly vote for Cleveland and a Democratic Congressman. Being a moderate and practical protectionist, I shall as certainly vote for Blaine and a Republican Congressman.

Alexander Sullivan declined re-election to the presidency of the American Irish League, to take the stump for Blaine.

A Salt Lake City resident writes a St. Paul friend that the Mormon church has subscribed $250,000 to the Democratic campaign fund in consideration of general friendliness and promises of admission of Utah as a state.

President Cyrus Hamlin, of Middlebury College, Vermont writes: "I vote for Blaine. If I vote for any one else it will go for Cleveland—that is, for free rum, free trade, free love and free devil generally."

The Scimetar, leading Democratic evening daily of Memphis, Tenn., has taken the Democratic national ticket from the head of its columns, and approves Butler's arraignment of the party.

Philetus Sawyer of Wisconsin is credited with sending a $25,000 check to the national Republican committee, with an intimation that he will double it if necessary.

Theodore Roosevelt, in a letter to the New York Tribune, declares that Gov. Cleveland's reasons for vetoing the tenure of office bill are "frivolous;" that it is difficult for him to believe "that they were offered in good faith;" and that "it is sheer nonsense to say that the amendment (the Dayton amendment) hurt the bill; on the contrary, it improved it."

That sterling Democratic organ, the New York Sun, says: Concerning Governor Cleveland we must say that the publication of the Buffalo scandal never did him one-tenth as much damage as the fatuous evasions and contradictions of his fool-friends in seeking to nullify its effect.

In one manufacturing establishment in Brooklyn where there are 155 men employed, 150 are for Blaine and 5 for Cleveland. In a stonecutting yard where 200 men are employed 197 are for Blaine and 3 for Cleveland. In another manufacturing establishment where there are 85 men employed, 80 are for Blaine and 5 for Cleveland. In still another manufactory where 31 men all Irish, are employed, all but 1 are for Blaine.

The surest teacher is the heart, not the head. I would rather take the verdict of the plain, honest farmers and workingmen of this state, who have known Mr. Blaine and lived with him, with regard to his character, than the verdict of those cold, analytical chemists and scholars of Cambridge and Beacon Hill.—Emery A. Storrs, in Maine.

It required all the efforts of Oliver P. Morton and the Republicans and loyal Democrats of Indiana during the war to prevents Hendricks, the Sons of Liberty, the Knights of the Golden Circle and the other rebel elements in that State from carrying it over to the side of the South. A vote for Cleveland and Hendricks now is a vote approving of rebel sympathy at the North while the South was in arms against the Union.

It is a matter of actual demonstration, by figures which do not admit of an erroneous inference, that the affairs of the Government have never been so honestly administered as they have been since the Republican party has been in power. The losses through errors, mismanagement and dishonesty have under Republican rule been a smaller percentage of the sums of money involved in governmental transactions than during any previous period in history, and they have been in a constantly decreasing ratio since the first Republican President was elected.

James Redpath, in an interview in the New York Tribune, does not hesitate to pronounce the defection of the Irish from Cleveland unparalleled in the history of the Irish in America. He analyzes the causes of disaffection, and proves that the movement is not a local demonstration against Gov. Cleveland, but a general protest against the nomination of a candidate who is personally obnoxious to the working classes.

The Boston Congregationalist, the leading paper of its denomination in New England, if not in the whole country says:

Common decency, the morals of the young, regard for the secredness of home life, and the very maintenance of our national existence require that the president of these United States—our foremost representative official before the world—should be a man of pure private morals as well as of public integrity. If these charges be untrue it ought to be easy to show the fact. They are definite and personally indorsed. If they be not disproved, then the indignant public sentiment of the nation should be given voice, and the party which nominated Gov. Cleveland should demand that he withdraw from the ticket which his name now leads.

New York Special: Ex-Senator Henderson of Missouri came down from the Adirondacks recently

"Do you think the republicans will carry New York?" he was asked by your correspondent.

"I have not much doubt of it in the present aspect of affairs. I have been about the state generally, and I think it as safe as Maine or Pennsylvania. Speaking of the situation, when the summer is over and the fall frosts set in and men begin to think soberly, they find the man with the principles, with the knowledge of affairs, is after all the man to be elected. They saw Garfield was such a man, and they are beginning to see Blaine is, and you will see when the frosts come again that Blaine will be elected by a magnificent majority.

According to a Madison correspondent everything looks most cheerful in the Republican camp in Wisconsin, so far as the presidential ticket is concerned.

Republicans upon every hand, from every section of the state, express the most unbounded confidence in the surety of Wisconsin doing fully as handsomely by Blaine the coming fall as was done toward the lamented Garfield four years ago. The latest reports received here are more hopeful for the Republicans even than those which came in immediately after the nomination of Blaine. Hopefulness has crystalized into certainty, and that certainty is having the effect of inducing honest democrats to more freely express their true convictions in regard to the outcome.

Corporal Tanner of Brooklyn says: I have just returned from a trip of 4,000 miles in the West, attending the Grand Army encampment, and from my close observation I sum up the political situation in the statement that the feeling in favor of Blaine and Logan is simply phenomenal. There never was so much enthusiasm so early in the canvass for president.

Senator Morrill of Vermont, who accompanied Mr. Blaine to Europe in 1867, says that on that trip Mr. Blaine told him how the bulk of his fortune was made. He had purchased a track of coal lands in West Virginia for $40,000, paying a part of that sum down, and the balance soon after from the profits of the mines. These mines, Mr. Blaine said, were then paying him annually an amount equal to the interest on $200,000, and they have increased in value since.

Col. John C. Swan of Charleston, S. C., hitherto an unreconciled ex-confederate, is out for Blaine.

Demands Cleveland's Withdrawal.

The New York Independent has abandoned the Independents, and in a double-leaded editorial, demands the withdrawal of Cleveland on account of the Buffalo scandal. Here is the article complete:

THE CRISIS OF OUR DUTY.

We published last week in our correspondence columns a communication from Dr. Kinsley Twining, one of our editorial staff, giving the result of his investigation in regard to the Cleveland scandal. The grave and serious part of this scandal, which he declares he found to be true, is that which imputes personal impurity to Mr. Cleveland in the specific instance that has come to the knowledge of the public. We can not in view of all the facts, resist the conclusion that his part of the scandal is true, and this is quite enough to determine our course. The damaging charge came upon us wholly unexpected, and with the sudden stunning force of a thunderbolt out of a clear sky. None were more surprised and overwhelmed by it than the governor's friends and intimates among the Independents of Buffalo, and it was a case that called for thorough and fearless investigations. That we felt this in every fibre, and that we intended to impress this feeling on our readers, and to hold ourselves absolutely free to act as circumstances required, is the simple truth, and our silence as to the Cleveland nomination from that day was intended. We utterly refuse to accept two standards of character. We repudiate with contempt the doctrine that a public man's private life is not to be inquired into. Dr. Twining's investigation went on the recognition of this principle. On this subject as it now stands, we will not be slow to give advice. The conditions have wholly changed since the Independent conference. Then we were ready with a real enthusiasm to support the tried, and as we then believed, honest reformer, Grover Cleveland. Now, without one word in derogation of his record as governor of this state, our enthusiasm is wiped out by the discovery of the acknowledged and awful facts. We hence desire to have all our readers plainly understand, once for all, that whatever has been said in the editorial columns of the Independent favorable to the election of Gov. Cleveland, was said prior to the recent sickening disclosures in regard to his private character, which have justly shocked the moral sense of all pure and right-minded people. The attempt now to force such a candidate upon the people would, in our opinion, disgrace the party which nominated him and the whole nation if he should be selected. We have no hand or voice in helping on this matter, let the consequences be what they may, and we will not advise the readers of the Independent to smother their consciences and disgrace themselves by engaging directly or indirectly, in any such movement. We are now in serious difficulty as a nation in regard to the unchecked progress of Mormonism and shall we now, in the face of threatening evils and perils, plunge into a deeper gulf by any seeming indifference as to the private character of one who has been nominated to fill the highest office in the gift of the people? We say no! A thousand times, no! Gov. Cleveland should positively decline to be a candidate, and withdraw immediately from the canvass, and be compelled to do so if it is necessary. The party which nominated him through its chosen representatives should then reconvene and select a new ticket that will command the hearty support of the people of all parties. There is time enough to do this, and there is no hope or safety in any other course. To stand still now, or to attempt to go blindly forward with the present ticket, would, in our judgment, be an insult to the Ruler of nations, sure death to the Democratic party, including also its leaders, and an everlasting disgrace to the republic."

Senatorial Contests.

The congressional committees of both parties, especially of the Republican party, are preparing to give considerable attention in the coming campaign to the election of legislatures which are to choose senators. Already the field has been thoroughly looked over and the situation pretty carefully diagnosed—eleven Republicans and fourteen Democrats complete their terms of office on the 4th of March next. The Republicans who go out are Cameron of Pennsylvania, Cameron of Wisconsin, Morrill of Vermont, Lapham of New York, Blair of New Hampshire, Jones of Nevada, Ingalls of Kansas, Allison of Iowa, Logan of Illinois, Platt of Connecticut and Hill of Colorado. It is pretty well understood here that Cameron of Pennsylvania, will desire a re-election, and that such a desire on his part is equivalent to an election. Senator Morrill of Vermont will, of course, return. Senator Blair of New Hampshire would like to come back, but to do this he will have to be up pretty early in the morning, for Secretary Chandler is looking to that position. Senator Ingalls of Kansas will doubtless come back, as will Allison of Iowa. The name of the Hon. Andrew Shuman, chief editor of the Chicago Journal, who has had a good deal of political experience, is being mentioned for Logan's place. Ex-Congressman Farwell, who was in the Forty-Sixth and Forty-Seventh congresses, and who is a man of wealth and experience as a legislator, might prove a candidate.

Of the fourteen Democrats, whose terms expire, five have already been attended to by the election of successors to Williams, of Kentucky; Jonas, of Louisiana; Groome, of Maryland; and Pendleton, of Ohio. In Missouri it is expected that Senator Vest will be returned. In Indiana there is likely to be a pretty hot fight over the legislature. Congressman Calkins, the present candidate for governor of that state, has an eye on the senatorship, and should he succeed in carrying the state and legislature for the Republicans, he will be likely to be elected as Voorhees' successor. In California the Republicans believe that they will elect a legislature and a Republican successor to Senator Farley. On the other hand, the Democrats claim to be confident of carrying New York and Nevada, so as to send Democratic successors for the Republicans now representing those states in the senate. From Georgia and Florida it is expected that the present occupants will be returned. In North Carolina there is to be a strong effort to carry the legislature and elect a Republican senator in place of Senator Vance. It is pretty certain that eight of the Republicans will be succeeded by Republicans and that of the fourteen retiring Democrats, eleven will be succeeded by Democrats leaving three Republicans and three Democrats doubtful. The senate now stands thirty-eight Republicans thirty-six Democrats and two Readjusters who vote with the Republicans. The Republicans practically have forty members. The eleven who are to retire next March will reduce the number to twenty-nine. Add to these the eight certain Republican successors of retiring members, and the number would be thirty-seven. The gain that has been made in Oregon increases the number to thirty-eight, or just half the senate. So that if even the Democrats were to carry the legislatures of all the doubtful states there would be a tie. Should they do this and the Democratic president and vice president be elected, the vice president's vote on a tie would make the senate Democratic.

Mr. Blaine's History.

Henry L. Dawes, United States senator from Massachuetts, says: "I had been in congress six years when Mr. Blaine came into public life, and I have known him from that day to this intimately, both in his private life and in his public course. I have watched his career, and I think that I am able to judge whether a man is honest in public life or not, and I should be false to my duty and to the truth if I did not declare my solemn conviction that there is no man in public life whose public and private character is more free from stain than Mr. Blaine's. I have known him thoroughly. I have summered with him and wintered with him. I have been on intimate terms of friendship with him; have differed with him on political questions; have quarreled with him, and have confided in and trusted him. I believe him to have been actuated by the purest motives in all his public acts, and to be ambitious to connect his name with an administration of this government that shall comprehend the grand possibilities before the American people, and shall assert the power of the republic wherever its flag floats. I make no reserve in this indorsement of Mr. Blaine. I draw no distinction between private character and public life. I know all that is said about it. I have in my pocket all the letters which are made the occasion of the opposition to him by the so-called Independents. There are two sentences in those letters which it is possible for human ingenuity to turn against a man of perfect probity. They are capable of a construction perfectly honorable to him. In view of a long and conspicuous life without taint or corruption, I prefer to put that honorable construction upon those words. There are those calling themselves Independents who prefer to twist and torture them into something that they deem dishonorable. I have read lately, a speech of a distinguished individual, taking two hours or more for its delivery, devoted to an argument of great ingenuity, to satisfy himself and his hearers with this bad construction of those sentences. I can't understand the man who prefers thus to put an evil intent upon words capable of good intent. I cannot understand of what stuff a man is made who is willing to turn his back on a long life of distinguished service without a fault that he may the more successfully make the worse appear the better reason.

The Fisher Bulletin has got it again. This time it's got it bad. It is after one of those "County Curiosities" again; none o' your little two-for-a-nickle affairs, this un ain't, but a regular ripsnorter that'll make taxpayers git right up and howl like one o' them sly-coons that you frequently read about in the newspapers as resembling a spiral-shaped cloud that lights down and just swats housen and' barns, blowing them all to pieces, when the Bulletin shall have trotted out this new curiosity, in other words folks will be mad. Now, if this curiosity business was infections and we should catch it, and if we could wield the ready pencil of a Nast, and wanted to paint just the biggest kind of a "County Curiosity" we could think of, we should draw a picture of a doughty doctor hacking off a dead man's leg and collecting of the county $100 or so therefor, without one compunction of conscience on the part of the aforesaid D. D. (which means "doughty doctor" and not darn deadbeat as some might at first glance infer) or an appirent suspicion on his part that there was any "Counter Curiosity" at all about that! But the Ides of November will soon have come and gone, the election will have passed and the Bulletin's ideas will have assumed a more calmer range as it were and the "County Curiosity" business will take a rest—until the next election draws near.

Thorough Cultivation.

If any one needs to be convinced that thorough cultivation will pay in this country he has only to keep his eyes open and note its effect wherever it is tried. If one attempts to raise a crop of grain and allows the weeds to graw as thickly as the grain, the result is apparent, and there is but one way to prevent it, which is by thorough cultivation. We have known men to raise from ten to twelve bushels per acre on land capable of producing from 20 to 25 bushels if properly cultivated. Is it not more profitable to thoroughly cultivate 100 acres, and by so doing produce as much wheat as can be raised on 200 acres in a slipshod manner, than to scratch over the larger amount and get the whole farm thoroughly seeded down to weeds? We are glad to notice that the tendency is toward thorough cultivation and thereby the country will be the gainer.

The Sun and Its Candidate.

Chicago Morning News.

With all its energy and ability the New York Sun is urging upon the people of the United States Benjamin F. Butler as a fit and proper person to be chosen to the presidency. It is safe to say that the Sun's earnestness is born not so much of love for or confidence in Gen. Butler as of the personal and malignant hate its editor entertains for Mr. Cleveland. In the Sun of June 26, 1872, is an arraignment of Gen. Butler that is simply terrible, and it is all the more cruel because it is true. The Sun then said: "The notoriety which decency shrinks from as a degredation he seeks at any sacrifice. He treats the reproach which follows such exhibitions as so much capital added to the stock of ill-fame that had already made his name odiously conspicuous in and out of Congress. Rejoicing in his own shame, coining money from open venalty, discarding any pretense of principle, bound by no ties of honor, scoffing at religion, making politics a trade, despotic when clothed with authority, cowardly by nature, mercenary from habit, and destitute of one ennobling quality for manly attributes to lift him above these wretched characteristics, he is to-day the leading candidate for the highest honor in enlightened and moral Massachusetts. To this complexion have we come at last." Yet the Sun is now supporting Gen. Butler for a higher position than that to which he aspired when Mr. Dana wrote that arraignment.

POLITICAL POINTERS.

Albany Express: What a strange world this is, after all. Six weeks ago Mr. Tilden's health was the leading topic of newspaper discussion throughout the length and breadth of the land. Millions of people were shown to be solicitious on that point. Now no one appears to care the toss of a copper whether Mr. Tilden is ill or well.

New Orleans Picayune: Waterspouts are now advertised among the attractions at Frascati, near Mobile. They should be sent west to take the prohibition stump for St. John.

Newark News: While the widow Butler is flirting with editor Dana, some wicked person is dosing the rag baby in Illinois with Blaine soothing syrup.

Philadelphia Ledger: Ohio being in short supply of favorite sons this year for the presidency, has undertaken the next greatest find, in illuminating gas wells.

Philadelphia Call: Carl Schurz's threat to leave the country in the event of Blaine's election will, it is thought, throw 900,000 more votes over to the Blaine side.

Chicago Herald: In presidential years it is well to harvest the candidates' crop of wild oats early in the summer. There's more serious business on hand for the fall.

Emporia News: The New York Tribune publishes an editorial on "Preventable Causes of Shipwreck." The Democratic party should give that article a prayerful reading.

Rochester Herald: The Democratic papers are pelting Logan with English grammars. To a man who faced rebel bullets and bomshells for four years that must seem like child's play.

Kansas City Times: It's hardly worth while to discuss Butler and Pomeroy. Their following will be very small. Blaine and St. John are the only candidates the Democracy need fear.

Peoria Transcript: The Des Moines Register has an article on "The Impudence of Carl Schurz." We suppose it is only one of a series. No single article could do a justice to such a vast subject.

New York World: Turn the rascals out!

Indianapolis Times: The whole Democratic party is on the run.

Minneapolis Tribune: Gen. Butler is said to have been originally intended for the Baptist ministry.

Indianapolis Journal: Blaine's sadness is explained. He is afraid Cleveland will be forced to withdraw.

New York Sun: In the hottest political contests it is always best to tell the truth about your oponents.

Bloomington (Ill.) Bulletin: Blaine is a descendant of the race of the kings of Wales, the old enemies of England.

Kansas City Star: The cause of woman suffrage has received another blow. Butler declares himself favorable to it.

Kansas City Journal: The only way to measure Cleveland's statesmanship is to weigh him and record the number of pounds.

Indianapolis Times: It is rumored that Cleveland is in the Adirondack woods hunting the tariff. He thinks it is a wild animal.

Springfield (Ill.) Journal: There is a great deal of Democratic talk about a German bolt Clevelandward, but it remains invisible to all save the Democratic eye.

Baltimore Herald: "Where is old Ben's girl?" asks Henry Watterson. Well, wherever she is, she is Mrs Benjamin F. Butler, and that's a better answer than can be given to questions about Mr. Cleveland's girl.

Political Notes.

A BIG MISTAKE.

The feeling is becoming universal among Democrats everywhere that in surrendering their convictions to the New York machine at Chicago a great mistake was made, for all can see now that Cleveland is not a statesman, has nothing to commend to the suffrages of the electors for the highest office in their gift, and that the professions of moralty and virtue and reform put forth in his behalf are the veriest electioneering rot that was ever sought to be palmed off to cheat and defraud a people. Blaine stands the test of honest criticism and malignant slander alike; without being slandered, Cleveland falls at the first fire of the critic, leaving men wondering how it was they could have been so greatly deceived as to real character.—[Troy (N. Y.) Times.

IGNORANCE VS. INTELLECT.

The election of Grover Cleveland to the Presidency over James G. Blaine would be the elevation of ignorance and pomposity over intellect and statesmanship.—[Cleveland Leader.

A SHALLOW LETTER.

The more one reflects upon the letter of Grover Cleveland in accepting the Presidential nomination, the more deeply one must be impressed with the contrast it presents to Mr. Blaine's letter. Shallow, vague and vapid, it is a little row-boat hugging the shore.—[Chicago Inter-Ocean.

It is a reproach to American politics that so weak a man as this letter exhibits, should even by accident be exalted to the high place which Cleveland holds. It is an irrecoverable misfortune to the National Democracy that the custom of "letters of acceptance" has given Cleveland an opportunity to prove how weak and small he is as a public man.—[Milwaukee Wisconsin.

A BANANA PEEL.

The Democrats may not be willing to acknowledge to the world that they made a mistake in nominating Mr. Cleveland, but in the inmost recesses of their hearts they will not deny that they stepped on a banana peel at Chicago.—[St. Louis Globe Democrat.

THE CHOICE GIVEN.

They are asked on one side to support the party that has been progressive, patriotic, enlightened and liberal; on the other, the party that for 25 years has been steadfastly wrong, and that has now no better plea for getting into power than the parrot-like repetition of accusations that have not been proved after many years of venomous labor. By November the sober judgment of the people will surely decide, if that has not already decided, that the time has not yet come to turn out the Republican party.—[New York Commercial Advertiser.

AN EMBARRASSING QUESTION.

Is a Tariff for Revenue only to be Democratic doctrine in Illinois and a Tariff for Protection only in Pennsylvania, or is the subject to be dodged altogether? We fancy that Democratic stump speakers will find it embarrassing to be able to say nothing on this all-important topic, and still more embarrassing to come out boldly for either side. At present it looks as if they would choose the former evil as the lesser of the two, and skulk, as they did in 1880—with the same result.—[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Value of Good Cattle.

The Iowa Homestead doubts if there has ever been a time when a good steer would bring as much of the necessities and comforts of life, as in this year 1884. And he will continue to do so for many years to come. Manufactures may increase very rapidly and produce more goods than the people want; hogs increase with rapidity and die off with a facility that keeps the market bobbing up and down; but cattle increase slowly and it is doubtful if we have to-day as many, in proportion to the population, as we had five years ago. The same rule measurably holds good with draft horses. It is impossible to increase rapidly and the demand is constant.

John Knappe.

General Agent in the Red River Valley of the Netherlands American Land Company of Amsterdam, Holland.

Money to loan on good real estate security, on time to suit the borrower. Office over Merchant's Bank. [1-tf]

Tax Judgment Sale.

Pursuant to a Real Estate Tax Judgment of the District Court in the County of Polk, State of Minnesota, entered the 16th day of August, A. D. 1884, in proceedings for enforcing payment of taxes and penalties upon real estate in the County of Polk remaining delinquent on the first day of June, A. D. 1884, and of the statute in such case made and provided, I shall on the 15th day of September, A. D. 1884, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the office of the County Auditor in the city of Crookston, and County of Polk, sell the lands which are charged with taxes, penalties and costs in said judgment, and on which taxes shall not have been previously paid.

[19-20] P. J. McGUIRE,
County Auditor, Polk County.

THE

University of Minnesota

Will open its Fall Term

Wednesday, Sept. 3, 1884.

Entrance examinations will begin at 8 a. m. Recitations and lectures will begin Tuesday, September 9. Courses, Classical, Scientific and Modern, and sub-freshman, preparatory. Tuition free in all classes. For information and catalogues apply to

CYRUS W. NORTHROP, President.
Minneapolis, Aug. 16, 1884.

DR. M. WATTS,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
OFFICE ON ROBERT SRREET.

Professional calls by day or night attended to with promptness.

THE

St. Paul, Minneapolis

—AND—

Manitoba

RAILWAY,

WITH ITS

1,400 Miles of Road

Is the only line extending through the

Park Region of Minnesota,

To all principal points in

Red River Valley,
Northern Minnesota,
Northern Dakota,
And to Devil's Lake and Turtle Mour Districts.

—CONTAINING OVER—

9,000,000 Acres

GOVERNMENT LANDS!

The Land department of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has exclusive charge of the Company's Lands in Minnesota, and all correspondence relative to the purchase of lands, terms, description or price of any particular tract should be addressed to that department.

Maps and pamphlets describing the country and giving rates of fare to settlers, etc., mailed FREE on adplication.

JAS. B. POWER,
Land and Immigration Commissioner.
C. H. WARREN,
General Passenger Agent,
St. P., M. & M. R'y., St. Paul, Minn.

MINNEAPOLIS

The Minneapolis EVENING JOURNAL desires a live, energetic correspondent in Crookston. Send for circular letter of instructions, remuneration, &c. Address MANAGING EDITOR EVENING JOURNAL, Minneapolis, Minn. [19-20]

CORRESPONDENTS.

MERCHANTS' HOTEL,

J. E. MITTON, Proprietor,
CORNER BROADWAY AND ROBERT STREET,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

The new Merchants' Hotel, recently re-fitted and re-furnished is now ready to accommodate the traveling public, who are cordially invited to stop at the Merchants' when in the city.

JOHN N. IVES,

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

Collection and Land Office Business made a specialty. Money secured for final proofs on short notice.

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

WM. WATTS,

ATTORNEY AT LAW,

AND DEALER IN

REAL ESTATE.

OFFICE OVER MERCHANTS' BANK.

W. L. Sargeant

Veterinary Surgeon.

CROOKSTON, MINN.

Diseases of horses and cattle a specialty.

19-tf

Crookston Tonsorial

PARLORS.

PROF. THOMPSON, Proprietor.

Robert Street, Crookston, Minn.

Shaving, hair dressing and all work in my line promptly attended to the latest style of the art. Give me a call.

The Old Brick Block

IS THE PLACE

To Buy Dry Goods, Groceries. Clothing, Boots and Shoe Hats and Caps, or anything you want.

Fontaine & Anglim

IS THE FIRM

Who are ready, with a corps of affable clerks to show you their NEW FALL and WINTER STOCK and quote prices to astonish the natives.

Great Bargains

Don't forget to visit Fontaine & Anglim's Emporium, in the Old Brick Block,

MAIN STREET. CROOKSTON, MINN.

THE

J. I. CASE

THRESHING MACHINE COMPANY

The Dennet or Beloit

HARVESTING MACHINE COMPANY.

And the Van Brunt & Davis

SEEDER COMPANY,

Are Represented

BY

STEENERSON BROS.,

CROOKSTON, MINN.

MONEY TO GIVE AWAY

IN BARGAINS AT

MARKHAM'S

THE LEADING GROCERY HOUSE

AND THE LARGEST BOOT AND SHOE STORE

IN CROOKSTON.

Goods Delivered to any Part of the City

FREE OF CHARGE.

FARMERS, FARMERS,

WE ARE

Selling Lower Than Ever!

You will always find it to your advantage to

Trade with Us!

We Sell the Best for the LOWEST LIVING PRICES. Remember the place,

Broadway, bet. 2d and Robert Sts.

D. BUCHANAN.

THE NEW ERA MANUFACTURING CO.,

Exclusive manufacturers of the

NEW ERA

Wagon Road Grader!

AND DITCHINGMACHINE.

Manufactory 625 to 631 south Halsted street, Chicago, Illinois.

Having established our headquarters for the Red River Valley at CROOKSTON, MINN., all inquiries addressed to us will receive our personal attention. All machines fully warranted and free trial given upon application. Address all Red River Valley correspondence to the

NEW ERA MANUFACTURING CO., Box 851, Crookston, Minn.

McKINNON BROS.,

Carriage Works

Robert Street,

Crookston, - Minn.

AGENTS FOR THE

J. I. CASE THRESHING MACHINES!

And Manufacturers of

Carriages, Wagons,

BUGGIES,

Cutters, Sleds, &c.

Axles, Springs, and all Repairs kept in stock,

DEALERS IN

FARM MACHINERY.

In Farm Machinery we have the Champion Seeder, Fargo Diamond Tooth Harrow, Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow, Davenport and Grand Detour Sulky and Walking Plows, Buford Gang Plows, Field Rollers of all sizes, Warrior Mowers, the leading Hay Rake and first-class Harvesters and Binders, the Webber Wagon and McKinnon Bros. Wagon; In fact we have everything in machinery, from

A Wheelbarrow to a Threshing Machine!

—EXTRAS—

For all Machines constautly on hand

E. M. Walsh,

DEALER IN

Hardware, Tinware

BAR IRON, STEEL,

BLACKSMITHS SUPPLIES,

BUILDING PAPER,

&c., &c. Also Agent

For the Celebrated Monitor Plows.

CROOKSTON, MINN.

A Big Bonanza!

JOSEPH BARRETT

Has decided to Put on the Market his

÷ADDITION÷

TO THE

City of Crookston,

Next adjoining the Crookston Driving Park. Parties desiring to purchase

—CHOICE LOST—

NOW IS YOUR TIME!

LOTS

For Sale Separately, or in

BLOCKS.

TERMS EASY!

Apply to the undersigned or at the office of C. B. Palmer, U. S. Land Office Building. Both English and French spoken.

JOSEPH BARRETT.

Polk County Journal.

Crookston, Minn., Thursday, September 4.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

GOING NORTH.

		ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 1	Passenger	10:25 p. m.	10:35 p. m.
" 9	Passenger	10:10 a. m.
" 19	Freight	12:20 a. m.
" 15	Freight	4:00 p. m.
" 23	Freight		10:30 a. m.

GOING SOUTH.

		ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 2	Passenger	4:00 a. m.	4:15 a. m.
" 10	Passenger		5:25 p. m.
" 20	Freight		7:00 a. m.
" 22	Freight		6:15 p. m.
" 24	Freight	5:00 p. m.

DEVIL'S LAKE LINE.

		ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 9	Passenger		10:20 a. m.
" 10	Passenger	5:30 p. m.
" 45	Freight		6:00 a. m.
" 46	Freight	7:00 p. m.

ST. HILAIRE BRANCH.

Trains leave Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 10:15 a. m., and arrive same days at 4:00 p. m.

☞ Passenger Trains No's 1 and 2, Main Line, run daily except Sunday. No's 3 and 4 run daily. Devil's Lake Passenger runs daily. Freights No's 23, 20 and 24 run daily. Freights No's 15 and 22, and Freights on Devil's Lake Line run daily except Sunday.

Judging by the tenor of the many letters from parties in other States, making inquiries in relation to this country which the JOURNAL has received during the past two months, we should judge that the interest felt in this New Northwest continues unabated, and the prospects for a little immigration boom are good. To one and all we would say that as far as soil and climate are concerned the Northwest cannot be beaten on the globe, and if you have sand enough to peg along, making a precarious living where you are, you doubtless have enough to succeed in this new country and make yourself independent. It is best to have money enough with you to tide over the first year or so, yet this is not absolutely essential, as is proven in many cases by actual experience. In Polk County some government lands yet remain untaken, and railroad and State lands range from $3 to $12 per acre, according to its distance from the railroad. Wheat has been the great staple production and herein our farmers have made a mistake, as our land is as well adapted to stock-raising and other industries, and the conditions for making money in those pursuits are as favorable as in any other country in the world. Horses have always brought good figures; beef cattle are always in demand at good prices; cows are never a drug in the market; butter commands a good price; pork sells as well as in any market in the world, and if a man takes a government claim and makes it a point to raise nearly everything he needs to support his family, and makes it a point to have a few beef cattle, a few milch cows, a little butter, a little pork and a little mutton to sell each year there is no earthly reason why he cannot succeed better here than in any of the older States. It is true that the winters are somewhat severe and it is no fool of a job to go out on the open prairies to live in the winter-time for a few years; but trees grow quickly, and it is a man's own fault if he spends his lifetime on the open prairie with no protection afforded by trees, when by a little labor he can soon grow plenty of trees for shelter. Labor has always commanded a high price until the present year, when the universally low price of wheat has effected that, as well as everything else, and even this year wages are better than in most of the older States. Wood abounds in sufficient quantities to supply the needs of the settlers until they can grow their own, and water, generally, is abundant and of good quality. Wherever alkali abounds the surface water is not so good, but good water, free from alkali, can be obtained in depths ranging from 50 to 200 feet. As we have said, wheat is the great staple, but this feature is gradually undergoing a change, and farmers are turning their attention to stock. Some few are introducing thoroughbred stock and in a few years Northern Minnesota will be as noted for her butter as she is now for the superior quality and quantity of her wheat. The growth of this country has been marvelous in the extreme. When the writer first came on the Northern Pacific railroad in 1872, all the distance from Duluth, on the head of Lake Superior, west as far as Bismarck, on the Missouri River, over 400 miles, was practically an unsettled wilderness, there being but few villages containing over from 100 to 150 people, and very little land taken. To-day there are many flourishing villages containing a population of from 500 to 5,000 and Duluth, Brainerd, Moorhead, Fargo, Jamestown and Bismarck, claim populations ranging from 8,000 to 12,000 inhabitants each, while almost every available acre of tillable land is taken up and occupied and counties as large as some whole eastern States are numerous. North and south, on the St. Paul and Manitoba railroad, from Breckenridge to the boundary line, in 1872 the conditions were the same. In the fall of 1878 the writer rode from Glyndon to Crookston, a distance of over 60 miles, and for the entire distance saw not to exceed one dozen claim shanties. To-day the railroad line from Breckenridge to St. Vincent on the boundary line is dotted with thriving cities and villages containing from 500 to 6,000 people, the land in the immediate vicinity [illegible] houses are more plenty now than were claim shanties in 1872. Only twelve years! When the mind has conceived this immense increase in population and wealth in so short a time, it will take but a slight stretch of the imagination to conceive what a few more years will do for this country. It would be wonderful, indeed, if among the large number who make up the population of this great country, no grumblers could be found, but we think the fact of so many happy and contented people as can be found here, is a good and sufficient comment upon the healthful and fertile resources of the country. A few grumblers, it is true, have gone back to older States; tender-feet who could not bear a little grief, but by far the larger majority have staid to build up pleasant homes and acquire an honest independence from the most fertile soil and a climate unequalled in the world. Whatever might once have been urged to prevent people coming here as to risk incurred, experimenting with the soil, can be urged no longer, as every locality has been thoroughly tested and found to be all right with proper cultivation. We have soil capable of producing 30 bushels No. 1 Hard wheat per acre; we know this because it has been done. If the fact remains that the average does not reach that figure there may be a defect in the method of cultivation. We have known of 100 bushels of oats per acre and 60 bushels of barley per acre being produced, but we never have seen it done where the land was poorly worked. Thorough cultivation without an ounce of fertilizers will do more in this country than thorough cultivation and plenty of fertilizers will do in many other States. As to the future of this country we can only judge of that by the past, which has been wonderful. Men have come here in the early day without a dollar, who to-day are in independent circumstances; men who, had they stayed back in the old country where they were, would not have been any better off to-day than they were when they left. Those men had pluck and muscle as their capital, and that capital will always win here. One correspondent asks us: "Having been there as long as you have, would you candidly invite others to come?" Well, that depends very much upon whom we were talking to. We have stated the conditions as candidly as we know how as we know them to exist, and we leave the question of whether he shall come to each individual to decide. The rapidity of the settlement of this country indicates that it will become thickly settled at no very distant day, and the sooner one comes the better, but we do not wish any man to come upon our recommend expecting to find a paradise on earth, for if he does, ten chances to one he will meet with disappointments. No country on earth is perfect, and there is none on earth not subject to drawbacks to a greater or less extent. What we claim for this country is that it is subject to fewer drawbacks than any we have ever seen, and we have been in many States and Territories on this continent. We have a deep and abiding faith in the great future before us, and we have no hesitancy in inviting all the world and the rest of mankind to come and look us over.

The Ada Index says that we are "on the fence" on the candidate question. If taking sufficient time to consider well the claims of the different aspirants may be called "on the fence," we are not alone, as hundreds of farmers are as earnestly endeavoring to discover the best man. It is a question that we cannot afford to make any mistakes in deciding for in the character of the man whom we send to represent us next winter depends largely the weal or woe of this great Northwest for the coming two years. It is a question demanding careful attention, and no one can afford to let feelings of personal friendship lead him to support a weak or inefficient man. The farmers may make or mar their prospects of an open market, as they decide that question. In our Senator we have an able man, a man of pronounced views, a man not afraid to express those views in face of great opposition, as he has in his past experience fully demonstrated, and we want another as good to back him up in the House. When that man developes, we are his huckleberry.

First Use of a Recent Law.

Pioneer Press. Yesterday Capt. Jack Arnold was committed by the Ramsey County probate court to the inebriate department of the second hospital for the insane, at Rochester, Minn., upon information filed by Charles E. Chappel, his guardian. This is the first commitment from Ramsey County under chapter 126 of the general statutes of 1883, which provides a special proceeding for drunkards under guardianship who are proper subjects for medical treatment on account of dissipation. The law requires the examination to be made by a jury consisting of three reputable physicians. In this case Drs. Stone, Owens and Quinn composed the jury. Capt. Arnold is forty-five years of age. He was captain of a company at the time of the Sioux outbreak in 1862, and was afterward adjutant to the First Minnesota. After the war he was for some time clerk at the army headquarters in St. Paul, and then drifted into newspaper work, being connected with numerous ventures in the business. His latest attempt was the Crookston [illegible] which he [illegible] Arnold [illegible]

Teachers' Fall Examinations.

Examinations will be held as follows: East Grand Forks, on Thursday and Friday, September 4th and 5th, at the School House.

Crookston, at the Court House, Monday and Tuesday, September 8th and 9th.

Red Lake Falls, at the School House, Thursday and Friday, September 11th and 12th.

V. D. CARRUTH,
County Supt. Schools.

Crookston, Aug. 27th, 1884.

NOTICE.

As I still own my share of Crookston Nurseries, and purpose to continue the business, I will annouce to our former customers and all that are desirous of obtaining trees and Plants the coming spring that I will sell said stock at prices below any competition. Call and see me before making purchase elsewhere. Residence on second block north of Court House, or address P. O. Box 754.

Most Respectfully,
[38-tf] E. W. HASELTINE.

To The Public.

We wish to state to the people of Crookston and vicinity, that we have purchased the stock of groceries owned by J. L. Bailey, on Broadway, opposite the post office. We purpose to carry on the trade at the old stand, and will keep on hand, at all times, a fresh stock of groceries, provisions, etc., and we ask a share of the patronage of the generous public.

[5-tf] BAUSCHMAN & MILETTE.

I have some of the best located residence and business lots in the city that I will sell on easy terms.

H. W. LEWIS.

I would say to the people of Polk County that I have on sale some of the most desirable lots in the city o Crookston.

H. W. LEWIS.
Office in JOURNAL building.

A BARGAIN.

A choice business location on Broad way 100x140 feet, for sale at a bargain. For particulars address the JOURNAL.

$100,000!

To Loan on improved claims in sums of $250 to $2,000. Cash paid for school bonds. Call on or address,

JOHN MCLEAN, Att'y at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

Send Money by American Express or Money Orders. Receipts given. Money refunded if Orders are lost. Sold at all offices of the Company. Payable at 6,500 places. RATES: To $5-5c.; $10-8c.; $20-10c.; $30-12; $40-15; $50-20c.
[2-27]

A good farm for sale two miles from Euclid. Seventy acres in crop. Will sell at a low figure. H. W. LEWIS.

NOTICE.

Any man investing in property at Red Lake Falls or vicinity who loses by the investment, I will pay five dollars where he looses five cents.

[8-28] ALFRED GERVAIS.

Notice to Farmers.

C. Kretzschmar's Grist Mill, at Red Lake Falls, is again open for business. Flour will be exchanged for wheat, or your wheat will be ground on shares. A good feed mill is run in connection with the mill and satisfaction in all cases is guaranteed. Flour and feed on hand at all times and sold at lowest market rates.

[16-tf] C. KRETZSCHMAR.

Money to Loan.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS to loan on improved farms from THREE to FIVE years time at very reasonable rates. Apply at my office on Broadway, in U. S. Land Office building.

[14tf] H. STEENERSON.

Just received. A car-load of Buggies selected by an experienced carriage-builder all warranted. Call early and select one. McKinnon Bros.

A fine residence on Broadway for sale, enquire of H. W. Lewis. Office in JOURNAL building.

Christening and Wedding Cakes Made upon Short-est Notice in the Best Style.

A Choice and Well Selected Stock of Confectionery Always on hand.

John Crawford & Son,

Proprietors of

Crawford's Bakery,

SECOND STREET,

Crookston, Minn.

CONFECTIONERY.

Fresh Bread, Buns, Cakes and Biscuits. All Articles in the Fancy Baking Line.

FURNITURE STORE,

BROADWAY, CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

P. BATAGLIA, Prop.

Keeps constantly on hand a well selected stock of Wardrobes, Bureaus, Sofas, Lounges, Bed steads, Bed Springs, Tables, Chairs, Rocking [illegible] Stands, Ornaments, Picture Mouldings and Picture Frames. REPAIRING DONE TO ORDER. [illegible]

BERG & OLSON,

PRACTICAL WATCHMAKERS,

AND DEALERS IN

CLOCKS,
WATCHES,
JEWELRY,

—ROBERT STREET,—

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

Wentzel & Rauch,
Sample Rooms.

MAIN STREET, - - CROOKSTON, MINN.

For a fine mixed or straight drink call on the boys. The choicest liquors and cigars in stock. [9-tf]

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication July 31st, 1884.]

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Joseph Piquette, a married man, and Mary Piquette, his wife mortgagors, to John Cromb, mortgagee, dated the 27th day of October A. D. 1882, and recorded as a morgage, together with the power of sale therein contained in the office of the Register of Deeds, of the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on the 31st day of October A. D. 1882, at ten o'clock and twenty-five minutes a. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 350, which said mortgage authorized the holder thereof in case of such default to declare due and foreclose the same for the whole amount secured to be paid thereby, and whereas there is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the amount of five hundred ninety-one and 25-100 dollars ($591.25-10) being the whole amount secured to be paid thereby and still unpaid, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof and whereas by such default the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become and is operative.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of such power of sale contained in and recorded with said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises herein described, which sale will be made at the west front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county or by his Deputy, on Saturday the 13th day of September A. D. 1884, at ten o'clock in the forenoon to satisfy the amount that shall then be due on said mortgage with the interest thereon, and costs and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold are all that tract or parcel of land lying and being in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and described as follows, to-wit: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section twenty-one (21) in Township number one hundred and fifty (150) north of Range number forty-four (44) west, of the fifth principal meridian, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres, according to the United States government survey thereof.

Dated Crookston July 31st 1884.

JOHN CROMB,
Mortgagee.

JOHN LEO,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [14-20]

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication August 7th, 1884.]

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Alex. Allerdyce, mortgagor, to Paul C. Sletten and John Cromb, mortgagees, dated the first day of August A. D. 1882, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 25th day of August A. D 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "H" of mortgages on page 218, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of four hundred and eighty-four 53-100 dollars, according to the terms and conditions of one promissory note of even date therewith, and whereas Paul C. Sletten one of the mortgagees above named, on the 8th day of July A. D. 1884, at the City of Crookston, in said County, died testate, and the last will and testament of said deceased, which was by the Probate Court of said County duly admitted to probate and allowed as such on July 30th A. D. 1884, appointed and constituted Olaus H. Lucken the sole executor thereof, who accepted the trust and duly qualified as such and letters testamentary under said will, was then by said Court to him duly issued, and whereas an attested copy of said will was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for said Polk County on July 31st, 1884, in book "P" of deeds on pages 257 and 258, and no action or proceedings has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by the sale of the mortgaged premises, therein described, at public auction, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County of Polk, on Saturday the twentieth day of September A. D. 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m., to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, and the costs and expenses of sale together with $25.00 attorneys fees as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure. The premises described in said mortgage, and so to be sold, are the pieces and parcels of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota known and described as follows, to-wit: Lots one (1,) two (2) and three (3) of block six (6) in Sletten & Cromb's subdivision of Hurlbut's addition to the townsite of Crookston, according to the recorded plat thereof now on file in the office of Register of Deeds for said Polk County.

Dated August 5th A. D. 1884.

JOHN CROMB, Surviving Mortgagee.
OLAUS H. LUCKEN, Sole executor of Paul C. Sletten, deceased, mortgagee.
H. STEENERSON, Attorney for surviving and for executor of deceased mortgagee.
[15-21]

Groceries, Provisions,

Flour, Feed

SMOKED, DRIED AND SALT

MEATS,

TEAS,
COFFEES,
SUGARS,
SPICES,
ETC.

Highest Market Price Paid for FARM PRODUCE.

Bauchman & Millette.

Broadway, Opposite the Post Office,
Crookston, Minn.

MERCHANTS HOTEL

J. E. MITTON, Prop.,

WAHPETON, DAKOTA.

The Red Lake Falls
FLOURING
MILL

Has lately been enlarged and is now prepared to do custom work without delay. Stable room free.

BUSE & COLBENTSON,
Proprietors, Red Lake Falls, Minn.

N. F. CHINIQUY'S

Chicago Dry Goods House.

JUST RECEIVED

Full Lines Of

Dress Sstins, Lawns, Organdies.
Percales, Cambrics, Buntings, Piques
Marsailles, Prints, Embroideries.
Gloves, Hosiery, Handkerchiefs.
Hoop Skirts, Bustles, Corsets.
Parasols, Collars, Cuffs, Ruchings.
Lacesand Lace Goods, Gauze.
Underwear, Etc., Etc., Etc.
Cretonnes and Fringes.
Gent's Furnishing Goods.

The above goods were bought late in the season at very Low Prices and I will make it an aim to sell those goods very cheap.

No Trouble to Show Goods

At N. F. CHINIQUY'S

Chicago Dry Goods Store.

JEROME'S ADDITION

TO THE

CITY OF CROOKSTON

IS NOW

Offered for Sale

This is the finest Residence Property in the City. High and dry, good cellars, water, and well sheltered. Enclosed on three sides by the river, and only three blocks from the heart of the city and Post Office.

HOW TO BE HEALTHY!

Drink LePage's

35c Tea and 35c pure Java Coffee

AND SMOKE MY NICKEL PILGRIM CIGAR.

HOW TO BE HEALTHY!

COME TO THE RED STAR GROCERY

And Save Money on everything you buy.

AND IF YOU ARE WISE

You will buy only Pure and Fresh Groceries. THE RED STAR GROCERY is the place to get them and there you will find Prices the Lowest. Farmers and others bring in your Butter and Eggs and get highest prices for them. Remember the RED STAR, one door south of Montreal House.

E. LEPAGE, Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

E. D. Schreader

LIVERY,

Feed and Sale Stable.

BEST TURNOUTS
IN THE CITY.

Single or Double Rigs, with or without driver or

SADDLE HORSES

Always ready at a moments notice by day or night. If you want a Nobby Turnout call at the Red Barn, Corner Main and Third Streets,

CROOKSTON, - - - MINNESOTA.

NEW
DRUG STORE
IN GARFIELD

DR. A NELSON, Prop.

The citizens of this town and vicinity are respectfully invited to call at my new Drug Store in the town of Garfield and examine my stock of

DRUGS, MEDICINES, PAINTS, OILS AND YANKEE NOTIONS.

It is no longer necessary to go 40 or 55 miles for anything in this line, as I have a full supply at prices as reasonable as any town in the Northwest. Call and see

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON

I am also ready to answer all calls by day or night, for the practice of my profession. Call, or leave orders at my Drug Store in Garfield, Polk Co., Minn.

DR. A. NELSON.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON.

PAID IN CAPITAL,	$100,000
SURPLUS,	1,400

Money to loan on long or short time on approved security

Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittance.

GEO. O. ERSKINE, President.
K. D. CHASE, Vice President.
ANSEL BATES, Cashier.

A. YVERNAULT,

Dealer in

General

Merchandise,

—MAIN STREET,—

Crookston, - - Minn.

All of my friends, both old and new, are cordially invited to call and examine my stock 2nd get prices.

Fortier's Place,

Corner Broadway and Robert Street

EVERYTHING — NEW, NEAT
—AND NOBBY.—

Billiards, Pool, and the Choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars. The purest High Proof Whiskies at wholesale prices

PURE IMPORTED GOODS ON DROUGHT.

P. A. DUFOUR,
Attorney and Counselor at Law,
—MAIN STREET,—
CROOKSTON, MINN.

Commercial Hotel,

W. H. TOPPING, Proprietor

SECOND STREET, - - CROOKSTON, MINN

First-class in all respects. Terms reasonable. A share of the public patronage solicited.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homoeopathic Physician and Surgeon.
Rooms corner Main street and Fletcher Avenue, over Eiken Bros. Hardware Store,
CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINN.

The Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Proprietor. DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. TERMS---$1.50 Per Annum.

VOL. VIII. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, SEPTEMBER 11, 1884. NO. 20

Polk County Journal.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Dollar and Fifty Cents if paid in advance, to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

ADVERTISING RATES.

SPACE.	1 w.	2 w.	3 w.	1 m.	2 m	6 m.	1 year
½ inch	50	$1 00	$1 15	$1 50	$3 00	4 50	$ 6 00
1 inch	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	5 50	6 00	10 00
2 inches	1 00	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 00	9 50	15 00
3 inches	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	9 50	13 50	20 00
4 inches	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 50	10 00	10 00	25 00
5 inches	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 50	20 00	30 00
¼ column	2 50	5 50	5 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	35 00
½ column	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	20 00	35 00	50 00
1 column	9 50	12 50	15 00	18 00	25 00	60 00	100 00

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

Republican Ticket.

For President,
JAMES G. BLAINE,
of Maine.

For Vice President,
JOHN A. LOGAN,
of Illinois.

For Representative in Congress,
HON. KNUTE NELSON,
of Alexandria.

The Course for a True Democrat.

New York Sun.

Notwithstanding that the following remarks come from such a distance as the State of Oregon, they are full of interest and material for reflection:

"Give the Democrats a chance, and if they fail to retrench and reform during a four years' rule, then it will be time to fight them. Stand by the ticket, and if we are successful and fail in the needed retrenchment and reform, then we will be with you if you feel like trying to defeat the party that betrays its trust."

These are our correspondent's views of the present duties of the campaign, but they are not the views of The Sun. Trying to put the Democratic party into power under a leader totally incompetent or constitutionally unwilling to administer the trust that would be imposed on him as it ought to be administered, is an experiment of which we do not approve and which we do not propose to engage in. Our correspondent suggests that The Sun should support Mr. Cleveland now, and if he fails to accomplish the reforms that are so pressing, and to purify and rehabilitate the national administration according to the programme indicated by Samuel J. Tilden, then will be the time to turn around and fight the Democrats four years after their President has exhibited his incapacity beyond contradiction.

But we can assure our correspondent that in the event which he foreshadows, the Democratic party would be beyond the possibility of fighting. It would go out of office as it came in, disgraced and mortified, and the Republicans whom the upholders of personal morality in candidates are now so anxious to overpower and to destroy, would regain their control of the Government and become more strongly intrenched and immovable than ever. It is a deplorable yet almost inevitable prospect, and we cannot contemplate it with the same adventurous spirit or daring cheerfulness that inspires our correspondent. We prefer to address the Democratic party now, and to point out its dangers beforehand rather than to precipitate such a catastrophe and involve it in difficulties from which escape would be difficult, and perhaps impossible. To give a warning now is better than joining in an ineffectual lamentation afterward.

Good Blood for Common Farmers.

Prairie Farmer: So much has been said of the benefits derived from good blood in breeding that one might be excused for thinking that no reason exists for saying more on the subject. Everybody should be convinced by this time, and further effort to induce people to discard forever the scrub should be unnecessary. But the fact is that even in the West, where the live-stock department of farming is relatively so much more important than it has ever been in the East, comparatively few of the millions of the cattle are well bred; few horses have even a remote touch of good blood; too many sheep are mere scrubs, and even the swine on many a farm are too much like the long-snouted racers of pioneer times. It has become generally recognized that the transmission of individual characteristics is so certain that the most patient and painstaking efforts of skillful breeders to obliterate objectionable features often result in disappointment. Generations have been required to fix a desired trait and after many generations some characteristic that had long been almost unknown will appear. To fix a good quality so firmly that it may be depended upon to reproduce itself, long years, even generations, are needed, in the course of which disappointments [illegible] will greatly outnumber the victories. Yet the average old-style farmer will refuse to pay more for a bull, or boar, or a ram of the best blood, or for the use of such animals, than he will pay for the veriest scrub. This seems incredible, but proofs of the truth of the assertion obtrude themselves on every hand.

In the west bull calves of good breeding can be bought for prices ranging from $20 to $100, the cheaper ones being unregistered, perhaps, but fully as good as they would be if registered, for all the uses of those who have no pure-bred female. Jersey bulls that would double the butter production of an ordinary herd can be bought for $50 or less; high grade if not pure-plood Holland and Ayrshire bulls can be bought at the same prices; boars and rams of excellent blood can be obtained on equally favorable terms; yet the majority of the class of farmers mentioned will not buy, nor will they use such animals unless, indeed, they can steal the services. The consequence is they go along grubbing in the corn-field in the summer to raise a crop of corn to feed animals that will probably not pay them first cost, when they might, for $2 or $3 each, secure animals that would pay a fair profit on all they eat.

Diversified Farming.

Wadena Farmer.

As the wheat crop for this year will soon be out of the way, it will soon be time for farmers to begin to lay plans for next year's crop. What do you calculate to raise next year? Are you going to sow all your farm to wheat, and come to town—as we have often seen farmers do—for your pork, your butter, your eggs and your horse-feed? Of all things foolish this seems to us the most absurd. We know that a great many farmers came to this country with comparatively nothing, and had to commence raising wheat because it was a thing for which they could get an immediate return in cash. But this is no reason why they should keep running in the same old rut year after year. If you cannot commence on a large scale commence on a small one. Buy a pig or two, one or two calves or a cow. By all means make your own butter and raise your own pork and horse feed. Raising nothing but wheat and buying everything else will drive any farmer to the poorhouse. If a great many small farmers with from 40 to 80 acres under the plow would invest the money that they put into a self-binder in buying pigs and calves and cows, and then raise a variety of cereals, and instead of hauling their produce to market, drive it there in the shape of hogs and cattle, they would find that diversified farming and stock raising is much easier and requires less help than wheat. Raise barley, potatoes and turnips. They all make good feed for both cattle and hogs. If you are afraid to try dent corn, plant Yankee corn, sweet corn or such kinds as you know will mature. Get a big iron kettle, if you cannot afford a steam apparatus, and boil the feed for your hogs. We have never seen a hog fattened so quickly as on boiled potatoes, turnips and corn. There is plenty of good wild hay and good pasture land in this country, so farmers will not, as a general thing, have to go to the expense of seeding down their improved land to timothy and clover, unless they are able and see fit so to do. There are quite a number of our farmers who have gone into stock raising quite extensively, and they tell us that it is a complete success. Hogs and steers at three cents per pound on foot will pay better than wheat at $1 per bushel. We know this to be a fact, for we have tried it. We have seen pork sell in Iowa at $2.75 per hundred on foot, and know that it then paid better than wheat at from 85 to 90 cents per bushel. Making butter is a very profitable industry in this country. Butter in Wadena is very seldom worth less than 15 cents per pound, and the greater part of the season is worth from 35 to 30 cents. Keep a good lot of hens; eggs always have brought a good price here. Eggs are very seldom worth less than 15 cts. per dozen and are often worth 25 and 30 cents. Eggs at 15 cents per dozen will pay better than wheat at $1.50 per bushel.

Farmers, look to your best interest. Get out of that old rut—wheat raising—and devote your time to diversified farming, and you will soon find yourselves out of debt and independent and will not be continually buying and paying for machinery.

The Farmer's advice to raise corn may be good, but it is unnecessary. Peas are far more easily raised and make a good substitute for corn in fattening pork. Corn will fail in some years, but peas never. If farmers would select a grass breed, Berkshires for instance and provide good pasturage for them they could be cheaply raised and, when fattened on boiled potatoes, barley and peas would be found a great improvement over buying pork. [illegible]

The Large Wheat Farms.

We are real pleased to learn that some of our large wheat farms in Minnesota and Dakota are to be cut up into small farms and sold to actual residents. This is a step in the right direction. The too common idea that large farms pay better than small ones in proportion to the area cultivated, cannot be too soon got rid of rid of by the farmers of the West. The man who opens a large farm—unless possessed of plenty of capital and help at all times to be depended upon—soon finds that many calculations he has made must be deferred in their execution or entirely abandoned. The demands required of the large farm, at one and the same time, must either be performed or a portion suffer while the other receives attention. The lack of promptness of hired help may cause the loss of half a crop; large crops that require immediate attention are never harvested as safely and cleanly as the smaller one that the owner can harvest alone or with the assistance of a hand or two. As a general rule, a farm of eighty to 160 acres is much more neatly farmed and more paying results received than from one of 1,000 acres where in growing of crops is made a source of profit.—[Minneapolis Tribune.

A St. Paul Dealer Takes a Look Into Futurity

And Judiciously Declaims Against Crowding the Market.

Minneapolis Evening Journal.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 5.—L. A. Gilbert, one of the best informed and most successful wheat operators in St. Paul, was questioned to-day upon the probable condition of the wheat market, as soon as the wheat now harvested and awaiting threshing was fairly in the market. In a word, upon the probable tendency of prices for the next sixty or ninety days. "I can only speak my opinion based on my own individual judgment," Mr. Gilbert answered, "and my judgment may be at fault. It would be a difficult thing to say where wheat will be when the new crop is fairly moving or most of it in store. So many conditions enter in to make prognostications hazardous. In the first place the crop may not be so great in yield as was at first estimated. It probably will not. It may or may not be started toward the seaboard early, and this would weigh heavily in determining a scale of prices. Present low prices are based, I think, on a basis of yield and stringent demand. If any considerable portion of the crop is retained and is not thrust upon the market there is likely to be an improvement in prices. If it moves altogether prices may be expected to range low. They are bound to. There is not that demand abroad that there has been often at this season of the year. The fact is EUROPE HAS GOOD CROPS.

England is playing an independent dodge and her buyers are holding off and saying, "we are not forced this year into buying your American wheat at your own prices, for we have plenty on our own side of the water. "They haven't plenty to last them any great length of time, but they have enough for their present needs. They will have to buy sooner or later, say what they may, but there is a good supply in England at present, and enough to last for some time to come."

HOLD BACK YOUR WHEAT.

"What is needed for our people to do is to hold back their wheat for a time and let the market become a little stringent instead of so uncomfortably slack. Just as soon as English, Scotch and French buyers find out that the American market is well cleaned out and the supply not likely to become over large they will at once take the cue, and will begin buying in large quantities and at better prices. This will have a beneficial effect on the markets east, and immediately upon western market certainly. So I can say future prices depend almost altogether upon the movement of wheat. One remedy to poor prices is to hold back the wheat and not sell all at once."

THE FIELD.

"The actual crop is sure to be largely cut down from first estimates, as is always the case. You see, it works like this. A farmer sows 100 acres of wheat, he estimates his yield at sixteen bushels per acre on 100 acres. When harvest comes all around the edges and in spots through the field, either through wet ground or something, a certain proportion of the wheat is lost altogether. Instead of realizing 16 bushels an acre on an 100 acres he actually realizes an average of 12 or 13 bushels. The loss from first estimate is fifteen to twenty per cent, say. Now, what is true of this case used as illustration is very able to be true as applied to the entire crop. Some farmers actually get their sixteen bushels an acre average, but where they do it [illegible] that the average per acre is more likely to be twelve or fourteen bushels an acre than sixteen. I know that wet lands and much rain have lost a large amount of wheat to the Northwest this season. The utmost yield will not be so large, in my judgment, as has all along been claimed for it. If it averages more than twelve or thirteen bushels I will be surprised, though I hope it will, of course."

Don't Rely on One Product.

The papers are all urging that there be more diversity of crops and less dependence upon wheat. The Larimore Leader says: "The farmers must feel reasonably secure at all times, and when diversified farming is the rule then will our farmers be ready to stand a succession of losses of the staple crop, which at present would bring ruin and almost starvation. We do not anticipate that in the history of the country any such calamity will happen. We have never had a succession of failures. We have never even had half a failure, but the loss of last year is yet felt by business men and farmers. We believe that these losses would be tided over if farmers would diversify and pay more attention to stock raising. It is gratifying to know that a movement in this direction has already taken hold of the people of north Dakota."

Seeding Down to Grass.

In seeding down to grass there are two mistakes that farmers often make. First, not much more than half seed enough is sown. Second, the soil is not half prepared. It is very poor economy to try to save money by sowing a small quantity of seed. The result is there are many vacant places, thus leaving a chance for weeds and undesirable varieties of grass to come in, which having gained a foothold will soon begin to crowd out the desirable varieties. An effort should be made to sow seed enough to cover the land so thick with young plants as to crowd out every undesirable variety that tries to get in. In this way a much better quality of hay will be obtained, and the crop will be satisfactory some years longer than if only half seed enough is sown. Many farmers seem to have an idea that they have but little to do to prepare a field to sow grass seed, except to plough it and run an A harrow over it a few times to level it; but this is not enough. If a good crop of grass is expected it is necessary to not only thoroughly pulverize the soil three or four inches deep, but to mix a liberal supply of manure with it. As it is generally expected that the land when once seeded will remain in grass several years, it pays not only to apply a liberal quantity of fertilizers, but to apply something that is not all at once available for plant food. Ground bone, if not very fine, will do this, and is therefore one of the best fertilizers to apply to land that is to be seeded down to grass that is to be found in market, especially if applied in connection with good wood ashes, or potash. Land manured with these two fertilizers will produce good crops of grass several years in succession without top dressing.—[Ploughman.

Sheep Raising.

Wadena Farmer.

It is pleasant to note the attention that is being given to this profitable branch of farming in the Northwest. There is plenty of cheap land here, and the business can be conducted in this part of the United States very profitably. The wild grasses are luxuriant in their growth and are full of nourishing juices. Sheep will thrive admirably on the food that can be cheaply furnished them in this country. Getting "down to brass tacks" there is no profit in howling at monopoly, or in sitting sulkily because a certain law does or does not pass. What must be done to make any business a success, is to find the way to do it well with the least loss. The new Northwest assists in the solution of many hitherto vexing problems. Everything that can be grown here is of the best quality, and the sheep that northwestern farmers will put upon the market at no very distant day will maintain the reputation for the excellence of products that the Northwest always deserved. Some remarks upon the subject, from the pen of Sam Lawrence, published in the Western Plowman, are well worth reading, and the following extract is quoted from his letter:

"When America understands the science of feeding they can bid defiance to foreign wool.

Cost of keeping and convenience to market will determine the best of sheep to raise. It is impossible for the East to compete with the West in raising wool. Where land is cheap, and mutton of little value, the fine wooled Merino is the best. But where the land is more expensive and the cost of keeping for this reason being greater, the price of the wool but little more than pays for the keeping. Other sources of profit must be had, and may be found in the mutton breeds. The Cotswolds and Downs are the paying breeds of the East. They yield a good fleece of wool, and weigh as much as two Merinos when sold to the butcher. The lambs, too, if a market is near, can be sold to advantage when four or five months old. They often bring more money at that age than an old sheep. Right in this raising and selling lambs lies the profit of sheep at the present time. Mutton, not wool, should be made the predominant object. From it is the greatest gain in this country, and when this is generally understood many others will [illegible] the sheep that pay [illegible]

Fall Goods! Fall Goods!

NEW YORK STORE.

We have Received a Full Line of

Staple and Fancy Dry Goods.

Notions, Boots and Shoes,

which we are offering at Low Prices.

We show in

DRESS GOODS

One of the Best Selected stocks in the city. All the fall and winter shades.

We call special attention to our line of

BLACK CASHMERES,

We ask comparison.

Black and Colored Silks and Satins.

We show an exceptionally fine line in these goods.

NOTIONS,

Hosiery and Underwear. Knit Goods and Shawls, Ribbons, White Goods and Linens. Embroideries and Laces, Corsets and Gloves, Etc., etc.

VELVETS,

Black and Colored. Blankets, flannels and Quilts,

—CHEAP— —CHEAP— —CHEAP—

CANTON FLANNELS,

Bleached and unbleached and colored. Domestics of all kinds. Prints, ginghams, sheetings, jeans, ticking, cotton batting, &c., &c.

Hats and caps, complete stock. CARPETS, we have a full line of samples of Body Brussels, Tapestry and Ingrain.

BOOTS AND SHOES,

of well known makes. We make a special effort to have this department one of the most complete in the city.

☞ All our stock has been selected with all possible care, having all the advantages that cash and experience can buy for us, we feel safe in guaranteeing all our customers as low prices, if not lower, than can be obtained elsewhere, quality taken into consideration.

---- A CALL SOLICITED. ----

PROUD & MACDONELL.

Stewart & Lawrence,

DEALERS IN

Lumber, Sash, Doors, Mouldings,

Building Paper, &c.

1st Com. Dim's and Boards, rough,	$18	Siding, dry	$18
2d " " " "	16	Flooring, "	21
3d " " " "	14	Lath	3
Ship Lap, dry	17	Shingles	2

☞ A full stock of Sash, Doors, Casings, Mouldings, Eve Trough and Building Paper constantly on hand.

Johnson & Stevens,

FISHER AND CROOKSTON,

WILL NEGOTIATE LOANS

Through the Corbin Banking Co., New York,

SELL MINNESOTA CHIEF

Threshers and Engines,

Deering and Esterly Binders,

Studebaker Wagons,

and a variety of Rakes, Mowers, Plows, Etc., Etc.

KEEP A MORE

COMPLETE LINE OF REPAIRS

than any agency in the County.

Twine and Wire In Season.

BROADWAY

Meat Market.

FRANK JEROME & CO.,

Fresh and Salt Meats

OF ALL KINDS.

VEGETABLES

In their season. All goods delivered [illegible] requested.

CITY ICE HOUSE!

E. D. SCHRAEDER & CO., Proprietors,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

Having purchased the ice house business of Ruedy & Kindler, and put up during the past winter from 75,000 to 100,000 tons of ice, we are now prepared to supply the trade the coming summer at reasonable figures.

E. D. SCHRAEDER & Co.

DENTISTRY.

J. H. THOMAS, D. D. S.

ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

Artificial Teeth from one to an entire set inserted. Gold, Silver or Artificial Filling used as desired. Regulating Children's Teeth a specialty. ALL WORK WARRANTED.

EIKEN BROS.,

Corner of Fletcher and Main Stree
Crookston, Minn.

Dealers in

HARDWARE, TIWARE,

STOVES,

—AND—

SHELFWARE.

WE KEEP A

FULL & COMPLETE

STOCK,

—AND—

Invite the Patronage

OF ALL.

A. H. DUNLOP M. D.,

Graduate McGill University, Montreal.

LICENSED COLLEGE PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON QUEBEC.

Office on Robert Street, Crookston.

I have a good Hotel for sale, located right in the business part of the city.
H. W. LEWIS.

ELLIS & JOHNSON,

AGENTS FOR THE

WALTER A. WOOD

Mowing and Reaping

MACHINE COMPANY.

A Full Line of Repairs and Twine constantly on Hand.

Robert Street.
Opposite Old Mill. CROOKSTON, MINN.

AIME GABOURY,

PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,

Graduate Doctor in Medicine Laval University Canada. Licensed Coll. Phy. Surg., Quebec Late of Michigan University, U. S.

Office over the "Arcade" Clothing Store,
CROOKSTON MINN

M. M. VAN DYKE,

Physician and Surgeon,

Corner of Main and Second Streets,
ROOKSTON MINN

Will attend to all professional calls promptly.

MERCHANTS' Bank of Crookston.

H. B. MONTGOMERY.........President,
St. Paul, Minn.
M. R. BROWN,...........Vice President,
Crookston, Minn.
J. KELSO.........Second Vice President,
Bellevue, Iowa.
Wm. ROSS............................Cashier,
Crookston, Minn.

CASH CAPITAL, $32,000

SURPLUS, $16,533.82.

Will receive deposits and allow interest by special contract.

Buy and Sell Foreign and Domestic Exchange, make collections, and do a strictly legitimate business.

Agents for foreign passage tickets.

De Skandinaviske Sprog tales her.

WM. ROSS, Cashier.

ATTENTION

Now is the Time to Build

While you can buy

Cream Brick

at Very Low Figures. The Best Brick ever made in the Red River Valley. Manufactured by

SWANSON & KOEPPE,
[11-18] Crookston, Minn.

SECOND STREET

MEAT MARKET

STANTON & CO., Proprietors.

Choice meats of every description. Fish and game in their season. Everything of the very best quality and lowest prices. Call and see us.

STANTON & CO.,
Dobson's Block, Second Street.

Polk County Journal.

Crookston, Minn., Thursday, September 11.

Wheat is quoted in this market today as follows:

No. 1 Hard 57 cents.
No. 1 Regular 50 cents.
No. 2 Hard 46 cents.
No. 3 36 cents.
No. 4 20 cents.

FLOUR:

Best,	per cwt.	$3.25
2d	"	3.00
3d	"	2.75
4th	"	1.75

Wheat, in Minneapolis up to last night is quoted on the bulletin boards at the St. P., M. & M. R. R. depot as follows:

No. 1 Hard no quotation.
No. 2 Hard 79½ cents.
No. 1 Regular 79 cents.

No quotations on the other grades. It is very evident that this is a mistaken quotation as will be seen by glancing at the Duluth quotations and it does not agree with reports in the evening papers which show a weaker market.

Duluth quotations are as follows:

No. 1 Hard 77½ cents.
No. 2 " 78 cents.
No 1 Northern 72½ cents.
No. 1 Regular 72½ cents.

'ROUND HOME.

Seven new brakesmen arrived on Saturday last to go on duty at once.

I. Fortier has put in a new window in the rear end of Fortier's place.

Conductor Nolan has returned and taken his regular train.

John Van Tuyl was in from Maple Lake on Land Office business on Wednesday.

Hon. L. Fletcher, of Minneapolis, came over from Grand Forks on Wednesday.

Gene Stilwell, representing Averill, Russell & Carpenter, arrived in the city on Tuesday.

Lawyer Ryan improved the opportunity to hear Butler shoot off his mouth by attending the Minneapolis fair last week.

Student Mohn will conduct the services in the Norwegian Lutheran church on Sunday, Sept. 14th, at 11 o'clock a. m. and 8 p. m.

Lawyer Pierce, although he does not intend to vote for the widder by any means, went down to see Ben Butler and hear the fair speak.

Register John Cromb is recovering from a severe attack of sore throat. Has had so little use for it for the past two months it was getting rusty.

The rainy weather has cleared up without a frost and farmers feel happier and easier in their mind in view of the good prospects for securing late oats without a frost.

The present price of wheat does not encourage shipment and it is not coming in very lively, farmers seeming to prefer to stack and take their chances on a later market.

Mr. Chas. Truax has sold his residence property on Main street to Mr. S. Smith, cashier of the First National Bank, for $1,350. Mr. T. will build a residence on Ash street.

Sohler & Co. are moving the machinery from the old Ritchie flouring mill to their new flouring mills on the upper Sand Hill. They are rigging up a first-class flouring mill down there.

The St. Paul Globe, the Democratic oracle of the State, has heard the news from Maine—and don't like the color of it. It devotes only a few stickfuls to the returns and says "it wasn't much of a shower, after all.

The United States Land Office opened up for business on Wednesday, and now the whole force is on the jump trying to catch up with the volume of business that has accumulated during the past two months.

L. K. Aaker, the new Receiver, arrived on the noon train on Wednesday, and fifteen minutes thereafter business at the U. S. Land Office was opened up. This will be good news for the many who have been patiently and impatiently awaiting the re-opening for the transaction of important business.

Capt. Donaldson informs us that he shall leave out one-third of his immense wheat farm this fall to summer fallow next year. He says that his experience convinces him that this is the only proper way to raise wheat. He also intends to go into stock more extensively and diversify so that if wheat fails he will still have something to rely on. This is the course we have persistently urged for years, believing it to be the only safe one for both large and small farmers to pursue, and we are pleased to see that the idea is getting to become popular and is being more and more generally adopted. When it becomes universal, then will begin to dawn the era of true prosperity.

For the past week harvest hands have been in greater demand than before during this harvest and the result is that every available man is gobbled up at almost any price not exceeding $2.50. We believe the majority are taken at from $2 to $2.25 per day and board. Some farmers have been so anxious to secure help that they have offered as $2.50, evidently not stopping to think that on the present market for No. 1 hard that price is equivalent to over four bushels of wheat per day, besides the board—a price that no farmer can afford to pay. The cause for that rush is found in the fact that while many are stacking a great many are bound to thresh at any cost and this requires much extra help that would not be required if every farmer should stack. On the present outlook we should earnestly advise every farmer to stack his grain and let it go through the sweat. No farmer can afford to incur needless expense recklessly this fall, and the prospects are that if the crop is thrown upon the market in a body it will have a tendency to still further depress the [illegible] which is low enough now in all conscience. "Make haste slowly" is a [illegible] rule to follow this fall.

Judge D. Brower talks of going to California this winter.

Auditor McGuire returned from below this morning.

W. T. Bond left for a course in the Medical College at Des Moines on Tuesday night.

Swan Anderson started for a trip to Sweden on Friday night. He expects to be gone three months.

Mr. Dunlop, who was some years since a law partner with Ives & McLean of this city, is spending some time here bushwhacking chickens.

Hearing that Mr. W. H. Topping intended to go to Grand Forks to run a hotel there we put the question to him point blank. Mr. Topping said that while it was not definitely decided yet he expected to go, and should if nothing transpires to prevent it in a short time. We regret to lose so good and efficient a landlord as he has been and trust that he will strike a bonanza wherever he goes.

Mail agent Cherry brought over from Devils Lake, on Tuesday night, some onions that measured 16 inches in circumference and a cabbage head that weighs 35 pounds. Dave Williams says he has a cabbage head growing on his lot that will discount that at least one-third.

The St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., will have the price of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis posted every night at the depot so that everyone can see at night just what the prices for the day have been. This is a good idea and will be of value to farmers.

Our boys do affirm that we have an orator in this city who can just get right up onto a cracker-box in the middle of the street and knock the socks off'en Ben Butler's oratory in less'n a York minute. We don't want to make Judge Reynolds blush by telling who they allude at.

In the program of a musical entertainment being gotten up in Duluth, we see the name of Fred Reynolds prominently mentioned, showing that Fred retains some of his old habits yet. Where music and fun is the object the Duluthians might make a far worse selection than Fred, and we vouch for his share of that musical entertainment at any rate.

From our old friend, Mr. J. T. Beaudry, we learn that lightning played sad havoc in his neighborhood on the morning of the 5th. Mr. Alphonse Guillemette had a stable struck and burned, and a yoke of cattle killed by lightning, and a neighbor had a shock of grain, standing near a stack, struck and consumed. We are not informed whether Mr. G. had any insurance or not.

Agnes, only daughter of Mr. D. McLennan, of Angus, has gone to St. Joseph's academy at St. Paul. So says a correspondent from Angus, whose communication reached us too late for publication last week. That suggests the idea that we should like to see far more of these news letters from our friends in different towns, but in order to be available they must reach us not later than Wednesday night.

While there may be a disposition on the part of some to growl at the hard times and, perhaps, to imagine that this is the only country where such a state of things exist it may be well, perhaps to consider the fact that we are not as bad off as other States. From every State in the Union comes the cry, more or less intensified, so that if we are disposed to bewail our condition it may be consoling to reflect that others are worse off.

The party to Grand Forks on Tuesday night was a grand success, about 85 going from Crookston. They report a fine time and say that they were entertained in a princely manner by the hospitable inhabitants of the Forks. They were met by the Cornet Band at the Third street crossing in Grand Forks and escorted to the Rink, where an enjoyable time on skates was had, after which a dance followed, all of which was heartily enjoyed by the party and the best of good feeling prevailed throughout.

Gilbert Bang, son of T. H. Bang, seems to be peculiarly unfortunate. Last fall about a year ago he broke his leg and now he has broken it again in the same place. He has been at work for Mr. Draper and on Sunday last, after dark, Mr. D. started to go after the cows telling the boys to go to bed. Shortly after he started he heard screams and returning to the spot from whence they proceeded found young Bang on the ground with his leg broken. The boy had started to run after him, and in the darkness fell over a wagon-box with the result as related.

From the preliminary statement of the Commissioner of Statistics, just received, we learn that 1884 shows a gain of 215,831 acres of wheat. In 1883 the total acreage was 2,507,209, and in 1884, 2,723,040. The total number of bushels of wheat raised in the State in '83 is given as 36,042,752, making an average of 14.37 bushels per acre. The average yield per acre of other cereals for 1883 was: Corn 18,886,427 bushels; Oats 30,934,898 bushels; Barley 5,770,940 bushels, and the increase in acreage of 1884 is Oats 89,704 acres; Barley 18,660 acres. In 1883 Polk County raised 1,648,527 bushels of wheat on 115,873 acres, an average of 14.22 bushels per acre. She is reported to have 188,818 acres in wheat in 1884. In 1883 she raised 956,889 bushels of oats on 30,855 acres, an average of 31.50 bushels per acre. She is represented to have in oats this year 29,562 acres. Her barley crop for 1883 is reported at 270,212 bushels on 13,486 acres, being an average of 20.49 bushels per acre. She has [illegible] acres in barley this year. Of corn in 1883 she raised 741 bushels on 28 acres, an average of 26.46 bushels per acre. She has 61 acres of corn reported in 1884.

Mr. Ira Kidder, a former resident of city is up on a visit.

Herb Mason is in St. Paul and Minneapolis buying for the firm.

Mr. D. H. Beecher departed for St. Paul on Tuesday for a weeks visit.

Wm. Box took in the big Minneapolis fair. He returned with mayor Walsh on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Mix departed on Monday for an extended trip east, to be gone six or seven weeks.

A fine residence on Broadway for sale, enquire of H. W. Lewis. Office in JOURNAL building.

Maj. H. W. Donaldson, was in the city on Saturday last and made the JOURNAL a pleasant call.

V. D. Carruth started for Red Lake Falls on Tuesday to attend the teacher's examination at that place.

At the annual school meeting on Saturday evening John Moser was re-elected director and Wm. Anglim treasurer.

A. E. McManus has completed his term of school in District No. 61, at Mentor, and was enjoying city life in Crookston on Monday.

Mr. G. W. Lewis returned from Coldwater on Friday last where he had been to bury his brother. Mr. Lewis inherits quite a fortune.

Mr. I. B. Van Housen departed for his home in Steuben County, N. Y., on Monday morning. He will carry back a favorable report of this country.

P. A. Dufour showed us a splendid sample of wheat—his first crop, which he raised on his Dakota farm. He has it safely planted—in the Red River.

Prairie chickens are coming into the market very freely. J. E. Strader reports that he shot 86 one afternoon and it was not much of a chicken day either.

Pete Misgen was coining wealth by exhibiting La Chapelle's elk on the fair ground. He failed to hitch up said elks for a drive round the ring as per advertisement.

The young folks will give a social party at Ericsson's Hall on Friday evening in honor of Miss Cora Fontaine who is soon to depart for her school at St. Paul again.

Mr. Jacob Stambaugh was up from his farm on the Sand Hill on Tuesday. He has his grain all cut and mostly stacked. He does not expect a larger yield than last year.

Brick Pomeroy has a new paper—the United States Democrat, published in New York city. A copy of it just received convinces us that Brick is not dead yet whatever else.

C. Kretzschmar was in the city on Tuesday looking as smiling as though his hotel at the new townsite on Thief River had not blown down. The work of rebuilding is going rapidly forward.

The boys have nearly all returned from the big Minneapolis fair which was not so big an affair as it has been in some of the years past. They report that La Chapelle's elks and Ben Butler were the greatest attractions on the ground.

A. J. Hamery and M. W. Jonson were up from Garden on Saturday. They report harvesting all done and farmers busy plowing and threshing. Mr. H. has threshed his wheat and will haul it to Crookston, as he says that he can do better here than at Beltrami.

Bro. Rothpletz, of the Messenger made us a pleasant call on Saturday last, enroute home from the Democratic conference in St. Paul and the Minneapolis fair. By the way he is putting on great style—boasts of having the finest trotter in the business, an animal that won't eat dirt from no common stepper.

Dr. A. Nelson, of Garfield, is building up a good reputation as a physician and surgeon in the country round about. Very frequently we hear him very highly spoken of by parties who have had his services and we are glad to find that his genial social qualities are supplemented by his skill and success as a physician and surgeon. Success to you, Doc.

Emerson International: A pleasant party was given at the Carney House on Monday evening in honor of Mrs. W. J. Suffell, Miss Suffell and Mrs. Johnson, who are about to depart for Crookston, where Messrs. Suffell and Johnson have opened a store. The ladies will leave this evening for their new home. Mrs. Suffell is one of the pioneer ladies of Emerson, and will be much missed from church and social circles.

P. A. Dufour was over to his farm, in Dakota last week attending to his threshing. He loaded his wheat on a barge and took a receipt therefor and on Monday, after his arrival home, he received a telegram saying that the barge was sinking fast, so that the wheat is not liable to help to glut the market to an alarming extent. As he has his receipt from the Pillsbury & Hurlbut Elevator Co., P. A. will not have to lose the wheat.

D. Z. Horton was in from Maple Lake on Monday. He reports that Warren Godfrey, while chopping recently, had the misfortune to cut the toes all off one foot, or so nearly, that they had to be taken off. Having no surgeon handy his eldest boy acted in that capacity and did the business up in good shape. D. Z. says some nimrods from Crookston shot a valuable rooster for him on Sunday, and as he knows who did it he intends to interview the party.

ANNUAL REPORT

On the financial condition of the graded school in Independent District No. 1, county of Polk, by the Secretary of the Board of Education to the County Superintendent of Schools:

FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

Dr.
Cash on hand beginning of the year	$ 5125 64
Received from one mill tax,	856 57
Received from special taxes,	13103 36
Received from bonds sold	15000 00
State Apportionment	937 06
Total	34022 63
Cr.
Paid for teachers wages	$ 3631 00
Paid for junitor's wages	462 33
Paid for wood, supplies and coal	748 70
Paid for school supplies	121 65
Paid for repairs and improving grounds	3016 66
Paid for new school houses	14984 50
Paid for new furniture and freight	836 79
Paid for site	800 00
Paid for stoves and hardware	487 78
Paid for paying bonds or interest	2021 05
Paid for insurance	383 75
Paip for clerk salary	100 00
Cash on hand end of year	6428 42
Total	$34022 63
Value of new school house	$19000 00
Vslue of new school housas and sites	45000 00
Valve of desks and seats	1500 00
Value of apparatus	50 00
Indebtedness	23000 00

Correct and agrees with Treasurer's books.
WM. ROSS, Treasurer.

Names of Board of Education:
J. G. MCGREW, Secretary.
M. R. BROWN.

PUSH THE PLOW!

The weather so far this week has been better for plowing than anything else and thousands of farmers have improved it. Every minute that cannot be used in the harvest field can be put in to good advantage at the plow, and he is a wise man who so uses it.

Notice to Physicians.

Sealed bids will be received from physicians until the 1st day of October next, for furnishing medicines and medical attendance (including surgery) to the poor residing within the boundaries of the Third Commissioners District for the year ending October 1st 1885.

By order of the Board of County Commissioners of Polk County.

P. J. MCGUIRE,
[20-21] Clerk.

Eye, Ear and Deformities.

Dr. T. J. Eaton, of the Surgical Infirmary, of Indianapolis, Indiana, will visit Crookston professionally Wednesday and Thursday, September 24th and 25th. Rooms at principal hotel. Dr. Eaton has for the past twenty-five years made a specialty of the treatment of the eye, ear and deformities. Cross-eyes straightened in a few seconds, with but little pain. Artificial eyes inserted, and the most efficient braces furnished for the treatment of deformities. [20-21]

For Rent.

To a small family, a part of my house on Broadway. Inquire at the JOURNAL office.

DR. G. A. CABLE.

Found.

A black and white bird dog. Inquire of A. H. at the round house.

To Rent.

A good house containing ten rooms, located in the center of the city. Good cellar, well and stables. Inquire of H. W. Lewis.

For Sale Cheap.

A complete set of bar fixtures. Call on August Wentzel for particulars.
[19-tf]

The United States Internal Revenue Special Tax is due May 1st. Any information and a full line of blanks can be had by calling on or addressing.

JOHN MCLEAN,
Attorney at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

PIANO TUNING.

Any parties having pianos or organs that need tuning or repairing can have their work satisfactorily done by leaving orders at the Linton House. Satisfaction guaranteed.

[9-tf] E. F. WHEELDEN.

John Knuppe.

General Agent in the Red River Valley of the Netherlands American Land Company of Amsterdam, Holland.

Money to loan on good real estate security, on time to suit the borrower. Office over Merchant's Bank. [1-tf]

LIST OF LETTERS

Remaining uncalled for in the Crookston Post Office, for the week ending September 8th, 1884. Persons calling for these letters will please say "advertised."

Absalauson, Andrew
Anderson, Martha
Anderson, Cornela M
Arsynil, Madame
Alberg, Edward
Bell, Frank
Chaplein, Phillimore
Crooks, Frank
Canguy, Samuel T
Erikson, Maria
Germain, Ambroise
Grotre, Andrew
Halvorson, H
[illegible], Elenore
Hebert, Pete
Holl, A G
Johnson, Charles A
Lasture, Will H
Menson, Andrew
Messick, Geo.
Messedalen, Peder
Nielson, Maria
Oldne, Johnson John
Oefstor, C P
Oldne, John Johnson
Peterson, Carrie M
Phillips, H
Raid, Maria
Ridie, Fred
Rush, Pete
Sugget, K A
Bojebake, J
Soper, Honey
Spencer, S F
Stenberg, Betsy H
Selferke, John
Tallada, Fred
Tolostad, Mathias J
Vildaasen, Jorger
Woodford, F E

D. JACOBUS, P. M.

DR. M. WATTS,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
OFFICE ON ROBERT STREET.
Professional calls by day or night attended to with promptness.

MERCHANTS' HOTEL,
J. E. MIXTON, Proprietor,
CORNER BROADWAY AND ROBERT STREET,
CROOKSTON, MINN.
The new Merchants' Hotel, recently re-fitted and re-furnished is now ready to accommodate the traveling public, who are cordially invited to stop at the Merchants', when in the city.

CHANGE IS THE ORDER OF THE DAY!

POTTER & GEORGE
— SUCCEED BEECHER & GEORGE OF —
MEDICAL HALL.

The reputation of the old firm will be kept up for good goods and moderate prices. Don't forget us.

POTTER & GEORGE,
Proprietors of Medical Hall.

E. D. CHILDS & CO.,
Proprietors of
CARMAN TOWNSITE,
AND
Dealers in Real Estate!

Why Don't You wait?

Wait till Crookston has ten thousand people. Three years!

Wait till Crookston is the largest and most important manufacturing town in the Northwest. Two years!

Wait till Crookston has two more large saw mills, and is cutting 75,000,000 feet a season. One year!

Wait till lots in SOUTH CROOKSTON are selling for twice their present valuation (six months) and THEN purchase

South Crookston Property.

But if you have time, just drop in and have a chat with

STEENERSON & MCMANUS, Broadway.
JOHN IVES & SON, Broadway.
PALMER & BOND, Robert Street.
CROOKSTON IMPROVEMENT CO., Main Street.

Crookston City Bakery,
Peter Lorge, Prop.,
Keeps constantly on hand a full line of all goods usually found in a
First-Class Bakery.
Cigars and Tobacco, Nuts, Fruits, Candies; Pies, Cakes, Bread,
And everything to fill out a hungry man, constantly on hand.

MONEY!	LAND!
$100,000	20,000
To Loan.	Acres of Land for Sale.

BRING IN YOUR PROPERTY
AND IT WILL BE SOLD.
Law and insurance, Collections Made,
CITY LOTS FOR SALE!
Houses, Rooms and Farms to Rent.
U. S. LAND OFFICE
Business promptly attended to.
CONTEST CASES A SPECIALTY,
Office Corner Broadway and Robert Street,
PALMER & BOND.

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP.
M. RAUENBUEHLER, Proprietor,
CORNER OAK AND THIRD STS., CROOKSTON MINN
Is ready for the Spring trade with a full supply of Work and Light Harness, Single and Double, Saddles, Bridles, Whips, Blankets, etc. Give me a call before you purchase.

MERCHANTS' BILLIARD HALL,
FRED ANDERSON, Proprietor.
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA
The choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

Tom Morris,
—THE—
CITY
JEWELER
Represents the
CELEBRATED
Rockford Quick Train
WATCH
THE ONLY
Railroad
Watch
IN EXISTENCE.

Crookston Nurseries
ESTABLISHED IN 1879.

Tree Claim Stock.

I desire to inform my customers and others that I shall make a great reduction from former prices on forest trees and seeds for tree-claims. I have good thrifty two year old trees, such as Box Elder, Ash and Cottonwood to sell by the thousand. I also furnish the hardier varieties of

SMALL FRUITS,

Such as Currants, Gooseberries, Raspberries and Strawberry plants, and young, thrifty Transcendent and Hislop Crab Apple trees. The firm of Heseltine Bros. having dissolved, I still continue business on the

—OLD NURSERY GROUNDS—

in Crookston. Hoping by fair dealing and promptness with my customers to merit their patronage.

Don't fail to write for Catalogue and Prices.

☞ ALL COMMUNICATIONS PROMPTLY ANSWERED.

F. T. HASELTINE,
Proprietor of the Crookston Nurseries, Crookston, Minn.

JOHN LEO. H. STEENERSON.
LEO & STEENERSON.
ATTORNEYS AT LAW
Room 3., U. S. Land Office Building,
CROOKSTON. MINNESOTA.

WANTED!
5,000 Men, Women and Children
—TO VISIT—
HACK & GALLASCH'
General Store, where you can buy

13 lbs. Pure Sugar for	$1.00
12 lbs. Turkish Prunes for	1.00
5 three lb. cans Table Peaches for	1.00
Japan Tea from	20 to 60 cts per lb
1 long bar of soap and 1 towel, all for	25c

Our stock of
DRY GOODS, NOTIONS,
AND DRESS GOODS IS COMPLETE.
Don't fail to visit our Shoe and Slipper department before buying elsewhere New and complete stock of Groceries Crockery, Glassware, Flour and Feed.
☞ We pay the highest market price for Butter, Eggs, Snake Root, Etc.
Call and see us. NO TROUBLE TO SHOW GOODS.
Cor. Main and Second Street,
CROOKSTON, MINN

Bigham & Olafson
(Successors to Juve & Bergland,)
THE POPULAR MERCHANTS ON
MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON
Have on hand and are constantly receiving full lines of
DRY GOODS, GROCERIES,
CROCKERY,
CLOTHING,
BOOTS AND SHOES,
HATS AND CAPS
In fact everything usually found in a first-class general store.
☞ Our goods are bought with great care and will be sold at
LOW PRICES
☞ FOR CASH. ☜

NEW LIVERY,
Feed and Sale
STABLES,
CORNER MAIN AND FOURTH STS.,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA
TERRY & COLLINS, Prop's.
☞ Good Turnouts at all times at reasonable prices. Good Hearse and careful driver when needed.

HIS LITTLE RUSTIC.

BY ELLA WHEELER.

The situation was romantic.

He was leaning over a rail fence, wiping his brow with a somewhat soiled but very handsome handkerchief, when he discovered her.

She was kneeling in the grass a little way off, hunting for wild strawberries, which she dropped into a partially filled tin pail.

Her sun-bonnet had fallen back, and now revealed a very flushed face and a tumbled mass of brown hair.

He thought her profile very pretty, and her wrist, as it was disclosed below her print sleeve, shapely and white. He wished she would look up, as he was growing curious concerning the color of her eyes. He felt sure they were brown.

Just at this moment a whirr of wings caused him to turn his eyes in another direction, and he saw a covey of wild prairie hens just settling upon an angle of the fence in near range. He lifted his gun quickly to his shoulder, took aim and fired.

The birds all flew away unharmed. But the girl in the grass gave a little shriek, and sprang up so hastily she tipped her pail of berries over, and they all disappeared in the long, tangled grass.

"Oh, how provoking!" she cried, in a tone of real vexation, as she looked down at her empty pail.

"Allow me to help you pick them up," said our hero, gallantly, as he sprang over the fence with an easy bound, and bent to his task as lightly as if he had always picked berries from tangled grass for a livelihood, instead of attending to the foreign business of one of the largest commercial houses in the world. He picked away in silence for fully five minutes without looking up.

It was now the young lady's opportunity for inspection. She saw a medium-sized, strongly built figure, clothed in a hunting-suit, evidently new; a head of closely cropped hair, suspiciously near baldness upon the crown; a peculiarly pallid complexion; a very handsome moustache, well-waxed and glossy, and, as he lifted them, just then two very liquid and languid blue eyes.

"Yes, they are brown," he said, mentally, as he met her glance. Aloud: "I think your pail is quite as full as it was before mademoiselle. I shall take pleasure in assisting you to completely fill it if you will allow."

And his glance and smile, and the perfect modulation of his voice, was as delightful to Lisle Ashley as it had been to a score—nay, to a hundred—women before her.

"I—I thank you," she stammered; "but I have enough for tea now, and it is late, and I must go."

"But you have not enough for tea if I take tea with you," said our hero, with a respectful demeanor, which was one of Richard Westbrook's most taking qualities with the ladies.

If a man's manner, glance and tone are only respectful and deferential, nothing pleases a woman more than a certain amount of boldness in his words and actions.

"You see," he continued, in answer to her look of surprise, "I am lost. I left a party of friends this forenoon, and wandered through the woods in search of game, until I am completely bewildered. They have the lunch basket. You are the first human being I have seen in hours, and I have dined on a few berries. I must have supper soon or perish. I have no idea how far I am from Benton station, where I was to join my friends at 7 o'clock. And now it is 5."

"Oh, said Lisle, looking very sympathetic indeed, "you are to be pitied. You are five miles from Benton station, and you must be hungry, I know. Well, well, you may go home with me—it is just half a mile from here. And Ruth will have supper ready, I know and you will be welcome. And the hired man is going to Benton Falls this evening. You can ride with him."

"But my train goes at 7."

"Well, there is another at 9. And Joel may go early enough to get up there for the 7 o'clock train. I will help him with the cows so he can get off."

Richard glanced down at the slender hands and wrists.

"You milk cows? Impossible!" he said.

"Oh, I do not make a business of it," Lisle answered calmly; "but I can do it when occasion requires. I would not be a thoroughly genuine country girl if I could not. Now here is a fence to climb. Will you please go first and then help me over?"

"I thought country girls always leaped the fence," said Richard, as he sprang lightly over, and gave her his hand.

"They can do it but they do not always display their agility on every occasion," Lisle retorted, as she stepped to the ground at his side. "There is Uncle William's house—that red one over yonder. And the white cloth is hanging out of the attic window to tell the men in the hay-field that supper will be ready as soon as they can get down to the house."

"How delightfully primitive life is out here!" mused Richard. "I feel as if I was in another world from the one I left this morning."

"You are from Lake Resort, I suppose?

"Yes. I have been there a week; my home is in Albany, New York. I was induced to come to Lake Resort on account of the fish and game in neighboring localities. But I came out here this morning and have tramped all day and never shot a bird."

"You have tried though," said Lisle, mischievously. "But here we are now; please take a seat on the veranda in the shade while I tell Aunt Ruth we have company to tea and help her pick over the berries."

"What a charming, fresh, unspoiled child of nature she is!" thought Richard as she disappeared. "Sweet eyes and mouth and a pretty figure, and so simple and unaffected. Ah! that is what attracts a man after he is worn out with the artifices of the world and disgusted with the shams of society. What an ideal life one could lead here with such a companion as that, far from all the din and turmoil and strife of the world."

"Tea is ready, sir," a very sweet voice announced; "walk this way if you please. I suppose you would like to wash your face and hands, perhaps. You may step into auntie's room at the left here."

How pretty and restful and homelike the rooms were; how dreamily the sound of the "mowers" came in through the open window; how motherly Aunt Ruth appeared in her big apron, as she greeted him with cordial simplicity, touched with a slight awe of his city origin; how charming the table appeared to his hungry eyes, with its healthy country fare!

"You had better sit right down—you and Lisle," said Aunt Ruth. "Joel will be gettin' off to town now, about 6, he says, if it'll accommodate you any, and the men'll be here in a few minutes, so it'll be pleasanter for you to have your tea before they come."

And Richard sat down to a tete-a-tete tea with Lisle, in her print gown and with her slightly sunburned face, guiltless of powder, and enjoyed it more than any stately dinner which he ever attended, where ladies lured him with beautiful faces and sumptuous costumes and glittering jewels.

Then in came Uncle William, with his loud voice and his burly frame, to break the spell, and half a dozen red-faced and perspiring farm hands with him.

"Storm coming up from the nor'west," he said. "Guess my hay'll catch it, but I've only a half-day's mowing down. All the rest up in snug stacks at noon. Neighbor Brown has three acres lying yet. I'm lucky for once. Whew! there comes the thunder! A regular night of it, I guess we'll have."

So it proved Joel could not go to "town," as the little station five miles distant was designated, and the night set in storming furiously.

Richard, not at all reluctantly, accepted the cordial invitation to remain until morning. A train went to Lake Resort at 6, but as at that hour it still rained, he turned over upon his comfortable couch and concluded to wait until evening.

He was in no haste to leave Lisle Ashley's sweet presence.

He idled away the day in a delicious fashion. Lisle sat over a great basket mending, while he read loud, or talked to her in his rich, thrilling voice of foreign lands and people.

"How well she listens. So few people possess that accomplishment, too," he thought, and he found she had read a great deal and been several years at school in a distant city.

When he went away that evening he asked her if he might send her some nice books to read.

"I have stacks of them," he said, "which it seems selfish in me to keep in trunks now I have read them. You might as well enjoy them, and I would feel then that I was doing something toward a return for all your kindness."

So he sent the books, and a note with them, of course; and of course Lisle replied, and letters followed for several weeks. And then he ran down to Benton station to pass Sunday at "Uncle William's" farm.

After that he came down every week or two until October. They read, and talked, and walked and drove together, and it was all Heaven to Lisle and a veritable Eden to Richard. He was deeply in love with the girl's innocence, sweetness and unaffected good sense.

He was facinated with the repose and calm of this quiet retreat, so unlike the rest of his whole life. He felt as if he could live and die a happy and contented man with Lisle his only companion if he could remain here.

But the world, his business duties, lay elsewhere—in a world of commerce and fashion—and he did not ask Lisle to share that world with him.

He went back to Albany in October without having committed himself, yet knowing that he loved and was beloved by Lisle.

All his happiness he found in her letters. Other women seemed false and fictitious when compared to her.

Still he could never think of her in those circles where he had been reared. Her simple grace and unaffected manner would seem like a lack of polish there. She would be cruelly criticised; and how would she ever manage a train?

Ah, no! he did not feel equal to the occasion, and yet he was wretched without her.

He wrote her tender letters full of love and respect; and he called her the star of his life and the light of his heart; he spoke with eagerness of their next meeting—at holiday season; but he never intimated a desire or intention to have her with him in his Eastern home.

As for Lisle, she poured out her heart to him—all its wild sorrow, terrible loneliness and sweet affection thrilled through her written words.

Her words were a source of mingled delight and despair to him. To be loved by so charming a creature was the most exquisite happiness; yet his heart was tender, and he could not bear to give her pain. He could only pray time to fly that he might seek her presence.

He passed the holidays with her. In her neat cashmere dress and with the sunburn all bleached away, she was prettier than when he parted with her. And before a blazing wood fire they passed delightful hours with books and each other.

Ah, yes, it was a beautiful dream. But would it not become a painful reality if he transplanted her from her native soil?

She was sweet rather than handsome; she listened rather than conversed; she was simple and unassuming rather than picturesque in attire. She would not be at home in his world; and constrained Aunt Ruth and loud Uncle William, would they not be a laughing stock for all his circle?

Yet how could he leave her again? Still, he did leave her, with only "be true to me, little sweetheart; I shall come again in a few weeks," as a promise asked or given, or a hope to lighten the dark gloom for Lisle.

He felt unhappy and miserable as soon as he left her. Yet he would go again soon.

It was, after all, very delicious to have such a sweetheart hidden away in a sly nook where no one knew her—where their wooings were as sacred and as free from gossip as the twittering of the birds in a leafy forest.

Would it not be cruel to drag her out before the cold-eyed criticism and vulgar comment of merciless dissection?

He half dreaded opening her first letter after his return. He felt sure it was one agonized cry of loneliness and despair.

Yet he was conscious of a keener sense of disappointment than of relief when he found it was, instead, a very pleasant, friendly letter, relating occurrences at home, books she had read, and her ideas of them, with a polite reference to the pleasure his visit had given her.

Not a letter he could find fault with, yet not a satisfactory letter at all.

In his reply there was perhaps more ardor and warmth than ever before. It was a long time before he received a reply to this—so long that he grew almost desperate with suspense.

Then there came a brief letter telling him that she was about to start to New York city on a visit to an old schoolmate.

"She went abroad two years ago and made a somewhat romantic marriage a year later," Lisle wrote. "She has since returned, and has all winter been urging me to visit her. I hope you will find time to run up and call while I am there."

Richard laid down the letter with almost a chill at his heart.

His sweetheart in New York! And she "hoped he would call!" Why had she not allowed him to escort her through her long journey! Was it not his right? Why did she treat him in this distant manner?

He went to New York before she had been there two days and called; but she was not at home.

She was the guest of people of wealth and fashion, he judged by appearances. And again an uncomfortable query rose in his mind: How would she appear in this new element? He had an opportunity to judge of this ere many days passed.

On his return, disappointed and unhappy, that evening, he found a handsomely engraved card awaiting him, asking his presence at No. 1280 to a reception given in honor of Miss Lisle Ashley.

He did not make any attempt to see her before that evening. Somehow a sudden barrier had arisen between him and the idol of his dreams, which rendered him slightly afraid of her.

It was with a great deal of trepidation and many fears that he presented himself on the evening appointed at No. 1280.

When he entered—he was late—he found himself in the midst of a brilliant circle of society people—many of them his intimate acquaintances.

And presently he descried the object of his search across the hall, conversing easily with Senator Romain, the most intellectual man of his circle.

Yet, it was Lisle. She was dressed in a beautiful trailing garment of rich material, which fitted her round figure perfectly, disclosing her lovely throat and bare arms. She wielded a handsome fan with skilled grace, and charmed the brilliant senator with her accomplished art of listening, as well as with her bright repartee.

Just as Richard approached her, her hostess advanced from an opposite direction, and without seeing him, or not conscious that he had not yet paid his respects to her guest, bore her off to some new suppliant for her favor.

It was half an hour before Richard found an opportunity to reach her side. Then he had only time to give her the formal greetings of the evening, to hold her gloved hand one moment, to meet her calm, sweet gaze with reproving, searching eyes before she was again called away.

She was a social success, and became immensely popular.

"So naive, so bright, so simple and childlike, so cute," were a few of the expressions Richard heard applied to her, as the evening wore on.

"A wild rose in a hot-house atmosphere," he thought. "How long before she will lose her sweetness and freshness, I wonder. Ah, how lovely she is! I never dreamed she could be so lovely. And yet I would rather see her in her print gown. How dare these people discuss her so, my own wild rose—my love!"

His eyes followed her wherever she moved. Such easy grace, such an unconscious air of her own loveliness, such fine conversational abilities as she possessed. Senator Romain was heard to say that she was one of the most thoroughly charming women he ever met.

And she was one of the loveliest, it seemed to Richard. Her fashionable coiffure, her elegant toilet, the touch of powder on her complexion, completely transformed the pretty rustic to a beautiful belle.

Richard's heart swelled with pride and pain. Why had he been so tardy? Why was she not his acknowledged fiancee now? Why, indeed!

He had no opportunity to see her alone that evening. But on taking his leave he asked if he might call the following afternoon.

"Yes, she would be charmed to see him."

He called at the appointed hour, to find Senator Romain just before him, and two other callers came later.

She entertained all graciously, but Richard left without a tete-a-tete.

He was obliged to return to Albany that evening, and business detained him there several days. When he returned again he found her gone out for a drive with Senator Romain.

Mrs. Metcalf, her hostess, entertained him with a maddening account of the brilliant senator's devotion.

"Such a success as dear Lisle has made at once." "I am quite charmed, though I expected it. Demure and unassuming, and simple as she was at the academy receptions, Lisle was always a belle. She would look absolutely plain some days in her quiet dress and with her still ways, and in the evening she would astonish us all by her exquisite toilets and brilliant manners. The society youths and the staid old intellectual professors were equally wild over her. I always thought she would make a brilliant marriage. I have been urging her for a year to come to New York but she was fascinated some way with that lonely country nook where her uncle resides. I am so glad I dragged her out of it, and what a handsome couple she and Senator Romain do make. Everybody speaks of it."

He hard thought that he would go mad before he got away. Would that woman ever cease talking.

But how amazed he was to find that the little rustic, whom he had feared to present to his circle of fashionable friends, was a belle who had always been able to shine in society.

He went home and wrote her a very humble little note, asking her to be kind enough to appoint an hour when she would be at liberty to see him "without her satellites."

He received a pleasant reply by return post, stating the hour when she would be at liberty and "pleased to see her old friend."

He kissed the little note as rapturously as Lisle ever could have caressed his letters in her lonely days upon the farm.

Yet, when he called it was a very stately young lady who greeted him, with Mrs. Metcalf at her side; and Mrs. Metcalf never left the room for one moment.

Lisle was cordial and gracious, yet Richard felt as if a thousand miles lay between him and this girl, whose charm and sweetness and worth he had been conscious of for many months, but whose entire suitability for the station of his wife he had doubted, or at least, had questioned.

And now he would have given half his life to know that he could win her.

Had he lost forever the golden oppotunity for perfect happiness by his tardiness and blindness and stupidity?

So it seemed. His efforts to see her alone proved unavailing. Some one was always present when he called. Sometimes Senator Romain, always Mrs. Metcalf.

"Has your hostess constituted herself a body-guard of one to protect you?" he asked, in an ungracious aside, one day, when he was thoroughly irritated by that lady's seeming unconsciousness of his restless, eager manner.

Lisle looked at him with questioning surprise and disapproval.

"I desired Mrs. Metcalf to assist me in entertaining all my callers," she said.

"You were not always so conventional," he retorted; "and I see no need of it now."

Her face flushed slowly.

"Customs in country farmhouses do not correspond with those in conventional society, you know," she replied. "Besides, I regret having disobeyed the strict demands of custom heretofore, and shall strive to make amends in the future."

And then she asked Richard if he had seen the new painting Mrs. Metcalf had just purchased, and so changed the conversation. He left her, wondering if he was the victim of some strange nightmare, or if this reserved and conventional young belle, of whom he stood in such fear, was one and the same with the sweet girl whom he had seen picking wild berries a few months before, and whose tender, heart-broken letters used to bring the tears to his eyes in pity of himself now.

He heard rumors of her engagement to Senator Romain as the days wore on, and he made up his mind to go abroad and to go without trying to see her again.

He could not bear the confirmation from her own lips of the report, and yet he should feel compelled to refer to it if he saw her.

So he wrote her his farewell. This was his letter:

> Lisle—I am going abroad in a few days for a prolonged stay. I shall not see you again before leaving. My meetings with you are too painful when contrasted with past interviews. And now that I hear the current report of your betrothal to Senator Romain, I do not feel brave enough even to see you to say good bye. I do not blame you, dear, for the very heroic treatment you have administered to me. I have been weak—almost cowardly—in some respects; no wonder if you are disgusted with me. Yet, now in this, the last letter I shall ever write you, I want to tell you I have given you the one great, true love of my life time, and that if I thought I could win you for my wife, I would be willing to serve seven years—yea, twice seven, like he of old. But I know I have "sinned away the day of grace," and a better man has won you. May God bless you both! I have in my possession a package of letters, I think you would like returned. Be kind enough to state what address, and just when they had best be sent. So large a parcel may excite comment if sent to you at Mrs. Metcalf's. I will send or leave them, carefully sealed, at any place you designate. And now, again, God bless you, and good-bye!
>
> Richard Westbrook.

Twenty-four hours later he received a tiny note addressed by Lisle's hand. His heart grew faint as he broke the seal.

How could he endure to read the formal words he knew it must contain, after the warm sweetness and tenderness of her former letters!

How could he go through the task of sealing and returning those precious missives to their author, who might have been his wife if he had not been a fool and a knave!

He drew out the tinted sheet from its sheath and read:

> RICHARD—If you can return the heart which has been yours since the hour we met, then return the letters also. Otherwise, keep both.
>
> LISLE.

He covered his face with his hands.

"Thank God! Thank God!" he almost sobbed.

When he went abroad a few months later, Lisle went with him—his wife.

Personal Gossip.

Professor J. Bruce Halstead, of Princeton College, is going to the University of Texas, where he has been offered the Senior Professorship of Mathematics, with a salary of $4,000 a year.

The Rajah Mansour from the Straits settlements, who was recently presented to the Prince of Wales, expressed himself thus concerning the heir apparent of the British crown: "He is a nice chap, stands straight up, and bows and smiles."

Labouchere, in London Truth, says Queen Victoria has made a new will. She has plenty of money to give away. Prince Albert, her husband, left at least $3,000,000. A miser named Nelson bequeathed to her majesty $2,500,000, and all her life she has been saving the greater part of her annual income.

The leader of the reported insurrection in Mexico, Marcia Iglesias, is the old rival of General Diaz, who, on the retirement of Lerdo de Tejado in 1876, took up arms as his successor. He was defeated by Diaz early in 1877. This victory of Diaz led to his election as president in February, 1877, and his party has been in power ever since.

A dispatch from Berlin states that Abbe Franz Liszt, the famous pianist, has become blind at Bayreuth. It is stated that the cause of his blindness is smoking and brandy. It is said he consumes daily a frightful quantity of liquor, and often falls asleep in the theater. He has broken off with the Princess Wischtenstein, who has become a devotee. Abbe Liszt will retire to Weimar and end his days there.

Mrs. Wilbur Fisk, widow of Rev. Wilbur Fisk, who was the first President of Wesleyan University, died recently in Middletown, Ct. She was 89 years and 10 months old, and her death was due to old age. Her husband died in 1839. The property which she has occupied so many years now reverts to Wesleyan University; she had the privilege of occupying it as long as she lived.

That Indian agent with the esthetic name or McGillicuddy, is in trouble again. Chief Red Cloud openly calls him a liar, and accuses him of a great deal of wickedness.

Social circles of the Russian capital are exercised over the dismissal from the military service of a popular young noble. He did not resign under questionable circumstances, but was actually discharged, and his name has been stricken from the list of aides-de-camp. Nothing positive is known, although the prevalent opinion is that the young man's harsh sentence is due to his confirmed habit of gambling. Our national authorities might follow the example of the Muscovites.

Count Munster, German Ambassador to England, will soon publish an elaborate manual on cookery. [illegible]

Winnipeggers Bound for the Nile.

Winnipeg, Man., Special.—Col. Kennedy yesterday received a cablegram from Lord Wolseley, asking him to procure a birch bark canoe for him similar to the one he used during the Red River expedition. Lord Wolseley wants a boat for his own use during the trip up the Nile. Col. Kennedy at once sent for Superintendent McCall, of the Indian department and purchased a canoe from him, which Mr. McCall recommended as the best procurable. It is a six-fathom one, and will carry easily six men and baggage. It will be here to-morrow, to be ready to go with the expedition, which leaves on Saturday for the East. Fifty-three men in all are going. Col. Kennedy goes as far as Montreal, and as he has been offered a position on Lord Wolseley's staff, will doubtless go to Egypt. The men will be divided into three classes. One-third of them will be from the St. Peter's Indian reserve, and are experienced voyageurs. The remainder are men who have spent years as raftsmen, together with a sprinkling of young men who have had considerable experience canoeing and roughing it in surveys.

Emperor William's Feebleness.

A grand review of German troops took place at Pottsdam Tuesday, in celebration of the fourteenth anniversary of the surrender of the French at Sedan. Emperor William appeared on horseback to review the troops, but was overcome with fatigue when the parade was about half concluded. He struggled to maintain an erect position, but it was evident to the officers of his staff that he was in great distress. At their solicitation he consented to dismount and to enter an open carriage, from which he viewed the rest of the evolutions. The incident made a great impression upon all who witnessed it. It was evident that the aged emperor was really ill, and that even he realized that the final breaking up of his strength, which has so long been feared, is now inevitable and is close at hand. The exercises ended dismally amid undisguised evidences of emotion on the part of both soldiers and spectators. The festivities that were to have been given in the evening in honor of the emperor's visit have been indefinitely postponed.

SNUFFED AND SWALLOWED.

Gargled or Applied—Never Used Without Relief.

Mrs. E. T. Sykes, 80 Chestnut street, Springfield, Ohio, "suffering," she says, "perfect torture with pain and soreness through back and chest," and her husband troubled with a dry, hoarse cough (both cured by this Oil) make particular mention of its "soothing and healing effects."

Charles Reed, 354 Jackson street, Milwaukee, Wis., who was in the explosion at the Grand Opera House in that city, January 18, 1883, speaks of it as "a very reliable and a very safe medicine." He sustained painful injuries in this accident. With the use of the Oil he was able to get out in a few days.

Rev. E. F. Crane, Dunkirk, N. Y., speaks in glowing terms of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil as a remedy for catarrh and says, "notwithstanding the delicate nature of the mucuous membrane of the nasal organs the Oil can be snuffed up with perfect impunity."

There is no doubt about its absolute safety.

Rough on the Lords.

Chamberlain, a member of the British cabinet, at the recent popular demonstration in Birmingham reviewed the past of the house of lords in this spirited fashion:

The house of lords courts investigation into its past history. Investigation it should have—[cheers and a voice "They won't stand much"] and speaking of it, so far as regards the majority which dictates its policy, for I admit that there is a minority of able, distinguished and patriotic men in that assembly. [Hear, hear.] But speaking of what the majority have made it, I say it is a stronghold, and always has been, of Tory prejudice and Tory obstruction. [Hear, hear.] During the last hundred years it has never contributed one iota to popular liberties or popular freedom. [Hear, hear.] It has never done anything to advance the common weal, and during that time it has protected every abuse and sheltered every privilege. [Hear, hear.] It has denied justice and delayed reform. [Hear hear.] It is irresponsible without independence, obstinate without courage—[laughter and cheers]—arbitrary—without judgment, and arrogant without knowledge—[cheers]—and now it has deliberately challenged the verdict of the people. In contempt of the house of commons, and in defiance of the popular opinion which it represents, this mechanical majority of a Tory caucus—[laughter and cheers]—stands between two millions of the people and the possession of their political rights. [Shame.]

Walking from New York to Dakota.

Clinton, Wis., Herald: Clinton had quite a curiosity yesterday, it being nothing less than a man, wife and three children, who left New York city last May and had since walked thus far, being on their way to Dakota. Their household goods they had loaded in a two-wheeled cart, which they had drawn the entire distance, and which needed repairing at this point. The man thought that this far West was a little dangerous and so bought a revolver to protect himself. The children's ages were nine, seven and four years. The youngest had been drawn in the cart a portion of the time, but the balance of them had walked every step of the way.

Mr. Browning is in Switzerland, revising the proofs of his new volume.

In the Shade.

Hon. R. G. Payne, City Alderman, Brisbane, Queensland, Australia, writes: "I have been a great sufferer with rheumatism for years and have tried every known remedy, including galvanic batteries and Turkish Baths. Finally I tried St. Jacob's Oil the great pain-cure and can positively say in gave me instantaneous relief. It puts all other remedies in the shade."

Story of the Demented Editor.

Not more than a dozen people in Chicago ever knew Wilbur F. Storey intimately. No wonder he lost his mind. He did enough to kill a dozen men. For years he was the editor-in-chief, managing editor and night editor of the Times. He never had any words of approval. If things were satisfactory he said nothing. One day when the Times had about a dozen big "scoops" on its contemporaries, the editor summoned the heads of departments to his room and said it was "simply damnable" that the paper had been "left" on the evening proceedings of a grange convention somewhere. "D—— such a paper," said the old man impatiently, "if we can't do better than that I'll buy a farm."

The examination of Pease, the New York fruit importer, charged with forgery, is set for next Wednesday. He was remanded to jail.

There Shall be no Alps.

When Napoleon talked of invading Italy one of his officers said: "But, sire, remember the Alps." To an ordinary man these would have seemed simply insurmountable, but Napoleon responded eagerly: "There shall be no Alps." So the famous Simplon pass was made. Disease like a mountain stands, in the way of fame, fortune and honor to many, who by Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" might be healed and so the mountain would disappear. It is specific for all blood, chronic lung and liver diseases, such as consumption (which is scrofula of the lungs,) pimples, blotches, eruptions, tumors, swellings, fever-sores and kindred complaints.

Daniel McGebory, fireman on the tug Paize, was drowned at Duluth Tuesday morning.

Pile tumors cured in ten days, rupture in four weeks. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

Robbers relieved Conductor Ryan, of the Canadian Pacific, of $1,000 at Medicine Hat.

Despise Not the Day of Small Things.

Little things may help a man to rise—a bent pin in an easy chair for instance. Dr. Pierce's "Pleasant Purgative Pellets" are small things, pleasant to take, and they cure sick headaches, relieve torpid livers, and do wonders. Being purely vegetable, they cannot harm any one. All druggists.

BAFFLED!

One of the Most Unaccountable and Dangerous of Recent Deceits Discovered and Exposed.

There is some mysterious trouble that is attacking nearly everyone in the land with more or less violence. It seems to steal into the body like a thief in the night. Doctors cannot diagnose it. Scientists are puzzled by its symptoms. It is, indeed, a modern mystery. Like those severe and vague maladies that attack horses and prostrate nearly all animals in the land, this subtle trouble seems to menace mankind. Many of its victims have pains about the chest and sides, and sometimes in the back. They feel dull and sleepy; the mouth has a bad taste, especially in the morning. A strange sticky slime collects about the teeth. The appetite is poor. There is a feeling like a heavy load upon the stomach; sometimes a faint all-gone sensation is felt at the pit of the stomache, which food does not satisfy. The eyes grow sunken, the hands and feet feel clammy at one time and burn intensely at others. After a while a cough sets in, at first dry, but after a few months it is attended with a greyish colored expectoration. The afflicted one feels tired all the while, and sleep does not seem to afford any rest. He becomes nervous, irritable, and gloomy, and has evil forebodings. There is a giddiness, a peculiar whirling sensation in the head when rising up suddenly. The bowels become costive, and then, again, outflux intensely; the skin is dry and hot at times; the blood grows thick and stagnant; the whites of the eyes become tinged with yellow: the urine is scanty and high-colored, depositing a sediment after standing. There is frequently a spitting up of the food, sometimes with a sour taste, and sometimes with a sweetish taste; this is often attended with palpitation of the heart. The vision becomes impaired, with spots before the eyes; and there is a feeling of prostration and great weakness. Most of these symptoms are in turn present. It is thought that nearly one-third of our population have this disorder in some of its varied forms, while medical men have almost wholly mistaken its nature. Some have treated it for one complaint; some for another, but nearly all have failed to reach the seat of the disorder. Indeed, many physicians are afflicted with it themselves. The experience of Dr. A. G. Richards, residing at No. 468 Tremont street, Boston, is thus described by himself:

"I had all those peculiar and painful symptoms which I have found afflicting so many of my patients, and which had so often baffled me. I knew all the commonly established remedies would be unavailing for I had tried them often in the past. I therefore determined to strike out in a new path. To my intense satisfaction I found that I was improving. The dull, stupid feeling departed and I began to enjoy life once more. My appetite returned. My sleep was refreshing. The color of my face which had been a sickly yellow gradually assumed the pink tinge of health. In the course of three weeks I felt like a new man and know that it was wholly owing to the wonderful efficiency of Warner's Tippecanoe The Best, which was all the medicine I took."

Doctors and scientists often exhaust their skill and the patient dies. They try everything that has been used by, or is known to, the profession, and then fail. Even if they save the life it is often after great and prolonged agony. Where all this can be avoided by precaution and care, how insane a thing it is to endure such suffering! With a pure and palatable preparation within reach, to neglect its use is simply inexcusable.

Young Men!—Read This.

THE VOLTAIC BELT CO., of Marshall, Mich., offer to send their celebrated ELECTRO-VOLTAIC BELT and other ELECTRIC APPLIANCES on trial for thirty days, to men (young or old) afflicted with nervous debility, loss of vitality and all kindred troubles. Also for rheumatism, neuralgia, paralysis, and many other diseases. Complete restoration to health, vigor and manhood guaranteed. No risk is incurred as thirty days trial is allowed. Write them at once for illustrated pamphlet free.

Allen's Iron Tonic Bitters stirs up the torpid Liver to action, and knocks dyspepsia higher than a kite. All genuine bear the signature of J. P. Allen, Druggist, St Paul, Minn.

Maid of Anthens.

What is the difference between this noted Lady and Carboline the great Hair Renewer? Ans.—One is Maid of Anthens and the other is Made of Petroleum and both come from Grease.

It is authoritatively denied that Cyrus W. Field will fit out a polar expedition.

"Buchu-Paiba." Quick, complete, cure all annoying kidney and urinary diseases. $1.

The best place to obtain a good business education is at the N. W. Business College, Madison, Wis. Send for Catalogue.

Piso's Cure for Consumption does not dry up a cough; it removes the cause.

Bishop Pierce, senior of the Baptist church of the South, died at Augusta, Ga., recently.

"Rough on Itch" cures humors, eruptions, ringworms, tetter, salt rheum, frosted feet, chilblains.

A fortune of $20,000 is waiting for Benjamin F. Mead at New York.

"I have been dreadfully troubled with disease of the kidney's and liver during the past six months. Hunt's [kidney and liver] REMEDY has made me a new man." Isaac W. Fairbrother, Providence, R. I.

John Splan argues that Jay-Eye-See is a better horse than Maud S.

"Rough on Rats." Clears out rats, mice, flies, roaches, bed-bugs, ants, vermin, chipmunks. 15c.

Look Well at the Name.

The only genuine German Hop Bitters are those made by Dr. C. D. Warner, whose name appears on every bottle and label.

Don't Be Swindled.

The only genuine German Hop Bitters and White Wine of Tar Syrup are Dr. C. D. Warner's whose name appears on every bottle, label and wrapper of the genuine.

The Minnesota elevator company, Red Wing, assigns.

An Invaluable Remedy.—None except those who have suffered all the horrors of Dyspepsia can fully appreciate the value and efficacy of Perry Davis' Pain Killer, a sovereign remedy for this distressing disease in all its forms is used internally and externally, test its virtues.

Petersburg, Va., cotton factories have shut down.

"Rough on Corns." 15c. Ask for it. Complete cure, hard or soft corns, warts, bunions.

Pure Cod Liver Oil made from selected livers, on the sea-shore, by CASWELL, HAZARD & Co., New York. It is absolutely pure and sweet. Patients who have once taken it prefer it to all others. Physicians have decided it superior to any of the other oils in market.

Chapped Hands, Face, Pimples, and rough Skin cured by using JUNIPER TAR SOAP, made by CASWELL, HAZARD & CO., New York.

Farmers and Stockmen.

The only remedy that readily cures Galls, Cuts and Wounds on horses and cattle, and always brings the hair in the original color, is Veterinary Carbolisalve. In 50 cents and $1.00 cans, at Druggist's or by mail. J. W. Cole & Co., Prop's., Black River Falls, Wis.

"I owe my Restoration to Health and Beauty to the CUTICURA REMEDIES."

Testimonial of a Boston lady.

DISFIGURING Humors, Humiliating Eruptions Itching Tortures, Scrofula, Salt Rheum and Infantile Humors, cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new blood purifier, cleanses the blood and perspiration of impurities and poisonous elements, and thus removes the cause.

CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, instantly allays Itching and Inflammation, clears the Skin and Scalp, heals Ulcers and Sores, and restores the Hair.

CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier and Toilet Requisite, prepared from CUTICURA, is indispensable in treating Skin Diseases, Baby Humors, Skin Blemishes, Chapped and Oily Skin.

CUTICURA REMEDIES are absolutely pure, and the only infallible Blood Purifiers and Skin Beautifiers. Sold everywhere. Price, Cuticura, 50 cents. Soap, 25 cents; Resolvent, $1. POTTER DRUG AND CHEMICAL CO., BOSTON, MASS.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

The reputation of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as a preventive of epidemics, a stomachic, an invigorant, a general restorative, and a specific for fever and ague, indigestion, billous affections, rheumatism, nervous debility, constitutional weakness, is established upon the sound basis of more than twenty years experience, and can no more be shaken by the claptrap nostrums of unscientific pretenders, than the everlasting hills by the winds that rustle through their defiles. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

TO THE PEOPLE !

This Should Be Read By All.

It Treats on a Subject of Interest to Every Family.

Important Intelligence from the Old Country, Where Cholera has Prevailed.

ASIATIC CHOLERA.

Almost every case cured with

PERRY DAVIS'

Pain-Killer

[From Rev. R. TELFORD, missionary in China, now visiting his home in Pennsylvania.]

WASHINGTON, PENN.

DEAR SIRS,—During a residence of some ten years as a missionary in Siam and China, I found your Vegetable Pain Killer a most valuable remedy for that fearful scourge, the cholera. In administering the medicine, I found it most effectual to give a teaspoonful of Pain-Killer in a gill of hot water, sweetened with sugar, then, after about fifteen minutes, begin to give about a teaspoonful of the same mixture every few minutes until relief was obtained. Apply hot applications to the extremities. Bathe the stomach with the Pain-Killer clear, and and the limbs briskly. Of those who had the cholera, and took the medicine faithfully in the way stated above, eight out of ten recovered.

Truly yours, R. TELFORD.

The late Rev. Dr. Granger repeatedly expressed his belief that he owed his life to the timely use of PERRY DAVIS'S PAIN-KILLER. During his recent visit to the missions in Burmah, he had a severe attack of the cholera, and was immediately relieved by the use of the Pain-Killer.

☞ Directions accompany each bottle.

Price 25 cts., 50 cts., and $1 per bottle.

J. N. HARRIS & CO., Limited,

Cincinnati, Ohio.

Proprietors for the Southern and Western States.

☞ For sale by all Medicine Dealers.

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

Sold everywhere, 25c. Office, 44 Murray St., N.Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed instantly to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.

Office, 44 Murray Street, New York.

TUTT'S MANUAL OF USEFUL RECEIPTS FREE.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND IS A POSITIVE CURE FOR All those painful Complaints and Weaknesses so common to our best FEMALE POPULATION.

Price $1 in liquid, pill or lozenge form.

Its purpose is solely for the legitimate healing of disease and the relief of pain, and that it does all it claims to do, thousands of ladies can gladly testify.

It will cure entirely all Ovarian troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Falling and Displacements, and consequent Spinal Weakness, and is particularly adapted to the change of life.

It removes Faintness, Flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves Weakness of the Stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, and backache, is always permanently cured by its use.

Send stamp to Lynn, Mass., for pamphlet. Letters of inquiry confidentially answered. For sale at druggists.

I WILL GIVE A WATERBURY WATCH FREE!

and WARRANTED a RELIABLE stem-winding time-keeper, to any one who will get 8 subscribers for "THE RACINE AGRICULTURIST," the best 50-cents-a-year paper in the world. SAMPLE COPIES SENT FREE! Address ANDREW SIMONSON, Racine, Wis.

WHITE BEAVER'S COUGH CREAM Heals Diseased Lungs.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

LEARN TELEGRAPHY, or SHORT-HAND and TYPE WRITING HERE. Situations furnished. Address Valentine Bros., Janesville, Wis.

SOLDIERS or heirs send stamp for circulars showing who is entitled to pension, bounty, &c. L. C. WOOD, Pension Atty., Washington, D. C.

Danz's Patent Folding Geese and Duck Decoys are the best in use. Prices low. If you cannot get them of your dealer, write us for catalogue and price list. HORNE & DANZ, Manufacturers, St. Paul, Minnesota.

MORPHINE and CHLORAL HABITS EASILY CURED. BOOK FREE. Dr. J. C. Hoffman, Jefferson, Wisconsin. OPIUM FRAZER AXLE GREASE! BEST IN THE WORLD. ☞ Get the Genuine. Sold Everywhere.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION. 25 CTS. CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. 25 CTS.

U.S. STANDARD. JONES OF BINGHAMTON. 5 TON WAGON SCALES, Iron Levers, Steel Bearings, Brass Tare Beam and Beam Box, $60 and JONES he pays the freight—for free Price List mention this paper and address JONES OF BINGHAMTON, Binghamton, N. Y.

THE TIFFIN Well Boring & Rock Drilling MACHINERY! For Horse or Steam Power. Hundreds of the best men in 30 States and Territories use it and will have no other! RELIABLE! DURABLE! SIMPLE! Established over 35 years, we have ample facilities to fill orders promptly, and to satisfaction of our customers. Catalogue FREE. Address LOOMIS & NYMAN. Tiffin. Ohio.

The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued Sept. and March, each year: 224 pages, 8½ x 11½ inches, with over 3,300 illustrations—a whole picture gallery. Gives wholesale prices direct to consumers on all goods for personal or family use. Tells how to order, and gives exact cost of everything you use, drink, eat, wear, or have fun with. These invaluable books contain information gleaned from the markets of the world. We will mail a copy Free to any address upon receipt of the postage—8 cents. Let us hear from you. Respectfully,

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.

227 & 229 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

ROCKFORD WATCHES

Are unequalled in EXACTING SERVICE.

Used by the Chief Mechanician of the U. S. Coast Survey; by the Admiral commanding in the U. S. Naval Observatory, for Astronomical work; and by Locomotive Engineers, Conductors and Railway men. They are recognized as THE BEST for all uses in which close time and durability are requisites. Sold in principal cities and towns by the COMPANY'S exclusive Agents (leading jewelers,) who give a Full Warranty.

Dr. Spinney & Co.

Treat all Chronic and Nervous Diseases. Young men who may be suffering with Weakness, Nervous Debility, Despondency, Aversion to Society, Kidney troubles, or any similar diseases, can here find a safe and speedy cure. There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are often troubled with uncomfortable symptoms, accompanied by weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. Examination reveals the fact that the patient's system is undergoing a depletion which rapidly exhausts every vital function. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause. The doctor will guarantee a cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration. Pamphlet, with full particulars, sent free to any address. Call on or address DR. SPINNEY & CO., 37 S. Third st., Minneapolis, Minn.

ONLY 25 CENTS!

DURING THE

Campaign of 1884.

THE WEEKLY

PIONEER PRESS,

The Great Newspaper of the Great Northwest,

WILL BE MAILED TO ANY ADDRESS

Three Months for 25 Cents!

OR

ONE DOLLAR

For a Club of FIVE, sent to one address,

ONLY 20 CENTS

For Each Subscriber for Three Months!

This offer holds good only until Oct. 1, 1884.

Money may be sent by draft, money order, postal note or registered letter, addressed to

PIONEER PRESS CO.,

ST. PAUL, MINN.

N. W. N. U. 1884. No. 37.

$500 CASH, FREE!

We offer the above amount of money and THIRTY-FIVE GOLD WATCHES, Free to the first 148 persons answering the following Bible question: Where is the word Grandmother found in the Bible? Mention the Book, Chapter and Verse. The first person answering this question correctly, on or before October 15th, will receive $75 cash. If we receive more than one correct answer, the second will receive $70; the third, $40; the fourth, $35; the fifth, $30; the sixth, $25; the seventh, $20; eighth, $15; ninth, $10; tenth, $5; eleventh, $5; twelfth, $4; thirteenth, $3; thirty-five GOLD WATCHES to the next thirty-five correct answers, and one dollar each to the next one hundred people answering it correctly. If you are not first, remember that you may be second or third, so you stand a good chance for a large prize. Each competitor must, in every case, send 50 cents for sample package ROYAL TEA with their answers.

THE PURE, UNADULTERATED UNCOLORED ROYAL TEA is such as the crowned heads of Europe use. Imported direct. The first time the Royal Tea has ever been introduced in America. A revolution to American tea drinkers. Only Nature's Coloring is used in the Royal Tea. The fresh leaves are dried and prepared in such a way as to retain all their delicate aroma and flavor, together with strength and body. One trial of Royal Tea and you will forever do away with all impure, high colored and poisonous articles. SPECIAL OFFER! To introduce this Tea in America we will, for a limited time, (until October 15th,) send (sample box) one half-pound Royal Tea, prepaid, to any address on receipt of only 50 cents, one pound-box, prepaid, $1. 50 cents is cheap for sample box Royal Tea as you pay nothing for competing for one of the above prizes. In addition to the other prizes, we offer $500 more to be divided equally; ($5 each) to the first one hundred persons sending us the correct answer to the above question and sending $1 for one-pound sample Royal Tea. The money will be promptly sent to the successful ones. Send one dollar in P. O. order, postal note, or registered letter. Don't wait, but send your answer at once. Postage stamps taken. Full instructions to agents how to make $10 a day introducing the Royal Tea given with each sample box. Address MAYO & CO., 166 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD.

Positively cure SICK-HEADACHE, Biliousness, and all LIVER and BOWEL Complaints, MALARIA, BLOOD POISON, and Skin Diseases (ONE PILL A DOSE). For Female Complaints these Pills have no equal. "I find them a valuable Cathartic and Liver Pill.—Dr. T. M. Palmer, Monticello, Fla." "In my practice I use no other."—J. Dennison, M.D., DeWitt, Iowa. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cts. in stamps. Valuable information FREE. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., BOSTON, MASS.

A BOURGEOIS ROMANCE.

By Francois Coppee.

Handsome, Madame Bayard, in her black dress and plainly braided hair, was sitting at her desk at the back of the shop, writing quietly in an immense brass-bound ledger, when her husband came home, after having done his commissions for the morning. He stopped on the threshold to grumble at his workmen for taking so long a time to unload a wagon from the Northern Railway, that was drawn up by the pavement, filled with a dozen barrels of glucose for the great chemist of the Rue Vieille du Temple.

"I have bad news for you," said Madame Bayard, wiping her pen in a little pot of steel shavings, as her husband came into the glass cage. "Poor Voisin is dead."

"Leon's nurse! Ah, poor woman! And her little girl?"

"That is the saddest part of it, my dear. One of poor Voisin's relatives writes to me that they are too poor to burden themselves with the child, and that they will be obliged to send her to the asylum. Oh, those peasants!"

The druggist stood silent for a moment, pulling his thick blonde beard; then, suddenly looking at his wife with kindly eyes, he said:

"You know, Mimi, she is Leon's foster-sister. If we were to take her"——

"That is what I thought," his handsome wife answered, simply.

"That it right!" cried big Bayard, stooping over his wife and kissing her on the forehead, without troubling himself about what his workmen and shop-boys might think of it. "That is right! You are a good woman, Mimi; we will fetch little Norine home here, and she shall be brought up with Leon. That won't ruin us. And I have just done a grand stroke of business. We will go to Argenteuil Sunday and fetch the child; it will be a nice little excursion for us."

* * * * * *

They were worthy people, the Bayards, and an honor to the drug trade. Their marriage had joined two houses that had long lived rivals; for Bayard was the "son" of the "Silver Pestle," which had been founded by his great-grandfather, 1756, in the Rue Vieille du Temple, and he had married the heiress of the "Offering to Esculapius," of the Rue des Lombards, an establishment which dated back to the first Empire, as was duly set forth by its signboard, copied from Guerin's celebrated picture. Worthy people! very worthy people! And there were many more like them still in the old Parisian commerce, whatever people may say, keeping up the old traditions, giving back the pain benit to the parish church, going to the upper boxes at the Opera Comique on Sundays, and innocent of the secret of false weights. It was the cure of Blanc-Manteaux who had made the match—he and his brother of Santa-Merri. The cure of Blanc-Manteaux had administered extreme unction to Bayard the father on his death-bed, and it had frightened him to see a young man of twenty-five weighed down by the whole responsibility of such an important house as the "Silver Pestle," a house famous for its ipecacuanhas; and his confrere of Saint-Merri had been very anxious to establish Mademoiselle Simonin, whom he had confirmed, and whose father, old Simonin of the "Offering to Esculapius," famous for its camphors, was one of his most solid parishioners. Their joint negociations succeeded; the camphor and the ipecacuanha—two excellent specialties—were united in the holy bonds of matrimony; there was a dinner and a ball at Vefour's; and for the last ten years Madame Bayard had worked quietly every day, winter and summer, in her glass cage; and, with her pale brunette skin and her simply braided hair, was the ideal of all the young shopmen in the Sainte-Croix de la Bretomerie quarter.

For a long time there had been a trouble in this happy home, a cloud in the pure sky; the Bayard's had no heir; and it was not till five years after their marriage that little Leon made his appearance. You may imagine how joyfully he was welcomed. Now they would be able to write some day, under the "Silver Pestle," these magic words "Bayard & Son." Only as the child arrived just at the isinglass-melting season, when Madame Bayard's presence in the shop was indispensible, she could not think of nursing him herself. She was obliged, too, to give up the idea of taking a nurse for him at home, on account of the unhealthy atmosphere of this corner of old Paris, and she was obliged to content herself with a journey to Argenteuil every Sunday, with her husband, to see her son at his nurse's, Mother Voison, who was overwhelmed, as one may suppose, with coffee, sugar, and other delicacies. At the end of eighteen months Mother Voison brought back the baby in splendid condition, ann now, for the last two years, a nursery-maid, carefully chosen, had taken the child out for an airing every day in the Square of the Tour Saint-Jacques, and displayed the fine rosy cheeks and dimples of the future druggist to her companions. So that the good Bayards, when they heard of the death of Mother Voisin, could not bear to think of the little girl who had been fed with the same milk as their son being abandoned to public charity, and they went to Argenteuil to fetch her.

Poor little Norine! For the fortnight since her mother was laid in the grave she had been taken in by a cousin, who kept an inn and billiard-room and although not five years old, she was already set to wash the tumblers. Monsieur and Madama Bayard thought her charming, with her great eyes the color of the summer sky, and her luxuriant fair hair that fell loose from her ugly, black mourning cap. Leon, who had been brought down, too, with his nurse, kissed his foster-sister, and the cousin, who had boxed the orphan's ears that very morning for neglecting to sweep out the hall, was as affected as if losing Norine broke his heart. However, he was comforted when his Parisian visitors ordered a copious breakfast.

It was a beautiful Sunday in June. They were in the country, and they must profit by the fresh air—so Monsieur Bayard declared. And while handsome Madame Bayard pinned her petticoats around her and went with the children and the nurse to gather wild flowers in a neighboring field, the druggist, who was not proud, offered the in-keeper cousin a glass of vermouth and sat down with him by the billiard-table, which was covered with dead flies. They had luncheon in a hot and shadeless arbor, through which the mid-day sun darted his merciless rays. But what of that?—they had taken their ease and they were comfortable all the same. Madame Bayard had tied her bonnet to the trellis-work, and her husband, in a boatman's straw hat that the inn-keeper had lent him, carved the duck, merrily. Little Leon and Norine, who had made friends directly, emptied the salad-bowl of cream cheese, and gamboled about in the grass. After luncheon they went out in a boat, and intoxicated with the fresh air and the country, the busy family who lived in a street in Paris that was damp even in the dog-days, were determined to enjoy their rustic idyl to the full.

Yes, there was a moment—as they were coming back in the boat, before a delicious sunset, with little pink clouds on a green ground—when Madame Bayard, grave Madame Bayard, who petrified the shop-boys with a look, began to sing the well-known air, "Toward the Shores of France," keeping time with the splash of the oars, with which her husband was rowing in his shirt-sleeves. They dined in the same arbor they had lunched in; but this second meal was sadder; the night moths which came and buried themselves in the candles frightened the children, and Madame Bayard, overcome with fatigue, had hardly strength to guess the simple riddles on her desert-plate.

No matter! They had had a good day, and when they came back, in a first class car, they felt they had done the thing thoroughly. Madame Bayard, with her head leaning on her husband's shoulder, watched Leon and Norine, who had fallen asleep on the nurse's knees, and, half asleep herself, whispered in a happy voice:

"We are doing a good action, Ferdinand, in taking in the poor little thing. And then she will be a companion for Leon. They will be like brother and sister."

* * * * * *

And so they grew up together.

Those Bayards really were very worthy people. They made no difference between the humble orphan and their own beloved son—who was destined some day, under the firm of "Bayard & Son," to monopolize rhubarbs and engross castoreums—and they loved her as if she had really been their daughter, little Norine, who was as intelligent as she was sweet, and as delicate of mind as she was dainty of body. The nurse took two children now to the square of the Tour Saint-Jacques when it was fine, and in the evening, at the family dinner-table, there were two high chairs side by side, for the foster-brother and sister. Monsieur and Madame Bayard were not long finding out, for that matter, that Norine had a very good influence on Leon. She was quicker, more nervous, and more teachable than the boy, who was lymphatic and heavy—as his father said—and she seemed to communicate something of her own lightness and flame to him.

"She shakes him up," said Madame Bayard.

Since his foster-sister's arrival, Leon had grown brighter and more animated every day. When they were old enough to learn to read, Leon drove his mother to dispair. He could not get on, but stuck over one of those alphabets with pictures where the letter E is under an elephant, and the letter Z under a zouave; but as soon as Norine, who had learned to spell very quickly and could read syllables already came to his aid, and the little fellow began to make wonderful progress. It was the same thing when they were both sent to a children's school kept by an old Miss Merlin, in the Rue de l'Homme-Arme. According to the misleading prospectus sent out by Miss Merlin to the shopkeepers of the quarter, there was "a garden" attached to the establishment—that is to say, four broomsticks in a sanded court—and it was there that, on the first day in the play hour, the innocent Leon broke out into cries of terror at seeing the mistress drive one of her knitting-needles into the front of her dress when she had to interrupt her work for a moment. One of the big girls, who was sitting in the corner with the fool's-cap on, explained this phenomenon to Leon and Norine; but, all the same, the boy could never get rid of an impression of superstitious terror when he was in the school-mistress's presence.

This terror would have paralyzed his childish faculties and prevented him, in school, from following Miss Merlin's wand when she pointed to the map of Europe or the table of weights and measures, if Norine had not been there to reasure and encourage him. From the begining she was the best pupil in the school, and to the idle and backward Leon she was a sort of fraternal counselor and affectionate teacher. At about four o'clock Madam Bayard used to watch the two children, whom the nurse had brought home to the shop, settle themselves by her in her glass bureau, and note how Norine, opening a copy-book or a lesson-book, would explain to Leon some exercise he had not understood, or make him repeat the imperfectly learned lesson.

"The good God rewards us," Madame Bayard would say, sometimes to her husband at night, between the curtains. "That little Norine is a treasurer. So good, and so hard-working! I was listening to her, to-day, working with Leon. I really think without her he would never have learned his multiplication-table."

"Trust me Mimi," replied Bayard; "I shall not forget. We are getting on very well; we will give her a dot and marry her, won't we, when she is old enough?"

* * * * * *

She is old enough—age always comes so quickly? And now there is a beautiful, slender, fair, young girl in the glass cage, sitting beside Madame Bayard, who begins to show silver threads in the bands of her black hair. Norine writes in the big, brass-covered ledger now, while her adopted mother works at some piece of embroidery.

Seven o'clock. The gentlemen ought to be in by now. They have to shut up the shops where gas-jets are flickering and twisting in the November wind. Here they are at last! Bayard has grown stout, and has a corporation, and Leon, who had passed his apothecary's examination last month, has grown into a very handsome young fellow.

"How d'ye do, Mimi?—how d'ye do, Norine? Let us make haste up-stairs to dinner. I have a great piece of news to tell you," said the druggist.

They went up to the dining-room, and while Madame Bayard, seated in her lyre-shaped chair, ladled out the soup, old Bayard tucked his napkin under his chin, looked knowingly at his wife, and said:

"It is all settled, Mimi!"

"The Forgats consent?"

"Yes; and Leon will marry Hortense in six months; and our daughter-in-law will come and live with us. Yes, Norine, you knew nothing about it for one doesn't talk of those things before young ladies; but for the last year or more, Leon has been in love with Hortense Forgat, and has done nothing but torment us to give her to him. Parbleu! it was not difficult—we had only to speak the word. Leon is a good enough match. The only difficulty was that we wanted to keep our son with us. However, now everything is settled, and your foster-brother will have the wife he wants. Are you glad?"

"Very glad!" answered Norine.

O deaf ears! O blind eyes! They never heard Norine's voice when she answered them—the dull, sad tone that is the echo of a broken heart! They never saw that Norine turned white and her head, as though it had suddenly grown too heavy, rolled from side to side as if she were going to faint. They guessed nothing, they understood nothing—this long time they had guessed and understood nothing. And yet they are all fond of her—Norine, who is the charm and the ornament of the house. They even think, good people, of marrying her some day to their head shop man, a widower who has saved money, and who is "everything a woman could wish to make her happy." Leon loves her too, with all his heart, but as a sweet and kind sister, and he never guesses, this great spoiled boy, that poor Norine is in love with him, and ready to die of the sorrow of it. No, not even this evening, when they have unconsciously inflicted one of the worst of tortures on her, do they suspect the truth. And they will all sleep peacefully, dreaming pleasantly of the future, while Norine, shut in her room—her room that is separated from her adopted parents by so slight a partition—will fall upon her bed, fainting with pain, and bury her head in the pillow to stifle her sobs.

* * * * * *

The ball is over, the rooms are beginning to empty, here and there the candles that have burned down in their sockets have broken the bobeches, and the bits of glass lie scattered on the polished floor.

The Bayards were determined to have the wedding at their own house. And with plenty of flowers—for they are in the middle of summer—they have decked the Rue Vieille du Temple, till it has quite a festive air, and there they have triumphantly installed their daughter-in-law.

It is all over at last. The young bride and bridegroom are in their wedding-chamber, where Madame Bayard accompanied them a moment. As she comes out she meets Norine in the small drawing-room, where she is helping the servants to put out the lights, and kissed the young girl tenderly, saying:

"Go to bed, my child; you must be tired." And she adds with a smile: "It will be your turn next."

And, at last, Norine is left alone in a darkened room, only lighted by the bed-room candle, which she had put down on the piano.

How strong the flowers smell; and how her head, aches!

It has been a horrible day! She has suffered agonies from the moment when she knelt before Hortense, her rival, with her mouth full of pins, like any lady's maid, arranging her white satin train, until just now, when Leon, with his arm round his young wife's waist, had drawn her toward him, and, husband and wife, had almost mingled their kisses on her forehead."

Ah, the scent of the flowers is unbearable, and she feels quite giddy.

She falls down into an arm-chair, worn out with the dull pain in her head and, with her head thrown back, and her forehead pressed between her two hands, watches that door—the door of the room where the young bride and bridegroom are shut in together. She is almost delirious! Oh, how the scent of those flowers hurt her! And what thousands of memories come crowding on her! She sees herself again a little girl in an inn at Argenteuil, and the Parisians arriving so well-dressed and caressing her; and the pretty little boy, with a white feather in his hat kisses her. The other pictures follow each other rapidly through her mind. The school in the Rue de l'Homme-Arme, and Miss Merlin, with her knitting-needle sticking in her chest, pointing with the end of her wand to the table of weights and measures; the darkened drug-shop on Sunday, when the shutters were shut and she and Leon played hide-and-seek behind the sacks and barrels.

Oh, God! Is she gone mad? Now she can not help humming the air of that waltz she was dancing with Leon just now. She is suffocated!—oh, those flowers!—She must go—at least she must open the window. But she can not get up, she has no strength left. Is this death? Her forehead seems bound by two fingers of iron. Oh, those roses! those orange-blossoms!—those orange-blossoms above all!

At last, with great effort, she rises, straight and pale—so pale in her white dress. But suddenly she falls—first upon her knees, and then striking her head and shoulder upon the floor.

Poor, poor Norine! She lies outstreched at the door of the bridal chamber—dead.

But was it a broken heart, you ask? "Not so," says a cynic. "People do not die of broken hearts."

True. Then it must have been the heavy perfume of the flowers.—Adapted for the Argonaut from the French by Mlle. Bouchier.

Lightning Strokes.

From the Insurance Chronicle.

Charts of the geographical distribution of the lightning strokes for 1882 and 1883, prepared from our fire records, show that they are chiefly confined to that part of the country situated north of the Ohio river and east of the Missouri river. In both years 85 per cent. of all the strokes occured within this area. In the Southern States lightning seems to be comparatively rare, and seldom occurs outside of three States—Texas, Louisiana and Georgia. There seems to be two principal centers of electrical disturbance, from the fire underwriters' standpoint, and these are in the New England and Northwestern States. Sixty-five per cent. of the strokes happen in the summer; the remaining 35 per cent. are divided between Spring and Autumn in about equal proportions.

Over 21,000,000 widows in India, and all forbidden to remarry.

General Condensations.

The existing craze for highly colored houses consisting almost entirely of chimneys, and roof will probably soon die out. There are symptons that the public is becoming wearied of red tiling and dormers, and that inmates of "cottages" with every bedroom partly in the roof and every sitting room so low that a man standing on tip-toe can almost touch the ceiling, are sighing for lofty parlors and airy bedrooms. In those modern monstrosities which are considered old English because they do not fulfill the requirements of English-speaking people of the present day it is considered a beauty to be ugly.

The latest novelty in the show business is an exhibition of noses, which has recently been held in Austria. Eighty persons competed for the prize offered for the most extra ordinary nasal protuberance in form, size and color. It was awarded to a competitor from Vienna, who is the possessor of what is said to be a gigantic nose of deep violet blue. If this novelty should become popular in this country, the dime museums would not be large enough to hold the Democrats who would be put on exhibition.

In Nevada there are hundreds of artesian wells, averaging less than 200 feet deep, and costing, in cluding boring and piping, less than $500. Each of them will flow 50,000 gallons of water a day, and will irrigate five acres of ploughed or fifty acres of meadow land. All the wells are on the top of the bed-rock, and there is shown to be a stratum of water underlying the whole State. The water from the wells is quite cold in the summer and very warm in winter, never freezing, making it very desirable for stock men in feeding their stock for market, as cattle seem to relish it and thrive well on it.

The following extraordinary circular, which has recently been issued at St. Petersburg by the department of roads and communications, curiously illustrates the reverence with which the czar and all his belongings are regarded by all good Russians. "The owners of passenger steamers who have been granted permission to name their vessels in the names of the imperial family are bound to keep their boats in excellent order and repair. If, however, any such named steamer, consequent upon commercial operations, should be employed in any manner likely to make the carrying out of the above instructions difficult, the owners are hereby notified that they must rename the vessel and declare this change of name to the inspector of marine."

A Florida pilot tells big stories of the sharks which abound in the sea between Pensacola and Fort Pickens, and the unfortunate sailors and soldiers they have eaten. "I'd just as soon try to swim a lake of red hot pitch as to swim over from Pensacola to Fort Pickens." The sharks would be sure to get him. "I've seen 'em moving around on the bottom like a drove of hogs. They generally swim slowly when not chased, but they can work up a tremendous race when they are chased, and I've seen one jump twenty feet into the air." He further remarked: "Some time ago a Spanish gunboat dropped in there and the officers amused themselves with shark fishing. They had quite a circus. They would take a small dynamite cartridge, bind a piece of pork to it and fix it to a float and wire and send it 200 feet astern. pretty soon a shark would take it and they would fire, and the fish would fly into a thousand pieces. If one was wounded the others went for him and ate him up.

A somewhat sensational incident marked one of the performances, the other day, at the Cape Menagerie at St. Etienne, near Paris. Agop, the well-known trainer, had scarcely entered the cage of one of the tigers when the ferocious brute sprang upon him and began worrying him tooth and claw. The audience screamed with horror, and a general rush for the door of the tent began. Agop, however, kept cool, and in spite of some fearful lacerations all over the body and great loss of blood fought with such determination that he finally overcame the tiger, which crouched at his feet. Not content with this victory Agop was foolhardy enough to force it through its usual exercise, to the wonderment and admiration of the crowd who had stopped momentarily in their flight. The tamer then left the cage; and all torn and bleeding as he was, proceeded to that containing a lioness—which had formely made a meal of Pernet, one of his predecessors in the perilous situation. He entered the cage totally unarmed, and succeeded in putting the lioness through her habitual jumps, after which he left the cage—this time at least. Agop then had his wounds dressed.

His Circulation was Good.

Newspaper men are sensitive. Not concerning their dress, their piety, or their ability to pay a debt, but of their circulation. You may say that he dresses like a tramp, and may thurst insinuations at that sensitive organ, the nose, and smiling benignly he will forgive you; but let fall an innuendo besmirching the circulation of his journal, and all ties of friendship which may have heretofore exsited between you are severed with the passionate swoop of the knife, which so well knows war in the extreme. There is Colonel Harquies, for instance. He rather likes personal abuse, and upon his private life severe criticism has no more effect than an autumn drizzle falling on the back of a hard-shell turtle; but you must not hint that his paper does not carry in its hip pocket a wad of great influence. Several days ago the Colonel was taken violently ill. He raged in the delirium of high fever, and his wife, becoming alarmed, sent for two prominent physicians. When the medical gentlemen arrived the editor was almost wild, wallowing in a tragic daze. One of the physicians approaching, took hold of the Colonel's arm, and, turning to his companion said:

"Circulation very poor!"

"What!" exclaimed the editor, springing up, "poor circulation! why, confound you, I work sixty quires. Get away from here, you scoundrels," and with loud imprecations and demonstrations of violence, he drove the medical men from the room.—Arkansas Traveler.

THE HOME CIRCLE AND FARM.

Household Miscellany.

A bad miss take—Marrying a high tempered girl.

CAT-TAILS.—Tie a bunch of cat-tails with a bright satin ribbon and tack to the wall by the side of a mirror or picture. Try it, and see how pretty is the effect.

The Large Tidies, known to fame a the "Jumbo" tidy, are especially adapted for the willow and rattan chairs that are so popular now. The tidies are of a macrame cord, and have very broad stripes, with wide spaces for ribbon. They should be large enough to cover the entire back of the chair.

Cretonne Lambrequins, bound with a bias fold of dark velvet or velveteen and lined with cheese cloth are used for the windows of country houses. Crewell embroidered cheese cloth is a favorite material for window curtains.

Very pretty sofa cushions are made of surah with a little bright and showy embroidery on it. The edge may be finished plainly or have a fringed-out pleating of the same color as the cushion cover.

TO DESTROY MOTHS IN CARPETS.—E. C. A. writes that upon the recommendation of a friend, she saturated the edges of her carpets with strong alum water; as a preventive of the ravages of the moth, and has found it to work like a charm. The carpets were not injured by the solution, and the moths were entirely exterminated.

A table scarf of drab felt is trimmed tastefully on one end with four squares of some bright and handsome material. Two squares of crimson plush are pretty contrasted with two of the many colored and expensive covering now popular for upholstering furniture. The other end should have stripes of plush or of satin, or it may have a stripe of felt of a different color from the scarf itself. This stripe should be embroidered; small tassels finish the edges.

Crazy Patchwork Lap-Robes are the latest. One recently seen was made of bits of nothing but bright pieces of velvet and plush. It was lined with crimson velvet, with the owner's monogram in yellow silks, and was remarkably handsome.

Farmers' Short Rows.

To remove lice from hen houses, and also from the fowls, the following method is recommended as one of the best that has been tried: Take flowers of sulphur five pounds, liquid carbolic acid, one dram. Rub the acid in the sulphur thoroughly with a small paddle, and apply through the pluff and feathers of the hen with the hand, and it will not only prove an effectual application but also a safe one, as it will not interfere with the hatching of eggs or endanger the life of the chicks.

An arbocultural writer gives the following periods to which various trees have been known to reach in particular cases: Elm, 335 years; maple, 416; larch, 576; orange, 630; cypress, 800; walnut, 900; oriental plane, 1,000; lime, 1,100; spruce, 1,200; oak, 1,500; cedar, 2,000; yew, 3,200.

The editor of the Iowa Homestead says that last Fall he fed out a lot of second crop clover on a rough piece of raw prairie. He first burned off the prairie grass. The cattle ate part of it, tramped some in the ground and the wind blew the rest back and forth. The result is the prairie is nicely seeded to clover. He considers this a desirable way to seed bare spots in pastures.

There are only few countries where the grape will in favorable seasons grow to perfection, and there is no country in the world where all kinds of grapes would succeed. Species found in the lower latitudes will not flourish if removed further north. The natives of higher latitudes will not endure the southern heats. The fox grape of the north will scarcely grow in the lower regions of Carolina and Georgia, and the scuppernong seems confined to a limited region. A vine which produces delicious grapes in one place may become very inferior in the most apparently favored localities of other sections.

In many of the older portions of the country sheep, for one reason or another, have been crowded off of the farms. There are indications of a return to the wise practices of the fathers, where every farm had its flock. Says Col. Curtis, of the Rural New Yorker:—"Sheep fit in so nicely upon the farm that they can hardly be dispensed with. They have an advantage over other stock, inasmuch as they can be made to furnish an income twice in the year—first the wool and then the lambs. They may be made to do more than this, and really do afford another income in the autumn or winter, by the fattening and sale of the old sheep or the sale of the surplus stock."

Quick Way of Preparing Watermelon Rind.

Scrape young and tender rinds on both sides. To one pound of rind add one ounce of alum; let them boil together slowly, with water enough to cover them, until they become yellow; put them into a vessel of cold water, where they must remain a short while; then put them on the fire again with weak vinegar and water mixed sufficient to cover them. After they become green pour them into cold water again, letting them stand ten or fifteen minutes. To every pound of rind put two pounds of loaf-sugar (some persons put one pound and a half) and one pint of water. If there is not water enough to cover with syrup and keep the rind from burning, add more. When the syrup is rich and clear, the sweetmeats will be beautifully green and transparent. For flavoring, put in white ginger, with the strained juice of one lemon and its thinly pared rind, to each pound of preserve, or, if you prefer, use two blades of mace and a teaspoonful of pure extract of lemon instead.—Mary Stuart Smith's Virginia Cookery Cook.

Moulded Macaroni.

Boil half a pound of macaroni in salted hot water, drain and let it get cold. Put it when quite stiff in a tray and chop fine, add a half-cupful of any cold meat you may happen to have in the house, minced very fine. Have ready a cupful of milk, in which half a minced onion has been simmered ten minutes, then strained out. Add a beaten egg, pepper and salt to taste, a teaspoonful of butter rolled in a like quantity of flour; cook one minute and stir gradually into the minced meat and macaroni. Lastly, put in a tablespoonful of grated cheese, pour the mixture into a well-greased tin mould with a top (use a tin pail if you have nothing better), set in a pot of boiling water, taking care not to submerge it entirely, and boil one hour and a half. Dip in cold water one minute to loosen the pudding, and turn out.

For Stay-at-Homes.

Dr. C. C. Vanderbeck in a College Lecture.

First, lessen your meat and increase your fruit diet. Strawberries and all sub-acid summer fruits purify the blood; tender vegetables suit well the human stomach, and those who partake freely of both never need drugs. Second, don't worry over the heat. It doesn't bring down the thermometer a bit. Third, don't be a shamed of the sun umbrella. Fourth, do not be so foolish as to expect an "elixir of life" in strong drink, used in winter to banish cold, used in summer for relief from heat; Whisky is inflammatory to blood and tissue, and lurks in every glass of summer liquor. Drink water in moderation. Drink lemonade, soda water, acidulated drinks of any kind in the same way. Slowly sucking pellets of ice, or simple rinsing out the mouth and throat with water will allay thirst, and thus prevent the excess in use of liquids. Fifth, pay due attention to cleanliness, both of person and surroundings. Morning and evening sponge-bathing of the body is refreshing and toning. The morning bath better be cool, and warm at bedtime. If the heat of the night prevent sleeping, and hours of restlessness are spent, sleep often quickly follows a warm bath. Live lazily during midday, doing most of the day's work in early morning hours.

Clearing Up the Garden.

As the gardening season will soon be over, the common practice of allowing the weeds and grass to take complete possession should be abandoned. It is a very unsightly spectacle to witness the tall weeds towering above the fence tops and giving indications of neglect, simply because the season is late and necessity for cultivation is past. Such weeds rob the ground of the nourishment that should be retained for the next spring's crop, but damage in that respect is a small matter compared to the extra labor that will be entailed by the seeding of the land with weeds. Every weed killed now will double the labor saved hereafter, and besides avoiding the robbery of the soil, the seeding of a new crop, and the ugly appearance, the weeds afford a harbor for many of the insects that come to the surface on the approach of mild weather in spring. It should be the the aim to not only keep the weeds from going to seed, but also to destroy them when they are young, and the matter will be easy of accomplishment.—Farm, Field and Fireside.

"Let Me Do It Mother."

A young man had declared love to a lady and asked her to be his wife. She hesitated, and he allowed her her own time to consider the matter. One evening soon afterward she had occasion to visit an aged relative who resided in the family of which the young man was a member. As she approached the door a sudden impulse caused her to pause. He might be at home, she thought and she might encounter him. And seeing her there, he would probably imagine she called on purpose to see him. While she stood upon the doorstep meditating, she heard the oven door of the cookstove open, then the rustle of paper, as if it were thrown upon the table, then a firm, light step and the voice of her admirer saying in a gentle way, "Let me do it, mother." Then she knocked, and was admitted just in time to see the young man taking some pies from the oven. This little circumstance aided the young lady in concluding what answer to make to the all-important question; and in married life she finds the young man an excellent husband and father.

The Start for Strawberries.

Dig up the ground where you had early peas or potatoes, spread on some fine manure, or wood ashes, or both, rake it in, mark off rows two or three feet apart and set the plants one and a half to two feet apart in the row; water and shade for a few days if the weather is dry. Fifty plants each of three kinds, or even half that number, will give you a nice start. Plants allowed to root in pots, known as "potted plants," are easily transplanted without disturbing the roots, but if you can get your plants near home, lifted carefully with a ball of earth, they are better and will be sure to grow if the work is properly done. Try it, and you will be surprised at the satisfaction they will give you another season. Don't let the fear of the labor deprive you of this family luxury any longer. A few minutes every week with a hoe, stirring the surface of the ground, killing all germinating weed seeds, and allowing the young plants to take root, will hardly be missed, the labor is from neglect, not attention. An hour's time will destroy weeds just as they appear that would require a day if deferred a week or two. The boys and girls of the family will gladly tend the strawberry bed if once provided. Try it!

Will it pay? Yes, every time.—N. Y. Tribune.

Lightning Rod Swindlers.

The lightning-rod swindlers still find easy victims in many parts of the country, though their game is exposed by the newspapers year after year. An Iowa correspondent of the Chicago Journal reports their operations in Buena Vista County, where they have taken in a score of farmers by the old process, which is varied only in detail from time to time: "The farmer and the advance agent will talk the matter over, and agree upon a price for the rod, points, connections, and so forth, which will probably not exceed $20, but as the rod will be put up by other parties to follow him, 'it is the best thing to do to make a memorandum so there can be no mistake about it.' Of course the farmer consents, the 'other fellow' comes along, puts up the rod, informs the farmer that he collects no pay, as that is done by another party, and in due time a bank sends notice that a contract note is due for $300 from the farmer, by which time the rod men have got well out of sight."

Scrub Horses.

An exchange says in regard to the raising of horses: "It is time for our farmers to understand that the days of small horses are over, except to drive to town and for light livery work. They cannot afford either to raise them or own them. If they will observe carefully they will discover that it costs no more to keep a colt two years than a calf, and that during these two years on stock kept the colt will increase in value a great deal faster than the calf. We do not advise farmers to go altogether into horse farming, or into any other specialty, but along with the calves and pigs raise a few good, large colts. It is unsafe to devote a farm to any kind of stock. The true wisdom is to raise some of each, but whatever you do, raise the best. We have learned by experience that corn is never so cheap or grass so plenty that it will pay to put either into scrub cattle, scrub hogs or scrub horses. And the man who does it when he can help it will soon pe rated as a scrub farmer."

Feed For Butter, Etc.,

What is the best food for butter-making Summer and Winter?

Ans.—1. In Summer the best butter food for a cow is good, fresh pasture, with a daily feed of corn-meal, oil meal and bran, one part each, mixed together, and moderately wetted about six hours before feeding time. In winter, plenty of good, bright clover hay twice daily; plenty of bright straw once a day, and two feeds a day of the same mixture, and one feed each day of silage, mangels, sugar beets, or carrots. At all times feed enough to keep the cow in good condition, and give all the pure, warmish water she wishes, at all times. —Rural New Yorker.

Historical Hot Summers.

People who are already complaining of the heat while this summer is scarcely a month old says the XIXeme Siecle, should remember the extraordinary weather of former years. In 627 the heat was so great in France and Germany that all springs dried up; water became so scarce that many people died of thirst. In 879 work in the fields had to be given up; agricultural laborers persisting in their work were struck down in a few minutes, so powerful was the sun. In 993 the suns rays were so fierce that vegetation burned up as under the action of fire. In 1000, rivers ran dry under the protracted heat, the fish were left dry in heaps and putrefied in a few hours. The stench that ensued produced the plague. Men and animales venturing in the sun in the summer of 1022 fell down dying, the throat parched to a tinder and the blood rushing to the brain. In 1132 not only did the rivers dry up but the ground cracked on every side and became baked to the hardness of stone. The Rhine in Alsace nearly dried up. Italy was visited with terrific heat in 1139; vegetation and plants burned up. During the battle of Bela in 1260 there were more victims made by the sun than by weapons; men fell down sunstruck in regular rows. The summer of 1277 was also severe; there was an absolute dearth of forage. In 1303 and 1304 the Rhine, Loire, and Seine ran dry. In 1615 the heat throughout Europe became excessive. Scotland suffered particularly in 1625; men and beasts died in scores. The heat in several departments during the summer of 1705 was equal to that in a glass furnace. Meat could be cooked by merely exposing it to the sun. Not a soul dare venture out between noon and 4 p. m. In 1718 many shops had to close; the theatres never opened their doors for several months. Not a drop of water fell during six months. In 1753 the thermometer rose to 118 degrees. In 1779 the heat at Bologna was so great that a great number of people were stifled. There was not sufficient air for the breath, and people had to take refuge under ground. In July, 1793, the heat became intolerable. Vegetables were burned up and fruit dried upon the trees. The furniture and wood-work in dwelling-houses cracked and split up; meat went bad in an hour. The rivers ran dry in several provinces during 1811; expedients had to be devised for the grinding of corn. In 1822 a protracted heat was accompanied by storms and earthquakes; during the drought legions of mice overran Lorraine and Alsace, committing incalculable damage. In 1832 the heat brought about cholera in France; 20,000 persons fell victims to the visitation in Paris alone. In 1846 the thermometer marked 125 degrees in the sun. Finally, the summers of 1859, 1860, 1869, 1870, 1874, etc., although excessively hot, were not attended by disaster.—London Standard.

Terrors of Dyspepsia.

The terrors of dyspepsia, as graphically depicted in the St. Louis Globe Democrat, together with the description of a crowd of invalids at Carlsbad, Germany, constitute a valuable lesson in teaching moderation in eating and drinking: "I stood out from its line and looked at those behind me. I don't think I ever saw such a miserable, sour, dejected-looking crowd in my life before. They looked worse than any soup-house brigade you ever saw, although they were nearly all well dressed. It was a regular parade of liver complaints. There was the man with the dry liver, with a grin on his face that would scare a South African baboon; there was the man with the torpid liver, looking as though he was calculating how much enjoyment it would afford him to cut the hearts out of the crowd; there was the man with the enlarged liver, whose eyes seemed to have gone into retirement at the back of his head; there was the man whose liver wouldn't give up bile enough to assist digestion, and the man whose liver gave up too much; there was the man with the torpid liver, with the soft liver, with the partly-decayed liver, with the sprained liver, and with the dislocated liver, and every mother's son of them looked like a red-handed murderer, and, if they shared my feelings, felt like one."

A KISS IN THE RAIN.

One stormy morn I chanced to meet
A lassie in the town;
Her locks were like the ripened wheat,
Her laughing eyes were brown.
I watched her as she tripped along
Till madness filled my brain,
And then—and then—I know 'twas wrong—
I kissed her in the rain!

With rain-drops shining on her cheek,
Like drew drops on a rose,
The little lassie strove to speak
My boldness to oppose;
She strove in vain, and quivering
Her finger stole in mine;
And then the birds began to sing,
The sun began to shine.

Oh, let the clouds grow dark above,
My heart is light below;
'Tis always summer when we love,
However winds may blow;
And I'm as proud as any prince,
All honors I disdain;
She says I am her rain beau since
I kissed her in the rain.
—Samuel Minturn Peck in September Century.

KING OF NEUCES COUNTY.

Felix Gray in Texas Siftings.

It was a winter night; winter not only by appointment of the almanac, but by the more potent authority of the fierce "norther," that raiding wind of the Sierras, that shrieked widly through the streets, battering in its loud, hectoring way, at shutters and doors, as if demanding admission upon penalty, bullying and tormenting the helpless trees as if it would at once and foreveer make an end of them, catching the unresisting rain in its strong clutch, whipping it against the windows and walls, and driving it through 1,000 unsuspected crevices—a sort of Goliath of Gath wind, that roared up and down through the camp, daring the whole host to come out and battle with it.

Of the few unfortunates whom circumstances compelled to meet this rude challenger the omnibus of the Island City hotel held two, just arrived by the train from some indefinite region to the northward, and continuing in this perilous manner their journey toward rest and shelter. They were of opposite sex, the man a burley, black-bearded person, with black eyes that glowed beneath the shadow of his broad-brimmed hat with a fire scarcely inferior to that of the imposing diamond upon his shirt front. He sat squarely in the middle of the seat, with one arm stretched along its back, nursing a heavily booted foot upon one knee, and complacently threading the fingers of his brown hairy hand through his thick beard. The woman, whom even the uncertain light of the ineffectual lamp showed to be young and attractive, was buttoned from the throat to ankle in an all enveloping waterproof, but her hat was a stylish affair of felt, trimmed with a handsome plume; and a muff of rich dark fur, which reposed upon her lap, united its testimony to that of the Russian leather traveling satchel upon the favorable side of the question as to her fortune and social standing.

She sat with her back as nearly turned upon her fellow traveller as the construction of the vehicle would allow, gazing fixedly out of the front window, where the flickering rays of the driver's lamp showed her the wet backs and drooping ears of the horses. Her position afforded an admirable view of the solidly coiled braids of hair, with a fringe of little unpredominated curls, that fell from beneath them upon a slender well-moulded neck, which the black bearded man seemed to find pleasing.

The omnibus labored heavily forward in the gale, which had laid its lash of raindrops sharply across the closed glasses. All at once, with a fearful lurch, it came to a momentary stand, hesitating apparently upon the verge of a catastrophe; while the flickering ray gleamed brokenly upon the agitated surface of a body of water of undetermined extent. The young lady started up, grasping her satchel, and looking about her for some means of escape.

"Don't be frightened, ma'am," said her fellow traveller in a deep bass voice. "Just fordin' one of the city ponds; keep your seat."

"Is there no danger? The driver hasn't gone into the gulf by mistake, you think?" panted she in a sweet tremulous treble.

"Oh, no; we're all right. I'll be dog goned if the omnibus oughten to be a schooner rigged, tho', or tho city oughter keep ferries on their lakes. They never know whether they're afloat or ashore in this town. I'll be dogged ef I'd live in it ef they'd give me th' hol' layout."

The lumbering vehicle resumed its dark and pathless way, the young woman sank into her seat and the burly man into silence, still combing his whiskers with his brown hand, and nursing the heavy foot on his knee.

"Here we are," he said cheerfully, as with a final lurch, and a jolt, the ark rested, and gathering his valise in one hand, and laying the other upon the door, he seemed to dive headlong into space. As the young woman timidly followed, however, she saw that he was waiting for her, his figure indistinctly outlined against a luminous doorway, opening into a huge, square shadow, which she guessed rather than saw to be a hotel.

"It's moe' too wet for them there shoes of yourn," he said by way of explanation, and without further speech, he cast an arm about her waist, and crossing in two strides the intervening strip of water and sand, set her down upon the gallery in front of the open door.

A waiter pounced upon them, and taking the satchel and valise into one hand as if satisfied that they belonged together, led the way to the ladies parlor.

"Here's a fire," said the burly man; "come set by it and warm you'se'f. You must be pretty nigh froze."

She yielded quietly, though with a little air of reserve, to his direction, and accepted the chair he placed for her before the open fire, which was doing its inefficient best to warm the large empty room. She looked like a woman accustomed to being taken care of, one toward whom every man would naturally experience the protective impulse, and her present self-elected guardian regarded her with an expression at once critical and approving, and she leaned back and put her two shapely, well-shod feet upon the fender.

"I s'pose I better go an' see 'bout my room an' some supper," he said. "Ain't you hungry!"

"I think I could eat something."

"I think so. You'll want a room, too, I reckon."

"Why yes, to be sure. I forgot that I must register."

"I 'spose I might register for you jis's well as not, of you'd give me your name."

"If you would be so kind, I should be ever so much obliged," she assented sweetly. "My name is Hemming, of St. Louis; wait, I have a card."

She drew from some concealed receptacle under her waterproof a rotund pocketbook from which she extracted a dainty card.

"All right," he said, taking it, "that'll fix it. I'll be back in a minit."

He strode away, and she, turning herself a little in her chair, looked after him with an expression of amused wonder. As the door closed behind him she rose from her chair, and rapidly unbuttoning the long waterproof threw it off and ran to the pier-glass. It is not often that a full-length survey of one's person after a long railway journey proves so satisfactory. The dark well-fitted costume looked fresh and crisp, and when she had effected some mysterious change under cover of the overdress, the apparently short skirt fell into a graceful demitrain, with what the modistes call a charming arrangement of flounces and drapery. Bringing her satchel from the chair where the porter had deposited it, she poured some cologne upon her handkerchief and rubbed it over her face, following it up with a bit of chamoise which she first applied to the contents of a small oval box of white cardboard, retied her scarlet cravat, settled her hat in a more becoming position, then with an approving nod at the image thus readjusted and brightened returned to her place by the fire.

The image was not indeed unworthy of approval. A rather petite image it was with the well-rounded figure, and a face, which, though somewhat heavy featured, had the piquant charm of clear light gray eyes shadowed by long dark lashes, and contrasted with olive skin and dark hair which belong to orbs of a deeper hue.

She had hardly gained her seat when her new acquaintance returned. He also had transformed his appearance somewhat by the removal of his hat and overcoat, and looked a trifle less burly, though his undercoat made no pretense of fitting him. His face presented that contrast in color common to hat-wearing men who live much out of doors in warm climates, the forehead being several shades whiter than the cheeks. His eyes testified that he noted the change wrought during his absence.

"You look fresh as a posey," he commented, with a wide severance of the whiskers and moustache, which probably signified a smile. "Well, that's all fixed; here's the key to your room, No. 47; but if you want supper you better come right along. It's about over. I,m going in now, s'pose you come with me?"

She hesitated a moment then arose and shook her flounces.

"I won't take off my hat, I guess; because my hair ain't very smooth," she said, as if consulting him.

"You are all right," he returned encouragingly, "them es don't like it kin look the other way, only I don't think much of their taste in women," he added instantly.

The dining room was almost empty when they entered, and the lordly steward who had jurisdiction there waved them to a seat near one of the stoves.

"Las' time I was here," remarked the gentleman who had registered himself with a sprawling hand that overran all bounds, as Colonel Sharp, of Neuces County, "they sot me over there at the bachelor's table. I'm in big luck tonight. Now look-a-heah," he continued to the waiter, you jis make out it's the Gran' Dook Elexsis you's a waitin' on an' jis everlastin'ly hurry up things. You heah?"

The waiter grinned and slid away, and the colonel again addressed himself to his companion.

I ain't exac'ly a Rooshen Dook," (the Grand Duke was at the time flashing comet-like about the country), "but they call me a king down my way. I s'pose you've heard tell of the cattle kings?"

"Oh, yes, to be sure; and you are one?"

"That's what they call me—cattle king of Neuces county."

"Neuces county, indeed?" and the lady looked interested.

"Ever been out that way?"

"No, never."

"Well, you'd oughter go," and encouraged by her attentive look, he launched into a glowing description, which quite obscured the cold and meagre supper and endured to its end.

Upon their return to the parlor the lady signified to an attendant her wish to be shown to No. 47; and the colonel also decided to investigate the quarters assigned to himself. They ascended together as far as the second story, but there the waiter darted down an obscure passage and throwing open a door deposited the lady's satchel within, and then led his remaining charge to higher regions.

It was very cold in the narrow little closet to which she found herself assigned, and by the time she had taken off her hat and rearranged her hair, and superintended the placing of her trunk in the nicely calculated space left vacant for the purpose, she was shivering to such an extent that she determined to seek the parlor once more. Half way down a heavy tread behind her made her look over her shoulder. It was the colonel also descending.

"Colder'n Lapland, ain't it? he said. "Going to the parlor to get warm; I reckon I'll go with you."

He seemed to have no dawning of doubt as to the acceptability of his company, and indeed she made no objection.

The two ladies who occupied easy chairs before the fire, politely made room for them; then, finding it difficult to carry on their interrupted gossip in the presence of strangers, rose and after sauntering about the room a few moments, went out.

"Well, I'm glad they concluded to leave," said the Colonel. "They didn't look sociable like. I hate these stuck-up lookin' females that eye you like's ef they'd never seen the like afore. We've got the place to ourselves now an' here's a pianner. Couldn't give us a tune, could ye?"

"Oh, yes," she said willingly, and taking her place before the open instrument she dashed at once into one of those compositions usually labelled "Morceau de Concert." Her auditor listened but not with interest.

"That's pretty good," he said indifferently. "I s'pose you couldn't play 'Listen to the Mocking Bird,' could ye? I know a lady down my way et kin jis' knock that tune off like smoke."

She laughed good-naturedly, and at once began the variations upon "Auld Lang Syne," which so inexplicably introduces the other once popular melody.

She played with a fluent ease and brillancy that showed industrious practice, bringing out her melody well through all the labyrinth of runs, arpeggios and tremolos devised for it by the ingenious author.

The colonel sat entranced, the aperture between moustache and whisker widened to a degree that gave his countenance qute a cavernous aspect.

"Bully!" he cried when she had finished. "That jis' bangs the Widder Bates all to thunder. You ain't married?"

"Yes I am," she said, nodding her head and glancing at him mischievously.

"No! by thunder, that's too bad! You fill the bill almos' to a har, you do. I did say she shu'd have this yer fine yeller hair et's goin' about now, but that ain't no great matter much ef she's got style an' kin play the pianner, an' that you kin jis' everlastin'ly do. I sorter tuck a likin' to you the minit I see you. I swear it's too confounded bad."

"Didn't you see from my card that I was Mrs. Hemming?" she asked, as he paused ruefully.

"Why, yes; but I sorter took it for granted you was a widder, you bein' alone so. Mrs. Bates was a widder. Her an' me had it all made up to be married nex' spring. Her husband was shot 'bout a year ago an' her range bein' nex' to mine it seemed to come in nateral like ef we shud jine lan's an' han's. She's a middlin' fine, woman, too, an' kin play the pianner, though nothin' like you kin. She puts on a heap of style though an' calls herse'f the cattle queen of Neuces. So when she throwed me, I swore I'd bring a cattle queen to the country 'ud make her take a back seat. I did think of gettin' one of them white-faced yaller har'd girls, sich as I've seed at the theatre; but when I seed you I says to myse'f, 'She do mighty well es far es looks an' style goes.' and when I heard you play I was jus' carried clean off my feet. An' now you're married."

"Yes," she said, and her face darkened, "I'm married. It's funny' though, I'm going to Neuces county. I am going by the next steamer."

"Are you?" what for! He ain't run away from ye, is he?"

"Yes, he's run away from me," she returned, in an even tone that seemed to cover some repressed feeling.

"Well, dog on his mean hide! I'll shoot him on sight of ye say so. You didn't hear he was in Neuces county, did you?"

"Yes, I heard he was there."

"I ought to know him, then. I know putty nigh every man in the country. What is his name?"

She did not answer at once, appearing to reflect whether it were prudent to place so much confidence in a stranger, but finally she said slowly, and as if more to herself than to him:

"He calls himself Holden."

"Jack Holden?" cried the colonel, excitedly.

"So I heard," she said, looking keenly at him.

"The Widder Bates's husband, by—." The colonel forgot the restraint he had hitherto laid upon himself and uttered a genuine oath.

"It's true that he's married then?" she asked quickly, and with flashing eyes.

"Handsome, light-complected, curly-headed feller?"

"Yes."

"Plays the fiddle?"

"Yes."

"That's him! (explective) that's the Widder Bate's husband! D—n him! Shootin's too good for him. I'll raise a crowd an' hang him."

"No you won't," she said, and she drew her breath fiercely between her set teeth. "I can settle my own affairs."

* * * * *

Handsome Jack Hemming, alias Holden, sauntered slowly down the main street of Corpus, his wide sombrero in his hand, his curly head bared to the mild evening breeze that breathed softly in from the gulf. He wore the costume of the cattlemen, but somehow it fitted and became him as it became no other. On him the blue blouse belted at the waist, the leather breeches and the high boots seemed the proper dress of a gentleman.

Jack spent much of his time in Corpus now, since his marriage had put him in funds again, and there were men in the town who, had they chosen, could have given the cattle queen of Neuces some information that would have disturbed the complacent satisfaction with which she regarded her handsome prince consort.

Jack, however, concerned himself not at all about such possibilities. His scheme of life included little beyond enjoyment of the present, and he was already beginning to tire of the resources Corpus offered in that direction.

As he sauntered down the street with the sun in his eyes, he was revolving a plan for getting possession of certain thousands belonging to the Cattle Queen, and as he phrased it to himself, "Lighting out for 'Frisco." 'Frisco seemed just the place for him; he was half sorry he had not struck out for that city in the first instance.

A woman's figure issued from a doorway a few yards in advance and moved toward him. The sun being in his eyes, he did not see her very well, not even when she paused in front of him with a glittering something in her outstretched hand directed at his breast.

Something about her must have struck him as familiar, however, for he made a step forward with an inarticulate cry almost simultaneously with the red flash and the sharp report that split the evening quiet.

He wavered a moment, turned half about, made a futile effort to put on his hat, pressed his hand against his breast, then fell slowly forward.

The woman, who stood watching him with a face from which every particle of blood had fled, sprang forward with a loud shriek, and threw herself beside him.

A man, it was Colonel Sharp, ran to her and tried to lift her up.

"Come," he urged in a low tone, "that's a crowd gatherin'! You mus' git away."

"What! With you?" she exclaimed. Then crying out "Wait, Jack; I'm coming too," she turned the muzzle to her own breast and fired a second shot, as sure as the first.

The colonel slowly recovered himself. "Thar ain't," he said, solemnly taking off his hat and streching out his hand as if about to pronounce an oration, "thar ain't a man in Neuces that's her equal fer grit, or a woman that's her equal fer pianner playin'."

A Parson's Experience of Weddings.

Generally speaking, marriages pass off very smoothly, and frequently with very pretty effects. The brides are credited with careful study and perusal of the service for many days beforehand. Sometimes there has been a rehearsal. I have known brides, when the grooms have failed to make the proper responses, prompt them immediately and with the greatest facility. The most common mistake of the bride is to take off only one of her gloves, whereas both hands are brought into requisition in the service. As for the men, they commit all kinds of blunders and bunglings. I have known a man at that very nervous and trying moment, follow a clergyman within the communion rails, and prepare to take a place opposite him. I have known a man, when a minister stretched out his hand to unite those of the couple, take it vigorously in his own and give it a hearty shake. Sometimes more serious difficulties occur. Some ladies have had an almost unconquerable reluctance to use the word "obey;" one or two, if their own statement are to be accepted, have ingeniously constructed the word "nobey." The word, however, has still to be formally admitted into the language There was one girl, who was being married by a very kindly old clergyman, who absolutely refused to utter the word "obey." The minister suggested that if she were unwilling to utter the word aloud, she should whisper it to him; but the young lady refused to accept even this kind of compromise. Further, however, than this the clevgyman refused to accomodate her; but when he was forced to dismiss them all without proceeding any farther, the recalcitrant young person consented to "obey."

The difficulty, however, is not always made on the side of the lady. On one occasion the bridegroom wished to deliver a little oration qualifying his vow and describing in what sense and to what extent he was using the words of the formula. He was, of course, given to understand that nothing of this kind could be permitted. There was one man who accompanied the formula with sotto voce remarks which must have been exceedingly disagreeable to the officiating minister. He interpolated remarks after the fashion of Burchell's "Fudge!" "With this ring I thee wed; that's superstition." "With my body I thee worship; that's idolatry." "With all my worldly goods I thee endow; that's a lie." It is a wonder that such a being was not conducted out of the church by the beadle. This puts one in mind of an anecdote that is told of a man who was in his time a cabinet minister. There was a great discussion on the question whether a man can marry on three hundred a year. "All I can say," said the great man, "is that when I said, 'With all my worldly goods I thee endow,' so far from having three hundred pounds, I question whether, when all my debts were paid, I had three hundred pence." "Yes, my love," said his wife; "but then you have your splendid intellect." "I didn't endow you with that, ma'am," sharply retorted the right honorable husband. London Society.

Lincoln's First Inauguration.

Washington Correspondence Boston Tarveller:—

There are living at Washington today two gentlemen who were the committee appointed by the loyal citizens of Washington to make arrangements for the first inauguration of President Lincoln. These two gentlemen are Hon. Z. C. Robbins and Hon. Levi Clephane. When Lincoln came to Washington these two gentlemen insisted that he should be inaugurated at the Capitol. General Scott went over to President Buchanan and strongly advised that the inauguration ceremonies take place at Willard's Hotel. He said that it would be positively dangerous to attempt to go to the Capitol, but Buchanan said that inasmuch as Mr. Lincoln had been elected President he should be inaugurated with all the honors and in the same nanner as well as his predecessors. Pickets were stationed from the White House to the Capitol, and every precaution taken to insure safety from violence. Mr. Robbins rode alongside of Lincoln's carriage throughout the day. He says that Lincoln was the bravest man he ever saw. Every one expected that an attempt would be made upon the President's life, but all through those trying hours he chatted gaily with the gentlemen near him, and appeared totally unconscious of the presence of danger. Later on, Mr. Robbins was appointed Register of Wills in the District of Columbia, and Mr. Clephane became Postmaster of Washington, both gentlemen serving with distinguished ability.

Openings for Women's Work.

Forty years ago when Harriet Martineau was visiting this country, she found cause for serious complaint in the fact that there were so few occupations in which women might earn a livelihood. She asserted that the number was seven or eight, which was too low an estimate.

But since that time a wonderful revolution has taken place in our business habits. New openings have been made for women, and the remuneration for their labor has been greatly increased. Some one curious in statistics has counted up over two hundred and fifty occupations in which women are now employed.

They are crowding out men from many departments where only light work is required. But the applicants still outnumber the places to be filled. There is, however, a growing demand for women whose qualifications are of a high order. Women of superior talent and tact who are now willing to give themselves permanently to departments difficult to fill can command large salaries.

The complaint is general that our public school education does not cultivate either the disposition or the power to fill places of great responsibility. A girl truly educated, ought to be fitted for any kind of work that is suitable for a female to do, and she should do it so well as to create a demand for her services.

OLD TIME LINES.

In a "New England primer" printed in 1805, found in the library of one of the early settlers of the east end of Long Island, occur the following verses, solemnly addressed to "disobedient boys:"

"I am come to fetch thy breath,
And carry thee to the shades of Death;
No pity on thee can I show,
Thou hast thy God offended so.
Thy soul and body I'll divide;
Thy body in the grave I'll hide
And thy dear Soul in hell must be
With devils to Eternity.
Thus ends the days of woful youth
Who won't obey, nor mind the truth;
Nor hearken to what preachers say
But do their parents disobey.
They in their youth shall go to hell
Under Eternal wrath do dwell!
And shall not live out half their days
For cleaving unto sinful ways."

THE SQUIRE'S PEACHES.

The squire was on his way home from the village; a peep at the back of the wagon and under the seat proved this, setting aside the fact that it was Thursday night.

Squire Holt always went to the store and post office on that night, getting his weekly supplies of groceries and the mail for the whole neighborhood. It was a way they had in Jewett Road, the first one who called at the postoffice got the mail for that district and delivered it as he drove home.

The sun had just dropped to rest behind a pile of golden crimson clouds, which lay banked together in the western sky. No wonder the Squire drops the reins on Prince's back, and patting the dog on the seat beside him, looks back.

He is just passing under the noble elms in front of the Hawthorne place, having climbed the steep hill from the village. He sees the cluster of houses, the two church spires, the plain academy building and the stone church, which comprise the village. Beyond the farm are dwellings nestled among the trees; hillside homes that lie between him and Kersage. He takes it all in at a glance, but his eye follows the range of hills and settles at the foot of a tiny mountain; though too far away to discern any dwellings, he sees it all in his mind's eye.

There have been a hundred sunsets like this, a hundred twilights just as fresh, and the Squire has passed this way times without number; still he always looks back.

"I never pass this turn in the road without taking a look at the dear old mountain."

He is talking to the dog, or to himself.

"I like to see it look warm and pleasant over there. It was just such a night as this that I brought my bride away. We have driven over the road a good many times since then, and we always speak of that one ride. She has been my 'angel over the right shoulder' ever since. I guess she is pretty happy in Jewett Road, after all. She is so sensible and so good at planning. I wonder if she cant solve this peach trouble. The boys are a real bother, and I hope she can find a way to manage them."

The Squire was so busy with his thoughts and those "academy boys" that he left the turnpike and was driving by Blacksmith Porter's without noticing the little man in his leather apron, who stood against the door of his shop.

"Whoa, Prince! Here are a couple of letters for your folks. I guess one of them is from your son William; the stamp is one of those outlandish Western towns. Strange that he took to music when the rest of our boys and girls can't sing any more than a cracked fiddle. Blacksmithing pretty brisk? Yes, I thought so; see you at it early and late. No, I can't stop to go in. I've got some letters to deliver; much as a dozen in the top of my hat. I must hurry along. Wife will have supper ready and waiting."

Sure enough, he found it waiting. Pandowdy and a pitcher of rich milk; snowy bread and golden butter, and for "top off" as the husband called it, two richly browned cup-custards.

The Squire was hungry, but in the midst of his eating told of his trip, whom he saw, what they said, and all the little gossip that she depended upon his telling. They were a mile or more from the village, and did not get the news every day.

"You look as though there was something on your mind that troubled you. What is it?"

Mrs. Holt had finished her supper and was standing by her husband's chair. She drew his head close to her side, and stroking his gray hair, said:

"Can I help you about anything?"

"Yes, little woman, I think you can. I want you to think out one of your plans to conquer the rogues from the village academy, who, they tell me, are at their pranks again and are planning a raid on our peach orchard this night."

They talked some time; at last the best plan was decided upon. Before the squire went to the barn and shut up for the night, he took his plain-faced little woman into his strong arms and kissing her cheek, said, "What could I do without you? You teach me a lesson every day." And then he went out singing, "The dearest spot on earth to me is home, sweet home!"

It was nearing midnight, and Mrs. Holt was growing very anxious. Three long hours the Squire had been gone. She said to herself: "The boys will do him no harm, I am sure. They are a little wild on these raid nights, but at heart they are good meaning fellows. I hope our plan will work good things. My heart yearns over them. Far away from their homes, without a mother's care or a father's restraint, many of them having nothing to hinder their being reckless, unless we can inspire a principle within them. Who can tell what good results may come from a kind word? Hark! I hear his footsteps."

"Where are you peaches? Did he set the dogs on you?"

The questions were asked by three sickly-looking lads as they climbed the fence. They agreed to wait about half way between the Squire's and the village, and help carry home the plunder.

"Oh, ain't you smart to come without any. If I'd gone, there wouldn't have been a peach left on the trees. I wouldn't care for old Holt or that bobtailed dog of his—or—"

"Shut up, you brag! I won't hear you call Squire Holt names. You know you were a coward and were afraid to go. We have been, and I for one have learned a lesson. I wish I had never been caught in so mean a scrape. I feel fif-ty per cent. meaner than if he had set the dogs on us," and Arthur Gregg's manly face grew set and determined.

"Tell us about it, Arthur, before we get into the village," said one of the pale-faced boys, with quick eagerness.

"Well, you see, we went as sly as mice, climbed the wall, and were heading straight for that rare-ripe tree, when who should come up alongside of us but Squire Holt himself.

"'Well, boys,' said he, 'I suppose you have come to take my peaches. I've been watching you for a long time to tell you they are not fit to eat. I know they look rich, but they will be much nicer a week from now. What's more, I can,t bear to see you running on this way. Your cheeks are as rosy as the peaches, and I want you to ripen as beautifully as they do; but you never can if you keep on in the way you have been going of late. You are naturally noble fellows, and you must not steal from my farm. I'd rather give you every peach on the trees than know of your doing so mean a thing. Now, listen boys, and I'll tell you my plan. We, my wife and I, want you to come to our home, a week from to-night, and spend the evening with us. Then you shall have all the peaches you can eat. Good-night. Remember, a week from to-night. We shall look for you. Come earlier than this, as we usually draw in the latch string by nine.'

"Then he jumped over the wall, and went home, leaving us there in the middle of the orchard, but I'd sooner cut my hands off than touch one of his peaches."

So the boys filed back into the village and into their beds, determined that Squire Holt should never again have cause to feel uneasy about them.

* * * *

By seven o,clock on the following Thursday, the farmer's kitchen was full of boys, straight from the academy, chatting merrily with the jovial farmer and his pleasant wife. He told them stories of his early life, and how he came to the conclusion that the best way to sow wild oats was to scatter seeds of kindness.

"I tell you what it is, boys, the reaping's a great deal more satisfactory. It took me some time to find this out, but I learned it before I got my spring wheat sowed just as I'm sure you will do. Here comes my little wife with the pitcher of cream, and her sugar-crusted sponge cake. If Benton and Gregg will bring the milk-pan of peaches from the pantry, we'll give them a fair trial."

When the party broke up one hearty lad took Squire Holt by the hand and said:

"You may find us on your farm again some day. But I'll give you my word it won't be to steal your property. If any one of us can do you a favor, just let us know."

The boys went back to the village full of plans for the coming harvesting. The farmer, and his wife, Lucy, gathered up the fragments, talked over the merits of the boys, and put out the lights.

"You women can get at the hearts of such boys; they won't forget your kindness very soon. What were you and Gregg so busy about?"

"Oh, not much. Only I told him to bring down his winter feeting, and I would look them over and fix them up for cold weather, for you know, husband, there's but one pair of stockings for me to mend now."

He drew her close to his side, and repeated the verse of the poem he knew was in her thoughts:

"For each empty nook in the basket—
By the hearth there's one empty seat
And I miss the shadows from off the wall
And the patter of many feet;
Tis for this that a tear gathered on my sight,
At the one pair of stockings to mend to-night."

When the harvesting time came the Squire went out to his corn field one day, saying laughingly to himself as he went:

"I don't feel very strong, I'll admit, but I guess I can manage to cut a few rows."

Imagine his surprise to find the corn all cut, and a dozen or more academy boys hard at work shocking it.

"Don't say one word," exclaimed one, as the farmer tried to thank them, "we've been watching this corn-field for some time. We want you to promise us one thing."

"Say on," said the Squire, "You boys are working your way into a tender spot in my heart, and can do most anything with me."

"And you, sir," said Arthur Gregg, stepping forward and grasping the sunburnt hand, "have worked your way into ours, and made us proud of the tender spot in our hearts and anxious to cultivate it. You have touched this spot with your confidence and friendliness. When we have housed and husked this field of corn, then you may thank us if you wish; but you and your noble wife must always remember that you once did us a kindness far beyond anything we have done for you. Our work must be done over next year, but I feel sure the work you have done for us will be remembered a life-time."

There was a grand husking in Squire Holt's barn in the course of a few days, and all the young folks came. The villagers wondered "how those school boys came to be on such good terms with the people in Jewitt Road." Let them wonder. These boys learned that nothing worth having is gained by transgression, and nothing worth keeping is lost by nobleness.

Hot Waves in England and America.

From the New York Herald.

Recently the heat in London sent the mercury up to 90 degrees Fahrenheit, the most intense heat that had been experienced there in twenty years. On the 15th of July, 1881, London was visited by a "warm wave" in which the shade thermometer registered 94.6 at Camden Square and 97.1 degrees at Greenwich; while thermometers exposed to the direct solar rays went more than 50 degrees higher. Such Italian heat in the British Islands is phenomenal. No wonder that it caused a partial suspension of work in the metropolis and several deaths from sunstroke. It is remarkable that simultaneously with this outburst of solar energy in England the thermometer in Northern Montana (on the 11th) read 93 degrees at Fort Buford, and on the 12th also, in the same district, the mercury rose to 94. On the 13th the maximum heat for the day at Fort Buford was reported to be 100 degrees! This coincidence apparently disproves the theory that the question of temperature in any given country is merely a question of transference of heat from one part of the earth's surface to the other.

Punishment on the Soles of the Feet.

"As I walk up the room a clock strikes the hour of two. The prefect offers me his hand, and at his invitation I take a seat by his side. Then a negro clad in a long white robe and wearing on his head an enormous yellow turban, brings me a little cup of coffee and a bundle of cigarettes. As I hand back my cup to this imposing servitor, three Arabs, escorted by two guards, are led before the prefect. These unfortunates seem to belong to the poorest of the people; their feet are bare, their clothing is worn and ragged, their hands tremble convulsively, their eyes are haggard, and their faces twitch in apprehension as they listen in mournful silence to the words addressed them by the perfect. After the exchange of a few words two of the prisoners are led from the room. Then five men enter. These are torturers, and nothing more fell or hang-dog than their looks can be imagined. Four of them seize the Arab who is still standing before the perfect, and the poor wreatch, as he is cast on the ground, throws at him a glance eloquent with agony and fear, but the great man's countenance remains fixed and impassive, and he makes no sign of grace.

The victim was then placed on one of the slabs with his chest resting on the stone, in which position he was held by two of the executioners. Two others next raised his legs until his feet were in a horizontal position in which they were retained by means of a cord fastened to either end of a stick. Each man held the stick with one hand while with the other he kept fast hold of the Arab's legs. In the grip of those four powerful and expert men it was impossible for him to move and almost impossible for him to writhe. On this the fifth torturer, who had taken no part in the preliminary proceedings, came forward, holding in his hand a sort of lash consisting of five strands of twisted gut or hide. The face of this man was singularly hideous and repulsive.

He raised his arm and struck with the regularity of a pendulum the upturned feet of his helpless victim. At the fourth stroke the Arab uttered a cry of pain, and at every fresh stroke the cry was repeated. But soon the cry became a scream, the flagellated flesh visibly shuddered and the soles were seamed with red and livid streaks. Sitting silently on my cushion, chewing mechanically the tobacco of my extinguished cigarette, I could not help shivering with horror at the sight of so much suffering. I felt as if I were under the influence of some terrible nightmare. Osman Bey, his secretary, the five executioners, with their stern and sinister features, looking unmoved on so cruel a sight, seemed for a moment rather the creations of a disordered imagination than beings of flesh and blood, but the heavy thud of the strokes and the screams of the victim recalled me to the sad reality which I was so reluctantly witnessing. Then the punishment ceased, and the Arab, with ghastly face and body shaken with a feverish trembling, had to incline himself respectfully before the man by whose order he had been cruelly tormented. Helped by a guard, for his maimed and bleeding feet refused to support him, he was then led, still moaning with agony, from the torture chamber. The two other Arabs were afterwards punished in like manner. It was now past 3 o'clock, and his Excellency, putting on his usual pleasant smile, gave me his orders concerning the services of the police. I then saluted him and hurried away from the place where I had seen the practical application of a barbarous jurisprudence."—[Hilaire Gay's Book on Egyptian Tortures.

How a Butcher Weighs a Steak.

From the Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Business man to butcher: "Give me a small porter-house steak."

Butcher whirls his knife, cuts three slices out of the atmosphere and one off the meat. Then he spreads the steak like a sail and throws it violently into the scale pan, his eagle eye catching the scale-hand as it made the lowest dip on the dial. The scale rapidly recuperates from the force of the butchers throw, and the index moves backward toward the truthful weight. The butcher baffles this honest intention by snatching the meat, and cheerfully whispers to the customer: "Seventy-five cents please."

Business man (dubiously producing specie): "The meat looks lighter than the money, but that spring of yours is worth paying to see."

Butcher (philosophically): "I never allow anything to outweigh my first observation."

Business man (reflectivly): "Truth is mighty and will prevail—sometimes."

Settlers in the Canadian Northwest.

Montreal Gazette.

About 20,000 immigrants have entered the Northwest thus far this year, and although this number falls short of that of last year, the class of people entering the country is now much superior. The crofters, who are settled on Government land north and south of the track between Fleming and Wapella stations, are doing wonderfully well. Lady Gordon Cathcart advanced £50 to each family, which was supplemented by an advance of £50 more made by the Canadian Northwest Company, which draws 6 per cent. on the money. Mr. Scarth very wisely arranged it so that the crofters should not be huddled together in one colony, but mixed up with Canadian and English settlers, from whom they can learn many a wrinkle. The English settlers, with the exception of those from London, are, on the whole, first class farmers, and with a good crop and fair prices this fall they will be able to bring a very large area of land under cultivation next season.

"It's a remarkab le case," said a doctor to a brother physician, the latter just entering the profession. "My experience, of course, is not large," returned the young man, modestly, "but I quite agree with you doctor; it certainly is a remarkable case, and of great interest to the profession. Do you think we shall be able to save the patient!" "Save the patient?" exclaimed the first speaker; "no, we won't be able to save the patient, but we will have a post-mortem examination, and that is of much more importance."

Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Publisher.

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

Ohio's wheat crop of this year will yield 48,982,969 bushels, of excellent quality. This is the largest crop of the state, except that of 1880, when the yield was 48,540,000 bushels. The oat crop will produce 28,893,663 bushels, or about 31.2 bushels to the acre. The barley crop will yield about 1,000,000 bushels. Corn has suffered from drouth, and is about 70 per cent. of an average crop.

A Californian has lately returned from India, where he gave considerable attention to wheat raising in that country. He says: Cheap labor and the wonderful fertility of the Indian soil apply to the wheat problem. Two crops will grow in a year. Famines occur in such a country only because the people are so poor, not because there is not enough to eat. Opium is now raised in India under the command of the British Government. If that Government should issue the command to raise wheat, England is at once independent of the American crop. The thing is done. Mr. Swift thought that in a few years England's wheat supply might all come from India.

Prof. Dodge, statistician of the agricultural department, in a recent work upon the industrial economy of the United States, presents deductions from statistics showing that half the cultivated area of the United States lies in one-fourth of its territory, producing more than three-fourths of some to the principal crops. The fact is shown that the Ohio valley is the most fully developed body of land, Ohio having 94 per cent. of her surface in farms, Indiana 88.9, Illinois 88.4, Kentucky 84 and no other state as much. It is shown that already three-tenths of the manufactures of the United States are produced within the Central West in less than three-tenths of the area of the country, within half a century from its settlement.

A noted wheat dealer in Milwaukee has recently been gathering reports relative to the wheat crop of the United States. These reports, well founded or not, have had a large circulation. They show a total production of winter wheat of 380,000,000 bushels, and a total of spring wheat of 150,000,000. The total winter and spring is 530,000,000 bushels. This makes the total yield of the country fully 25,000,000 bushels more than ever before produced, 130,000,000 more than last year's crop, and 80,000,000 more than the average crop for the past five years. These statements are far in advance of thresher's reports, and are likely to be considerably reduced, as has always been the case heretofore.

The impressive and largely attended ceremonies in the Mormon temple at Utah over the bodies of the missionaries murdered in Tennessee, and the spirit manifested there, are another evidence of the folly, to say nothing of the crime, of bloodshed and violence directed against Mormonism. It is helped rather than hurt by it, strengthened in the devotion of its present members, and made more attractive for proselytes by the sensation of persecution. The day is past, when any form of faith, however repugnant to moral or social order, can be attacked by violence; and if Christian persuasion and example are powerless to influence Mormonism, there is nothing but to prevent its offenses against the laws, and leave it alone under the protection to religious freedom guaranteed by the Constitution.

An Eastern paper, commenting on the low prices of cereals, extracts comfort from the following statement: A dollar will buy 2 to 3½ pounds more of sugar than a year ago; leather has declined 8 to 5 cents or 10 to 15 per cent; pig iron has declined about 15 per cent; bar iron 15 per cent; nails 24 per cent; steel rails 36 per cent; cotton goods 4 to 10 per cent; though raw cotton is higher than a year ago; common woolen fabrics are 10 to 30 per cent lower, etc. The only articles of great commercial importance which sell at relatively higher prices are certain agricultural productions, such as corn, live-stock and meat. It, therefore, results that a bushel of wheat should have at present valuations about as great a purchasing power as a year ago, though the price is much lower. It should purchase more sugar, iron, hardware, and many other articles than a year ago, but of some other articles, such as coffee and cotton goods it will pur chase less."

Commander Merry, in his official report of the Tallapoosa accident, fails to explain satisfactorily the position of his own vessel, and he differs materially from the report of the captain of the Lowell and the affidavits of its watch and helmsman, as to which light the Tallapoosa showed the Lowell. Captain Merry says the green or starboard light; all on board the Lowell agree that the red light was first sighted, and the green light opened only after the steamer changed her course. Nothing short of the report of the court of inquiry can clear up these discrepancies, nearly all of which tell against the management of the Tallapoosa. Unfortunately for the credit of our navy, the last time a war vessel was recklessly thrown away by its officers on a clear night it was because they were drunk [illegible]

THE PITH OF THE NEWS.

Washington News.

The total interest bearing debt of the United States is $1,216,526,400. The total debt, $12165,264,000. Decrease during August, $8,533,832.

Indian Commissioner Price has taken measures for the immediate relief of the starving Piegan Indians at Blackfeet agency in Montana.

Record of Casualties.

Melvena Butler was killed at Boston by a spent ball fired from a musket fully a mile away.

At Cadiz, Ohio, young man Nash told his sweetheart jokingly that all was over between them, whereupon she took to her bed and died, and he is on the verge of insanity.

While a party were in bathing at New Buffalo, Mich., recently, Harry Harris, manager of the Western Union telegraph office, and Miss Emma Phillips were drowned. The bodies have not been recovered.

The New York Daily Commercial Bulletin reports loss by fire in August, $10,500,000 exceeding any previous known fire record of that month, and making a total of $74,000,000 destruction wrought by fire this year so far, and about $11,000,000 in excess of the same eight months of 1883, the total of which year was in excess of any previous year except 1871 and 1872, when the great Chicago and Boston fires occurred. During August there were eighteen fires, the destructiveness of which aggregated $3,700,000, more than one-third the entire fire loss of the month.

The Criminal Calendar.

Frank Patterson, owner of the opera house at Long Branch, N. J., is missing, and detectives are searching for him with warrants for his arrest. He is charged with having forged the endorsements of a number of well known residents of Monmouth county on notes aggregating over $20,000.

At Denver, early Sunday morning, John P. Clow, who lays claim to the title of the champion pugilist of Colorado, and Alex Thebold, a cowboy, had a set-to with gloves. The cowboy, though a physical giant, was knocked out the first round.

Samuel Roberts, the defaulting paymaster, was arrested at Wilkesbarre, Pa., taken from his summer residence to the city and taken before Ald. Rooney. Charles Parrish absolutely refused to testify against Roberts. The defendant waived a hearing and gave bail in $5,000 for his appearance at the criminal court.

O. W. Wilson, forty-seven years old, an agent for the Brooks' Oil Company, of Cleveland, Ohio, committed suicide Friday afternoon by jumping from a steamer in the lake while on his way from Chicago to Milwaukee. It is supposed that poor business drove him to take his life. He had been divorced twice from his wife whose address is not known.

Ole L. Westerguard, the book-keeper employed for the past two years by P. P. Swenson in his real estate and foreign exchange office under the Northwestern bank, at Minneapolis, had absconded recently leaving his accounts in a very irregular and unsatisfactory manner. The books are being now examined by an expert accountant, who has already discovered many false entries by which the firm loses several hundred dollars.

Richard W. Peck of Brooklyn has brought suit for $100,000 damages against B. T. Babbit, the soap man, charging as one of the items that his wife received from Babbit the sum of $19,000 as an inducement to her to sanction the soap man in assuming improper relations with Miss Peck, a girl of unblemished character. Mrs. Peck is small and slight; always dresses neatly, and has quiet, self-possessed manners. Her picture is in the rogue's gallery at Brooklyn police headquarters.

Thomas J. Libby, proprietor of the West Point house, at Proutsneck, Scarborough, Me., a married man, came to a hotel recently with Lydia Snow, who is reported to have worked at his house. Shots were heard in his room, and, on looking over the door, both were seen lying on the floor. Entering the room, it was found that Libby had fired two or three shots at her, one of which had passed through her left cheek and lodged in her head, and another passed through the partition in the next room. He then shot himself behind the ear, inflicting a slight wound.

Louisville Special:—The individual who forged a draft on William Tarr & Co., of Lexington, in favor of William Tarr, Jr., for $5,050, was the same who played a confidence game on William Kendrick & Son, jewelers of this city, for $1,500 diamond ear rings. He purchased $5,000 worth of bonds from J. W. & D. S. Green, and gave a check on a Lexington bank for payment. He was not given the bonds, however, because something wrong was suspected. He left the brokers' establishment and worked the jewelry store, then skipped for parts unknown. The swindler is described as a well-dressed, handsome man of florid complexion and sandy moustache.

At daybreak last Thursday morning five hundred men filled the pavilion of the sporting house at Rockaway Beach, N. Y., to witness a fight with hard gloves, marquis of Queensbury rules, between Jim McHugh of Glasgow and Dave Fitzgerald of Toronto, for $1,000 and gate money. The men appeared in the ring promptly. McHugh weighed 126 pounds, Fitzgerald 150. Preliminaries being finished the men advanced when time was called to the center of the ring, and then commenced one of the most exciting fights on record, lasting three hours and thirty-five minutes, and ending in a draw in favor of McHugh. Along towards the end of the fight the spectators began to crowd the ring, and finally, at the end of the forty-fifth round, they became so obstreperous that the referee called on the seconds to withdraw the men. Fitzgerald was badly punished.

Miscellaneous News Notes.

New Brunswick, N. J., celebrated its centennial on the 18th inst., although George II. granted it a charter in 1730.

John T. West, the proprietor of the Nicollet house, Minneapolis, filed a suit against the Minneapolis Base Ball association to recover $570.47 for the board, washing and lodging of the defendants, its agents and employes, from the 12th of June to the 31st of August. A writ of attachment was also issued to seize on the building, fence, and other property of the association for the payment of the bill.

Foster, Blackman & Co., a heavy Big Rapids, Mich., lumber firm, also operating at Baldwin and other points on the Detroit, Lansing & Northern, have filed a chattel mortgage of $53,034 in favor of the Big Rapids National bank and one of $59,988 to the Grand Rapids National bank; both mortgages to secure commercial and accommodation paper and cover all lumber, lath and saw logs at the mills and in the vicinity of Baldwin, also goods at Baldwin.

Winnipeg Special: Following is a list of those who have been selected from 200 applicants to form the Manitoba contingent of the Gordon relief expedition:

A. M. Armstrong, C. P. Braithwaite, C. L. Shaw, H. G. Wilson, W. A. Gallagher, G. B. Haight, W. E. Sharrard, F. A. Munson, G. Blanchard, N. McCallum, H. C. Mark, M. McKeand, W. J. Winters, G. W. H. Page, F. Ritchie, J. T. Rutledge, K. J. Ellis, T. Gromes, H. G. Wilson, E. H. White, B. Oswald, T. M. Jones, T. Pierce, C. F. Daly, G. A. Bouchette, D. G. McLeannan, T. H. Atkinson, G. Menzies, L. Smith, P. Leonard, F. Colling, T. Regan, W. A. McDonald, P. Cadarette, J. Johnston, A. McDonald, Alexander Kennedy, A. Connolly, E. McKay, R. Stevenson, T. Pratt, A. Cochrane, T. Corrigal, D. Corrigal, I. Butler.

It has been very difficult to obtain the right class of men, the applicants' own statements having to be relied on in many instances. Those who pass will assemble at the Canadian Pacific railway depot on Saturday next, ready to embark. If possible each man will provide himself with a paddle. The party will receive a complete outfit on arriving at Montreal.

Personal Notes.

Stanley is going to lecture in England, and may explore the United States.

W. S. Lingle, founder of the Lafayette (Ind.) Courier, and postmaster for that city, died at Waukesha, Wis., recently, [illegible]

Nellie Boyd, the actress, owns several farms in Nebraska, a fine fruit farm at Fresno, Cal, a cottage at Geneva Lake, and her old home in Chicago.

Alphonso Taft, the new American minister to Russia, was accorded a reception recently by the czar and czarina, when he presented his credentials.

Mrs. Garfield left her summer home at Mentor last Saturday, and is now visiting the family of ex-Attorney General Wayne McVeagh at Philadelphia. Harry and James Garfield have returned to William College, where they are "seniors." Miss "Mollie" will spend another year at a private school at Cleveland.

Mr. Fenton of St. Paul, Minn., was brought before the recorder at Montreal, charged with obstructing passengers by preaching on the street. He pleaded guilty, but as this was his first offense, and he being here to attend the meeting of the British association, sentence was suspended. The matter will be tested in the higher courts.

Nuggets of Foreign News.

Mme. Patti writes that her appearance at Paris in opera, Oct. 25, is contingent upon a favorable settlement of her divorce proceedings against the Marquis de Caux.

The North German Gazette attributes to Bismarck the design to create a political blockade against England by forming a coalition of the powers, unless her egotistical policy of colonial extention is abandoned.

The secretaries of the American board of foreign missions are informed from Fow Chow, China, that their missionaries, as well as those of the American Methodist society, were uninjured in the recent bombardment.

The Italian government has forbidden a continuance of quarantine regulations, arbitrarily established by the local authorities in various parts of Italy. The minister of foreign affairs and minister of agriculture are visiting Naples. King Humbert also talks of visiting that city to personally investigate its sanitary condition. At Naples the lower quarters of town are in a filthy condition, drainage being defective. From midnight Sunday to noon Tuesday there were ninety-four fresh cases and thirty-two deaths. The increase is owing to a heavy rainfall and consequent lowering temperature. Western or higher portions of Naples are practically free from the epidemic. Lazarettos have been established at Ceprano and Albano stations on the railway from Naples to Roma.

The President and the British Admiral

At Newport, R. I., on Friday, President Arthur returned a call made Sunday by Admiral Commerell of the British flagship, Northampton. Captain Digby and staff received the president and conducted him to the saloon, where Arthur again met Admiral Commerell wife and daughter. After being entertained there the president was escorted to several parts of the ship and had explained the workings of the heavy guns. At 5 the yards were again manned and the American flag run up to the peak—a signal for a salute of twenty-one guns on the president's departure. As the salute was being fired the American squadron steamed into the harbor. The Tennessee also fired a salute of two guns.

Lieutenant Greely Defended in Washington.

An officer of the Greely relief expedition said: The criticisms upon Greely's lack of discipline are unwarranted. He is no particular friend of mine, but I am confident that if an inquiry is had he will come out ahead. He has never said a word against Hazen, but he has severely criticised Garlington for not examining the cache of provisions at Payer harbor as directed. If he had done that and left a fresh supply instead of the spoiled rations that were there, it is probable that many more of the party would have been able to pull through. Greely's work is remarkable. He brought every man to the place he said he would two days before the time fixed, where he had every reason to except assistance. He must have exercised strict discipline or he never could have done it. Here is an instance of his discipline. At Capo Sabine Dr. Pavy and one of the men came into his tent and insisted upon an immediate divison of the supplies on hand. Greely promptly refused, and when they further insisted he ordered them out of his tent. Weak as he was he threatened to shoot them on the spot if they did not obey, and they went. Every officer of the relief expedition has expressed admiration for Greely's pluck and management. If there is any fight over the matter you may rest assured that Greely may hold his own. He is no fool. He will undoubtedly be promoted if there is not strong opposition in high places. I have no idea that the story about Brainerd is true. He ought to be promoted for he deserves it if ever a man did.

CHARLES J. FOLGER DEAD.

Sudden Death of the Secretary of the Treasury Folger at His Home at Geneva, N. Y.

Hon. Charles J. Folger, secretary of the treasury, died suddenly at his home at Geneva, N. Y. at 4:55 Thursday afternoon. The only persons present were Mrs. Hart, his deceased wife's sister, Dr. Knapp and his law associates, his family physician, Dr. A. B. Smith, and his colored servant, James. Dr. Smith and Capt. J. S. Lewis had left him but a few minutes previously. Dr. Henry Foster, who has been there two or three times as consulting physician, arrived on the 4:45 train, and was conveyed to the Folger mansion by Dr. Smith. Mrs. Ernst, the secretary's sister, arrived by the same train. After the three last named entered, the dying man gasped twice and all was over. Secretary Folger's two daughters are in the Adirondacks. The elder is in very feeble health. His son, Capt. Charles W. Folger, is at Alexandria, Va. All had been written to come to Geneva, the telegraph not being earlier resorted to, as a sudden termination was not apprehended. The secretary returned for the last time to Geneva Wednesday evening, the 20 ult. He called his family physician the next morning, who gives the following diagnosis of the case:

Great feebleness of the heart's action; congestion of the middle lobe, right lung, and capillary congestion of the bronchial tubes; torpid liver; albuminous discharge of urine, showing disease of the kidneys.

The doctor was informed that the secretary had had hemorrhage of the lungs three times of late, before his return. The first was while out yachting with friends at New York, on which occasion he discharged about a punt of blood. The secretary rode out daily until the 29th ult., since which time he kept his room, but did not wholly abandon official work. He continued to answer important letters and telegrams up to Wednesday, and seemed reluctant to give up; yet he was by no means unconscious of his critical condition. He entrusted to his personal friend, Capt. Lewis, final messages to his family and other directions of a confidential nature. Within a few moments after the secretary expired. Judge Folger was appointed secretary of the treasury by President Arthur on the reorganization of the cabinet soon after the death of President Garfield. He had served in that capacity nearly three years. At the time of his appointment he was chief justice of the court of appeals of the State of New York. Judge Folger has filled the high and honorable position with fidelity, honesty, and efficiency, earning the respect of the people at large and the warmest regard of all in the department. He had good executive ability, and his thorough knowledge of law and his well-trained judicial mind enabled him to meet intelligently and successfully many important questions. While strict in requiring faithful service of all employes, he was always kind and considerate toward his subordinates.

Market Reports.

St. Paul.—Wheat, old, No. 1 hard, 96@97c. Corn, No. 2, 49@53; No. 3, 45@49c.

Oats, No. 2 mixed, 23@25c; No. 2 white, 25c; No. 3 white 24c; rejected, 20c.

Barley, No. 2, 55c; No. 3 extra 45c; No. 3, 40c.

Rye, No. 2, 48c.

Potatoes, 25c.

Baled Hay, wild, $7.50; timothy, $9.50@10.50.

Eggs, 13@14c.

Milwaukee.—Wheat, No. 2, 77¾c.

Corn, rejected, 54c.

Oats, No. 2, 29@29½c; No. 2 white, 30c.

Rye, No. 1, 53c; No. 2, 53c.

Barley, No. 2, old, 62c.

Mess Pork, $7.25.

Lard, $7.45.

Butter, choice creamery, 20@21c; fair to good, 17@19c; best dairy, 15@16c.

Eggs, 13@13½c.

Chicago.—Wheat, No. 2 Chicago spring, 77¼@77½c; No. 3, Chicago spring 64@65c; No. 2 red, 81@81½c; No. 3 red, 71@71½c.

Corn, [illegible]

Oats, 24½c.

Rye, [illegible]

Barley, 63½c.

Flax Seed, $1.30½.

Pork, $18.50@$19.00.

Lard, $7.35@$7.52½.

Butter, creamery, 17@18½c; dairy, 14@14½c.

Eggs, 13@14c.

REPUBLICAN POLITICAL NOTES.

Drawing the Line at Hangman.

Mr. Frank Wilkeson—son of one of the brightest and most incisive of the New York journalists of twenty years ago, and himself well known for his occasional contributions to the Sun—concludes a spirited protest, addressed to the Sun, against the election of Cleveland, in this slashing style: "We have had presidents who begun life on Mississippi river flatboats; who sat cross-legged on a tailor's bench, and who drove mules on a canal towpath; but they assiduously strove to rise in life, and to occupy positions in reputable professions. It remained for the Southern Democrats, who strenuously insist that they were high-toned gentlemen all, to force on to the Democratic party as its presidential candidate this sordid person, who, having secured a position in the ranks of a learned and honorable profession, descended into the ranks of headsmen and hangmen."

What the Republican party Has Done.

It crushed our treason and rebellion and gave new vitality and force to the sentiment, "Liberty and Union now and forever, one and inseparable."

It gave freedom to 4,000,000 of bondsmen.

It raised a servile race into citizenship.

It restored prosperity to the industries of the country and dotted the country over with busy factories, furnishing employment to multiplied thousands of working people.

It has increased the wealth of the nation more than three-fold.

It has extened our foreign commerce until the nation sold $3,000,000,000, more of its products in twenty-three years than had previously been sold from the first settlement of the country to 1860.

It has spanned the continent with railroads and made the desert place of the west to blossom with busy life.

It has given to the country a staple currency in place of the wild cat issue fostered by the democracy.

It has raised the standard of the nation's credit to a point never befor e attained by any government.

It has paid off the national debt faster than was ever done by any nation.

It has reduced the interest burden from $172,000,000 to less than $50,000,000 annually.

It has reduced the losses from embezzlements from $3.18 on every $1,000 under James Buchanan, to less than one cent on each $1,000.

It has reduced the cost of collecting the Federal taxation, the last Republican congress reducing it fourfold more than the Democratic party did in eight years.

It has kept every pledge made to the people.

It has made the nation great, prosperous and rich beyond the wildest dreams of the people.

While reducing the national debt at a rapid rate, it has paid in pensions to the gallant soldiers who fought the battles of the Union, the enormous sum of $920,000,000.

Such is the Record of Republican policy and administration for twenty-three years. During all the time the Democracy has met once in every four years, passed columns of resolutions and then gone up and down the country, grumbling and finding fault.

Testimony from Cleveland's Home.

Whatever effort Grover Cleveland's "independent" friends may make to fortify his position with a manifesto of their personal confidence in the integrity and purity of his private character, there are some facts which they can not deny. He has been a resident of Buffalo for the greater part of his life. He has grown up with this remarkable prosperous city. He has seen it take a start in fresh vigor and enterprise. He has seen its population almost doubled within the past twenty years. He has seen its vast and widely extended commercial resources developed to an extent far beyond the predictions of the most sanguine of a quarter of a century ago. With industrial growth and commercial enterprise the city has made steady, satisfactory progress in public education, culture, the arts and sciences, and social improvement. During all these years, Cleveland has seen the national goevrnment pass through the most eventful period of its existence. He has lived in a time that has tried men's souls; that has quickened young, patriotic blood, and brought what was sound, true and earnest in American citizenship to the front. A long, devastating civil war; a severe, almost equally perilous, struggle for "reconstruction"; the establishment of a national banking system; the maintenance of public credit; the protection of American industry against the competition of European pauper labor; the reform of the civil service—on all of these trying issues the American people have been compelled to assert their manhood, their courage, their devotion to principle. Where has Grover Cleveland stood: What has he been? As a citizen up to the time he was elected mayor, the man was almost a nonentity. There is not an institution devoted to the city's progress in industrial development, in material resources, in literature, art, public morality, with which Grover Cleveland has been even remotely identified, or to which he ever gave the slightest encouragement. Selfish and self-engrossed, he has devoted himself to his private business without the faintest demonstration of public spirit. Prior to the time when a peculiar condition of things suggested him as an available candidate for mayor, his name would not have been mentioned with the fifty leading men in Buffalo. As for social position, whatever difference of opinions may exist as to the depraved character of Cleveland's associates, no one will claim that he had ever been seen a dozen times in respectable parlors in the city of Buffalo, or that he endured the society of refined, cultivated women if he could avoid it. As for Cleveland's opinions upon great national issues, as for his views upon questions that will put patriotism and statesmanship to the test—if he has any, they have been just those that any man might have who "takes the Democratic ticket straight every time," it has made no difference with him whom the Democrats might nominate, or upon what platform the candidates were presented. You could count on him to vote with the "boys" every time. Little importance has been attached to his private political utterances; and there has not been a public utterance of his on national issues worth recording. And this has been the social and political training of the man now presented by the Democratic party for election to the highest office within the gift of the people of the United States! In the excitement of the moment the Republicans of Buffalo deserted their own candidate to make Cleveland Mayor. In the heat of factional animosity, under an erroneous idea that it would do the party good, to subject it to the process of self-chastisement and deluded by the plea that Cleveland was the special prophet and champion of "independence" and "reform," the Republicans of New York elected him Governor. They have had time to know him better; they have had opportunity for more political reflection. Now that they are called upon to make this man the Nation's Chief Magistrate, they do not purpose to have a hand in such nonsense. Here in Buffalo Cleveland is best known, and he is known to be what we have described him! Hence it is that in the very city where he was elected mayor there is not one Republican of any prominence who has declared an intention to vote for him for President. Nine-tenths of the "independents" are actively at work for Blaine and Logan. And in western New York, which did so much to help his "boom" for Governor, not a leading Republican is on Cleveland's side—not one.—Buffalo Commercial Advertiser.

At the Massachusetts Republican Convention, it was moved that the remainder of the old ticket be renominated by acclamation. Carried unanimously, and the following were declared nominated: Governor, George D. Robinson, Chickopee; lieutenant governor, Oliver Ames of Easton; secretary of state, Henry L. Pierce, of Abington; treasurer, Daniel A. Gleason of Medford; auditor, Charles R. Ladd of Springfield; attorney general, Edgar A. Sherman of Lawrence.

Senator Aldrich put the whole question of fealty to the Republican party by Republicans in a nutshell, in his address at Newport, when he said that before the Chicago Convention some good Republicans had preferred that Arthur should be nominated, some that Hawley should, and some that Edmunds should, but that Blaine was nominated and that all Republicans should now put their shoulder to the wheel for the success of the Republican party. That is good doctrine.

The republican state officers of Vermont are: Governor, Samuel E. Pingree; lieutenant governor, E. J. Ormsbee; treasurer, William H. Dubois; secretary of state, C. W. Porter; auditor, E. Henry Powell.

Hon. John C. New of Indiana, in regard to the situation in Indiana, says: "Blaine and Logan will carry the state by from 5,000 to 10,000 majority. I have no fear of the result."

Six hundred and forty-six Bay View, Wis., workingmen, unite in an address denouncing Cleveland and the democratic party.

MINNESOTA NEWS NOTES.

CROP CONDITION SHOWN.

Cold and Rainy Weather Has Decreased Large Percentages, But the Yield is Much Above an Average in all Principal Products.

H. H. Young, United States statistical agent for Minnesota, will make a report to the department of agriculture, including the following facts: The weather during August has been somewhat unusual for this climate, and on the whole decidedly unfavorable for the development of crops generally. We have had two warm, sultry intervals of a few days continuance each, and during the remainder of the time the temperature has been unpleasantly cold for the season, and local showers were of frequent occurrence in almost any part of the state. In the southern counties the wheat, oats, rye and barley were ready for harvest on or before the first of the month, and were generally cut before the rainy season fairly set in, and probably one-sixth safely stacked. Fully five-sixths, though, were in shocks at the time, and more or less injured. The damage, however, was slight, except where the shocks were indifferently put up, or were blown down by the high winds, which frequently prevailed. In the northern counties the grain was more backward, and the wet, cold weather delayed its ripening. Cutting had not been finished there on the 1st inst. To these causes is attributable the low rate of "average condition" of all the grain crops as given on the accompanying card. A month ago appearances indicated that they would all exceed 107, and that wheat would average 11.2. Corn has also suffered considerably by the continuous cold, though if frosts hold off a few days longer the crop will still be above an average, both in yield and quality. Sorghum is very backward, and I am inclined to think that even the figure I have given is higher than appearances justify. The same is true of buckwheat, but not so generally throught the state. Potatoes have suffered severely from the rains, and will be considerably below average in quality and quantity. Several correspondents remark that they are rotting badly. They have likewise been seriously damaged by bugs. Apples and grapes were injured to considerable extent in several localities by late frosts in the spring.

ANIMAL PRODUCTS.

In all the older counties the numbers of hogs for fattening are much less than last year. In ten counties decreases of 20 per cent. and upward are reported, and in a number of others the decrease ranges from 5 to 10 per cent. The newer counties, however, report an increase, and I think the figures I give represent the comparative number as nearly as possible. Scarcity of good feed has tended also to reduce the average size and weight fully 8 per cent. throughout the state. Following is the per centage of conditions as reported to the department for Sept. 1.

	Per cent.
Corn—Average condition	103
Wheat—Average condition when harvested	100
Rye—Average condition when harvested	100
Oats—Average condition when harvested	104
Barley—Average condition when harvested	97
Buckwheat—Average condition	94
Potatoes (Irish)—Average condition	88
Tobacco—Average condition	93
Sorghum—Average condition	83
Apples—Average condition	85
Grapes—Average condition	90
Stock Hogs—No. for fattening compared with last year	89
Stock Hogs—Average condition as to weight and size	92

Failure of the Minnesota Elevator Company.

The Minnesota Elevator company at Redwing, made an assignment Tuesday to Judge Wilder. The liabilities are about $200,000, and the assets about $290,000. The elevators have passed under the control of H. J. O'Neill of Winona, and the business will be conducted as usual. Those who hold the wheat receipts of the company will lose nothing, as the wheat is in the elevator in their names. The cause which led to the assignments of the Minnesota Elevator company was the fact that the business had been an up-hill one all the season, and the company saw that if they assigned now they could pay all claims in full, while if they continue another season they could not. On Monday they allowed a note of $10,000 to go to protest in Milwaukee. When this became known, O. Bechter issued an attachment, upon which the company, to protect all parties, made an assignment, and Judge E. T. Wilder was made assignee. The capital stock paid-in was $104,000, held by the following gentlemen: O. B. Hotchkiss, Bridgeport, Conn.; John Hurd, Bridgeport, Conn.; N. C. Newell, Bridgeport, Conn.; W. J. Watts, Scranton, Pa.; P. A. Richards, Eau Claire, Wis.; J. G. Lawrence, Wabasha, Minn.; L. F. Hubbard, Red Wing; W. P. Brown, Red Wing; C. H. Duryea, Red Wing.

They own elevators in each of the following places: Red Wind, Lake City and one each in Eggleston, Dak., Minnesota City, Kellogg, Jarret, Millville, Hammond, Zumbro Falls, Zumbrota, Carysville, Eau Claire, Durand, Cannon Falls, Afton, Newport, Diamond Bluff, Pepin, Frontenac, and Maiden Rock. The impression in Red Wing is that Gov. Hubbard, through the failure of the mills and the elevator company had lost nearly all the property he had. The homestead in Red Wing belongs to Mrs. Hubbard.

First District Democrats.

The democratic congressional convention of the First Minnesota district was held at Albert Lea, on Tuesday. There was a full delegation from each county. Ex-Gov. Sherwood, in a short speech, placed in nomination A. Bierman, and the nomination received a second from C. L. Stacy of this city and others. On motion the nomination of Mr. Bierman was made by acclamation, and the convention adjourned, after giving the chairman power to appoint a district committee of one from each county and three at large.

The St. Paul state board of equalization is in session at the state capitol. The following are members and judicial districts: D. Bassett, fourth district; F. S. Christensen, first; J. Compton, seventh; William Dawson, second; I. P. Durfee, sixth; A. N. Johnson, twelfth; J. G. Lawrence, third; C. McNelly, tenth; William Rich, ninth; Z. B. Page, fifth; H. Poehler, eighth; H. Thompson, eleventh; Attorney General W. J. Hahn, State Auditor W. W. Branden, Gov. L. F. Hubbard, ex-officio members.

The Prohibitionists of the First, Second and Third congressional districts, have called conventions for the purpose of putting in nomination candidates for congress. The convention for the First district will be held at Eyota, Sept. 15; for the Second district at Worthington, Sept. 18; for the Third district at Carver, Sept. 17.

Sixteen bushels to the acre is the average talk of the wheat prophets.

New Canada, Ramsey county, is the newest Minnesota post office.

At St. Paul's church St. Paul, on Sept. 3, 1884, by the Rev. E. S. Thomas, Maidie, daughter of Hon. Edmund Rice, was married to William Dawson, Jr.

Ex-Senator William Windom of Minnesota arrived at Wormley's (Washington) Sunday morning from his trip to Yellowstone Park, from which he returned by way of Salt Lake and the Union Pacific. His family is in England, to remain until November.

During the storm Wednesday, which passed over Lemond, south of Owatonna, Cornelius Larsen, who was plowing, was instantly killed by lightning. His clothing was torn into shreds. His $300 team was killed, and three stacks of wheat, twenty rods distant, containing 250 bushels, were totally destroyed by fire. A number of trees were struck near the city.

Four prisoners, confined in the county jail in Mankato, escaped Friday evening by sawing off the iron bars of their cells. They took the steel spring from the shanks of their shoes and the strap irons from the bottom of their beds and made saws and did good work with them. The escaped prisoners are the ones who were charged with the burglary of Strauss & Schlesinger's store some time since.

First-class fire clay has been discovered at Herman.

Henry Jones a lawyer of Red Wing, who was arrested on a charge of appropriating $631, collected for William Deering of Chicago, was acquitted, the prosecution failing to make out a case.

Murphy, the temperance advocate is having success in St. Paul.

State Educational Matters.

State Superintendent Kiehle has issued circulars addressed to the county superintendents of schools, in which he says that the questions issued by this department for the examination of teachers during this fall are discretionary. Oral examinations are especially recommended, as the following points can be determined by that method:

First—Can this teacher read fluently and intelligibly?

Second—Has he an understanding of the principles of inflection? Can he distinguish by ear the different inflections, cadences, stress, etc.?

Third—Can he give the sounds indicated by the more important diacritical marks?

Fourth—Can the teacher write a good blackboard copy for primary pupils to copy on slate or paper?

Fifth—In geography, can the teacher make a rapid blackboard sketch, as a river, system of rivers, a lake, county, state, etc.?

Superintendents are requested to make their biennial report with annual statistical statement. As these reports will be published by counties, they should be as brief as possible.

FURTHER REQUESTS.

Superintendents are also requested to forward to the department complete lists of the names of clerks of school districts, placing in a column at the right the year in which the term of each expires. Unless the conveniences of the superintendent requires, it should be transmitted with the written report, and as a part of it. Beside other things it is specially requested that the following important questions be noticed in the reports:

First—Progress in introducing systematic courses of study. What proportion of schools are observing this plan? Report in full.

Second—Progress in establishing libraries reference and circulating. Report any favorite plan or special success.

Third—Progress in bringing all teachers under the influence of the professional instruction in normal schools, institutes, local associations, teachers' professional libraries, and educational papers.

Fourth—What evils do your schools suffer by reason of the present districting plan?

Fifth—How generally are your schools supplied with dictionaries?

Sixth—Do you see any serious objection to making the school year end with the fiscal year, July 31? Do you advise it?

Seventh—What is the general condition of the state text book depositories? Are the quarterly reports of clerks made with promptness?

Eight—What interests deserve the attention oft he legislature?

A Fire at Duluth Saturday night destroyed the saw mill of Little & Simonds. All the lumber except about three million feet, belonged to Cutler & Gilbert, and the rest to Little & Simonds. Little & Simonds' loss is estimated as follows: On saw mill, $40,000; planing mill, $20,000; lumber, $45,000; total, $105,000, with insurance of about $75,000. Cutler & Gilbert's loss is $25,000 to $30,000, with $75,000 insurance. This is by far the worst fire in the history of Duluth.

A review of the weather at St. Paul and vicinity during the last month shows nothing unusual for August except a more than average wind movement including several rather strong gales. The average August temperature of the last thirteen years is 70 deg., last month was 1.1 deg. cooler than that average, the mean being 68.9 deg. The month in question was slightly cooler than the corresponding ones of 1872, 1876 and 1880; considerably cooler than those of 1873, '74, '77, '78 '81, '82; and decidedly warmer than those of 1875 and 1883.

William Rew was arrested in Dodge county several weeks ago upon a requisition from the governor of Nebraska, charging him with a murder committed eleven years ago. A habeas corpus was taken, but during the proceedings Gov. Hubbard was led to suspect that the case was a very dubious one, and ordered the sheriff of Dodge county to hold the prisoner until more definite information could be obtained. After another delay, the Nebraska officer who had come for the prisoner left quietly, and it now seems most probable that the charge was trumped by some enemy of Rew.

Sitting Bull and wife, Grey Eagle, his cousin, Long Dog, a very big Sioux, Spotted Horn Bull and wife (the latter a cousin of Sitting Bull) and a pretty princess, named Red Spear, arrived at St. Paul from Standing Rock. With them were Mrs. McLaughlin and son Harry, Louis Primeau, an interpreter, and Ehle Allen, business manager of the "Sitting Bull Combination." Col. Allen received the Indians with due honors, and assigned them rooms at the Merchants. The date of departure on the Eastern exhibiting tour is not yet fixed.

The state Greenback convention at Rochester mustered twenty delegates.

Duluth wants railroad connection with the southwestern portion of Minnesota.

Nelson Castle of Stillwater, who owns an extensive farm near Afton, Washington county, says that the yield this year is enormous. On his farm his wheat averaged 22 bushels to the acre. Edward Cox, who resides near by, secured 33 bushels to the acre; Thomas Persons, also in that vicinity, 29 bushels to the acre. At the old Guy Salsbury place, Lakeland, a farm that has been worked for thirty years, the average was 19 bushels. Oats will yield from 50 to 80 bushels to the acre.

After over two years of steady work the magnificent bridge and viaduct built by the St. Paul & Manitoba road over the river at Minneapolis is completed and trains will begin running to the new depot. The bridge is 2,100 feet long, 28 feet wide and 82 feet high. It is a magnificent work of engineering and mechanical skill. The Northern Pacific, Omaha, Minneapolis & St. Louis, as well as the Manitoba, will use the new depot in Minneapolis.

About thirty-five acres of grain in the stack was burned on Mrs. George W. Stewart's place, Le Sueur, catching fire from the threshing machine engine.

An accident occurred at J. M. Harrington's saw mill, at Long Prairie, Minn., Friday night, by which an engine and shafting and a 4,000 pound fly-wheel were demolished. No cause is known. The engineer was at his post but remained uninjured. The mill has been cutting about twenty thousand feet daily all the season and was at work at the time. It will take several weeks to repair the engine and machinery.

The twenty-fifth annual fair of the Faribault County Agricultural society will be held at Blue Earth City on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, the 15th, 16th and 17th of September.

Hon. Leo Hensley died of consumption at his residence in St. James, Minn., Monday morning. Deceased was a member of the legislature during the session of 1876-7. He leaves a wife and children.

Two young men, under confinement upon the charge of burglary, made their escape from the county jail at Kandiyohi, by crawling through the ventilators.

Three prisoners escaped from the county jail at Stillwater. As Deputy Sheriff Adam Marty opened the cell-room door the three men attacked him. One struck him on the head with a sharp instrument, cutting a gash and knocking him to his knees. On raising he grasped his assailant but was struck by another on the forehead, and felled to the floor. The men rushed out and escaped. The description of the prisoners is; Charles Sinclair, about fifty years of age, five feet eight inches high, iron gray hair, moustache, goatee, sharp-featured, dark complexion, dark hazel eyes, dark suit of clothes, colored shirt, waiting the action of the grand jury on a charge of burning Sam Judd's house at Marine Mills, a desperate character; Allen Smith, aged twenty-five, light hair, blue eyes, no beard, height about five feet eight inches, striped gray and black pants, colored shirt, in for forgery; Louis White, age twenty-two, half-breed, dark complexion and hair, no beard, red mackinac pants, drab colored shirt, with polka dot spots, in for ninety days for assault and battery.

Minnesota daries are to be well represented at New Orleans.

John Ruble, one of the oldest settlers and best known farmers of Freeborn county, died at his home in Pickerel Lake last Friday night after an illness of some weeks. He formerly was engaged in the agricultural machinery business in Albert Lea. He was one of the four farmers, Ruble brothers, whose combined weight aggregate over 1,200 pounds.

Matt Miller, horse thief, who escaped from the Anoka jail, was recaptured in Minneapolis.

The Meeker county fair will be held at Litchfield Oct. 2, 3 and 4.

Land is Wealth.

From the Chicago Journal.

Real estate is a significant phrase applied to property. Land is not evanescent. It is not always readily convertible into cash, but that renders it, in some respects, a still safer possession for it will not take wings and fly away. A man who owns such an amount of real estate that he can, by economy, pay taxes and keep it unencumbered, has started on the road to fortune. Real estate is always growing in value. Its value may increase more rapidly in some localities than in others. But except in unfrequented cases, where wild real estate speculation has carried away all the impulses of common sense, land is always worth more this year than it was last year; it will be worth more next year than it is to-day. Every day that elapses increases the value of every acre of the soil.

It is instructive to compare statistics of the wealth of the men who deal in stocks and other mere representatives of value with the wealth of men who own real estate, which is an actual value. Within two years a man whose prosperity consisted of railroad stocks has seen dollars shrink to dimes in some cases; in some cases the shrinkage is one-half; in all cases the shrinkage is great. Colossal paper fortunes have disappeared, or have been so reduced in amount as to look like poverty by the contrast. But those who owned land and buildings found their wealth increasing day by day and year by year. If their possessions were small, they are still better off than they were last year and the year before. If their possessions were large, the increase has been in proportion.

In Chicago the increase in the value of real estate within the past six years has raised many men to the rank of capitalists who were poor a few years ago. Many men supposed to be hopelessly bankrupt have emerged from the clouds of ruin, borne upwards on the prices of their real estate, which they supposed had been encumbered up to its full value, but which has so risen in price that its value proved sufficient to pay off all claims against it and leave its owner in affluence. Those who tenaciously hang on to real property will find it an anchor of hope and safety, whatever vicissitudes in life may occur.

Three Cholera Remedies.

I remember that in 1848 or '49 (I forget which), when the cholera was here, we were all told to go about with a flannel belt round our stomachs and with a bottle of chalk powder in our pockets. It might be well if the Local Government Board were to circulate some plain instructions: 1. As to the boiling of water, etc., and as to what it is well to eat, drink and avoid. 2. As to the remedies to be taken if there be an attack.

A remedy, or rather a preventive, which at the time was much believed in, was to take during the day, either spread on bread and butter or in some other way, two spoonfuls of salt. This salt acted as a disinfectant, and it was asserted that no one who took regularly his two spoonfuls caught the cholera. I am surprised to hear nothing now of this salt specific.

Here is another cholera receipt: The Rev. Dr. David Robinson, of New Jersey, has charged the Lord Mayor to give publicity to the fact that hot water applied both externally and internally will infallibly cure cholera. Any man, says the reverend gentleman, who is attacked by cholera, must place his feet in hot water and begin drinking the same fluid as hot as possible. By the time he has imbibed three quarts he will be cured. A friend of mine who had cholera several years ago, attributes his cure to the fact of his having consumed, directly as he was attacked, several quarts of hot tea.—London Truth.

The Advantage in Beating the Record

From the Philadelphia Ledger.

To the spectator who is unprovided with a stop-watch it cannot make much difference whether a horse trots a mile in 2:10¼ or 2:10, except in imagination and as a matter of record. But it is an undeniable fact that the quarter of a second makes a great difference to a very large number of people, to whom the beating of the record means not only an improvement in particular horses, but an improvement and development of horses generally. Only two or three horses in a generation may reach such speed, but, in developing these hundreds and thousands of other horses are bred and trained to do much better than they otherwise would. We have reached such a point now that a second, or as in the latest case, a fraction of a second is all that can be obtained in attempts to lower the record. Jay Eye See had no sooner beaten Maud S.'s best time by a quarter of a second than Maud S. got a quarter of a second lower still. The record, instead of being 2:10¼ as it was on Thursday, or 2:10 as it was on Friday, became on Saturday 2:09¾, and Maud S. is still the chief of trotters. She was deposed from that high rank for a day only.

The Ingress Into the Window.

Trinity steeple, which is 286 feet high, is now being repointed. The term "repointing," as most of our readers are aware, means filling up the chinks in the masonry so as to keep out rain and even dampness. Trinity steeple is a beautiful piece of masonry, but safety requires that it be kept in good condition. The job is a dizzy and dangerous one, but there are men here who will assume any risk if they are only sufficiently paid. The workmen probably receive $10 a day, and perhaps more. I well remember that, when the finishing touches were given to Trinity steeple, a number of sailors were employed, and, after the scaffolding had all been removed, one of them crawled on the outside from the bell-tower to the highest window in the steeple, which he entered in safety. This feat was viewed by thousands, most of whom expected the poor fellow to fall, but he clung to the protuberances with a tenacious grip, and slowly made the ascent and, when he entered the little window, each one seemed to take a long breath. This was done merely as a voluntary display of nerve and skill, but when St. Pauls steeple was repaired a few years ago a man was paid $200 to make the ascent, which he did in safety.—New York Letter.

How Do You Like It?

The latest reports from the State election in Maine show a larger Republican majority than even the most sanguine Republican has dared predict, and those dandy Cleveland white hats already begin to blacken with apprehension. Gov. Robie is re-elected by a plurality of over 12,000. Mr. Reed is elected to Congress by an increased majority over that of two years ago. All four Congressmen are re-elected. The Republicans have an unprecedented majority in the Legislature, even on the returns now in. We have heard the assertion made before now that Jim Blaine could not carry his own State, but we don't imagine that there are many responsible Democrats anxious to bet very high on it now.

Mr. H. G. Palmer went south to St. Paul on Saturday returning on Wednesday. He is as busy as a bee getting the farmers' elevators ready for business while his friends are equally busy urging him for the Legislature. From what we know of Mr. Palmer during the years he has been in the Valley and especially from his efforts to obtain an open wheat market we can say unhesitatingly that our interests, if placed in his hands would be entirely safe. We have heard it said that he is a designing man, that he is only doing all this hard work to make a show in order to work upon the sympathies of the farmers for political effect. That is not reasonable from the simple fact that Mr. Palmer has been doing the same work for several years; from the time that he built an independent elevator at Warren some two or three years since down to the present time. He commenced the good work long before either the Legislative question or the Farmers' Elevator line was thought of and has labored earnestly and consistently throughout. The Miller's Monopoly of the wheat trade in the Northwest caused a grand kick among farmers and business men; out of this agitation grew the farmers' clubs. It was found that some measures must be adopted and that at once if the relief desired was to be obtained in time to help out this fall. After various plans had been suggested the elevator project was brought forth at the meeting of the State Farmers' Alliance at St. Paul last winter, committees appointed and the plan thoroughly worked up. Prominent among those who originated and brought the plan thus far toward success was Mr. H. G. Palmer, who took off his coat and not only worked hard to accomplish the object but put money into it freely. Now it could not reasonably be said that he did this in order to get the nomination for the Legislature because all this was done long before the question of a candidate to the Legislature was thought of. Later on, when the necessity for sending a good and true man, a worker into the Legislature to look after the good work so well begun became apparent, the farmers' alliances began to look over the field for their man. What more natural result could follow in looking for a working man than that a man who had done the work that Mr. Palmer has should be suggested? And so it was that his friends in the Farmers' Alliance, brought forward and urged the name of H. G. Palmer. When Mr. Palmer's name for the position was first suggested we met him one day and asked him what he thought of it. Mr. Palmer said in effect that the question of who should represent this district was an important one requiring grave consideration; "we should send our best and strongest man to do the important work that is to be done, and while I have not given the subject especial thought yet, if the people consider me the man for the place, I am willing to go and do my best for the cause there as I have ever tried to do since I took an active hand in the fight. I have no money to use to buy a seat in the Legislature, but if I am sent to represent this district her interestez shall be jealously guarded and protected. If I go I shall do all I can to obtain an open market for our wheat. That is the most important question that will arise and it will receive especial attention from me." What the JOURNAL wants in this matter is to see the best, the strongest man we have in the district go to represent us. We judge men by their fruits. We went into this fight early and we went in to stay until we had accomplished our purpose.

AN OPEN WHEAT MARKET.

We have more confidence in a man who has already shown by his works what he will do than in one who has kept his clam shell shut throughout this fight and now opens it to SAY WHAT HE IS GOING TO DO! What have you done already to help us, is the question that farmers should ask him and he should only need to point to his works in reply. If we have got no men in the district who have worked hard and earnestly already then it is all right for some giant intellect to rise up and proclaim what he will do; but if we have any faithful servants who have borne the burden and the heat of the day, with no thought of a future reward it is well then to take heed to them, take their past as an earnest of the future and if they are worthy and well qualified then reward them by entrusting to them this high and important duty. If Mr. Palmer is the best man we want him sent there. If another is a better we want him and we want to see the documents that prove him to be a better. For purely political and selfish reasons there have been accusations brought against prominent candidates who would serve the people well and truly with a view to kill them off to make way for some bass wood stick who would be of no earthly use to us in the Legislature either as an ornament or otherwise, but such stories must not be entertained. Every consideration must be made to bend to the necessities of the case and our best man must be sent if we ever expect to see an open wheat market obtained, for the fact is that if we get it we must fight for it and that fight must come in the Legislature. If we expect to win the fight we must send a fighter. We must send a man not only who can fight but also who knows how to fight successfully. We have some good ones and of those we want the very best one.

The JOURNAL is in receipt of the following communication from the Farmers' Club, of McCrea Township, Marshall County, under date of September 6th, with a request for publication. As the choice of a representative is a matter of vast importance to this Northwest, one in which a mistake might prove fatal, we have extended an invitation to all to discuss the question in our columns fully and freely. The communication is as follows:

MR. EDITOR: In your issue of September 4th you print a letter signed by W. H. Donaldson, of Kittson County, asking the farmers of the 45th Legislative District to vote for him to represent them in the next Legislature; also claiming that he is in sympathy with us in our farmers' movement to secure our rights. We all remember when the "committee of ten" went to St. Paul to confer with the officers of the St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., the meeting with Messrs. Hill and Manvel was reported in the Pioneer Press, and the reporter said that immediately after this committee left the Railroad office that Mr. W. H. Donaldson, of Kittson County, had an interview with Messrs. Hill and Manvel, but as it was private, they could not report what transpired. Would any man that is in sympathy with the farmers' movement have done this? Would he not have given this farmers' committee a pointer, rather than the Railroad Company, if he was working for our interests? We had the pleasure of attending a farmers' meeting where this same Donaldson offered (when accused of riding on a free pass) to give said free pass back to the Railroad Company if the farmers would elect him to the Legislature, although it would be a damage to him of about three hundred dollars a year, but he would do this if we would elect him. If this be true, and it is also true that these letters will cost him three hundred dollars more, is he not paying his way into the Legislature? and do we want any one to represent us that will do this? This man Donaldson also told us that we did not need to organize—that farmers needed no organization. What does this mean? Why, every one knows that without organization comes defeat, AND ANY MAN THAT SAYS THESE THINGS WANTS OUR AIMS DEFEATED. If Mr. Donaldson had come out as a Railroad candidate, we would have thought much better of him, and would be better supported by the electors of this district. The idea of a man going all over this district, riding on a free pass, condemning the Railroad Company that gave it to him, and claiming to represent our interests, looks like a put up job, and this, too, when he says in his letter (just published) that he will not do so, and could not if he would, BECAUSE HE CANNOT LEAVE HIS FARM. In our neighborhood we can leave our farm and go work in the harvest, and no one trys to jump them. We want our brother farmers to look facts squarely in the face in this legislative matter and be independent, and not take tally from any one, but to attend all the caucuses and put in delegates that will represent us; that is of us and for us, first, last and at all times, and then we need have no fears but what our interests will be taken care of.

FARMERS' CLUB No. 1,
McCrea Tp., Marshall Co., Minn.

The Minneapolis Fair.

In point of numbers this institution was not as much of a success as it has been in former years, though the reports we have indicate that the expenses were paid. The agricultural display was slim, the best display of wheat being made by D. L. Wellman, of Frazee City, the propagator of the celebrated Saskatchewan Fife wheat. There was a limited amount of vegetables, but very good ones, some nice apples and grapes but nothing like the great displays that have been made in former years. The display of horses and cattle was fine, as good as has ever been made. Every noted herd in the State was represented and many from other States. There was a large showing of Holsteins and on Friday a public sale of this fine breed occurred at which the bidding was spirited and the prices paid, large, showing a just appreciation of this valuable breed. The inevitable Jackson Wagon Minstrel troupe was on deck while the reapers and mowers gaily clicked and hummed as of old. And the Memnonium, too, was there, gigantic, dignified and solemn—or in other words—Abou Ben Butler, who climbed the golden stair and shot off his mouth at the assembled crowds from the judges' stand. "Ben" did not appear to be up to his record on the oratorical racket, making a very poor trot and we must confess to a feeling of great disappointment in him. Having gone down on purpose to see him and the THOROUGHBRED cattle, we must say that had not the thoroughbreds fulfilled our expectations we should have been "left" indeed. We have only this to say for "Ben" that it is a wonder where he gets his great popularity, (which we read about) if all of his efforts are similar. The races were like Butler's speech—slow and tiresome, with this difference, too much wind for the races, too little for speech.

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First Publication September 11th, 1884.]

DEFAULT HAVING BEEN MADE IN THE payment of the sum of one hundred and thirty-eight and 32-100 dollars, ($138.32-100) which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by William Franz Jaenike and Gische Jaenike his wife, mortgagors, to Isaac Rattenburg, mortgagee, bearing date the 28th day of August A. D. 1882, and, with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for the County of Polk and State of Minnesota, on the 28th day of August A. D. 1882, at 5:00 o'clock p. m., in book "I" of mortgages, on pages 128, 129, 130 and 131, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz: The Southeast quarter (se¼) of Section No. fourteen (14,) of Township No. one hundred and fifty (150) north, of Range No. forty-six (46) west, in Polk County and State of Minnesota, with the hereditaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said Polk County, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County and State, on the 25th day of October A. D. 1884, at 10 o'clock a. m., of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and the taxes, if any, on said premises, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

Dated Crookston, Sept. 6th A. D. 1884.

ISAAC RATTENBURG,
Mortgagee.

JOHN McLEAN,
Attorney for Mortgagee. [20-26]

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 11th, 1884.

Notice is hereby given that the following-named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before U. S. Land Office, at Crookston, Minn., on Nov. 4th, 1884, viz: GEORGE KRONSCHNABEL, H'd No. 9,591 for the se¼ S. 28, T. 149, R. 44. He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: Henry Utzinger, Crookston, C. Oehler, Fred Lieder and J. Guneratz, of Tilden, Polk Co., Minn.

[20-25] JOHN CROMB, Register.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 10th, 1884.

Complaint having been entered at this office by Carrie M. Peterson against William J. Young for abandoning his Homestead Entry No. 10,057, dated Dec. 13th, 1883, upon the nw¼ S. 8, T. 151, R. 46, in Polk County, Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry; the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 18th day of Nov. 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged abandonment.

JOHN CROMB, Register.
[20-25] L. K. AAKER, Receiver.

U. S. LAND OFFICE,
Crookston, Minn., Sept. 11th, 1884.

Complaint having been entered at this office by Andrew P. Vallom against Charles Dudley Hudson for failure to comply with law as to Timber Culture Entry No. 2,041, dated June 4th, 1881, upon the s½ ne¼ and n½ se¼ S. 18, T. 149, R. 43, in Polk Co., Minn., with a view to the cancellation of said entry; contestant alleging that the said Charles Dudley Hudson has failed to plant said tract, or any portion thereof to trees, tree seeds or cuttings since his entry and has failed to cultivate said land to crop or otherwise as required by law, and that there is not now any trees, tree seeds or cuttings standing or growing on said tract, the said parties are hereby summoned to appear at this office on the 6th day of November 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m., to respond and furnish testimony concerning said alleged failure.

[20-25] JOHN CROMB, Register.

JOHN N. IVES,
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
Collection and Land Office Business made a specialty. Money secured for final proofs on short notice.
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

W. L. Sargeant
Veterinary Surgeon,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN.
Diseases of horses and cattle a specialty.
19-tf

MINNEAPOLIS
The Minneapolis EVENING JOURNAL desires a live, energetic correspondent in Crookston. Send for circular letter of instructions, remuneration, &c. Address MANAGING EDITOR EVENING JOURNAL, Minneapolis, Minn. [19-20]
CORRESPONDENTS.

THE
St. Paul,
Minneapolis
—AND—
Manitoba
RAILWAY,
WITH ITS
1,400 Miles of Road
Is the only line extending through the
Park Region of Minnesota,
To all principal points in
Red River Valley,
Northern Minnesota,
Northern Dakota,
And to Devil's Lake and Turtle Mountain Districts.
—CONTAINING OVER—
9,000,000 Acres
GOVERNMENT LANDS!

The Land department of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has exclusive charge of the Company's Lands in Minnesota, and all correspondence relative to the purchase of lands, terms, description or price of any particular tract should be addressed to that department.
Maps and pamphlets describing the country and giving rates of fare to settlers, etc., mailed FREE on application.
JAS. B. POWER,
Land and Immigration Commissioner
C. H. WARREN,
General Passenger Agent,
St. P., M. & M. R'y., St. Paul, Minn.

Tax Judgment Sale.

Pursuant to a Real Estate Tax Judgment of the District Court in the County of Polk, State of Minnesota, entered the 18th day of August, A. D. 1884, in proceedings for enforcing payment of taxes and penalties upon real estate in the County of Polk remaining delinquent on the first day of June, A. D. 1884, and of the statute in such case made and provided, I shall, on the 15th day of September, A. D. 1884, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at the office of the County Auditor in the city of Crookston, and County of Polk, sell the lands which are charged with taxes, penalties and costs in said judgment, and on which taxes shall not have been previously paid.

P. J. McGUIRE,
[19-20] County Auditor, Polk County.

Crookston Tonsorial
PARLORS.
PROF. THOMPSON, Proprietor.
Robert Street, Crookston, Minn.
Shaving, hair dressing and all work in my line promptly attended to the latest style of the art. Give me a call.

The Old Brick Block
IS THE PLACE
To Buy Dry Goods, Groceries. Clothing, Boots and Shoe Hats and Caps, or anything you want.
Fontaine & Anglim
IS THE FIRM
Who are ready, with a corps of affable clerks to show you their NEW FALL and WINTER STOCK and quote prices to astonish the natives.
Great Bargains
Don't forget to visit Fontaine & Anglim's Emporium, in the Old Brick Block,
MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

THE
J. I. CASE
THRESHING MACHINE COMPANY
The Dennet or Beloit
HARVESTING MACHINE COMPANY
And the Van Brunt & Davis
SEEDER COMPANY,
Are Represented
BY
STEENERSON BROS.,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

MONEY TO GIVE AWAY
IN BARGAINS AT
MARKHAM'S
THE LEADING GROCERY HOUSE
AND THE LARGEST BOOT AND SHOE STORE
IN CROOKSTON.
Goods Delivered to any Part of the City
FREE OF CHARGE
FARMERS, FARMERS,
WE ARE
Selling Lower Than Ever!
You will always find it to your advantage to
Trade with Us!
We Sell the Best for the LOWEST LIVING PRICES. Remember the place,
Broadway, bet. 2d and Robert Sts.
D. BUCHANAN.

THE NEW ERA MANUFACTURING CO.,
Exclusive manufacturers of the
NEW ERA
Wagon Road Grader!
AND DITCHINGMACHINE.
Manufactory 625 to 631 south Halsted street, Chicago, Illinois.
Having established our headquarters for the Red River Valley at CROOKSTON, MINN., all inquiries addressed to us will receive our personal attention. All machines fully warranted and free trial given upon application. Address all Red River Valley correspondence to the NEW ERA MANUFACTURING CO., Box 851, Crookston, Minn.

McKINNON BROS.,
Carriage Works
Robert Street,
Crookston, - Minn.
AGENTS FOR THE
J. I. CASE THRESHING MACHINES!
And Manufacturers of Carriages, Wagons,
BUGGIES,
Cutters, Sleds, &c.
Axles, Springs, and all Repairs kept in stock,
DEALERS IN
FARM MACHINERY
In Farm Machinery we have the Champion Seeder, Fargo Diamond Tooth Harrow, Kalamazoo Spring Tooth Harrow, Davenport and Grand Detour Sulky and Walking Plows, Buford Gang Plows, Field Rollers of all sizes, Warrior Mowers, the leading Hay Rake and first-class Harvesters and Binders, the Webber Wagon and McKinnon Bros. Wagon, In fact we have everything in machinery, from A Wheelbarrow to a Threshing Machine!
—EXTRAS—
For all Machines constantly on hand

E. M. Walsh,
DEALER IN
Hardware, Tinware
BAR IRON, STEEL,
BLACKSMITHS SUPPLIES,
BUILDING PAPER,
&c., &c. Also Agent
For the Celebrated Monitor Plows.
CROOKSTON, MINN.

A Big Bonanza!
JOSEPH BARRETT
Has decided to Put on the Market his
ADDITION
TO THE
City of Crookston,
Next adjoining the Crookston Driving Park. Parties desiring to purchase
—CHOICE LOST—
NOW IS YOUR TIME!
LOTS
For Sale Separately, or in
BLOCKS.
TERMS EASY!
Apply to the undersigned or at the office of C. B. Palmer, U. S. Land Office Building. Both English and French spoken.
JOSEPH BARRETT.

Polk County Journal.

Crookston, Minn., Thursday, September 11.

RAILROAD TIME TABLE.

GOING NORTH.

No.		ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 1	Passenger	10:45 p. m.	10:55 p. m
" 9	Passenger	10:30 a. m.
" 19	Freight	12:30 a. m.
" 15	Freight	4:00 p. m.
" 23	Freight		10:30 a. m.

GOING SOUTH.

No.		ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 2	Passenger	4:00 a. m.	4:00 a. m.
" 10	Passenger		5:00 p. m.
" 20	Freight		7:00 a. m.
" 22	Freight		6:15 p. m.
" 24	Freight	5:00 p. m.

DEVIL'S LAKE LINE.

No.		ARRIVE.	LEAVE.
No. 9	Passenger		10:20 a. m.
" 10	Passenger	5:30 p. m.
" 45	Freight		6:00 a. m.
" 46	Freight	7:00 p. m.

ST. HILAIRE BRANCH.

Trains leave Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 10:45 a. m., and arrive same days at 4:00 p. m.

☞ Passenger Trains No's 1 and 2, Main Line, run daily except Sunday. No's 3 and 4 run daily. Devil's Lake Passenger runs daily. Freights No's 23, 20 and 24 run daily. Freights No's 15 and 22, and Freights on Devil's Lake Line run daily except Sunday.

Mr. E. Locke's Thorough Vindication from the Charges made by the Bradstreet Commercial Agency.

A desperate work is being put forth by an organized effort on the part of those hostile to the Farmers' Union Elevator Company, to cripple in every way conceivable the usefulness of these farmers' benefactors. Recently, the Bradstreet's Commercial Agency published in their daily circular a report of the standing of E. Locke and the Duluth & Western Elevator Company, calculated to destroy the credit and thus kill if possible their standing in all commercial centers. On seeing the report in the circulars Mr. Locke sued the Bradstreet Company for $25,000 damages. The complaint states that plaintiff is a grain dealer and president of the Northwestern grain dealers' association. He was also one of the incorporators of the Duluth and Western elevator company, and the main member of that corporation. August 13th, 1884, he alleges that the Bradstreet company published in their daily circular the following defamatory matter concerning him and the elevator company:

"Their" (meaning the Duluth and Western elevator company) "elevator has been condemned as unsafe, and the chamber of commerce declines to accept or do business with their wheat checks. The facts of the case seem to be that Locke (meaning the plaintiff) has misled other investors, and put up a building which is unsafe for business and stands idle. The investors seem to regard themselves as having been victimized (thereby meaning and intending to charge the plaintiff with the crime of having deceived, defrauded and victimized his associates in said company.) The company cannot be considered as having a basis of any credit."

To prove the falsity of the above report, Mr. Locke's associates, make the following statements:

DULUTH, Aug. 15, 1884.

We, the undersigned, associates of Mr. Edwin Locke, of Minneapolis, in the Duluth & Western elevator company pronounce as false and malicious the information now being circulated by the commercial agency, to the effect that Mr. Locke has swindled or victimized his associates in that enterprise. The report has been started by parties hostile to the interests of the Elevator company and for the purpose both of injuring the credit of the company, and also of the country houses with which Mr. Locke is connected. There is no foundation of truth whatever in the report.

D. G. CUTLER, President.
W. W. DAVIS, Secretary.
C. COFIELD, Gen'l Manager.

The following letter addressed to the Secretary of the Duluth & Western elevator company speaks for itself:

DULUTH, Aug. 15, 1884.

W. W. DAVIS, ESQ.,
Sec'y Duluth & Western E. Co.

DEAR SIR:—In reply to yours of this date, I have to state, no action has been taken by this Board of Trade in reference to Elevator (E) of your company. As your company deemed it advisable to postpone making the request in regard to making warehouse receipts regular until the house was fully completed. The application for that purpose was withdrawn on March 29th, 1884, which so far as this board is concerned leaves the matter as though the request had never been made. Respectfully,

A. C. ARVESON,
{SEAL} Sec' Board of Trade.
Duluth Board of Trade.

This report of Bradstreet having gone out, Mr. Locke thought it advisable to call a meeting of the Directors of the Farmers' Union Elevator Company and ascertain their opinion of the matter and decide what to do in the premises. The action of the Directors can best be learned from their own report of the meeting, which is as follows:

MOORHEAD, Aug. 29, 1884.

At a meeting of the Directors of the Farmers' Union Elevator Company held at the Grand Pacific last evening, having convened for the purpose of ascertaining the facts in relation to certain defamatory reports issued by Bradstreet's Commercial Agency in regard to the character and standing of Mr. E. Locke, of Minneapolis, with whom they have associated in said company. A resolution was unanimously adopted, fully exonerating Mr. Locke from the charges therein contained, and the belief firmly expressed that the report is false and malicious in every particular, as information in their possession fully establish, and will be shown in their report soon to be published, and while they fully recognize the damaging effect it must necessarily have upon the large business interests in which Mr. Locke is now engaged and has in contemplation in the near future, yet as far as they are concerned and the general farming community with whom they are associated, they represent that they will, to a man, stand by and defend Mr. Locke against all such vile and unmitigated falsehoods, coming as they may from any source whatsoever.

Signed,
F. J. SCHREIDER, Pres.
H. G. PALMER,
ANTHONY GARNETT, } Directors.
WALTER TANNER,

The above explains itself, and while it fully proves Bradstreet's report false in every particular, it does not destroy the fact that it was a powerful combination that could bring to bear an influence strong enough to get such a report into Bradstreets's commercial agency (which is considered the business man's bible.) This shows us the power we have to meet and overcome before we can ever expect to get our rights. To do this we must be independent. We should patronize our own elevators, either by selling our wheat to them, or shipping through them, or storing in them. If we do this, we will be independent and make a success of our elevator system. We want you farmers to know and feel that these elevators belong to you, built for you, and run for you. Store your wheat in them, and sell it to whomsoever you can make the best bargain with. Parties who will not give you as much for your wheat after it is stored in one of these houses will not do the fair thing by you if you should draw it from your granary direct to them. You must consider that there is a great difference between the Farmers' Elevators (run in the interest of the farmers) and the Millers' Association Elevators (run in the interests of the Millers' Association.) The success of our system of elevators depends upon our patronizing them. Shall we do this? We think Mr. Locke will do all that he has promised, and if he does not, we want you to report it to us immediately.

Signed,
F. J. SCHREIBER, Pres.
H. G. PALMER,
ANTHONY GARNETT, } Directors.
WALTER TANNER,

Peterson's Magazine for October comes to us with an increase of pages, and a more brilliant array than ever of steel-plates, colored fashions, colored patterns and illustrative wood engravings. The principal steel-plate, "Playing at Being Grandpa and Grandma," is as graphic as it is humorous—one of the very best things of the kind we have ever seen. The stories, continued and otherwise, are exceptionally good; in this respect "Peterson" has long been without a rival. Some hints are whispered, in this number, in advance, as to what is to be done in 1885; and it is not to early, it is added, to begin to get up clubs for that year. The best way to see what is intended, and to test the merits of "Peterson," is to send for a specimen copy, which will be sent, gratis, if written for in good faith. Address Charles J. Peterson, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Calves—for the Dairy or the Shambles.

I went through, as they say, a lot of veal-calves the other day, they were tolerably fat, a uniform lot about six to eight weeks old, nearly half heifers. It struck me I would see what they promised to make if they could become cows, and I was surprised at the number of unusually promising ones. There were no Dutch heifers (Holsteins,) or half-breeds among them. There were many Shorthorns and Jerseys, a few evidently of Ayrshire blood; and of course a good many—fully one-half—of no obvious breed, (natives.) Not long before I had been at one of Kellog's sales and I verily believe that I could have picked out from these calves, which were all veal before the next day, those which would have proved better milkers, if not better butter makers, than nine-tenths of those sold at one hundred dollars each. The farmer who does not know enough not to kill or sell to the butcher, a calf that will make a twenty-quart cow, needs to take lessons of somebody in the a-b-c of his business. Such a man has probably several cows in his herd, which never give over ten or twelve quarts of milk, and very likely poor milk at that.

The amount of butter that a cow will give is indicated by no tell-tale marks that I know of. That must be judged by the pedigree and dam's record, if a calf, or by the scales. The unctuous feel of the hide, its pliability, the abundance of yolk, (the yellow, soapy oil at the roots of the hair inside the ear, and in the "butter-ball" in the end of the tail) indicate health, and perhaps a tendency to fat secretion, either as butter or fat. But some of the poorest butter yields I have ever known, showed the most of these qualities, and some of the best had very little to boast of, just enough of oil in the skin to indicate good health, and that the skin was performing all its important functions well.

Color in the skin indicates color in the butter. I have never seen a yellow-skinned cow, that gave pale butter, or a very rich-colored skin in a cow, that did not give yellow or yellowish butter all through the winter. When the yolk, which gives this color in the ears, tail, and skin, begins to show in a calf, it will prabably never show less, and what butter the cow gives, will be of good color.—[Col. Weild in American Agriculturist for August.

Dissolution Notice.

CROOKSTON, Sept. 8, 1884.

We, the undersigned, do this day dissolve the copartnership heretofore existing and carried on in the city of Crookston, under the name of McCarthy & Smith, practical painters, A. C. Smith continuing the business, assuming all responsibility of the same. He is hereby authorized to collect all bills due the and pay all bills against the same.

JOHN McCARTHY,
[20-22] A. C. SMITH.

NOTICE.

As I still own my share of Crookston Nurseries, and purpose to continue the business, I will annouce to our former customers and all that are desirous of obtaining trees and Plants the coming spring that I will sell said stock at prices below any competition. Call and see me before making purchase elsewhere. Residence on second block north of Court House, or address P. O. Box 754.

Most Respectfully,
[88-tf] E. W. HASELTINE.

To The Public.

We wish to state to the people of Crookston and vicinity, that we have purchased the stock of greceries owned by J. L. Bailey, on Broadway, opposite the post office. We purpose to carry on the trade at the old stand, and will keep on hand, at all times, a fresh stock of groceries, provisions, etc., and we ask a share of the patronage of the generous public.

[5-tf] BAUSCHMAN & MILETTE.

I have some of the best located residence and business lots in the city that I will sell on easy terms.

H. W. LEWIS.

I would say to the people of Polk County that I have on sale some of the most desirable lots in the city o Crookston.

H. W. LEWIS,
Office in JOURNAL building.

A BARGAIN.

A choice business location on Broad way 100x140 feet, for sale at a bargain. For particulars address the JOURNAL.

$100,000

To Loan on improved claims in sums of $250 to $2,000. Cash paid for school bonds. Call on or address,

JOHN McLEAN, Att'y at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

Send Money by American Express or Money Orders. Receipts given. Money refunded if Orders are lost. Sold at all offices of the Company. Payable at 6,500 places. RATES: To $5-5c.; $10-8c.; $20-10c.; $30-12.; $40-15.; $50-20c. [2-27]

A good farm for sale two miles from Euclid. Seventy acres in crop. Will sell at a low figure. H. W. LEWIS.

NOTICE.

Any man investing in property at Red Lake Falls or vicinity who loses by the investment, I will pay five dollars where he looses five cents.

[3-28] ALFRED GERVAIS.

Notice to Farmers.

C. Kretzschmar's Grist Mill, at Red Lake Falls, is again open for business. Flour will be exchanged for wheat, or your wheat will be ground on shares. A good feed mill is run in connection with the mill and satisfaction in all cases is guaranteed. Flour and feed on hand at all times and sold at lowest market rates.

[16-tf] C. KRETZSCHMAR.

Money to Loan.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS to loan on improved farms from THREE to FIVE years time at very reasonable rates. Apply at my office on Broadway, in U. S. Land Office building.

[14tf] H. STEENERSON.

Just received. A car-load of Buggies selected by an experienced carriage-builder all warranted. Call early and select one. McKinnon Bros.

TO PARTIES DESIRING INSURANCE!

We represent the following old and reliable Fire Insurance Companies:

	Assets.
Ætna	$9,182,644
American	1,804,519
Fire Association	4,279,676
Underwriters	3,609,794
Orient	1,411,894
Phœnix	5,919,403
Lancashire	6,787,983
Milwaukee Mech	1,129,875
Germania	2,700,729

Having represented nearly all of the above companies for 14 years we have acquainted ourselves with the business, and think that we can justly claim the patronage of the public, who can depend upon having insurance written correctly and losses adjusted promptly.

MOSER & MOECKEL.

Christening and Wedding Cakes Made upon Shortest Notice in the Best Style.

A Choice and Well Selected Stock of Confectionery Always on hand.

John Crawford & Son,
Proprietors of Crawford's
Bakery,
SECOND STREET,
Crookston, Minn.

CONFECTIONERY.
Fresh Bread, Buns, Cakes and Biscuits. All Articles in the Fancy Baking Line.

FURNITURE STORE,
2 BROADWAY, CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.
P. BATAGLIA, Prop.

Keeps constantly on hand a well selected stock of Wardrobes, Bureaus, Sofas, Lounges, Bedsteads, Bed Springs, Tables, Chairs, Rocking Chairs, Stands, Ornaments, Picture Mouldings, and Picture Frames. REPAIRING DONE TO ORDER. Coffins of all kinds kept constantly on hand.

BERG & OLSON,
PRACTICAL WATCHMAKERS,
AND DEALERS IN CLOCKS,
WATCHES,
JEWELRY,
ROBERT STREET,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

Wentzel & Rauch,
Sample Rooms.
MAIN STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

For a fine mixed or straight drink call on the boys. The choicest liquors and cigars in stock. [9-tf]

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication July 31st, 1884.]

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE in the conditions of a certain mortgage executed and delivered by Joseph Piquette, a married man, and Mary Piquette, his wife mortgagors, to John Cromb, mortgagee, dated the 27th day of October A. D. 1882, and recorded as a morgage, together with the power of sale therein contained in the office of the Register of Deeds, of the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, on the 31st day of October A. D. 1882, at ten o'clock and twenty-five minutes a. m., in book "H" of mortgages, on page 350, which said mortgage authorized the holder thereof in case of such default to declare due and foreclose the same for the whole amount secured to be paid thereby, and whereas there is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice the amount of five hundred ninety-one and 25-100 dollars ($591.25-10) being the whole amount secured to be paid thereby and still unpaid, and no action or proceeding has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof and whereas by such default the power of sale contained in said mortgage has become and is operative.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of such power of sale contained in said and recorded with said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises herein described, which sale will be made at the west front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, at public auction, by the Sheriff of said county or by his Deputy, on Saturday the 13th day of September A. D. 1884, at ten o'clock in the forenoon to satisfy the amount that shall then be due on said mortgage with the interest thereon, and cost and expenses of sale, and twenty-five dollars attorney's fees as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure.

The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold are all that tract or parcel of land lying and being in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota, and described as follows, to-wit: The northeast quarter (ne¼) of Section twenty-one (21,) in Township number one hundred and fifty (150) north of Range number forty-four (44) west, of the fifth principal meridian, containing one hundred and sixty (160) acres, according to the United States government survey thereof.

Dated Crookston July 31st 1884.

JOHN CROMB.
Mortgagee.
JOHN LEO,
Attorney for Mortgagee, [14-20]

MORTGAGE SALE.

[First publication August 7th, 1884.]

WHEREAS DEFAULT HAS BEEN MADE IN the conditions of a certain mortgage, executed and delivered by Alex Allerdyce, mortgagor, to Paul C. Sletten and John Cromb, mortgagees, dated the first day of August A. D. 1882, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, of the County of Polk, in the State of Minnesota, on the 25th day of August A. D. 1882, at 8 o'clock a. m., in book "H" of mortgages on page 219, on which there is claimed to be due at the date of this notice the sum of four hundred and eighty-four 90-100 dollars, according to the terms and conditions of one promissory note of even date therewith, and whereas Paul C. Sletten one of the mortgagees above named, on the 8th day of July A. D. 1884, at the City of Crookston, in said County, died testate, and the last will and testament of said deceased, which was by the Probate Court of said County duly admitted to probate and allowed as such on July 10th A. D. 1884, appointed and constituted Olaus H. Lucken the sole executor thereof, who accepted the trust and duly qualified as such and letters testamentary under said will was then by said Court to him duly issued, and whereas an attested copy of said will was duly recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for said Polk County on July 31st, 1884, in book "P" of deeds on pages 257 and 258, and no action or proceedings has been instituted at law or in equity to recover the debt secured by said mortgage or any part thereof.

Now, notice is hereby given that by virtue of a power of sale contained in said mortgage, and of the statute in such case made and provided, said mortgage will be foreclosed by the sale of the mortgaged premises, therein described, at public auction, at the front door of the Court House, in the City of Crookston, in said County of Polk, on Saturday the twentieth day of September A. D. 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m., to satisfy the amount which shall then be due on said mortgage, and the costs and expenses of sale together with $25.00 attorneys fees as stipulated in said mortgage in case of foreclosure. The premises described in said mortgage and so to be sold, are the pieces and parcels of land situated in the County of Polk, and State of Minnesota known and described as follows, to-wit: Lots one (1,) two (2) and three (3) of block six (6) in Sletten & Cromb's subdivision of Hurlbut's addition to the townsite of Crookston according to the recorded plat thereof now on file in the office of Register of Deeds for said Polk County.

Dated August 5th A. D. 1884.

JOHN CROMB, Surviving Mortgagee.
OLAUS H. LUCKEN, Sole executor of Paul C. Sletten, deceased, mortgagee.
H. STEENERSON, Attorney for surviving and for executor of deceased mortgagee.
[15-21]

Groceries, Provisions,
Flour, Feed
SMOKED, DRIED AND SALT
MEATS,
TEAS,
COFFEES,
SUGARS,
SPICES,
ETC.
Highest Market Price Paid for
FARM PRODUCE.
Bauchman & Millette.
Broadway, Opposite the Post Office,
Crookston, Minn.

The Red Lake Falls
FLOURING
MILL

Has lately been enlarged and is now prepared to do curtom work without delay. Stable room free.

BUSE & COLBENTSON,
Proprietors, Red Lake Falls, Minn.

WM. WATTS,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
AND DEALER IN
REAL ESTATE.
Office over Merchants' Bank.

N. F. CHINIQUY'S
Chicago Dry Goods House.

JUST RECEIVED

Full Lines Of

Dress Sstins, Lawns, Organdies.
Percales, Cambrics, Buntings, Piques
Marsailles, Prints, Embroideries.
Gloves, Hosiery, Handkerchiefs.
Hoop Skirts, Bustles, Corsets.
Parasols, Collars, Cuffs, Ruchings.
Lacesand Lace Goods, Gauze.
Underwear, Etc., Etc., Etc.
Cretonnes and Fringes.
Gent's Furnishing Goods.

The above goods were bought late in the season at very Low Prices and I will make it an aim to sell those goods very cheap.

No Trouble to Show Goods
At N. F. CHINIQUY'S
Chicago Dry Goods Store.

JEROME'S
ADDITION
TO THE
CITY OF CROOKSTON
IS NOW
Offered for Sale

This is the finest Residence Property in the City. High and dry, good cellars, water, and well sheltered. Enclosed on three sides by the river, and only three blocks from the heart of the city and Post Office.

HOW TO BE HEALTHY!
Drink LePage's
35c Tea and 35c pure Java Coffee
AND SMOKE MY NICKEL PILGRIM CIGAR.

HOW TO BE HEALTHY!
COME TO THE RED STAR GROCERY
And Save Money on everything you buy.

AND IF YOU ARE WISE

You will buy only Pure and Fresh Groceries. THE RED STAR GROCERY is the place to get them and there you will find Prices the Lowest. Farmers and others bring in your Butter and Eggs and get highest prices for them. Remember the RED STAR, one door south of Montreal House.

E. LEPAGE, Broadway, Crookston, Minn.

E. D. Schreader,
LIVERY,
Feed and Sale Stable.
BEST TURNOUTS
IN THE CITY.

Single or Double Rigs, with or without driver or

SADDLE HORSES

Always ready at a moments notice by day or night. If you want a Nobby Turnout call at the Red Barn, Corner Main and Third Streets,

CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

NEW
DRUG STORE
IN GARFIELD.
DR. A NELSON, Prop.

The citizens of this town and vicinity are respectfully invited to call at my new Drug Store in the town of Garfield and examine my stock of

DRUGS, MEDICINES, PAINTS, OILS AND YANKEE NOTIONS.

It is no longer necessary to go 40 or 55 miles for anything in this line, as I have a full supply at prices as reasonable as any town in the Northwest. Call and see

PHYSICIAN & SURGEON

I am also ready to answer all calls by day or night, for the practice of my profession. Call, or leave orders at my Drug Store in Garfield, Polk Co., Minn.

DR. A. NELSON.

First National Bank
OF CROOKSTON.

PAID IN CAPITAL,	$100,000
SURPLUS,	1,400

Money to loan on long or short time on approved security

Interest on time deposits. Faithful attention to Collections and prompt remittances.

GEO. O. ERSKINE, President.
K. D. CHASE, Vice President.
ANSEL BATES, Cashier.

A. YVERNAULT,
Dealer in General
Merchandise,
MAIN STREET,
Crookston, Minn.

All of my friends, both old and new, are cordially invited to call and examine my stock and get prices.

Fortier's Place,
Corner Broadway and Robert Street
EVERYTHING NEW, NEAT
AND NOBBY.

Billiards, Pool, and the Choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars. The purest High Proof Whiskies at wholesale prices

PURE IMPORTED GOODS ON DROUGHT.

P. A. DUFOUR,
Attorney and Counselor at Law,
MAIN STREET,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

Commercial Hotel,
W. H. TOPPING, Proprietor
SECOND STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.

First-class in all respects. Terms reasonable. A share of the public patronage solicited.

A. A. JUST, M. D.,
Homœopathic Physician and Surgeon.
Rooms corner Main street and Fletcher Avenue, over Eiken Bros. Hardware Store,
CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINN.

The Polk County Journal.

H. E. COOKE, Proprietor. DEVOTED TO THE WELFARE OF POLK COUNTY. TERMS---$1.50 Per Annum.

VOL. VIII. CROOKSTON, POLK COUNTY, MINNESOTA, SEPTEMBER 18, 1884. NO. 21

Polk County Journal.

PUBLISHED EVERY THURSDAY.

H. E. COOKE, Editor and Proprietor

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

One Dollar and Fifty Cents, if paid in advance, to any address inside of Polk County. If outside of Polk County 15 cents must be added for postage. If not paid in advance $2 per annum to any address.

ADVERTISING RATES.

SPACE.	1w.	2w.	3w.	1m.	2m	6m.	1year
½ inch	[illegible]	$1 00	$1 15	$1 50	$3 00	4 50	$ 6 00
1 inch	75	1 25	1 75	2 00	3 50	6 00	10 00
2 inches	1 50	2 25	3 00	3 50	6 50	9 50	15 00
3 inches	1 75	2 75	3 75	4 50	9 50	13 50	20 00
4 inches	2 50	3 50	4 50	5 50	10 00	16 00	25 00
5 inches	3 00	4 00	5 00	6 00	12 50	20 00	30 00
¼ column	3 50	5 50	5 50	6 50	15 00	25 00	35 00
½ column	6 00	7 50	10 00	12 00	22 00	35 00	50 00
1 column	9 50	12 50	15 00	18 00	25 00	60 00	100 00

Entered at the Post Office in Crookston as Second Class matter.

Republican Ticket.

For President,
JAMES G. BLAINE,
of Maine.
For Vice President,
JOHN A. LOGAN,
of Illinois.
For Representative in Congress,
HON. KNUTE NELSON,
of Alexandria.

How Will Cheap Wheat Affect the Northwest?

Farmer's Tribune.

If the pessimists are right in the opinion that wheat-growing is overdone, that the sources of supply are henceforth to compete closely for possession of a dull market, and that consequently the decline in prices is to be permanent, it remains to ask how different grain-growing regions may be affected by these changed condition. Obviously an early effect of unfavorable prices continued for two or three seasons will be a curtailment of acreage. Wheat in many parts of the country is an uncertain crop at best, but farmers have been tempted by high prices to devote considerable acreage to it. The area must inevitably shrink before a depressed market. If such a shrinkage should occur, where would it be found?

Calling the annual wheat product of the United States 500,000,000 bushels in round numbers, we may roughly estimate the crop of the winter wheat growing states at 450,000,000, and that of the spring wheat growing states at 150,000,000. Wisconsin, Minnesota, Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska, and the New England states grow the spring wheat, while the winter grain is raised in more than a score of states lying generally south of the 42d parallel. There are many reasons why a reduction in price should more sensitively disturb the production of winter than of spring wheat. The states which grow the winter grain are, largely, in the corn belt. Corn does not share in the depression which has overtaken wheat. Moreover, wheat in those states does not give a large average yield, and is always regarded as a hazardous crop. The great variety of crops which may be raised in those states renders it comparatively easy to forego the cultivation of wheat. In the more northern belt, on the other hand, wheat is the principal crop, and cannot lightly be discarded for any other product. Northern wheat will hold the market as against southern because it has no alternative. But there are better reasons than that. Northern wheat can afford to undersell southern because it has cost less. It is grown on cheap lands while the winter wheat, for the most part, is grown on high-priced lands. In the spring wheat states, the crop is much more certain, and the average yield is much higher. Minnesota and Dakota wheat can be profitably sold at a figure which would signify loss in Illinois or Ohio. Just what that figure is, can be stated only approximately. Mr. Dalrymple claims that he can raise wheat in the Red River Valley and ship it to Duluth for 35 cents a bushel without absolute loss. Most northwestern farmers would estimate the cost of wheat a good many cents higher; but no one will for a moment claim that the cost of northwestern wheat approaches that of winter wheat in the older states.

But there is another circumstance in favor of the Northwest. The changes of the last decade in milling processes has revolutionized the grading of wheat, and the hard northern varieties are worth an average of eight or ten cents a bushel more than their competitors further south. This alone would turn the scale. The time has now come when the spring wheat states will rapidly augment this proportion of the entire product. Hitherto only a little more than one-fourth of the crop has been grown in these upper latitudes. The increase of transportation facilities which brings our wheat into more telling competition with the wheat of the older states is speedily to result in a shifting of proportions. There is much excellent wheat land in the Northwest yet to be brought under the plow; and the present episode of low prices will in the end only serve to stimulate the production of northern wheat. The consumption of bread is not going to fall off; and the circumstances which discourage southern wheat growing must by that very token encourage northern wheat growing.

The Republican County Convention.

As will be seen elsewhere in these columns the Republican County Convention is called to meet on Friday, Sept. 26th and very soon the eager aspirants for the different offices will be in clover or out of hot water at least. As the prospect is that the Democratic party will put a ticket in the field it will be necessary for the Republicans to exercise good judgment in the selection of their candidates if they intend to win as the tendency among the voters is (as it always is in county matters) to vote for the best man for the place regardless of party lines. There is no reason to apprehend defeat to the Republican nominees if the party exercises good judgment in its nominations and there is every reason to apprehend it unless they do. The party should bear in mind that the race is not always won by the strongest man, i. e. because a man's name happens to be on the strongest ticket he is sure to get there. This will not be the case in this contest. A candidate's capability, his fitness for the position to which he aspires will enter largely into the question and the Republican party must not be led into the mistake of placing a man on their ticket who has no earthly qualifications for the office simply because he may perchance be a popular man in any nationality. What Polk County needs is the very best men she has for her officers—men who when elected will be a credit to the county, and happy will be the party which keeps this principle strictly in view and carries it out. We are told that there are instances wherein the aspirants intends to knock at the door of the Republican convention for recognition and failing in that to try the Democratic. That man is too much of an office seeker to deserve recognition by either and should be rejected by both. It is well to have party lines drawn in county politics but in that event the man who will truckle to both sides in order to win at any hazard is too trifling to deserve recognition by either prty and if we mistake not he will get all he deserves. Every aspirant should come out in his true colors—no sneaking into office by trying to ride both horses or either.

Minnesota as a Dairy State.

Farmers' Tribune: Many people who have not investigated for themselves, inquire of us whether dairying can be profitably carried on in the State of Minnesota, and when the facts are laid before them they express surprise. Our own people and those who have examined into the matter are convinced that Minnesota offers very many advantages as a dairy State, and that the industry has been wonderfully developed of late years and is growing with unusual rapidity. An investigation of the requisites for successful dairying shows that they are to be found here in great abundance, perhaps more so than in any other State. Our soil is lively, rich, and capable of producing heavy crops of grass and grains of all kinds. Tame grasses, when introduced, yield as largely as in any other State, while our prairie grass possesses wonderful nutritious powers, and can be grazed much later in the fall than strangers suppose. Corn, oats and wheat produce well, and from these grains we can get all the feed we wish and then have thousands of car loads of bran, millstuffs, and other feed to ship annually into Wisconsin, Illinois, and other States less favored in this particular. From the Minneapolis mills thousands of car loads of millstuffs are shipped annually, while the mills at other points ship large quantities. Last year over two thousand car loads of bran were shipped from this city to four points in northern Illinois alone, and already this season orders have been placed with the millers for more than that number of cars. In fact, we can fully supply ourselves, and have an abundance left for our neighbors. Our water supply is inexhaustible, and every farmer can have ice if he wants it. No State is better supplied with water than this. Now we have enumerated the soil, grain, grasses and water, which are all essential for successful dairying. While our climate could not be better if it were made to order. True, it is cold in winter, but it is less felt here than in many of the other northwestern States, where a damp atmosphere makes the cold more penetrating and every much harder for both man and beast. Muggy weather in the fall and summer is rarely known; animals are subject to less disease than elsewhere; our butter is generally firm and waxy, when made, while our cheese is unsurpassed. These facts are all well known to our own people, but there are people moving into the State, and others who will come, who wish to know about such things, hence we set them forth here. We have repeatedly expressed ourselves on this question, and do not hesitate to say to all that as a dairy State, Minnesota cannot be excelled, and the improved condition of many farmers who are engaged in it ought to be a sufficient guaranty that the business, if properly followed, will pay as well here as it will in any other State. We might particularize about localities or individual farmers, but think the statement in a general way sufficient. So to those who are thinking of coming to Minnesota to engage in dairy farming we say come, and your highest expectations will be realized.

RAISING CALVES.

Recently we saw a paragraph on calves in the columns of the Live Stock Journal, from which we quote as follows: "When selected, the young animals should be treated with sufficient care and liberality in feeding to keep them growing thriftily, not only through the summer, but through the winter also. New milk at this season of the year is valuable, and dairymen (in the older dairy States) often think they cannot afford to feed, and it certainly is a pretty costly feed. Yet it is the most natural and the best feed, but it is not a necessity. We have raised calves for many years with satisfactory results on skim milk, by beginning with new milk and changing gradually to skim milk, always feeding it warm and sweet, till the calves become old enough to graze for a considerable share of their support, when the temperature of the milk was reduced by slow degrees to the temperature of the air, supplying the place of cream with some nutritious substitute, usually a little oil cake or cooked corn meal." This correspondent evidently lives in a section where the milk is sold, yet he raises his calves, and thought it paid to do so, then how much more profitable can we make it here in Minnesota where only the cream is sold? It requires but little time, if matters are systematized on the farm, as they ought to be, to attend to the calves until they are old enough to graze, when they can take care of themselves almost. This calf question may look like a hobby; but whether it does or not, the cold fact stares us in the face that some one must raise the calves to keep up the dairy herds, and why not here in Minnesota, where we have an abundance of skim milk? The farmers of northern Illinois sell their milk, not the cream alone; hence they complain that it costs too much to raise the calves, yet they buy cows at, say, $50 per head and never grumble at the cost. Will it cost half that sum to raise a heifer calf until she is two or three years old? We think not.

Wasteful Threshing and Barns.

Grand Forks Herald.

The Iowa Homestead thinks some time soon it will begin to leak into the agricultural mind that our present system of threshing grain is wasteful and is ruinous to the last degree. See here, you fellows that have had ten horses and nine hands to board through two wet days and a break-down of the machine, with a wife, sick from overwork, on your hands, and a straw stack spoiled through bad stacking, has it ever occurred to you that you were wasting your money, and board, and straw, and your wife's health, besides a large amount of internal profanity?

Did it never occur to you that if you could thresh your straw as you needed it to feed, you would need far less hay?

Did it never occur to you that if you had a tread power, that you and your oldest boy or hired man could thresh that crop out in the winter and never miss the time or labor?

But you say, "I should need to raise less grain and more stock to do that."

Suppose you did, would not that be a blessed necessity? You say, "I should need a barn to do that." Well don't you need one anyhow? It it possible that you have not learned that a barn will pay double interest every year, not a great barn with cut stone foundations and timber enough in it for an elevator, but a sensible farmer's barn that has plenty of room for hay and stables. We are perfectly well aware of the answer to all this—want of money. But if you waste your straw every year, and farm land that ought to be in grass, and cut meadows that ought to be pastures, and pay threshing bills and board the whole neighborhood, how can you ever expect to get ahead? The system of farming we have now was adopted when grain could be raised and sold at a profit. It was adapted to that system. The good sense that led the grain farmer to dispense with barns should lead the stock farmer to build them.

How Sheep Raising Pays.

Grand Forks Herald: When Mr. E. M. Prouty, of Grand Forks, two years ago bought the Gunn farm, on the Minnesota side about 2 miles below Grand Forks; among their personal property, were 9 ewes, common stock, for which he paid $6 per head. The increase was seven lambs and when he sold them in October, ewes and lambs, to P. Reder, a Grand Forks butcher, he received $96. The wool he had sold for $14, making a total of $110, clearing $56 on a 5 months investment, without expense, they having been fattened on pasture. Although Mr. Prouty does not raise sheep, being engaged in cattle raising, the above item shows what others may do with sheep in the Red River Valley. It is these items of profit to farmers which ease the stringency of the times when the wheat crop fails or when the Millers monopoly steals all the profits.

The University Experimental Farm.

Farmers' Tribune.

To many of our best citizens it has been doubted if the experimental farm connected with the State Agricultural College and University was worth the trouble and expense necessary to carry it on, but we are satisfied if our friends had seen the products of that farm as exhibited last week at the fair grounds of the Northwestern Exposition they would change their opinion. It was immense. For instance, there was 376 different varieties of potatoes, the product of this year, on exhibition, consisting of every variety we have ever heard or read of. The old neshannock and cow horn, the potatoes of our boyhood days were represented. In regard to this vast list Prof. Porter says:

"The largest collection of recognized and named varieties of potatoes ever shown in this country. These potatoes were grown for the purpose of testing their adaptation to the soil, season and climate of Minnesota, and to enable the farmers and gardeners of the State to identify varieties, great care has been taken to have them correctly named. Many of these varieties require a long season for their growth, and the specimens, not having reached maturity, are small, and consequently give no indication of their value in other sections of the country; all were planted this season too late (June 1) for the best results."

Then again Prof. Porter, had eighty-five varieties of grain on exhibition. Only think of that, eighty-five varieties of English grain must surly contain many kinds that will be of great moment to the farmers of the State. He also had twenty varieties of grasses, and thirty-three different sorts of sugar cane, and we do not know how many of Indian corn, but they were numerous, and ripe—all ripe the first week in September, before the appearance of the frost. We do not know what else Prof. Porter, had in the agricultural hall—the product of the State farm, but he had a grand exhibit, which convinces us that it is a grand institution, and the right man in the right place to manage it. We believe it is destined to be of great benefit to the future farmers of the State.

LIST OF LETTERS

Remaining uncalled for in the Crookston Post Office, for the week ending Sept. 15th, 1884. Persons calling for these letters will please say "advertised."

Anderson, J	Johnson, Bell
Belliveau, Joe	" Louis
Beasee, Christ	Kunath, R
Berg, Oluf	Larson, Sarah A
Berger, David	Loe, Ole J
Bowin, Joseph	Langton, J H
Burton, Robert	Larenger, Edmond
Callis, Xavier	Izen, Ingborg
Cluthier, Les	Muller, Albau K
Cooper, J R	Munson, I N
Crowley, Cornelous E—2	Murphy, D M G
Dubois Wm—2	McKinnon, Kattie
Dinsmore, Chas	Nelson, Christina
Eayversen, Emmy	Olson, Ole A
Eide, Andrew T	Ortlund, John
Goodrich, Chat	Provost, Hilbert
Grone, Belanis	Ross, Mrs H W
Haugan, Ole A	Scott, John
Hegg, Oscar M	Steengaard, Peder
Hansen, Andira	Warner, Julius
Halley, Jarry	Welch, Eugene
Hall, Anton G

D. JACOBUS, P. M.

The Red Lake Falls
FLOURING
MILL

Has lately been enlarged and is now prepared to do custom work without delay. Stable room free.

BUSE & COLBENTSON,
Proprietors, Red Lake Falls, Minn.

BERG & OLSON,
PRACTICAL WATCHMAKERS,
AND DEALERS IN CLOCKS,
WATCHES,
JEWELRY,
—ROBERT STREET—
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA

Fall Goods! Fall Goods!

NEW YORK STORE.

We have Received a Full Line of
Staple and Fancy Dry Goods.
Notions, Boots and Shoes,
which we are offering at Low Prices.

We show in
DRESS GOODS
One of the Best Selected stocks in the city. All the fall and winter shades.

We call special attention to our line of
BLACK CASHMERES,
We ask comparison.

Black and Colored Silks and Satins.
We show an exceptionally fine line in these goods.

NOTIONS,
Hosiery and Underwear, Knit Goods and Shawls, Ribbons, White Goods and Linens, Embroideries and Laces, Corsets and Gloves, Etc., Etc.

VELVETS,
Black and Colored. Blankets, flannels and Quilts,
—CHEAP— —CHEAP— —CHEAP—

CANTON FLANNELS,
Bleached and unbleached and colored. Domestics of all kinds. Prints, ginghams, sheetings, jeans, ticking, cotton batting, &c., &c.

Hats and caps, complete stock. CARPETS, we have a full line of samples of Body Brussels, Tapestry and Ingrain.

BOOTS AND SHOES,
of well known makes. We make a special effort to have this department one of the most complete in the city.

☞ All our stock has been selected with all possible care, having all the advantages that cash and experience can buy for us, we feel safe in guaranteeing all our customers as low prices, if not lower, than can be obtained elsewhere, quality taken into consideration. ---- A CALL SOLICITED. ----

PROUD & MACDONELL.

Stewart & Lawrence,
—DEALERS IN—
Lumber, Sash, Doors, Mouldings,
Building Paper, &c.

1st Com. Dim's and Boards, rough,	$18	Siding, dry	$18
2d " " " "	16	Flooring, "	21
3d " " " "	14	Lath	3
Ship Lap, dry	17	Shingles	2

☞ A full stock of Sash, Doors, Casings, Mouldings, Eve Trough and Building Paper constantly on hand.

Johnson & Stevens,
FISHER AND CROOKSTON,
WILL NEGOTIATE LOANS
Through the Corbin Banking Co., New York,

SELL MINNESOTA CHIEF
Threshers and Engines,
Deering and Esterly Binders,
Studebaker Wagons,
and a variety of Rakes, Mowers,
Plows, Etc., Etc.
KEEP A MORE
COMPLETE LINE OF REPAIRS
than any agency in the County.
Twine and Wire In Season.

BROADWAY
Meat Market.
FRANK JEROME & CO.,
Fresh and Salt Meats
OF ALL KINDS.
VEGETABLES
In their season. All goods delivered if requested.

For Sale Cheap.
A complete set of bar fixtures. Call on August Wentzel for particulars. [10-16]

CITY ICE HOUSE!
E. D. SCHRAEDER & CO., Proprietors,
CROOKSTON, MINN.

Having purchased the ice house business of Ruedy & Kindler, and put up during the past winter from 75,000 to 100,000 tons of ice, we are now prepared to supply the trade the coming summer at reasonable figures.
E. D. SCHRAEDER & CO.

DENTISTRY.
J. H. THOMAS, D. D. S.,
ROBERT STREET, CROOKSTON, MINN.
Artificial Teeth from one to an entire set inserted. Gold, Silver or Artificial Filling used as desired. Regulating Children's Teeth a specialty. ALL WORK WARRANTED.

EIKEN BROS.,
Corner of Fletcher and Main Stree
Crookston, Minn.
Dealers in
HARDWARE, TIWARE,
STOVES,
—AND—
SHELFWARE.

WE KEEP A
FULL & COMPLETE
STOCK,
—AND—
Invite the Patronage
OF ALL.

A. H. DUNLOP M. D.,
Graduate McGill University, Montreal.
Licensed College Physician and Surgeon Quebec.
Office on Robert Street, Crookston.

I have a good Hotel for sale, located right in the business part of the city.
H. W. LEWIS.

ELLIS & JOHNSON,
AGENTS FOR THE
WALTER A. WOOD
Mowing and Reaping
MACHINE COMPANY.
A Full Line of Repairs and Twine constantly on Hand.
Robert Street. Opposite Old Mill. CROOKSTON, MINN.

AIME GABOURY,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON,
Graduate Doctor in Medicine Laval University Canada. Licensed Coll. Phy. Surg., Quebec Late of Michigan University, U. S.
Office over the "Arcade" Clothing Store,
CROOKSTON MINN

M. M. VAN DYKE,
Physician and Surgeon,
Corner of Main and Second Streets,
CROOKSTON MINN
Will attend to all professional calls promptly.

MERCHANTS'
Bank of Crookston.

H. B. MONTGOMERY.........President,
St. Paul, Minn.
M. R. BROWN,............Vice President,
Crookston, Minn.
J. KELSO........Second Vice President,
Bellevue, Iowa.
Wm. ROSS...........................Cashier,
Crookston, Minn.

CASH CAPITAL, $32,000
SURPLUS, $16,533.82.

Will receive deposits and allow interest by special contract.
Buy and Sell Foreign and Domestic Exchange, make collections, and do a strictly legitimate business.
Agents for foreign passage tickets.
De Skandinaviske Sprog tales her.
WM. ROSS, Cashier.

ATTENTION

Now is the Time to Build
While you can buy
Cream Brick
at Very Low Figures. The Best Brick ever made in the Red River Valley. Manufactured by SWANSON & KOEPFE,
[11-18] Crookston, Minn.

SECOND STREET
MEAT MARKET
STANTON & CO., Proprietors.
Choice meats of every description. Fish and game in their season. Everything of the very best quality and lowest prices. Call and see us.
STANTON & CO.
Dobson's Block, Second Street.

Polk County Journal.

Crookston, Minn., Thursday, September 18

THE MARKETS.

Wheat is quoted in this market today as follows:

No. 1 Hard 50 cents.
No. 2 Hard 42 cents.
No. 1 Northern 53 cents.
No. 1 Regular 47 cents.
No. 2 Regular 37 cents.

FLOUR:
Best,	per cwt.	$ 3.25
2d	"	3.00
3d	"	2.75
4th	"	1.57

At Minneapolis:

No. 1 Hard 80 cents.
No. 2 Hard no quotations.
No. 1 Regular 75 cents.
No. 2 Regular 64 cents.

Duluth quotations are as follows:

No. 1 Hard 78½ cents.
No. 2 " 75 cents.
No 1 Northern 75 cents.
No. 1 Regular 70 cents.

'ROUND HOME.

The Norman House sports a fine new sign.

A. Gilbertson is up from Mitchel, Ia., to see about getting his wheat threshed.

Prescriptions put up carefully at all times of the day or night, at

VAN DYKE & Co's,

Miss Cora Fontaine has departed for her school in St. Paul.

Mr. Joseph Hock is up from Wabasha visiting old friends this week.

John Knuppe reports a yield of 22 bushels per acre of No. 1 Hard wheat.

Mr. Chas. Kretzschmar arrived from below on Wednesday and went home to Red Lake Falls.

Henry Steege has pounded out his No. 1 Hard wheat and finds that he has 21 bushels per acre, plump.

For the next 30 days we are bound to sell goods 50 per cent. below cost in order to make room for new stock.

VAN DYKE & Co.

Lawyer Riley has moved into the building on Main street, formerly occupied by Johnson Bro's & Wing as a crockery store.

At the Congregational church meeting held on Friday evening last, it was unanimously voted to extend a call to the Rev. C. E. Page for another year.

Sheriff Zwickey is able to be around again after a long and tedious illness. He is almost as good as new, but still pretty weak and has to exercise great care.

Mr. F. S. Verbeck, representing the Minnesota Type Foundry, was in the city on Wednesday. He is a pleasant gentleman to meet and will doubtless work up a good trade in the Northwest.

Chris. Houston is threshing wheat on Section 4, in Fairfax, and says it is panning out 30 bushels per acre of No. 1 Hard. We have mentioned that piece of wheat before and had estimated it at 25 bushels, all 'round.

A fine lot of toilet articles to be sold very low, at VAN DYKE & Co's.

The subject of Rev. C. E. Page's discourse next Sunday morning, at the Congregational church, will be "Religion in Business, Politics and Society." In the evening a Sunday School Temperance Concert, "Daniel's Band," will take place, to which the public is invited.

A special meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union is called for Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Baptist chapel for the election of officers, in place of the annual meeting. It is hoped that all interested in temperance, whether members of the Union or not, will try and be there.

Rev. R. L. Adams brought to this office a sample of the new potato called the Pride of America, which is claimed to be one of the finest grown. It is a fair, medium-sized potato, said to be an extra keeper, a good eating potato and medium early. All who wish can procure seed of Mr. Adams as long as his crop lasts.

Come and buy good goods at your own prices, at VAN DYKE & Co's.

Chris. Steenerson, the political leader of the noble red man in Beltrami County, has turned his back on the haunts of the pale-face and departed hence to the lodges of his tribe, even toward the rising sun. He has gone to put up the pins for his favorite in the Legislative race and will no doubt return on the 15th of October to represent his tribe in the councils of the pale-face.

Mr. J. H. Hanson was in the city on Wednesday in the interest of the State Board of Immigration which is preparing a large book to be used at the World's Fair at New Orleans, setting forth the advantages of Minnesota. It is intended to make the work as complete as possible and issue a quarter of a million copies at least. The expense is to be borne by the State board aided by such contributions as can be raised at important points throughout the State.

Mr. Howard M. Dwyer, representing the Chicago Times, paid us a pleasant call on Wednesday. Mr. Dwyer is looking the Northwest over with a view to writing up its advantages, and tells us that he has not found a city yet whose natural advantages struck him more forcibly than Crookston. Having heard much of us, he was yet unprepared to see so large and thriving a city and prophecies a brilliant future for Crookston and Polk County. The Times having a large circulation, will doubtless be instrumental in inducing many to locate here.

See call for convention and caucuses elsewhere in this issue.

The best five cent cigars is at the Red Star Grocery, Broadway. [5-1-tf]

Friend Smith is improving the Truax property on Main street. He is painting the house up in fine style.

Mr. Damon Dodge was up from Liberty on Monday spinning yarns about the big crops down that way.

The young folks party on Friday evening last, given in honor of Miss Cora Fontaine, is said to have been (with one exception) a very pleasant affair.

Henry Lewis has purchased a quarter block on Third St., opposite Sheriff Zwickey's residence, has moved his house upon it and intends building an addition to his residence at once. When completed he will have a fine residence property.

M. R. Suffel & Co., the new merchants on Second St., have opened up and are now ready for business. Our readers may expect a more extended announcement soon, as they appear to be energetic business men who will not be afraid to announce their business to the public.

The boys do say they have a fine joke on Jim Ryan. Jim took a notion to go braking and went to Barnesville to take his train. When the train passed the last switch, Jim got off to throw the switch and the train kept right along, leaving Jim at Barnsville. He came up on No. 1 and somehow since that he don't like any reference made to his first trip.

P. L. Ramstad, of Ada, dropped in on Monday to get out of the wet and chat a bit on politics. P. L. says Norman County wants Baker but might accept Chas. Canning. Canning is a farmer of Norman County, who has done good work in the farmers' fight against monopoly, and he would be, for that reason, more acceptable to the farmers of the district than Baker.

Geo. Crocker has sold his stock of drugs to Dr. Van Dyke and Geo. W. Lewis, who will hereafter conduct the business in the same place. They intend at once to add largely to the stock and will be fully prepared to supply the wants of the people in that line. Both are well-known and popular, and will do a good business, doubtless. Henry Lewis will conduct the business in a highly commendable manner. Henry is at home in a drug store, that being his regular gait.

New variety of potatoes for sale—"Pride of America." True to their name; unsurpassed on the table; unrivalled as a keeper. Apply to R. L. Adams, opposite Presbyterian church.

Hon. Knute Nelson was in the city yesterday. Mr. Nelson's untiring efforts in securing the opening of the 13 towns and to throw upon the market the vast pine tract of the Red Lake Reservation, together with the fact that he is one of the most industrious men in Congress, are too well known here to need comment, and it is needless to say that he will be returned by a large majority this fall as he richly deserves.

The following is the list of Grand and Petit jurors drawn for the December term of Court:

GRAND JURORS.

Tellof Nelson.
David Buchanan.
W. C. Rinehardt.
John Moser.
J. W. Hones.
C. L. Crydeman.
Darias Peasley.
John Ryan, Sr.
J. B. Roome.
John McCoy.
Wm. Cunningham.
S. Omiston.
James Gilmour.
Thomas Erwin.
J. Gleason.
Knute A. Bolstad.
Andsen Sture.
Louis Huot.
A. Henning.
Fred Scribner.
Hans Johnson.
Joseph Martell, Sr.
George Goodrich.

PETIT JURORS.

Peter Mercier.
Wm. Hemmelsbach.
John G. Tenney.
E. Langstat.
Thomas Logan.
Charles Halverson.
Elias Steenerson.
John Scott.
Paul Bataglia.
A. Finlayson.
W. F. A'Brien.
Gunder Havaldson.
Nelson Emard.
Gomer Evans.
John Defogo.
Andsen Korstad.
S. P. Norton.
Thomas Enright.
John Peterson.
J. McDonald.
R. White.
Joseph Belair,
Ole A. Thornson.
S. L. Farnsworth.

A Wild Goose Chase.

For some nights past the dulcet voice of the festive wild goose has been heard high in air above our city and taking it as a personal challenge, John Moser, August Wentzel, Fred Schwark and Paul Bataglia started for Mud Lake on Saturday last to bushwack the wild geese. They were gone for three days in the rain and captured nary a goose. But they do say they had lots of fun!

LOST,

A gentleman's saddle somewhere between Crookston and Beltrami, the finder will be suitably rewarded by leaving it at the JOURNAL office, Crookston, or at Charlie Ole's store, Beltrami.

IRA D. BLANCHARD.

Dissolution Notice.

CROOKSTON, Sept. 8, 1884.

We, the undersigned, do this day dissolve the copartnership heretofore existing and carried on in the city of Crookston, under the name of McCarthy & Smith, practical painters, A. C. Smith continuing the business, assuming all responsibility of the same. He is hereby authorized to collect all bills due the and pay all bills against the same.

JOHN McCARTHY.
[20-22] A. C. SMITH.

Notice to Physicians.

Sealed bids will be received from physicians until the 1st day of October next for furnishing medicines and medical attendance (including surgery) to the poor residing within the boundaries of the Third Commissioners District for the year ending October 1st 1885.

By order of the Board of County Commissioners of Polk County.

P. J. McGUIRE,
[20-21] Clerk.

For Rent.

To a small family a part of my house on Broadway. Inquire at the JOURNAL office.

DR. G. A. [illegible]

Republican Senatorial Convention.

The Republicans of the 45th Senatorial District are hereby notified to meet in delegate convention in the Court house hall, in the city of Crookston, on the 15th day of Oct. at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of placing in nomination a Representative to the State Legislature. The counties will be entitled to delegates as follows: Kittson 3, Marshall 3, Polk 7, Norman 3.

M. R. BROWN, Chairman. PETER RAMSTAD, Secretary.

Republican County Convention.

Notice is hereby given that a Republican county convention will be held at the Court house, in the city of Crookston, Polk Co., Minn., on Friday, September 26th, 1884, at 2 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of placing in nomination a county ticket, consisting of Auditor, Treasurer, Sheriff, Register of Deeds, Attorney, Judge of Probate, Surveyor, Court Commissioner, Coroner.

Also for the purpose of choosing seven delegates to attend a Legislative District Convention, called to meet in the city of Crookston on October 15th, 1884.

The several townships and wards in said county are entitled to the number of delegates set opposite each, as follows:

Angus,	1	Blackriver,	1
Andover,	2	Bray,	1
Bygland,	1	City of Crookston
Bristet,	1	1st ward,	2
Belgium,	1	2d ward,	2
Crookston,	1	3d ward,	1
Euclid,	2	4th ward,	2
Emardville,	1	Fairfax,	1
Farley,	1	Fanny,	1
Fisher,	2	Gervais,	1
Garden,	2	Garfield,	2
Godfrey,	2	Grovepark,	1
Grand Forks,	2	Gentilly,	1
Huntsville,	2	Hammond,	1
Hubbard,	2	Higdem,	2
Kertsonville,	1	Keystone,	1
Louisville,	1	Liberty,	1
Lakepleasant,	1	Lambert,	1
Lowell,	2	Nesbit,	1
North,	1	Northland,	1
Onstead,	1	Polk Centre,	1
Rosebud,	2	Poplar River,	1
River Falls,	2	Reis,	2
Rocksbury,	2	Roome,	1
Red Lake Falls Village	2	Red Lake Falls,	1
Sletten,	1	Russia,	1
Sandsville,	1	Sanders,	1
Tabor,	1	Sullivan,	2
Tilden,	1	Tynsid,	1
Vineland,	2	Terrebonne,	1
Hill River,	1	Woodside,	2
Badger,	1	Winger,	1
King,	4	Knute,	1
St. Hilaire Village,	1	Norden,	1
Brandswood,	1	Wyandotte,	1
Wergeland,	1

A full representation is requested.

By order of the Rep. Co. Cent'l Com.

P. J. McGUIRE,
Chairman.

REPUBLICAN CITY CAUCUSES.

FIRST WARD CAUCUS.

Notice is hereby given that a Republican Caucus for the First Ward will be held in the City Hall in the city of Crookston, on Saturday evening, Sept. 20th, 1884, at 9 o'clock, for the purpose of electing two delegates to represent the First Ward of the city of Crookston in the Republican County Convention to be held in the city of Crookston on Friday, Sept. 26th, 1884.

HALVOR STEENERSON,
H. E. COOKE,
O. H. BANG, } Ward Com.

SECOND WARD CAUCUS.

Notice is hereby given that a Republican Caucus, for the Second Ward, will be held in Lawrence Hall on Main street, on Saturday evening, Sept. 20th, 1884, at 9 o'clock, for the purpose of electing two delegates to represent the Second Ward of the city of Crookston in the Republican County Convention, to be held in the city of Crookston, on Friday, Sept 26th, 1884.

O. L. HAMERY,
B. F. ZARRACHER, } Ward Com.

THIRD WARD CAUCUS.

Notice is hereby given that a Republican Caucus, for the Third Ward, will be held at the office of John McLean, on Saturday evening, at 9 o'clock, for the purpose of electing one delegate to represent the Third Ward in the County Convention to be held in the city of Crookston, on Friday, Sept. 26th, 1884.

JOHN McLEAN,
A. M. STEWART, } Ward Com.

FOURTH WARD CAUCUS.

Notice is hereby given that a Republican Caucus, for the Fourth Ward, will be held at the Broadway Laundry on Broadway, on Saturday evening, Sept. 20th, at 9 o'clock, for the purpose of electing two delegates to represent the Fourth Ward in the County Convention to be held in the city of Crookston, on Friday, Sept. 26th, 1884.

W. F. ZWICKEY,
H. M. PIERCE,
T. H. BJOIN, } Ward Com.

Eye, Ear and Deformities.

Dr. T. J. Eaton, of the Surgical Infirmary, of Indianapolis, Indiana, will visit Crookston professionally Wednesday and Thursday, September 24th and 25th. Rooms at principal hotel. Dr. Eaton has for the past twenty-five years made a specialty of the treatment of the eye, ear and deformities. Cross-eyes straightened in a few seconds, with but little pain. Artificial eyes inserted, and the most efficient braces furnished for the treatment of deformities. [20-21]

The United States Internal Revenue Special Tax is due May 1st. Any information and a full line of blanks can be had by calling on or addressing

JOHN McLEAN,
Attorney at Law,
[47-tf] Crookston, Minn.

PIANO TUNING.

Any parties having pianos or organs that need tuning or repairing can have their work satisfactorily done by leaving orders at the Linton House. Satisfaction guaranteed.

[9-tf] E. F. WHEELDEN.

John Knuppe.

General Agent in the Red River Valley of the Netherlands American Land Company of Amsterdam, Holland.

Money to loan on good real estate security, on time to suit the borrower. Office over Merchant's Bank. [1-tf]

DR. M. WATTS,
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
OFFICE ON ROBERT STREET.
Professional calls by day or night attended to with promptness.

MERCHANTS' HOTEL,
J. E. MITTON, Proprietor,
CORNER BROADWAY AND ROBERT STREET,
CROOKSTON, MINN.
The new Merchants' Hotel, recently re-fitted and re-furnished is now ready to accommodate the traveling public, who are cordially invited to stop at the Merchants' when in the city.

JOHN N. IVES.
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
Collection and Land Office Business made a specialty. Money secured for final proofs on short notice.
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA.

W. L. Sargeant
Veterinary Surgeon.
CROOKSTON, - - - - MINN.
Diseases of horses and cattle a specialty.
[9-tf

WM. WATTS,
ATTORNEY AT LAW,
AND DEALER IN
REAL ESTATE:
OFFICE OVER MERCHANTS' BANK.

Wentzel & Rauch,
Sample Rooms.
MAIN STREET, - - - CROOKSTON, MINN.
For a fine mixed or straight drink call on the boys. The choicest liquors and cigars in stock. [9-tf]

Groceries, Provisions,
Flour, Feed
SMOKED, DRIED AND SALT
MEATS,
TEAS,
COFFEES,
SUGARS,
SPICES,
ETC.
Highest Market Price Paid for
FARM PRODUCE.
Bauchman & Millette.
Broadway, Opposite the Post Office,
Crookston, Minn.

THE
St. Paul,
Minneapolis
—AND—
Manitoba
RAILWAY,
WITH ITS
1,400 Miles of Road
Is the only line extending through the
Park Region of Minnesota,
To all principal points in
Red River Valley,
Northern Minnesota,
Northern Dakota,
And to Devil's Lake and Turtle Mountain Districts.
—CONTAINING OVER—
9,000,000 Acres
GOVERNMENT LANDS!
The Land department of the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba Railway has exclusive charge of the Company's Lands in Minnesota, and all correspondence relative to the purchase of lands, terms, description or price of any particular tract should be addressed to that department.
Maps and pamphlets describing the country and giving rates of fare to settlers, etc., mailed FREE on application.
JAS. B. POWER,
Land and Immigration Commissioner.
C. H. WARREN,
General Passenger Agent,
St. P., M. & M. R'y., St. Paul, Minn.

A. Allen,
AGENT
—FOR THE—HOWE
SCALE
COMPANY.

CHANGE IS THE ORDER OF THE DAY!
POTTER & GEORGE
—SUCCEED BEECHER & GEORGE OF—
MEDICAL HALL.
The reputation of the old firm will be kept up for good goods and moderate prices. Don't forget us.
POTTER & GEORGE,
Proprietors of Medical Hall.

E. D. CHILDS & CO.,
Proprietors of
CARMAN TOWNSITE,
AND
Dealers in Real Estate!

Why Don't You wait?
Wait till Crookston has ten thousand people. Three years!
Wait till Crookston is the largest and most important manufacturing town in the Northwest. Two years!
Wait till Crookston has two more large saw mills, and is cutting 75,000,000 feet a season. One year!
Wait till lots in SOUTH CROOKSTON are selling for twice their present valuation (six months) and THEN purchase
South Crookston Property.
But if you have time, just drop in and have a chat with
STEENERSON & McMANUS, Broadway.
JOHN IVES & SON, Broadway.
PALMER & BOND, Robert Street.
CROOKSTON IMPROVEMENT CO., Main Street.

Crookston City Bakery,
Peter Lorge, Prop.,
Keeps constantly on hand a full line of all goods usually found in a
First-Class Bakery.
Cigars and Tobacco, Nuts, Fruits, Candies; Pies, Cakes, Bread,
And everything to fill out a hungry man, constantly on hand.

MONEY! LAND!
$100,000 To Loan. 20,000 Acres of Land for Sale.
BRING IN YOUR PROPERTY
AND IT WILL BE SOLD.
Law and Insurance, Collections Made,
CITY LOTS FOR SALE!
Houses, Rooms and Farms to Rent.
U. S. LAND OFFICE
Business promptly attended to.
CONTEST CASES A SPECIALTY.
Office Corner Broadway and Robert Street,
PALMER & BOND.

THE PIONEER
HARNESS SHOP.
M. RAUENBUEHLER, Proprietor,
CORNER OAK AND THIRD STS., CROOKSTON MINN
Is ready for the Spring trade with a full supply of Work and Light Harness. Single and Double, saddles, Bridles, Whips, Blankets, etc. Give me a call before you purchase.

MERCHANTS'
BILLIARD HALL,
FRED ANDERSON, Proprietor.
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA,
The choicest Wines, Liquors and Cigars constantly on hand.

Tom Morris,
—THE—
CITY
JEWELER
Represents the
CELEBRATED
Rockford Quick Train
WATCH
THE ONLY
Railroad
Watch
IN EXISTENCE.

Crookston Nurseries
ESTABLISHED IN 1879.
Tree Claim Stock.
I desire to inform my customers and others that I shall make a great reduction from former prices on forest trees and seeds for tree-claims. I have good thrifty two year old trees, such as Box Elder, Ash and Cottonwood to sell by the thousand. I also furnish the hardier varieties of
SMALL FRUITS,
Such as Currants, Gooseberries, Raspberries and Strawberry plants, and young, thrifty Transcendent and Hislop Crab Apple trees. The firm of Heseltine Bros. having dissolved, I still continue business on the
—OLD NURSERY GROUNDS—
in Crookston. Hoping by fair dealing and promptness with my customers to merit their patronage.
Don't fail to write for Catalogue and Prices.
☞ ALL COMMUNICATIONS PROMPTLY ANSWERED.
F. T. HASELTINE,
Proprietor of the Crookston Nurseries, Crookston, Minn.

JOHN LEO. H. STEENERSON.
LEO & STEENERSON.
ATTORNEYS AT LAW
Room 3., U. S. Land Office Building,
CROOKSTON. - - - - MINNESOTA.

WANTED!
5,000 Men, Women and Children
—TO VISIT—
HACK & GALLASCH'
General Store, where you can buy
13 lbs. Pure Sugar for.....$1.00
12 lbs. Turkish Prunes for..... 1.00
5 three lb. cans Table Peaches for.. 1.00
Japan Tea from.....20 to 60 cts per lb
1 long bar of soap and 1 towel, all for..... 25c
Our stock of
DRY GOODS, NOTIONS,
AND DRESS GOODS IS COMPLETE.
Don't fail to visit our Shoe and Slipper department before buying elsewhere New and complete stock of Groceries Crockery, Glassware, Flour and Feed.
☞ We pay the highest market price for Butter, Eggs, Snake Root, Etc.
Call and see us. NO TROUBLE TO SHOW GOODS.
Cor. Main and Second Street,
CROOKSTON, - - - MINN

Bigham & Olafson
(Successors to Juve & Bergland,)
THE POPULAR MERCHANTS ON
MAIN STREET, - - - CROOKSTON
Have on hand and are constantly receiving full lines of
DRY GOODS, GROCERIES,
CROCKERY,
CLOTHING,
BOOTS AND SHOES,
HATS AND CAPS
In fact everything usually found in a first-class general store.
☞ Our goods are bought with great care and will be sold at
LOW PRICES
☞ FOR CASH. ☜

NEW LIVERY,
Feed and Sale
STABLES.,
CORNER MAIN AND FOURTH STS.,
CROOKSTON, MINNESOTA
TERRY & COLLINS. Prop's.
☞ Good Turnouts at all times a reasonable prices. Good Hearse and careful driver when needed.

WRECKED BY THE FLOODS.

The Causes and Effects of the Inundation at Eau Claire Fairly Considered.

No Business Firms Are Seriously Affected by the Disaster—Additional List of Losses.

Relief Work at Home and Abroad—Drowning of Mr. David Cover of Stillwater—Minor Mishaps.

Causes and Effects of the Flood.

From the St. Paul Pioneer Press, Sept. 15.

Eau Claire is recovering from the dismay which overwhelmed her last week; and her people on looking over the situation, find that their loss, great as it is, is not irretrievable, and are taking heart of grace to repair the damage done by the flood. It taught them some lessons—dearly, it is true; but the cost of which will be well covered if they are heeded. Mr. E. P. Putnam, cashier of the Chippewa Valley bank, interested in many large commercial establishments in the city, says to-day, the reason of the great damage is that the people made the mistake of building on low ground next to the river. They might have gone to the bluff to build just as well, and escaped the disaster. If the city had spent one-tenth of the money in making streets on the bluff that it has in fixing roads near the river, the population would have stretched farther back.

"What will be the permanent effect of the flood on the interests of the city?" was asked.

"A good one. We have learned lessons as to where and how to build bridges, and how to make foundations. Private citizens have not paid so much attention as they ought to the city's public affairs, and as a result these numerous low and flimsy bridges have been built and swept away. They will probably now take hold and advise the council to see to it that bridges shall be fewer, higher, and of better construction, and the people encouraged to build farther away from the river. One good result of the freshet is that it has demonstrated the strength of the dam and reservoir of Dells Improvement company, of which we feel very proud. It has been shown that they can hold all the logs that come down, the only place on the river where they can be held, in fact, since the Chippewa Falls dam fell out. This will give lumbermen and manufacturers confidence in the eligibility of Eau Claire as a location for their business."

LOSSES TO LUMBERMEN,

while they are heavy are pretty evenly distributed, and none of them are crippled, as I am in a position to know, for our bank carries a number of them. It is the same way with the general business of the city. While there is no insurance on damages, the loss in almost every case is not total, and the stability of the houses will not be affected."

"Do you expect much suffering among the poor this winter on account of the calamity?"

"No. The present necessities of those made houseless are being provided for. The repairs which the flood makes necessary will furnish work for everybody. The mills, too, will start up in a couple of weeks."

THE CAUSE OF THE DISASTER.

Speaking of the cause of the disaster, Mr. Putnam said:

I understand that the men in charge of the dams up the river were not at their posts when the flood came, and neglected to open the gates, so the water, instead of being let out easily and gently, was penned up until it burst the bounds and came down as a destructive flood. If this charge is true, it shows very serious dereliction on their part.

Losses at Eau Claire.

That part of the North side which was inundated is a low flat along the river, occupied principally by one-story frame dwellings of poor people. The scene has already been described in general in these dispatches, and a more careful survey only emphasizes the seriousness of the disaster. The bank of the river rises quite abruptly for a few few feet to an elevation of about one hundred or so feet wide back to Forest street, on which is the track of the Milwaukee road, and which is depressed three or four feet below the lots on either side. The strip between this and the river was well filled with populous shanties, and when the big rise occurred Wednesday night the people at first refused to leave. When the logs came down, however, and battered at their doors, nothing was left for them but to flee. They found that Forest street, which they must cross, was a rushing river, whose depth was more than the stature of a man, and full of crashing logs. The crossing was made successfully, however, and as far as can be learned not a life was lost, nor was any serious injury incurred. The flood made great havoc with these little houses. They were floated away in every imaginable shape. The topography of the land is entirely changed. The drive along the river front is gone; and with it is annihilated fifteen or twenty feet of the rear of the lots. What were fertile gardens are now beds of quicksand and sawdust, or ponds and creeks, the whole covered with logs on which one may walk over the whole district without touching the ground. Forest street and its railway track is piled with logs three feet deep. A smart lawyer could no doubt involve these poor people in some interesting legal complications. For instance, one man's wood pile floats off to the premises of his third or fourth neighbor; whose will be the wood, and what outsider can decide as to its identity? A man's house floats a block or so and finds an anchorage in some one else's back yard. If the building is worthless and its owner don't take it away, can he be sued for trespass? Such are some of the problems which will arise to the legal mind.

THE LOSSES.

The principal loser here is August Huyssen, who owns and rents eight of these little dwellings. His tenants are all poor, and many of them lose their little all. Mr. Huyssen's loss, including his own premises, which were quite ornamental, will amount to $4,000. Other losers in this vicinity on houses and contents are: A. Anderson, $200; Pierre Neinsger, $200; C. Scloser, $300; William Ulrich, $2,500; Peter Warner, $2,000. On the east side of Forest street and the railway track, and on cross streets, great damage was found. The houses there were mostly two-story frames occupied by Norwegians and Swedes. The principal losers are—

Chris Sack, residence, $600; William Schrieber, residence, $550; J. Repricht, residence, $400; Pete Peterson, residence, $700; Lena Hole, residence, $100; Adolph Saska, residence, $500; Joe Senenkugle, $200; E. White, residence, $300; C. Falls, residence, $700; A. Huyssen, residence, $500; Lars Nelson, residence, $175; C. Johnson, residence, $200; P. Gordon, residence, $200; G. H. Bartle, residence, $108; W. Klumeter, residence, $200; M. Johannes, residence and factory, $10,000; Bargen, $500; J. C. Olson, store, $500; C. Nelson, residence, $300; A. S. Bostwick, residence, $800; Mrs. Garland, residence, $100; Madison hotel, $600; R. Yunn, residence, $100; Luner & Branstead's store, $3,000; Banstead block, $500; William Bachmann, residence, $100; Anton Meyer, residence, $400; J. H. Gull, residence, $200; G. Ellison, residence, $500; John Olson, residence, $100; E. Solberg, residence, $350; Ole Hanson, residence, $500; Miss Berg, laundry, $200; five or six residences near Phoenix mills, owned by Ole Mortimer, Jacob Lorbe and others damaged over $1,000.

These are only the principal losers, there being a great number of little houses demolished, the foreign names of whose owners it is impossible to obtain correctly, much less to send by telegraph.

ON BARSTOW STREET.

On Barstow street, going north from the bridge and on the East side, losses are:

Ullrich & Nygardis, store, $200; S. Arnold, saloon, $200; Nelson Bros., general store, $1,900; Mr. Holmes, saloon, $1,000; Farr Bros., store, $250; A. Halverson, store, $500; S. Strum, store, $500; Simpson & Co., store, $300; Ide & Co., store, $300; Nelson & Palmer, store, $200; O. La Londe, barber, $100; J. Rosenbloom, tinware, $100; Frawley's block, $500; F. Kemps, store, $250; McMahon & McElroy and Val. Blum, saloons, each $200; George Idsk, bakery, $1,000; A. H. Holland, dwelling, $300; Paul Bromsted, furniture, $500; Holm & Thompson, dry goods, $300; McIntire, groceries, $1,200; H. Schwarz, butcher, $200; S. C. Posick, gents' furnishing, $300; Larson & Johnston, grocery, $500; ten saloons, $100 each. Other losses on the North side were: J. C. Olson, cigars and tobacco, $500; H. Peterson, saloon and dwelling, $500; C. P. Johnson, hotel and dwelling, $1,000; Eric Skamsen, hotel, $500; John F. Wilson, dwelling, $200; John Higgins, dwelling, $500; Manens Olson, dwelling, $500; Hugh Carey, dwelling, $300; Berard & Giraud, tobacco, $300; John Girard, dwelling, $100; Gaston Brothers, boiler shop, $7,000; Frank McDonough, four dwellings, $1,600; John Britten, hotel, $200; D. B. Campbell, dwelling, $500; W. F. Ridell, dwelling, $400; Sam Regelman, dwelling, $200; Olson & Foss, saloon and livery stable, $1,200; N. J. Anderson, dwelling, $400; B. Storm, two dwellings, $200; Jung & Burchert, beer depot, $1,100.

These figures are obtained in a majority of cases from owners. To the above damage on the North side must be added the loss of the track of the Milwaukee road, damage to rolling stock and depot of over $5,000. Over 800,000 feet of logs floated into and on most of the North side property.

IN OTHER DISTRICTS.

Madison, Hobart, Forest, Wisconsin and Galloway streets are badly damaged, filled with debris and logs. Many people in this district are destitute, and suffering is feared. Nelson Brothers donated $200 of tinware to the poor. The water went no farther east than Barstow street. The Phoenix mills are also on the North side, and suffered most of all the mills. F. Graham, treasurer of the Phoenix company, says that their loss is dry kiln, 300,000 feet of hardwood lumber, and minor damages to mills. Total, about $11,000.

THE EAST SIDE.

The East side is the principal part of Eau Claire, and the part which was inundated was substantially built, so that to the eye, at least, there is as yet but little injury to the buildings. Figures as to losses to their occupants are as yet unattainable, as the damage to most of them was injury to goods in basements. Most of them are yet under water, and the goods inaccessible. Many of such stocks will be found uninjured by the water. The principal retail business is saloonkeeping, and the proprietors of these establishments can give no estimate until they find out whether their spirits are still in the barrels. The following is, however, the list of the losses as they could be ascertained to-day. Only a partial list of the losses can be given on the East side:

Gurnan & Doherman, shop, $1,000; John Powers, residence, $40; M. Smith, livery, $200; A. Weisengrer, residence, $300; J. Langdon, store, $500; Windsor house, $1,000; Johnson & Murphy, livery, $250; E. A. Ballard, drugs, $3,000; S. J. Smith, grocer, $2,000; McCumber & Co., auction, $300; Newlins, saloon, $500; Harrigan & Ranklin, tailors, $500; C. F. Duncan, jeweler, $300; Mrs. Steppler, restaurant; total loss, C. W. Chappell, Keyler & Co., Richardson & Co., L. G. Moon, Bullard & Potter, Misses Masse, W. H. Kreeland, Shute & Smith, G. W. Robertson, wholesale liquors; $1,000; barn $650. Hinricks & Hartman, cigars and tobacco; $200. Weil & Steenluck, saloon; $200. Young Bros., trunk manufactory; $800. Clements & Lytle, livery; $250. E. M. Fish & Co., sash, doors and blinds; $800. Mrs. G. E. Porter, dwelling; $500. Mrs. J. S. Owen, $500. E. P. Putnam, dwelling; $250. Opera house, $300. London Tea company, $500. S. C. Brooks, hardware; $500. Williams & Williams, furniture; $200. O. B. Walworth, printer; $800. Chicago carpet store, $250. Charles Albenburg, dry goods; $400. N. S. Stein, clothing; $500. Sam Ellis, livery stable; $400. Mathias Kneer, hotel; $1,000.

Thirty or forty residences on South River street had their rear fences next to the river carried away and their yards filled with debris, which causes damages approximating $150 each. Some of the brick blocks show signs of settling some as the water recedes, but it is hoped they will not be rendered unstable. From Main to Kelsey street, along Barstow, stocks in cellars are damaged from $100 to $500. There are no reasons for changing estimates made in Sunday's PIONEER PRESS, that the total losses are not over $1,000,000.

DRIFTWOOD.

On its own part the city of Eau Claire is offering all possible relief to flood sufferers, while private indiviuals are not backward. Offers of aid, generous offers of assistance, have come from outside to private individuals and firms, but in the main Eau Claire will care for its needy. The opera house is drying out rapidly, and the upholstery and furnishings are damaged but little. The expecation is that it can be opened again in almost as good condition as before. Steam pumps of the Gallaway house saved the valuable contents of its basement from damage, and the assistance they offered their neighbors prevented flooding in some of their buildings. An alarm from the fire bells at 6 o'clock this morning frightened many citizens, some of whom thought it announced another flood, but it was only a small blaze. Services were held in most of the churches to-day, and texts were in reference to floods, and the great danger escaped.

The loss of life in the city, so far as is known, is confined to one person. Considering the extent of the flood and its suddenness, this is remarkable. Other drownings in the valley are three men, one woman and one child, whose bodies floated down from above and have not been found yet.

Since Thursday noon the river has fallen twenty-two feet, and is within five or six feet of low water mark, which at the present rate of decline it will reach by Tuesday morning.

Indications to-night favor rain, but no fears are expressed of another freshet.

On the excursion train which came from Menomonee to Eau Claire to-day, $50 was taken up for sufferers by the flood.

THE MILWAUKEE'S LOSSES.

MILWAUKEE, Special Telegram, Sept. 14.—General Superintendent Clark, of the St. Paul road, has not yet returned from the scene of the Chippewa river floods, where he went on Friday. He is personally overseeing the work of repair going on there.

NO DAMAGE AT DURAND.

DURAND, Wis., Special, Sept. 14.—This place is all right this evening. The water reached a point two feet above the high water of 1880, but there was no damage except to cellars. The bridge across the Chippewa is all right. Beef Slough boom and the mills below will round up all logs that come down.

Earlier Accounts.

From the St. Paul Pioneer Press, Sept. 14.

South of the Omaha railway bridge, in West Eau Claire, from the Pioneer Lumber company's mills to Westville, two miles away, and at the extreme end of West Eau Claire and at Westville, the damage wrought by Thursday's flood is tremendous. Along this section the banks of the Chippewa are low; but notwithstanding this and the fact that the soil is sand, the people had constructed their dwellings close to the water's edge, apparently fearing no overflow. The west side of Shawtown, a division of West Eau Claire, is where chaos reigns. The streets are filled with lumber, houses turned and twisted in all ways, the whole place covered with a layer of black mud, left by the flood, from one to three feet in depth; bedding, household furniture, roofs, shingles, logs, fifteen-foot piles of wood; houses with logs driven through them; the depot inclined at an angle of forty-five degrees, and telegraph, telephone and electric light wires down. The Milwaukee railroad track and bridge are completely uprooted; the street car tracks are buried under the blackest, nastiest mud that ever was formed. The city bridges are literally distributed in out-of-the-way places—one indescribable mass of everything that could float. The rise of water at Shawtown was twenty-two feet six inches, the most of the flood occurring Wednesday night and Thursday morning. No lives were lost there. The main damage is to the Milwaukee railway, its loss certainly being over $10,000 in that locality, while the streets of Shawtown are swept out of existence. The estimated damage from Westville to the Half Moon Lake canal, which is the northern boundary of Shawtown, is over $25,000. Of deaths on the West side there are not many, as near as they can be traced now. It seems that a Mr. Lilly, who lives near the Madison street bridge, was trying to save his wife from the flood. His body was found Friday morning. Friday evening a float passed down the Chippewa with two men on it. According to the story of the bystanders it disappeared just opposite the Babey house and the men were not seen again. Grossly exaggerated stories are flying around about other deaths in the vicinity, but their truth is doubtful. Of the logs that have broken loose, lumbermen say not one will reach Durand, and they can easily be recovered when the water goes down. Between Eau Claire and Rumsey's Landing, down the river, many farmers were found by the relief party perched upon knolls with their families; homes gone, fields under water, and no provisions. There are fears of great suffering between here and Durand. A careful estimate made by parties resident there approximates the West Eau Claire losses about as follows, and the figures given cannot be far from correct:

Milwaukee road	$25,000
Lumber firms, foundry, etc	25,000
Municipal loss, bridges, etc	300,000
Residents	150,000

No outside aid will be needed. A public subscription is being taken up in the city for aid to sufferers. It is believed that the total loss in all Eau Claire will not exceed $1,000,000. A house passed the city Thursday half submerged, a woman with a child in her arms standing at the upper-story window and a man on the roof. They are supposed to have been drowned. The river has fallen rapidly to-day, at the time of writing having gone down from fifteen to seventeen feet. It is stated that over 400,000,000 feet of logs have drifted into the Dells reservoir from northern points. The Phoenix Lumber company estimates its damage at $10,000. The bridges across the Eau Claire in the city are jammed into all possible shapes, the damage to them being heavy. Reports of a house having floated into the Dells pond with five dead persons in it have just come in. Summarizing all the damage resulting to this town up to date, from Chippewa Falls to Eau Claire the main damage is to the mill and lumbering interests, though private property in that section has suffered considerably. At Eau Claire the city and railroads suffer; the mills are less damaged. It is stated that over 5,000 people have been directly injured by this flood, over twenty-five corporate firms damaged, one of the principal divisions of a great railroad almost entirely swept away, one-fifth of a large city submerged, a dozen and over smaller places more or less damaged and a great agricultural region turned into a sea. The flood is directly traceable to the cyclone that swept St. Croix and Polk counties. The great bulk of rain did not fall though till after the blow of last Tuesday night, when all the small streams in Chippewa and Barron counties north of here were turned into rivers and lakes that discharged themselves into the Chippewa and came down its course. No such rainfall has ever occurred in Wisconsin before since early pioneer days, and the destruction from wind and rain is unparalleled. Nearly four millions damage from wind and over three millions from water is a terrible record.

THE LUMBER INTERESTS.

CHIPPEWA FALLS, Wis., Special Telegram, Sept. 13.—Fred Weyerhauser, president of the Mississippi Lumber and Logging company, was here again to-day looking after the interests of the company. He states that there was in the Chippewa 525,000,000 feet of logs belonging to his company, and above 75,000,000 belonging to other parties. Advices received from Mr. Irvine, at Beef Slough, are to the effect that all the logs run in there thus far are safely cared for. Mr. Weyerhauser thinks there is more than 100,000,000 there, an equal number at the Dells reservoir, and 150,000,000 in the Paint creek dam, and, as far as is known, even more above Little Falls, filling the mouth of Jump creek and the main river for some distance up to the stream. No advices have been received from Little Falls but Mr. Weyerhauser believes that everything is safe there. The ends of the Paint Creek dam are washed out, as is the east end of that on the falls here. Mr. Weyerhauser says that his company owned improvements worth $400,000 on the river, and he estimates that it will cost at least $100,000 to make the repairs. From $25,000 to $40,000 will be necessary to build the Point Creek dam. The smaller dams above he thinks are pretty generally gone, but has no positive information. The storm he believes to have been

MOST SEVERE ON THE EASTERN TRIBUTARIES

of the river. He has heard from the West fork and the Court d'Ourelle, and everything is all right in that direction, but the storm seems to have been along the East fork and the Flambeau, where the water must have fallen in torrents. A telegram from Hayward states that no damage is done there. A large proportion of the logs now in the four great reservoirs will be high and dry when the water falls. Of the 600,000,000 on the river, Mr. Weyerhauser estimates that fully 300,000,000 are so high up on the banks that they will have to be hauled into the river again. Little, if any, more lumber will be cut on the Chippewa this year, and there are enough logs from Little Falls down to start the mills waiting their supply from the Chippewa next year. He believes that the winter will have to be occupied in hauling the stranded logs into the river again, and that the lumbermen will probably have to do their logging before securing the stock for next year. He urges that this work should be done before going into the woods to get another start for next winter. With the water fallen no more than at the present time, two and three hundred feet out of the water, and high and dry. He does not estimate the damage to the Chippewa Lumbering company's mill and buildings here at more than $10,000, although the yard and surroundings present the sorriest sort of a sight. The work of repair of boiler and of yard has been commenced, but will occupy several weeks. The partially demolished buildings will be repaired. Some of the improvements swept away were made on the basis of the flood of 1880, and above the high water mark then. Mr. Weyerhauser says that the most serious part of the whole affair is that it is almost impossible to prepare against the recurrence of similar disasters. The flood will limit the lumber production of the Chippewa to about 125,000,000 feet on this year's stock, and accomplish what it was hoped to do by the combination to shut down. The mills are all more or less injured, but the most serious loss will be to the logging company in the damage to its improvements along the river. A new dam recently built at Pike lake, it is believed, is all right. The estimate of a damage of $100,000 is only approximate, and the actual loss, it is not at all unlikely, will far exceed that amount. An enumeration of the losses in Chippewa Falls gives an aggregate of about $100,000. A large number of stores and residences were either swept away or damaged. The county board are receiving bids for the reconstruction of the river bridges, which will be completed in a short time. The bodies of an old couple named Rogers, who lived about three miles below the city, were found inside their house, which was washed away.

LOGS ARE SCATTERED ON THE BANKS

The St. Paul Pioneer Press, in a recent article on grain inspection in the northwest, gave an account of the widespread dissatisfaction existing among the farmers of Minnesota and Dakota relative to the system at present prevailing of grain grading and elevating. At present it is claimed that the farmer is completely in the hands of the elevator men in the matter of grading, and it is claimed the farmers have no protection against false weights or the various devices by which the grades the farmers are entitled to are docked for dirt, dampness or other causes. It is apparent that a wide range of temptation is offered for dishonest grading at the expense of the farmers. The Pioneer Press, appreciating the interests involved in this matter, submits the following plan, proposed by a correspondent of that paper. The plan is briefly this: To make a law providing for a state grade, the appointment of a state board of commissioners and of state inspectors, and to provide that all wheat must be weighed on scales with an approved apparatus for receiving and holding the grain while it is being weighed—scales to be inspected and sealed—with criminal punishment for violation. Each elevator to have a good cleaning appartus, with option to farmer to have grain cleaned before selling, in case of dispute as to grade; and, finally (which is of the greatest importance), to make all elevators grade the grain and give a receipt for what they receive.

The medical authorities at Washington have concluded that neither yellow fever nor cholera is likely to visit us this year. This is good news for the present, but such has been the hold secured in Europe by the cholera that it is almost certain we shall see that unwelcome visitor here by next spring. Meantime there is time to prepare. All cities will be cleaned up, and it behooves people in the country to look out for privies, cesspools, drains, and everything else that may pollute the atmosphere. Study and experience demonstrate the necessity of good sanitation for the prevention of epidemics and for the general health, both in city and country.

The Washington monument is so nearly complete that American citizens will soon be able to choose whether they will jump from the top of the monument or go on an Arctic expedition.

CYCLONE'S WRATH.

Clear Lake, Somerset, Clayton and Other Points in Polk and St. Croix Counties Severely Dealt With.

At Marine, Washington County, Minn., and Vicinity, Much Ruin is Also Wrought.

A few minutes before 6 p. m., Tuesday, 9th, Clear Lake, Polk county, was devastated by a cyclone which, coming from almost due west, and with a sharply defined width of half a mile, swept everything before it, utterly demolishing every business building, the two churches and a number of the residences, and in less than five minutes converted a prosperous and pretty place of 1,200 inhabitants into a scene of ruin as absolute as that presented in the afflicted portion of Rochester, Minn., last summer. The storm originated in Minnesota, as far as can be judged, and the central cloud had what can best be described as three terrible tails. The saddest of all to chronicle is the loss of three lives.

Mrs. P. Burdick, wife of the postmaster.

Willie Kavanaugh, eighteen year old son of J. J. Kavanaugh, a carpenter of the place.

John Saunders. Both the latter in the employ of W. R. Ingalls, general storekeeper.

Mrs. Burdick was killed by the crushing in of her home. Kavanaugh and Saunders were in Mr. Ingalls' store, and were crushed by falling walls and timbers. All three bodies are disfigured beyond recognition and were not recovered from the wreck until the next day. Walter Lewis was badly cut on the head and injured internally, but it is hoped he will recover. The wounds and bruises are almost countless.

LIST OF LOSSES.

The principal losses to property are as follows:

W. P. Ingalls, store building, Graves street, loss, $1,000; stock, $10,000; utterly gone.

A. Symns & Co. (of Minneapolis), store and stock destroyed; damage, $5,000. Stave mill unroofed and Stave sheds destroyed; loss, $2,000.

P. Burdick, postmaster, residence and town hall above destroyed; loss, $2,500; postoffice building, loss $600.

Mr. Schultz, general store; building destroyed but not stock; loss, $1,500.

Smith & Lewis (St. Paul), general store; store destroyed, stock injured, three barns demolished; total loss, exclusive of salvage, $3,500.

John Glover & Co., lumbermen; loss on lumber blown away and broken, on two sawmills unroofed and stacks blown down, estimated at $100,000.

Mr. Briggs, drug store and stock ground to atoms; no salvage; loss, $1,500.

Drug store and stock, small, belonging to a Swede, loss, $500.

Mrs. Clark, widow, residence blown away; loss, $300.

Mr. Lance, furniture dealer, one end of building blown away; loss, $1,000. St. Charles hotel partially unroofed; damage about $200. David Humbird & Co., smokestack of mill down and lumber blown away; estimated loss, $10,500.

AGGREGATE LOSSES.

The total of the losses given above is $189,100; and to this, at a moderate computation, $20,000 may be added for losses not specified.

The following are among the buildings demolished or seriously wrecked: Methodist, Congregational and Swedish churches, all leveled, taking every church in the village. The postoffice, Schultz's store, Luntz's furniture warerooms, Dr. Goodwin's office, A. M. Briggs' drug store, W. R. Ingall's dry goods store, P. Burdick's block and residence.

Charles & L. C. Nelson's drug store, blown entirely from its foundation and badly wrecked.

Starkweather & Dean's store, front demolished.

St. Charles hotel, owned by Charles Graves, damaged very seriously. Graves' loss cannot be short of $2,000.

Glover & Co.'s plaining mill was also unroofed, and every smokestack in town leveled and nearly every tree broken down.

The storm crossed from north of Minneapolis to Marine, and thence struck a dozen places along the Northern division of the Omaha road north of Hudson. The most serious traces are found in the towns of Star Prairie, Stanton and Somerset.

The storm did most of its destructive work north of New Richmond, and reports are constantly coming in of divers and sundry disasters. A house in the town of Star Prairie was blown down, and Mrs Camp seriously injured, jured it is feared fatally. In Jeweltown many buildings were unroofed and ends taken out of them. Andrew Arnquist had his of them. Andrew Arnquist had his house unroofed and his barn blown over. The end of Fay's large livery stable was blown out, and Ed. Conners had both house and barn demolished. R. K. Fay's hired man was standing near a granary when it blew from its foundation, and broke both his legs and otherwise injured him so that it is feared he cannot live. It is stated that the wind did even greater destruction farther north. Owing to the cyclone the fair will hold over Friday. The Clark family are recovering, except the baby whose skull was crushed in. McFetridge had a horse fatally injured by flying boards in Jeweltown.

Star Prairie appears to have fared the worst, as nearly every building in the village was more or less shaken, and fully a dozen in the town completely destroyed. Among the more serious losses are:

House and barn of Mr. A. R. N. Quist, valued at $2,500. The large barn of R. K. Fay, in which a boy had both legs broken. Ira Kidder's barn. E. Clarke, house and barn, and Filpah's store front blown in.

The course of the tornado and cyclone, seems to have been: From the center of Hennepin county twenty-four miles north of east to White Bear, Minn., thence northeast fifteen miles to Marine, Minn., thence fourteen miles slightly south of east to New Richmond, north of east twenty-four miles (from Marine, and on the theory of a triple separation,) to Clear Lake, and thirty miles northeast (from Marine) to Clayton, thence east until further trace is lost in the forest.

At Marine Mills, north of Stillwater, Minn., fully two-thirds of the houses in the village were more or less injured, some being utterly demolished, others moved from their foundations, while others lost a chimney or a few shingles from the roof. In the south part of the town the handsome new frame house of N. P. Root was blown down and hurled into the river. The family were buried under the falling walls, but were taken out unhurt aside from a few bruises. The two houses next adjoining that of Mr. Root are owned by C. A. Lindquist and Mr. Charles Westergren, and are just across the street from Walker, Judd & Veazie's lumber yard. When the wind struck the lumber the air was full of boards, joists and scantling. Some of those pieces were carried into the street, others driven lengthwise through the two houses last mentioned, riddling them completely, others thrown into the river, and others still carried across to the Wisconsin side and spread around on the hills.

Samuel Judd thinks $20,000 will cover the loss of the firm, and says that the entire loss in the village will not exceed $75,000. In the country the results are far more disastrous, as many of the farmers, in addition to having their homes wiped out of existence, have lost the whole of their crops.

In the town of Oneka, near Marine, the destruction was worse than in any other locality. Among those injured, but one, Mr. George Rutherford, will not survive. He lost one ear and was nearly crushed in the chest by falling timbers. The names of others more or less seriously injured are—Mrs. Lord, Mrs Charles Brickett, Annie Peters, Mr. Emerson, Mr. T. J. Withrow. The names of some of the principal losers are P. D. Briggs, John Lutz, Michael Feltican, E. C. Judkins.

For many miles east of the North Wisconsin road, the country is heavily timbered and comparatively uninhabited, and as no record of disaster comes from towns on the Chippewa Falls & Northern, it is fair to suppose the force of the cyclone was dissipated before it reached that line. The advices received go to show that wind first attained destructive momentum in Hennepin county, and though Minneapolis was not affected seriously, farm houses and barns to the east and slightly to the north of that city were unroofed or otherwise injured, while grain stacks were whirled abroad, and the sheaves widely scattered. Leaping over the Mississippi the next heard of the storm is at White Bear, where, although powerful, it was not cyclonic in character. White Bear is northeast of Minneapolis and Marine as exactly northeast from White Bear.

During a thunder storm early Monday morning lightning struck the barn of James Cain in Mt. Pleasant, near Lake City, badly splintering it and killing three horses, besides injuring two others. Loss on horses, $600; insured in Continental for $300. Loss on barn, $150; covered by insurance.

Duluth's flour shipments last week were the largest on record.

Ravages of the Cholera at Naples.

It is officially announced that during the twenty-four hours ending the 9th there were 791 fresh cases of cholera in Naples and 250 deaths. Since the beginning of the cholera outbreak in Naples there have been 1,100 interments in the cholera section of the cemetery. The official cholera bulletin gives for Italy the past twenty-four hours, fresh cases, 95; deaths, sixty. Advices from the Pyrenees report seven deaths from cholera. All vessels from Spanish, French, and Italian Mediterranean ports are prohibited from entering the port of Malta. In the last twenty-four hours, ending at 6 p. m., there have been 937 fresh cases of cholera and 365 deaths. All the ministers earnestly urged King Humbert to leave the city, but the king refused. He will visit the populous quarters of the city. While visiting the sick to-day the king met an archbishop who was upon the same errand of mercy. The meeting of the king and prelate was very interesting and touching. The minister of the interior to-day received a visit from the relief committee and suggested to its members various effectual plans for the relief of the sick in the poorer quarters of the town. A number of butchers struck work, and it is feared the meat supply of Naples will be stopped. Army contractors at Genoa have undertaken to furnish an ample supply. The panic has extended to the prisons. Criminals confined in jail combined to effect their escape. The military was called upon and the outbreak suppressed. A number of experienced attendants from the hospitals of Marseilles are going to Naples. The minister of war sent a number of students from the medical school to assist the physicians of Naples. Signor Mogliani handed over to the relief fund the sum collected and presented him as a national gift in recognition of his public services.

A Beautiful Gift to President James J. Hill.

Some fifteen or twenty citizens of Minneapolis, to show their appreciation of the benefits conferred upon that city by Hon. James J. Hill, president of the Manitoba railroad, in the substantial improvements he has made there and the large amount of money he has spent in them, presented him with an unique plate the other day at the residence of Hon. Wm. D. Washburn, who made the presentation speech, to which Mr. Hill responded. The plate is composed of solid silver set on a framework of oak, covered with red plush, and so arranged that it can be closed and locked, concealing and protecting the plate. The latter is oval in shape, about 2½x3 feet in size, with a finely engraved view of the great Manitoba viaduct and the river in the center, flanked on either side by the mills upon the banks, the Washburn A and the Pillsbury A being the more prominent. The centerpiece is handsomely burnished, and although composed of the same material as the carved silver designs bordering it, the appearance is altogether different. This centerpiece is set in a frame of carved silver of beautiful design, containing views in relief of events in the life of Mr. Hill, and a finely-executed medallion likeness of the recipient in the upper portion. On either side of the medallion are views of his herds and farms, and lower down the frame are scenes which will afford a pleasant glimpse of his early history. Among the more striking of these views in silver is a picture of Mr. Hill receiving the first load of wheat brought down the river to St. Paul; setting the broken shoulder of an employe across a cartwheel, acting in the capacity of surgeon and Samaritan; hunting buffalo on the plains; camping out with wolf dogs sitting around as his sole companions; views on plains, steamers, etc.—the spaces between the views being filled with heads of wild animals and horns of the deer arranged with exquisite taste. The plate, though massive, is exceedingly rich in appearance, and the carving is of perfect workmanship in even the minutest detail.

Dyspepsia.

Boston, Mar. 3, 1884.

I have used Burdock Blood Bitters for a severe case of Dyspepsia with great success, and can conscientiously recommend it to any person troubled with any form of dyspepsia.

JULIA BOYLEN.

6 Gilson Court, West Cedar St.

Bridgeport, Ct., Apr. 11, 1884.

I have been greatly benefited by Burdock Blood Bitters. Two bottles entirely cured me of the worst kind of dyspepsia. I tried many other medicines, but entirely failed to get any relief from them.

EZRA L. NICHOLS, 8 Whitney Lane.

Providence, R. I., Apr. 4, 1884.

I am using Burbook Blood Bitters for Dyspepsia and have received great relief. Have been seriously troubled with dyspepsia for five years, and heretofore have not found relief.

CHAS. R. SWEET, 65 William St.

East Boston, Mass., Feb. 11, 1884.

I have been using Burdock Blood Bitters for a bad case of despepsia. The first bottle (purchased at Bradbury's drug store, Washington st.) second bottle (at Putnam's drug store, E. Boston), which has done me a great deal of good.

ANNA FORBES, 6 Moore st.

Republicans of the Second Iowa district nominated Col. W. T. Shaw for congress.

Composed of genuine French Grape Brandy, Extract of Smart-Weed and Jamaica Ginger, with Camphor Water, Dr. Pierce's Compound Extract of Smart-Weed excels as a remedy for colic, cholera morbus, diarrhœa, dysentery or bloody-flux, or to break up colds, fevers or inflammatory attacks.

The Salvation Army invaded Boston Sunday and was not very cordially welcomed.

"Isn't that Mrs. Holmes? I thought the doctors gave her up. She looks well now."

"She is well. After the doctors gave up her case she tried Dr. Pierce's 'Favorite Prescription' and began to get better right away. I heard her say not long ago, that she hadn't felt so well in twenty years. She does her own work and says that life seems worth living at last. 'Why,' said she, 'I feel as if I had been raised from the dead, almost.'" Thus do thousands attest the marvelous efficacy of this Godgiven remedy for female weakness, prolapsus, ulceration, leucorrhœa morning sickness, weakness of stomach, tendency to cancerous disease, nervous prostration, general debility and kindred affections.

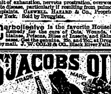
Three lives and $200,000 were lost at Clear Lake.

Delicate diseases of either sex, however induced, speedily and permanently cured. Book of particulars 9 cents, in stamps. Consultation free. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE BEST IS THE CHEAPEST—therefore use Frazer Axle Grease.

Mensman's Peptonized Beef Tonic, the only preparation of beef containing its ENTIRE NUTRITIOUS PROPERTIES. It contains blood-making, force-generating and life-sustaining properties; invaluable for Indigestion, Dyspepsia, nervous prostration, and all forms of general debility; also, in all enfeebled conditions, whether the result of exhaustion, nervous prostration, overwork, or acute disease, particularly if resulting from pulmonary complaints. CASWELL, HAZARD & Co., Proprietors, New York. Sold by Druggists.

Cole's Carbolisalve is the favorite Household Remedy for the cure of Cuts, Wounds, Chilblains, Poisons, Bites of Insects, and Skin diseases. Get the genuine. 25c. and 50c. at Druggists or by mail. J. W. COLE & CO. Black River Falls, Wis.



ST. JACOBS OIL

TRADE MARK

THE GREAT GERMAN REMEDY FOR PAIN.

CURES Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Lumbago, Backache, Headache, Toothache, Sore Throat, Swellings, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites, AND ALL OTHER BODILY PAINS AND ACHES. Sold by Druggists and Dealers everywhere. Fifty Cents a bottle. Directions in 11 Languages. THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO. (Successors to A. VOGELER & CO.) Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

William Lamb, a Quakertown, Pa., Quaker, died from a cat bite.

An Invaluable Remedy.—None except those who have suffered all the horrors of Dyspepsia, can fully appreciate the value and efficacy of Perry Davis' Pain Killer, a sovereign remedy for this distressing disease in all its forms is used internally and externally, test its virtues.

The short, hacking cough, which leads to consumption, is cured by Piso's Cure.

Bill Nye came out of the cyclone with a shattered leg.

Nervous Weakness, Dyspepsia, Sexual Debility, cured by "Wells' Health Renewer." $1.

Allen's Iron Tonic Bitters enriches the blood. All genuine bear the signature of J. P. Allen, Druggist, St. Paul, Minn.

"See What Cuticura Does for Me!"

INFANTILE and Birth Humors, Milk Crust, Scalled Head, Eczemas, and every form of Itching, Scaly, Pimply, Scrofulous and inherited Diseases of the Blood, Skin, and Scalp, with Loss of Hair, cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES. Absolutely pure and safe. Cuticura the great Skin Cure, 50 cts.; Cuticura Soap, an exquisite Skin Beautifier and only Medicinal Baby Soap; 25 cts. and Cuticura Resolvent, the new Blood Purifier, $1, are sold by druggists. Potter Drug and Chemical Co., Boston. Send for "How to Cure Skin Diseases."

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

Sold everywhere, 25c. Office, 44 Murray St., N.Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed instantly to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.

Office, 44 Murray Street, New York.

TUTT'S MANUAL OF USEFUL RECEIPTS FREE.

CURES ALL DISEASES OF THE KIDNEYS, LIVER, BLADDER, AND URINARY ORGANS, DROPSY, GRAVEL, DIABETES, BRIGHT'S DISEASE, PAINS IN THE BACK, LOINS OR SIDE, NERVOUS DISEASES.

HUNT'S KIDNEY & LIVER REMEDY NEVER KNOWN TO FAIL.

By the use of this REMEDY, the Stomach and Bowels speedily regain their strength, and the blood is purified.

It is pronounced by hundreds of the best doctors to be the ONLY CURE for all kinds of Kidney Diseases.

It is purely vegetable, and cures when other medicines fail. Over 100 Physicians in the State of Rhode Island on record testifying in its favor and who prescribe it regularly.

It is prepared expressly for these diseases, and has never been known to fail. One trial will convince you. For sale by all druggists. PRICE $1.25.

Send for Pamphlet of Testimonials.

HUNT'S REMEDY CO., PROVIDENCE, R. I.

A. W. Brown, M.D., of Providence, R. I., says: "I have used HUNT'S [Kidney and Liver] REMEDY in my practice for the past sixteen years, and cheerfully recommend it as being a safe and reliable remedy." 8

TO THE PEOPLE!

This Should Be Read By All.

It Treats on a Subject of Interest to Every Family.

Important Intelligence from the Old Country, Where Cholera has Prevailed.

ASIATIC CHOLERA.

Almost every case cured with

PERRY DAVIS'

Pain-Killer

[From Rev. R. TELFORD, missionary in China, now visiting his home in Pennsylvania.]

WASHINGTON, PENN.

DEAR SIRS,—During a residence of some ten years as a missionary in Siam and China, I found your Vegetable Pain Killer a most valuable remedy for that fearful scourge, the cholera. In administering the medicine, I found it most effectual to give a teaspoonful of Pain-Killer in a gill of hot water, sweetened with sugar, then, after about fifteen minutes, begin to give about a tea-spoonful of the same mixture every few minutes until relief was obtained. Apply hot applications to the extremities. Bathe the stomach with the Pain-Killer clear, and rub the limbs briskly. Of those who had the cholera, and took the medicine faithfully in the way stated above, eight out of ten recovered.

Truly yours, R. TELFORD.

The late Rev. Dr. Granger repeatedly expressed his belief that he owed his life to the timely use of PERRY DAVIS'S PAIN-KILLER. During his recent visit to the missions in Burmah, he had a severe attack of the cholera, and was immediately relieved by the use of the Pain-Killer.

Directions accompany each bottle.

Price 25 cts., 50 cts., and $1 per bottle.

J. N. HARRIS & CO., Limited,

Cincinnati, Ohio.

Proprietors for the Southern and Western States.

For sale by all Medicine Dealers.

Danz's Patent Folding Geese and Duck Decoys are the best in use. Prices low. If you cannot get them of your dealer, write us for catalogue and price list. HORNE & DANZ, Manufacturers, St. Paul, Minnesota.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.

MORPHINE and CHLORAL HABITS EASILY CURED. BOOK FREE. Dr. J. C. Hoffman, Jefferson, Wisconsin. OPIUM

Send stamp for my circular, [illegible] a year; or, How I Manage Poultry." How to make an Incubator costing less than $5. How to build cheap poultry-houses, preserve eggs, cure cholera, make hens lay, &c. A new book. C. G. Dunn, Abilene, Kansas. Breeder P. R. Fowls and P. C. Swine. Swine circulars free.

GUNS ShotGuns Revolvers, Rifles, Etc. Large Ill. Catalogue free. Address Great Western Gun Works, Pittsburgh, Pa.

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD.

Positively cure SICK-HEADACHE, Biliousness, and all LIVER and BOWEL Complaints, MALARIA, BLOOD POISON, and Skin Diseases (ONE PILL A DOSE). For Female Complaints these Pills have no equal. "I find them a valuable Cathartic and Liver Pill.—Dr. T. M. Palmer, Monticello, Fla." "In my practice I use no other.—J. Dennison, M.D., DeWitt, Iowa." Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cts. in stamps. Valuable information FREE. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., BOSTON, MASS.

"I Have Suffered!"

With every disease imaginable for the last three years. Our

Druggist, T. J. Anderson, recommending "Hop Bitters" to me,

I used two bottles!

Am entirely cured, and heartily recommend Hop Bitters to every one. J. D. Walker, Buckner, Mo.

I write this as a

Token of the great appreciation I have of your Hop

* * * Bitters. I was afflicted

With inflammatory rheumatism ! ! !

For nearly

Seven year, and no medicine seemed to do me any

Good! ! !

Until I tried two bottles of your Hop Bitters, and to my surprise I am as well to-day as ever I was. I hope

"You may have abundant success"

"In this great and"

Valuable medicine:

Anyone! * * wishing to know more about my cure?

Can learn by addressing me, E. M. Williams, 1103 16th street, Washington, D. C.

——I consider your

Remedy the best remedy in existence

For Indigestion, kidney —Complaint

"And nervous debility. I have just"

Returned

"From the south in a fruitless search for health, and find that your Bitters are doing me more

Good!

Than anything else;

A month ago I was extremely

"Emaciated ! ! !"

And scarcely able to walk. Now I am Gaining strength! and

"Flesh!"

And hardly a day passes but what I am complimented on my improved appearance, and it is all due to Hop

Bitters! J. Wickliffe Jackson,

—Wilmington, Del.

None genuine without a bunch of green Hops on the white label. Shun all the vile, poisonous stuff with "Hop" or "Hops" in their name.

Peoria had a distillery explosion. Loss four lives and $25,000.

Stinging, irritation, inflammation, all kidney and urinary complaints, cured by 'Buchu-Paiba.' $1.

R. M. Bishop & Co.'s cigar factory in Cincinnati was damaged $40,000 by fire.

Bed-bugs, flies, roaches, ants, rats, mice, cleared out by "Rough on Rats." 15c.

Piles! Piles! Piles!

Sure cure for Blind, Bleeding and Itching Piles. Single box has cured worst chronic case of twenty years standing. No one need suffer five minutes after applying. William's Indian Pile ointment. It absorbs the tumors, allays the itching (praticularly after getting warm in bed). Prepared only for piles and itching for the private parts. Noyes Bros. & Cutler, St Paul. Wholesale Agents.

At Atlantic, Iowa, Postmaster Steen killed his wife and then committed suicide.

"Rough on Pain." Quick cure for Colic, Cramps, Diarrhœa, Aches, Pains, Sprains, Headache.

Plain as the Nose on Your Face.

What is the difference between a persons nose and Carboline the Great Petroleum Hair Renewer. Ans:—one is the center of the head and the other is a head-scenter.

Look Well at the Name.

The only genuine German Hop Bitters are those made by Dr. C. D. Warner, whose name appears on every bottle and label.

Don't Be Swindled.

The only genuine German Hop Bitters and White Wine of Tar Syrup are Dr. C. D. Warner's whose name appears on every bottle, label and wrapper of the genuine.

WHITE BEAVER'S COUGH CREAM. Heals Diseased Lungs.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

LEARN TELEGRAPHY, or SHORT-HAND and TYPE WRITING HERE. Situations furnished. Address Valentine Bros., Janesville, Wis.

EASY CHILD BIRTH MOTHERS ONLY. "Men's Diseases," men only. Free. DR. STAINBACK WILSON Atlanta, Ga.

ONE DOLLAR FOR THE WEEKLY PIONEER PRESS TWELVE MONTHS ★

Dr. Spinney & Co.

Treat all Chronic and Nervous Diseases. Young men who may be suffering with Weakness, Nervous Debility, Despondency, Aversion to Society, Kidney troubles, or any similar diseases can here find a safe and speedy cure. There are many of the age of thirty to sixty who are often troubled with uncomfortable symptoms, accompanied by weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. Examination reveals the fact that the patient's system is undergoing a depletion which rapidly exhausts every vital function. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause. The doctor will guarantee a cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration. Pamphlet, with full particulars, sent free to any address. Call on or address DR. SPINNEY & CO., 37 S. Third st., Minneapolis, Minn.

The BUYERS' GUIDE is issued Sept. and March, each year: 224 pages, 8½ x 11½ inches, with over 3,300 illustrations—a whole picture gallery. Gives wholesale prices direct to consumers on all goods for personal or family use. Tells how to order, and gives exact cost of everything you use, drink, eat, wear, or have fun with. These invaluable books contain information gleaned from the markets of the world. We will mail a copy Free to any address upon receipt of the postage—8 cents. Let us hear from you. Respectfully,

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.

227 & 229 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND IS A POSITIVE CURE FOR All those painful Complaints and Weaknesses so common to our best FEMALE POPULATION.

Price $1 in liquid, pill or lozenge form.

Its purpose is solely for the legitimate healing of disease and the relief of pain, and that it does all it claims to do, thousands of ladies can gladly testify.

It will cure entirely all Ovarian troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Falling and Displacements, and consequent Spinal Weakness, and is particularly adapted to the change of life.

It removes Faintness, Flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves Weakness of the Stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, and backache, is always permanently cured by its use.

Send stamp to Lynn, Mass., for pamphlet. Letters of inquiry confidentially answered. For sale at druggists.

N. W. N. U. 1884. No. 38.

THE HOME CIRCLE AND FARM.

Fashion Fancies.

Belts can be worn with all waists. They are narrow or wide according to taste. Deep belts are not suitable for women with short waists. Silver buckles are much sought after when artistically chased. Young ladies and misses wear belts without buckles. These are closed under a rosette or a ribbon bow. The same bows are on the shoulder and in front of the neck. The directoire sash is also worn. It is wide, of soft fabric, and is loosely tied on the side.

Silk jerseys are plain or have silver and gold galloon trimmings. They are in light shades, generally of the color of the skirt with which they are worn. They are also to be seen in contrasting hues. Many percales have cream, putty, or gray grounds, with dark dots. Suits of this material usually have polonaises trimmed and draped in various ways. They may open over white batiste or white plaited gauze chemisettes, or button down to the waist, and they are raised and taken back to form a puffing over a finely plaited skirt. These dresses are much worn at the seaside during the daytime. Young Parisian ladies have red andrinople dresses trimmed with red lace.

A revival emnanating from the highest quarters is that of the locket or pendant worn at the throat with open dresses—one of the few ornaments suitable and becoming to all ages. Nothing unites richness and simplicity more than a glittering diamond pendant or cross depending from a narrow velvet neckband and worn with a clinging trained evening dress of pure white lace or tulle. One in black is equally effective.

There is a promise that black silk dresses will be in uncommon vogue the coming Autumn and Winter. When good, no material is more elegant or servicable. Tucks, both wide and narrow, upon flounces, kilts and bodice, will be very popular with the plainer styles, and rich lace, costly sppiiques in chenille and jet, and panees and tabliers of broche, with large raised flowers in velvet, will make them exceedingly elegant.

The silk braidwork, which was so extensively used upon last season's street costumes, will remain a favorite garniture for autumn suits. Many of the cloth dresses from Paris are severely made in regular tailor fashion, but with a new departure in the shape of elaborate embroideries. The stylish Newmarkets and Louis XIV. jackets, with their perfect fitting and handsome waistcoats which accompany these costumes, are finished with a rich braidwork in arabesque designs, and in many instances the kilting which reaches from belt to hem is nearly covered with braid embroidery. The back drapery is wholly untrimmed; but the waistcoat collar, very wide pocketflaps and cuffs are each covered with braiding in a design particularly formed for each separate portion.

Agricultural Items.

California horticulturists are discussing the important question of increasing fruit shipments East. It is said that fast time on the railroads and a freight rate of $200 per car-load, would soon result in the dispatch of a train of fruit cars daily. When cars cost $600 and $800 for freight the price of every pound must be materially increased. California fruit, particularly apricots and grapes, would sell in immense quantities in all the large cites of the Atlantic coast if only they could be furnished at about half the present rates.—C. H. Shinn.

Parker Earle, the well-known fruit-grower of Illinois, believes that the soil on which strawberries grow has much to do with their shipping qualites. His experience teaches him that berries grown on poor, sandy soil will hardly endure shipping a hundred miles, while the same varieties of berries from stronger, better land posses great shipping capability. He also calls attention to the fact that purchasers, as a rule, pay more for berries of attractive appearance than for flavor, an illustration of which is the Monarch, of high flavor but poor color, which is rejected for Wilson or Captain Jack, both sour but well colored.—American Garden.

A correspondent of the New England Farmer says that a New York farmer observed that some of his apple trees that had been dressed with unbleached wood ashes bore apples which kept all winter without rotting, while the rest of the fruit rotted badly. His trees were infested with apple-tree blight. He finally applied wood ashes, at the rate of 200 bushels to the acre, to his orchard, and washed the bodies of the trees with lye. The orchard recovered from the blight, and the apples would then keep well in an ordinary cellar all winter.

Summer Calves.—Midsummer is the most dangerous time of the year for cows to drop their calves. They are more liable to be in flesh after June than after winter, and this along with the heat may open the way for puerperal fever. A cow in high condition before calving at this season, should for several weeks before the event be kept in a cool stable during the heat of the day, and given no food here. In the evening she may be turned to pasture for a while, but on the whole only a low diet should be allowed, with a view of reducing flesh. After calving she should be kept out of the sun for three or four days, from which time on there is little danger to be feared from the disease.

Wood-lice or Sow-bugs.—In growing delicate plants like primroses, cinerarias, etc., from seed at this season, the seed leaves may often be devoured as the seedlings come up, and only a sharp eye will detect that germination ever took place. To prevent such mischief, a simple remedy is to sprinkle tobacco dust over the surface of the soil. Where the pests are numerous their numbers may be considerably reduced by placing a boiled potato in a little hay at the bottom of a flower-pot and laying the pot on its side near their haunts at night. In the morning shake the wood-lice out of the hay into boiling water.

Root pruning to Induce Fruitfulness.—This operation often has a favorable effect, through reducing the growth of leaves and by the means aiding the formation of fruit buds for the next year. [illegible] About two-thirds the length of the branches away from the axis of the tree, the soil should be cleared until the roots are reached, and then all the main ones should be cut off with a sharp spade, afterward returning the earth that was lifted. Such a course also tends to earlier fruitage. The plan may be kept up one year after another, and is an excellent one for small gardens, where many varities are desired.

Feeding Cattle in Dry Weather.

If the pasture, because of drought or from any cause, gets short the latter part of the summer or during the autumn, it puzzles many a farmer to know what to do with his stock. It will not answer to let them be pinched and suffer for want of food. It seems too early to begin on the mows of hay that are safely stored for the winter supply, and dry cattle at pasture are not wanted in the stables at this season of the year. The corn-field will solve the problem. If there are any parts of it where the yield will be small and of an inferior quality, cut and feed it green to the cattle; and if there is none of this sort, then use what would make good corn, and do not feel that it is a wasteful or a costly way of feeding. With the pasture which the cattle may be able to obtain, very few stalks, if they have ears on them, will be required by each animal per day; and if fed in a proper quantity, scarcely a vestige of them will be left. No labor will be expended on corn fed in this way for husking, shelling, and grinding.

Should the corn-field be at a considerable distance from the stable or pasture, a quantity sufficient to last for two or three days could be hauled at one time and placed in shocks. Soon after the regular corn-cutting has commenced, although the corn may not be dry enough to husk, a large quantity of it may be husked as fast as the stalks are required for feeding, provided the corn is placed in an open, airy, place, where it will not mould. It is false economy to save the cornstalks and pasture the meadows closely. Cornstalks kept until March are not worth more than half as much for feeding as during the autumn. The bit of rowen which is cropped off in order to have cornstalks last until spring will be many times more valuable next June, and will be seen in the increased hay crop.—Correspondence Country Gentleman.

What a Woman Can Do.

She can say "No" and stick to it for all time. She can also say "No" in such a low, soft voice that it means "Yes." She can sharpen a lead pencil if you give her plenty of pencils. She can dance all night in a pair of shoes two sizes too small for her and enjoy every minute of the time. She can pass a display window of a draper's shop without stopping—if she is running to catch a train. She can walk half the night with a noisy baby in her arms without once expressing the desire to murder the infant.

She can appteciate a kiss from her husband seventy-five years after the marriage ceremony has taken place. She can suffer abuse and neglect for years, which one touch of kindness or consideration will drive from her recollection. She can go to church and afterward tell you what every woman in the congregation had on, and in some rare instances can give a faint idea of what the text was. She can look at her husband square in the eye when he tells her some cock-and-bull story about being "detained at the office," without betraying in the least that she knows him to be a collosal liar.

She can—but what's the use? A woman can do anything or everything, and do it well. She can do more in a minute than a man can in an hour, and do it better. She can make the alleged lords bow down to her own sweet will and they will never know it. Yes, a woman can do everything with but one exception; she cannot climb a tree.—Indianapolis Times.

The Good Points of the Jerseys.

Chicago News.—"The Jersey is an institution that has become about as familiar as back hair," remarked a State street merchant. "There is no limit to the demand for it. Every age and style of woman wants a Jersey. Some, when they begin to wear it, are loath to do anything else. It fits so easily and so comfortable that they feel compressed in any whalebone bodice. Old women wear it and so do crookedbacked women. They are the favorite garment with women with imperceptible waists, as well as women who seem all waist from their shoulder-blades almost to their knees. Of course it is a garment that reveals every imperfection in a figure, and however comfortable, only the young woman, with rounded arms, with supple waist and perfect curves can essay it and look well. She who is so blessed and sticks to the every-day wear of a jersey does it from thorough understanding of her superior points and the same calm assurance that gives a woman with pure Greek features and low forehead confidence to comb her hair straight back in the plainest fashion. But it matters not how skinny a woman may be, how pointed her elbows or how her collar bone may heave in sight, she will wear a jersey. Especially in wearing fine, soft goods it is impossible to disguise imperfections of the figure or supplement lacking roundness, for the cloth adjusts itself to complete revelation of what there is under it.

"Then there is a deal in knowing how to put on a jersey. One symmetrical young woman whom I know wears no other waist, and she always looks like a model for a nineteenth-century Venus de Medici, puts leaded weights into the bottom of the garment to keep it down. You'll notice nine-tenths of the women whom you see in jerseys are constantly struggling with them to keep them from crawling up around their necks. This particular young woman whom I have mentioned pulls it up high on the shoulders, smooths it about the waist, widens it across the bust, and she looks as if she had grown inside of it and it had gradually stretched out over her. One hot day I saw a woman come in here with a jersey on. She evidently wore no corset beneath it, and as she was flat as a slab I could actually count her ribs. Don't give it away, or it would hurt the trade, but it's a fact that no woman whom nature has not turned out with a perfect figure should attempt to wear a jersey."

"Is there much call for the silk garments?" was asked.

"Very little. The soft, fine woolen materials are so desirable and just as suspectible of adjustment that there is very little demand for the silk jersey. In fact, we do not keep it in stock at all."

Harvesting the Corn Crop.

From the Germantown Telegraph.

In a few weeks this heavy work of the farmer will begin, by cutting off the stalks near the bottom and putting it in stooks, to remain in that state until the grain hardens, when the corn will be husked, and the fodder becomes sufficiently dry to be hauled in and stacked for the use of the cattle, though of late years the largest portion of the husks is carefully selected and sold to upholsterers. There is a great deal in knowing how to manage the fodder in the best manner. Sometimes the size of the stooks or shocks are too large, tending to produce mould, and thus very seriously injuring alike the grain and the fodder. Sometimes they are too small, allowing too much surface to be exposed to the rains and causing increased damage to the fodder from inclement weather. Hence, a moderate-sized shock is to be preferred. We have long noticed and commented on the fact that a great deal of corn fodder, after the ears are removed, is allowed to remain in the field, in a very exposed condition, until late in November, and even up to the first half of December, thus permitting the weather to destroy a large proportion of its value as feed for cattle, which eat the leaves in preference to hay, and would much of the stalk if cut into inch pieces, sprinkled over with a little cornmeal, and, when convenient, steamed. We could never understand the reason why the fodder should not at all be carefully stacked at the barn, or housed, in the latter end of October or beginning of November, when it would prove a valuable addition to the winter's stock of provender. By that time, also, the grain will all have been sown, and the potatoes dug, and there is no work of hurry to interfere with the proper securing of the fodder crop. It is well known that for horses carefully harvested corn leaves are regarded as particularly nutritious, and to the race horse they are especially valuable and sought after.

Raise More Wheat to the Acre.

There is not much difference in the cost of plowing, tillage, seed, sowing, harvesting and the interest on the land, whether a field yields ten or thirty bushels to the acre. Whatever may cause land ordinarily capable of producing a yield of the lowest figure, to reach a crop equal to the higher figure, will, therefore, produce nearly clear profit, save the cost of the cause. Besides the benefits will last for a number of years, a point that should not be overlooked. When the propriety of increasing the stock of manure for wheat land is being considered this point should be kept strongly in mind, for manure alone on ordinary soil can easily effect such a difference. Aside from stable manure, 300 pounds of good bone super-phosphate to the acre makes a good dressing for wheat. Unleached ashes are also a telling fertilizer on this crop, and should be applied when procurable. An occasional liberal dressing of lime exerts a favorable influence on wheat-land which is already rich in organic matter.

B Luxury and Extravagance.

Here is an account of the way James Gordon Bennett entertains his friends at Newport: Tonight numerous electric lights arranged among the trees light up the entire lawn, bringing out in sharp relief the shadows of elegant statuary of tents, and of the myriad moving figures. The tent for dancing measured 60 by 100 feet, and was attached to the house by a covered way lined with plants and flowers. The tent itself was red and white striped, and the two poles supporting it were transformed into pillows of red and white roses, at the top of each of which were stuck the flags of the New York Yacht Club and of the yacht Namouna, with the commodore's colors in the centre. At each end of the tent was a sort of alcove about 10x20 feet, shut off from the tent proper by a wall of plants and flowers. Lander's orchestra occupied one of these alcoves, and the Germania band the other. The tent was lighted with calcium lights, and the walls were lined with palms and tropical plants of all kinds. Directly opposite the main entrance was a pyramid of two tons of ice. Behind this burned several calcium lights, which showed through and presented a most beautiful effect. This unique decoration was guarded on two sides by huge palms, loaned for the occasion by Harry Stevens. The entrance to the tent was hung with the English and American ensigns, in compliment to Admiral's Commerill of the British navy and Luce of the United States navy.

The guests did not begin to arrive till about 10 o'clock, and they continued to come from that time until midnight, when there were between 500 and 600 of the leading cottagers present.

Dancing began about 11 o'clock. The german was led by H. LeGrand Cankon with Miss Frick of Baltimore. There were seventy-five couples in the cotillion. The favors blue satin ribbons with the three flags spoken of above embroidered on them in bows, with silver pins, on which were engraved "September 8." Silver lace pins for the ladies and silver owl pins for the gentlemen; fans with owls worked in flowers for the ladies and an owl for the button-hole for the gentlemen. A novel feature in the german was the many-colored toy baloons which were attached to the gentlemen's button-holes and allowed to float in mid-air.

All the ladies were in domino until 12:30, when supper was announced. The table for the most distinguished guests was spread in the pagoda overlooking the lawn. At this table were seated President Arthur, Sir Edmund Commerill, Lady Commerill, Admiral and Mrs. S. B. Luce, Attorney-General and Mrs. Brewster and eleven others. President Arthur escorted Lady Commerill to the table. All the other tables were spread in small tents about the lawn. The floral decorations for the tables were elegant, the centre piece on that in the pagoda measuring nearly four feet in diameter and representing the various flags already mentioned. Besides the two orchestras in the ball tent there was one stationed on the lawn. Though awnings stretched across the premises in front completely shut out this scene from the gaze of outsiders, the avenue was crowded with citizens watching the guests arrive, listening to the excellent music and hoping against hope for a chance to see within. It is said that the cost of this entertainment will reach as high as $10,000.

Current Notes.

Legislators are pretty much the same the world over. During the recent session of the French Assembly the members drank 2,000 quarts of beer, 500 quarts of brandy, and 3,000 quarts of "miscellaneous" drinks. It is a suggestive fact that the debates of the assembly have recenty been especially violent and acrimonious.

Utah has three gold mines which are yielding more with less noise than any other three mines in the country. One of them has the best record of any mine in the United States, except the Eureka Consolidated. It has never levied an assessment and has paid $5,000,000 in dividends.

Last year the women of the United States gave $600,000 toward Christianizing the heathen. Of this large sum Presbyterian women gave $200,000; Baptist women, $156,000; Congregational women, $130,000; Northern Methodist women, $108,000, and Southern Methodist women over 25,000.

The president of a Cleveland horse railroad company says he has tried the electrical system on a portion of his line and is satisfied with its practical success. He estimates that with an expenditure of $150,000 for the plant—engines, boilers, dynamos, moters and conduits—a saving of over $50,000 a year can be effected over the present cost of operation by horses, besides securing to the company and the public the benefit of rapid transit. The one car now in operation runs on schedule time, but it can be driven at the rate of 10 miles an hour.

The average Parisian kitchen is about 5 feet wide and 9 long, with one window opening into a dismal yard 9 feet square. Along the wall runs an iron-edged table 4 or 5 feet long and about 2 feet wide. In this table are cut from four to six square holes, and underneath runs a shelf of stone or iron of just the same size as the table itself. The space between this shelf and the table is closed in front by iron doors. This block placed against the wall bears the general name of fourneau, and, with the exception of roasting, it is on this block that all the cooking is done. There is the greatest possible economy in fuel.

Actors are now paid better than the church, the law or the army. Their average incomes from the public are larger than those of any of the learned professions. In London they have their club house, move in high circles, live luxuriously, and have their own turnouts. A number of actresses have married English noblemen, and London society is ready to receive any actor or actress, if only well talked about, regardless of any scandal which would be fatal to any one else.

A number of English families have begun the importation of Norwegian girls for domestic service. Those who have accepted places give much satisfaction. They are spoken of as giantesses in size, the possessors of hands and feet modeled upon nature's broadest plan, and showing great good nature. They can't speak a word of English, but seem willing to learn, and are wonderfully patient on washing days with children and pug dogs. This description accords with the experience of employers of Scandinavian servant girls in the West, especially in Minnesota, where they are largely employed in domestic service, and are highly appreciated for their industry and other good qualities.

Broken Bones.

A doctor should, of course, be sent for in most cases, as it is difficult to determine the character of the fracture.

But the fracture of an arm-bone, especially in the case of children,—their bones are not yet brittle,—may be like that of a green twig, partly bent and partly broken.

In this case, if the arm can be straightened without much, if any, pain to the child, the parent may himself bring the parts into place, keep them so with splints and bandages, and otherwise support the arm.

A broken bone heals of itself almost as readily as a cut muscle. Rest—absolute rest, no movements of the fractured surfaces on each other—is the main thing.

But if the fracture is in two or more places, or the bone is broken into small pieces, or a jagged end is thrust into the flesh, the doctor, of course, should be called.

If the hand or foot has been badly crushed, immerse it in quite warm water, and keep it there till the doctor comes.

Perhaps he may conclude to let it remain until the inflamation has subsided—two or three days—before he extracts the broken bits.

Hot water has wonderful power to relieve pain, reduce inflamation, and promote healing. Hands have thus been saved for quite good service, which had been crushed under a trip-hammer.

In the case of a broken leg, don't lift up the wounded person. The jagged ends of the bone may badly lacerate the flesh. Get some door from its hinges—or something of the kind—and let the person draw himself on to it, and into such a posture as he may find least painful. In this case, too, absolute rest of the parts is the one condition of cure.

Of late years the plaster-of-paris bandage has, to a large extent, taken the place of splints. It is vastly superior every way and with it the person may sooner be allowed some use of his limbs.—Youth's Companion.

Vermont has now, according to the Troy Times, three ex-governors living, each over 80 years of age, Hiland Hall, of Bennington; Ryland Fletcher, of Cavendish, and Paul Dillingham, of Waterbury. Of ex-Governor Peck it is related that even when in office he could not lay aside his love of farming. So he devoted all his spare time to that work. One day he was toiling away with his workmen, digging up stumps and burning brush, when he was accosted by a well-dressed youth with pencil and paper in hand: "See here, old man, I have tramped nearly five miles to find that old cuss of a Governor Peck, and I want you to find him for me. I want to see him." The governor directed him to a party of men in an adjacent lot, designating "the governor," and the man who had traveled long and was weary has not been seen since.

CADETS AND CHARMERS.

An Old Girl's Shrewd Observations on the Way They Have in the Army.

From the New York Sun.

It was one of Sidney Smiths's notions that girls ought to have military dolls to play with, just as they have hobby horses to ride, to inure them to the sight of the live article without becoming demoralized. But the appetite for the military grows by what it feeds on, and a girl who has once taken a turn at a flirtation with a West Point cadet is like a tiger who has got a taste of blood. They are past help then. The infection is deadly and ineradicable; they seldom stop short of marrying a Second Lieutenant and going out to Puget Sound to live on love and a Second Lieutenant's pay for fifteen or twenty years. But meanwhile the girls swarm around West Point like flies around a keg of molasses—the cadets couldn't fight them off with a stick if they were so minded—they are all pretty, all gay, and all happy in the possession of just as much cadet as they can capture. That isn't very much, as at the last hop at the post there were forty cadets and precisely 120 girls. They observe the rule that prevailed at old-fashioned Dutch tea parties when a lump of sugar hung from a string in the ceiling and the guests dipped it into their cups turn about. Each girl has her cadet for a certain limited period then she is expected to hand him over to the next one, who is always waiting for him on time. It so happens that only two of the four classes of cadets are available at one time, one class being away each year on furlough, and the fourth class, the plebes, being forbidden on pain of death to show themselves on any occasion whatever, except on parade. Thus a girl can have but two really successful seasons here, at the end of that time the two classes that she knows being superseded by newcomers. She may pick up occasional stragglers from the main body after her second year, but she has no regular and authorized standing as a belle. The girls who persist in coming here after their second season are called turnbacks.

Those who are in good and regular standing as in their first or second season are called rats. There is no open warefare between the rats and the turnbacks, hostilities being mostly carried on in guerrilla fashion. The fact is, they are remarkably affectionate in their manners and entwine their arms around one another and kiss violently, but there is as much bushwhacking as kissing among them. An old cynic who hangs around here summers says that when women kiss the devils laughs.

The cadets are as trim, as well behaved, and as clean as ever. Indeed, one of their chief charms is their cleanliness. A cadet goes through with such a series of scrubbings that several skins are peeled off and grow out again during his four years' course. The first thing, they are plunged au naturel into a tub of boiling water; there they are parboiled. When taken out they are sandpapered and hung out to dry. Then they are polished up, especially their faces, which on hop nights shine like Moses's in the burning bush. Once every day they are washed within an inch of their lives, after which they are strapped up in their uniforms, which bind the upper part of their bodies like the ancient Egyptian mummy cloths.

The young ladies can never see the cadets unless they go to see them, except those who are at the West Point Hotel, the only hotel allowed on the reservation, and which does not accommodate a large crowd. The omnibuses and carriages which run from neighboring points carry the young ladies from the surrounding hotels. It is estimated that a girl travels several thousand miles going to and from West Point during the season.

Sunday afternoon parade is always attended by a great crowd. Promptly at half past 6 the parade is formed. The Adjutant, a young gentleman wearing a tall shako and a dazzling pair of white trousers, is the cynosure of all eyes. The long line of cadets go through the drill as one man. The word of command sounds something like this:

"C-a-r-r-y——hunks!"

"Shoulder——hunks!"

"Pre——sent——hunks!" &c. Carry hunks means carry arms—hunks being the pronunciation of arms commonly used by adjutants in the army at parade.

The hops go on with the same regularity, the same waltzes are played, the same corporal stands at the door with his drum sticks firmly grasped ready to beat the tattoo at 10 o'clock for the young ladies to go home and leave the cadets in peace. The same grim sentry marches up and down to keep the girls from seeing the boys home and hanging on the gate afterward. The band continues to play "Take Back the Heart that Thou Gavest" as the innocent young tadpoles of both sexes disperse. Nothing at West Point changes—even the faces of the cadets remain always young. Apparently they are the same fellows that drilled and danced and flirted along about 1835.

The Lively Girls of Saratoga.

Well, the girls at Saratoga are notably bright and vivacious. Perhaps the intense heat has the same effect on them that it does on race-horses—limbering them for brilliant achievements. They are less lazy, with all their indolence, than they would be at the seashore or in the mountains. They get up earlier in the mornings, stay up later nights and are livelier at all times. When this is true with the thermometer close to a 100 there must be a special reason. An able theorizer explains it to me on the theory that the mineral waters do it. He asked me what Byron had said as to incitement from cathartics and I replied that I really didn't know. Then he quoted from the poet as follows: "The thing that gives me the highest spirits (it seems absurd, but it is true) is a dose of salts."—Saratoga Correspondence.

Florence Nightingale says that from her long experience in India she is convinced that cholera is not directly communicable from person to person.

Maggie Mitchell refuses to play Sunday evenings. She was offered a guarantee that her houses on Sunday evenings would aggreate $2,000, but she refused.

Mr. McKee Rankin has adopted the English fashion of employing young-lady ushers in his Third Avenue Theater, New York.

ALLIGATOR HUNTING.

A "Look-'em-up," A "Kill-'em-sure" and a "Dynamite."

A few nights ago I had my slumbers broken several times by the discharge of guns. On repairing to the bank of the river, the next morning, to ascertain the cause of the noises I found two young men occuping a hastily constructed palmetto fan camp. Six dead alligators were lying around the camp, varying in length from four to eight feet. The hunters had killed them the previous night. One of the young men was busy skinning the alligators, while the other, with the aid of a single cooking utensil, which answered the purpose of a baking oven and coffee pot, was preparing a frugal morning meal. The skin is removed from the belly, the under part of the jaws, and the inside of the legs. The skin on the back is worthless. As soon as the skins are removed they are salted and packed in barrels, and shipped to a New York firm. The hunters receive $1 a piece for all hides four feet long and upward.

After the skins are removed the hunters cut off the heads and place them on the edge of the river, where they remain for about a week. At the end of that time the teeth become so loose that they can be readily pulled out with the fingers. The teeth from half a dozen alligators weigh about a pound, and are worth $4.

